Job Summary:

The Lincoln University Department of Visual and Performing Arts seeks a Senior Lecturer of Visual Arts/Museum Studies to join the faculty in a time of focused effort to train more African Americans to enter the art and museum professions. A unique feature of the Visual Arts/Museum Studies program is our collaboration with The Barnes Foundation, a partnership combing the resources of both institutions to promote education and appreciation of the fine arts. The Lincoln University Collection of African Art and material culture includes holdings of secular and religious artworks, and material culture artifacts from across the African continent including significant holdings from Nigeria, Democratic Republic of the Cong, Ghana, Cameroon, Liberia, Ethiopia and Angola. Portions of the collections are housed in the Danjuma African Art Center, the University’s recently established museum.

The Senior Lecturer of Arts Museum Studies will have significant professional experience as an artist and/or art museum administrator, and proven experience in integrating collections into educational programs and initiatives.

This is a full-time, non-tenure track position. Starting Date: August 2015.

Qualifications:

- M.A. or MFA in Art or closely related discipline (preferred expertise in Museum Studies, African Art and/or African American Art).
- 8-10 years of experience as an artist and/or art museum administrator.
- Proven experience in integrating collections into educational programs and initiatives.
- Successful grant writing and/or fundraising experience is preferred.
- Communication skills consistent with effective teaching, mentoring and motivating students from a broad range of cultural, ethnic, and economic backgrounds.

Essential Duties and Responsibilities:

The Senior Lecturer of Visual Arts/Museum Studies will:

- Teach courses in area (s) of expertise.
- Advise students and recruit students to the Visual Arts program.
- Facilitate student exhibitions and training opportunities at the Danjuma African Art Center.
- Write grant proposals to support Visual Arts/Museum Studies program activities.
- Perform other duties as required.

Application Submission:

- Submit a letter of interest/cover letter.
- A detailed resume listing qualifications and experience
- Three professional references.
