Remember Lincoln
On Founder's Day

As we approach the 90th anniversary of our founding, Lincoln University again calls upon its sons to pause for a moment of re-dedication on February 10, and to consider anew the ideals which Alma Mater sought to instill.

Dr. Harold Scott, President of the General Alumni Society, joins President Bond in urging Lincoln men everywhere to hold Founder's Day gatherings, regardless of numbers in attendance. Two Lincoln men together will always be sufficient cause for a celebration.

Large scale gatherings already planned include banquets in Philadelphia’s Hotel Bellevue-Stratford on February 8, where Dr. Peter Marshall Murray, ’48 (Hon.), recently appointed a member of the Board of Directors of the AMA, will be a speaker. In New York, the celebration is slated to be held at the Hotel Brevoort, on February 15. Similar affairs are projected for St. Louis on February 21, Chicago on February 22, and Detroit on February 23, with a distinguished gathering of physicians of both races in attendance.

Formal observances this year begin a four-year cycle of Lincoln Day observances stressing the contributions of the University to society in the various fields of endeavor. This year the theme is Medicine and the Healing Arts. The theme for 1951 will be the Legal Profession and Public Service; for 1952, Education and the Social Good; and in 1954, Religion in the Church and Community.

Nigeria Sends Students to Lincoln

Eleven new students from Nigeria are now in attendance at Lincoln. The group arrived at La Guardia Field aboard a Pan American Airliner on September 17. The students, who are under the sponsorship of the African Council on Arts and Research, are all graduates of the Nigerian equivalent of our high schools and junior colleges. A total of $12,960 was raised in Africa to care for these students at Lincoln during the coming year. A plan to return to Africa upon completion of their work for the A.B. degree.

These students are by no means the first to make the long trip from Africa to Lincoln University, for over 125 Africans have attended Lincoln. The arrival of this group, however, contrasts with 11 students from Liberia who entered the University in 1872. They came by sailing vessel and were over two months in making the journey. When they arrived they were attired in native garb, had only the rudiments of an education, and the University was obliged to provide them with food, lodging, and clothing. They remained at Lincoln for periods of 8 to 13 years, going successively through a "lower preparatory school" to "preparatory school" to college, and through the Theological Seminary. Old records indicate that at the time of their arrival, the school was so broke that their boat passage went unpaid until 10 years later.

Among the many early African students here, several achieved distinction in Liberia. The present Ambassador from Liberia, C. D. B. King, was educated in a school founded in Africa by a Lincoln Alumnus, Charles Dunbar King, for whom he was named, came to the United States in 1890. He received the A.B. degree from Lincoln in 1895, and was later elected Attorney-General of Liberia. He was the representative of that nation to the Peace Conference at Versailles in 1918.

The long line of African students at Lincoln has continued down through the years. In 1896-97 Edward Magaya and Thomas Katiya from South Africa entered Lincoln. They were succeeded by several other South Africans—members of the Zulu, Basuto, Amo-Xosa people. All graduated, and even today these men are distinguished leaders of their people. Five have served as moderators of the Presbytery of South Africa. Seven Lincoln graduates were ministers to Liberia.

In 1929, Nnamdo Azikiwe graduated from Lincoln. He is now the undisputed leader of the Nationalistic movement in West Africa, and the most prominent among the many early African students here, several achieved distinction in Liberia. It was a real Lincoln wedding at Williams Institutional C. M. E. Church, New York City, on Tuesday, October 11th. Groom was Dr. Edward R. Archer, '25, of Norfolk, Alumni Trustee, who married Miss Gloria Ramsey of Little Rock, Ark. The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. Archer's classmate at Lincoln, Rev. Pleasant L. Hailey. Yet another member of the Class of '25, Dr. Harold R. Scott, of Orange, N. J., President of the General Alumni Association, was on hand to serve as best man.

Another Lincoln wedding took place in the Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel on the campus, when Miss Iris Jackson became the wife of Rev. Felix A. Scotland, instructor in English and newly appointed pastor of Beulah Wesleyan Methodist Church in New York City. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Jesse B. Barber, Dean of the seminary, with music furnished by the Lincoln Glee Club, Gerald Lewis soloist, Mr. Henry Booker conducting. A reception was held following the ceremony at the home of President and Mrs. Bond.
Dr. Lewis Honored as Father of the Classic

Dr. Charles A. Lewis, '05, prominent Philadelphia physician and leader in the field of sports, health, education and civic improvements, was presented with a scroll during half-time at the traditional Lincoln-Howard Thanksgiving Classic at Temple University Stadium. The presentation was made to Dr. Lewis, "Father of the Classic," by Dr. Harold R. Scott, President of the General Alumni Society. Dr. Horace M. Bond and Lewis M. Stevens, Chairman of the board of trustees, assisted in the presentation.

Dr. Lewis, who for several years served as physician at the University, inaugurated the Classic in 1919 at the Philly Ball Park. With the aid of Dr. Robert Williams and other Alumni, Dr. Lewis negotiated with the official's of Lincoln and Howard for the Annual Thanksgiving Day Classic.

Dr. Lewis attended the Steelton (Pa.) public schools, and following his graduation from Lincoln enrolled at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, following which he did research work in Tuberculosis at Phipps Institute and the Philadelphia Health Department.

Tick Coleman Takes New Education Post

Frank "Tick" Coleman, '35, has resigned from the position of Boys' Work Secretary at the Christian Street Branch, Y.M.C.A., to take a position in the pupil personnel and Counseling Division of the Board of Education.

"Tick" was employed at the "Y" since January, 1943, and since that time membership in the Boys' Department has grown under his guidance from 93 to 1200. He conducted a club program in the "Y," homes, and schools that took in hundreds of children between seven and sixteen. He instituted inter-racial camping at the Y. M. C. A. camp in Downingtown, and he also conducted one of the largest summer day camps in Philadelphia.

Lincoln Spends $65,000 for Scholarships This Year

Scholarships at the University will reach the unprecedented total of $65,000 during the coming school year.

All scholarships in the college have been placed on a competitive basis, since admission is now on an aptitude basis. The sum of $17,500 has been set aside to aid needy students in the upper classes; these awards are distributed at the beginning of each semester.

Upwards of $40,000 has been distributed to Pennsylvania residents who were selected for appointment by their state Senators on the basis of competitive intelligence and achievement tests.

NIGERIA SENDS STUDENTS

African living. Distinguishing himself in forensics, in scholarship and sports, Azikiwe was loved by all his fellow Americans and teachers. As though by magic he drew to Lincoln University and to other American Universities a host of ambitious youngsters who have blazed a trail of high scholarship at Lincoln and other American Institutions.

The Lincoln University Club of New York held a reception for the African students at the Hotel Theresa, Sunday, September 18 which was declared to be a grand success. Dr. Lawrence Foster, Professor of Sociology, made a rousing good speech, and the "Lincoln Spirit" prevailed.

Rest in Peace

The Reverend Charles L. Jefferson, '87; at his home in Newark, N. J., on August 15th. The Rev. Mr. Jefferson, who was 86 years old, had completed sixty-three years as an active minister. He is survived by his wife, Dr. Stella E. Spencer Jefferson; a brother, William G., of Sedalia, Miss.; and two sons, Dr. William D. Jefferson, Cleveland dentist, and Charles L. Jefferson, of Chicago.

Floyd De Los Francis, '07, '10; in Atlantic City Hospital, July 18th, after a brief illness. He was 63 years old. Mr. Francis, who made his home in Atlantic City following his graduation from Lincoln, was a magazine contributor and correspondent, and Editor of the Atlantic Advocate.

Reverend Henry W. Campbell, '03; on October 4th at his home in Washington. Rev. Washington, who was 71, was living in retirement. Dr. Jesse B. Barber, Dean of the Seminary, delivered the Eulogy at the funeral services in Sargent Memorial Church, Washington.

Rev. John H. Fort, '01, '04; at Green ville, Tenn., in April. He was 80 years old.

William Cox, five years old, son of Josiah C. Cox, member of the faculty, was fatally injured by an automobile on the Lincoln Highway Saturday, September 3, in front of his home.

Jessie H. Polk, Jr., member of the Junior class at Lincoln University last year; as a result of a heart attack brought on when he was swimming in Lake Absegamie, Burlington County, N. J., on August 7th. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Polk, Sr., of Pensauken.

WINTEB, 1950
From the Class of 1899 to the present time Lincoln University's athletics has been unique in that those participating and those managing the intercollegiate participation have been men of outstanding capacities in professional and civic affairs.

'99 Dr. W. G. Alexander has long been a prominent figure in the National Medical Association and in New Jersey politics.

Dr. Herbert E. Milten is well known to all Philadelphians for his unselfish efforts in church and civic affairs. For some years he was Assistant Director of Public Safety and currently he is a worthy Municipal Judge in Philadelphia's Courts. He was recently appointed to a committee of the General Council of the Presbyterian Church to study Church policy on social and political issues.

'Austin Norris is known to local citizens as a member of the Commission of Tax Revision and Manager of the Philadelphia Office of the Pittsburgh Courier.

'Dr. Francis T. Jamison, a prominent dentist of Wilmington, Del.; Dr. Franklin A. Myers, noted Boston physician, along with Dr. Wesley C. Redd of Youngstown, Ohio, and Dr. David E. Wallace, outstanding dentist of Okmulgee, Okla.

'The boys of 1914 would protest if one did not mention Doctors Arthur Frazier of Danville, Ill., James Garland of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Philip Hilton of Waynesboro, Va., and Dr. Hugh A. Hogans.

'The "Old Guard" will recall Andrew L. Wallace, ('Fats' to them), an untiring physician of Los Angeles, Calif., along with shifty footed Layton Wheaton, dentist of New York City; and Dr. George King, practising in Philadelphia.

'For 1916 we remember Dr. Henry Goss, most loyal alumnus of Meharry as well as Lincoln, of Chicago, Ill., along with Doctors Thomas Landers of Youngstown, Ohio, William Smith of Chester, Pa., and of course, Stewart Parks, dentist, and Samuel Robertson, prominent physician of our local city.

'For 1917 one will not forget chunky George Clinton, now an M.D. in the Quaker City, along with lithe Jimmy Weshiemes of Americus, Ga., and surely Charlie Kimbrough, M.D., of New York City.

'Nineteen-eighteen will boast of the nippy Lockett "Kids" of that period, Georgia boys whose weight belied their intestinal fortitude. Bob, now a prominent Augusta, Ga., dentist, and Dick, "Y" secretary in Atlantic City and U. S. O. director.

'Local citizens will note with pride the struggles (athletic) of Dr. William L. Brown of Butler Street and never fail to retell the prowess of Dentist Oma Kanbrough of York, Pa., together with the various sterling abilities of Dr. Frank T. Wilson, now Dean of the School of Religion at Howard University, and all of 1921.

'Men of 1922 will recall E. A. Balla, Boston University Medical School graduate, now of Fall River, Mass.; Curtis Carr, prominent physician, again of Los Angeles, Calif.; Bill Padgett, M. D., of Chester, Pa., and Doctors Colburn Walden of Michigan and Marcus Wheatland of Camden, N. J.

'Citizens of Baltimore will pleasantly recall the fight of H. G. Tompkins, later a physician, a graduate of Dublin Medical College, England, and George West, now a doctor in Richmond, Va.

'A rather remarkable class produced guard Hildrus A. Poindexter, the director of the special U. S. Public Health Commission now in Liberia; Tackle Dr. Robert S. Jason, Vice-Dean of Howard University Medical School and professor of pathology there; Dr. Wayman Coston, prominent doctor of Wilmington, Del.; Dr. Henry Haskell, physician of the Quaker City; Clarence Hogans of New York City, "Shag" to sundry Lincoln men; Robert Johnson, physician of Lynchburg, Va., the inimitable "Whirlwind".

'Nineteen-twenty-five is almost as striking in its talent—Dr. Edward R. Archer of Norfolk, Va., quondam quarterback; Monk Howard, now a physician of New York City; L. D. McLean, dentist of Jersey City, N. J. (Howard and Lincoln claim him); Asia Lomax, D.D.S., of Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; and Robert K. Jones, M.D., of Cincinnati, Ohio.

'The Class of 1926 will recall the stalwart line play of L. M. Donaldson, Jonas Henry (now deceased), Jim Johnson, and super Dan Wilson, all of whom are now successful physicians.

'The men of 1927 can boast of the fighting qualities of "Ike" Givens (lost to us a few years ago) and Frank C. Johnson, two more physicians, as well as the nerve of "Dick" Moore of Savannah, Ga.

'Track enthusiasts will recall "Slim" Lee, now Director of the Department of Biology at North Carolina State College, and the laurels won by
of Its Athletes

HENRY STRATTON and WILBUR STRICKLAND, both practicing in Philadelphia.

'28 The colors of 1928 float proudly above the athletic record—a class which numbers some twenty doctors and dentists the country over. In football they have JESSE BURNETT of Fort Worth, Texas; THEODORE ESAY of Meharry Medical College; JOHNNY HIBBLER of Kansas City, Mo.: A. P. MOTLEY of Edinburgh, Scotland; E. W. ROBINSON, and OWIS R. WALLS. Some track stars are noted as we tongue the names of "Eddie" STRICKLAND, "ABBIE" BURWELL, "STRETCH" SYDNOR, "EDDIE" DENNIS, and "BILL" SINKLER, Superintendent of the leading hospital in St. Louis, Mo.

'29 For 1929 we have happy recollections of the work of HAYES BURNETT of Montclair, N. J.: E L DOUGLAS of Philadelphia; J T. MADDOW of Brooklyn, N. Y. (a dentist); HARMON PERRY of Port Chester, N. Y.; BILL POLK of Baltimore, Md.; CHARLIE WAKEBURG of New York City; and JOE WILLIAMS, famous entomologist and more recently physician in the Quaker City; and the managerial capacities of the one and only, "Artie" THOMAS of Philly.

'30 The boys of 1930 will acclaim G. T. ALSTON of Norfolk, Va.; HORACE D'WIGGINS of Tuskegee Veterans Hospital; JOHNIE GREENE of Detroit, Mich.; A. B. Lee of Brooklyn, N. Y.; WALTER LONGSHORE of Orange, N. J.; ADOLPH "Baldy" MARROW of Staten Island, N. Y.; JULIAN MURRAY of New York City; and, of course, that track man, RANDALL YOUNG, now of Indianapolis, Ind.

'31 From 1931 we have W. R. BENNETT, "Sam" BULLOCK, "Abbie" BURWELL, "Stretch" SYDNOR, basketball star as well as football luminary, JOHN TANN and "Bill" WADDELL, now a veterinarian of Tuskegee, Ala. We must not omit the track prowess of "Dave" BRADBURY—all of these men are physicians, save Waddell.

'32 The fellows of 1932 cannot forget the persistence of Floyd Mourning of New York City, the earnest application of FRED GRIZEBY and "Johnnie" MANPIN, the end play of EDDIE ROBERTS, and fighty "Johnnie" SPELLER of Philly.

'33 Those who are loyal to 1933 will enthuse over the line play of "Tommy" BASS of River Rouge, Mich., "Red" ERWIN of West Va., JOHNIE JAMISON of Savannah, Ga., and the dogged fight of W. L. PRICE, now of Trenton, N. J. Track fans will want to mention the work of C. C. BECKWITH of Detroit, HALEH JOHNSON of Memphis, Tenn.; "Middy" LAMBRIGHT, now famous surgeon of Cleveland, Ohio; and the one and only ORIN RILES of New York City.

'34 For 1934 there are "Ted" JOHNSON, GLENNIE MUSSENDEN, RALPH PURCELL, GEORGE PORTER now of Los Angeles, A. J. ROBINSON, SPURGEON SPARKS—all doctors.

'35 Men of 1935 cannot forget FRANK ELLIOTT, EVERTETT ROBERTSON, and "Bennie" KAGWA, one of our African stars. And we must not pass by GEORGE WARD, track star, now prominent medical man of Philly.

'36 Pluggers for 1936 will root for DAVE THOMPSON, now of Detroit, and "BRITTLE BONES" A. H. WHEELER of the staff of the University of Michigan.

'37 Coming to 1937 we find it impossible to forget "Sammy" BRISBANE in football and basketball; the managerial genius of "Eddie" DENNIS, and the sterling track performance of ROLAND LUCAS, "Bob" JOINER and "Bill" PITTS, now a dentist of New Haven, Conn.

'38 Those of 1938 cheer lustily as they review the daring line play of "Charlie" BALTIMORE of McKeesport, Pa., the basketball, track and football achievements of GEORGE BURGESS, now of Detroit, and the fighty qualities of JIMMY FITZGERALD and TALMADGE PINKNEY.

'39 The Class of 1939 will spend hours chinning about "Mel" TALAFERRO as a football and track star. They also recall the struggles of BECKWITH LIGHTSON and the prowess of "Charlie" BONNER, now of Boston University Hospital, Boston.

'40 Yes, there are stars too—FRED BRYANT, CARLTON FORD, FRANCIS HUTCHINS and CHIP MOOREHEAD—all physicians. Also in this class are NORMAN JONES, DANIEL LEE, CAESAR MARSHALL and JOHN THOMAS—well to remember.

Dorothy Maynor Sings at Lincoln...

Dorothy Maynor, famous soprano, appeared in a recital of classical and sacred music before the student body and guests of Lincoln University on Monday, November 21st. The recital, which was presented to an enthusiastic audience, filled to capacity the school's Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel on the campus.

Miss Maynor was called back repeatedly for encores, especially after her beautiful renditions of Mozart's Alleluia and Schubert's Ave Maria. During the intermission, a group of Lincoln students presented the artist with a bouquet of chrysanthemums, and following the program she was promptly besieged with requests for autographs, with which she cheerfully complied. A reception was held in her honor at the home of President and Mrs. Bond.

This was not the first appearance of Miss Maynor at Lincoln University, since she has visited the campus on several previous occasions. Her husband, the Reverend Shelby Rooks, '28, pastor of St. James Presbyterian Church of New York City, is a former Professor of English Bible at Lincoln.

Race and Culture Group Meets on Lincoln Campus

In a summary to the delegates of the Institute on Racial and Cultural Relations which was held on the Lincoln University campus, August 8th to 12th, Dr. William H. McConaghy, Director of the Institute, urged the members to undertake concrete action for the improvement of racial relations when they return to their communities.

"It has been a privilege to work with you here at this conference, one of the most successful in my experience," said Dr. McConaghy. "I urge you now to translate into vigorous, successful action the techniques and plans which have been ably laid before you by the faculty here."

Dr. Jesse B. Barber, Dean of the Seminary and Associate Director of the Institute, restated the findings of the Institute and expressed his gratitude to the members of the group and the faculty for making the affair an outstanding success.

Prominent among the seventeen members of the faculty were Dr. E. Fay Campbell, Secretary, Division of Higher Education, 808 Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa.; Rev. E. Luther Cunningham, Minister, St. Paul Baptist Church, 10th and Wallace Streets, Philadelphia, Pa.; Miss Dorothy Height, Secretary, Interracial Education, National Board Y. W. C. A., 600 Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y.; Dr. J. Oscar Lee, Executive Secretary, Department of Race Relations, Federal Council of Churches, 907 Fourth Avenue, New York N. Y.; Dr. Frank Loescher, Executive Director, Philadelphia

In Session...

Shown at right is a seminar group of members of the Institute on Racial and Cultural Relations, sponsored by the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., and the Lincoln Seminary. Delegates from 22 states attended the conference.
Two members of the Liberian delegation to the United Nations General Assembly spoke to the students and faculty at the regular weekly chapel session on December 1st. The speakers were the Honorable Albert D. Peabody, whose father was a graduate of Lincoln, and the Honorable J. G. Kolenky, both of Monrovia, Liberia.

Mr. Peabody spoke of the interest of his government in Lincoln University, and presented gifts to the University, which included a hand-made hammock, a native woven country cloth, and an embroidered pair of slippers.

Mr. Kolenky spoke of the work of the committees in the United Nations, and gave an interesting statement of his impression of Andrei Vishinsky, Russian delegate. He also gave an amusing account of his reaction to New York City, which he said contrasted sharply with the way of life to which he had been accustomed.

Mr. Peabody recently presented the University with a copy of a book written by his uncle, George Peabody, while he was a student at Lincoln in 1891. The book bore the title ‘Barh-Fofoe: A Bassa Boy.” He returned to Liberia following his graduation where he has had a notable career as a teacher and as a preacher.
Lincoln Glee Men
Plan Full Season

The Lincoln University Glee Club began its 24th season with a half-hour broadcast on a nationwide hookup over the Mutual Broadcasting System Stations on October 9th, which broadcast was well received, judging from the written commendations which were received from various parts of the country. With a considerable number of new men in the group, the Glee Club shows every promise of continuing the tradition of fine singing for which it is noted. The director, Professor Henry J. Booker, is planning a full schedule of activities for the year. It is anticipated that the Spring tour of the Glee Club this year, during the Easter holidays, will be in the direction of Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, and Delaware. It is anticipated also this year to produce a professional album of records by the Glee Club for public sale. The continued interest and support of the Alumni groups throughout the East is invited in using this very important adjunct of the University educational program by the sponsorship of the group in public concerts.

There are still a number of open dates on the calendar of the Glee Club for this coming Spring and any alumni who may be interested in sponsoring the Glee Club should contact Professor Henry J. Booker, c/o Music Department, Lincoln University, Pa.

Dr. Frank A. De Costa, '31, who is now Dean of the School of Graduate Studies at South Carolina A. and M., wrote that "I and the members of my family enjoyed most enthusiastically the selections that the Glee Club sang during their radio appearance on October 9th. I extend my thanks to the Glee Club and its director. "Aside from the enjoyment of the music, I experienced that feeling of exultation that possesses true Lincoln men during the constructive performance of all other Lincoln men. This feeling seems to be conditioned neither by the age of the performer nor the nature of the performance."

Dear Dr. Bond:

This is to inform you that I have designated Lincoln University as the beneficiary of my National Service Life Insurance Policy No. N 15 039 522 in the sum of $10,000.

It is requested that, upon my death, the income from this sum be awarded to that student who, in the judgment of the faculty, most needs and is most deserving of financial assistance in the payment of tuition or charges for room and board. No student who has not spent at least one semester at Lincoln should be eligible for the award, nor should any student receive such award unless his actual need has been clearly established, nor should the award be granted to any student with an overall average below B.

I will not matriculate at Lincoln until September 1950 for very good reasons too lengthy to outline here. Lest you have occasion for alarm, however, I assure you I am doing what is at least not foolish.

Wishing you a continued state of good health and Lincoln a very successful year, I am,

Sincerely yours,

LINCOLN BULLETIN
Dr. Jesse B. Barber, Dean of the Seminary, had a full schedule of speaking engagements and special meetings during the vacation period. On June 9 he was a member of the special committee of the Sesquicentennial Celebration of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions, in New York City. From June 20-24 he was the Devotional Leader of the Ministers' conference at Hampton Institute, Hampton, Virginia, and from July 4-15 he served as Director of the Interdenominational Institute for Town and Country Ministers, at Lincoln of the Interdenominational Institute for Cultural Relations, here on the campus. On September 22 he attended the semi-annual meeting of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions, held in New York. During November 1-4 he attended the Council on Theological Education held in Columbus, Ohio, and on November 25 and 26 he attended the Presbyterian Field Work Directors' Annual Conference, Western Seminary, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Dean J. B. MacRae was Director of the Principal's Workshop last summer at Atlanta University Graduate School. He attended the Annual Pennsylvania Educational Congress in Harrisburg in September. During October, he represented Lincoln at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for Negroes in Daytona Beach, Florida.

Professor John Davis testified before the House of Representatives Committee on Labor and Education in May, on the Wartime Administration of FEPC. During August he spoke over Radio Station KTYL in Phoenix, Arizona on Civil Rights. In November he gave a lecture at the John B. Andrews Memorial Symposium, University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wisconsin, on "The Present Status of Fair Employment Legislation."

Dr. David Swift directed a seminar of international students at Bennington College, along with Ira Reid, of Haverford. The seminar was held under the auspices of the American Friends Service Committee. The seminar was an experiment in international understanding on a small scale, through the fact that 40 people from 17 countries shared closely in the study of international problems and in many kinds of informal exchange. His article, "Christianity and Techniques of Social Change," appeared in the Journal of Religious Thought.

Dr. Philip S. Miller served as chaplain on the U.S.S. Rochester and at the U.S. Naval Air Station during June, July, and September. Among the articles that he has written are "Racial and Nationalist Hurdes in the Teaching of Literature," which appeared in the Journal of Negro Education, in the Spring edition, and "Heinrich Heine and Christianity," appearing in the Crozer Quarterly during October. His book review, "Albert Schweitzer: Goethe, Four Studies," will appear in the Crozer Quarterly, in January. He also delivered the Armistice Day address at the American Legion Banquet, on November 11.

During the summer Professor Andrew E. Murray, Associate Professor of Church History, directed the Young Peoples' Summer Conference of Lehigh Presbytery, held at Camp Michaux, Penna. In July he attended the Summer Leadership Training School held at Lafayette College, Easton, Penna., by the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education. The month of August he and his family spent vacationing in Denver, Colo.

Since the summer of '49 Mr. Simon Gruenweig has been working on an investigation about divergent series. On December 26th he attended a meeting of the Mathematical Society held at Haverford College. During the fall he became a member of the American Mathematical Society.

Charles L. Katz, Librarian, spent most of his summer preparing the library for the Fall term. During October, he attended the American Library Association Convention at Atlantic City. He is preparing a thesis for his Master's degree in the graduate library school of Columbia University.

Dean Harold Grim travelled to California with his wife to visit friends and relatives in Monrovia, where he renewed old acquaintances with many alumni. He also studied plant and animal life, and to make it a real "busman's holiday," visited the Huntington Botanical Gardens in Pasadena.

Dr. Walter Fales read the following papers: November 17, "The Refutation of Scepticism," Philosophy Club of Muhlenberg College in Allentown; November 21, "New Americans," Fellowship House in Reading; and on December 10, "Two Modes of Religious Experience," Fullerton Club in Bryn Mawr. During the summer, he revised the manuscript to his new book, "Two Modes of Religious Thinking," which he hopes to get published.

provided some vision, and it is hoped that his example may effect a like devoted organization of Secretaries representing other classes.

In the latest issue of the Newsletter, Mr. Earl O. Pree rummaged through his scrapbooks and clippings to come up with a history of the class during its days at Lincoln which makes mighty interesting reading. The "Ivy Day" poem, turned out by "Tubby" Taylor, is a masterpiece:

"An Ivy Vine we plant here ere we go,
In this fertile spot to live, to grow,
Upon these walls to nestle in repose
Green mantling emblem as the season goes.

Clinging like our love throughout the coming years,
Bright with honors verdure, thy name to us appears.

This plant shall speak aloud though mute and dumb
In other days, when other faces come;
And clinging round these pillars it shall bear
And offer in our absence, our deepest hope and pray'r."

Any other class poets who think they did as well are invited to forward their contributions!

Another issue contains a list of contributors to the class fund, urging other members of the class to some financial activity:

Listed in “Who’s Who”...

Five Lincoln University students will appear in “Who’s Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities” this year, it was learned from H. P. Randall, Editor. They are Farrell Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Farrell Jones, Sr., 18 St. Nicholas Place, New York City; Claude C. Kilgore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alice Kilgore, 1063 Wesley Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio; Charles Leftwich, son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Leftwich, 746 Grant Street, Johnstown, Pa.; Albert H. Mitchell, son of Mrs. Madge L. Mitchell, 242 Ashland Avenue, Magnolia, N. J.; and Jacques E. Wilmore, Son of Mrs. Madge L. Mitchell, 3751 Bouvier Street, Phila. 40, Penna. All are members of the senior class at Lincoln with the exception of Kilgore, who is a student in the Theological Seminary.

Basis for selection was excellence and sincerity in scholarship, leadership and participation in extra-curricular and academic activities, citizenship and service to the school, and promise of future usefulness to business and society.

Jones is on the staff of the school newspaper, The Lincolnian, and recently took first place in the Intercollegiate Oratorical Contest. He is a member of the Y.M.C.A. cabinet, Alpha Phi fraternity, The Lincoln Players, and serves as Freshman adviser.

Kilgore is a member of the Lincoln Players, The Y.M.C.A., and the Seminary Union. He serves as dormitory proctor.

Mitchell is a member of the Track team, the Varsity Club, and Phi Beta Epsilon fraternity.

Wilmore is a member of the Lincoln Chapter of NAACP, The John Miller Dicky Society, Alpha Phi fraternity, the Student Senate, and is a student instructor in the sociology department.

Dr. William W. Harris Gets Chicago Clinic Post

Dr. William W. Harris, '25, was appointed last month as Director of Clinics of the Chicago Venereal Disease Control Program.

Dr. Harris will have charge of four clinics, whose average attendance is 18,000 persons a month. The clinics serve as diagnostic and treatment centers.

Dr. William W. Harris attended Meharry Medical College, and received his M.D. in 1932.

From 1934 to 1943, Dr. Harris was in private practice in New York City. He joined the U. S. Public Health Service in 1943.

Dr. A. H. Thomas Elected Surgeon’s College Fellow

Arthur H. Thomas, M.D., ’29, was elected a fellow of the American College of Surgeons last month. Dr. Thomas, who resides at 5240 Vine Street, Philadelphia, attended the meetings of the College in the Pacific. He held the rank of major.

In addition to being a Lincoln graduate, Dr. Thomas also received degrees from Howard Medical School, and the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Medicine in Surgery.

During the war he was chief of the surgical service at the station hospital at Fort Huachucha, Ariz., and later held the same position at the 288th station hospital in the Pacific. He held the rank of major.

Senior Attending Surgeon at Mercy-Douglass Hospital, Wynnewood Community Hospital, and Atkinson Memorial Hospital, Coatesville, Pa., Dr. Thomas is a member of the Philadelphia County Medical Society, Philadelphia Academy of Medicine and Allied Sciences, Pennsylvania State Medical, Dental, and Pharmaceutical Association, and the National Medical Association.

LeVozier LaMar New “Y” Activities Director

LeVozier LaMar, ’32, one of Lincoln’s greatest quarterbacks, is the new Activities Secretary at the Court Street Y. M. C. A., Newark, N. J. Mr. LaMar holds the same post he held at the Arctic Avenue Branch Y. M. C. A. in Atlantic City, working with Dick Lockett, ’18, who is Executive Secretary there.

While in Atlantic City he coached championship “Y” teams and sponsored theatre groups and a symphony orchestra. He now lives in Brooklyn, at 129 Lorraine Street, with his wife, Hettie, and two children, LeVozier, Jr., and LaReine.

Dr. Horace M. Bond
Lincoln University
Lincoln University, Pa.

DEAR DR. BOND:

It was a pleasure to return to Dear Old Lincoln to celebrate our first class reunion and to do a little something for a school that has done so much for all of us. Our contribution, though small, is only the beginning of greater efforts from the men of the Class of 1939. Of a class of 39 graduates, 37 living, 19 returned for the Reunion.

Present at Commencement were Charles D. Bonner, Perry I. Cook, Leroy Patrick, Willie Roark, William H. Ransom, Frank Gordon, Arthur L. Johnson, Elbert C.

Lott Carey Convention Names Dr. O. S. Bullock

Dr. O. S. Bullock, ’08, has been elevated to the Presidency of the Lott Carey Baptist Foreign Mission Convention, after serving as vice-president. Dr. Bullock, who has ranked as an eminent leader and church administrator for over three decades, was elected by a unanimous vote.

Dr. Bullock, who has been Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Raleigh, N. C., for twenty-seven years, has made remarkable progress with his church. Under his pastorate, the program and influence of the church have become world wide.

Dr. Bullock holds the A.B., S.T.B., M.A., and D.D. degrees from Lincoln. He also received the D.D. degree from Shaw University in 1946. He has served as recording secretary of the State Sunday School Convention (1908-1925); president of the General Baptist State Convention (1920-1926); Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Convention (1926 to present) and member of the State Interracial Commission.
Sports in Review

Soccer

The soccer team, directed by Coach Soulliard, ended their season schedule with a record of 3 wins and 4 losses. To be taken into consideration is the fact that the Lions played their first three games after only one practice. Victims of the Lions’ attack have been Wilkes College, who succumbed 4–0; Elizabethtown Teachers College, who went down 2–1; and Ursinus College, who saw the Lions score 6 times to their 2 tallies. Bloomsburg Teachers College defeated the Lions, 2–0.

Howard University took two contests, 2–1 and 4–3; and Elizabethtown rolled over the Lions, 4–1, in the earlier part of the season.

Football

The football squad, under the direction of Freshman Mentor Irving Mondschein, ended their past football season with a log of 3 wins and 5 losses. Led by Captain Frank McCray, the Lincoln gridiron entry started the season with a bang. In quick succession, the Lions turned the tables on St. Paul College, 30–0, and Albright College of Reading, Pa., 14–18. Journeying down to Dover, Del., to meet the Delaware State Hornets, the Lions lost the ball game, 26–20, in the last minute of play. The following week in Ruppert Stadium, Newark, N. J., the Lions floored the Virginia Union Panthers, 18–0. Significant in this victory was the fact that the Panthers could only muster up 25 yards rushing. Before a large homecoming crowd on Rendall Field, the home of the Lincoln Lions, the Lions were subdued by a strong Morgan State College eleven, 35–0. Sailing down to fair Hampton by the sea, the Lions lost to the salty Hampton Institute Pirates, of Hampton, Va., by a score of 45–18, in a game that wasn’t decided until the last of the fourth quarter. The Lions had the pleasure of playing guests to the Andy Kerr coached “Flying Dutchmen” of Lebanon Valley College. Being a bit inhospitable, the Dutchmen defeated the Lions, 49–0. In their traditional tussle with Howard University on Thanksgiving Day in Philadelphia, the Lions went down to the tune of 30–6.

In the statistical department, the Lions present quite a favorable picture. In net rushing the Lions have stacked up 1,647 yards to their opponents’ 1,782. In passing the Lions have thrown 104 and completed 36 for a gain of 616 yards, holding their opponents to 35 completions out of 104 tosses for 592 yards. The Lions show 1,514 yards as a result of 46 punts for an average of 33 yards while the opposition shows 1,307 yards for 40 kicks for a 34 per average.

Leading the Lionpack in scoring was Howard Thomas, a senior right halfback who played in only 7 games, who crossed the goal line 7 times and in all gained 555 yards in 76 tries for a 6.9 per carry average. Following Thomas was Joltin’ Joe Hilton, starting varsity guard for four years. All in all, regardless of their losses, no team had more spirit and determination than the Lincoln Lions.

Reunions in June...

Plans are already underway for bigger and better class reunions at Lincoln during the commencement period, which begins on June 4. In a letter to all men of the "five" and "ten" year classes, J. B. MacRae, Coordinator of Alumni Affairs, has stated that arrangements are being made to provide ample facilities for all "Old Grads" gathering to touch the soil which nourished their intellectual and spiritual growth.

Charles E. Peeters, President of the Class of '15, has already sent out notices to his classmates to gather for their 35th year reunion. The University will be happy to assist the men of the reunion classes of the five and ten year periods to get in touch with their classmates.

Dr. Edward Archer, '25, has been asked by Dr. Harold R. Scott, another '25er, and President of the Alumni Association, to be the main commencement speaker at the Alumni Banquet on June 5.

Dr. Archer is a faithful and hardworking Alumni member of the Lincoln Board of Trustees. He has carved out for himself a distinguished career as a physician in his hometown of Norfolk, Va., and has maintained a reputation through the years for his forensic abilities. At this 25th reunion of his class, Dr. Archer is certain to be in rare form.

Dr. Archer doesn't know as yet that he is going to speak, but Dr. Scott said, "Put his name in the Bulletin and I will clear it with him later."

The commencement program includes the following events:

June 4—Baccalaureate Service - - 11:00 a.m.
June 5—Alumni Meeting - - 4:00 p.m.
- Class Day Exercises - - 7:30 p.m.
- Alumni Banquet - - 9:00 p.m.
June 6—Alumni Association Meeting: 10:00 a.m.
- Commencement - - 2:00 p.m.
The Lincoln Day Dinners

In Philadelphia

Lincoln University paid tribute to Dean Harold F. Grim and Dr. E. P. Roberts at the series of outstanding Lincoln Day Dinners held last month in Philadelphia, New York, Washington, and Chicago. Dean Grim, who has given training to over 13 per cent of the Nation's Negro physicians, and Dr. Roberts, who graduated from Lincoln in 1891, and is now New York City's oldest practising Negro physician, received the 1950 Abraham Lincoln Awards.

Inaugurated last year, the Founder's Day Dinners are designed to stress a specific contribution that the University has made to the community and the nation during the 96 years of its existence. The 1950 theme is "Lincoln and the Medical Sciences". Next year, the banquets will honor Lincoln's contribution to the legal profession and public service. In 1953, the theme will be "Education and the Public Good"; in 1953, "Religion in the Church and Community". In 1954, which is Lincoln's Centennial year, national observance will be made of the comprehensive contribution of Lincoln in all fields.

Speaking at the Philadelphia Dinner, on February 8 at the Hotel Bellevue-Stratford, Dr. Robin C. Buerki, Vice-president of the University of Pennsylvania in Charge of Medical Affairs, told the audience of 175 alumni and friends of Lincoln that the greatest problem facing medical educators today is the choice between quantity and quality. "In giving the public the quality of medical care it deserves," said Dr. Buerki, "there can be no second best. Medical education must keep before itself the ideal of producing the best doctor."

Dr. Buerki paid glowing tribute to Lincoln University, and spoke of his familiarity with Lincoln graduates during his tenure as Dean of Penn's Medical School.

Co-speaker with Dr. Buerki was Peter Marshall Murray, '43 (Hon.) M.D., F.A.C.S., the only Negro Member of the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association, and Member of the Committee on Medical Education of the New York Academy of Medicine. Dr. Murray stated that Liberal Arts Colleges are taking the dominant role in pre-medical education, because of the wider scope of their curriculums. Excerpts from Dr. Murray's address are printed on page 5.

Dr. Harold R. Scott, '25, President of the General Alumni Society, presented the Abraham Lincoln Awards. The citation to Dr. Roberts read "For Service to the American People through His Integrity, Simplicity, and Humanitarian Concern." The citation to Dean Grim called him "A Great Teacher—A Loyal Friend". Their replies to the citations are printed on pages 7,10.

Dr. Buerki was introduced to the group by Dr. Thomas M. McMillan, President of the American Heart Society, and a member of the Lincoln Board of Trustees. Dr. Murray was introduced by Dr. Walter G. Alexander, '99, Vice-president of the Board. Invocation was asked by Reverend E. Luther Cunningham, '30c, '33s, and benediction was pronounced by Reverend Leonard George Carr, '33s. Dr. Wilbur Strickland, '47, served as Toastmaster. Music was provided by the Lincoln University Octette, Henry Booker conducting.

The Lincoln Day Dinners

In New York

At the New York Dinner on February 15, Dr. Currier McEwen, Dean of the New York University College of Medicine, stated that the future of the Negro in medicine lies in direct proportion to the adequacy of the preparation in undergraduate schools. He spoke at the Hotel Brevoort, on February 15, before an audience of 200 persons.

Dr. McEwen pointed out that at present there are over 3,000 applicants each year for 125 places in the average medical school. He declared that “Enough doctors are being turned out to meet the country’s needs without endangering standards. Competition does not benefit the consumer in Medicine.”

Dr. Robert S. Jason, ’24, Vice-dean of Howard University School of Medicine, stated that “Certain opportunities are coming our way which find us unprepared. Soon our lack of representation in medicine will no longer be due to exclusion practices, but rather to incompetence and lack of preparation.”

Dr. Walter G. Alexander presented the Lincoln awards to Dean Grim and Dr. Roberts, who was able to attend in person. Dr. Roberts delighted the group with reminiscences of his days at Lincoln from 1887 to 1891, under President Isaac N. Rendall. The speakers were introduced by Dr. Harold Scott and Dr. Murray. Invocation was asked by Reverend Shelby Rooks, ’28; benediction was pronounced by Reverend John M. Coleman, ’29.

Dr. George Cannon, ’24, President of the Lincoln University Club of New York, turned in a splendid performance as Toastmaster. Dr. Bond referred to the New York Alumni group as “The most active Lincoln Alumni Association north of the Hudson River.”

Music was furnished by Miss Monica Mais, noted coloratura soprano, and by a quartet from the Lincoln Glee Club.

Said one spokesman: “This gathering should have rather far-reaching results for Lincoln University. The record of a small school, handicapped by limited facilities and decidedly short on personnel, in the field of the medical sciences, is little short of amazing. I’m glad that the facts are effectively being brought to public attention.”

In Detroit

The Lincoln Day Dinner of the Detroit Chapter was held at the Gotham Hotel, Thursday evening, February 23. The Chapter includes about 40 members; present officers are Dr. Frank P. Raiford, ’13, President; Dr. John B. Greene, ’30, Vice-president; Reverend William H. Molbon, ’38, Secretary; and Collins J. Reynolds, ’36, Treasurer.

The informal program included remarks by Dr. Raiford, I. N. Rendall Bethel, ’02, Dr. Greene, Dean Grim, and Reverend Molbon. About 60 persons were in attendance.
address by Peter Marshall Murray, '43 (Hon.), M.D., F.A.C.S., delivered at the Philadelphia Lincoln Day Dinner on February 8, and at the Chicago Dinner on February 22.)

The Liberal Arts College is a factor of the greatest importance in developing and training responsible citizens and leaders in our democratic society; it is an indispensable factor in delivering men and women for the study of medicine of the greatest importance in developing and training physicians is accepted as a fact by the organized medical profession. The preparation of the physical and mental health of the nation. Its position in our educational system is strategic; its responsibilities are heavy. It is pertinent, therefore, to examine from time to time its program and policies in order that it may fulfill its objectives with constantly increasing effectiveness. Many of the educational defects passed on from elementary to secondary schools are finally highlighted in college. The preparation of men and women for the study of medicine and dentistry is a vital function of the Liberal Arts College.

Pre-medical training calls for the discovery, stimulation and training of abilities in students to use the scientific method to acquire certain fundamental tools to be used in the study of medicine and dentistry. Biology, chemistry, and physics are the basic areas for this purpose. Heavy concentration in these sciences at the expense of a broader liberal education is undesirable. Studies of the performance of medical students have shown that holders of Arts degrees rank uniformly higher than holders of the Science degree.

Dr. Joseph L. Johnson, Dean of the School of Medicine, Howard University, has set forth the following statement concerning the Medical Education of Negroes:

"A shortage of both Negro and white physicians is accepted as a fact by the organized medical profession, medical educators, and government officials. Such disagreement as may exist is in the extent of the shortage and the steps which may be considered most desirable for relieving the shortage. It is also generally agreed that the shortage is more acute in the number of Negro physicians. Again there are differences in opinions as to why the shortage is more acute as to Negro physicians and how relief may best be effected. There is rather widespread agreement that racial discrimination against Negroes in medical education and professional considerations is a factor of much importance.

"In thirteen definitely Southern states, there are nineteen approved four-year medical schools and two approved two-year basic science schools. Of these twenty-one schools nineteen, to date, have an exclusion policy toward Negroes.

The University of Arkansas School of Medicine admitted one Negro in 1948, the first in the school's history. Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tennessee, organized in 1876 by private philanthropy for the education of Negro youth, is the only other medical school in these thirteen Southern states where a Negro may enroll. Of these twenty-one medical schools in thirteen states with nearly ten million Negroes, twelve are state or municipal schools and nine are private schools. In twenty of the twenty-one medical schools in these thirteen Southern states (Meharry Medical College excluded) there were 5,869 students enrolled and of that number there was only one Negro, that one being one of the 274 students enrolled at the University of Arkansas School of Medicine.

"In 1947-48 the four-year approved medical schools in these thirteen Southern states, exclusive of Meharry Medical College, graduated 1,190 students as Doctors of Medicine, but there was not a Negro among the number. Meharry graduated fifty-eight in 1947-48. Therefore, of 1,238 students graduated from the medical schools of the South only 58 were Negroes. All things else being equal and no racial discrimination existing, we might have expected 317 of the 1,238 doctors to be Negroes instead of 58.

"In the border area of Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia and the District of Columbia, Howard University is the only medical school which admits Negroes. There are six medical schools in this area and all the Negro medical students of this area were enrolled at Howard University College of Medicine. The other five schools do not admit Negroes.

"It is to be noted that 122 of the 137 Negro medical graduates were from the South and the border area (all from Howard and Meharry) leaving only 15 Negro medical graduates from the remainder of the United States. Howard and Meharry medical schools together graduated 128 Negroes as Doctors of Medicine, while the other 69 four-year medical schools graduated only 15. Those other 69 schools might have been expected to have graduated 309 Negroes in 1947-48. In 1948-49 there were 119 Negro students enrolled in medical schools other than Howard and Meharry as compared with 92 in 1947-48. There yet remain 38 four-year medical schools with not a single Negro enrolled among their 3,420 students. Many of these thirty-two schools maintain an admitted policy of exclusion. The others claim that they do not discriminate against Negroes but that they have no qualified Negro applicants. These thirty-two schools could make a valuable contribution to the making of medical education in the United States a truly democratic administrative and educational procedure.

"While there is one physician for every 753 persons in the United States, as a whole, the distribution in various sections of the country results in quite a different picture for given sections. Mississippi and South Carolina have the worst picture as far as the supply of Negro physicians is concerned. In 1948 Mississippi had one physician for each 1,525 persons and South Carolina 1,706 for each physician. In these states with large Negro populations there are 18,592 Negroes for each Negro physician in Mississippi and 18,561 Negroes for each Negro physician in South Carolina."

The Liberal Arts College drawing its students mainly or wholly from Negroes has a special responsibility in discovering, guiding, and training students properly prepared for study in medical or dental school. Strong indications point to a rapid lessening of restrictions against the admission of qualified Negro students to professional schools. The weakness in most secondary schools was highlighted when, in a recent comprehensive study of this problem, Dr. Charles W. Buggs put his finger on a weakness in the Negro applicant that must be faced: "With reference to the poor achievement of Negro pre-medical students on medical aptitude tests, eighty-six per cent of the seniors and ninety-five per cent of the science instructors felt that this showing was due in large measure to the fact that the pre-medical curriculum attracts many students primarily because of the social prestige and the monetary returns attached to the medical profession and that a goodly number of these students are not apt in the field of science."

It seems pertinent at this point to again focus attention upon the raw products with which the teachers have to work. The most important and directly operative factors responsible for the inability of the average Negro student to reach the average level of achievement of students in American liberal arts colleges seem to be the..."

In Washington

Dr. Charles Drew, late Professor of Surgery at Howard, and Dean Grim were the speakers at the Washington Lincoln Day Dinner, held at the Hotel Dunbar on February 11. General Chairman for the dinner was Dr. Mark DeLeon, '22, President of the Washington Chapter of the Lincoln University Alumni Association. James W. Geater, '24, acted as Toastmaster.

Dr. Drew, who was introduced by Dr. Samuel Bullock, '31, emphasized that the great need of Negroes is for improved health, and that this goal could not be realized until certain obstacles, such as poverty, lack of education, lack of physicians, inequitable laws, and insufferable attitudes, were overcome. Dr. Drew appealed to all Lincoln men to utilize their excellent resources to overcome these obstacles.

Following brief remarks by Joseph C. Waddy, '32, Dr. Frank T. Wilson, former Dean of Students at Lincoln and now Dean of Howard University School of Religion, reminded the group that whenever Lincoln men gather, they are apt to suffer "acute retroactive falsification". In serious comment, he remarked that as educated and learning individuals we must educate the whole man, and hold to a high plane of competency, in order to aid in solving the problems of our social order.

Tribute was paid to Charles A. Booker, '00, Treasurer of the General Alumni Association, and Secretary of the Washington Chapter, who was presented with a billfold. Reverend William Todd, '06, father of Tomlinson Todd, '36, pronounced the benediction.

In Chicago

The Chicago dinner, held in the Parkgery Ballroom, 45th and South Parkway, on February 22, featured talks by Dr. Peter Marshall Murray, who spoke on "Contributions of the Liberal Arts College to Medical Education," and Dean Grim, whose topic was "Highlights of 38 Years of Service at Lincoln University".

Dr. Harsha F. Bouyer, '20, Past President of the Chicago Alumni Chapter, presented as general chairman, and introduced Dr. Wendell G. Jones, Sr., '23; Dr. C. D. Giles, '23; Dr. Adolphus N. Gordon, '24; and Dr. William H. Sinkler, '28.

Music was furnished by Miss Carlotta Stevens. Reverend John W. Martin, '02c, '03s, Bishop of the A.M.E.Z. Church, asked the invocation, and Dr. Augustus F. Bennett, '10, Pastor of Grace Presbyterian Church, Chicago, pronounced the benediction. During the program, Dean Grim was presented with an attractive leather catalog case by the Chicago group.

Dr. Harold F. Grim made the following response to Dr. Harold Scott’s citation at the Philadelphia Lincoln Day Dinner, where Dean Grim was presented with the 1950 Abraham Lincoln Award.

This generous award makes me rich, a wealth that I would not pawn for any price.

During some 38 years of teaching in the field of Biological Science at Lincoln University it has been my privilege to associate with hundreds of young men, most of whom were eager to qualify to improve themselves by applying a broad education in the Arts and Sciences in the professional fields of Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy and the Teaching of Biology. Some what over 400 men have entered the fields of Medicine and Dentistry during this period—successful practitioners from coast to coast and in foreign lands. These men have the respect of the thoughtful and ranking citi zenry wherever they reside.

I would be remiss and selfish if I did not deem this testimonial as a broad recognition of the whole soul and efficient support of a loyal faculty working under trying financial conditions, limiting equipment, and personnel most of the time.

I also consider this a broad recognition of the remarkable persistence and innate ability of Lincoln University and other men of a race which has risen to commendable heights in professional fields where too often they have had to secure the skills attained under segregated set ups with crowded conditions, with sadly deficient buildings and equipment, with deficient clinical facilities, with ill-trained professional personnel, finally interning in hospitals shockingly limited in facilities.

Any sane man can only marvel at the efficiency of these men considering the circumstances. One pause as he beholds the broad loyalty of this professional citizenry to a nation that expects high performance in every man who

Dr. Carrier McEwan, Dean of New York University College of Medicine, speaking on the administrative problems of the nation’s medical schools. Dr. McEwan pledged himself to the assistance of the Negro in the medical profession.

Reverend Leonard G. Carr, ’38, was elected president of the Philadelphia Alumni Association of Lincoln University at its January meeting.

Those also elected to serve with Reverend Carr are: Reverend Mark Gibson, ’29, first vice president; Willis G. Hare, ’27, ’29b, second vice president; Robert H. Loving, ’34, secretary; S. Raymond Overton, ’33, corresponding secretary; Urias Oates, ’32b, treasurer; Reverend Henry McCrery, Sr., ’33, chaplain; and William Sullivan, M.D., ’23, sergeant-at-arms.

Named to the executive committee were: George Ward, M.D., ’25, chairman; Daniel Wilson, M.D., ’26; W. K. Jackson, ’09, ’13; Thomas Williams, M.D., ’18; Reverend Henry McCrery, Sr., ’33; Arthur H. Thomas, M.D., ’29; W. Kirkwood Jackson, ’30, and Lonnie Wall, M.D., ’21.

Reverend Leonard George Carr, ’38, pastor of Vine Memorial Baptist Church, Philadelphia, newly elected President of the Philadelphia Chapter, Lincoln University Alumni Association. Reverend Carr’s Church recently established a scholarship at Lincoln University.

divide honors with their neighbors only under protest. I feel nothing of that this evening. Harold Grim has literally poured himself into our University, and through him our land has been blessed.

All of us are looking forward to the Centennial Celebration of the founding of Lincoln University, scheduled for 1954. This, as I anticipate, will be recognized as a landmark, not for us of the Lincoln family, not merely for the Negro, but for the advocates of truth and freedom everywhere. I serve notice here tonight that I want a place on that program—just a brief moment in which to pay my respects to my God, my wife, my church, and our Lincoln.

Dr. Robert S. Jason, Vice-dean, Howard University School of Medicine, speaking on "Lincoln University’s Contribution to the Medical Sciences"

(Originally published in "Progress and Portents for the Negro in Medicine," 1948, by W. Montague Cobb)
One of the outstanding Lincoln Day Dinners this year was held in New York's historic Hotel Brevoort, where an audience of 200 persons, including distinguished physicians of both races, gathered to pay tribute to Lincoln University's remarkable contribution to the Medical Sciences. In addition to many noted Lincoln men in attendance, Dr. George Cannon, who acted as Toastmaster for the event, introduced Dr. Currier McEwan, Dean of New York University College of Medicine; Dr. J. "A cursory review of the history of the Negro in American medicine suggests that quantitatively Lincoln University has probably provided more premedical education for Negro doctors of medicine than any other school for Negroes except Howard University. A careful review of the graduates from the College of Medicine of Howard over the last fifty years reveals that 20 per cent entered the study of medicine after having earned either the B.S. or the A.B. degree. Of these 14.3 per cent were graduates of Lincoln University. A recent survey of the Lincoln Alumni who received their premedical instruction who were then either in medical schools or had recently graduated. It is not the result of pure chance that a well organized and integrated residen ty training program in Gynecology-Obstetrics, approved by the specialty board of this name, is now in operation at the Freedmen's Hospital in Washington, under the direction of an alumnus of Lincoln, Dr. J. Waldo Ross.

"I believe that these fragmentary factual data reveal that Lincoln University has aided in the advancement of the field of specialization in medicine.

"Finally, one may ask, how well is Lincoln training its students today in order to qualify for admission to medical school? Well documented answers to this question are now available from an entirely disinterested source.

"The problem of the proper selection of students from the ranks of those who apply for admission to medical schools has always been a difficult one. About three or four years ago the Association of American Medical Colleges approved the Professional Aptitude Test, now called the Medical College Admission Test, as a tool available in the evaluation of all prospective medical students. More recently the administra tors of this test provided the means of medical schools with confidential reports which reveal the relative performance of all of our schools and colleges engaged in premedical education. For me it was especially gratifying to find that the Lincoln students who took this test in the recent past, earned scores which placed Lincoln University together with Howard in the forefront of Colleges for Negroes.

"I believe that information from this source points to the adequacy of the contributions of Lincoln University in premedical education.

"Having in mind this incomplete quantitative and qualitative review of the contributions of Lincoln University toward medical education and practice, it may be appropriate to ask why such a small school has been able to produce so much from so little? I am certain that the answer to this question is to be found in the men who were and are the faculty of Lincoln University. Lincoln men have been privileged to learn from the best minds on the faculty and he endeavored to interest in a career in medical education young Negroes of exceptional promise who were then either in medical schools or had recently graduated. It was not without significance that a few years later in Dean James Adams' reorganized faculty four out of the nine heads of departments were Alumni of Lincoln University.

"One may also ask, what has been Lincoln's contribution toward the advancement of specialization in the field of medicine? My answers to this question are incomplete but specific. It was not by accident that among the Negroes recently admitted to the American College of Surgeons there appears the name of Dr. C. M. Jones of Bayonne, New Jersey, a Lincoln man. It is by accident that in the field of diseases of the chest, more particularly tuberculosis and cardiology, you have in this area my two college room-mates, Dr. George Dows Cannon and Dr. William Harold Branch. It was out of the need for dynamic and uncompromising leadership that the one largest hospital for Negroes in the country, the Homer G. Phillips Hospital of St. Louis, sought and found as its Medical Director a scholar who always endeavored to increase his knowledge of medicine, a clinician with a sensitive touch and a discerning eye at the bedside, and a surgeon without peer on our faculty and one of the ablest surgeons of Washington. He was Professor of Surgery and the Head of that Department. I remember him as a slender man of small stature, but with a large and heavy voice whose least grumble in the operating room caused us to tremble, yet, his kindness and paternal advice in the lecture rooms and on the wards caused us to refer to him affectionately as 'Pop' Curtis.

"When in 1929 the late Dean Numa Adams was entrusted with responsibility for the reorganization and revitalization of the faculty of the College of Medicine of Howard, he sought the cooperation of the best minds on the faculty and he endeavored to interest in a career in medical education young Negroes of exceptional promise who were then either in medical schools or had recently graduated. It was not without significance that a few years later in Dean Adams' reorganized faculty four out of the nine heads of departments were Alumni of Lincoln University.

Abdool Manraj expects to complete his studies in Law at London's Middle Temple in 1961. He writes, "One day a grateful son will be able to do some act of kindness to his good mother."

Class of '34

Another excellent edition of "Class of '34" has come to us from Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, at our sister institution in Missouri. In mimeo form, the four-page edition contains a lot of interesting news items concerning class members, a feature article on Dr. Everett J. Robinson, now in private practice in Cleveland, Ohio, and a review of news items of interest to all Lincoln men. The editor states that there is now $382.58 in the Class of '31 Fund, and urges all members of the class to continue their contributions so that the $500 mark may be reached by commencement time.

Copies of "Class of '34" were sent to all class secretaries in the hope of stimulating similar activity on the part of other classes. Additional information may be secured by writing to Dr. Farrell or to the Office of Public Relations.

In presenting the award, Mr. England said, "The committee's task in selecting the outstanding citizen was not difficult. One man stood above all the others in his example of brotherhood—C. M. Cain." The following week, on February 21, the distinguished son of Lincoln received the Atlantic City "Tribune" Award for outstanding community service.

LIBRARY ADDS MICRO-CARD READING SYSTEM

Research facilities at Lincoln's Vail Memorial Library have been improved by the addition of a microcard reading instrument, according to Charles L. Katz, Librarian. He pointed out that the Lincoln library, possessing 48,000 volumes, is among the first in the country to possess the device, which makes possible greater library resources at considerably lower cost.

The machine, which looks like a television set, is used to read books and other materials printed on small cards. Each card contains an average of 85 pages of ordinary printed matter, thus reducing the necessity of binding operations and the need for storage space. Mr. Katz pointed out that an entire year's editions of the New York Times can be read from microcards occupying six inches of space.

FACULTY ACTIVITIES

Dr. Bond attended the Convocation of Presbyterian Colleges held last month in Cincinnati, where he also attended the meetings of the Association of American Colleges and the Presbyterian College Union. He attended the meeting of the United Negro College Fund Board of Directors in New York, and addressed a gathering honoring Nnamdi Azikiwe, '30, sponsored by the New York Alumni. He addressed two annual meetings of the YMCA, Atlantic City and Trenton.

Dr. Bond was the presiding officer at the National Freedom Day Celebration held in Philadelphia's Academy of Music, and addressed an annual meeting sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary of St. James Presbyterian Church, New York. He also addressed the Reading Ministerial Association, of which the Reverend Chester L. Marcus, '48s, is vice-president. He attended a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees, held in the offices of President Lewis M. Stevens, in Philadelphia, and addressed the congregation of Grace Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, the Reverend John T. Colbert, '01c, '08s, pastor. Speaking in Atlantic City, Dr. Bond addressed the National Society of College Teachers of Education on "The Role of the History of Education in Understanding the Struggle for Equalizing Education." He also addressed the Social Science Convocation, held at Wilson College, on "The Future of Africa." He also attended a meeting of the Advisory Council of the Pennsylvania Region of the National Students Association, held at Swarthmore, Penna. Dr. Bond also contributed an article to the Encyclopedia of Educational Research, issued by the MacMillan Company. The article, 25,000 words in length, is on Negro Education, and is one of the most extensive articles in the encyclopedia.

Dean J. N. Hill spoke to the General Assembly at North Carolina College, in Durham, on February 10, and broadcasted over the Columbia network from Durham the same day. He spoke at an open meeting of the College Language Association, which met at Alabama State College, Montgomery, on February 24.

Dr. John A. Davis, Professor of Political Science, testified before a group of 17 Congressmen in Washington last month concerning the Lodge Proposal to change the method of electing the President. The group included Rep. Adolph Sabath, Chairman of the House Rules Committee. Dr. Davis pointed out that the measure, which has since been squashed by the committee, would have been ruinous to Negro and other minority voters.

Dr. Davis recently received a $500 grant from Omega Psi Phi fraternity to publish the results of his researches on the regional organization of the social security administration. Dr. Ralph C. Deibert, Pastor of the Avondale Presbyterian Church, and formerly a U.S. Army Chaplain for 25 years, has been appointed to the faculty of the Theological Seminary. Dr. Deibert, who will teach New Testament, was Director of the Chaplains' Training School at Harvard University during World War II, where over 5,800 chaplains received training.

Rabbi Elihu Schagrin, of the congregation Beth Israel, Coatesville, Penna., has been appointed to the post of Lecturer in Hebrew Language and Exegesis in the Seminary. A native of Wilmington, Del., Rabbi Schagrin received his A.B. degree from the University of Pennsylvania, and was ordained at the Jewish Institute of Religion in New York in 1946, at the same time receiving the degree of Master of Hebrew Religion.

Bernard Barrow recently participated in the Eastern Theatre Conference held at the University of Delaware, where plans for a National Theatre were discussed. This month he served as critic-judge for the North Carolina High School Drama Association, in Greensboro, Charlotte, and Nashville, and was sole judge of the finals held at Raleigh on March 25.

With Roseco Brown directing, members of the faculty participated in a presentation of "The Boor," by Anton Chekov. The cast included Mrs. Bernard Barrow, Irving Mondschein, Tom Jones, Manuel Rivero, and Herb Willets.

Dr. Swift spoke at Mt. Holyoke College on March 12, on a panel shared by Professor John Childs, of Columbia University.
College Entrance Exams For Lincoln Students

Lincoln University has become the first college with a predominantly Negro enrollment to affiliate with the College Entrance Examination Board.

Examinations for admission following Lincoln's March tests will be administered through the College Entrance Examination Board, which for years has been the examining agency for the more selective American colleges.

The College Entrance Examination Board holds its tests at several times during the year, and at so many centers that no candidate has to travel more than twenty-five miles from his home to take the examinations.

Few Negro candidates have tried to qualify for the Board's examination in the South, as no Negro colleges were affiliated with the Board, and the general conviction persisted in many circles that Negroes were not welcome to these examinations when administered in the South. This has been a great disadvantage to many Negro high school graduates seeking entrance to the more selective American colleges.

But Dr. J. E. Terral, Director of Test Administration for the Educational Testing Service, has assured President Bond that "no candidate will be prevented from taking any test for which he has properly registered, under competent supervision and under examination conditions comparable to those for all other candidates."

Persons desiring to take the College Entrance Examination Board examinations are advised to address letters of inquiry to: The College Entrance Examination Board, P. O. Box 592, 20 Nassau Street, Princeton, N. J.; or to the Registrar, Lincoln University, Penna.

Celebrates 55th Year of Legal Practise

Attorney James A. Lanier, '93, of Winston-Salem, N. C., celebrated his 55th anniversary as a practising attorney. On February 5, 1895, he received his law license from the North Carolina Supreme Court.

Over the years, the 79-year-old attorney has made many appearances in local courts, and pleaded for clients in many other North Carolina cities. He recalls the first case he had after hanging up his shingle.

He represented a client charged with stealing a pig. The man was acquitted but he was unable to pay the lawyer's fee. So Attorney Lanier took the pig, fattened him, and in due season the porker wound up on the barrister's table.

Attorney Lanier cherishes the faded clipping from a Winston-Salem newspaper, announcing the opening of his office. The advertisement reads, "On and after January 1, 1898, I will devote all my time to the practise of the law. At my office daily from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m."

Following his graduation from Lincoln, Attorney Lanier completed the regular three-year law course in two years, and entered the teaching profession. He was a teacher and principal for two and one-half years, resigning the post for full time law practice. He was a member of the county school committee in 1897, and was a nominee for the State Legislature in 1898.

He has been active in the Grace Presbyterian Church, Winston-Salem, and has been an elder there for over 50 years. He Seminarian Caesar Coleman delivers sermon in a class in Practise Preaching, aided by a wire recorder which enables students to review and criticise his delivery.

Dr. Wilhelm Reuning, Lecturer in Greek and Hebrew in the Theological Seminary of Lincoln University, died suddenly at the West Grove Hospital of a heart attack suffered while on his way to a class at the university.

Dr. Reuning was born at Friedberg, Germany, in 1894. He was educated in the Friedberg Humanistic Gymnasium and the University of Geissen, where he received his doctorate in philosophy in 1925.

He held pastorates at Giessen and Dormstadt from 1917 to 1937. He became a refugee from the Nazi terror in that year, coming to the United States shortly thereafter. He was naturalized as an American citizen in 1944. He had taught at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science, at Beaver College, and at Wesley Junior College at Dover, Delaware, before joining the Lincoln Seminary faculty in the fall of 1949.

He had published several important contributions to theological literature. He is survived by Mrs. Reuning, who resides at their residence at Nottingham; by a son, Wilhelm, who is a member of the staff at the University of Pennsylvania; and a brother who is Professor of German at Swarthmore College.

The subject was "The Relation between Religious Faith and Political Action."

Dean J. B. MacRae attended the annual meeting of the United Negro College Fund in New York, and represented Lincoln at the Annual Pennsylvania Welfare Conference. He also attended the Philadelphia Lincoln Day Dinner, and spoke at the First Presbyterian Church in Yeadon on a Brotherhood program, and at the Coatesville Senior High School. He attended the Annual Conference of Teachers of Education in Atlantic City on February 24-25. Mr. MacRae recently contributed two reviews: Edwin R. Embree's "Investment in People," for Phylon; and Arthur Koestler's "Promise and Fulfillment; Palestine 1917-1949," for Social Progress, published by the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.

Dr. Gruenzieg spoke to the faculty on the latest developments in Einstein's theory of relativity at the regular meeting of the college faculty on March 1.

Reverend John D. Mangram spoke to the students of Hampton Institute at a chapel session there this month. Dr. Edward R. Miller, Director of Religious Activities at Hampton, paid a return visit to the Lincoln campus.

ADDRESS BY DR. JASON

“A few months ago our committee on admissions at Howard had occasion to review the qualifications of a young man whose performance on the Medical College Admission Test and whose college record fell below the minimum standards set by our committee as the basis for the selection of an incoming class of medical students. There were certain personal considerations which could have been entertained in the young man’s favor, but the committee did not vote to admit him. Weeks later the committee was officially informed that this young man had been accepted by a northern medical school. I do not know how well this young man has performed to date. Perhaps, in the keen competition of the medical school and urged by the fact that he would be looked upon not merely as a medical student but as a Negro medical student, this young man may have exerted himself beyond the promise which he gave on the basis of his college grades and his performance on the Medical College of Admission Test. On the other hand, he may now be one of that number of poor medical students and eventual failures who serve as arguments for the exclusion of all Negroes from some colleges of medicine.

“In my opinion, these two incidents reveal both the opportunities and the responsibilities in premedical education which confront our Alma Mater. It is my fervent hope that the present Faculty of Lincoln University will select new students with great care; will instruct them well, without sparing them the rigors of hard and persistent effort, and will inspire them to grasp and to carry onward the torch of learning, which has come to us over the years from a small band of consecrated men who had courage and had faith in us.

was superintendent of the Sunday school for 40 years and clerk of the session for 30 years.

He is an active Mason, Odd Fellow, and Knight of Pythias.

His oldest son, Raphael, now President of Texas State University, received the bachelor’s degree, cum laude, from Lincoln in 1928, and the master’s degree from Stanford University. Lincoln awarded him the doctor of pedagogy degree for his distinguished service to education. He was formerly minister to Liberia and acting President of Hampton Institute. During the days of the NYA, he was assistant to Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, adviser on minority affairs for the agency.

Another son, Abraham Lempidas, is in government service in New York City. His daughter, Mrs. Marchette Lanier Black, is a pianist at Grace Presbyterian Church and active in musical organizations of the city.

Lincoln Bulletin
The Lincoln basketeers closed their regular season with an overall 15-9 record and an enviable 11-3 conference record. This log earned the Lions their berth in the 5th Annual C.I.A.A. Basketball Tournament held in Washington, D. C., March 9, 10 and 11th, marking the second time that the Lions have entered this coveted circle. The previous appearance was in 1945 when the Lions won the conference visitation championship.

In the Tournament, the Lions won their first contest by whipping the Delaware State Hornets 80-61 enabling them to qualify for the semi-final tilt against the tournament tested West Virginia State College champions. Leading the Mountaineers the whole first half, the team finally succumbed 66-55. However by virtue of their first win, the Lionpack was eligible to play the Virginia State College Trojans in the consolation game and managed to wallop the Trojans 64-57 to win third place in the final tournament standings. For this feat, the team was awarded a consolation trophy and individual bronze basketballs for the team members.

This year's team goes down in Lincoln's athletic history as one of the best aggregations ever to perform under the orange and blue banner. There were many interesting features about this year's entry. First of all, the coach, Irving "The Moon" Mondshein, directing traffic on the court for the first time in his short but brilliant career, was able to turn a trick that few freshman mentors have ever accomplished. Turning out a winning team is a tough job; however through sincere application of basketball principles, "The Moon" was able to shine at Lincoln.

Secondly, the Lions were able to floor a team of mostly experienced ballplayers, who were capable of exploding in any contest. Such greats as James "Stretch" Williams, the cool defensive demon, who departed from the scene via mid-term graduation; Bobby Smith, a machine-type player who added height to scoring ability; Warren Barrick, the only freshman to break into the varsity starting line-up; and Benjamin Brown, the Baltimore flash, who ended the season with a 13-4 for 24 games, played most important roles in this year's campaign. Following closely upon the heels of this quartet were Lloyd Thornhill, the floor general and playmaker, James Cooke, the towering 6-foot-6-inch pivot man and Adolph Johnson, the freshman who graduated from last year's squad. The third interesting feature was the return of Georgie Moore, a former All-New York City star to the fold. Moore, a playmaker and point-getter, managed to put together a total of 107 points for a 11.7 average at a time when they were needed.

Finally, the fact that only two stellar performers will be lost to next year's squad is very encouraging to those followers who are predicting even loftier heights for the Lincoln Lions. Of a squad of 18 men, only "Stretch" Williams and George Ganges will not be returning next year.

Dr. Azikiwe to Visit Lincoln

Dr. Nnamdi Azikiwe, '30, distinguished political leader of British West Africa, will visit Lincoln on May 2, as a part of a lecture tour which he is currently undertaking in this country. He will address the students in Chapel on the subject "Imperialism in Colonial Africa," and will devote the remainder of the day to visiting classes in sociology, anthropology, political science, and economics.

A reception in true African style will be given for Dr. Azikiwe at the home of President and Mrs. Bond. He will remain in the country for about six weeks, and will return to the campus at commencement time for the 30th reunion of his class.

ALUMNI NEWSNOTES

Professor P. S. Jones recently retired as Principal of Washington schools after 23 years of service. In an editorial, the daily local paper commented: "The resignation of P. S. Jones has been accepted with deep regret. ...The school system of Washington has been enriched by the hand of Mr. Jones as he went about his work in his unassuming way. So today people of all races pause to pay tribute to a 71-year-old man who has served his people and his community well.

Dr. Harry W. Gibson, Director of Teacher Education at West Virginia State College, Institute, West Virginia, is serving as Secretary of the West Virginia Committee on Teacher Education.

The progress report of this committee for 1948-49 is a remarkable publication, testifying to Dr. Gibson's thorough knowledge of the work covered by the committee, and the confidence imposed on him by all the educators of West Virginia.

Dr. W. Edward Farrington was the Founders Day speaker at the 54th Annual Founders Day Exercises at the Orangeburg, S.C., State A. & M. College.

The founder and first President of this college was Dr. Thomas E. Miller, '72, who served also as U. S. Congressman from South Carolina.

Mr. Frank A. DiCosta, '31, now serves as Dean of the College.

REVEREND TOLLIE L. CAUTION, Secretary for Negro Work in the Protestant Episcopal Church, delivered a Lenten sermon on the Ten Commandments in Christ Church, Hudson, New York. On May 14th, he spoke at a special Mother's Day Service at St. Gerald's Episcopal Church, Harrisburg.

1924

Dr. George D. Cannon was the first Negro candidate for the office of President of the New York County Medical Society in the recent election of that organization. Dr. Cannon's platform included a proposal that the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association adopt an amendment which would prohibit discrimination within that organization, and asked that the AMA abolish the $25 assessment levied on member doctors to finance propaganda against socialized medicine. Dr. Cannon also blasted what he termed the "shocking overcrowding" of Harlem Hospital, which he said is filled to 140% of capacity.

1925

An exhibition of painting and prints was presented by James Lawrence Wells at the Barnett Aden Gallery in Washington from April through May. In a foreword to the program by Art Critic Jacob Kainen, the various stages through which Mr. Wells has gone are described, "arriving finally to a series of religious subjects that have a new breadth, imagination, and depth of feeling."

Dr. Barber is in possession of a large painting of the Christ, done by Mr. Wells when he was a student at Lincoln.

George C. Moran has published two articles recently, one in the March 31 issue of The Commercial, and the other in the April issue of The Negro History Bulletin.

1929

Langston Hughes' long-awaited collection of humorous, fictional sketches entitled Simple Speaks His Mind was published April 14 by Simon and Schuster.

T. B. O'Daniel, Professor of English at Fort Valley State College, is the editor of the College Language Association Bulletin. The excellent editorial capacity he has brought to the Bulletin have made it a distinguished publication.

Dr. Walter E. Longshore has begun duties as resident physician in Radiology at Sydenham Hospital, New York City, where he will do advanced study at Columbia University and Bellevue Hospital. He will study for a period of fifteen months.

LINCOLN BULLETIN
Five honorary degrees were awarded by Lincoln University at commencement exercises held on the University campus Tuesday, June 6. At the same time 106 graduates of the College and Theological Seminary received degrees in course.

Judge William H. Hastie, of the Third U. S. Circuit Court, Philadelphia, received the degree of Doctor of Laws. Judge Hastie also delivered the commencement address. The Doctor of Laws degree was also awarded to Judge Morris A. Soper, of the Fourth U. S. Circuit Court, Baltimore.

The degree of Doctor of Science was conferred upon Dr. Ulysses G. Dailey, Chairman of the Department of surgery at Provident Hospital, Chicago, and founder and Chief surgeon of Dailey Hospital. Dr. Dailey is a Fellow of the American Medical Association, the American College of Surgeons, and the International College of Surgeons.

Reverend Leonard G. Carr, Founder and Pastor of the Vine Memorial Baptist Church, Philadelphia, is a graduate of the Lincoln Theological Seminary. Shortly after his graduation from Lincoln in 1932, he and six “borrowed” members of a Philadelphia congregation established the present church, which now has a congregation of over 2,000 members, and a building valued at $250,000. There are twenty organizations in Rev. Carr’s church, many of them devoted to recreation for youth. A television system was recently installed, and reports indicate that juvenile delinquency in the area served by the church is on the decline. The church also boasts a baby clinic, staffed by a doctor, two nurses, and a nurse’s aid.

Judge Soper, who has been a member of the Board of Trustees of Morgan State College for over thirty years, has been a double strength for higher education in Maryland and a staunch advocate of equality in education for all people. He has consistently urged that the state of Maryland abandon its Jim Crow policy of education, and in his capacity as Federal Judge is known for his liberal interpretations of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution.

Dr. Dailey graduated from Northwestern University Medical School in 1906, as the youngest member of his class. For eight years he was Instructor in Physiology and anatomy at Provident Hospital, Chicago, later becoming a member of the Gynecology staff. In 1925 he went to Europe for study in the Hospitals and clinics at London, Leeds, Manchester, Paris, Vienna, and Rome. He is Founder and Chief Surgeon of Dailey Hospital, and in 1932 was appointed Senior Attending Surgeon at Provident Hospital. Dr. Dailey’s practice is now devoted exclusively to surgery, and to surgical research.

Rev. Carr, Founder and Pastor of the Vine Memorial Church, Philadelphia, is a graduate of the Lincoln Theological Seminary. Shortly after his graduation from Lincoln in 1932, he and six “borrowed” members of a Philadelphia congregation established the present church, which now has a congregation of over 2,000 members, and a building valued at $250,000. There are twenty organizations in Rev. Carr’s church, many of them devoted to recreation for youth. A television system was recently installed, and reports indicate that juvenile delinquency in the area served by the church is on the decline. The church also boasts a baby clinic, staffed by a doctor, two nurses, and a nurse’s aid.

Jacques Wilmore, Valedictorian of the College, charged his classmates to stand unflinchingly for human rights, and not to give way to the name-calling hysteria of the times. He was also awarded the Medella Prize for outstanding scholarship and character during four years at Lincoln.

Gayraud Wilmore, who delivered the Theological Seminary address, urged his classmates to announce by word and deed the true meaning of religion. A graduate of the college in 1946, he now Pastors a church in West Chester, Pa.
Alumni Awards

William Edward Farrison, '26, Professor of English at North Carolina College at Durham, and former President of the College Language Association, receives the Award of the General Alumni Association.

John Redmond, '29, Associate Secretary of the Central Atlantic Area Council of the Y. M. C. A., receives the General Alumni Association Award from Dr. Harold Scott.

PRIZES AWARDED

Prizes for outstanding scholastic and leadership abilities were also awarded to prominent men of the graduating class at the 96th commencement exercises.

The Thomas W. Conway Prize, for general excellence in English, was awarded to James C. Barringer, of Roanoke, Virginia. Mr. Barringer received the Bachelor of Arts degree in English. Theodore O. Asare, New York City, won the class of 1900 prize in debating.

The Bradley Prize, for excellence in the Physical sciences, was presented to Albert H. Mitchell, a major in Chemistry, from Camden, New Jersey. Thomas D. Moore, Philadelphia, was awarded the S. Leroy Morris Prize in Biology. The Quinland Prize for general excellence in Biology was awarded to Morton S. Rosenbaum, from New York City.

Winner of the Walter F. Jerrick Prize for general progress in the Biological sciences was Earnest J. Albert, of Philadelphia. The O. Morris Cain Prize in Bible was awarded to Robert L. Foster, from Wilkes-Barre, Penna. The class of 1916 Prize for achievement in Athletics was presented to Melvin S. McCoy, of Jamaica, New York. Jacques E. Wilmore, valedictorian of the graduating class, was elected by vote of the faculty to receive the William H. Medella Prize for academic excellence and character during four years at Lincoln. Wilmore is from Philadelphia.

BACCALAUREATE

At Baccalaureate services held the Sunday morning preceding commencement, President Bond told the members of the graduating class, the faculty, and guests, that “The great pride of American Education is Freedom.”

The speaker pointed out the growing tendency in American higher education to re-dedicate institutions to educate for a free society. “Lincoln University need not undergo any such declaration,” declared Dr. Bond. “Freedom is taken for granted here; it is the birthright of Lincoln University. There was never a university more closely allied with the idea of freedom.”

Dr. Bond pointed out that Lincoln, the Nation’s oldest Negro college, was symbolic of the inner meaning of freedom. “It is the right of every man,” he said. “It also has its price.” He also warned the graduates that they could never find peace of mind and heart until they absorbed the Christian tradition of living.

Reverend Leonard G. Carr, Pastor of the Vine Memorial Baptist Church, Philadelphia, and a graduate of the Lincoln Theological Seminary, receives an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree. Reverend Carr is the President-elect of the Philadelphia Chapter, Lincoln University Alumni Association.
SUMMER, 1950

Judge Hastie Sees End of Segregation

When Judge William H. Hastie, of the Third U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, delivered the Commencement Address at the exercises held on the Lincoln campus on June 6, the unanimous opinion was that he hit a new high for all commencement speakers. The following excerpts were taken from the statements made by one of America's outstanding jurists.

Almost twenty-five years ago to the day it was my privilege, or perhaps you would say task, to sit as this graduating class sits, listening to the traditional ceremonial which must be endured before one can receive his degree of Bachelor of Arts or Science. I cannot but reflect upon the difference between those times and these.

In 1925 we were nearing the end of an era of stability, at least relative and apparent stability. Most people were satisfied that America was doing all right. Our way of life was regarded as very satisfactory. As a community we boasted of our virtues and were rather smug about our vices. Trouble and conflict, unhappiness and suffering, oppression and injustice were minimized. It was the spirit of the times to go along with things as they were, viewing them as pretty good and sure to become even better.

Complacency about human relations was but one aspect of national self satisfaction. In a vague way most Americans were aware of the existence of disadvantaged minorities and the denial of equal status and opportunity, but there were only a few who felt any abiding concern with reference to such matters or sensed any responsibility to do something about them.

Most Negroes could not vote, but things were going smoothly and disfranchisement was accepted as a regrettable incident of a functioning pattern of life. Most Negroes could get only menial jobs, but 1925 America reasoned that somebody had to do such work and perhaps in God's scheme of society the black man had found his appropriate place. Of course racial segregation was practically unquestioned, in Oxford, Mississippi, little different in Oxford, Pennsylvania.

Most of today's graduates were unborn in 1925. Yet, the pattern of American life then has significance for the days ahead in which all of us hope to live. Part of that significance lies in the rapidity with which change has occurred. And nowhere has change been faster or more sensational than in the area of human relations.

Since we all are experiencing these changes from day to day, I will do no more than to mention some experiences of my own. I think they at least suggest how fast we are moving.

When I graduated from Amherst College in 1925, the admission of a Negro student to a campus fraternity was almost unthinkable. Yet you know how students in that very college, followed by others, have taken the lead in opening their fraternities to all.

I remember in 1933, when I first started volunteer work with the N.A.A.C.P., how difficult it was to get outstanding Negroes to subscribe to an uncompromising program for the elimination of racial distinctions in the public areas of community life. But fifteen years later nationally prominent citizens, most of them with no special interest in race relations, who constituted the President's Committee on Civil Rights proposed, and a national administration adopted a civil rights program which many, probably most, Negroes would not have sponsored, certainly not openly, in the early 1930's.

In 1933, when I first went to work in Government, stenographic assistance for a Negro was a major problem. Stenographers for a number of lawyers worked in a group in a single room. To appoint a colored girl would make here a member of the group. But not to appoint her would mean that a white girl would have to do my work. It was a major crisis. Yet, in 1942, in a traditionally less liberal government agency I had need for an additional stenographer in my office and requested the transfer of a competent young woman who happened to be colored and to be working with a group of Army Officers, who happened to be white.

They indignantly refused to let her go, and accused me of unfairly raiding their office to take away competent help. They even raised her salary to keep her.

In 1940, I wrote an article predicting that Negroes would be admitted to Southern state graduate and professional schools by 1950. I think the only question raised then was whether that prediction emanated from a dishonest mind or an insane one. But Negroes are there today, in Arkansas and Kentucky, and Maryland, and West Virginia, and Oklahoma.

As a final example, I was told in 1941 and I think it was the consensus of the military, that it would take 100 years to break down the pattern of racially segregated units in the armed forces of the United States. Actually it didn't take eight years.

These specific cases have passed in front of the small peephole through which one individual contemplates the American scene. They are a small part of a picture of rapid change which none of us can fully appreciate. Twenty-five years ago race relations were in an unhappy type of equilibrium. Today the walls around us are being breached in so many places and so often that they cannot be repaired. It may take fifty or even one hundred years to eliminate all significant racial restrictions from our national and local community life. But so many are going and so fast that we face the prospect of substantial integration in our times.

"Integration". When did we start using that word in talk about race relations? It has long been a mathematical concept. But I cannot remember its use even ten years ago to describe the evolution of American race relations. Of course we adopt and adapt descriptive words as ideas become newly important and require expression. And "integration" is a meaningful concept. If it is not "in being"; it is "becoming" very rapidly.

This change has come so fast after the stable period of the earlier 1900's that it creates a problem of adjustment and reorientation for Negroes themselves, no less than others in the community. Twenty-five years ago most Negroes gave no thought to living in an unsegregated community. Even ten years ago, relegated to second class citizenship, relatively few considered that we ourselves must be different in the seemingly far off day of first class citizenship. But integration is now too close for further postponement of necessary adjustment in our own thinking and action.

Alumni Banquet

With Dr. Edward R. Archer, '25, as the main speaker, the annual Alumni Banquet and Reunion attracted a gathering of over 500 Lincoln men and guests, who dined on roast turkey and renewed old fellowships in the Grim Gymnasium on the evening preceding commencement.

Newly elected officers of the General Alumni Association were announced at the banquet. Dr. Harold R. Scott, Orange, N. J., returns to the Presidency, where he has brought intelligent leadership in the effort to bring all Lincoln men into the Association. Vice-president is Attorney Cornelius McDougald, of New York City. Dr. Nathaniel O. Wallace, of Philadelphia, was re-elected Executive Secretary, to be assisted by W. Beverely Carter, also of Philadelphia. Charles A. Booker, of Washington, D. C., was re-elected Treasurer.

Dr. George D. Cannon, of New York City, was re-elected Alumni Trustee. Other alumni trustees currently serving their terms of office are Dr. Edward R. Archer, of Norfolk, and Attorney William I. Gosnell, of Baltimore.

Oldest of the reunion classes attending the banquet was the class of 1900. Humorously referring to themselves as "the old men's class", they presented checks totaling $825. for the alumni building fund, with the observation that in the year 2,000 A. D. the class of 1950 might come back for their fiftieth reunion—"if they are as hardy as we are," they added. Of the thirty-one graduates of Lincoln in 1900, ten are living today. Six members of the class were present at the Alumni banquet and commencement exercises. Reverend Joseph W. Holley, spokesman for the group, stole the show at the banquet by his good-natured ribbing about the length of the speeches.

Dr. Scott set the keynote of the gathering by urging the alumni body to attune their thinking of the times, and not look upon the traditions of Lincoln as a guide for the future. "The need for Lincoln will not cease at the stroke of a pen," he said.

President Bond presented a fiscal report to the members, and asked for their continued, courageous support.

Mr. Lewis M. Stevens, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, who was introduced by Attorney Maceo Hubbard, spoke of the real significance of Lincoln. "It opens the windows of life," he said. "Lincoln is a spiritual experience."

Dr. Edward R. Archer, physician and Director of Clinics at Community Hospital,
Norfolk, paid tribute to the administration and student body of Lincoln in their stand on segregation in Oxford, and pointed out that the liberal faculty of Lincoln is putting its teachings into practise. He also proudly portrayed the Lincoln of today, as seen through its alumni and friends.

Mrs. Richard T. Lockett, of Atlantic City, introduced the new officers of the Ladies' Auxiliary, and reported that $18,014.13 had been raised by the organization for Lincoln, of which $10,000 is to be utilized for the guest house.

Mrs. Leroy Morris, who has not missed a Lincoln Commencement for 58 years, was complimented by Dr. Scott and warmly applauded by the audience. Mrs. Morris began attending Lincoln Commencements in 1892, first as a guest of the man she married, later as the mother of two sons who graduated from Lincoln, as well as the mother-in-law of Dick Lockett, another outstanding Lincoln man.

Announcement of the recent election of officers of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the General Alumni Association was made by Mrs. Richard T. Lockett, of Atlantic City. Mrs. Thomas Clayton, of Coatesville, was re-elected President. Other officers are Mrs. Nathaniel O. Wallace, Philadelphia, Vice-president; Miss Betty Cuff, Coatesville, Recording Secretary; Mrs. Wyatt Johnson, Atlantic City, Financial Secretary; Mrs. Richard T. Lockett, Atlantic City, Treasurer; Mrs. I. J. K. Wells, Charleston, W. Va., Journalist; Mrs. J. Leroy Williams, Philadelphia, Historian; and Mrs. M. C. Spann, West Chester, Chaplain.

Spokesman for the reunion classes in attendance included Reverend Joseph W. Holley, 1900; Dr. Charles A. Lewis, 1905; Professor Charles E. Pieters, 1915; Dr. Harsba F. Boyer, 1930; Dr. Clement M. Jones, 1930; John Tracey, 1940; and Farrell Jones, 1905.

The class of 1915 gave a total of $685 to the alumni building fund. The class of 1930 pledged an X-ray machine, to be used in the clinic on the University campus.

As a part of the response to the mantle oration delivered at traditional class night exercises June 5, Ernest Hill, President of the Junior Class, quoted Tagore's simple powerful prayer:

"Where the mind is without fear, and the head is held high;
Where knowledge is free;
Where the world has not been broken up into fragments by narrow domestic walls;
Where words come out from the depth of truth;
Where tireless striving stretches its arms toward perfection;
Where the clear stream of reason has not lost its way in the desert sand of dead habit;
Where the mind is led forward into ever widening thought and action—
Into that heaven of freedom, let my class awake!"

Members of the class of 1930 produced the largest representation at the banquet. Spokesman for the group was Dr. Clement M. Jones, of Bayonne, N. J.
REST IN PEACE

Dr. Eugene E. Alston, '30, in Grand Rapids, Michigan, on February 20. A resident and practising physician of Grand Rapids for 22 years, Dr. Alston received his medical degree from the University of Michigan in 1924, and interned in Kansas City, Missouri. He was a member of Omega Psi Phi fraternity.

A. Archibald Bullock, educator and churchman, on May 17, at his home in Pasadena, California. A teacher in China for 20 years, Mr. Bullock was for many years Dean of the Normal School at the University of Nanking, and viewed at first hand the decline in power of the old mandarin officials and saw the new Republic of China grow until in 1912 the Manchu Dynasty was overthrown and the republic established at Nanking. He was acquainted with the first President of China, Sun Yat Sen, whom he later entertained at his home in Pasadena. For several years after his return from China, Dr. Bullock was Professor of Education at Lincoln.

Philosopher Speaks to Lincoln Students

Dr. Elizabeth Flower, of the University of Pennsylvania Department of Philosophy, spoke to students and faculty of Lincoln University last month on the subject, "Objectivity in Historical Judgments." The meeting, held on the Lincoln University campus, was sponsored by the Philosophy Club.

The speaker pointed out that the task of the historian is made difficult because his own personal beliefs and wishes are often unconsciously injected into the problems with which he deals. "Complete objectivity is almost impossible, although there are certain tests that can be applied to historical conclusions," said Dr. Flower. "If the historian's work makes certain predictions, the checking of his predictions against actual fact is perhaps the best of all."

The Philosophy Club is under the direction of Walter B. Fales, who received his training at the University of Berlin, in Germany. He came to this country in 1939 as a refugee from the Nazi terror, and has taught at Lincoln for the last four years.

Roseborough Heads Chicago Alumni

New officers of the Chicago Chapter, General Alumni Society, were formally installed on March 19. Results of the election are as follows:

Board of Directors: Emmett D. Gully, Chairman Emeritus; Louis E. Redmond, Chairman; Jabez L. Clark, Sec'y.

Officers: Att. Fred D. Roseborough, President; Att. Geo. J. Harkness, President; Rev. Henry L. Allen, Rec. Sec'y; Wendell G. Jones, Financial Sec'y; Jabez L. Clarke, Cor. Sec'y; Dr. H. F. Boyer, Treas.; Rev. Herbert W. Jones, Chaplain.

Dr. O. J. Chapman New Delaware State Head

The appointment of Dr. Oscar J. Chapman, '32, as President of Delaware State College, Dover, Del., brings to a total of eight the number of Lincoln Alumni who are now serving as presidents of the nation's colleges.

Dr. Chapman assumed the presidency of the Delaware institution after serving as Professor of Education, Director of Student Personnel, and Director of Athletic Publicity at Morgan State College. He was educated in the high school at Stockton, Md., and Hampton Institute High School. After receiving his A.B. degree from Lincoln, he attended the University of Michigan and Ohio State University, where he received the M.A. and Ed.D. degrees.

Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, former Editor of "The Crisis," and "The Encyclopedia of the Negro," received the 1950 Alpha Medallion for his contributions to human understanding over the past 50 years.

Lincoln Alpha Awards to DuBois, Bethune

Dr. Mary MacLeod Bethune, distinguished educator, and Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, noted author and lecturer, received the 1950 Alpha medallion from students of Lincoln University last month. The presentation was made by Richard Terrell, President Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity.

Mrs. Bethune, President of Bethune-Cookman College from 1904 to 1942, is a former Director of Negro Affairs for the National Youth Administration, and served as Special Adviser on minority affairs to Franklin D. Roosevelt from 1938 to 1944. Mrs. Bethune was selected to receive the award because of her outstanding service to Negro higher education. In 1938, Lincoln University awarded her an honorary Doctor of Laws degree.

Dr. DuBois, formerly editor of The Crisis, publication of the NAACP, and of the Encyclopedia of the Negro, was elected by the students on the basis of his contribution to human understanding over the past 50 years.

This year's adds award two more distinguished names to an impressive list which includes previous award recipients Marian Anderson, noted soprano; Former Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes; Eleanor Roosevelt, and Thurgood Marshall, Chief Consul for the NAACP. Last year the awards were presented to Hubert E. Humphrey, U. S. Senator from Minnesota, and William L. Dawson, Representative from Illinois.
JUDGE HASTIE

Heaven knows we never enjoyed inferior status, we never have been happy about Jim Crow. We have not been pleased with our isolation from the main stream of American culture. But we have become accustomed to these things. Forced upon us, they have become group and individual habits. In many cases they are all we and our immediate associates ever have known. That is one of the great vices of a long enduring and long endured caste system. When the old limitations and restrictions of caste are removed, it is hard for the oppressed to throw off the ways of thinking and acting which have grown out of their oppression.

I can think of no happier task than learning to act and think like a free man, like any other free man in a democratic society. But I suggest the task is not without its problems and difficulties. My plea to these graduates is to face those difficulties now and to set out deliberately to overcome them to the end that within yourselves and in your dealings with others you may throw off the psychology and the habits of inferior and segregated status as fast as external barriers and impediments are removed.

Perhaps I should illustrate what I mean by the psychology and habits of inferior and segregated status.

Recently, I had occasion to tell for the first time publicly an experience I had some twenty years ago at the Christian Street Y. M. C. A. in Philadelphia. Visiting that city, I sought lodging at the Y, and in token of my membership in the organization, presented my card of membership in the Cambridge, Massachusetts Y. The clerk looked at the card and then almost spontaneously burst out, "This won't do! This is for the white Y!" It wasn't his fault that he had been conditioned to Jim Crow thinking. But, whatever the cause, such a mentality is not ready for functioning in an integrated community.

Again, we find today among ourselves substantial resistance to the unqualified opening of private Negro schools to whites as more and more formerly segregated institutions are opened to Negroes. These objections are always rationalized on some basis of practicality or benevolence just as Jim Crow itself has repeatedly been rationalized—but of course, in the vernacular, "it is still baloney." Reluctance to encourage more and more white students to attend Negro schools exists only in minds not yet able to escape from the conditioning of a lifetime of racial separateness.

Then we all have observed Negroes who in large gatherings look to find other Negroes and seek the protective coloration of a little cluster of brown. At the other extreme are those who in mixed groups flee from any neighboring dark face as from the plague. In both cases the observed behavior reflects an inability to escape from a feeling of inferiority.

Then I remember seeing in a newspaper not so long ago an article applauding a decision of a California court which struck down a law against interracial marriage. Soon after there followed a condemnation of the British government for its efforts to penalize one of its subjects who had contracted such a marriage. But imagine my bewilderment a little later when from the same source there issued a rather sharp criticism of a person well known in the Negro community who had been a party to a similar union. And then I realized that, when we get down to cases and close to home, this business of integration does create sharp and difficult conflicts in minds conditioned to racial separation.

The Citation which accompanied the presentation of the honorary Doctor of Laws degree to Judge Hastie read as follows:

Mr. President:

The legal profession again claims our attention, in this era of insistence upon the attainment of all human rights provided within the framework of existing laws. William Henry Hastie first gained our attention as a scholar in the School of Law at Harvard College. He has subsequently distinguished himself as teacher, as Dean of the Howard University Law School, Civilian Aide to the Secretary of War and as Governor of the Virgin Islands. His greater accomplishments have been signalized by the award of the Spingarn Medal, in 1946 and by his appointment to the United States Court of Appeals—for the Third Circuit.

For his quiet determination "To Secure Our Civil Rights" for his brilliance as a lawyer and jurist, for his modesty in the face of greatness and for the symbol of true American Democracy that he so fittingly represents, we present him to you for the Honorary Degree: Doctor of Laws.

Of a different type but even more striking as an example of problems of integration was my conversation with a celebrated figure in organized baseball. This man said that in big league competition he noticed a difference between Negro players on the one hand who had spent their lives in a segregated environment and competed in sports exclusively against other Negroes, and those on the other hand to whom interracial associations and competition were familiar before they entered the big leagues. The latter group, he said, experience only the temporary tenseness of all players when they first break into the big leagues. But the other group, those with a background of almost complete segregation, present a more serious problem. He put it this way: "They tighten up and stay tightened up." Many of them, he predicted, will never be able to play their best game in the big leagues.

I have often regarded that statement as the worst possible indictment of segregation. For it is the picture of what segregation does to the segregated. Moreover to me it sums up a major problem which so many young Negroes must face now on as they find more and more opportunities to live and work and play outside of the ghetto. Will they "tighten up and stay tightened up?" Or will they be able to relax, be themselves and give their best.

It may be helpful to bear constantly in mind that the only useful purpose of race consciousness is to enable us to work together to achieve the day when we can lose race consciousness. That truth explains one of the seeming contradictions of these times when we are in transition from a segregated to an integrated community. Any morning a Negro may have to fight vigorously and even bitterly against some racial injustice. He must be what we call a "race man" and rally others to fight together as Negroes for justice. Yet the afternoon of the same day, in totally different circumstances, he may find himself dealing with white persons on a basis of dignity and equality where race is not permitted to make any difference. These lightning transitions are hard. They involve the most difficult psychological adjustments. Perhaps it helps to regard such contradictions as ludicrous. For, whenever one can chuckle about a dilemma it loses much of its power to disturb.

Let me sum up by saying that the road to integration is a two way street. We have concentrated attention upon what government and the general community must do to tear down barriers which block that street. We have also considered the way white America must travel in one direction from its isolation to join with us in a democratic society. But the road is a two way street. From one end it begins in our ghetto, the mental as well as physical ghetto in which we have lived so long. We must move out of that ghetto, throwing off its influences as we go, so that we arrive at a meeting point genuinely free of the heritage and habits and attitudes of our long servitude.

I see young men who graduate from college in 1950 making that difficult journey. I see them striding along, with no hat in hand and no chip on shoulder. And I know they will get there. And equally important, when they arrive they will be ready, ready within themselves to become members of a truly integrated society.

Feted at Banquet

Believers of giving credit where it is due, Lincoln University treated the members of the Football, Basketball, Track, Baseball, Wrestling, Boxing and Soccer teams to a royal banquet last month for their excellent performance in competition this season. An annual affair, some 150 athletes attended the well planned function.

Looking back into the season, Coach Irving Mondschein pointed out that the University and loyal fans had much to be proud about. Mentioning the specific sports, Coach Mondschein, who is rounding out his first year as Director of Athletics at Lincoln, Head Football, Basketball and Track Coach, said in addition that “We won some; we lost some; more important however is the fact that we played every contest.”

Facts support Coach Mondschein. The soccer team, though winning only 3 and losing 4, scored 17 points as compared to the 15 points tallied by the opposition. In football, the Lions ended the season with a 3-5 mark. Significant, however, are the following statistics. The Lions amassed some 616 yards on 104 attempts and 35 completions, while the opposition was held to 532 yards on 35 completions out of 108 attempts. In rushing the Lions stacked up 1646 yards to their opponents 1732 yards on 104 attempts and 35 completions.

Team captains in 3 sports were picked also at the banquet. In football, Jolting Joe Harris, of Washington, was selected to head the 1950 gridiron edition of the Lions. Lloyd Thornhill and Bobby Smith will lead the 1950-51 basketball quintet. Thornhill a steady play-maker, and Smith, a machine type ballplayer, will have the entire starting five back next year with the exception of James “Stretch” Williams. James Gibbs, hurdle threat, was picked to captain the cinderpath charges next year. A consistent performer and competitor, Gibbs also broad jumps and pole vaults.

Lincoln Gleemen on Nationwide Broadcast

The Lincoln University Glee Club ended their formal concert season last month with a series of concerts which included a nationwide network broadcast.

The Glee Club started their last weekend of formal concerting by journeying to Baltimore, Md., where they sang at the Bethel A. M. E. Church. The concert was under the sponsorship of Mrs. Katherine Johnson, whose son, Carson Johnson, is a junior at Lincoln.

The Westtown School, located a short distance from West Chester, was the scene of the Glee Club’s Saturday evening concert.

Under the sponsorship of the United Negro College Fund, the Glee Club presented a nation-wide broadcast over the N.B.C. network, on Sunday morning. The broadcast, which originated in the studios of WFIL, Philadelphia, included an address by President Bond.

After the broadcast and the transcription of their featured work, “The Testament of Freedom,” which will be broadcast next September 17, the singers boarded their bus to travel to Steelton, Pennsylvania, for their final concert. This concert, held in the Steelton High School auditorium, was a part of the program for the Elks’ State Convention, and was attended by delegates from all parts of the state.

Mr. Henry Booker, Director of Music at Lincoln, stated that this had been probably the heaviest schedule of the Glee Club since his arrival here three years ago, the schedule having included concerts in Massachusetts, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, and the District of Columbia.

Mildred Hill Sings at Glee Festival

Miss Mildred Hill, young Philadelphia soprano, and recent winner of the Phil Spitalny and Philadelphia Daily News Hour of Charm Contest, was guest soloist with the Lincoln University Glee Club at their annual home concert and festival on Friday and Saturday, May 12 and 13.

Presentation of the Glee Club Festival brought the campus social life to its apex for the year. Always a rival of the Alpha prom, held the week before, the Festival was one of the best yet presented at Lincoln.

Miss Hill, a coloratura soprano, is a Marian Anderson Scholarship Award winner, and recently won the Phil Spitalny and Philadelphia Daily News Contest held at the Earl Theatre. She studied at the Academy of Vocal Arts, in Philadelphia.

Dr. Logan's family is an added tribute to his character and good works. The three daughters are active church workers and have attained positions of great importance in Philadelphia's educational and welfare circles; one, Dr. Marechal Neil Young, having recently been appointed Chief of the Guidance Staff of the Philadelphia schools. A son, George F., Jr., is a student at the Occidental College in Los Angeles.
Dr. Poindexter Reports African Health Problem

In a letter to Dr. Bond, Dr. Hildruss A. Poindexter, Director of the United States Public Health Mission in Liberia, wrote: "It might seem strange to receive a letter from me from East Africa when my station is in West Africa. This is the half way mark on a 10,000-mile trip through Africa. This trip has paid and is still yielding very good educational dividends. This trip is arranged to coincide with the three-week sessions of the World Health Organization on Malaria.

"This health session of the United Nations with headquarters in Geneva has invited malaria experts from all parts of the world to meet for the first time in Equatorial for a complete scientific study and discussion of malaria. Thirty-nine experts are here representing 14 different countries and all of the inhabited continents, including Australia. I have the good fortune of being one of the two from the U. S. A. The other is Doctor Paul F. Russell of the Rockefeller Foundation. During these three weeks we are getting the latest information on malaria from as many angles and sources as possible. The Indian delegates bring one type of problem, those of us here in Africa bring another type while the Europeans and the Rockefeller Foundation bring the more highly developed type of research and specialized control measures.

"As you well know, T. V. A. and other measures have just about wiped out malaria in the U. S. A. But may I remind you that for much of Africa and Asia malaria is still the greatest infectious disease hazard of those continents. About 300,000,000 are sick each year in the world and in spite of marvelous controls in America and other places, about 3,000,000 die from malaria. The effects of malaria on the economic well being, educational activities and retardation in growth and development of the 297,000,000 infected that do not die is not known but admitted very great. On route here I passed through 19 African Territories, colonies, states, and protectorates, stopped over in Johannesburg, Zanzibar, and several other places. Had the pleasure of a flight over Mount Kilimanjaro and Lake Victoria and washed in the headwaters of the Nile river. Talked to many Africans en route. The details of these talks will be given later. The trip is now about to come to a close since I wish to spend Xmas in Liberia with my wife and kid. Special regards to the faculty and students, and season's greetings to you and the family."

Dr. Poindexter received his degree Cum Laude in 1924. He went on to Medical school at Harvard University, where he received his M.D. in 1929. Since that time he has had a wide range of practice, both civilian and military. He has published more than 50 articles as a result of his researches in tropical diseases.

Dr. Browning Honored

Dr. Eugene S. Browning, '00, was honored at a banquet in Grand Rapids, Michigan, in October. A portrait of Dr. Browning was dedicated to his work as founder of The Master's Infant Clinic, located in the First Community Methodist Episcopal Church, and as a demonstration of gratitude for his 45 years of medical service to the community. More than two hundred guests joined to pay tribute to Dr. Browning.

Dr. Browning's list of accomplishments is a long and impressive one. He is very largely responsible for the breaking down of discrimination in Grand Rapids' hospitals. During the recent war, he taught a Red Cross class, the first to be offered to Afro-Americans. Always interested in the growth and development of children, he has been a medical examiner of underprivileged children during the last thirty years. In 1925, he founded the Master's Clinic for children.

Dr. Browning has been vitally connected with the development of Idlewild, the well-known summer resort. Much credit is due Dr. Browning for the cultural activities that he introduced there. He is, for example, the founder of the Idelwild Sunday Evening Forum; he served as its president for more than eleven years.

After graduating from Lincoln, Dr. Browning continued his education at the University of Michigan, Detroit College of Medicine (now Wayne University), and the University of Vienna, Austria.

Dr. Bonner

Dr. Charles Bonner, '30, occupied a prominent spot in an article appearing in the December issue of Reader's Digest. The article, entitled "The Magic of an Impulse," describes the treatment for advanced arthritis given by Raoul Dufy, the famous French artist. Dufy came to the United States as a result of an invitation sent him by Dr. Freddy Homburger, who recognized his critical condition from a photograph.

Dr. Bonner is Dr. Homburger's "brilliant" research assistant. Mr. Dufy refused to submit to his daily examination until Dr. Bonner had received, in turn, a lesson in sketching. By the time his cure was effected, Dufy had taught 13 M.D.'s in the hospital to sketch. Of these, he judged Dr. Bonner's work to be the best.

Dr. Bonner was the valedictorian of his class at Lincoln. He continued his medical education at Boston University, where he received his M.D. in 1944.

In Memoriam

Dr. Monchief Alexander Carr, '08, whose residence was at Lewisburg, West Virginia, died unexpectedly in Charleston, West Virginia, on November 13, while attending a meeting of the State Health Officers Association.

Dr. Carr, 61 years old, had been health officer in Lewisburg since last June. His district included the counties of Monroe, Pocohontas, and Greenboro. Formerly Dr. Carr had been the director of a local health service in Nashville, Tennessee.

The son of Rev. George B. Carr, he was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, on October 1, 1889. He came to this country when his father joined the Faculty of Lincoln University in 1893 as Professor of Rhetoric and Homiletics. Dr. Carr received his undergraduate education at Lincoln and his medical degree from the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Carr was a staunch and loyal son of Lincoln University, and all who remember the contribution of his family and himself to the University must view his passing with the greatest regret.

Dr. John H. Gross, Philadelphia, Investment Counselor and Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Lincoln University Board of Trustees, was killed in an automobile accident on New Year's Day. Mrs. Gross was also killed, and their daughter seriously injured.

Dr. Gross gave long and faithful service to Lincoln, immeasurably strengthening its resources through his careful investment policies. He had been on the Board of Trustees since 1922.

Mrs. Laura B. Carr, wife of Dr. Leonard G. Carr, '33, D.D. (Hon.) '50, died in Philadelphia January 3, 1951. Dr. Carr is a son and pastor of the Vine Memorial Baptist Church in Philadelphia.

Rev. William J. Helm, '09, a distinguished member and prelate of the M.E. Church died in February in Atlantic City, where he had been a pastor for several years.

Dr. William Harold Branch, '24, died of a heart attack in Jersey City in February. Dr. Branch had gained distinction as a cardiac specialist.
CONSEtjO ON AFRICA

The ambitious task of creating in America an institution for the study of Africa was undertaken by Lincoln University in November. A conference on Africa was held to establish formally Lincoln’s Institute of African Studies. Representatives from Europe and the United Nations as well as from Africa assembled to consult and give advice.

Heading the United Nations delegation was H. A. Wieschoff, Chief of the Research and Analysis Division of Trusteeships. The United States State Department was represented by Oscar Meier, Chief of the United States Economic Mission to Liberia, and Mrs. Ruth Sloan, Public Relations Staff, African Area.

Representing Africa were Gabriel Dennis, Secretary of State for the Republic of Liberia; Henry Duncan, Secretary of Public Works and Utilities for the Republic of Liberia; and M. H. El-Zayyat, Cultural Attaché at the Egyptian Embassy.

Representing European powers who have interests in Africa were T. F. Cook, M.P., Parliamentary Undersecretary of State, British Colonial Office; Gabriel V. Laethem, Secretary of African Affairs of the French Embassy; M. Sisuko, Sudanese representative to the French National Assembly and a member of the French United Nations delegation; and Jan-Albert Goris, Commissioners of Information for Belgium.

In his opening address, Dr. Bond stated that “The time has come when, in this Nation, Colleges and Universities should devote more interested attention to the history, public health, agriculture, and general Welfare of a great Continent and of a great people.”

Three African Students, Martin Karpeh, Charles Adeyinka and Emeka Awa, extended welcome to the delegates in Kru, Yoruba and Ibo languages.

Africa as a subject of Teaching and Research was the subject of the Friday afternoon session of the conference. Mr. Irving W. Underhill, Board of Directors, Philadelphia Redevelopment Authority, presided. His Excellency Gabriel Dennis, Secretary of State for the Republic of Liberia spoke on behalf of Ambassador King, who was prevented from attending the conference by illness in his family. Mr. Dennis wished that the “deliberations would be successful and that you will do something outstanding not only for your country, but also for the people of Africa.”

Mr. H. A. Wieschoff, Chief of the United Nations Research and Analysis Division of Trusteeship, formulated the problems confronting the Institute on African Studies as that of “humanizing teaching and research.” He stated that research on Africa is in its infancy, and that “the United States does not now produce enough qualified persons to fill the need. We have to begin teaching about Africa even before we have fully qualified experts on Africa so as to give greater impetus to research in all fields of African Affairs.”

Dr. Albert C. Barnes, President of the Barnes Foundation, and America’s foremost expert on African Art, emphasized the cultural contribution which Africa has already made to Western civilization. He declared that “Negro art has created a new world in painting, sculpture, ballet, music,” citing as particular examples the works of Picasso, Matisse, Modigliani, Stravinsky, Milhaud, Gershwin, and the unique musical performances of Duke Ellington and Louis Armstrong. Dr. Barnes pointed out that the distortions we see in African sculpture comprise the perfect union of emotion and idea which is essential to works of art.

Mrs. Ruth Sloan and Mr. Vernon C. McKay, both of the United States State Department spoke briefly of the limited educational opportunities for Africans at the present time and the need for expanded student and teacher exchange.

Friday evening’s topic was “Plans for the Development of Africa.” Outlining future economic development were representatives of the Liberian, Egyptian, French, Belgian and British governments.

Gabriel Dennis stated that “In Liberia we started four years ago an overall five-year plan for the development of economic and human resources.” He outlined the changes which have been affected in education, public health, agriculture, and general living conditions. He concluded: “We in Liberia realize our position. It is the only independent state in Africa. In the United Nations we are interested, and by our vote and voice show, what we would like to see our own people in Africa do and become. We are interested to know what the existing plans for the development of Africa are.”

J. F. Cook, Parliamentary under-secretary of State, stated his hope that “Lincoln’s Institute of African Studies will become not only a source of information and enlightenment for the American people in regard to African affairs, but also a means whereby the people of Africa, as represented by the students from that country to whom the University has long extended hospitality, will find an expression for their political and economic aspirations.

“The central purpose of British policy in Africa, as in other parts of the world, is very simply stated. It is to guide the colonial territories to responsible self-government within the Commonwealth in conditions that ensure the people both a fair standard of living and freedom from aggression from any quarter.”

Jan Goris discussed the social and economic problems in the Belgian colonies with particular reference to the ten-year plan which aims to improve the general living conditions of the natives. Mr. Goris remarked that “besides the ten-year plan there is a definite improvement in the changed attitude of many of the colonial officials toward the native population. Already, after 50 years of Belgian influence, some of the natives have started writing. They also have their own newspaper, which is extremely interesting reading. They frankly discuss problems which are important for them and even important to the white people in the Congo.”

Mr. Nwankwo Chukwuemeka, author, and Professor of Engineering at Howard, spoke for the viewpoint of an African. He said, “I believe in international cooperation that the black can get along with the white. We cannot get along on the basis of slave-master concepts. We find it difficult to believe that there will be any real development in conditions as they are now. Development for whom and how? Something must be done and done immediately. America has a great responsibility and that responsibility is to help the colonial countries.”

Gabriel Van Laethem and M. Sisuko told of the diversity and complexity of the political and economic conditions in French Africa. They described the ten-year plan in the colonies, a plan prepared by the people themselves. The purposes of the plan are to increase the birth rate, improve the quality of marriage, and public health and economic conditions.

Mr. Karpeh and Mr. Bright are from Liberia; the others are all from Nigeria.

Delegates from Europe and Africa: Gabriel van Laethem, Secretary in Charge of African Affairs of the French Embassy; J. F. Cook, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, United Kingdom; M. Sisuko, Sudanese representative to the French National Assembly, and member of the French delegation to the United Nations; Gabriel Dennis, Secretary of State for the Republic of Liberia; and Alain Locke, Professor of Philosophy at Howard University.
Martin Karpeh, David Okoye, and Abdul Adeyenlo exhibited their African dress to a group of ladies from the Drexel Hill United Presbyterian Church who visited the University during the African Conference. A portrait of John Miller Dickey, founder of Lincoln University, appears in the background.

M. H. El-Zayat, Cultural Attaché at the Egyptian Embassy, described briefly Egypt's present political position, particularly their growing independence.

Later Mr. Meier discussed in some detail the U. S. Economic and Public Health Missions to Liberia and the affects of governmental advice on agricultural problems there. The Missions, organized during the war to maximize Liberia's contribution to the struggle against the Axis, also set for themselves long range objectives. He stated that, "Liberia is a striking illustration of what can be done with technical assistance toward the development of economic and human resources. Liberia hasn't sat idly by expecting the U. S. to do the job, but has rapidly taken over the burden themselves." He stated that America's role has been to supply technicians where Liberia itself does not have an adequate number.

Henry B. Duncan, Secretary of Public Works and Utilities, Republic of Liberia, The Liberian Embassy, Washington, D. C., told about the founding of Liberia. In 1822, 80 American Negroes, sponsored by the American Colonization Society, set sail for Liberia. They had considerable difficulties in maintaining themselves during the period of most active European colonization.

"In 1847 those Negroes who had settled in Africa held a convention, drew up their Bill of Rights, their Constitution, and became a sovereign state." With no experience in government, "they took into their hands the responsibility of building a Negro State in Africa. They have not failed, or there would be no Republic of Liberia today. They have succeeded!

"Liberia, we believe, has for the Negroes of the world, a very great responsibility. We realize fully that if we fail, that not only we ourselves will have failed, but we will have turned back the clock of destiny for all Negro peoples."

The Institute, similar in organization to the well known Russian Institutes at Columbia and Harvard, will include experts in African history, economics, politics, religions and languages. It is the University's intention to create a center at which knowledge about Africa can be accumulated and organized. As such, it will provide training for young men interested in specializing in African studies, preparing them to do further research or to take active roles in Afro-American relations.

Reverend Weller Retires

The Reverend Sailsman W. Weller, '07, pastor of the Mt. Olive A. M. E. Zion Church in Waterbury, Connecticut, announced his retirement after 43 years of service. Mr. Weller came to Lincoln from Jamaica, British West Indies where he was born and educated. He received the S. T. B. degree from the Seminary in 1907. He then served in Michigan, California, and New England.

In addition to his religious work, Rev. Weller has been active in bringing civic reforms to Waterbury. He was instrumental in ending discrimination on the police force there.
CLEVELAND GROUP MEETS

On the evening of December 9, 1950, the Lincoln Men of Cleveland, Ohio, entertained President Horace Mann Bond at a Buffet at the residence of Attorney and Mrs. Luifboro L. Yancey at 867 Herrick Road. The “boys” swapped reminiscences of the old days in true Lincoln style and heard President Bond give an account of the present Fund Raising campaign and plans for Alumni assistance. They pledged the full support of all Lincoln Men in Cleveland.

Attorney Yancey holds the unusually important post of Secretary of the Cleveland City Planning Board. He is one of the nation's outstanding experts on the law of eminent domain.

HELP! HELP! HELP!

Will the Alumni help us to keep our records up to date? Will they reply whenever letters seeking information about their present activities and addresses are received?

On October 6, we mailed 388 letters of inquiry, including self-addressed, stamped postcards for reply, to graduates of the classes from 1945 to 1950.

Up to January 6, only 76 replies had been received.

We receive frequent complaints from Alumni about faulty addresses, failure to receive Bulletins, and the like. Not all of the fault is ours. Men move from one address to another without reporting the facts to us. Frequently they do not even answer our requests for accurate information.

Every college has a hard time keeping up with its graduates in the modern world, where addresses are likely to change frequently. Colleges for men have an especially difficult time in maintaining accurate Alumni address files, as men are much more mobile than women.

Alumni information is important for the college, and it can be important for the individual. One of the reasons prompting our recent inquiry to the men in the 1945-1950 classes was to help us in placing graduates in contact with employment possibilities that are frequently sent to us.

So please let us hear from you. You are all the sons of Alma Mater, and Alma Mater counts each of her sons as precious, and wishes to know where all of her children are.

Will you help us?
THE PHILADELPHIA FOUNDER'S DAY BANQUET

AT THE LINCOLN UNIVERSITY PRE-CENTENNIAL BANQUET IN CHICAGO

The gathering of Lincoln men at dinners preparatory to the Centennial in 1954 is a rapidly growing institution in communities all over the country. The theme of the 1950 celebration was "Lincoln University's Contribution to the Medical Sciences." The 1951 theme was "Lincoln University's Contribution to the Legal Profession and the Public Service." The 1952 theme will be "Education and the Social Good," and in 1953, "The Contribution of Lincoln University to the Ministry." In 1954, of course, will come the climactic celebration of our Centennial Year, when all of the threads of Lincoln's contribution will be woven together.

The Philadelphia Dinner: Under the energetic leadership of the Reverend Leonard George Carr, '33, D.D. (Hon.) '50, the Philadelphia Alumni sponsored the most successful dinner on record. One hundred and seventy-five guests gathered at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel on February 7. The program was stentimental with some of America's leading legal lights. Judge Herbert E. Millen, '10, presided with inimitable wit; there were remarks by Robert McCracken, Arthur Littleton, Jr.; Dr. Harold Scott, '25, President of the Lincoln University General Alumni Association; and Lewis M. Stevens, President, Lincoln University Board of Trustees.

The Honorable William H. Hastie, LL.D., '50 (Hon.), Judge of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, introduced the principal speaker, the Honorable J. Watkins Waring, Judge, U. S. District Court, Eastern District of South Carolina.

Judge Waring's eloquent address was a plea for "equality now." He pointed out the disservice to American ideals "gradualism" was doing in the current conflict of ideologies seeking a place in the hearts and minds of men over the world.

The Abraham Lincoln Awards of Lincoln University for 1951 were presented to Judge Waring and to Judge Millen.

The Reverend John Logan, '34, delivered the benediction. The Sponsoring Committee was composed of: James K. Baker, '41; Herbert B. Cain, Jr., '38; Robert J. Callaghan; Leslie Pinckney Hill, III, '20; Arthur Littleton; Robert T. McCracken; Herbert E. Millen, '10; Robert N. C. Nix, '21; Austin Norris, '12; Thomas M. Reed, '38; E. Washington Rhodes, '21; Owen J. Roberts, Walter Biddle Saul, Lewis M. Stevens, Arthur Thomas, and Carlyle M. Tucker.

The Chicago Dinner: The ever-loyal and imaginative Chicago Alumni labelled their dinner, held in the Blue Room of the Parkway Ballroom on February 28, as the Second Pre-Centennial Banquet of the Chicago Chapter.

Attorney Fred D. Roseboro, '13, presided. Bishop John W. Martin, '02, '05s, invoked the Divine blessing. Music was provided by Miss Etta V. Moten. Attorney Thomas Clark brought greetings from the Chicago Bar Association. R. Edras Turner, '27, gave a historical sketch of Lincoln's contribution to the Legal Profession and the Public Service. Attorney Marion R. Perry, '12, introduced as the principal speaker his classmate, the re-doubtable Austin V. Norris, '12, Member, Board of Tax Revision, City of Philadelphia, and Editor of the Philadelphia Edition of the Pittsburgh Courier.

Attorney Austin gave a brilliant speech on the merits of the Negro in the law and made a plea for greater use of the talents of the Negro lawyer by his Negro constituency.

Remarks were made by some of the distinguished guests present. The Benediction was given by the Reverend Augustus E. Bennett, '16, and the Alma Mater sung enthusiastically under the leadership of the fine voice of Louis E. Redmond, '23.

Sponsors for the Chicago Dinner were, the Lincoln Lawyers in Chicagoland: Jerry M. Brumfield, '25; Marion R. Perry, '12; Fred D. Roseboro, '13; George J. Harkness, '24; E. Edras Turner, '27; Clinton O. Sims, '40; from the general Alumni, E. D. Gully, '28, '06s, Henry Goss, '16, J. Leonard Clarke, '33; and three Chicago judges, H. C. Ferguson, Wendell E. Green, and Fred D. Slater.

The Reverend Everett A. Hewlett, '39, '41, invoked the Divine blessing. Greetings were brought from Lincoln University by James B. MacRae, '24, Dean of Students. Attorney Elbert C. Robinson, '39, introduced the speaker, who was The Honorable Paul L. Styles, a member of the National Labor Relations Board.

Mr. Styles urged his audience to interest more Negroes to take advantage of legal opportunities in the Federal Government. He urged, also, greater insistence upon constitutional rights and guarantees, pointing out that there was now a favorable Supreme Court to which issues might be brought.

It was interesting to note that two of the Lincoln Dinners featured two Southern-born National figures — Judge Waring and Mr. Styles — both of whom suggested that Negroes were not as active in pressing for their civil rights before the law as they might be!

Music was provided by the Lincoln University Quartette. The benediction was pronounced by the Reverend R. F. Fisher, '04.

The Sponsoring Committee included: Joseph C. Waddy, '39; Benjamin F. Amos, '34; Allen M. Avery, '32; Charles A. Booker, '00; E. Louis Ferrell, '38; James W. Geater, '24; Curtis P. Mitchell; H. Carl Moultrie, '36; Barrington D. Parker, '36; Elbert C. Robinson, '39; and Frank T. Wilson, '21.

The Atlanta Dinner: The Atlanta Dinner is best described in the words of F. H. Jenkins, '32:

"The Atlanta chapter of the Lincoln University Alumni Association again joined with the chapters across the nation and celebrated Founder's Day on last Monday night February 12th. Thirteen loyal sons of the Pennsylvania institution assembled in the Graham Jackson room of Frazier's Cafe and enjoyed a delicious dinner. As they ate the men talked casually of their experiences which had been gathered during their school days in Chester county. The main event of the evening was the Founder's Day address which was delivered by Rev. S. H. Giles, '23, instructor of religion at Morris Brown College. To the utter delight of his hearers, Rev. Giles gave a rather unique slant to the naming of Lincoln and sounded a ringing challenge to all Lincoln Alumni to uphold the name and standards of the school. At one time during his address Rev. Giles seemed to be completely lost in his subject and he stood in a chair, waving his arms as he drew certain lines from the Alma Mater of the school. Rev. Giles was introduced by Mr. Hubert Jackson, '43, president of the local chapter. Following the dramatic address, the men discussed certain items of business and adjourned with the singing of the Alma Mater. The next meeting will be on Monday night March 12th, at 886 Simpson Street, N.W."

The Boston Dinner: The Boston Chapter of the Lincoln Alumni Association observed Founder's Day by honoring Attorney John W. Schenck, '09, former assistant United States attorney and one of Lincoln's most distinguished graduates. The dinner, held at the Professional and Business Men's Club in Boston, was attended by a number of graduates including the following: Rev. Walter D. McClane, '03, Dr. Silas F. Taylor, '09, Earnest Slaughter, '35, and by such prominent Boston professional men as Jesse Plummer and George Charleston.
Lincoln’s Prospects for 1951-1952

The shadow of the “cold war” falls heavily across the future of the University, as it does across the prospects of many American colleges. There are some bright and hopeful gleams in the picture for Lincoln, however. In the faith that the Alumni can help and will help if they are informed, here are some of the prospects.

Enrollment: In general it is prophetied that the enrollment at colleges generally will fall from 20 per cent to 30 per cent next year. But as this estimate is based on a stationary female college enrollment, the prospects are for a decline in male enrollments of from 30 per cent to 75 per cent. For Lincoln, the prospect is for an enrollment as low as 150, with a maximum at the best of from 250 to 300. The University has applied for a unit of the ROTC, but the competition for such units is very severe with some 2500 colleges applying for less than 150 units. A number of Alumni have been active with their senatorial and congressional representatives in an effort to obtain such a unit for the University. Their helpfulness is greatly appreciated, whatever the outcome.

The Budget: Lincoln University is in a much more fortunate situation than a great many small colleges, because it is less dependent on student income than a great many private colleges. Yet a reduction in the enrollment of the amount probable will require a very drastic curtailment of many activities, and economies all along the line. Lincoln’s income from such sources as: Endowment; annual United Negro College Fund gifts; and state aid for scholarships, assures that it will not have to close, as may be the case with several hundred colleges under present prospects.

The Faculty: The necessity for reducing the faculty has been the cause of great concern at many colleges. The furor caused by the dismissal of a number of teachers at Rollins College, in Florida—including 19 with tenure—is only a spectacular example of what has been necessary at many other colleges. Lincoln will not have to dismiss any teacher with tenure, although much-needed salary increases may not be possible.

Bright Spots: There may be an increase in enrollment of Pennsylvania students, coupled with an increase in the State Appropriation. Since 1938, when Lincoln became a state-aided institution, the number of Pennsylvania students has risen steadily. The state appropriation has likewise risen, but not proportionately to the number of Pennsylvania students.

Governor John S. Fine has recommended an increase in Lincoln’s appropriation for the biennium, 1951-1953, of $106,000 over the previous appropriation. The record of state grants for the last ten years is as stated below:

Preliminary hearings before the Appropriations Committee have been favorable. Dr. Harvey Reynolds, ’23, appeared with President Bond and Dean MacRae before this Committee on April 16. The astonishing record of self-respecting self-support the contributions of Lincoln men represent makes an impressive appeal. Lincoln goes before the Pennsylvania Legislature, not as a beggar, but as a self-respecting institution that is giving the Commonwealth value received for any appropriations it may receive; and requesting a just and proper recompense for services rendered. It should be remembered that the State grant is limited to current maintenance, and that other funds must be sought for building purposes. A special progress report on the building fund will be mailed to all Lincoln men in the next few weeks.

What Lincoln men can do: They can help us with enrollment: particularly, Freshman enrollment. While there is utmost uncertainty as to what the draft situation will ultimately turn out to be, it now (April 18) seems that Freshmen can enter college in the Fall of 1951 and complete at least one, and probably two years, without serious prospect of being drafted. Help! Help!

NATIONAL LADIES AUXILIARY MEETS

The National Ladies Auxiliary of Lincoln University met in Mary Dod Brown Chapel for their annual homecoming meeting on October 28, 1950.

After an invocation by Mrs. M. C. Spann, the Chaplain, Miss Betty Cuff, Recording Secretary, read the minutes of the June meeting. Mrs. Richard Lockett gave the report of the Financial Secretary, and Mrs. Wyatt Johnson, the report of the Treasurer.

Committee reports were heard from the Committee on the Guest House, By-Laws, Membership and Scholarship.

The report by Mrs. Lockett, Financial Secretary, and Mrs. Florence H. Johnson, National Treasurer, showed a balance as of October 22, 1950, of $10,582.05 in the Guest House Fund.

From October 22, 1949 to October 22, 1950, a total amount of $1,409.25 was reported as collected by the Ladies Auxiliary. Of this amount, $970.00 was for the Guest House, $244.25 for dues, $32.00 for the Lincolnettes, $245.00 for scholarships, and $8.00 for books.

The checking account of the Ladies Auxiliary showed a balance on January 14, 1950, of $1,524.00. Receipts from January 14, to October 22, 1950, were $538.00. Expenditures during the same period were $39.52, leaving a balance in the checking account, as of October 22, 1950 of $1,747.48.
JULIUS CAESAR
The play was Julius Caesar. The costumes were African. The audience was enthusiastic.

In capsule form, there is the story of the Lincoln Players' production of Shakespeare's play, their first show of the year. The dates of performance coincided with the sponsorship of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority. The performance will take place in the Fleisher Auditorium of the Broad Street "Y."

R.O.T.C. UNIT SOUGHT
The University has applied for a unit of the Reserve Officer's Training Corps. President Bond has made several trips to Washington to confer with officials in the Defense and War Departments.

In November the institution received its first inspection, made by Colonel Hause of the University of Delaware R. O. T. C. A number of friends have interested themselves in getting a favorable action on the part of the War Department. Notably, among these has been Walker K. Jackson, the Lincoln stalwart of the class of 1909, and prominent in public life in Philadelphia.

Colonel Hause's inspection appeared satisfactory and we believe he made a favorable representation on our behalf. However, there are 3000 colleges and Universities in the United States, and even at the height of military activity during World War II, only 600 of these institutions had military or naval units of any kind. Practically all are now applying for units of this kind.

LOST TO ARMED SERVICES
The expansion of the armed forces began to take its toll this semester. Several students were inducted. Others chose to enlist in the air force or the navy rather than wait to be taken into the army.

James Young, instructor in Sociology, was called up with his air force reserve unit in November. Mr. Young was valedictorian of the class of '48.

Former student Edmund Kwamina Venderpuije, '52, now a staff-sergeant in the Army Air Corps, recently visited Lincoln. Sergeant Venderpuije has been at Valley Forge Hospital recovering from several wounds received when his bomber was shot down in Korea. He told his friends of his two-day struggle to reach American lines.

SEVEN SENIORS SELECTED
Seven students were accepted for this year's edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities, a publication which selects outstanding students at six hundred colleges and universities. Their selection is based upon scholarship, cooperation and leadership in academic and extra-curricular activities, citizenship and service to the University, and promise of future usefulness.

James Gibbs, an English major, is president of the senior class, captain of the Lincoln track team, associate editor of the Lincolnian, and a member of Kappa Alpha Psi. His home is in Philadelphia.

Leroy Giles, English major from Washington, D. C., is editor of both the Lion and the Lincolnian. He is a member of the Student Senate, the Lincoln Players, Phi Kappa Epsilon Honor Society, and Beta Sigma Tau.

Smith Haynes is president of the Student Senate. A political science major, he is a member of the Lincoln Players, the Delta Rho Forensic Society, and Omega Psi Phi.

Ernest Hill is vice-president of the Student Senate, a Lincoln Player, and a member of Alpha Phi Alpha. He is an English major.

Love Vine Freamon, political science major, is vice-president of the senior class, secretary of the Student Senate, a member of the Philosophy Club and the Glee Club. William Minter, psychology major, is president of the Philosophy Club, of Alpha Phi Alpha, and of Alpha Kappa Alpha Honorary Philosophical Fraternity. Minter, Freamon, Hill, and Haynes are all from New York.

John Jackson is from Athens, Pennsylvania. A psychology major, he is a member of Beta Sigma Tau and of Phi Kappa Epsilon Honor Society.

PROFESSOR GASKINS RECEIVES GRANT
Mr. Norman E. Gaskins, '34, in October was awarded a grant of $2,000 by the Board of Directors of the Research Corporation. The purpose of the grant was to help support Mr. Gaskins' research on "cleavage of cyclic alpha-diketone mono-oxide acetates."

Since 1937 Mr. Gaskins has been teaching at Lincoln University. He received his M.S. at the University of Pennsylvania in 1936, and has since completed most of the requirements for his Ph.D. at Pennsylvania.

Lincoln Bulletin
Additions Made to University Faculty

Donald Davies joined the Seminary faculty as Associate Professor of Biblical Literature and Interpretation. Dr. Davies has spent most of the last twenty years in missionary work in Ethiopia. Following his graduation from Wheaton College in 1951, he went to Ethiopia as an evangelical missionary. He remained for nearly five years. He then returned to the United States, received his master’s degree from the University of Minnesota, and then completed requirements for his doctorate.

He has taught at John Marshall College, Brooklyn College, and New York University. He was for one year assistant director at the Graduate Division of Public Service at New York University and simultaneously the research director of a Carnegie Research Project at that institution. He has also done research with the Institute of Labor Relations and Social Security at New York University. Mr. Landau received his education at Brooklyn College and New York University; at the latter he received his master’s degree and has completed requirements for his doctorate.

Sayre Schatz was appointed Lecturer in Economics to replace Dr. Joel Dirlam, who was given leave during the school year of 1950-51 in order to do research. Mr. Schatz came to Lincoln after teaching at Wayne University in Detroit. He did his undergraduate work at the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce, receiving his degree in 1946. He continued his study at the New School for Social Research in New York, completing work for a doctor’s degree there. In addition, he worked as a research associate with the Institute of World Affairs at the New School on a project studying underdeveloped areas.

William Greene was appointed Instructor in English. Mr. Greene received his education at the University of Chicago and at Columbia University. He studied for one year at the Russian Institute at Columbia University, before going on to graduate study in American and English literatures. In addition to teaching at Lincoln, Mr. Greene is also director of publicity and editor of the Alumni Bulletin.

Marcus Hairston was appointed Instructor in Biology. Mr. Hairston attended Livingston College, Salisbury, North Carolina. He majored there in Biology, and completed minors in both Chemistry and German. After having completed his studies at Livingston, he proceeded to Duquesne University in Pittsburgh, where he was graduated in 1950 with a Master of Science degree. At Duquesne his field of concentration was zoology.

After the school year began, two others joined the faculty. Dr. Leo Fishman took James Young’s classes in sociology when the latter’s Air Corps Reserve Unit was called up. Dr. Fishman was born and educated in Vienna, Austria. He has taught at Storer College, Harpers Ferry, West Virginia, and at Olivet College, Olivet, Michigan. Rev. Charles W. Eby, Lincoln class of 1948, replaced Dr. David Swift who left Lincoln in February to take a position as Director of Personnel for the American Friends Service Committee. Reverend Eby, who will teach religion, is minister of the Baptist Church in Oxford, Pennsylvania.

REUNIONS PLANNED

The Lincoln Campus is beautiful at Commencement time. Lincoln men in ever increasing numbers have been coming back to renew their souls by touching the soil which nourished their intellectual and spiritual growth. Beneath the light and shadow of the Avenue of Maples, by the Stone Walls, the “Old Grads” gather to relive in their reminiscences the halcyon days of yester-year.

It has been the custom to have reunions of the “ten” years, and the “five” year classes. We would be most happy to assist the men of the reunion classes, of the five and ten year periods, 1896 through 1946, to get in contact with their classmates. If any of you know the presidents and secretaries of your classes, please send their names to me at once.

President Horace M. Bond of Lincoln and Dr. Harold Scott, President of the Alumni Association, bid me send you their greetings. They hope that you will be present at Commencement.

Sincerely yours,

J. B. MACRAE, ’24

FOOTBALL

The 1950 edition of the Lincoln University gridsters finished the season with a 2–3–1 conference record. The team was much more impressive on the field than the record indicates, however.

The scoring punch of the first string backfield composed of Allen "Crazy Legs" Cave, Jolting Joe Harris, freshman star Tom Miller and veteran quarterback Bob Smith, was exhibited in the initial game of the season against St. Paul in Lawrenceville, Va. On a sodden muddy field, the Lions' aerial and ground attack clicked off four touchdowns, Cave scoring 3 and Harris 1. The final score was 25–0, halfback Harry Tunnell having booted the extra point.

Following this game, the Lions ran into the rampaging Morgan Bears and were defeated 49–14. Though Morgan went undefeated for the season, no other team scored more than 14 points against Coach Hurt's mighty juggernaut.

Moving further down the coastline, Lincoln invaded Virginia Union, where they were greeted with a 7–6 setback by the Panthers, who, in due course of the season, became known as the vengeful Panthers, winning every game thereafter. Freshman coach Harris is determined that Virginia Union shall no longer be the doormat for the CIAA. This game was really a heartbreaker for Lincoln to lose, as failure to convert and the loss of long runs due to penalties finally spelled defeat for the visiting eleven.

Back at Lincoln for their first home game, the Moonmen girded for the perennial tough battle with rugged Delaware State. And that it was. The Hornets had a touchdown nullified, and Lincoln had one intercepted for a touchback. Neither team could pound through for a score after that, and at the end of the long bitter

The Lincoln University soccer team foreshadowed the Lion gridsters' Thanksgiving Day victory over Howard when, on October 18, for the first time in the history of either soccer team, Lincoln defeated the Bisons 4–2.

This, by far, was the highlight of a very successful season, as the soccer team, coached by Mr. Soulliard, compiled a 5–2–1 record for the season. This year's opener against Bloomsburg State Teachers College on September 30, was won by Lincoln 2–1.

The Lions came up victorious the second time out, defeating King's College of Delaware 3–0; on October 14 they split with Wilkes College 2–2. They then came home to Lincoln to pull the greatest upset in Lincoln's annals of soccer by playing host to and defeating the rugged Howard aggregation. After bowing to Elizabethtown as a result of a last minute rally, the Lions clawed Ursinus for a 5–4 victory. On October 28, Elizabethtown again took the Lions to tow, 3–2; but Soulliard's charges rallied to win the game that closed the season, licking King's College again, 3–1.

Particularly magnificent was the speedy and flashy footwork of fresher center-forward Egbert McNell, who was the high scorer for the season, the offensive trickiness of Alozie, and the playing of Charles Lemuel, captain, and left-back Lowery.

Fellow Alumni:—

Lincoln University men have established an enviable record to date in rallying to the support of Alma Mater. This support has sometimes been financial, other times in duties performed without compensation.

In reflecting upon those men who continually fit this description, it occurs to me that all too often they are the same faithfule, who are always ready and anxious to serve.

Some of us shirk our responsibilities by hiding behind excuses such as: I don’t approve of the administration, or I don’t like the head of a certain department, or the coach didn’t use my son on the not-too-hot soccer team!

Obviously, these are hollow excuses. No one incident or one man, should ever prevent any of us from giving as deeply as possible to our University. Only through continual and generous giving of ourselves can Alma Mater realize the heights which we envision for her.

Are you doing your part?

HAROLD A. SCOTT, M.D.
President, General Alumni Association
Royal Welcome Extended Nkrumah

BY STATE DEPARTMENT, U.N., ALMA MATER, MAJOR CITIES

FEW VISITING DIGNITARIES were ever accorded higher diplomatic courtesies or a more cordial welcome than that extended to the Honorable Kwame Nkrumah, '39; '42 s, when he arrived in New York on June 3 for a week's visit in America, at the invitation of Lincoln University.

In fact, so many British and United States invitations, both formal and private, were presented to Nkrumah that his two-day visit to Canada and inspection of Tuskegee Institute, in Alabama, had to be cancelled.

The avalanche of greetings started as soon as the huge BOAC airliner that had flown him 7000 miles across the Atlantic from his native West Africa landed at the Idlewild Airfield.

Negro leaders, government officials, representatives of the University and Gold Coast students, who had awakened with the dawn were on hand to greet him. First to shake his hand was Dudley Smith of the Gold Coast Liaison Office in Washington. He was followed by Sir John Carr-Gregg of the British Information Service. Then came Daniel Chapman, acting chief, African Section of the Division of Non-Self Governing Territories of the United Nations.

Next was KwaMe Bredu Pabi, chairman of the United States Gold Coast Students' Association, and Clarence Holte, chairman of Lincoln's reception committee, J. B. MacRae, Dean of Students, represented President Bond, and was followed by William Mathieson, colonial affairs counsellor to the British United Nations delegation, who called on Nkrumah with the delegation's greetings.

After arriving at their Henry Hudson Hotel suite, Nkrumah and Kojo Botsio, his minister of education, were offered formal diplomatic greetings by H. A. Hobson, British Consul-General in New York who presented an invitation to them to have lunch with Sir Gladwyn Jebb, British delegate to the United Nations at the Empire State Building.

In Philadelphia, similar honors were extended Nkrumah and his party. Mayor Bernard Samuel made the city's official welcome to the visitors by turning over the symbolic key to the city. Then at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel at the Luncheon sponsored by the World Affairs Council and the Trustees of Lincoln, civic and government leaders turned out to pay tribute to him.

Most of the following day was spent at Lincoln where he ate breakfast with the faculty; met with the African students.

Nkrumah Mailed there; attended the Trustee’s Luncheon, then delivered the University’s 97th commencement address, after which he left for New York City again.

The day started with a meeting with Sir Gladwyn Jebb, British UN Ambassador, at the Empire State Building. Following that Dr. Nkrumah met with Mayor Vincent Impellitteri and received an official welcome to New York. They were then rushed to the British Information Office in Rockefeller Plaza to have an interview with twenty-five top reporters on colonial and African affairs.

At two o’clock, the party was driven to the United Nations at Flushing, N.Y. There Dr. Nkrumah observed a meeting of the Trusteeship Council and was shown about and introduced by Dr. Ralph Bunche. Then the party left to visit the United Nations Building in New York. There Dr. Nkrumah held a conference with Dr. Bunche, Daniel Chapman, acting chief, African section of the United Nations and Secretary General Trygve Lie. The next day his party traveled to Washington, D. C.

United States Protocol and Department officials met their train and were introduced by Kenneth Thompson, who asked Dr. Nkrumah and Mr. Botsio to be his guests during their visit in the nation’s capitol. With an escort of police motor-cyclists their cars whisked them across the capitol to a courtesy visit to the United States Assistant Secretary of State, Robert McGhee, who welcomed the Gold Coast Ministers.

During Visit

They then attended a State Department meeting with representatives of the various departments for exchange of information concerning the functions of their respective governments, and visited the U. S. Congress.

Several conferences with international experts as well as a formal reception and buffet dinner at the British Embassy, attended by representatives from Washington Embassies were held during the afternoon. Later Dr. Nkrumah's party visited Howard University for the commencement exercises and met with some of the many Gold Coast students there.

After two days in Washington, Dr. Nkrumah and his entourage were back in New York for the last day of their visit to the states. New York's Mayor Impellitteri honored the two Gold Coast leaders for a second time at a breakfast gathering at the invitation of the Gold Coast Students' Association and the Lincoln University Club of New York which was held at the International House. He later spent some time in meeting with Lincoln Alumni and a host of other friends in New York.

Before boarding the plane for London where further diplomatic courtesies were to be extended him, Dr. Nkrumah, who had been showered with telegrams from all sections of the country from classmates and friends, told scores of well-wishers that he was most encouraged by the magnificent reception given him in the U.S. and expressed sincere appreciation to everyone who had shown utmost sympathy to the special needs and problems of West Africans.

Mr. President, fellow alumni, present students, ladies and gentlemen:

I bring you greetings from the chiefs and people of the Gold Coast. The news of my invitation by this University was received with wide acclamation and the demonstration at the Accra Airport at the time of our departure was one that is better seen than described. The reception accorded us on our arrival both at the London Airport and here in the United States has been enthusiastic and friendly.

Worked Hard

Today, I appear again before my alma mater for her to do me the honour of conferring upon me an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. I set foot on this campus for the first time in 1935 as a poor and humble student from the Gold Coast. I, therefore, had to work my way up—an arduous task, as all of you know; but Lincoln University gave me every facility, and after my graduation I taught here to help liquidate the arrears of fees that had been accumulated.

The aim of this University, as is well known, is to give a sound liberal education and to inculcate the spirit of service of humanity. The privilege of sharing in this great purpose has been extended to others from distant lands, including myself and other students from the length and breadth of Africa as well as from the West Indies.

Looking back today and trying to trace my career and work, I can see no institution which has contributed more to my success so far than my alma mater, Lincoln University. The type of education and the training in discipline and leadership which this university affords are worthy of emulation everywhere.

After spending ten years here, from 1935 to 1945 studying at the Universities of Lincoln and Pennsylvania and lecturing at Lincoln, after working in shipyards and catering establishments and on ships to supplement my modest scholarship endowment by Lincoln, with no funds at all coming from home during my whole stay in this country, I proceeded to London in 1945 to do law. In the United States I had earned the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Sacred Theology from Lincoln University, and the degrees of Master of Arts and Master of Science from the University of Pennsylvania.

Accepts Political Bid

Hardly had I started on my law studies in London than I was invited by the newly formed United Gold Coast Convention, a political organization, to return to my native land and become their first General Secretary. I left my studies and the law fees I had paid to attend to this national call which struck a responsive cord in my heart. I left all that and went home to become (Continued on next page) the General Secretary of the United Gold Coast Convention.

Out of the United Gold Coast Convention emerged the Convention People's Party, the most dynamic political Party in the Gold Coast today, with a majority in both the newly elected Legislative Assembly and in the Executive Council. The Convention People's Party is thus, in essence running the Government of the Gold Coast today.

Co-Workers in the Struggle

I have many loyal and indefatigable compatriots who work with me in our liberation movement. They have toiled and suffered for the cause in a measure which it will take too long to relate here. Today, allow me to refer to only one of my co-workers.

The Honourable Kojo Botso who is here with me today has been with me all the time since I entered the arena of active practical politics.

Soon after my arrival in London, Mr. Botso, who was then doing post-graduate work at Oxford and I became firm friends. Together we started the West African National Secretariat at Gray's Inn Road in London.

Hard-Working Colleague

When I was invited by the United Gold Coast Convention to come home and become their General Secretary, Mr. Botso gave up the Wardenship of the West African Students Union and returned home with me by the same boat—at first to become the Vice-Principal of the Abuakwa State College. At home he spent everyday of his vacation and every week-end with me in political work.

In just over a year, he resigned the Vice-Principalship of Abuakwa State College in order to work full time with me. He became successively the General Secretary of my own first political organisation at home, namely, the Committee on Youth Organisation, and when the Convention People's Party was formed, he was elected its General Secretary without opposition. This post he held until he became the Minister of Education and Social Welfare in our present Government.

With Mr. Botso, I started that militant newspaper—the Accra Evening News. He was with me in prison as a result of our “Positive Action”—a General Strike—that we staged to support our demand for self-government.

For, as the motto of our paper goes, "We prefer self-government with danger to servitude in tranquility."

The struggle at home has been hard and arduous. It is through the force of organisation and by carefully worked-out strategy and tactics to meet the varying circumstances of our campaign and the economic, social and psychological dispositions of my people; it is through hard work, sleepless nights, long exhausting journeys over rough roads; it is through self-denial and courage in the face of imperialist oppression and suppression that we have been able to make our Party, the Convention People's Party, what it is, and brought about political stability to the Gold Coast and hope not only to our country but also to millions in the entire continent Africa.

Crusade Spreading

The liberation movement at home today is a crusade and spreading like a prairie fire. In the most remote villages, inaccessible even by means of bicycles, you come across illiterate folk as well as children who know of the Convention People's Party and who want self-government now. This is demonstrated eloquently by the resounding victory of my Party at the polls during the last General Elections.

The secret of the Party is indeed solid organisation, hard work, self-abnegation and singleness of purpose. Any stupid talk of Communist influence in our Party or in our country is only an example of the well-known architect imperialist tactics of giving a dog a bad name so as the more easily to hang him. But that has failed. Now, branches of the Party are even being established in other parts of West Africa and the party is hailed all over the continent.

The Convention People's Party is working on the democratic principles which underlie our own native institutions, and with a great sense of responsibility. Our movement is a crusade on which we have embarked with a true missionary zeal and fervour. After calling us names to discredit us before the eyes of the world, and no doubt before the American public in particular, our critics are beginning to see our sincerity and our great sense of responsibility.

Lincoln Graduates Largest Class in University’s History

Constituting the largest class ever graduated at Lincoln, a total of 111 men, four from the Seminary, were awarded degrees at the 97th Commencement Exercises held in the University’s gymnasium.

President Horace Mann Bond also conferred honorary degrees on six outstanding citizens during the ceremonies. They were:

Kwame Nkrumah, Leader of Government Business, Gold Coast, Africa, alumnus and commencement speaker, Doctor of Laws; Samuel G. Stevens, pastor of Bidwell Street Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, Pa., Doctor of Divinity; the late Dr. Albert C. Barnes, president of Barnes Foundation, Doctor of Science; William H. McConaghy, pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Syracuse, N. Y., Doctor of Divinity; Leo Marsh, president, Montclair NAACP, Doctor of Humanities; and Julian Waldo Ross, professor of Howard University, Doctor of Science.

Baseball Star Wins Alumni Award

The annual Alumni Awards were presented by Dr. Harold Scott, president of the Alumni Association, to Frank A. DeCosta of Orangeburg, S. C., dean of South Carolina State College graduate school; and Monford M. (Monte) Irvin, member of the New York Giants baseball team, who attended Lincoln.

The Alumni Association also presented a portrait of President Emeritus William Hallock Johnson to the University.

Seminary graduates were: Uzziah A. Hammonds, Newton, Ga; Archibald G. John, Sierra Leone, West Africa; Claude C. Kilgore, Cincinnati, O.; and Alfred L. Pugh, Pleasantville, N. J.

Nkrumah Pays Tribute To Lincoln

In the light of what has happened in recent years, no tribute is worth referring to more than that paid us by the British Secretary of State for the Colonies in a speech in London on the first of May this year. “The C.P.P.” said Mr. James Griffiths, Secretary of State for the Colonies, “are carrying in a most responsible manner, the heavy burden of office in the new Government, in which they hold six out of eight African seats.”

Another eloquent testimony is the press reports issued by British and American correspondents who visited our country to witness the conduct of our first General Elections and to see how we have handled very difficult matters of state since we assumed office.

The Convention People’s Party is not a Communist organisation as our detractors tried to paint us, but are now changing their minds. We are nationalists and we are opposed to any form of imperialism. As we have said time and again—our aim is full Dominion Status within the British Commonwealth. And we are working on democratic principles such as exist in Britain and America and in our own African way of life.

What we want is the right to govern or misgovern ourselves; for no country can hope to remedy her economic and social ills unless she is self-governing and has an effective say in the management of her affairs. Besides, no one, however poor or illiterate wants to be ruled by others. In this respect my party is therefore incumbent upon the Negro people of our country to witness the conduct of the Executive Council.

The Job to be Done

SELF-GOVERNMENT IS ONLY A MEANS TO AN END—the goal of economic and social upliftment for the people of the Gold Coast, which we ourselves call Ghana after the old African Empire that existed in West Africa from the thirteenth to the fifteenth century, when the Universities of Cordova in Spain and Timbuktu in West Africa and others in the Middle East exchanged learned scholars and professors.

Freedom for the Gold Coast is a test case for Africa and for the people of African descent all over the world. It is therefore incumbent upon the Negro-world, upon all lovers of democracy and liberty irrespective of race, colour, language or religion, and upon all those who are interested in African problems and in the peace of the world, to give every moral and physical support to the struggling millions of Ghana. We do not ask for charity. We seek goodwill, sympathy and cooperation.

The British public are now beginning to understand us. It is gratifying to note that the American public are also beginning to understand us and it is high time that they did so. I am sure that they will do their best to give us every assistance toward the attainment of our aspirations and the achievement of economic and social progress. What will America do to lend us a helping hand?

Education is the Key

Education is the key to all progress and I am glad it is in the able hands of the Honourable Kojo Botsio who is here with us today. We are planning to launch next year, for the first time in the history of our country, free primary education. We are also planning to inn-

DR. ALEXANDER HEADS STATE HEALTH COUNCIL

Dr. Walter G. Alexander, ’99, of Orange, N. J., was elected chairman of the New Jersey State Public Health Council for the next year at a recent meeting held at the office of the State Department of Health.

The nationally known physician was reappointed to a seven year term on the Council last May. He made political history when, as a member of the State Assembly, he served for a period as speaker.

Dr. Alexander has also been honored by the North Jersey Alumni of Lincoln for his outstanding work and devotion to his alma mater.

ALUMNUS, PROF. WIN FELLOWSHIP GRANTS

Therman B. O’Daniel, ’30, head of the English Department at Fort Valley State College, and Dr. John A. Davis, professor of Political Science at Lincoln, were recently awarded grants for additional study by the Faculty Fellowship Program Fund for the Advance-ment of Education.

The grant, which is made available by the Ford Foundation, can be used at any university of their choice during the 1951-52 school year.

A native of Wilson, N. C., Professor O’Daniel has done graduate work at Harvard, Chicago, and Pennsylvania Universities, and also at Pennsylvania State College.

Prior to his present position at Fort Valley, where he has been Acting Dean and Acting Registrar, he has served as Professor of English, Dean, and as Acting President of Allen University, Columbia, S.C. In 1939, Professor O’Daniel was President of the Allen-Benedict Summer School.

Dr. Davis, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate, and a member of Lincoln’s faculty since 1936, obtained his master’s degree from the University of Wisconsin and his doctorate at Columbia University. Last school year Dr. Davis was a Visitor Professor of Political Science at Ohio State University.

While on leave from the University during World War II, Dr. Davis served with the President’s Committee for Fair Employment Practice in Washington, D. C. as Director of Review and Analysis.

DR. MURRAY NAMED DEAN OF THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Appointment of Dr. Andrew E. Murray as Dean of Lincoln’s Theological Seminary was announced in July by President Horace Mann Bond. Dr. Murray, ’34, had been serving as Acting Dean since February and succeeded Dr. Jesse B. Barber as head of Lincoln’s 84-year-old Theology unit.

The new dean came to Lincoln in 1949 as associate professor of Church History. Prior to that he was pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Pottsville, Pa., where he was a leader in community movements including the Inter-racial Youth Council.

At Lincoln, he continued his youth work, serving as advisor to the Westminster Fellowship group in the Presbytery of Chester and heading a delegation to the National Assembly in 1950.

A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Colorado, he took his theological training at Princeton’s Seminary. He received his Doctor of Theology degree from Princeton in 1947.

The award was made for Dr. Bond’s address, “A Half Century for Heroes,” which was delivered at the 1950 commencement of the Tennessee A & I College at Nashville.

CALVIN H. RAULLERSON, ’43 was Project Director and Associate Editor for the new publication, “Who’s Who in the United Nations.” . . . FARRELL JONES, ’50, a recent visitor to the campus, was another Lincoln man on the editorial staff of the same publication and also “Who’s Who In Colored America.” . . . In Atlanta, a committee of citizens gave Dr. THOMAS H. SLATER, ’87, a testimonial banquet at the Tatnall St., YMCA last May . . . H. J. ERWIN, ’33, was among the five Negro physicians named Fellows of the American College of Physicians in St. Louis recently. With Lincoln graduates forming ten to fifteen percent of the Negro medical profession, it is gratifying to note that the portion of those achieving even higher rating is consistently larger.

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY WILLED $70,000 BY DR. J. W. BROWN

The will of the late Dr. John W. Brown, ’93, filed for probate in Washington, D. C., included a bequest of $70,000 to Lincoln University.

The bequest, President Bond stated, brought the total of gifts by Lincoln Alumni to the institution during the last five years to more than $470,000.

“This represents an astonishing record of loyalty and self-support for any small college, and particularly for one like Lincoln University, whose graduates have engaged principally in the ‘service’ professions of ministry, teaching and medicine,” Dr. Bond added.

Dr. Brown died November 3, after having practiced medicine in Pittsburgh, Pa. from 1896 until his retirement ten years ago. He had been a founder and president of the Pittsburgh National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and was a founder and member of the Board of Directors of the Coleman Home for Colored Boys.

RIVERO TO COACH LIONS FOR SEASON

Gridiron and basketball teams at Lincoln for the 1951-52 season will be directed by Manny Rivero—an old hand at guiding the destinies of Lion warriors.

Rivero, head of the Physical Education Department, will take over the coaching reins in the absence of head mentor Irving Mondschein who has been given a year’s leave of absence to coach the Israel Olympic teams.

While Rivero will make no predictions, those who followed the records of his teams during the 13 years he was head coach are certain he will produce the same high calibre, hard-hitting elevens and quints for which he is known.

It was under Rivero, in 1940, as all good Lincoln men will remember with a smile, that the Lion gridsters wallop-ed Howard, 63-0, the highest score ever recorded in the traditional Thanksgiving clash between the two rivals.

In 1943, his basketball team took the CAA championship, winning twelve straight conference games. That was the year of Bill Hunter, Jim Usury, Jim Law, Billy Hall and John Armstead. And in 1945, Lincoln captured the CAA title again with such stars as Charlie Chamberlain, Bill Hoeller, Rudy Johnson, Ralph Acco and Claude Johnson.
Nkrumah Seeks Personnel

crease many times over in our own country the facilities for secondary, technical and higher education. We are planning further to prosecute vigorously an adult education and a literacy campaign to banish ignorance and illiteracy from our country. In addition, we are seeking avenues for placing our students in universities, colleges and factories abroad to enable them to study science and technology and then to return home eventually to help carry out our development programme which is sorely overdue.

Development Plan

Our new development plan is not an over-ambitious one, for we want to complete a few basic projects within a reasonably short time to serve as stepping stones to others. In the absence of factories in which to produce many of the materials we so urgently need, and with a shortage of skilled artisans and technical experts, we cannot go far at present.

Our need of financial and technical aid, as well as of capital equipment, of teachers of science, technology and agriculture is great. We are therefore appealing to all who can, to come forward to join us in this great enterprise.

We have the resources; we have the cocoa, gold, diamonds, manganese, bauxite, timber, and many other natural products with which to meet our liabilities. In some of these resources we are among the foremost producing countries of the world.

Our immediate objectives in the development plan are the implementation of our educational projects, the construction of our own Tennessee Valley Authority, that is, the Volta Hydro-Electric Power Scheme, the establishment of a cement factory and of works for making pipes to carry water to our homes. The Volta Scheme and the Cement Factory are projects basic to our economy and we shall welcome any firms that can help us complete them in a reasonably short space of time.

Processing Plants

We need plants for the processing of our raw materials. And manufacturers who are interested in building branches of their establishments in the Gold Coast will be given every encourage-ment. Raw products at present exported unmanufactured from our country but which might be processed locally are: cocoa, coffee, coconuts, kola nuts, groundnuts, casava, palm kernels, rubber, timber and diamonds.

Raw products available for processing but at present exported are: fish, pineapples, citrus fruits and jute substitutes for flax and sack manufacture.

Semi-manufactured products which might be further processed locally are: lime juice, and in the future, aluminum ingots for the manufacture of aluminum articles.

Our Personnel Requirements

We are anxious to explore the possibilities of recruiting (mainly on a contract basis) from all sources especially that of American Universities and especially Negro personnel who would have an interest in making the new Gold Coast Government a success.

The main shortages of personnel in the Gold Coast at present and over the next few years, appear to be in the following categories: nurses, agricultural specialists, electrical engineers, civil engineers, radio engineers, inspectors of work quantity surveyors, education officers including teachers, school inspectors and extension agents, doctors, agricultural officers and architects.

There is also a need for specialists in the various West African Research Institutes concerned with problems relating to cocoa, fisheries, trypanosomiasis, health and medicine.

Liaison Planned

We are going to set up an agency here to help co-ordinate and facilitate what help we can have from this country. We are hoping to open a Gold Coast House in New York under the aegis of the British Embassy in Washington.

I hope voluntary agencies, "Friends of the Gold Coast," will be formed at such centres as Lincoln University, Tuskegee Institute, Hampton Institute and New York and other places to help promote the great cause we have embarked upon. These voluntary agencies can assist us to recruit the teachers and the technicians that we need, and to get the machinery and the technical aid and advice for our development programme.

To sum up. It has afforded me great pleasure to accept the kind invitation of the Trustees and President of Lincoln University to come over to this country and to receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Lincoln University, my alma mater.

Whilst in the country, I am taking the opportunity of cementing friendship between this great democracy and our new plan of evolving democracy of the Gold Coast. I hope to explore avenues whereby scientists and technicians and other trained personnel may be secured or trained in this country so as to get them to come to the Gold Coast to foster the social and economic development of our country and to raise the standard of living of our people in order that in due course our country too can take its rightful place among the peace and freedom loving nations of the earth.

I have been in the United States of America for the last three days and I have been overcome with the kindness and sympathy of the American peoples, a kindness which culminated yesterday in the presentation to me by the Mayor of Philadelphia of the keys of that great city. For this and numerous other gestures of goodwill, I am deeply grateful.

One last word and that is to those who are graduating here today. Within the last three or four years, you have enjoyed a comparatively secure life drinking deep of the Lincoln springs of knowledge and training; today, you go forth in your diverse ways—some to pursue still higher studies and others into employment. But wherever you are going, you do so as ambassadors of this great institution to bear witness to the work and conduct that Lincoln has been able to inculcate in you. You go forward as living monuments of this great institution. I am sure that you will walk in the footsteps of your predecessors to reflect more honour and glory on our alma mater.

With sincere affection, let us pay homage to John Miller Dickey, the founder of Lincoln University, and to the staff both past and present, for their noble work, as well as to the benefactors of this institution, who have made possible its continued existence.

I carry home with me a lively memory of this historic occasion which we have witnessed here today.

Mr. President, Fellow alumni, present students, ladies and gentlemen, I thank you,

ATTORNEY J. G. WOLFF
DONATES LIBRARY
A very generous gift has been made to Lincoln by James G. Wolff, assistant attorney general of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, who has sent to the University the first consignment of his library, consisting of about three hundred volumes. The total number of books to be sent will be about five hundred.

The collection includes standard works in American, English, French, Italian and Spanish literature, treatises on historical and biographical subjects which include many rare volumes.

With gratitude President Bond accepted the gift and said the books would be of immense value to the library here.

LINCOLN’S BUDGET
UP 300 PER CENT
The 1951-53 budget of Governor John S. Fine, presented to the Pennsylvania General Assembly last March included a request of $331,000 for Lincoln University, President Bond announced.

If the Governor’s recommendation is approved, it will mean the University’s appropriation has increased 300 per cent since 1945.

LINCOLN CITED AMONG 12 EDUCATIONAL "FIRSTS"

With educational institutions as its subjects, the American Book company in publishing its calendar for 1951 selected Lincoln as one of the 12 educational "firsts." The University was included since it was America's first Negro college.

Chartered in 1854 as Ashmun Institute, the school was opened for instruction in 1857. The first class was graduated in 1859; three of these graduates went immediately to Liberia as missionaries. The name of the college was officially changed to Lincoln University in 1866, one year after the assassination of the President.

LINCOLN MAN AWARDED HARVARD DOCTORATE

Collins J. Reynolds, '36, special instructor at Wayne University and teacher in the Detroit schools, was granted the degree of Doctor of Education at Harvard University last March.

Dr. Reynolds was granted a leave of absence to study at Harvard on a Fellowship by the American Council on Education. He is one of the authors of the book "Intergroup Relations in Teaching Material," upon which is based the Public Affairs pamphlet "Prejudice in Textbooks."

He obtained his Master of Arts degree at Columbia University in 1940.

Lincoln's Decathlon Champion

After leading the field for the first eight Decathlon tests at the 26th annual Kansas Relays, Lincoln's big Jim Cooke was nosed out of the championship by 32 points by Herb Falkenburg of Trinity University, San Antonio, Texas.

First Lion athlete to bring glory to his Alma Mater in a decathlon, Cooke amassed a total of 6487 points on the rain-soaked track. He led the field of ten entries the first day by winning the 100 meter dash and broad jump, placing second in the shot put and high jump, and fourth in the 400 meter dash.

In addition to starring in track, Cooke, whose home is in Peekskill, N. Y., is an All-CIAA basketball center, and a Lion candidate for All-American end.

GOOD AT THEM ALL—Husky Jim Cooke who placed second in the Decathlon at the Kansas Relays demonstrates form that enabled him to bring glory to Lincoln. Upper shot shows him in high jump, at right he gets off javelin toss.

Detroit Alumni Becomes Action Unit; Scholarships Among Many Projects

The Detroit Alumni, under the leadership of its president, Rev. William H. Molbon, have come to vigorous life and have a number of projects either underway or planned.

The Motor City group has already established a scholarship. This went to Reuben L. Lyons, of Inkster, Mich. Lyons, a freshman, who made end on the football team and rang up one of the five touchdowns against Delaware State. He is a promising scholar as well as an athlete.

Lincoln Men Urged To Take Advantage Of New Job, Scholarship Opportunities

An increasing number of good positions, many never held before by Negroes, are being made available and Lincoln men who might wish a change from their present jobs are urged to keep in touch with the University.

Recently, President Bond sent out notices calling attention of Lincoln men to the following job opportunities:

1. Business Manager, University of Liberia, Monrovia. Salary: $5,000 and housing. For further information, write Dr. Bond or Ambassador Edward Dudley, American Embassy, Monrovia, Liberia, West Africa.

3. Openings in the Department of State, through the Division of Libraries and Institutes of the Office of Education Exchange, throughout 30 cultural centers in other American Republics.

4. Opening with the Economic Cooperation Administration, Office of Personnel, 915 Connecticut Ave., Washington, D. C.

If you are interested in changing your job, write a card occasionally to the Public Relations Office at Lincoln stating the kind of position for which you might be available.
WHITE STUDENTS AID FIGHT AGAINST BIAS
By Millicent Taylor

(Ed. Note.—Millicent Taylor is education editor of The Christian Science Monitor. The following digest of an article in that newspaper is reprinted by permission of the Monitor.)

There has been much in the newspapers about Negro students entering certain colleges and graduate schools in the southern United States, and the progress in overcoming racial discrimination which is thereby being made. But it is not generally known nor publicized that more and more white students have been entering Negro colleges and graduate schools and are studying and living there on equal and harmonious terms with the Negro students.

In an illuminating article in Ebony, we are told that a record number of more than 250 will attend a half-dozen Negro schools this autumn. Furthermore, in the history of some of the institutions, this is nothing new. Howard University has had white students ever since it was founded with four of them its first two entrants. Lincoln University in Oxford, Pa., has had a white student in almost every graduating class since 1878, and has graduated 115 white students altogether.

Some of the white students in Negro colleges this year are there because of particular interest in studying minority problems; others because they want courses under certain distinguished professors; still others because they are exchange students or because it seems the only way they can get higher education. In the deep South where segregation is State law, white students have not always been able to attend the schools openly, but most get around the situation through arranging for private teaching or some such means.

John Paynter's Bequest Comes To Lincoln University

Johnny Paynter's bequest has come to Lincoln. It arrived in three trunks and five cartons. Johnny Paynter, with loving care, had directed in his will that there be given to Lincoln University:

"Third. My library, pictures, souvenirs and curios, I give and bequeath absolutely to my Alma Mater, Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, as the gracious source of an incentive and equipment for a not unworthy venture in the fickle realm of literature."

The books, the papers,—the photographic albums, the diaries; the five canes, including the light Malacca stick; the snapshots collected by a sea-faring man in a hundred foreign ports, from Malta to Foochow; the Tacitus he had read, at Lincoln, sixty-five years before his death; these were the tokens of a long, full, and valuable life; they were, also, the visible evidences of love for an institution that this literary man redeemed through giving it what had been most precious to him, during a long life.

Those of us of a later generation would never have dared call this amiable old gentleman "Johnny". We saw him,—his stick, his Vandyke beard, his cigar with the Meerschaum holder—at Commencements, with a distant awe as at the sight of a spirit from the ancient Valhalla of old Lincoln Men, returned to cast a benign blessing on the less gracious inheritors of the Great Tradition.

But he was "Johnny" to his schoolmates, and he was "Johnny" to a loving mother. He was born at New Castle, Delaware, early in 1862; and in a Bible (one of the books in his collection) belonging to his grandmother, there was folded a letter dated June 9th, 1863, addressed from Washington, D. C.

Reading that letter, one can catch a glimpse of life in a distant generation; and of human nature not too different from our own. From it one would never imagine that the city in which this mother lived with her infant son, was in throes of the greatest crisis in the history of the Nation; that across the Potomac, Lee's grey-clad armies were already in full march to the North-west, and that Joe Hooker, soon to be displaced by General Meade because of the bloody defeat at Chancellorsville, had stripped the defences of the Union capital to send the blue-clad hosts on the march; into Pennsylvania to the three-day holocaust at Gettysburg, July 1-3, 1863.

Lincoln's world-shaking Emancipation Proclamation had been in effect for six months; Grant's armies were treading the "grapes of wrath" in the encirclement of Vicksburg; but no hint of wartime turmoil from the feverish capital appears in this mother's letter.

This is the letter:

My Dear Mother In Law: Washington, June 9, 1863

It is with pleasure I embrace a few moments to write to you. I was very sorry you did not get over according to promise before I left, but am pleased to hear that you have been over since and hope you will do so as often as you can make it convenient. My Dear Mother, I have had a great deal of trouble & grief since I have been here on account of Johnny's having the small pox but I am pleased to inform you that he has gotten bravely over it though he is somewhat disfigured. He is running all around from morning till night feeding

Lincoln Men Named to Important Municipal Positions in Phila.

The recent elections in Philadelphia which upset the long-time Republican control of the Quaker City has resulted in three major appointments already for Lincoln men and many more, according to informed sources, are in the offing.

Lincoln men, as usual, were represented on both sides of the campaign. The Rev. Leonard G. Carr, '33d, pastor of Vine Memorial Baptist Church, was in charge of the Republican campaign of Dr. Daniel Poling for mayor and the Rev. E. Luther Cunningham '33sd, held the same position on the Democratic side.

The most important post ever held by a Negro citizen of Philadelphia—from the standpoint of its effect upon the rights and well-being of minorities—went to Rev. Cunningham who was named to a two year term as Civil Service Commission chairman by Mayor Joseph S. Clark.

Another Lincoln representative in the municipal government is Lewis M. Stevens, president of the University's Board of Trustees and prominent Philadelphia attorney, who was elected a councilman-at-large.

Under the new city charter, the three member Civil Service Commission will be responsible for observance of a democratic policy by the various city departments. It will hear and act on complaints of and against employees. Indirectly, it is in charge of the city's 24,000 employees.

Pastor of St. Paul Baptist Church and an extremely active leader in civic affairs, Rev. Cunningham was highly recommended for the Commission. He has been closely associated with both Mayor Clark and the new District Attorney and it is known that he would have had a cabinet post. It is said, however, that he preferred the Commission because it gave him a greater opportunity for service.

Rev. Cunningham took his master's degree at the University of Pennsylvania and Lincoln has bestowed an honorary D.D. on him.

The clergyman has a distinguished record of public service and is a member of the board of a dozen institutions and organizations.

Reed and Nichols are young lawyers with excellent records and it is predicted that they will do a fine job in their new positions. Reed received his law degree from Temple; Nichols finished Howard Law School and is now working on his LLM at Penn.

the little chickens & looking at the big chickens & pigs & he is so tired & sleepy when night comes that he is no more trouble. He says a good many little words such as go, don't, its, foot, versus, & thinks there is not one like his Grand Pap & calls him as far as he can see him, dad, dad, & if he just hears his voice it is enough without seeing him & his Grand Pap thinks he is splendid. I sent him to Church last Sabbath evening with the Children and they say he had much preaching to do as he minister & everything else until he got sleepy & went to sleep. He had a nice little hat made a present to him & a pair of shanghai boots.

My Dear Mother I don't expect to have my party before the middle of this month so I will not be able to get home before the last of July if Johnny had not been here so long before I came & I felt too anxious about him I would not be here quite so soon. The folks generally think I look very well. I expect to attend the funeral of Miss Martha Eddy Schiller today she has been sick some time, the folks say that I may as well stay down here until next winter as it is likely my Husband will be down with Mr. Bayard family but I expect to be home as soon as I am able to come afterwards. Johnny joins me in love to you and the rest of the family, and inquiring friends, also mother & Emily send a great deal of love to you and would be very glad to have you come on before I return. I shall expect an answer soon. Please give James a great deal of love & kisses for Johnny & I if you see him shortly.

I am, yours affectionately, Katie Paynter

In his brief biography in the Alumni Directory, we learn this about John H. Paynter, of the Lincoln University class of 1883:

Born, New Castle, Delaware, 1862; Honorary D. H. L., 1943; Married, Minnie Pillow; three sons, Verden, A. Sweet, William Cary; Author of "Joining the Navy or Abroad with Uncle Sam," "The Fugitives of the Pearl," "Fifty Years After," "Horse and Buggy Days with Uncle Warden," St. Luke's Protestant Episcopal Church.

In the letter quoted above, there speaks a volume. This — and Lincoln —made his life and literary achievements — and the quality of loving generosity that suffused his life and made Lincoln University the final beneficiary of the possessions most valuable to him in life. He was the heir to an ancient line of free and literate Negroes. His father was a trusted employee of Senator Bayard of Delaware.

And his mother! A simple woman; an intelligent, loving mother; a mother more concerned with little Johnny's illness, and his pleasure with the "little & big chickens" — than with the great guns roaring across the river from her doorstep, and the streets of the feverish city crowded with the sound of marching men en route to desperate battle, and the loud debates on War and Freedom raging under the high dome of the Capitol, probably not a stone throw from where Katie Paynter wrote.

Civil Wars, and World Wars — iron-clads and atom bombs: but the love of a mother for a child, and the love of a man for his Alma Mater, go on.

Hail and farewell, Johnny Paynter, class of 1883!
Lincoln Conducts Successful Series of Panels, Lectures Via Airwaves

That notable Lincoln University institution, "The Bull Session", was transferred from the campus to the air in a series of thirteen Sunday morning broadcasts over Philadelphia's WIP which began Oct. 7 and ran until Dec. 30.

During this same period, Lincoln was also represented on television in a series of weekly educational programs over WFIL-TV. For the telecasts, Dr. Andrew Murray, dean of the Seminary, and Dr. Donald M. Davies, appeared on alternate weeks to lecture for 30 minutes on "How We Got Our English Bible". Then Dr. Philip Miller took over to lecture on "Ancient Books and Libraries."

Well Received

The broadcasts, a series of roundtable discussions on topics of national interest, were conceived by President Bond and Murray Arnold, WIP program director, as a public service program. Both the broadcasts and telecasts were well-received.

Another radio series is planned to start in March. No other school in the section, and probably not in the entire country, has been so represented on two such important media twice weekly.

The three-man radio panels were composed of board members, faculty members, alumni and students with Sam Serota, special events director of the station, serving as moderator. The 15-minute programs entitled "Lincoln University on the Air" were transcribed during the week and broadcast Sundays at 9:30 a.m.

In an effort to make the discussion as informal as possible, no scripts were provided, the participants being briefed prior to the transcription as to the type of questions the moderator would probably pose.

College Obligations Discussed

The series was inaugurated with Lewis M. Stevens, president of the Board; Dr. Horace Mann Bond, Lincoln president; and Dr. Harold Scott, president of Lincoln's General Alumni Association, as panel members. They discussed the obligation of a college to the student and the community at large, bringing in the aims and functions of Lincoln.

Topics, participants and nutshell findings of the other panels were as follows:

"American Aid to Underdeveloped Nations": Dr. E. Luther Cunningham, pastor of St. Paul Baptist Church, Phila.; Sayre F. Schatz, Lincoln faculty; Donald Stocks, senior. Findings—should be restricted to industrial and agricultural rehabilitation programs "that would make the nations self-sustaining and not U. S. colonies."

"Taxes and Public Service": E. Washington Rhodes, publisher, Philadelphia Tribune; Thomas M. Reed, Philadelphia attorney; Milton Crook, Jr., Lincoln faculty. Findings: Government personnel selected on basis of political "pull" rather than competence has resulted in inefficient service, waste of money and increased taxes.

"War and Military Training": Lt. Col. Elmer Gibson, assistant Post Chaplain, Fort Dix, N. J.; Dr. Walter Fales, Lincoln faculty; and James A. Scott, student. Findings: War is unnecessary, but inevitable unless men and nations hold to agreements to settle problems at the council table.

Improvements for Minorities

"How Thankful Should We Be?" (Thanksgiving Program): Judge Herbert E. Millen, of Philadelphia; Rev. James H. Brown, Lincoln faculty; and James E. Jones, Seminary student. Findings: Worthy improvements in human relations and hope for more rapid progress in this direction.

"Social Obligations": Dr. Harold F. Grim, Lincoln faculty; William Paul, biology teacher at Camden (N.J.) High School; Walter T. Webb, Lincoln student. Findings: Progress of our coun-

LINCOLN OFFERS ENGINEERING DEGREE IN COOPERATION WITH LAFAYETTE COLLEGE

Students entering Lincoln University may now earn both an A.B. degree from Lincoln and an engineering degree from Lafayette College, in a five year combination course of study. There are six students enrolled under this plan.

Under the cooperative plan, students enter Lincoln and remain for three years, completing the foundation courses in Mathematics, Physics, Chemistry, and a well-rounded liberal arts program.

At the end of the three-year period at Lincoln, the students transfer to Lafayette College at Easton, Pa., where they complete the more technical courses of an engineering program in two additional years, receiving at the completion of the full five-year program both the A.B. degree and a Bachelor's degree in Civil, Mechanical, Chemical, Geological, Metallurgical, Administrative, Mining, or Electrical Engineering.

Lincoln University, like Lafayette College, is a member of the Presbyterian College Union, and cooperating colleges include Hastings College of Nebraska; the College of Idaho; Hanover College of Indiana; Centre College of Kentucky; Westminster College in Missouri; Lewis and Clark College in Oregon; Macalester College in Minnesota; Lake Forest College in Illinois; and Waynesburg College in Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA HIGH PUPILS ALUMNI GAME GUEST

A busload of Philadelphia high school pupils were among the Lincoln University rooters when the Lion gridders battled the Morgan State College Bears in a thrill-packed game on Rendell Field.

The youngsters, traveling in a gaily-streamered “Lincoln University Special” bus, were the guests of two members of the alumni, E. Washington Rhodes, ’21, publisher of the Philadelphia Tribune, and Dr. Nationell Duff, ’19, who sponsored the trip in cooperation with the University.

In addition to the game, the visitors ate lunch in the dining hall, were introduced to school officials and were taken on a conducted tour of the campus. It did not take them long to get the “old Lincoln spirit.” Before the game was three minutes old, they were cheering as loudly as any regular Lincoln rooter.

N. J. CITY LEADERS HONOR DR. C. M. JONES FOR SERVICE

The top citizens of Bayonne, N. J., and nearby communities turned out in force recently to pay tribute to Dr. Clement M. Jones, 30 for his leadership and work in civic and charitable movements.

The occasion was a dinner dance at Lido's Restaurant sponsored by the Bayonne Lions Club in honor of Dr. Jones, immediate past president of the group. Justice Francis E. Rivers of New York City Court was the principal speaker.

First Negro in this area to head a major service organization and recipient of the Distinguished Service Citation from the Bayonne Lodge of B'nai B'rith, the guest of honor was lauded by the Mayor and other city officials for his unselfish public service. He was presented a handsome leather traveling bag.

Bolsters Faith in Democracy Judge Rivers told the guests: “Your election of C. M. as president makes me feel (that) . . . if America handles this problem of minorities right, democracy can be a vibrant thing. "And your organization has done much to further the cause of justice. The Lions Club, with its degree of camaraderie is certainly a melting pot for the races here. You have geniality which is not an artificial thing and you can be sure that it contributes much to the advancement of democracy.”

DR. JONES

Dr. Jones’ numerous affiliations include the advisory board of the Bayonne Police Athletic League and the board of directors of the Bayonne Community Chest. He is president of the board of the Bayonne Youth Center.

He received his medical degree from Howard and did post-graduate study in surgery at the New York Post Graduate School and the Cook School of Medicine in Chicago. He was named a fellow of the American College of Surgeons and a diplomat of the National Board of Medical Examiners in 1946.

SENATE DIRECTS COMMISSION TO REPORT ON BUILDING NEEDS

Physical expansion of Lincoln University through State aid may be in the offing. It depends to a large extent on the findings of the Joint Stat Commission which will make a study of Lincoln’s plant.

The Commission’s study was authorized through a resolution introduced in the State Senate Israel Stiefel (D) of Philadelphia. The Commission was directed to report its findings and recommendations for financial aid to the next regular session of the General Assembly.

Similar studies will be made of the General Assembly.

Similar studies will be made of Temple, Penn and the University of Pittsburgh.

Stiefel was joined in sponsorship of the Lincoln resolution by Senators A. Evans Kephart (R) and Maxwell S. Rosenfeld (D), Philadelphia; George B. Scarlett (R), Chester County; and Samuel G. Neff (D) Beaver and Lawrence Counties.

Pointing out that the “reputation of Lincoln University for scholarship attainments, quality of teaching and contributions to communal leadership has been acknowledged universally”, the resolution suggested that physical enlargement should include a new dining hall, new dormitories, new classroom building and enlargement of the present library building.

The complete resolution follows:

WHEREAS, Lincoln University the oldest institution in the world established to provide a higher education for young Negroes, is facing on the threshold of its centennial milestone of magnificent service, multi-faceted problems of physical expansion, and

WHEREAS, the location of Lincoln University in the proximity of the Philadelphia Metropolitan area, makes this community-expanding Seat of Learning readily accessible to a large segment of Pennsylvania's citizenry, and

WHEREAS, the reputation of Lincoln University for scholarship attainments and contributions to communal leadership has been acknowledged universally, and

WHEREAS, the expansion problems of Lincoln University, located in the heart of rural Chester County, are not in the realm of land acquisition, so characteristic of Pennsylvania's great urban Seats of Learning, but require a solution mainly through building construction such as the seventeen-story Lido's Dining Hall, addition of wing to Science Building, enlargement of present Library, replacement alteration and new construction of dormitory facilities and enlargement of physical education facilities, and

WHEREAS, the solution of the expansion problems of Lincoln University through an adequate construction program, will make this honored 98-year old institution more serviceable to Pennsylvania, and

WHEREAS, the citizens of Pennsylvania has thus a vital interest in the success of such program, NOW THEREFORE BE IT

RESOLVED that the Joint State Government Commission be authorized and directed and is hereby authorized and directed to make a study of the problems connected with the physical expansion of Lincoln University, reporting and making recommendations to the General Assembly at its next regular session as the Commission may deem with such legislation that may be required for the implementation of said recommendations.

NEWSPAPER LAUDS WORK OF DR. BOYD IN TENN.

When Morristown Normal and Industrial College celebrated its seventieth anniversary recently, the Sunday Gazette and Mail of Morristown, Tenn., devoted most of its editorial column to a glowing tribute to Dr. Miller W. Boyd '21, president of the school for the past seven years.

"Few men in the county equal the high regard in which Dr. Boyd is held in this his home city, "the Gazette editorial declared, pointing out that since his administration the school "has become recognized as one of the outstanding junior colleges in the nation."

Dr. Boyd's work has been widely recognized in the field of education. At Lincoln, he maintained a group 1 average for four years. In 1945, Lincoln conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Pedagogy. He was elected president of the Methodists Presidents of Junior College after serving two years as vice president.

This, the Gazette pointed out, was "a signal honor in view of the fact that he is the only Negro member of the group and many of the members live in the South."

A graduate of Morristown as well as Lincoln and valedictorian at both schools, Dr. Boyd received his master's degree from Western Reserve.

When Dr. Boyd took over, the school's budget was $34,000; it is now $172,000. The enrollment has tripled; the school has been rated an A class institution; the buildings and grounds have undergone a transformation; a number of trades have been established; and a Home Economics Building has been opened.

Active also in church circles, Dr. Boyd has been a Lay Delegate to the Methodist General Conference five times. He has served as teacher and counselor in a number of white institutions and the Holston Conference, a white conference, has become one of the main supporters of the college as a result of Dr. Boyd's work there.

$10,000 ALUMNI BEQUEST RECEIVED BY UNIVERSITY

A check for $10,000 representing a bequest from the late Dr. John Thomas Stanford, Philadelphia physician and alumnus, has been received by Lincoln University, President Bond announced. Dr. Stanford, member of the class of 1891, died in Philadelphia on Oct. 30, 1938. His will named Lincoln as the principal beneficiary, but wording of parts of the document made it subject to legal ruling.

In a recent adjudication, the estate was divided between Lincoln and 12 nephews and nieces with the university receiving one half and the heirs sharing equally in the other half.

The gift brought the total of bequests from Lincoln alumni to $360,000.00 in the past five years.

WHITE STUDENTS AID FIGHT

White graduates of Negro colleges have been distinguished alumni. One became an Oak Ridge atomic scientist. One has been a registrar at Princeton. Another was selected in 1944 as America's outstanding rural minister. (These are all Lincoln men. In order referred to, they are: Gerald Kielhobs, '35; Charles H. Jones, '36; and Rev. George H. Shea, '31—Ed.)

Dr. Walter L. Wright, Jr., who left Lincoln in 1920, was later president of Robert College in Istanbul.

White students at Negro universities are doing a very real piece of work toward breaking down racial discrimination. Many people feel that it is in the schools, particularly in the colleges and graduate schools, that the most effective steps ahead in winning the battle on the home front will be taken.

Some Negro educators on the other hand are troubled at the increase of white applicants in Negro colleges. They feel that every white student who gets in is taking away from some Negro the opportunity to go to that school, and that there are too few opportunities for Negroes anyway.

There is something refreshing about the sincere way in which the students themselves are tackling the question (of segregation). Young people are pioneers. College students enjoy one another throughout the world. We can look to them for leadership in overcoming many outworn traditions and prejudices. This less-known evidence of progress in healing racial inharmony should be interesting to watch.

BROADWAY STAR — Ruby Dee who played lead role in recent campus production of the romantic comedy, "John Loves Mary," directed by Abraham Hill, '37, who is in charge of the University's Little Theatre Workshop.

Broadway Star Aids Lincoln Players Score Campus Hit

With lovely Broadway star Ruby Dee as one of the principals, the Lincoln University Players scored a smash hit in a campus production of the romantic comedy, "John Loves Mary," directed by Abraham Hill, '37, who is in charge of the University's Little Theatre Workshop.

The cast turned in such a fine performance that several alumni and civic groups have made requests and a projected tour is under consideration.

Under the supervision of Hill, widely-known playwright and director, the tempo of dramatics at Lincoln is expected to be stepped up considerably.

In addition to Miss Dee, who played in the original Broadway production of the comedy by Norma Krasna, other ladies in the cast included Mrs. Louise Hill, wife of J. Newton Hill, '20, Dean of the College, and Gloria Daniels, of West Chester.

Male members included Lloyd Higgs, who played the lead, Arthur Scott, David Robinson, Raymond Waters, Rufus Thomas, and Howard Williams, all students; and Dr. Myron Towns, professor of chemistry.

The career of Hill, who founded and directed the famed American Negro Theatre from 1940 to 1948, was influenced by his work with Dean Hill, chairman of the English Department, while a student at Lincoln. It was due in great measure to the pioneering work done some years ago by Dean Hill that the "Little Theatre Movement" in Negro colleges gained considerable impetus.

Abraham Hill is now rewriting a play, as yet untitled, and readying it for early casting and production on Broadway.

SEMINARY STUDENT BACK AFTER 22-YEAR ABSENCE

Among the enrollees at the Seminary this year is a former student who returned to complete the work he started twenty-three years ago.

"I am determined to earn my diploma," Henry Sweet, of Chicago, told Dean Andrew Murray; "I have never given up hope of finishing."

Sweet, who was graduated from the University in 1924, attended the Seminary in 1928 and 1929.

PHILADELPHIA BULLETIN FEATURES LINCOLN

Practically an entire page in a recent issue of the Philadelphia Sunday Bulletin—one of the world's great newspapers—was devoted to a feature story on Lincoln.

Under an eight-column head, the story, written by Thomas E. Lewis, traced the history of Lincoln as the world's first institution of higher learning for Negroes, pointing out its traditions, its contributions and the distinguished record of its graduates.

LINCOLN REPRESENTED AT SHAW INAUGURATION

At the inauguration of William Russel Strassner, as the sixth president of Shaw University at Raleigh, N. C. on November 16, 1951, Lincoln University was represented by Dr. W. Edward Farrison, class of ‘26, Professor of English at North Carolina College, Durham.

Lincoln University had other alumni in the inauguration. Francis L. Atkins, class of ‘20, president of Winston-Salem Teachers College, represented that institution. Cecil D. Halliburton, ‘23, President of the Voorhees School and Junior College, represented Voorhees. The North Carolina Teachers Association was represented by A. H. Anderson, ‘23, its president, D. O. S. Bullock, ‘03, a Raleigh minister, represented the Baptists of North Carolina and America, and was a member of the inaugural committee.

LINCOLN EXPANDS ART INSTRUCTION

Opportunities for development of art by Lincoln students have been expanded this year.

During the past year, Lincoln maintained a cooperative arrangement with the Barnes Foundation at Merion, Pa., by which a selected group of students were admitted to the course of instruction at the world-famed institution. This arrangement is still in effect. Lincoln University is the only university enjoying this priceless privilege.

In addition, the University is now encouraging creative activities in art on the campus under the direction of Francis McCarthey, one of the most promising students at the Barnes Foundation and now director of similar activities at the Friends Settlement House in Philadelphia.

PRESIDENT BOND’S SPEECHES

DRAW EDITORS’ COMMENT

Two speeches by Dr. Bond—one stressing the importance of the U. S. appointing Negroes to high diplomatic positions and the other urging more interest in the affairs of Africa—elicited favorable editorial comment from Texas newspapers.

In a lead editorial headed “Negroes As Counter-Propaganda?”, the Dallas Express said:

“Dr. Horace Mann Bond, president of Lincoln University . . . was the principal speaker when the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers met at Dover, Delaware, not so long ago. According to news account, Dr. Bond asked the nation to capitalize on the role that the Negro can play in counteracting Iron Curtain propaganda inspired by Russia to prove the U. S. insincere in its relations with colored people of the world. The reporter added that Dr. Bond feels that brown faces in high places abroad would assist this effort.

“This is an excellent idea, if only those who control American actions could sense its value and go all out to making it a reality. Instead of always being on the defensive with regard to its treatment of 15,000,000 American Negro citizens, Dr. Bond suggests that America take the offensive by positive and voluntary actions to make untrue the Russian propaganda BEFORE it is fed to the hundreds of millions of colored peoples throughout the world.

“If, as Dr. Bond suggests, some American Negroes should be appointed to high places, including ambassadorships, in the foreign service, including such places in nations of colored peoples, this would be a concrete and living answer to the Red propaganda to the country.

“But Negroes cannot become this kind of wholesome counter-propaganda if they must always be cast in the role of fighting in the courts and elsewhere for the most elemental of the rights which go to other Americans as a matter of course and right.”

Said the Houston Informer:

“Dr. Horace Mann Bond . . . was the summer school commencement speaker at Texas Southern University not so long ago and a news report quoted him as telling the graduates: ‘It will be good for you and your children to know more about the people of Africa.’ He also told them that the Africans are a ‘great people of whom you need not be ashamed.’

Eleven new teachers have been added to the faculty of Lincoln University. Five are teaching new courses and two are replacements for regular faculty members on leave of absence.

Teaching the new courses are Paul Moses and William Wixom, of the Barnes Foundation; Francis McCarthy, and Dwight W. Morrow, Jr.

Wixom and Moses instruct Lincoln students at the Barnes Foundation, Merion, in the special cooperative arrangement between Lincoln and the Foundation. Both men are graduates of Haverford College and have completed work of the Foundation. Moses, in 1948-49, won a travelling fellowship in Art for study in France and Italy.

McCarthy, promising young Philadelphia artist, who has also studied at Barnes Foundation, teaches a class in painting in connection with the University's enlarged program of art studies. Morrow, who holds degrees from Harvard and Columbia, teaches new courses in History.

Dr. Samuel G. Stevens, former pastor of Bidwell St. Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, was appointed Associate Professor of Practical Theology. A graduate of Lincoln and the University Seminary, Dr. Stevens holds masters' degrees in theology from Union and Western Reserve and a doctorate from Chicago Lutheran Seminary.

The two replacements are Milton P. Crook, Jr., with both a master's and undergraduate degrees from the University of California, who takes the place of Dr. John A. Davis on leave to study on a Ford Foundation Fellowship; and Dr. Clarence W. Day, Visiting Professor in Religion. Dr. Day served for many years at the Hangchow University in China.

Other new appointees are Kenneth Snead, A.B., Lincoln and M.S., Catholic University, instructor in Biology; James Frankowsky, M.A. and B.S., New York University, instructor in Mathematics; and Samuel Bradley, A.B., State Teachers College at Morehead, Ky., M.A., University of Washington, instructor in English.

WINTER 1951-52

WHOA HOPPENED!

Dr. G. W. Carver, "Peanut Wizard" Wanted to be a Lincoln Student

Pennsylvania's observance of Jan. 5 as George Washington Carver Day found a historic echo at Lincoln when it was noted that the man who later became the famed "wizard" of Southern chemical agriculture was an applicant for admission to the university.

Carver's letter of application to Lincoln was dated Dec. 28, 1883, when he was only 19 years old. For some unknown reason—probably because Lincoln at that time encouraged only those men to enter who had committed themselves to preach—Carver did not matriculate and, in fact, did not attend college until seven years later when he was admitted to Simpson College in Iowa.

In his letter of application addressed to Rev. E. Webb, still in the files at Lincoln, young Carver wrote:

"Dear Sir:

"Your letter was handed to me the other day from Rev. Dickey. I am rather sorry to hear that circumstances is like they are. However at your request I will state my case as clearly as I can.

"I am an orphan boy, poor, who desires to get an education. Rev. Dickey thinks it will be better for me to take a theological and collegiate course together if I can, I would be greatly please. In regard to being a minister I don't think I am called for that. But my desire is to be a teacher in the Southern States. I mean teaching, holding prayer meetings, class meeting, etc. I might feel more like going into the ministry afterwards but that is my feeling at this time.

"If I thought the Lord had called me to preach I would be perfectly willing. My object in wanting a room (to my self) is this, I can board, wash, and everything cheaper than I could otherwise. I am willing to do anything to accomplished my object. Please answer as soon as you can and let me know what can bee done and oblige.

"Your humble servant,

Geo. W. Carver"

NEW BROADCAST SERIES SET FOR MARCH OVER WIP

So successful was the "Lincoln University On the Air" program that a new series will be started over WIP, in Philadelphia, on Sunday March 2 and run until May 25, a total of thirteen weeks.

Time of the Sunday broadcasts has not yet been set by the station. The program format will follow that of the first series, with the exception that on Palm and Easter Sundays the Lincoln Glee Club will sing.

Hampton Institute before his period of government service. Married to the former Harriet Greene, of Delroy Beach, Fla., they have two children, Betty Jo, 13, and Patricia Ray, 11.
Howard Win Caps Sparkling Year For Lincoln Gridsters

It was a great football season for Lincoln. Sparked by their brilliant captain, Bob Smith, and under the skilful tutelage of Coach Manuel Rivero, the Lions won six of their eight games for one of the best records in many years.

Climax of the season, of course, was the decisive, 13-0, victory over Howard in the annual Thanksgiving Day classic played at Temple Stadium in Philadelphia. Sportswriters in the press box were impressed by the brand of ball played by both teams.

Coach Rivero's determined charges marched 58 yards for the first touchdown in the second quarter and then picked up another on the last play of the game when Halfback Bobby Thompson deflected a Howard end zone pass into the arms of Charlie Stockton, Lincoln tackle.

Deciding factor of the game was the kicking of Smith, triple-threat quarterback, whose booming punts—one of which went 85 yards—kept Howard in the hole most of the afternoon.

Success Marks Rivero's Return
And so Rivero's return to coaching was a big success. With only a handful of lettermen to work with—and one of them, Co-Captain Jim Cooke, called into the army after the first game—Rivero fused his freshmen candidates into a team of hard-hitting gridsters that surprised not only the opposition but Lincoln rooters as well.

Off to a good start, Lincoln opened the season by pounding Moravian College into the dust, 20-0, on the Greyhounds' home field in Bethlehem, Pa. Then came the highly-touted Morgan State College Bears who were played to a standstill by the stubborn Lincoln team but managed to eke out a 7-2 win.

Making a strong comeback, the Lions rolled over Va. Union, 25-14, to the delight of homecomers, and then went on to take Delaware State apart, 34-0. The Union game was highlighted by the flashy performance of Jonas Cowles, fleet-footed halfback, who electrified the "old grads" with two spectacular touch-down jaunts of 65 and 60 yards. Smith added to the excitement by intercepting a pass and galloping 45 yards.

Cowles, who was elected co-captain with Elmer Simms for next year, also weaved 54 yards through the Delaware team after intercepting a pass.

"Made up over the loss, the Lincoln gridders took it out on hapless St. Paul the next week trimming the Tigers, 40-0, even though four first-stringers sat out the game.

At Viking stadium in East Orange, N. J., the Lions turned back a fighting Upsala College eleven, 20-12, then got ready for the 46th annual clash with their traditional foe from Washington, D. C.

This 1951 edition of the Lions showed fine coordination and functioned well as a unit. The backs, of course, made most of the headlines, but the linemen dealt themselves in on the scoring glory, too. An unusual fact was that two tackles, Joe Greene and Jim Bell, and two guards, Charlie Stockton and Garfield Whittington, tallied 20 points between them. The 157 points Lincoln made during the season tells the story of the offensive power, but better yet is the defensive record of 40 points or an average of only five points a game.

"It is a good thing and an encouraging thing for such a leader as Dr. Bond, who is practicing integration in his own institution, to be pointing out to Negro youth that pride in things Negro and pride in our African ancestry are not inconsistent with our struggle for full and first-class citizenship. There is a school of Negro leadership of considerable influence which would have Negroes try to get away from and be ashamed of all things Negro."

WORKS OF FACULTY MEMBERS PUBLISHED

Three members of the Lincoln University faculty are authors of recent books and articles on important subjects.

Dr. John A Davis, professor of political science, now on leave on a Ford Foundation Fellowship, is the author of "Regional Organization of the Social Security Administration," a book just released by the Columbia University Press which has already been mentioned by reviewers as a classic study of governmental organization.

Dr. Walter A. Fales, professor of philosophy, who is also president of the Fullerton Club—the association of philosophers of the Philadelphia area—is the editor of the volume, "Collected Letters of Johann Pestalozzi," published by the Fussli Press of Zurich, Switzerland.

The volume, just released, is the 4th in a series of published letters of the great Swiss educator. Dr. Fales is also the editor of the mammoth work of German scholarship, "Monumentum Pestalozzi," a 26 volume collection of the writings of Pestalozzi published in Switzerland.

Dr. Horace Mann Bond, president of Lincoln, is co-author, with Morton Puner, of an article appearing in the November 20 issue of Nation Magazine, entitled "Jim Crow in Education."

The article reviews recent progress in obtaining educational equality in the South, and describes the persistence of discrimination in northern states through residential segregation, illegal separate schools in many small Northern communities, and the quota system by which minority groups are restricted in professional and graduate schools.

ALUMNI DEATHS

Dr. ALBERT BRYAN McCoy, '01, A.B., '04, A.M., formerly a member of the Board of Trustees, Secretary of the Unity of Work With Colored People of the Board of National Missions, Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., at Atlanta . . . Dr. CHARLES E. TUCKER, '92, '95s, at Charlotte, N. C. . . . Father ELLIOTT DURANT, '17s, pastor of the St. Ambrose Episcopal Church in New York City, at New York.
LINCOLN CAGE TEAM HEADED FOR ANOTHER BIG SEASON

With a squad dominated by freshmen, the Lincoln University basketball team has held its own, so far this season, and Coach Manuel Rivero expects the boys to improve with experience.

Only Bob Smith, captain for the second consecutive year, was left over from the great starting five of last season, but the team has been coming along and should be in fine form by the time of the CIAA tournament.

So far, the Lions have whipped Delaware State (twice), Morgan and Howard in conference tangles, while dropping decisions to North Carolina and Va. Union. Two losses to the strong Fort Meade quint, loaded with flashy cagers—including a former all-American—gives the Lincoln five, a 4-4 record to date.

As he has for the past two seasons, Smith is leading in the scoring department. In the first Delaware State game, the eagle-eyed forward tallied 36 points although he watched half the game from the bench.

As usual, Lincoln has scheduled a number of interracial games, including contests with Lebanon Valley, Moravian, Elizabethtown, Rider and Kings. Among the freshmen who show promise are Karlos LaSane, Atlantic City; Ted Ellis, Norristown, Pa.; Harold Smith, Washington, D. C. and Thatcher Nanse of San Francisco. A consistent clutch player has been Jonas Cowles, junior from Yonkers, N. Y.

Lincoln’s remaining schedule follows:

FEB. 1 Rider College, Away
2 Elizabethtown College, Away
6 Johnson C. Smith, Home
9 Va. Union, Home
10 Lebanon Valley, Away
11 Moravian, Away
13 Morgan, Home
14 Elizabethtown College, Home
16 Shaw, Home
19 Winston-Salem, Home
20 Kings College, Home
22 Howard University, D. C., Home
25 Shaw, Away
27 North Carolina, Away

IRVIN’S STELLAR PLAYING REWARDED BY N. Y. GIANTS

Monte Irvin, 43b, Lincoln’s gift to major league baseball, will receive the nice, round sum of $25,000 from the New York Giants in 1952, according to reports, an increase of 100 percent over his 1951 pay.

The slugging outfielder, whose clutch-hitting played a big part in the Giants winning the National League pennant, had himself a very happy season.

In his second year in the majors, Monte hit .312, bombed 24 home runs and led the league in RBIs with 121.

During the World Series, Irvin took over the headlines with a near-record 11 hits that had opposing pitchers jittery every time he stepped to the plate. In addition, he stole home, a feat he accomplished five times during the regular season.

Irvin, an excellent athlete at Lincoln, lives in Patterson, N. J. and during the off-season works as a beer salesman and an instructor at a baseball academy.

LION CAPTAIN QUOTED IN N. Y. TIMES SURVEY

In an extensive survey of the opinion of the football captains of 68 colleges, as reported in the New York Times recently, Captain Robert E. (Bob) Smith of Lincoln University rated an extensive quote.

The captains voted 4 to 1 for two-platoon football.

Smith was quoted as follows: “We are in a unique position here to see how the two-platoon system has given more men the chance to play and, in turn, how this has given us a better and more healthy squad interrelation.

The success of the team this year, our first with any emphasis on two platoons, depended greatly on the institution of the system. We used a line of spirited freshmen on offense and a veteran group on defense, which made for an interchange of inspiration. We have learned the distinct value of building good and useful cooperative men.”

THANK YOU, ALUMNI!

At a recent meeting of college presidents, Lincoln University became the object of envy when it was reported that our 1951 Fall enrollment had decreased by 17% as compared to the Fall of 1950.

The male undergraduate enrollment in the nation has decreased by as much as 25%, and in many institutions the male enrollment of the undergraduate schools has decreased even more.

Lincoln University, therefore, is fortunate; and much of its good fortune must be credited to its loyal Alumni.

They have sent us students from Michigan, from California, from Florida, from North Carolina, from Massachusetts.

Thank you, Alumni! Thank you very much, indeed: and in thanking you, may we ask that you keep it up!

LINCOLN’S REFORM PROPOSAL SIDETRACKED BY CIAA PARLEY

A five-point proposal by the faculty of Lincoln University, aimed at eliminating the abuses stemming from intercollegiate athletics, was side-tracked at the annual meeting of the 16-member Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association (CIAA) in Washington, D. C.

The Lincoln program of reform, presented by J. B. MacRae, dean of students and Head Coach Manuel Rivero called for:

1. Strict enforcement of the CIAA’s constitution and by-laws which prohibits proselyting in any form either by the member schools or alumni directly or indirectly.

2. Placing general supervision of intercollegiate athletics under a faculty committee with a majority of members not connected with athletics or the department of physical education.

3. Including in the eligibility lists a cumulative record of each athlete’s academic record and a detailed record of his academic progress during the preceding semester of residence.

4. Prohibiting of post-season games.

5. Reducing the present requirement of six conference football games and 12 basketball games to four and eight in order to relieve the smaller schools from financial and other burdens of extensive schedules.

Only the first point in the proposal was sent to the floor by the Committee on Recommendations. The conference appointed a committee to study and make a report next year on the recommendation for policing of proselyting violations.

STILL TIME TO HELP HONOR LINCOLN U. GRID SQUAD

A good number of the alumni have chipped in to help purchase gold footballs for the Lion football team. The fund is still short of the total needed to finance the project. Any overage will go towards purchase of a movie camera to help the coaching staff spot mistakes during the games.

Dean J. Newton Hill, '20, speaks at Lincoln University Founder's Day Dinner sponsored by Chicago alumni in Parkway Blue Room. Others shown at head table, from left, are: Dr. R. S. Van DeWoestyne, M. Soreson, Louis E. Redmond, '23, chapter proxy; Dr. Henry Goss '16, regional director of Centennial Drive. Charles R. Sautter, '16, '19s; Rev; Herbert Jones, '39s, and J. Leonard Clarke, '28.

FORM OF REQUEST
To the trustees of The Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $ . . . . . . . . . to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.

MONTY IRVIN HONORED

LINCOLN MEN LEADERS AT LANGUAGE PARLEY

At the 12th annual Conference of the College Language Association, held at Stowe Teachers College, St. Louis, Missouri, April 25-26, Lincoln University was extremely well represented.

The principal speaker at the banquet session was Dr. W. Edward Farrison, '26, Professor of English at the North Carolina College, at Durham. Howard M. Jason, '29, Professor of English at the Kentucky State College, was a speaker in the Romance Language Section, his paper having the title "El Negro Nenel Refranes". Dr. Alfred Farrell, '34, Professor of English at Lincoln University, Missouri, presided at the second session of the English Section.

The speaker at the luncheon session was Professor Melvin B. Tolson, '23, Professor of English at the Langston University in Oklahoma, his subject being "The Challenge of a New Literature".

Editor of the Bulletin of the College Language Association is Thurmond B. O'Daniel, Chairman of the Department of English at the Fort Valley State College in Georgia. Professor O'Daniel, '30, is currently studying at Harvard University in his favorite field of Herman Melville, under a Ford Foundation Grant.

50 ALUMNI NOW STUDYING MEDICINE, FOUR ABROAD

A report from the Association of American Medical Colleges shows that 50 graduates of Lincoln are now enrolled in 11 medical schools—44 in eight American institutions, two in Canada and four in Europe.

In this country, according to the report, Lincoln men are now studying at Hahnemann in Philadelphia; Columbia University; University of Illinois Medical College; State University of New York Medical School; Syracuse University and Western Reserve.

In Canada, Lincoln grads are at the McGill and Toronto Universities; and in Europe at the University of Brussels in Belgium and the University of Berne in Switzerland.

The report also shows that, scholastically, the Lincoln graduates compare well with their classmates from other undergraduate schools. The proportion of Lincoln men falling in the upper third, middle third and lower third of their classes is almost exactly the same as that of all medical school students.
NEW GRADUATE FELLOWSHIP AWARDED ARCHIE R. YOUNG

First recipient of the fellowship established by the Rohm & Haas Co., Philadelphia Chemical Manufacturers, to assist recent Lincoln graduates pursue graduate studies is Archie R. Young, Jr., valedictorian of the class of '49.

Now a chemistry instructor at Virginia Union University, Young plans to use the $2200 grant to work on his Ph.D. at the University of Pennsylvania. President Bond said a second fellowship will be awarded to one of the June graduates.

A native of Camden, N.J., Young, who is 23, graduated magna cum laude from Lincoln and received his masters degree in chemistry from Penn in June, 1950. He was an instructor in chemistry at Fort Valley State College in 1950-51 and attended Columbia University in the summer of '51.

The fellowship is his third educational grant. He won a $500 Coca-Cola scholarship in 1946, and a $500 Johnson Foundation Scholarship in 1949. He is a member of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity and Beta Kappa Chi Honorary Scientific Society. While at Lincoln he was a member of the baseball team, the Yearbook staff and the Science Club and was named Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

NETWORK SHOW HAILS LINCOLN PRESIDENT

President Bond was saluted on "The Halls of Ivy" program broadcast over the NBC network in March. The series, originating in Hollywood and dealing with college life, co-stars Ronald Colman and his wife.

ALUMNI DONORS—

JOHN BROWN’S HUMANITARIAN SPIRIT A FAMILY TRADITION

JOHN WILLIAM BROWN, '93—"... I give, devise and bequeath unto the trustees of Lincoln University, Chester County, Pennsylvania, the sum of Seventy Thousand Dollars ($70,000.00) . . ."

On June 6, 1893, 27 young men received the degree of Bachelor of Arts from Lincoln University. According to the custom of the times, the leading scholars of the class were also the Commencement orators.

Of the first nine men in the class in academic rank, only one, Byron S. Johnson, became a minister; to him was assigned the Scientific Oration. James S. Lanier, of North Carolina—now the oldest member of the Winston-Salem Bar—delivered the Psychological Oration. Two of the nine became teachers; William H. Burnett, in Texas, and William R. Williams, a professor at Howard University. Five became physicians; Benjamin B. Jeffers, Thomas Coleman, George E. Cannon, Fannin S. Belcher, and John William Brown.

John William Brown was assigned the historical Oration. It was a strangely appropriate designation. For John W. Brown came from a family ancient in the history of America,—and, with his brothers and sisters, was to make one of the noblest chapters in American History during his long life—and in his final will and testament.

John William Brown was born at Winchester, Virginia, on April 27, 1870, the son of C. C. Brown and Maria Fairfax. At his death, on November 5, 1950, he left two specific bequests; the one of $70,000 to Lincoln University, and another of $30,000 . . . the income from said fund shall be used for the care and maintenance of the colored cemetery located at Winchester, Virginia, and known as the Orrick Cemetery, and the adjoining cemetery given to the colored people by Lord Fairfax . . ."

The name borne by Maria Fairfax was that of Thomas, 6th Baron of Fairfax, proprietor of six million acres by royal grant in the Northern Neck of Virginia. Educated at Oxford, Lord Fairfax was one of the collaborators of Addison in the writing of the Spectator. He came to America first in 1739, at the age of 47; returned to England in 1740, and finally settled in the Northern Neck in 1746, at his house, Greenway Court, in Frederic county, where he lived until his death in 1782.

He lived . . . in the style of a gentleman farmer . . . He kept many servants, white and black; several hunters; a plentiful but plain table, entirely in the English fashion; and his mansion was the mansion of hospitality . . . He was free from the selfish passions and liberal almost to excess . . . to the poor planters and settlers in his neighborhood . . . he frequently advanced money, to enable them to go on with their improvements . . . He was a friend and a father to all who held and lived under him . . . Early in life he had formed an attachment to a young lady of quality; and matters had proceeded so far, as to induce him to provide carriages, clothes, servants and other necessary appendages for such an occasion. Unfortunately, or rather let me say, fortunately, before the contract was sealed, a more advantageous or dazzling offer was made to the lady . . . and she preferred the higher honour of being a duchess to the inferior station of a baronesse.

"... This disappointment is thought to have made a deep impression upon Lord Fairfax's mind; . . . in determining him to retire from the world, and to settle in the wild and at that time almost uninhabited forests of North America. It is thought also to have excited in him a general dislike of the sex: in whose company, unless he was particularly acquainted with the parties, it is said

Maryland Citizens Honor Dr. Colbert For Long Distinguished Service

Senator, Governor Among Leaders Who Pay Tribute

In one of the finest testimonials ever held in Baltimore, Dr. John T. Colbert, '01, '04s, pastor of Grace Presbyterian Church for 35 years, was honored by citizens from all walks of life for his distinguished religious and civic leadership.

With typical modesty, Dr. Colbert, a Lincoln trustee, told the audience packed into Bethel AME Church to pay him homage: "If I have made any success in Baltimore, it has been because of my devoted wife."

Principal speaker was Dr. Horace Mann Bond, Lincoln president, who described the honoree as a "great physician of the soul" and representative of the type of citizen Lincoln strives to produce.

Broke Precedents

Dr. Colbert, among many other things, was the first colored moderator of the Baltimore Presbytery, the first Negro clergyman admitted to the Baltimore Ministerial Alliance and the first to become a member of the Council of Religious Education of Maryland and Delaware.

Presentation to him included a $1000 purse from a Citizens Committee; a certificate from Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin proclaiming him "an outstanding Marylander and distinguished citizen"; and a book of testimonials from a cross-section of Baltimorians.

Among the speakers who paid tribute to Dr. Colbert were: U.S. Senator Herbert R. O'Connor; Vice Mayor Arthur Price; Carl Murphy, president of the Afro-American Newspapers; Neil Swanson, executive editor of the Sun Papers; Dr. Martin Jenkins and Dr. Dwight Holmes, president and president-emeritus of Morgan State College; and Rev. Hiram Smith, president of the Inter-denominational Alliance.

SPECIAL TO CLASS OF '28: BUT GOOD IDEA FOR ALL

Robert S. Taylor, '28 has that good "Lincoln spirit" and demonstrates it by asking the editor of the Bulletin to advise all members of the class that they and members of their family are invited to stay at his home without charge whenever they are in Washington, D.C.

Taylor, who lives at 609 Harvard St., N.W., says he feels this is one way he can show his loyalty to his school and his classmates. The Bulletin will be happy to publish any other such swell invitations.

MARYLAND CITIZENS HONOR DR. COLBERT

THURGOOD MARSHALL

MAGAZINE CITIS MARSHALL AS TOP CRUSADER, RELAXER

Thurgood Marshall, '29, special counsel for the NAACP, whose name is practically synonymous with civil rights, was praised as the sort of man who walks with kings but refuses to lose the common touch, recently, in Colliers Magazine.

A long, rather revealing profile by James Poling, entitled "Thurgood Marshall and the 14th Amendment", pictured the famed attorney as one who has dedicated himself to fighting racial discrimination but despite this serious objective manages to remain lighthearted and carefree, "wearing life like a very loose garment".

Marshall, a cum laude graduate of Lincoln University and magna cum laude graduate of Howard University Law School, took over his NAACP position in 1938. His brilliant legal prosecution of civil rights cases before the highest courts in the land, the Colliers article points out, has resulted in "far reaching, highly significant verdicts against segregation in education, housing, transportation and at the polls".

His extraordinary record before the Supreme Court: ten victories out of twelve cases he personally argued and ten favorable verdicts out of eleven others before the tribunal in which he served as a consultant.

But Marshall, who has had a number of hairbreadth escapes from harm, only makes like a legal beagle when he is in the courtroom. He likes to talk to the man on the street in the latter's language, the article stated, and he "is so sentimental that he sends Christmas cards to dogs with whom he is acquainted."

DR. LANIER REPRESENTS LINCOLN AT IMPORTANT SEMINARY INAUGURATION

Perhaps the most dramatic and historical feature of the recent inauguration of Duke Kimbrough McCall as seventh president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, on March 11, 1952, was the presence of Dr. Marshall B. Lanier, Lincoln University, '92, as representative of Lincoln University and of Simmons University which he heads.

Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky., has, for years, accepted Negro students, but their study has been conducted in a "left-handed" sort of way. The inauguration of Dr. McCall marks forthright admission by Southern Baptists of their intention to accept Negro students, both at the great Louisville Seminary, and at their Seminaries located in New Orleans and in Texas.

The venerable Dr. Lanier has been a leader of the Negro denomination for many years, and since the Louisville Municipal College has been absorbed by the University of Louisville, Simmons University has taken on new vigor as an independent private institution catering largely to the part-time education of ministers in Kentucky.

In the 57 years during which Dr. Lanier has been associated with the work of Kentucky Baptists, he has seen the wheel of race relations make a complete turn. When he began his Kentucky work in 1895, Berea College not only admitted Negroes but also had Negroes in the faculty and student body. The Kentucky Day Law of 1904, upheld in 1907 by the United States Supreme Court, excluded Negroes from Berea and led to the strengthening of institutions like Simmons University, Eckstein-Norton, and Lincoln Institute.

The Louisville Municipal College was created in 1927, to provide a separate institution for Negro higher education at tax-expense; and the old Simmons University plant was taken over by the city. In 1930 the Courts ruled the Day Law unconstitutional and Negroes were admitted to the University of Kentucky, and subsequently the Louisville Municipal College was closed and merged with the University of Louisville.

Dr. Lanier writes:

"It was a grand occasion. Institutions were represented from every section of our great country, the North, the East and the West, and by the great and oldest institutions of the United States, of which Lincoln University, founded in 1854, was honored."

Lincoln Bulletin
FACULTY URGES CHANGE IN POLICY OF WESTERN POWERS

Faculty members of Lincoln University expressed sharp disagreement, recently, with representatives of Great Britain and Belgium who held that the Western powers are performing a beneficial service to their colonies and should retain them.

The clash of opinion came during a panel discussion at Lincoln, sponsored by the Social Science Club, on the question: "Do Western Powers Need Colonies?"

William A. C. Mathieson, colonial advisor of the United Kingdom in the U.N., and Dr. Jan-Albert Goris, Commissioner of the Belgium Information Center in New York, argued that the Western powers were performing an uplifting function for the colonies, shouldering a financial and political burden.

This was challenged by Sayre P. Schatz, economics instructor, who declared that the Western powers received the best of the bargain in cheap labor, imports, raw materials and dollar currency.

Milton P. Crook, political science teacher, wanted to know why—if the Western powers were as benevolent as pictured—the colonies have been refused the self-government they desire. On the same point, Dr. Horace Mann Bond, Lincoln president, questioned the old argument that colonial peoples needed as long a period to achieve political maturity as characterized the Western European nations.

Dr. Philip Miller, professor of Classical Languages, served as moderator.

NOTED BRITISH PAPER TO FEATURE LINCOLN

Word has been received that the famed London Times, will run a special feature soon on Lincoln University, in recognition of the institution's approaching centennial in 1954 and the tremendous influence its graduates have exercised upon the British Empire, especially in Africa.

There are 35 Lincoln graduates in high places in African colonies, distributed from Sierra Leone in the Northwest to South Africa, including Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah of the Gold Coast and Dr. Nnamdi Azikiwe, who led his party to victory in the recent Nigeria elections and is a strong contender for the premiership when the new government is organized.

LINCOLN'S FIRST PRIME MINISTER; NKRUMAH BUSY ACHIEVING GOALS, Cherishes Memories of Campus Life

Lincoln men all over the world were understandably proud when word was flashed that Kwame Nkrumah, '39, '42s, had been named the first Prime Minister of the Gold Coast in West Africa.

Those who attended the Commencement exercises at Lincoln last June will well remember the forceful and provocative address made as the climax of his diplomatic tour of America by Nkrumah, one of seven Lincoln graduates holding important positions in Africa today.

As a student at Lincoln, it was evident that this son of an African goldsmith was destined for great things. His classmates voted him "most interesting" and the classbook of '39 characterized him as "philosopher, thinker with forceful schemes".

"Special Regards to '39"

And like all good Lincoln men, Nkrumah has never forgotten the friendships of campus days.

When President Bond congratulated the new Prime Minister on behalf of Lincoln men and other Americans via a 7000-mile transcontinental telephone call shortly after his appointment, Nkrumah asked to be remembered to his friends in the U.S. and "particularly to members of my class whom I recall with great fondness".

Nkrumah's appointment marks an extremely important step in his long fight for self-government for Africans and is of worldwide significance. His strong advocacy of independence for Africans has twice led to imprisonment and it was from a jail cell that he directed his party's successful campaign. It was his imprisonment that touched off a parliamentary investigation and subsequent recommendation of a large measure of self government immediately for Gold Coast natives.

When his party won 36 of 38 seats in the new parliament last year, Nkrumah was released from jail and later elected Leader of Government Business. In his new position, he ranks next to the Governor.

"Honored by Alma Mater"

The same year Nkrumah received his degree from the Seminary, he was awarded an M.A. in anthropology from Penn. Lincoln conferred an honorary L.L.D. on him last June.

In the biographical sketch he wrote as a Lincoln freshman, Nkrumah summed up his outlook on life in the words of Cecil Rhodes: "So much to do, so little done . . ." His accomplishments at the age of 42 indicate he has no time for dallying.

CHURCHES DEMONSTRATE CHRISTIAN BROTHERHOOD

In what was termed concrete evidence of brotherhood, the Rev. Wesley L. Hawes, '42 sb, became pastor of a merged white and Negro congregation in San Francisco. The Rev. Mr. Hawes and his congregation from Hope Presbyterian Church moved into the 85-year-old edifice of the Westminster Presbyterian Church when members of the latter approved the merger after their white pastor went into the Army as a chaplain.
AFRICANS DEMAND END OF PROMISES, WANT EQUAL VOICE IN WORLD AFFAIRS

It is with profound humility, gratitude, and sincerity of purpose, that I stand before this gathering to relay the voice of New Africa to the world. This is properly not my voice—it should be the voice of the man and the woman in the farming villages, grubbing laboriously in the soil for a pittance of cassava or rice; the fisherman in his river or sea-coast village; the industrial worker, dragged out from his roots in the earth, toiling long hours in mine or factory, getting a daily dole of a shilling or two, or three francs—in American terms, a rate of daily pay ranging from ten to sixty cents.

I am the voice of the millions of people who have not, speaking here tonight to those who have much.

In an age characterized by power-politics, dictatorships and totalitarianism; in an age when man is still faced with the struggle for survival—the quest for bread and the quest for human rights; in an atomic age when the greed and selfishness of Man may, one day, lead to the total extinction of civilization; the Voice of New Africa asks, “What hope is there for us?”

Fought Wars, Denied Fruits

The African has fought two major wars to make the world safe for democracy. Each time he has been denied the fruit of his sacrifices—the right of “Self-Determination” as pronounced by the great President of this country, Woodrow Wilson. The African has been subjected to exploitation of the most merciless type, while he struggles to exist below a minimum subsistence level. He has been reduced to the status of a sub-human.

Do we claim ignorance of the inhumanity to man is tolerated in a democratic world.

We think the world should be dismayed that this instance of man’s inhumanity to man may, one day, lead to the total extinction of the entire Western World with this indignity of the human spirit. We think the world should be shocked at this barbarous trampling of the belated attention of the free world tomorrow it may be Africa. Who knows.

Common sense and cool reason therefore dictate that the only wise course is to offer unequivocal brotherhood—now.

We are, however, grateful to those governments and the various Missionary agencies, that have contributed in no small measure to train Africans in the Western way of life. But it would be worse than suicidal to believe that all is rosy with the African.

The bitter struggle for self-government in most of the territories goes on unabated. In this regard, it is with the greatest respect that I mention the names of such leaders as Kwame Nkrumah, Nnamdi Azikiwe and Obafemi Awolowo—(the first two products of my own Lincoln University’s American education)—who have done more than any other individuals to revolutionize the entire colonial regime in West Africa.

Amongst all the foreign students studying in this country, the African students are the most beset with grave difficulties and hardships, socially and economically. Our parents at home are struggling to maintain us here at the greatest personal sacrifices to themselves and to their families. What hope is there for us?

Thirsty for Freedom

The Voice of New Africa, therefore, appeals very strongly to the philanthropic and humanitarian consciences of the free world to take an interest—the deepest interest—in Africa, her peoples and her problems. We appeal to the United States and to all her people of goodwill to undertake the

RECORD ATTENDANCE MARKS FOUNDER’S DAY PROGRAMS:
CUNNINGHAM, D.C. PUBLISHER WIN ANNUAL AWARDS

The Lincoln University Founder’s Day Dinners this year were the most successful to date and concrete evidence that these affairs have the support of alumni and friends of the school. The dinners, commemorating Lincoln’s 98th anniversary, were held in Philadelphia, Chicago and Washington with a special convocation on the campus.

Theme of the affairs this year was “Education and the Social Good” and tribute was paid to the many Lincoln men who have made outstanding contributions in education and social welfare. Among those cited were 29 Lincoln graduates who have been presidents of 35 colleges. Previous dinners honored the medical profession, the legal profession and those who distinguished themselves in public service.

The Abraham Lincoln Awards for “distinguished service to humanity” were presented at the Philadelphia dinner to Philip L. Graham, liberal publisher of the Washington (D.C.) Post, and Rev. E. Luther Cunningham, ’30, ’33s, pastor of St. Paul Baptist Church, member of the Philadelphia Civil Service Commission, and a civic leader.

14 COLLEGE PRESIDENTS AID PHILADELPHIA AFFAIR

Presidents of fourteen colleges and seminaries served on the sponsoring committee of the Philadelphia Founder’s Day Dinner held in the Burgundy Room of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel and attended by nearly 200 guests.

Principal speakers were Rev. E. Luther Cunningham, ’30, ’33s, pastor of St. Paul Baptist Church and member of the Philadelphia Civil Service Commission, and Philip L. Graham, publisher of the Washington (D.C.) Post, both of whom received the annual Abraham Lincoln Awards.

In his address, Rev. Cunningham pointed out that it is the duty of college-trained men to assume the civic obligation of making their communities a better place to live, to concern themselves with the welfare of the people.

Despite many handicaps, he said, Negroes have succeeded in every endeavor and will continue to succeed. Negroes, he added, want no special privileges, but they do insist on the full rights of American citizenship. It is up to the college graduate, he declared, to play a leading role in the struggle for equal rights.

(The text of Rev. Cunningham’s speech was inserted in the Congressional Record by Congressman Earl Chudoff, of Pa., and copies will be forwarded to alumni and other friends of Lincoln.—Ed.)

Graham, whose address was broadcast over WIP, called for a more tolerant attitude among all Americans and urged the universities to instill “greater humility of thought” in those being trained for leadership.

“Those of us interested in the field of race relations especially need thoughtful guidance,” the publisher declared. “Most of us are impatient because we know that prejudice and discrimination are totally wrong. Knowing this, it is easy for us to become intolerant ourselves about intolerance of others”.

Others who participated on the program included: President Bond, ’23, and Attorney Lewis M. Stevens, chairman of Lincoln’s board of trustees, who presented the awards to the honorees; Rev. Leonard H. Carr, ’33s, Dr. Harold R. Scott, ’25, president of the General Alumni Association; Willis G. Hare, ’34, president of the Philadelphia chapter of the Alumni; Attorney William T. Coleman Jr., Rev. Ruttee T. Garth, ’25; and Robert H. Loving, ’34, who presided.

PROF. LABAREE CITED BY WASHINGTON GROUP

A citation "in public recognition of 23 years of unselfish service and unique contributions to the cause of education and the social good" was presented to Robert McEwen Labaree, Isaac N. Randall, professor of sociology and missions, emeritus, at Lincoln at the Founder's Day Dinner sponsored by the Washington alumni chapter.

The presentation was made during the banquet in Baldwin Hall by Attorney Elbert C. Robinson, president of the Washington chapter and accepted on behalf of Professor Labaree by his sister, Miss Mary S. Labaree.

"As teacher and friend, as humanitarian and wise counselor," the citation read, "his liberal philosophy and penetrating analysis of our social and economic institutions helped develop concepts and attitudes in those students who came under his influence which inspired them to horizons of higher accomplishments and instilled in them full recognition of the need for service to their fellow men."

More than 200 guests attended the affair. Principal speaker was Dr. Buell G. Gallagher, of the U. S. Office of Education and former president of Talledega College. Tribute to two other guests of honor, Dr. Mary Church Terrell and Dr. Ambrose Caliner for their contributions in education was paid by Dr. Frank T. Wilson, '21, 24s, who served as master of ceremonies.

Others on the program included: Rev. Daniel G. Hill, '17, Dr. Laurence Foster, '26, '29s, of the Lincoln faculty, and Rev. Everette A. Hewlett, '30, 41s.

URGES LINCOLN PRECEPTS

Raymond Pitcairn, Philadelphia attorney and Lincoln historian, delivered the address at the Lincoln Day convocation in the Mary Dod Brown Chapel. Mr. Pitcairn urged students to follow the example of Abraham Lincoln and guide their careers with the precepts of the great president ever before them.
he was reserved and under evident constraint and embarrassment. . ."
(From Andrew Burnaby, Travels Through the Middle Settlements in North America, pp 197-213)

It was this man, who, before his death in 1782, at the age of 92, set apart a plot of land in Winchester, Virginia, to provide a decent burial place for a colored woman, and in perpetuity for all other colored persons of Winchester who might follow her in death. This woman, who inspired the generosity of Lord Fairfax to the colored people of Winchester, was the great-grandmother of Maria Fairfax, born March 18, 1840, in Berkeley County, Virginia.

Maria Fairfax married C. C. Brown, who had been born in Charlestown, Virginia, in 1834. This was an extraordinary man. He was master of several trades; barber, produce middleman, real estate, and shrewd judge of horse-flesh and human nature. He became a supplier of horses and commissary supplies to the Union Armies, during the interminable Shenandoah campaigns; and very soon became one of the foremost business men of the entire Valley.

Eight children were born to this marriage. They grew up under the gentle eye of Maria Fairfax Brown, and the kindly firm discipline of their energetic father. Random memories of early childhood help construct the picture of a family blessed with all of the virtues of a truly noble ancestry. —The father calling the children to their morning chores at 5:00 o'clock in the morning. . . A stately woman, fair in complexion, on the cars in 1888, on route to Washington and Cleveland’s inauguration, questioned by her fellow passengers about the beautiful colored children accompanying her. . . Her answer, "They are mine!"

And long play-days in the sleepy town of Winchester, where C. C. Brown was a leading citizen. . . games of marbles, and fox-and-hares, and baseball, with Tom, Dick and, Harry Byrd. . . Then the whole flock, one by one, off to school; John W. and Edward P. to Lincoln, James Erroll and Harrison to Andover and Williams College; Sara to Hampton, Howard U., and Cornell; Fairfax to Cornell, later, with the characteristic energy of the family, Sara to Howard Medical School, Fairfax to Howard Pharmaceutical School.

All of their studies were aimed at family cooperation. If the one studied medicine, the other studied pharmacy, for a joint enterprise. And the joint enterprise was always in the great humanitarian tradition of Thomas, Lord Fairfax, "the friend and father of all who held and lived under him."

Sara Brown worked in Mississippi during the flood of 1927; accompanied the Gold Star Mothers to Europe in 1930; became the first woman graduate trustee of Howard University; and with her sister, Fairfax, was active in numerous welfare activities; the Freedmen’s Hospital Nurse Committee, the lend-A-Hand Club for unmarried mothers, the first social settlement in Washington, and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

James Erroll Brown is now a professor of Urology at the University of Pittsburgh. Nancy Fairfax Brown is a retired teacher and pharmacist.

In this notable family, John William Brown was a notable example of the great humanitarian tradition. Graduating from the Medico-Chirurgical College after Lincoln, he was a highly successful physician in Pittsburgh. He was a member of the Allegheny County Medical Association; the Medical Society of Pennsylvania; the Pittsburgh branch of the NAACP; a member of the Board of Directors of the Coleman Home for Colored Boys; and a silent, unadvertised supporter— with his brothers and sisters— of every worthy cause that engaged their joint attention.

Boys of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and Winchester and other nearby Virginia towns, received his personal counsel and financial assistance. Nur-sery schools of the two cities were helped annually. With the help of his sister, Sara Winifred Brown, he assumed responsibility for the protection and beautification of the cemetery for colored people of Winchester; the cemetery donated by Lord Fairfax in affection for the burial of his great-great grandmother.

Charitable institutions in Pittsburgh and Winchester and Washing-ton, D.C., such as Saint Anna’s Home for Aged Women and the Home for Unmarried Mothers, received sizable and frequent contributions, the last being in 1950 when $10,000 was given to Saint Anna’s and $1,000 to the Home for Unmarried Mothers.

In 1949, in order that mothers of Mississippi might have more conveniences at childbirth, he gave to the Friendship Clinic of Mound Bayou, Mississippi, the sum of $40,000, to expand its facilities.

This was an unselfish man; and men derive such a quality from a mother. It was Maria Fairfax Brown that spoke in generosity and love through the gifts of John William Brown; and it was, doubtless, the same loving spirit of the first Fairfax woman for whom the lonely Lord Thomas consecrated an ancient cemetery in Winchester in the Eighteenth Century, that speaks today through the everlasting evidence of his gifts to many philanthropies, and to Lincoln University, his Alma Mater.

Hale and Farewell—but forever remembered and treasured—John William Brown, ’93!

EDITOR’S NOTE: This is the second of a series of articles on Lincoln Alumni whose philanthropy to the institution has been notable. John H. Paynter, ’83, was the first subject. Robert Baxter McRay, ’83, will be the third in the next issue of The Bulletin.
Real "Bull Session" Topics Draw
Lively Debate on New Radio Series

So successful was the first series of weekly panel discussions over radio station WIP in Philadelphia, that sec-dond series of "Lincoln University On The Air" programs was inaugurated on Saturdays from 5:30 to 5:45 p.m.

The wraps were taken off for the current series and the panels have been tackling real "bull session" topics, ranging from social restrictions for ministers to interracial marriages.

Nothing has been "too hot" for the panels to handle and sometimes the pros and cons continue in the studio long after the broadcast period is up.

Fair Sex Represented

On two programs so far there has been a departure from the previous policy of using only alumni, faculty members and students. First woman to appear on the program was Mrs.
Leslie Pinckney Hill 2nd, wife of the attorney and national treasurer of the Ladies Auxiliary of Lincoln, who more than held her own in the roundtable on interracial marriages.

Nutshell findings of the panels, topics and participants were as follows:

"Should There Be Special Social Restrictions for Ministers"—Rev.
Henry T. McCrary Sr., pastor of Tasker St. Baptist Church; Rev.
James Warden, student; Leslie and James F. McCoy, president of the seniors class. Findings: Nothing wrong with ministers dancing and playing cards provided they do not let these activities stray beyond the purely social point.

"Racial and Religious Sanctions"—
Rev. William P. Stevenson, pastor,
Rufin Nichols Memorial AME Church; Frank Betz, Philadelphia welfare worker; James Warden, student. Findings: Approved publice boycott of Negro artists who exhibit their talents where other members of the race are segregated or barred.

Approve Uncle Sam's Cut

"Are We Being Overtaxed"—
Herbert R. Cain, Jr., Philadelphia lawyer; Saree Schatz, Lincoln faculty; Edwin Ellis, student. Findings: No.

"Interracial Marriages"—W. Beverly
Carter, director of Journalists Associates, Philadelphia public relations agency; Assistant District Attorney Thomas M. Reed; and Mrs.
Hill. Findings: State laws barring such unions are undemocratic; need for more tolerant attitude toward these couples by Negroes as well as whites.

"Democracy In Sports"—Dr. Jerome (Bud) Holland, faculty; Urias
Oates, Philadelphia welfare worker;
Oscar Sistunk, a senior. Findings:
Excellent—sports in forefront of fight against intolerance.

"Youth and Delinquency"—Har-orson H. Cain, executive secretary of Rittenhouse YMCA, Germantown, Pa.; Rev. Juttee T. Garth, Philadelphia Municipal Court probation officer; and Robert Byrd, a senior.
Findings: More sympathetic attitude younger's problems, better home life and adequate recreational facilities needed.

Less Business Promotion

"Have We Commercialized Easter"—
Rev. Matthew W. Davis, pastor,
St. Monica's Episcopal Church;
John E. Deoatch, Philadelphia florist;
Roland V. Jones, a senior. Findings:
More sympathetic attitude
younger's problems, better home life and adequate recreational facilities needed.

"Will Negro Colleges In The South Survive Integration"—J. B. Mack-
Rae, dean of students; Henry T. Mc-Crary, Jr., law student; Hobert C.
Jackson, administrator, Home for Aged in Philadelphia and co-chairman of the local United Negro College Fund drive (and Morehouse, not Lincoln, man) Findings: Yes. Best schools, Negro and white will be used by both races.

"Minorities and Communism"—
Dr. Horace Mann Bond and Dr.
William T. Fontaine, assistant professor of philosophy at the University of Pennsylvania. Findings: U.S. role as world leader against Communism depends on treatment of American minorities.

"Political Campaign Platforms"—
Edward Nichols, assistant District Attorney, Phila.; Donald Stooks and Russell Carter, students. Findings:
Don't put too much faith in them... weigh candidate and pledges.

"Separate Vacations For Husbands and Wives"—Kenneth Snead, Lincoln faculty; James Bell, student. Findings: Split. Snead for, Bell against.

NOT YET A BRAVE NEW WORLD

by

WALTER WARING

(Written in recollection of thirty-seven Lincoln students, members of the Enlisted Reserve Corps, who left the campus for active duty on March 3, 1943, and en route to camp boarded a train at the Hill station at Lincoln University.)

Their moment, long foreshadowed, had arrived.

Yet seemed unreal—though scarcely more like dream
Than did their books, laid down the day before.

Or school's routine and classroom's measured pace.

But War had called, and they were now to leave

And bear their part of unknown, strange-formed tasks.

So there they stood, some by the station-wall,
Some near the tracks, in half-light and in snow,

While dawn seeped feebly through the sky's cold gray.

The fateful train, so tardy to arrive,

Prolonged the awkward wait and put hot stress

On nerves protesting any new delay.

Scant comfort theirs that some of us, whose wings

Was twice their own, had dumbly filled with them.

Along the frozen road; and all the while
Had vainly probed our minds for simple words
Which might, perhaps, have something of real

Could we advise, when we had failed the test? Ours was the blame, at least the blame in part,
That Hate and Pride and Greed, man's evil toils

Had forged this war. Yet we knew well these gods

Would live to plot anew and plague all men

Unless, peace won, and awesome tools laid by,

The world should fight with stronger arms than steel.

And now, throughout the earth, vast armored hordes

Fulfill our apprehension, and we see
A lesson taught long centuries ago

Wills unlearned, while no one seeks to tell

When man shall warm and nurture in his heart

The germ that lies in Faith and Hope and

So if we found our tongues would not make words

As we trailed down the cold and silent road

The boys, now men, can surely understand.

No less than ours, the challenge now is theirs:
To see beyond the strife a nobler world—

And demonstrate how such a world is made.

Scant comfort theirs that some of us, whose wings

Remains unlearned, while no one seeks to tell

When man shall warm and nurture in his heart

The germ that lies in Faith and Hope and

We as we trailed down the cold and silent road

The boys, now men, can surely understand.

No less than ours, the challenge now is theirs:
To see beyond the strife a nobler world—

And demonstrate how such a world is made.

(Mr. Waring is assistant professor of French at Lincoln—Ed.)

"Husbands and Housework"—
Willis G. Hare, president Philadelphia alumni chapter, James Fransosky, of Lincoln's faculty, and John Hoffer, student. Findings: Husbands should pitch in, wives entitled to "day off.

"Civil Liberties and the South"—
Clarence Mitchell, director of Washington Bureau NAACP, W. Beverly Carter, director Journalists Associates. Findings: Significant gains being made, still short of democratic ideal.

AFRICA DEMANDS

sacred duty of encouraging the education of Africans at home, in this country, and elsewhere in the world. We appeal to the Powers that now control so much of Africa, to accelerate the aspirations of a people thirsty for freedom.

With all his difficulties, the African does not feel hostility against any people. We are a democratic and peace-loving people, who struggle only to be accorded the status of manhood. We can—we will no longer endure co-operation with any people on a master-and-vassal basis, but only as equal partners in the Commonwealth of nations. Our determination leaves room neither for over-optimism, nor hate, nor bitterness. This is how it will be and must be.

Make 'Brotherhood' Real

It is our will, our duty, and our destiny to work hard and use all the resources at our command to raise the educational and living standards of our people. Firmly believing, therefore, in the cherished and enviable ideals of democracy, the Voice of New Africa demands, as of right, the equality and freedom of Africa vis-a-vis the other members of the democratic world. Thus only, may dreams for a lasting peace and security, human brotherhood and fellowship, become a reality.

My brethren of the Western World, you have much to give us that is good, and we—we, the people of Africa and of the rest of the world—we want all that is good from you. We want the curious machines you have contrived to make work easier, and life more abundant for the common man; we want the knowledge to make such machines, and the skill with which to operate them. We want to learn the secrets of the methods by which you save the lives of babies and mothers, and by which you have extended the life-span of your average man twice, or even thrice, beyond that in our own lands.

Africa Has Much to Give

We have, also, much to give. We have a sense of the dignity of man not yet overwhelmed by colossal cities and formidable industrial complexes. We have a delicacy of feeling and a verve for expressing the soul of man not yet fettered or dulled by what you call "Western Civilization". We have yet the eternal wisdom of values, un tarnished by the restless, competitive rat-race, into which your feverish industrial system has thrown you.

SEMINARY NOW INTERRACIAL FROM STUDENTS TO TRUSTEES

With the enrollment of three white students the second semester, the Lincoln University Seminary became the only completely interracial seminary in the Presbyterian Church USA and possibly the first one in the history of American theological education.

Lincoln's Seminary—like others throughout the country—has had a partial interracial set-up for many years, but never before has it had both races represented at the same time on the trustee, faculty and student level.

One of the white students, Philip Ramer, attended the University of Denver and Rockmont College, in Denver, where he studied under Rev. Thomas Murray, father of Dr. Andrew Murray, dean of Lincoln's Seminary. The other two, Robert McKay and Albert Pierson, of Chester County, Pa., are graduates of King's College and are presently serving rural churches in the area.

Dean Murray said that McKay and Pierson had visited the school prior to enrollment and were apparently impressed with the friendliness that prevailed—in addition to the fact that the campus was near their homes.

Among the six new students who entered the Seminary this semester was David Sealy from British Guiana.
LINDON, MORGAN SHARE BARBER’S $14,000 BEQUEST

Lincoln has received $7000 from the estate of a man who never went to college, but had such a deep concern for the future of his race he contributed most of his life-time earnings toward the education of young people.

He was Joel L. DeCourcey, who died in 1926, after operating a barber shop in Havre de Grace, Md., for many years. His will directed that the money he accumulated through years of sacrificing be placed in trust for his sister, Mrs. Frances O. Brown, and at her death be divided equally between Lincoln, Morgan State College and the AME Aged Colored Peoples Home in Baltimore.

Mrs. Brown died in July, 1951 in Baltimore at the age of 94 and the estate was just recently settled. So far as is known, Mr. DeCourcey had no connection with either school. He felt, however, that education was one of the keys to the more rapid advancement of Negroes.

RECORD ENROLLMENT MARKS MID-TERM

Although male enrollment at American colleges is continually declining, the student body at Lincoln remained approximately the same for the second semester due to the enrollment of 18 students, largest number to enter at mid-term in the history of the school.

ACE Blasts Athletic Proselyting
Warns Abuse Foster Moral Decay

Condemning widespread proselyting and subterfuge in athletics at collegiate institutions throughout the country, the American Council on Education’s Special Committee on Athletic Policy has warned that the present situation jeopardizes “educational leadership... the respect of students and the public” and fosters “moral apathy”.

The Special Committee, headed by President John A. Hannah, of Michigan State College, noted in its report, which was approved by the Executive Committee of ACE, that while many colleges still adhered to the highest standards, serious violations of sound educational policies and good moral conduct were not uncommon.

The Committee set forth a series of recommended regulations which it asked the regional accrediting associations to enforce. To date, the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools is the only one to as sent. The Middle States Association (Lincoln’s) has refused. Excerpts from the recommendations follow.

1. As in all other educational activities, the control of athletics should be held absolutely and completely by those directly responsible for the administration and operation of the institution. Specifically, the department of athletics should have a place in the institutional structure comparable to that of any other department; it should be subject to the same institutional policy and budgetary controls as are all other educational departments; and members of the department should have the same status as other faculty members of comparable ranks, including that of qualifying for tenure or a long-term contract after a substantial trial period. When this improved status is realized, coaches should not be paid salaries in excess of those paid to other full-time members of the faculty.

2. Admission standards, as announced in official publications, should apply to all students, athletes and non-athletes alike. All admission procedures should be handled by the regular admissions officers and committees of the institution.

3. In order to be eligible for intercollegiate competition, a student should be enrolled in an academic program leading to a recognized degree, and should be making normal progress, both quantitatively and qualitatively, toward the degree. In a four-year course, for example, normal academic progress is construed to mean achievement, year by year, sufficient to permit graduation within four calendar years of the time of matriculation.

4. No student should be permitted to participate in intercollegiate athletics as a member of a varsity team representing a senior college or university during his first academic year of attendance at the institution; but graduates of junior colleges shall not be subject to this restriction.

5. a. The first essential in combating proselyting and subsidization of athletes is to require that all financial aid to any student, in money or in kind, except that which comes from his own family, be administered by the institution itself, whether the funds come from alumni groups, civic organizations, or individuals. The institution itself should require that all such funds be deposited with the institution for disbursement and control under published policies.

b. Institutions should award and renew all scholarships and grants-in-aid to students on the fundamental basis of demonstrated academic ability and economic need. Promise of superior performance in extracurricular activities, including athletics, may be one of the factors considered in awarding scholarships and grants-in-aid. It should never be the sole factor or even the primary one. Athletes holding scholarships or grants-in-aid should be required to meet the same standards of academic performance and economic need as are required of all other recipients.

c. Reiterating the importance of graduating stipends to individual need, the Committee believes and recommends that any scholarship, grant-in-aid, or combination of financial awards for undergraduate students should be limited, both in amount and in time, to the student’s actual educational expenses for tuition, fees, room, board, and books incurred during his first four undergraduate years.

STUDENTS OF DR. SUMNER MAKE OUTSTANDING RECORD

The criteria of a great teacher is the achievement of his students and the record of those who have earned their master’s degree in psychology under Dr. Francis C. Sumner, ’15, ’17, professor of psychology and head of the department at Howard University is truly remarkable.

Of the 72 master graduates in psychology at Howard through 1951, some 30 percent have been accepted as members of the American Psychological Association, six have taken their doctorate and better than 36 percent have had a total of 80 important publications. All of them are either teaching, doing research or holding other positions of responsibility.

(c) Similar figures for sophomores, juniors, and seniors clearly indicating the relative academic performance, the number of grants, and the average and total financial investment of the institution or otherwise, for the athletic groups as against all other male students.

7. Since athletics are agreed to have important educational and recreational values, colleges and universities should make every effort to offer the opportunity of participation to all students.

8. In order to avoid some of the undesirable outside pressures associated with intercollegiate competition, institutions should be encouraged to compete with others having similar policies and programs. The efforts of the several athletic conferences to bring about and to regulate such competition are commended.

Copies of this Report of the Special Committee on Athletic Policy may be ordered from the American Council on Education, 1785 Massachusetts Avenue N. W., Washington 6, D. C.

Gold Footballs To Gridders; Deep Bow To Alumni

Thanks to the excellent response of Alumni members, gold footballs were presented to Lincoln’s gridiron squad as a reward for the thrilling win over Howard in the Thanksgiving Day Classic at Philadelphia.

Total donations, Coach Manuel Rivero reported, amounted to $590. The average of $90 has been earmarked as promised, the coach said, for a fund to purchase a movie camera to take pictures of games as an aid to coaching. Estimated cost of the type of camera needed is about $300.

“The coaching staff highly appreciated this indication of support by the alumni,” Rivero said, “and of course the boys thought it was grand.”

The emblems were presented by Dr. Jerome (Brud) Holland, of Lincoln’s faculty, during Athletic Honors exercises when letters were awarded to those who participated in intercollegiate competition.

STRONG LION MAT TEAM WINS CIAA TITLE HANDILY

Lincoln University's matmen took over complete control of the CIAA wrestling title during the championship at Shaw University, practically sewing up the tournament before the finals.

Coach Bob Gardner's charges won three individual crowns and four other Lion grapplers were runners-up, giving Lincoln a total of 43 points to 34 for its nearest competitor, Virginia State College.

Co-defending champs with Morgan State College, the Lions were virtually assured of an iron grip on the title before the last round when seven members of Lincoln's ten-man team qualified for the finals.

Placing of other teams: Howard, 25, third; Hampton, 24, fourth; Morgan, 17, fifth; Shaw, 3, sixth; and St. Augustine, 2, seventh.

OLYMPIC PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR FIVE LINCOLN REPRESENTATIVES: TWO SURE

It may be like old home week for Lincoln during the Olympics this year with two representatives certain to be in Helsinki and three others standing an excellent chance of making the trip to Finland.

Certain to be on hand are Thomas Jones, assistant professor of history, who has already been selected to run the marathon, and Irving Mondschein, director of athletics, who is on leave to coach the Israel team for Olympic competition.

The three other prospects who will be in there pitching all the way are Roscoe Browne, '47, Jim Cooke, who was drafted by the Army in his senior year this fall, and Ted Ellis, lanky freshman who set a new high jump record of 6', 6½" in the CIAA track championship this spring.

Browne, a national star whose forte is the 600 yard run, will probably make his bid in the 800 meters. Cooke, who placed second in the decathlon at the Kansas Relays last year, has been breaking records in Army tournaments and is considered an outstanding candidate for his favorite. On the strength of his CIAA performance, Ellis has been invited to several other meets where victory will lead to California and the final test.

Dean Hill also emphasized the traditions which had brought about the development of Lincoln University and cited the many persons who had set the pattern for meaningful intangibles which are important to the "greatness of Lincoln".

Officers of the chapter are: Louis E. Redmond, president; Hugh F. Lewis, vice president; J. Leonard Clarke, corresponding secretary; Henry Allen, '24, recording secretary; Dr. H. F. Bouyer, '20, treasurer; F. D. Roseboro, '13, business manager; Rev. Herbert W. Jones, chaplain; E. D. Gully, '97, '08s, chairman of the board of directors; and Dr. Goss, regional director of the Pre-Centennial Drive.

LINCOLN STUDENT ADMITTED TO U. OF VA. LAW SCHOOL

Tilton Brinkley Jr., of Portsmouth honor student and member of the class of '52, will enroll at the Law School of the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, in the fall. While one Negro has taken graduate courses at the Law School, Brinkley and another youth—whose name was not immediately available—will be the first two colored students accepted as beginners.

WANT TO STUDY ABROAD? HERE'S HOW YOU GET AID
By the Associated Negro Press

Only a few Negroes know how to obtain Fulbright Fellowships awarded by the federal government for study in some 22 foreign countries. Consequently, many qualified students have missed an opportunity to do graduate study outside of the continental U.S.A.

The Fulbright Fellowships are administered through the Institute of International Education, U.S. Student Program, 1 East 67th Street, New York 21.

Countries in which study grants are available are Australia, Austria, Belgium, Burma, Denmark, Egypt, France, Greece, India, Iran, Japan, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Pakistan, the Philippines, Thailand, Turkey, the Union of South Africa and the United Kingdom.

The awards enable students in all fields of graduate work and those with specialized research projects to study in foreign institutions and universities under renowned professors and specialists. Grants also are available to students with records of accomplishment in such fields as music, art, architecture, and drama. A few opportunities in worker’s education and social work are provided in the United Kingdom.

The grants are made under Public Law 584, 79th Congress, the Fulbright Acts, which authorizes the department of state to use certain foreign currencies and credits acquired through the sale of surplus property abroad for programs of educational exchange with other nations. Grants are made for one academic year and generally include round trip transportation, tuition, a living allowance, and a small amount for necessary books and equipment.

Graduate students should write directly to the Institute of International Education, U.S. Student Program, 1 East 67th Street, New York. Students who are still in college or a university should consult their campus Fulbright advisor.

HERE’S A GOOD IDEA . . .

Whenever you attend one of the football or basketball games at Lincoln, why not pile a couple of the young fellows from your neighborhood in the car and bring them along.

In addition to treating the youngsters to a sporting event, you’ll be giving them a chance to visit Lincoln and form an opinion of your alma mater. And when they’re ready for college, we’ll bet they’ll prefer Lincoln.

CAPITAL EXPENDITURES WILL TOTAL $500,000

Two campus construction projects which will cost an estimated $225,000 have been given final approval by the Lincoln University Trustee Board.

The major item is the addition of a wing to the Vail Memorial Library for which $145,000 has been appropriated. Another $80,000 has been provided to replace the existing steam heating lines.

The library extension will provide additional stack space to bring the capacity to 90,000 volumes. It will also include three new reading rooms and make it possible to provide seminar rooms, an exhibition room and a micro-film room.

OVER HALF MILLION EXPENDED

President Bond stated that completion of these two projects would bring total expenditures for capital improvements to more than $755,000 since 1946 when a two-million-dollar program of plant renovation and rebuilding was authorized by the Trustee Board. A schedule of future construction calls for substantial additions to the building program in 1954 and following years.

A substantial contribution to the new projects came from the Davella Mills Foundation which made a grant of $50,000 for extension of the library.

LINCOLN MAN APPOINTED ASSISTANT UNCF HEAD

Calvin H. Raullerson, ’48, former educator and editor, has been appointed assistant to W. J. Trent, executive director of the United Negro College Fund.

Raullerson, a cum laude graduate of Lincoln, one of the Fund’s 22 member schools, formerly served as associate editor and project director of “Who’s Who in the United Nations”, published in 1951; as instructor in political science at Brooklyn College; and as assistant editor of “Who’s Who in Colored America” in 1950. He did graduate study in international law at Harvard and public administration at New York University.

In announcing the appointment, Trent said that the Fund’s program has recently been expanded to include a five-year capital funds building campaign, in addition to its regular annual appeals in support of the yearly operating budgets of member institutions.

Lincoln Bulletin
Alumni Pledge Million to Centennial

Major events occurring at the 1952 annual meeting of the Lincoln University Alumni Association were the selection of Dr. Harold R. Scott, '25 as Alumni Trustee for the next three year period succeeding Atty. Maceo Hubbard of Washington, D. C., and the pledge on the part of the Alumni Association to raise one million dollars for the University Centennial in 1954.

Dr. Scott, who has been president of the Alumni Association for two terms, resigned that office after being elected by an overwhelming vote to the Trustee Board. Atty. Cornelius McDougald, '38, of New York City, who has been vice-president of the Association for the last two years, automatically moved up to succeed Scott. McDougald's term will expire in June 1953.

Dr. G. Lake Imes, '04, principal Alumni Banquet speaker, who suggested in his address that the Alumni Association raise the one million dollars for '54, moved the adoption of a formal resolution to that effect at the business meeting, and this resolution was unanimously approved. The Alumni Association suggests that each alumnus personally raise or contribute one thousand dollars apiece.

In his speech, Dr. Imes suggested an alumnus could meet the $1000 commitment by cash contribution in June, 1954, as a bequest in his will or by making Lincoln beneficiary of a life insurance policy.

Gifts of one hundred dollars each were received from alumni chapters in Washington, D. C. and N. Y. C. and the Alumni Association formally raised alumni dues from five dollars per year to ten dollars with the indication that increased efforts for the collection of dues will be made this term.

Dick Lockett of Atlantic City and Juttee Garth of Philadelphia, J. N. Maia, of New York City, Harvey Reynolds, of Harrisburg, Elbert Robertson, of Washington, D. C. were elected to the 1953 nominating committee by acclamation.

Dr. Scott, an Orange, New Jersey physician, was born in Camden, S. C. and did his medical training at Howard University, graduating in 1906. Married, he is the father of one son, Harold Russell, Jr. and a member of the New Jersey Medical Society, the North Jersey Medical Society, the NMA, and other honorary medical organizations. He has been an active president of the Alumni Association and promises to continue his interest at the Trustee level.

McDougald who was born in N. Y. C. is a graduate of Fordham University's School of Law. He is married and the father of two daughters, Mary and Cornelia. He is a member of the New York County Lawyers Association, the Board of Directors of the Neighborhood Day Nursery of Harlem, and of the Harlem Council on Social Hygiene.

Long considered a power in Alumni affairs he now takes the reins of what is one of the most active associations in the history of Alumni affairs at Lincoln University.

WHAT'S A MILLION DOLLARS?

Cornelius McDougald, New York lawyer, who has just become president of Lincoln University's general alumni association, shoudered a big part-time job last week when the alumni pledged to raise $1,000,000 for the university by 1954. A few years ago any of our alumni groups would have quailed in terror at the suggestion of raising $100,000. Lincoln has come a long way in its 98 years, and the horizons of its graduates have been extended at the same time. What's raising a million? Just a lot of hard work, and we congratulate Mr. McDougald and all of his fellow alumni who have shouldered the task. —(New York Age, June 14, 1952)

2 LINCOLN PROFESSORS WIN PH.D. DEGREE FROM PENN

Henry G. Cornwell, ’33, associate professor of psychology at Lincoln, and Thomas M. Jones, associate professor of history, received the Ph.D. Degree in their respective fields at the June commencement of the University of Pennsylvania.

Both men joined the Lincoln faculty in 1946. Dr. Cornwell received his masters from Penn in 1935. Dr. Jones, an honor graduate of Earlham College in 1938, held a fellowship at Haverford College in 1938-39 and received his Master's there in 1939.

SEMINARY NAMED ESTATE LEGATEE BY REV. JONES

Another loyal alumnus has remembered Lincoln!

The Rev. John A. White, ’07, ’08s, who died on March 9, of this year in a fire that destroyed his home at 190 Spring St., Trenton, N. J., made the Theological Seminary the residuary legatee for his estate with his widow and daughter given life interest.

During his long and successful work in the pastorate, the Rev. Mr. White retained a continuing interest in Lincoln, returning frequently for commencement exercises and other public occasions.

Four distinguished sons of Lincoln were among the seven recipients of honorary degrees conferred by the University at its 98th commencement held amid ideal weather in the grove.

Honorary degrees were also conferred by President Bond on the following: Federal Judge Richard Hartshorne, of Newark, N. J., who was commencement speaker, L.L.D.; Benedict Gimbel, Jr., president and general manager of Philadelphia radio station WIP, L.H.D.; and Dr. Leroy E. Chapman, State senator from E. Warren, Pa., L.H.D.

The Alumni Awards for outstanding achievement were presented by Dr. Harold R. Scott, retiring president of the Alumni Association, to Dr. Henry Goss, '16, Chicago dentist, and Frank J. Hutchings, Sr., '20, Macon, Ga., mortician.

Degrees in course were awarded to 59 seniors in the college and three in the Seminary. Chukwuneta Nwokedi, of Nigeria, W. Africa, delivered the valedictory and Cecil M. Thorne, of New York City, was salutatorian. The Seminary address was delivered by Maurice Moyer, of Wilmington, Del.

In his address, Judge Hartshorne urged the graduates to support the work of the United Nations through participation in recognized "consulting organizations". He pointed out that a number of Negro leaders such as Dr. Ralph Bunche, Lincoln trustee, are holding important positions with the UN and others are making valuable contributions through consulting organizations like the NAACP and the League of Women Voters.

"My thought to you trained young people, with your lives of real productivity still ahead of you," the jurist said, "is to apply your lives to the solution of the greatest problem facing humanity, that of achieving international peace."

While the UN, "like any human invention is far from perfect," Judge Hartshorne, a director of the Davella Mills Foundation, declared, it has proved its workability and importance by acting to avert global conflict in at least four instances.

EXCERPTS OF ALUMNI CITATIONS

FRANK J. HUTCHINGS, '20

... Since graduation, Mr. Hutchings has returned to his home in Macon (Ga.) and has taken an active part in one civic organization after another, making personal sacrifices for the good of his fellowmen. He is president of the Georgia Funeral Directors Association, vice president of the Macon Interracial Commission and a former chairman of a series of Community Chest and Red Cross drives.

In the city of Macon, his interracial activities have succeeded in bringing about the appointment of Negro police officers. Here, truly is a Lincoln graduate well beloved, and a man who proves his continued interest by sending three sons to his Alma Mater . . .

HENRY GOSS, '16

... A respected citizen of Chicago, he is a former athlete, a dentist, an organizer of athletic teams, of numerous community projects—all directed toward the improvement of persons other than himself, and toward the general betterment of mankind. For Me too; for the Chicago YMCA; and for his Alma Mater, Lincoln University, he has worked with zeal and devotion.

As an example of unselfish leadership, as an example of an individual who has repeatedly stopped his professional practice in order to meet every Lincoln man with respect and in a spirit of helpfulness, we tardily yet eagerly bestow upon Dr. Henry Goss this Alumni award that he may realize our gratitude and that more Lincoln men may be inspired to follow in his train.

ONE BIG FAMILY:

A survey of students enrolled at Lincoln University last semester revealed that 65, or approximately one out of five, were blood relatives of Lincoln men.

This is an exceedingly high percentage and probably equalled by only a few colleges in the country. Many of the students had several relatives who preceded them at Lincoln, some going back two generations.

If there were an award for the student belonging to the longest line of Lincoln men, George A. Fisher, a sophomore from Raleigh, N. C., would win in a walk. He is the eighth member of a prominent family to attend the University, the Fisher story at Lincoln dating back to a great uncle, the Rev. Howard M. Fisher in 1870.

Students and relatives are listed below. The list was compiled from application blanks. Where there is a blank space, the information was not supplied by the student. This is, in all probability, only a partial list, but it indicates the love, respect and admiration Lincoln men have for their alma mater.

... THIS IS YOUR BULLETIN . . .

The only way we can keep up with activities of alumni is through the press and what you write us. We prefer to get it from the "horse's mouth" so don't be modest. Let us know about your successes, marriages, new additions to the family.

Although retired, Rev. Crawford continues to minister to those in spiritual or material need. He is so well known that each month he receives shipments of magazines, clothing and toys and cash contributions from all over the country for impoverished families. The editorial, entitled “Work, Faith and the Lord’s Blessing”, follows:

Now and then we get outdone with the world. It has become a sorry place, over-run with sorry people, and if Old Joe starts throwing bombs and we throw them back, it’s no more than we deserve.

Then along comes someone like Rev. Crawford. We all talk about “work”. This colored preacher, teacher and missionary has lived a life-time of it. And he is still smiling, still happy and cheerful. You see, the Rev. T. J. Crawford has never lost faith in his God and his fellow-man.

Born in East Tennessee more than 70 years ago, he was the son of Richard and Nancy Crawford, both slaves. His father was the body servant of Col. John Crawford of the Eighth Confederate Cavalry, and carried $4,000 buckled around his waist as they retreated over blood-stained battlefields from Mississippi to Virginia. Col. Crawford often told him, “If I get killed, you take this money to your mistress.” When Richard Crawford died at the age of 108 he had never betrayed a trust. Neither has his son.

Along with the rest of his generation, white and colored, young Tom knew only one way to get what he wanted—work for it. He wanted an education and he wanted “to be a blessing” to his race. He wanted an education and he wanted “to be a blessing” to his race. He taught Bible there for a number of years.

In the horse and buggy days he covered 9 counties, and 55- to 100-mile trips were the rule rather than the exception. It has taken 9 horses and 14 buggies and 14 automobiles to carry him over the more than 700,000 miles he has traveled visiting rural colored homes, distributing Bibles, clothing and good deeds. In the early days of the peach industry, pickers were hard to get. Knowing a need when he saw one, Rev. Crawford got on his grapevine, brought them in, and for many years held religious services at the peach sheds. During the first world war he sold almost $80,000 worth of bonds and stamps.

Judged by “modern” standards Rev. Crawford is old-fashioned. He believes in thrift, honesty and industry—scarce commodities at best. His innate courtesy is not servility. It is a natural expression of consideration of others. We doubt if he has collected much in the way of worldly goods, but he has gathered countless friends along the way. And with other people’s troubles on his mind, Rev. Crawford has never got around to stirring up any of his own.

He says the Lord has blessed him, and we’re glad. People like the Reverend deserve to be blessed.

1949 GRAD WINS FELLOWSHIP GRANT TO STUDY IN PARIS

John A. Jones Jr., ‘49, of York, Pa., has been awarded a French Government fellowship and assigned to study at the University of Paris. He is scheduled to sail for France on Sept. 17 aboard the Queen Elizabeth.

Jones advises all Lincoln graduates or seniors who have majored in French and would like to do graduate work but haven’t the funds to write the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York 21, for information regarding French government fellowships and scholarships.

Lincoln Men Related to Mothers of the Year

Two women who won national recognition as outstanding mothers are related by blood or marriage to Lincoln men.

Honored as Catholic Mother of the Year was Mrs. Ruth H. Thomas, wife of Maceo A. Thomas, ’20b, a sales chief for a coal distributing firm in New York, and sister of Dr. Frank Hall, ’21, of New Bedford, Mass., and mother of two Lincoln men, Kenneth Snead, ’48, of Lincoln’s faculty, and Francis Batipps, ’49, now a Howard medical school student.

Selected as the Ideal Mother in a contest sponsored by the Afro-American Newspapers was Mrs. Cleo Dix Williams, wife of the Rev. Arthur D. Williams, pastor of New Bedford, Mass., church, and mother-in-law of two Lincoln men, Kenneth Snead, ’48, of Lincoln’s faculty, and Francis Batipps, ’49, now a Howard medical student.

The award to Mrs. Thomas was made by the Family Life Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference. She was the first Negro woman cited since the honor was created 10 years ago. The Thomases have nine children.

The Williamses have six children. Snead’s wife, Sadie, a graduate of Ohio State, was “Miss Lincoln” at the Lincoln-Howard game in 1946. Batipps’ wife, Hattye, is an honor student at Howard law school.

John T. Cuff, Sr., ’09, ’12s, was signally honored twice within a week by the community of Coatesville, Pa., this summer.

At the annual Achievement Banquet he was presented the Adams Citizenship Cup in recognition of significant contributions to the cultural progress of the community. Five days later, more than 125 persons attended a testimonial supper at the Pass School in Hayti marking his retirement after 35 years in the teaching profession.

Cuff, who served as principal of Pass School for 29 years, received many gifts at the testimonial attended by civic and fraternal leaders. He started his teaching career at Downingtown Industrial School. He also taught at West Ward School in Downingtown and from 1918—1919 served as principal of the Merchant St. School, Coatesville, which is now the Adams School.

An active leader in community life, he has worked on various drives and is a director of the Coatesville Community Concert Committee. Cuff, who sold pigeons to raise funds with which to attend Lincoln graduated cum laude from the college and won the R. H. Nassan prize when he finished the seminary.

Vital Role for 'University of Future'

By G. Lake Imes

Most of us here tonight have gone through two World Wars with all their attendant horrors. All of us now stand in dread of a third World War, in fear of unimaginable horrors. It is hardly necessary to say that, with all the rest of the world, we deplore the persistent resort to war as a means of settling disputes and resolving conflicts among nations. Most of us reconcile ourselves to this perversity of human nature with the reflection that even the worst of disasters is accompanied by some element of grace, that makes it possible for the human species to survive the catastrophe, and even to make progress thereafter.

Two major benefits have come to mankind out of two world wars. The first and most obvious is the unprecedented increase in knowledge, power, wealth, and freedom. The second, no less impressive and becoming increasingly manifest, is the spread of the democratic consciousness among all the peoples of the world.

There is no need to submit in detail the evidences of the world's vast increase in knowledge, in power, in wealth, and in freedom. Indulge me in a few observations about each of these advances. Time was when one mind could grasp the whole of man's knowledge of the universe. When Newton wrote his "Principia", still an amazing intellectual accomplishment, he had at his finger-tips the whole range of scientific knowledge. No such thing is possible today. Even our encyclopedias are out-dated before they can be published. Their promoters resort to loose leaf supplements to keep the student abreast of the latest discoveries.

I, myself, once studied the sciences in this institution, and at least, made passable grades. But the best that can be said today about what I was taught and what I learned is that "It ain't so no more!"

The resources of power now at man's command can be briefly summarized by one or two classic allusions. The Man of Galilee once said to his disciples, "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, 'Remove hence to yonder place', and it shall remove; nothing shall be impossible unto you."

That very thing is happening around us every day and it doesn't get so much notice as a line of pica, even in the country papers. I believe it was Galileo who said, "Give me a lever and a place for a fulcrum, and I will move the whole world." Galileo was only propounding a principle of theoretical mechanics. If he could see what our engineers are doing today and every day all over the world as a matter of applied physics, Galileo's eyes would pop out.

When it comes to "wealth"—we've run out of adjectives to describe it. The figures which we use to compute it can be grasped only by an electronic computer. We talk about a billion dollars today as glibly as we used to talk about a thousand. But we can grasp the meaning of a billion dollars only by the use of symbols and figures of speech.

But our most marvelous achievement is "freedom", the freedom of the human spirit. Not so long ago we heard the popular slogan—"Free, white and twenty-one." With two World Wars, it was carried to the uttermost parts of the earth. It has proven contagious, unexpectedly so.

This new sense of freedom, this sense of individual worth, this sense of human dignity has come, in greater or less degree, to all mankind and lies at the bottom of the unrest that pervades the society of men. They have dropped the "white" and the "21", but the sense of freedom remains, and it includes the women, too.

And now we are faced with a great problem—What to do with all this knowledge, all this power, all this wealth, and all this freedom? It is manifest that we have more of all of them than we know how to use constructively.

At this very moment, the highest end that we can serve is to combine our knowledge and power and wealth to create instruments to destroy in war what we create in peace. And we are actually afraid of Freedom. We shout from the housetops about Freedom and Democracy, but we want it only for ourselves, not for the other man. We busy ourselves in devising ways and means to keep him from getting it, to keep him from sharing it, with the specious excuse "He is not ready for it."

Our confusions, our conflicts, our rivalries, our antagonisms arise in our part of the world, at least, from this over-abundance that we don't know how to use. And we look in vain to our established institutions for the help we need.

Government has become a process of manipulating political forces, with control as the primary consideration. The general public comes in as an afterthought. Industry and commerce are concerned about profits and markets, and markets for more profits. Education measures its own accomplishments in terms of units, credits, ratings, and Ph.D.'s, till we have them at a dime a dozen. The Church is still trying to save man's souls after they are lost. It is only casually interested in saving young people before they are lost.

It isn't knowledge we lack. It isn't power we lack. It isn't wealth we lack. And we have all the freedom in the world. Where, then, shall we look for help, for salvation?

My thesis tonight is that salvation lies in the integration of these resources, which now seem to be operating separately. And the University of the Future is the point of assembly for their coordination.

Whatever their present faults and limitations, our universities are destined to become the centers for resolving the problems of society and giving coordination and integration to the activities in various fields where the potentials lie for the creation of a free, integrated, democratic society.

The process is going on under our very eyes. It is generally accepted that our universities are the legitimate repositories for knowledge. By degrees, it is accepted that the discovery of new knowledge is their proper function. We call that research.

But more and more commerce and industry are turning to the universities for help in experimentation, for guidance in the application of knowledge to practical operations beyond the realm of "pure science."

As of the present wealth is diffusing itself among a multitude of "Foundations" whose major, if not exclusive function, is to allocate funds for the use of other institutions in the service of mankind. Some of these are beginning to liquidate themselves by large scale grants to educational institutions with established records for achievement in selected fields and the best prospects of permanence.

Thus knowledge, power, and wealth are converging upon the universities for the integration of their resources. Only freedom is still on the loose. It is still in the in-
LINCOLN WELL REPRESENTED AT CONFERENCE ON AFRICA

Lincoln University's world-wide influence was never better exemplified than at the North American Assembly on Africa, sponsored by the Foreign Missions Conference of the National Council of Churches and the Phelps Stokes Foundation at Wittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio, June 16-28.

Among Lincoln men participating in the Conference, and in a selected "Consultation" of 40 "experts" on Africa sponsored by the Phelps-Stokes Foundation following the Assembly, were:

The Rev. Dr. William Fitzjohn, '43, who received the Ph.D. Degree at Columbia University; and is now a Lecturer in the University College of Sierra Leone, at Freetown, and a member of the Legislative Council;

K. A. B. Jones-Quartey, '42, who took his M.A. degree at Columbia, served as Warden of the West African Students Hostel in London, and is now the Editorial Assistant in charge of publications of the Division of Extra-Mural Studies at the University College, Achimota, The Gold Coast;

Edward W. Blyden, III, '48, now a candidate for the doctorate at Harvard University, holder of two fellowships at Harvard, with a record so brilliant it is almost "beyond precedent". His grandfather, Edward W. Blyden, President of the College of Liberia at Monrovia, later British civil servant in Sierra Leone, later British civil servant in Sierra Leone, Memorial Student, and now the Editorial Assistant in charge of publications of the Division of Extra-Mural Studies at the University College, Achimota, The Gold Coast;

Rev. James H. Robinson, '35, Pastor, The Church of the Master, in New York, member of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions and recently returned from a world tour on behalf of Presbyterian missions, who was the principal speaker at the closing exercises of the Assembly;

Dr. Horace M. Bond, '23, President of Lincoln University; and the Rev. John B. Falconer, '39, of the Baptist Foreign Mission Board, of the National Baptist Convention, stationed in Monrovia, Liberia.

The Rt. Rev. Daniel C. Pope, '25, recently elected Bishop for Africa of the AMEZ Church, was among those scheduled to attend the Assembly. His duties prevented his appearance.

Daniel W. Chapman, United Nations official, brought official greetings to the Conference from the Right Honorable Kwame Nkrumah, '39, '42s, Prime Minister, the Gold Coast.

Profs. Labaree and Hodge, 2 of School’s Best Loved Teachers Die the Same Week

Lincoln men throughout the country were saddened in June by the deaths of two former professors, Dr. Robert McEwen Labaree and the Rev. Samuel C. Hodge, both of whom were an inspiration to the hundreds of students they taught.

Dr. Labaree, recently honored by alumni for “unselfish service and unique contributions to the cause of education and the social good”, died in the Fairview Nursing Home, Philadelphia. Rev. Hodge died less than a week later at his home in West Chester, Pa. Both were 85.

No teacher at Lincoln was ever more greatly loved than Dr. Labaree—Isaac N. Randall professor of sociology and missions for over 22 years—and the affection all gave him went out equally to Mrs. Labaree. He was, perhaps, the first among Lincoln’s teachers to develop in his students a sense of “social consciousness” in the modern sense.

He was an early advocate, in the faculty, of adding both Negro teachers and trustees to the Lincoln family. The number of men he inspired to give humanitarian service to their people, instead of adopting the attitude of exploitation characteristic of the generation of professionals to which they belonged, was legion.

Professor Labaree sponsored an atmosphere of free and easy contact with students and advocated a liberal point of view on social and economic questions of the day that was in vivid contrast to the more conservative approach of many of his colleagues.

Langston Hughes, '29, was one of Dr. Labaree’s favorite students and it was under his sponsorship that Hughes made, in his senior year, a survey of student and faculty opinion that led almost to the election of a Negro to the Board of Trustees and the appointment of the first colored member of the faculty in 1938-78 years after the institution had been founded.

Every Lincoln alumnus owes much to some Lincoln professor. It is probable that Robert S. Labaree contributed a progressive and humanitarian point of view to more Lincoln men, who have since attained positions of service to great masses of the people, than any other teacher in the history of the University. He may rightly be counted one of the great servants of the humanitarian ideal in American life.

Rev. Hodge, professor of the English Bible, was the son of J. Aspinwall Hodge, also professor of the Bible at Lincoln from 1898 to 1901. Older alumni will remember both of the Hodges with the deepest affection.

Many are the tales told by Rev. Hodge’s former students of their persistent, but always unsuccessful efforts to outwit the professor. He had a ready and dry wit and seemed to take a delight in the lighter moments generated in the classroom by students. He, too, had an abiding faith in Lincoln students and tried to imbue them with the understanding of their destiny as leaders of men.
Holte Appointment As Ad Executive Sets Precedent for Major Agencies

Clarence Holte, '34b, recently became the first Negro executive in a major advertising agency when he was named a marketing specialist with Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborn, Inc.

Announcement of Holte’s appointment with BBDO, one of the country’s largest advertising agencies, was made at a luncheon held in the firm’s Madison Ave. offices by Lyle Purcell, manager of the merchandising and research department.

Holte, who has an excellent administrative foundation, is extremely well known in Harlem where he was on the staff of the Dunbar National Bank and for three years studied at the American Institute of Banking on scholarship.

Lincoln Men Leaders In Church Assembly

Lincoln alumni and faculty played important roles in the 104th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. which met recently in New York City.

Dr. James Robinson, '35, addressed the mass meeting of Presbyterian Women held in the Riverside Church, and Rev. Gayraud S. Wilmore, '47, '50s, now Presbyterian staff member of the Mid-Atlantic Student Christian Movement, led a panel discussion of young people on Christian vocations.

Dean Frank T. Wilson, '12, of Howard University, spoke at the breakfast meeting of Ruling Elders held under the auspices of the Board of Christian Education, while Dean Andrew Murray, represented the Theological Seminary at the pre-Assembly conference on Theological education.

Dorothy Maynor, wife of the Rev. Shelby Rooks, '28, was guest soloist at a mass meeting celebrating the sesquicentennial of National Missions held at Madison Square Garden.

"A Shining Example of Rectitude . . ."

The following letter was sent to the Rt. Rev. Daniel C. Pope, '23, '26s by President Bond, a classmate of the new bishop.

Dear Bishop Pope:

It is with the deepest joy, both on behalf of Lincoln University, and of the class of 1929, that I extend to you my heartfelt felicitations at your elevation to the Bishopric of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church.

The Theological Seminary of Lincoln University, and the class of 1926 of the seminary, also take deep pride in this deserved honor.

For myself personally, my mind goes back to the Christmas season of 1921, when you may remember that E. Luther Brooks, Sam Washington, "Rev." Pope, and two errant Sophomores with myself were the only inhabitants of the campus. I remember how, after I doused Brooks with a bucket of water that froze instantly on his coat "trimmed with fur", and he quite correctly committed murder on my person, how you saved my life and laid between Brooks and myself the foundation of an enduring friendship. I remember also how we sang from faculty house to faculty house, our carols, not yielding even a single peanut.

But I remember most of all how a moral issue arose, and how you met it; with honesty, with directness, with a manliness that made the deepest possible impression upon me.

You have labored long in the Master's vineyard, and now your field of service receives a proper expansion. I know you will bless the entire global community as, many years ago, you provided a shining example of rectitude to the little scamp who lived in Ashmun Hall.

With best wishes, I am,

Sincerely,

Horace M. Bond
FOUR NEW MEMBERS JOIN FACULTY; DAVIS RETURNS

The addition of four new Lincoln faculty members and the return of a fifth has been announced by President Bond. The new members are:

Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, '34, who earned his Ph.D. in English at Ohio State University, executive assistant to the President; William A. Hunter, '47, who took his master's degree in education at Temple University, instructor in physical education and coach; Dr. DeForest Rudd, Ph.D. in chemistry, University of California, professor of chemistry; and Donald C. Yelton, candidate for the Ph.D. at Columbia University School of Graduate Studies, librarian with the rank of assistant professor.

Dr. John A. Davis, professor of political science, is returning after a year's leave to study as a Ford Foundation fellow in the field of civil rights and serve as a consultant to the State Department. He is the author of a recent article in Fortune Magazine entitled, "Negro Employment; A Progress Report".

The position of Dr. Farrell, a former member of the English faculty at Lincoln University in Jefferson City, Mo., is new. In addition to assisting the President in administration, he will be responsible for developing the University's Centennial Celebration program in 1954.

Hunter, nicknamed "Wild Bill" when he was a versatile athlete and student leader at Lincoln, will coach basketball and track and serve as assistant grid coach.

ALUMNI DEATHS

Dr. John T. Coleman, '01, '04s, also D.D., Lincoln trustee since 1946, Alumni Association secretary for nearly 20 years, pastor of Grace Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, for 35 years, and recently honored by citizens for distinguished service at Baltimore.

NEWS FOR YOU

DUES ARE DUE

Alumni dues for the school year, 1952-53, are now payable to your Alumni Association. Your $10.00 check should be drawn to "The General Alumni Association of Lincoln University" and sent to the Acting Secretary, W. Beverly Carter, 1530 Lombard St., Phila., 46, Pa.

The Association is making every effort this year to collect dues prior to the usual last minute rush at Commencement. A few members do get their dues in early. How about sending yours now!
VITAL ROLE

dividualistic stage. Even when organized, it is still dominated by an individualistic spirit. This is true of our own great republic whose foundation stones were laid in freedom, but whose superstructure is still used, not for all the people, but for interests, sects, classes, and races.

But it is true that today freedom is finding its best expression in the schools and universities. It is our universities, notably in the South, and in the younger generation that freedom is being advocated as the heritage of all mankind, and that freedom finds its fullest, finest expression when it embraces a man's neighbor as well as himself.

My vision of the University of the Future is an assemblage of disciplined minds, eager in the pursuit of truth and wisdom, the techniques of power, the constructive use of wealth, and the meaning of freedom in the building of a completely integrated society.

The University of the Future will not be a cloistered settlement, detached from the normal interests of men, but the center from which the surrounding community will draw its life blood, its guidance, and its inspiration.

I would like to talk about the student body of the University of the Future, of the President, of the Board of Trustees, but time will not permit, nor will my strength.

But I do want to say something about the Alumni of the University of the Future. By tradition, the alumni of our colleges and universities are regarded as detached from their Alma Mater after graduation, with only an occasional return for inspiration.

But the University of the Future will find a way to retain its hold upon its alumni as a continuing and permanent part of its service to the world, both for the service they can render the University and the service which the University can render through them to mankind.

Our medical schools are moving in that direction with their clinics for keeping their graduates abreast of the latest advances in their profession, and for the knowledge the school can gain from their extended experience and contact with the needs of society.

The Roman Catholic Church, in many ways the most powerful institution in the world, has found a way in which to consolidate the graduates of its school, seminaries, convicts, and universities into a single cohesive force for exerting its influence upon society. The University of the Future will take a leaf from these two books for a closer integration of its alumni with the parent institution in service as well as sentiment.

While preparing for its 100th Anniversary, Lincoln University is already fixing its sights on the next 100 years. What part can her alumni play in that glorious consummation?

The latest literature on the subject sent out from the University asks for a contribution of $100 or more from each alumnus. As one who dropped the suggestion at our last Class Reunion in 1949, I want tonight to raise the sights on that goal and propose that we make it $1,000 or more from each alumnus.

I want at the same time to propose a plan that will put such a testimonial of gratitude within the reach of every Lincoln man from the oldest survivor to the most recent graduate or candidate for graduation.

FIRST:
Let him who is able give $1,000 or more in cash either now or by the 100th Anniversary Celebration in June, 1954. There are many who can do that. Some have already done it. May their tribe increase!

SECOND:
For him who does not see his way clear to do that, let him put a clause or codicil to his will devising $1,000 to Lincoln. Every intelligent man should make a will, and every Lincoln man should remember his Alma Mater in his will. Too many have failed in this obligation.

THIRD:
Let those whose resources are limited take out a life insurance policy for $1,000, either straight or endowment, and make Lincoln the beneficiary. Every one can do that now. I would like to see every member of each succeeding graduating class exchange a $1,000 policy made out to the University for his diploma. They can do it. At their age, the cost would be small.

It would be a proud and justifiable boast if Lincoln could say at her 100th Anniversary that her alumni have created a Million Dollar Centennial Fund for the University as an expression of gratitude. It would give an inmeasurable boost, not only to Lincoln University, but to all Negro Colleges, among whom she stands as the pioneer.

We have already gone a long way in that direction. If I am not mistaken, the University has already received some $350,000 from her graduates for a Centennial Fund. We still have time to bring it to a million.

The 100th Anniversary of the establishment of Lincoln University is a landmark in the history of Lincoln and, also, in the history of education for Negroes and in the progress of the Negro race.

For at least fifty of these years, Lincoln was the focal point of Negro progress. The occasion is one for celebration, not only by her alumni, but for all the people who have felt her beneficent influence.

The vision of the founding fathers reached out to include a whole race, not only in America, but in Africa as well. The years have seen the ripening, the fulfillment of that vision beyond even their expectations.

Lincoln University was begun in 1854 by John Miller Dickey with a capital investment in the form of a mortgage loan to buy the land. Let us vindicate that faith in the possibilities of a still enslaved people by starting the second hundred years of its history with an Alumni Centennial Fund of One Million Dollars.

ALUMNI SECRETARY CALLS AFRICA TOUR 'INSPIRING'

W. Beverly Carter, Jr., '43, acting executive secretary of the Lincoln University Alumni Association and editor of the Bulletin, is now in West Africa visiting the country at the invitation of the Gold Coast's Prime Minister, the Honorable Kwame Nkrumah, '39, '42s.

Carter, director of Journalists Associates, Philadelphia public relations agency, is accompanied by Julius M. Belecher, a Quaker City accountant. Their trip will include stops in Nigeria, Liberia and Sierra Leone where Carter will contact alumni.

In addition to studying the recent political and governmental changes in that important area of the world, the two men are representing several business concerns with interests there. They will return around the middle of August.

Commenting on his experience at watching African history being made, Carter wrote friends "... It is thrilling and inspiring . . . black men are wrestling with their future against whites who are frightened at the prospect of their expulsion . . . American Negroes would rise as prouder men if they could behold their brothers out here!"

LINCOLN BEQUEATHED $500 BY INSURANCE EXECUTIVE

According to newspaper reports, Lincoln and Shaw universities were bequeathed $500 each by C. C. Spaulding, the noted banker and president of North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Co., who died recently in Durham.

Mr. Spaulding, one of the great Negro leaders of the era, was a trustee of Shaw (as well as North Carolina College, Howard University and the Southern Education Board), but his bequest to Lincoln was remarkable in view of the fact that as far as is known he had never visited the institution.

He was a self-made man who rose to his position by sheer ability.

Robert McRary’s Career One of Fruitful Public Service

“I, Robert Baxter McRary of Baltimore County, State of Maryland, give and bequeath absolutely to the Board of Trustees of Lincoln University . . . . . . .

In these words “the Chesterfield of his generation” described another one of the gracious gestures that earned him, while at Lincoln, his title—the gentleman par excellence.

R. B. McRary graduated from Lincoln University in the class of 1885. He ranked third in a class of 32 persons receiving the A. B. degree, with five other classmates completing the English Course. Among his classmates to achieve distinction were Moses H. Jackson, later the founder of the Grace Presbyterian Church in Chicago; James A. Bonner; William A. Credit, founder of Downing School, of the Beran Savings Company, and of many other business and religious organizations; and Cadd G. O’Kelly, North Carolina educator and business man.

He graduated from the Seminary in 1886. Soon afterward he began his long career as an educator, civic, fraternal, political, and religious leader in North Carolina and in America.

He was principal of the schools at Reidsville, North Carolina; principal of the Normal Department at Livingstone College, founded by his friend and fellow-alumnus, Joseph C. Price, ’79, ’80; as a city magistrate for six years in Lexington; and in many other capacities where his great talents for public service were fully exercised.

Among his other distinctions he counted his work as private secretary to the Honorable T. C. Ford, and as attorney for the estate. Ford was one of the great leaders of the Republican Party in North Carolina; and it was the threat of a combination between the Populist wing of the Democratic Party, and the Republicans— the white farmer element of the State with the Negroes—that provoked in North Carolina, as in other Southern states, the rise of elements hostile to Negro voting, and in a welter of threats, brutalities, intimidations of all sorts, and actual deadly violence, finally succeeded in defeating the aspirations of the Negro for an entire generation.

In this struggle Robert Baxter McRary was at his courageous and indomitable best. He calmly defied the worst that the "Red Shirts"—as the North Carolina reactionaries were called—threatened to do to him; and through his intelligence direction of the Negro and white voters of Lexington, made that section one of the last to succumb to Furnifold Simmons and his "Red Shirt" cohorts.

Dr. McRary was the Grand Master of Prince Hall Masons in North Carolina from 1908 to 1915. He was elected to the highest posts in whatever associations he found himself; and these were many and varied. He was President of the Board of Trustees of Bennett College; held the highest elective posts in the work of the M. E. Church, at home, and in its ecumenical work abroad; and he travelled extensively in Europe, Egypt, and in the Holy Land.

One of the first Negro trustees of Lincoln, Dr. McRary held as one of his most distinguished recollections, his choice to deliver the address at the dedication of the Rendall Memorial Tablet in Mary Dodd Brown Chapel. He was an earnest and grateful student of the great teacher, Isaac N. Rendall, whose influence he counted supreme in his life.

In his will, Dr. McRary directed that Lincoln University should be the residuary legatee of his estate; and he requested that from the proceeds a dormitory be erected on the campus, to bear his name.

He was a cultured man; a man of extreme generosity; a man of exquisite courtliness. Indeed, he might well be chosen as marking the quintessence of the ideal Lincoln University man.

Hail and Farewell—Robert Baxter McRary, generous son of Lincoln University!
Harrisburg Public School Integration
Credited to Efforts of Dr. R. Brown

Dr. Richard A. Brown, '27, Harrisburg physician, has achieved a notable victory in the integration of Negro children in the public schools of Pennsylvania's capital.

In April, the School Board voted to bar all segregation in the schools of the district and to require pupils to attend schools in their respective zone. The president of the board appointed Dr. Brown as one of a committee of three whose duty it will be to see that the ruling is adhered to.

At present, there are three colored elementary schools in Harrisburg. Two will be replaced by new, larger buildings to be attended by pupils of both races. The third, a small building having four teachers, will remain but will be integrated this fall. As a starter in integration of both teachers and pupils, it is planned to add two white teachers in this building and reassign two colored teachers to what was an all-white school.

Dr. Brown was elected to the School Board in the fall of 1949 and is principally responsible for this reversal of a century-old practice in Harrisburg. He has been assisted by three new liberal members of the Board elected last year.

His success in tearing down the moss-encrusted restrictions must take rank among the most outstanding in the annals of the achievements of Lincoln University graduates as crusaders for human rights and equality.

UNIVERSITY CONDUCTS INSTITUTE ON AFRICA

A successful summer institute on African affairs and Negro history was held Aug. 11-30 at Lincoln University with outstanding African and American experts on the problems of the continent as lecturers and resource leaders.

Among the lecturers was Z. K. Matthews, South African educator currently a visiting professor at Union Theological Seminary, who warned that the civil disobedience campaign in his country might erupt at any moment into tragic racial violence unless leaders of other nations and the church worked to end the crisis.

Participants in the conference criticized missionaries who refused to practice the gospel of equality in their daily relationships. By following a policy of segregation, it was stated, American and European missionaries were setting up a "block" to successfully promoting Christianity among natives.

AN OLDER ALMA MATER SONG?

President Bond has discovered a song entitled, "For Lincoln We Will Ever Stand", written by Alexander S. Thompson and published around the turn of the century.

The words are:

"We'll raise the voice in joyful strain,
Our song it shall resound again,
For Lincoln we will ever stand
A firm united brother band
Our wish for her shall ever be;
That she may win an envied place,
And take high honors in the race:
Her watchword ever, unity."

"May her old halls be ever dear,
May her fair fame spread far and near;
We'll ever cherish loyalty
For our dear University,
May all her sons with one accord
Her standard raise 'fore all the world,
In noble cause it is unfurled:
The cause of man, of Christ the Lord."

"Her future may it e'er be bright,
May naught arise to quench her light;
God grant, that fortune's smile, a store
Of wealth into her lap may pour;
That usefulness may be her boast,
That she may train both brain and hand,
And in the vanguard take her stand;
Her followers may they be a host."

No "Alexander S. Thompson" is to be found in our Alumni records. Any information about this song would be greatly appreciated.
AUXILIARY LEADER DISCUSSES GROUP'S FOUR OBJECTIVES

By MRS. AMANDA M. LOCKETT
National President, Ladies Auxiliary

The Ladies Auxiliary of Lincoln University has carried on a very active program this year.

Our Auxiliary has four objectives. The first of these is one of raising funds in order to build a Guest House on the campus where the relatives and friends of Lincoln men can have their headquarters during the many events held on the campus.

Our second objective is the granting of an Annual Scholarship to one or more students who meet the requirements of our Scholarship Committee together with the Dean's recommendation. This year we awarded a $100 Scholarship to Bennie Johnson and a $100 Scholarship to Richard Holmes both sophomores at Lincoln.

Our third objective is the awarding of a $10 prize to a member of the graduating class who has contributed the most to the life of the campus.

Our fourth objective which we adopted this year is the sponsoring of an annual tea after the Homecoming game. Dr. Bond has informed us that the Board of Trustees has granted us the permission to build a Guest House as soon as our plans are submitted to them for their approval. The Executive Board of the Auxiliary authorized the drawing of the blueprints which were presented to us at our meeting here at Lincoln.

We believe in the Ladies Auxiliary. We believe our organization can render a worthwhile contribution to Lincoln University. Lincoln University needs our help and the help of others. We shall continue to work with a sincere effort in the interest of a great institution.

WHIRLWIND JOHNSON OPENS MODERN LYNCHBURG BLDG.

Lincoln men visiting Lynchburg, Va., have been invited to look in on Dr. R. Walter (Whirlwind) Johnson, '47, at the new Johnson Building, 1001-03 Fifth St., which was recently opened.

Modern in every respect, the building is considered one of the finest in the city.

Lion Coaching Changes Hands Again; Grid Squad Faces Tough Schedule

With coaching duties changing hands for the third time in three years and a tough nine-game schedule ahead, Lincoln University's football team is a big question mark where predictions are concerned.

The prospects of another good year for the Lions depends almost entirely on whether Robert N. (Bob) Gardner, who takes over this season as head coach, and his assistant William N. (Wild Bill) Hunter, '47, can rebuild their defensive unit which was well-riddled by graduation.

Making his debut in collegiate coaching circles, Hunter, one-time Lincoln star, will also serve as head coach of basketball and track in addition to teaching physical education.

Gardner, who takes charge of the grid-iron squad after serving as assistant since 1947, is not the crying type of coach and thinks the outlook is fairly bright in view of the nucleus of fine sophomores he has to work with. Biggest Lion loss will be Quarterback Bob Smith and Gardner plans to use Co-Captain Jonas Cowles, the fleet-footed broken-field runner in the signal calling spot.

A star fullback and weightman on the track team at Macalester College, St. Paul, Minn., Gardner served as freshman grid coach at his alma mater after his graduation in 1940. Following a four-year hitch in the Air Corps and his discharge as a captain, he attended the University of Minnesota where he earned another bachelor's degree as well as his master's in physical education.

In addition to his football duties, he is wrestling coach and his matmen have won the CIAA title for the past two years. He succeeds Manuel Rivero, director of physical education, who returned to coaching last year in the absence of Irving Mondchein then on leave to coach Israel's Olympic squad. Rivero, who put together one of the best Lincoln teams in many years, is on sabbatical for the forthcoming semester.

One of Lincoln's great athletes, Hunter was the scourge of the CIAA in football and basketball for four years, winning a position on the mythical all-conference teams. He was captain of both teams, played offensive fullback and defensive half in football and guard in basketball.

Bill was called into the Army in 1942 and served three years, most of it in the South Pacific. After finishing his academic and athletic career at Lincoln in 1947, he earned his master's degree in physical education at Temple University. For the past two years, he has been physical director of the South Camden (N. J.) YMCA where his capable supervision won him a state-wide reputation.

A new adversary on Lincoln's football schedule this year is Scranton University. Ft. Meade was not among Lion opponents last year, but the two teams have met before.

VITAL STATISTICS:
'24, '25, '26, and '47

In a recent study of the birth rate of college graduates conducted by the Population Reference Bureau, the 1924, 1925, and 1926 classes of Lincoln University show an average, twenty-five years after graduation, of .96 child per graduate, thereby placing Lincoln among the lowest four out of 230 colleges reporting on statistics of children per male graduate twenty-five years after graduation. The average for all colleges is 1.77 children per graduate, with Lincoln's class of 1926 showing 1.0; class of 1925, 1.1; and the class of 1924, 0.9.

The only institutions with a lower reproduction rate than Lincoln are Youngstown College, Ohio; Suffolk University, Mass.; and Seton Hall University, N. J. As it may be presumed that a number of the graduates of Seton Hall, which has the lowest average (.39) of all institutions, entered the priesthood and thereby led celibate lives, these averages would indicate that Lincoln men of that generation might have had similar proclivities if not similar careers.

Highest on the reproduction list is Wartburg College, Iowa, with an average of 4.13 children per graduate after twenty-five years. The second institution is Brigham Young University, Utah, with an average of 3.54, which is not surprising for this Mormon university.

The study claims that it is necessary for a college class to have an average of 2.1 children in order to reproduce itself. It is apparent that Lincoln graduates in the period from 1924 to 1926 have less than half the number of children required to sustain the reproduction ratio. The data for the class of 1927, showing an average of 1.47 children per graduate, disclose an upward trend. The class stands eighteenth from the bottom in a list of 103 colleges. However, after only ten years, the class of 1942 shows an average of 1.43 children per graduate, having attained a reproduction rate 50 per cent greater than that of the classes of the middle 1920's. The 1942 Lincoln class ranks forty-first from the bottom in a list of 121 colleges.

Aside from the fact that it is clear that the class of 1942 has shared in the nationwide and astonishing upturn of the American birth rate, these figures are subject to varied explanations. Since it is sometimes believed that the more intelligent people are, the lower their birth rate is, do these figures indicate a decline in the intelligence of Lincoln alumni since the 1920's? Or do they indicate any other kind of superiority of the men of recent years as compared with the supposedly "virile" generation of the 1920's?

As a matter of further interest, the top school in the 1942 list is Brigham Young University, with an average of 2.58 children per graduate after twenty-five years.

BENEFACTRESS

Miss F. Loraine Miller
. . . quiet, selfless, and Christian

Because Miss F. Loraine Miller, a teacher in the public school system of Tonawanda, N. Y., is a firm believer in justice and fair play, nine Lincoln graduates and one former student are among those who have benefited from her generosity and deep interest in Negro education.

As reported by Dr. James H. Robinson in his autobiography, Road without Turning, Miss Miller became interested in Negroes many years ago when the town of Tonawanda, for some reason that no one can now remember, drove them out and never allowed them to return. She decided to aid Negro students as her way of helping to atone for the sin of the white people of her town. Since that incident Miss Miller has helped the following Lincoln men secure an education: Dr. Laurence Foster, '26, James Grasty, '27, Dr. Samuel G. Stevens, '31, '34, Melver C. Felton, '35, Jacob L. Scott, '33, Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, '34, Dr. James H. Robinson, '35, Attorney H. Franklin Brown, '37, Charles Shipley, ex '47, and the Reverend David A. Shodekeh, '48, '50, who is currently working toward the Doctor of Philosophy degree at Yale.

Dr. Robinson has paid Miss Miller an excellent tribute in his autobiography: "Quite a company of us as teachers, social workers and ministers owe a large measure of our success to her quiet, selfless and Christian works of love and compassion. Miss Miller not only helped me complete my college education but gave me a new viewpoint as well."

After her example I could no longer, with equanimity, be guilty of using against white people the same lumping fallacy they used against us. Much as I might like to believe it, in the contrary all white people were not alike, any more than Negroes were all alike. I began slowly to think for myself as a result of Miss Miller's help.
LINCOLN MOURNS PASSING OF TWO SONS

I held it truth, with him who sings
To one dear harp in divers tones,
That men may rise on stepping-stones
Of their dead selves to higher things.
—Tennyson, In Memoriam

Striking twice in less than a month, death claimed two of Lincoln’s staunchest friends and alumni, Dr. Eugene P. Roberts, ’91, of New York City, and Dr. Walter P. Alexander, ’80, of Orange, N. J. Dr. Roberts died January 9 and Dr. Alexander, February 5.

Born in Louisville, N. C., on October 5, 1868, Dr. Roberts entered Lincoln University in 1887 and graduated in 1891. He then matriculated at the New York Homeopathic Medical College, from which he graduated in 1894. At medical school he was a charter member of the Dunham Club, in which he continued active until his death. Immediately after graduation he began the practice of medicine in New York and continued until two months before his death. In 1917 he was named an examiner in the Department of Health, and during the fifteen years that he served as examiner he lectured for the department and spoke to students in the public schools. During his fiftieth year as a practitioner, he was interested in many things, he never forgot his alma mater. He had the distinction of having missed only one Howard-Lincoln game since 1899, and because of his devotion to the athletic program at Lincoln he was named graduate manager of athletics. He also served as a trustee of the institution.

In the thinking of many, both men epitomized the greatness of Lincoln University. They were not only outstanding in their chosen profession, but they also gave generously of their time and effort for the betterment of the communities in which they lived. They placed service above personal gain and others before self, and in so doing they earned the respect and gratitude of the thousands of people with whom they came in contact.

trustee of Lincoln University, Dr. Roberts served several terms as chairman of the board. In 1922 Lincoln conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws upon him. Dr. Alexander, who received the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters in 1939, was born in Lynchburg, Va., on December 3, 1880. He graduated from Lincoln in 1899 and from the Boston College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1903. In 1904, after practicing one year in Kimball, W. Va., he began the practice of medicine in Orange, N. J., where he became influential in civic and professional activities. Organizer of the North Jersey Tuberculosis Society in 1907 and the New Jersey State Medical Association in 1939, he also helped found the National Medical Association. After leaving the presidency of the organization, he continued to wield a great deal of influence as chairman of its board.

Elected president of the New Jersey Tuberculosis League shortly before his death, Dr. Alexander was also a member of the New Jersey Public Health Council, Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll’s Committee on Health and Welfare, and the Medical Advisory Committee of the National Youth Administration. A former president of the New Jersey Urban League, he was also a director of the Essex County Tuberculosis League, the New Jersey Welfare Council, the Orange-Maplewood Welfare Council, and the Fort Dix U.S.O. Home.

Dr. Alexander was elected to the State Legislature in 1919 and at one time served as speaker of the House. Although he was interested in many things, he never forgot his alma mater. He had the distinction of having missed only one Howard-Lincoln game since 1899, and because of his devotion to the athletic program at Lincoln he was named graduate manager of athletics. He also served as a trustee of the institution.

In the thinking of many, both men epitomized the greatness of Lincoln University. They were not only outstanding in their chosen profession, but they also gave generously of their time and effort for the betterment of the communities in which they lived. They placed service above personal gain and others before self, and in so doing they earned the respect and gratitude of the thousands of people with whom they came in contact.

Dr. Horace Mann Bond, President
Lincoln University
Lincoln Univ., Pa.

MY DEAR DR. BOND:

I have just received your Christmas Letter and read it with a great deal of interest. I hadn’t realized that Lincoln would be celebrating its 100th Anniversary in 1954.

My years at Lincoln, 1912–1916 recall none but pleasant memories and I have always felt a great obligation to my Alma Mater. I believe that Dr. Grimm is the only professor still on the faculty who was at Lincoln during my college years. Of course I remember Drs. George and Hallock Johnson, Dr. Finney, Prof. Hodge, Dr. Wright and others who had a part in affording me a fine education. Dr. Grimm will remember me as “the little white boy from Oxford” who wore his first long pants the day he entered Lincoln.

There have been many changes since I was graduated from Lincoln—new faculty members, new buildings and a tremendous forward-looking program. I have always been interested in the quarterly publication and of course in newspaper reports of your fine leadership. As I think back over 36 years I am wondering if Mr. Glenn and “Willie” Skerrett are still at the refectory. Other campus names escape me but you can believe that I haven’t forgotten my years at Lincoln.

I have intended sending a contribution to Lincoln for a long while and, even though I might have afforded it in the past, circumstances have prevented my sending you a check until the present day. Some years ago I talked with Prince Edwoods over the phone and promised him I would send a check “one of these days.” Here it is and I hope that thousands of other Lincoln men will find it possible to come through in response to your appeal.

I expect to be passing through Lincoln one of these days before long and will make it a point to stop by and have the privilege of meeting you personally. In the meantime, my sincere good wishes for your continued success as President of Lincoln University and with Cordial Greetings of the Season, I am

Sincerely yours,
/s/W. Kelton Evans

UNITED NEGRO COLLEGE FUND

Veterans Administration
District Office

District Memorandum No. 2005–65
October 20, 1952

1. I have designated a committee headed by Mr. George T. Drummond to conduct the United Negro College Fund Campaign in this office on Wednesday, October 22, 1952. The committee plans to designate representatives for all units and sections of the office who will solicit contributions from all who desire to contribute to this worthy cause.

2. The work of the United Negro College Fund is characteristically an American story. Its first chapters were written nearly a century ago by men and women who had little to sustain them but faith. Out of that faith came the first colleges for Negro youth in America. This persistent handful of determined men and women knew that in education, learning and skills, good will could be achieved, and that the Negro youth, if given the opportunity, would assume the responsibilities of democratic citizenship. Their persistence wrote many proud names into the history of American colleges—names like Fisk, Tuskegee, Atlanta, Hampton, Lincoln—and others of equal stature though less widely known. It is these institutions that have produced the men and women whose contributions to our national life you share.

3. The United Negro College Fund today is asking you to participate in this campaign to assist the thirty-two member accredited colleges and universities in keeping their doors open in order that the Negro youth may participate in a greater share of education—the American opportunity—the chance for each man, woman and child among us to make the most of themselves. It begins in the nation’s classrooms where the future scientists, the future skilled mechanics, the workers with ideas and the workers with tools, are trained for the good of all.

4. The goal has been set for $1,500,000, and will be used to provide means for more scholarships for deserving students, more teaching and laboratory equipment, more books for libraries, more good teachers and more educational opportunities for good students. Give what you can.

H. J. CROSSON Manager.

DISTRIBUTION: “B”

DR. FARRELL—
The Committee turned over to Mr. Patterson (U.N.C.F.) the sum of $2213.01. I thought it was swell for a first attempt.

The Centennial issue of the Lincoln University Alumni Directory is now in preparation, and every effort is being made to increase the biographical value of the directory. While only a portion of the information requested in the questionnaire will appear in the Centennial issue, you are strongly urged to complete the form and return it to the Office of Public Relations, where it will become a part of the permanent files on graduates and non-graduates.

Please make all answers as complete as possible. If additional space is needed for entries, use a separate sheet of paper and attach it to this form. Include a recent picture if you have one.

The Centennial Directory, which will be indexed alphabetically and geographically, will be released prior to Commencement in June, 1954. The subscription price is $5.00, but whether you subscribe or not, please fill out the form and return it to the Office of Public Relations.

Winter, 1952-1953
Under the able direction of Dean J. Newton Hill, pioneer in the Little Theater Movement in Negro colleges, Christopher Fry's latest blank verse drama, "A Sleep of Prisoners," came vividly to life on the campus on January 16 and 17. Acting honors were equally divided among Bristol Leake, New York; George Braxton, Harrisburg; William Jackson, Philadelphia; and David Robinson, Baltimore, who are shown in a scene from the play when it was presented on February 11 under the auspices of the Lancaster Interracial Council at St. James Episcopal Church, Lancaster, Pa. The play will go to New York, Brooklyn, Baltimore, Washington, and Philadelphia to fulfill other engagements.

Dr. Horace M. Bond flew to London on November 21, 1952, the first stop on his flight to Africa. In London he delivered a deferred diploma to Kobina Mbura, '43, and learned that Dr. David Ekunduyo Boye-Johnson, '36, director of health in Sierra Leone, West Africa, was engaged in a special graduate course in tropical medicine. On November 23 he left London for Accra, the Gold Coast West Africa, arriving there on the following day. A busy two weeks of visitation of educational institutions and conferences with various educational and civil officials of the cabinet followed. Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah, '42, kindly granted an interview to Dr. Bond and through him extended warmest greetings to all Lincoln men. He also saw K. A. B. Jones-Quartey, '42, recently appointed to the important post of deputy director of the Division of Extramural Studies of the University College of the Gold Coast.

At Cape Cod Dr. Bond was entertained by his classmate, the Right Reverend Daniel C. Pope, '33, recently elected bishop for West Africa by the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church.

Leaving Accra on December 11, Dr. Bond made a brief one-day stop at Monrovia, Liberia, where he had a two-hour interview with the Honorable W. V. S. Tubman, president of the Republic of Liberia. Among those present at an evening reception were Thomas Dosumu Johnson, '35, professor of sociology at the University of Liberia, and Major George W. (Shorty) Carter, '30, an instructor of Liberia's armed forces. A four-day stop at Dakar in French West Africa enabled Dr. Bond to visit the various educational institutions of that bustling city, including the Institut de Francais Noir, a truly remarkable research institution. He returned to the United States by way of the Dutch KLM airliner to Caracas, Venezuela, and the Pan-American to New York, where he arrived on December 19.

Less than two weeks later Lincoln's busy president departed for Pasadena, Cal., where from January 2-4 he attended a special conference on the Inequalities in Education of Minority Groups. The conference was called by the Ford Foundation. From January 6-9 he attended the meeting of the Association of American Colleges at Los Angeles, and from January 10-13 the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the United Negro College Fund in San Francisco. While there he spoke on January 11 at the morning services of Calvary Presbyterian Church. Both in Los Angeles and in San Francisco Dr. Bond met with alumni.

Other engagements: February 1, National Freedom Day, Philadelphia; February 2, Tenth Anniversary Celebration of the Rev. Wyatt B. Johnson, '36, '39s, Jethro Presbyterian Church, Atlantic City; February 12, national meeting of Alpha

STUDENT NEWS AND NOTES

On the basis of scholarship, leadership in extra-curricular activities, service to the school, and promise of future usefulness to society, the six seniors pictured above have been named to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." Seated (l. to r.): Donald Stocks, Pittsburgh; Kalu Ezera, Nigeria; and Bernard C. Jenkins, Wilmington. Del. Standing (l. to r.): Martin L. Kilson, Jr., Ambler, Pa.; Theodore R. Whitney, Philadelphia; and Samuel R. Diamond, Jr., Harrisburg. Stocks and Ezera are recipients of "The Lincolnian" Award to outstanding students. Kilson, Stocks, and Ezera are political science majors. Whitney and Diamond are pre-medical students, while Jenkins is taking the pre-medical course.

Mugo Gatheru, a student from Kenya, East Africa, was requested by the United States Immigration Office on November 5, 1952, to leave the country within thirty days or steps would be taken to force him to do so. No reason for this action was given at the time, nor has any reason been given since the request was made. An organization, composed mainly of faculty members and students, has been formed to help Gatheru, and the law firm of McDougal and Mais has been retained to handle the case. A request for a hearing has caused a temporary stay of action, but Gatheru has been informed that when his visa expires in April, he will be expected to leave the country. Before coming to Lincoln, Gatheru attended Roosevelt College in Chicago and Bethune-Cookman College, Daytona Beach, Fla. His case has attracted nation-wide interest, and nearly $1000 has been contributed to the Friends of Mugo Gatheru Fund, of which Dr. Thomas Jones, associate professor of history, is chairman, and Dr. H. Alfred Farrell is treasurer.

The Lincoln University Players, under the direction of Abram Hill, visiting instructor in dramatics, scored a resounding success with their first production of the school year, "Of Mice and Men" by John Steinbeck, on November 19 and 20, 1952. In the cast were James Warden and Bristol Leake, New York; Sidney Allen, William Jackson, and Donald Dudley, Philadelphia; William Rader, Allentown, Pa.; Eddie Mitchell, Pittsburgh; Prince Browne, Nigeria; James Moore, Sumter, S. C.; and Mrs. Gloria Daniel, Chester, Pa. Under the experienced coaching of Mr. Hill, drama activity at Lincoln is steadily gaining new impetus with a three-fold purpose as its goal, including training participants in theater craft, entertaining and enlightening the spectator, and building good will for the University by presenting drama in urban centers.

The Lincoln University Glee Club, under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern, appeared on the Freedom Day program in Philadelphia on February 1. The group returned to Philadelphia on February 8 for appearances on the Founders' Day program of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority and at the Church of the Atonement for Father Matthew Davis, '31. The Glee Club has several spring engagements on its calendar.

Nu Chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity presented Julia Ivey, pianist, in recital on Tuesday evening, January 15. Miss Ivey, a brilliant and talented artist, has given numerous performances in the Philadelphia and New York areas as well as in many Southern cities. Her program was made up of selections from Bach, Brahms, and Beethoven.

The Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners for Scientific and Technical Personnel of the Potomac River Naval Command has announced an examination for student aid trainees in chemistry, metallurgy, physics, mathematics, and engineering for duty in activities within the Potomac River Naval Command and the Engineer Center, Fort Belvoir, Department of the Army. Applications will be accepted until further notice. This examination will be used to recruit college students for both the cooperative education plan and the summer employment plan. Applicants should indicate on their Form 57, at the time of taking the written test, whether or not they are interested in the cooperative education plan. This plan has a program wherein a student alternates at designated intervals during the year between academic college instruction in residence at a participating college and work experience training at one of the Federal establishments. In the summer employment plan, a student is employed only during the summer vacation period and attends college during the entire regular college term. Applicants must be citizens of or owe allegiance to the United States, must have reached their eighteenth birthday, but must not have passed their thirty-fifth birthday on the date of filing application, and must be physically able to perform efficiently the duties of the positions. File application card Form 5000-AB only. Be sure to show the title of the examination and the field in which you wish to be examined. Other required forms will be forwarded with your notice of admission to the examination. Form 5000-AB may be secured from the Executive Secretary, Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners for Scientific and Technical Personnel of the Potomac River Naval Command, Building 57, Naval Research Laboratory, Washington 25, D. C.; Regional Director, Fourth U. S. Civil Service Region, Temporary Building "R," Third and Jefferson Drive, S. W., Washington 25, D. C.; or any first- or second-class post office, except in cities where a U. S. Civil Service Regional Office is located. Send the application form to the Executive Secretary.

The Textile and Leather Division of the Research and Development Laboratories at the Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot, 2800 South 26th Street, is in need of technical personnel with research experience in the general fields of physics, physical chemistry, and engineering or other technology which may be applicable to studies of fibers, fibrous structures and fabrics. These positions are covered by the provisions of Federal Civil Service employment. The present staff in these laboratories contains a well trained nucleus of technologists in these fields to which it is desired to add project managers, group leaders, and technical aides to open new fields and to strengthen existing fields of investigation in textile technology. Interested persons should write for additional information to Arthur J. Jones, Chief, Employee Utilization Branch, Civilian Personnel Office.

The Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company will train outstanding mathematics majors who want to become actuaries in all phases of actuarial work. There are several summer jobs opened to qualified undergraduates interested in an actuarial career. For complete information write Harry W. Jones, Vice-President, The Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company, 300 Broadway, Newark, N. J.

Careers in underwriting, claims, field representation and other services are open to young men challenged by work involving analysis, judgment, and business decisions. Those interested should contact H. Paul Abbott, Director of Education, North America Companies, 1600 Arch Street, Philadelphia 1, Pa.

Careers in advertising, merchandising, and sales are available for college men with imagination and ideas. Write the Vick Chemical Company, 122 East 42nd Street, New York 17, N. Y.

If you are interested in research, development, market analysis, engineering, production, or sales, you may be able to share in the growth of one of the leading chemical process companies, American Viscose Corporation. Write the company and give your major subject and job interest, and you will be advised of your opportunities. Address all correspondence to the Technical and Professional Recruiting Division, American Viscose Corporation, 1617 Pennsylvania Boulevard, Philadelphia 3, Pa.

General Motors now has openings in the following fields: mechanical engineering, metallurgical engineering, electrical engineering, chemical engineering, industrial engineering, and business administration. Write to the Personnel Staff, General Motors Corporation, Detroit 2, Mich.

Phillips Petroleum Company offers a wide variety of opportunities for college graduates in a broad field of activities. Openings are now available for graduates in business administration, engineering, and other technical fields. For further information write D. R. McKeithan, Director, Personnel Procurement, Phillips Petroleum Company, Bartlesville, Okla.

For details about the Westphinghouse Plan for college graduates, write to the Educational Department, Westphinghouse Electric Corporation, East Pittsburgh, Pa., for a copy of "Finding Your Place in Industry."

The Morningside Community Center, 300 West 122nd Street, New York, N. Y., has several job opportunities for young men interested in an interracial summer camp experience. Students from colleges and universities all over the country come to Morningside Camps as counselors and other workers. The salary scale is in line with the American Camping Association policy of wages and salaries. Interested persons should contact George E. Twine, '42, at the Morningside Center. Dr. James H. Robinson, '35, is the founder and director of the camps.

Camp Linden at Northbrook, Pa., is in need of men camp counselors for the month of August only. The camp is operated by United Neighbors Association. Interested persons should write Mrs. Chester R. Leighty, United Neighbors Association, 239 Cattharine Street, Philadelphia 47, Pa.

The American Heart Association has established fellowships to develop a continuing program of productive research and to develop future leaders in the broad field of cardiovascular function and disease. Two classes of fellowships are awarded annually as follows:

1. Fellowships for established investigators, open to individuals of proven superiority and originality with a Doctorate or equivalent degree, who are interested in a career in research.

2. Research fellowships, open to graduates of approved medical or graduate schools who are interested in research and intend to follow an academic career.

Career investigatorships are available to a few outstanding persons of unusual ability and originality.

The American Heart Association also will support Grants-in-Aid for research in cardiovascular function or disease, or related fundamental problems for periods of from one to five years, subject to annual review.

Applications for Research Fellowships, for Established Investigatorships, and for Grants-in-Aid are considered once a year (Continued on page 17)

BASKETBALL TEAM

The basketball team had an ill-fated season this year, winning only 4 games out of a 24-game schedule. Of these 24 games, 11 were non-conference games.

Beginning his first year as basketball coach, William (Wild Bild) Hunter faced the problem of fielding a team with only four returning lettermen. Of these, only Jonas Cowles and Ted Ellis had been in the starting line-up while Joe Kenney and Jonas Cowles had been subs. Although Harold Smith and Adolph Johnson returned to school, their scholastic loads were too great to permit them to participate.

The team's greatest loss was last year's captain and high-point man, Bob Smith, a three-letter man for four years. Karlos LaSane, Van Taylor, Thatcher Nance, and Al Ferguson, all promising freshman team members last year, did not return to school this year.

Moving up from the junior varsity and grabbing a starting berth was Tom Miller, whose impressive victory has led to an invitation to participate in the national tournament of the NCAA at Penn State on March 27 and 28.

WRESTLING TEAM

For the third straight year Coach Bob Gardner's wrestlers captured the CIAA wrestling crown in the wrestling and boxing tournament held here February 27 and 28. Led by Captain Clayton Cavother, who now rules the 147-pounders for the third straight year, the matmen grabbed their most decisive tournament win by taking six individual championships and amassing a total of 47 points. Those winning championships were Herman Graham, last year's 128-lb. champion who moved into the 130-lb. class; Edisson Hairston, 137-lb.; Captain Carothers, 147-lb.; Robert Cobbs, last year's runner-up and this year's champion in the 157-lb. class; and newcomers Moynamiah Choudry, 123-lb., and Jerome Cooper, 167-lb. James Keaton and Theodore Ellis, and Coach William Hunter.

DR. H. ALFRED FARRELL spent two weeks (January 14-28) contacting alumni in and near the following Southern cities: Norfolk, Roanoke, Winston-Salem, Durham, Wilmington, Charleston, Orangeburg, Savannah, Augusta, Atlanta, and Tuskegee. The purpose of the trip was to acquaint alumni with plans for the Centennial.

DR. PAUL KUEHNER attended the sessions of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools in Atlantic City on Friday, February 8 while DEAN J. NEWTON HILL attended the Saturday sessions. On January 22 Dr. Kuehner journeyed to Harrisburg to represent Lincoln at the annual high school-college night. Some sixty colleges were represented, and several students expressed an interest in Lincoln.

PROFESSOR J. B. MACRAE attended the meeting of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and a conference on the Cooperative Testing Program in Memphis in December. He also represented Lincoln at the CIAA meeting held in Washington in December. In January DEAN MACRAE attended a meeting, called by the Area Y. M. C. A. in Philadelphia, to seek ways of recruiting good men for "Y" secretaries.

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR DONALD YELTON, University librarian, attended the ceremonies connected with the donation of the William Cabell Phillips collection of rare

January 29, on “What the Church Is Doing in the French Cameroun.” Having had a wide range of experience over many years, Dr. Anderson was able to give interesting insights into the present situation in that part of West Africa. By its integrated program of preaching, teaching, and healing, the Presbyterian Mission has built up an independently organized church with over 60,000 members.

The Rev. Robert N. Peirce, director of the Cameroun Christian College at Libamba, addressed students and faculty members on Tuesday, February 3, on the great opportunities in Africa for presenting the simple gospel of “He who has the Son, has the life.” He said that the college is hoping to send one of its graduates to Lincoln’s Seminary next year.

Charles H. Bynum, ‘27, gave an interesting report on his personal experiences and observations in Europe last summer when he appeared before students and faculty members on Tuesday, February 10. He was a member of the five-man team sent on a “Layman’s Inquiry” by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions to evaluate the work of the Board in Europe and the conditions and opportunities for “fraternal workers” in this phase of the overseas outreach of the Church. The group found the Protestant workers and churches facing great odds in rehabilitation problems, desperate needs of refugees and displaced persons, and Roman Catholic opposition, especially in Italy, Spain, and Portugal. Director of inter racial activities in the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Bynum told how the March of Dimes had ended a successful campaign with a total fund of $47,000,000 for fighting the ravages of polio and aiding in the rehabilitation of its victims.

Dr. Robinson Permitted to Keep Passport

Dr. James H. Robinson, '35, pastor of the Church of the Master, has been permitted by the State Department to keep his passport which it earlier had requested. And only last year Dr. Robinson was applauded by the same State Department for his forthright answers to questions fired at him across the sea by Indian and Asiatic peoples who wanted to know about the treatment of Negroes in America. It is believed that the State Department withdrew its request for the passport when a number of individuals and organizations, learning of the request from the State Department to Dr. Robinson, wired, wrote, and telephoned the Department to protest its action.

Dr. Robinson, who was charged with sponsoring several youth groups of supposedly Communist leaning, was told by the Department to disregard its request for his passport since his case did not fall within the scope of passport regulations designed to keep persons from travelling outside of the country, whose travel is considered by the Department as “not in the national interest.” Friends of the noted cleric had planned a mass meeting in his defense, but the quiet withdrawal of the charges against him transformed the meeting into a victory celebration.

Lincoln University in Cooperative Testing Program

Lincoln University has joined with twelve other institutions in a Cooperative Intercollegiate Examination program which will be administered by the Educational Testing Bureau. The other colleges participating in the cooperative endeavor are Bishop College, Clark College, Dillard University, Fisk University, Johnson C. Smith University, Knoxville College, Le Moyne College, Morehouse College, Morris Brown College, Spelman College, Talladega College, and Tougaloo College. The examination results may be used to determine either scholarship awards or admission to the institutions. Students who failed to register for the examination before February 25 may take the examination at the center nearest to them on the scheduled date in March by paying a late registration fee of fifty cents. Alumni and near centers where the tests are scheduled are urged to direct students in their selection of a college.

New Yorker Impressed by Lincoln and Graduates

Three years ago a New York lawyer happened to drive by Lincoln University and was interested enough to come in and make inquiries about the institution. He was so pleased with what he saw and heard that before leaving he established a $300 scholarship for a deserving student.

Last June the same lawyer met his old classmate William (Bill) Colden, Lincoln University class of 1925, at a University of Michigan Law School reunion. He was so pleased with what he learned of Colden’s standing in his Detroit community that he immediately wrote to Lincoln University to offer another $300 scholarship.

By their fruits shall ye know them! Thanks to you, Bill Colden!

Lincoln Graduates Getting Internationally Minded

A recent survey of graduates of Lincoln University during the last five years shows that nearly 200 out of a total of 423 have entered medical, law, theological, or graduate schools despite the large number called into military service immediately after receiving their diplomas. The survey also reveals that an increasing number of Lincoln men are studying at universities in Canada and Europe. Graduates of the school are now attending the University of Amsterdam, Holland; Oxford and the University of London, England; Queens University, Ireland; the University of Ontario, Canada; the University of Brussels, Belgium; the University of Geneva, Switzerland; the Sorbonne (University of Paris), France; and the University of Munich, Germany.

published quarterly for the friends and alumni of Lincoln everywhere
On April 18, 1953, the Board of Trustees agreed that "the day of usefulness for Lincoln as primarily a Negro college is coming to a close. The new purpose of Lincoln should be the development of a completely interracial University, which will conserve the rich heritage of Lincoln, and enable it to be a leader in the natural course of the removal of all artificial barriers in all educational institutions."

This is a statement quite as historic for the institution as that made by John Miller Dickey one hundred years before when, in an address delivered in 1853 before associated colonization societies at the First Presbyterian Church in Oxford, he laid down the then-revolutionary proposal that there be established an institution for the higher education of "young colored men."

To a degree far greater than most American institutions, and certainly equal in fact to other contemporary colleges, Lincoln University has always been an "interracial college." What the Trustees now propose goes far beyond the conception of an "interracial college" as now realized in the majority of American colleges. We have always had the physical presence of white with Negro students on the campus; and for more than twenty years have had an interracial Board, faculty, and student body, which has become the norm of definition of an "interracial college," according to the minimum standards now prevailing on the American college scene.

But our goal is now set higher. The implications of that goal are expressed in the Centennial theme adopted by the Board of Trustees at the same meeting, "Free Persons in a Free World through Education and Brotherhood."

As William Hallock Johnson said in commenting on this theme, "The word ‘brotherhood’ retains the historic religious meaning of Lincoln University." We have been an institution founded under God to realize, in a specific application to Negroes, the duties the Sons of God owe to their brothers.

We now become an institution openly committed to the realization of the great religious imperative of brotherhood for all men. This will not be an easy task. The tight, self-contained religious or racial community is always easier to maintain, to direct, and to guide toward unanimity of opinion.

Lincoln's new policy poses a great challenge to all of its constituent parts—Board, Faculty, Students, Alumni. What can the Alumni do to help? With the rest of the University community, the Alumni face the challenge of extricating an institution from a century of existence in a separate and segregated social system.

The Alumni, doubtless, will have their own ideas; and their suggestions are always welcomed. We may here be permitted to raise several queries. How interracial are you? How many persons of other races do you know? With how many interracial agencies and groups in your community do you work? If asked to help Lincoln recruit white students, what interracial contacts can you muster to the task?

The Alumni will realize that the goal now set is one of gigantic proportions, involving them individually as well as collectively. We aim at no less a goal than a revolution in one of the most stubbornly entrenched socio-caste systems now in existence in the world.

If Lincoln University now proposes to become an "interracial" University, it has every right to ask its Board of Trustees, its Faculty, its Alumni, and its Students to take thought and action toward the same goal. Let us think, and seek to live, within the framework of total fellowship, human brotherhood, and the unity of all men under the Fatherhood of God.

Sincerely,

Horace M. Bond

THE COVER

The beauty of Lincoln's campus is evident during all seasons of the year; but to many a Lincoln man given to nostalgia, it is prettiest during the spring when the grass starts growing green and the trees begin to bud. The scene on the cover is a section of Maple Drive just beyond Cresson Hall.

HAVE YOU REMEMBERED LINCOLN UNIVERSITY IN YOUR WILL?

FORM OF BEQUEST

To the trustees of The Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $… to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
LINCOLN'S ACCREDITATION REVIEWED

In keeping with its policy to review accreditation of schools periodically, the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools sent an evaluation committee to the campus during the last week of February to evaluate Lincoln's educational programs. Members of the committee invaded classrooms, laboratories, offices, dormitories, and the library to see for themselves how the institution is being managed. Prior to the arrival of the committee the President was sent a four-page questionnaire to be answered and returned to the Association's Commission on Institutions and Higher Education. A fifty-page report with accompanying data was submitted to the Commission more than a month before the visit of the committee.

The questionnaire is printed below in its entirety to give alumni, former students, and friends of the University some idea of the complexity involved in running an institution of higher learning. Although the official report of the committee has not been transmitted to the University, President Bond and the members of the Administrative Committee were informed verbally that the committee would not recommend any change in the present "A" rating of the institution.

Sections of the report will be printed in the summer issue of The Bulletin in line with its policy to keep alumni, former students, and friends of the University informed of matters concerning the institution.

The Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools Commission on Institutions of Higher Education

QUESTIONNAIRE

1. What are the purposes of the institution in receiving students as stated:
   a. In the charter
   b. In the catalog
2. Have there been, in recent years, studies or reviews on behalf of the institution or any of its component units, looking toward a new statement of purpose?
3. State the objectives established by each of the instructional divisions of the institution.
4. To what extent can the purposes and objectives as stated, in answer to the preceding questions, be carried out by the institution with its present program, organization and resources?
5. Is there a demonstrable relationship between institutional purposes and objectives and the needs of the community which the institution serves?

II. PROGRAM

All questions apply alike to undergraduate, graduate and professional schools.

1. Is provision made for the study and evaluation of the institutional program in the light of the purposes and objectives of the institution? How?
2. Have recent studies been made under the provisions referred to above?
3. Attach a table or tables showing:
   a. Curricula offered.
   b. Degree or diploma granted upon completion of each curriculum.
   c. Majors or fields of concentration available in each curriculum.
   d. Enrollment in each concentration field.
   e. Total enrollment in each curriculum.
   f. Number of graduates last year from each curriculum.
4. Are there distinctive curricular features to which the institution desires to direct attention?
5. To what officer(s) or committee is the responsibility for the study and evaluation of instruction assigned?
6. Describe procedures employed to maintain uniformity of instructional standards:
   a. Within departments
   b. Between departments
   c. Between schools
7. Are there distinctive instructional procedures such as use of audio-visual aids, field trips, internships, programs, etc., to which the institution desires to draw attention?
8. What officers are responsible for instructional supervision?
9. Describe procedures in the training and supervision of inexperienced teachers.
10. Give table showing by departments within colleges, distribution of all grades (exclusive of physical education) assigned to students during one semester of the past academic year. Summaries for each college should also be submitted.
11. Describe procedures for coordination of library operations and instructional program.
12. Describe the services and activities available for the development of student health and welfare.
13. Institutions offering graduate courses are requested to prepare a chart showing:
   a. Departments in which graduate work is offered.
   b. Advanced degrees offered, and fields in which obtainable.
   c. Total number of courses available to both advanced undergraduate and graduate students offering credit for either degree.
   d. Number of students obtaining advanced degrees in each field of concentration during last full academic year.
14. What is the policy of the institution on allowing credit for degree purposes of work done in extension, summer session, or at another institution?

III. ORGANIZATION

1. Supply an organization chart (or charts) showing the component parts of the institution and their relationship, and the responsibilities and relationships of the governing board, administrative officers, important committees, etc.
2. Supply a copy of any written material defining the functions of trustees, faculty, and administrative staff.
3. Describe any recent studies of the administrative organization or the competence and adequacy of its personnel.
4. (a) Prepare a summary table of characteristics concerning your faculty members to include their classification according to rank, the number of members with earned Master's and Doctor's degrees, the distribution of age, years employed at your institution, contact hours, semester hours and nine months salary. Include in this summary, also, the ratio of faculty to the number of students.
   (b) What is the salary range for the various faculty ranks?
5. Show faculty assigned to each department, indicating which are full time and which are part time teachers.
6. State the policy of the institution with respect to freedom of teaching.
7. What are the provisions with respect to rank, tenure, retirement, group insurance?

Hewlett, '39, '41s, pastor of Sargent Memorial Presbyterian Church, Washington, D. C. Dr. Wilson was master of ceremonies, and music was rendered by a group of former Lincoln Glee Club members under the direction of Mrs. Wilson. There were some 170 persons in attendance at the dinner with representatives from Morgan State College, Baltimore, Md.; Bel Air, Md.; and North Carolina College at Durham.

I"LL REMEMBER

. . . crystalline snow falling campus white quilted . . .
  the winding descending road to the village . . .

. . . seared leaf,
  browned entity,
  drifting down to the heath in autumnal tone motion . . .
  bonfire sparks ascending against a midnight sky . . .

. . . evening sun viewed below the Oxford spire . . .
  woodpecker rapping the trees, and another Lincoln spring . . .

. . . solemn fraternal processions . . .
  light diffusing the chapel window . . .

. . . sun-dozed hours and days of rain . . .
  Maple Drive's autumnal trees . . .

. . . and I'll remember the grass growing green.

Founder's Day Dinner in Philadelphia

The Philadelphia Chapter of the Lincoln University General Alumni Association held its annual Founder's Day Dinner at the Hotel Bellevue-Stratford at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, February 24. The principal participants were seated just before the main course was served.

Seated in the front row (left to right) are Bishop John W. Martin, '02, '05s, alumni honoree; the Reverend Dr. Leonard G. Carr, '33s, pastor of Vine Memorial Baptist Church and chairman of the Founder's Day Committee; the Reverend Dr. Rex Clements, pastor of Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church and the principal speaker; Father Matthew Davis, '31, rector of St. Monica's Episcopal Church; Dr. Horace M. Bond, '23, president of Lincoln University; and Willis Hare, '35, president of the Philadelphia Chapter. Standing (left to right): Bishop C. C. Alleyne of the Sixth Episcopal District of the A. M. E. Zion Church, a member of the Sponsoring Committee; Dr. William Fontaine, '30, assistant professor of philosophy at the University of Pennsylvania and alumni speaker; Dr. Charles A. Lewis, '05, a member of the Sponsoring Committee; the Reverend William P. Stevenson, '26, '28s, pastor of Ruffin Memorial African Methodist Episcopal Church and a member of the Sponsoring Committee; the Reverend A. E. Rancin, '07, former pastor of McDowell Presbyterian Church and a member of the Sponsoring Committee; and Dr. Andrew Murray, dean of the Lincoln University Theological Seminary. Father Davis was master of ceremonies, and music was furnished by the Lincoln University Octette. Dr. Bond presented the Abraham Lincoln Awards for distinguished service to Bishop Martin and Dr. Clements.

Delivered at the Philadelphia Founder's Day Dinner

Religion as taught and engendered by Lincoln University imbues one, among other things, with four ideas: the divine existence, the positive value of human life, of man as generic type, and the positive value of each individual life. How different this is from the atheism of Nietzsche with its devaluation of the human type, "You have advanced from worm to man but much of you is still worm." How different from the nihilistic, 'devil take the hindmost' philosophy of Dostoyevsky, in the cunning statement "If God doesn't exist then anything goes." How vastly different from that spurious catch-phrase of the Marxist, "Religion is the opiate of the people." Stainsesque Marxism substitutes for God the dialectic, a curious metaphysical principle which proffers the infinite value of mankind on the one hand, the divine right of its indiscriminate destruction on the other. The dialectic is too erratic. I would rather take a chance on a God I cannot see, than a dialectic I cannot elect. In a free world I can choose God or devil, but the dialectic consigns me without decision or redress to the whims of bureaucratic policy.

Three types of men have characterized Lincoln since its inception: the founding fathers who, in an age of social turmoil, built the institution among the sequestered hills. To build a school for the education of Negro youth in such a time of religious, sectional and social turmoil indeed required divine inspiration. The Know-Nothing party was harrying the Catholics in the North and John C. Calhoun was spuming his race-baiting invective over the seething nation. Life would be easy if human reason and action were commensurate with the tasks presented but this is not the case. Superhuman tasks require superhuman ideals. The works of Lincoln's founders and teachers are testimony of the truth of this principle.

The products of Lincoln are men who possess a profound belief in the value of human life—the depressed millions for whom Azikiwe and Nkrumah labor, the underprivileged blacks and the unwitting whites for whom Thurgood Marshall labors, the ideal of integration for which Horace Bond and Laurence Foster and Edward Cunningham labor, the globe-wide messages of freedom shouted by Jimmy Robinson—these are spiritual emanations from the religious idea which is the heart and core of Lincoln.

And finally there are the common men of Lincoln, those silent contributors who are making lives but not the headlines. Those whose humble contributions are in many instances yet more magnificent. The nostalgic athlete, now old, but who encourages a neighborhood urchin to remain in school through the lure of athletic fame. The fluffy, well domesticated old codger whose only contribution consists of the smiling wife of his youth and six well-mannered kids. Even the faithful alumnus, who otherwise remains nondescript but, who at Homecoming assembles for one last bibulous look at youthful days gone by.

What has been Lincoln's contribution to the world? I give you these three, the religious pioneers, the global fighters for freedom and equality, the common man, magnificent in his anonymity.
Lincoln men of the Bridgeport-New Haven area are shown with Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, executive assistant to the president, who invaded New England in March to discuss Centennial plans with alumni. Seated around the table are Dr. Frank G. Elliott, '35; Sidney Bridgeforth, '49; Wesley E. C. Holmes, ex '23; Raynold L. Gordneer, '32; Dr. Farrell; Dr. William H. Pitts, '37; George F. Clarke, '36; and John (Tad) Lancaster, '26. Gordneer, a regional director, is working to organize a Southern New England Chapter of the General Alumni Association.

Boston alumni hung out the welcome mat for Lincoln's peripatetic executive assistant on Wednesday, March 25, and generously showered him with New England hospitality. Seated in the picture are (l. to r.) Archibald Berry, '11; Dr. Farrell; the Rev. William Rives, '12; George Charlestone, '29; Dr. William Worthy, '04; and Attorney John W. Schenck, ex '90. Standing (l. to r.): Melville Spriggs, ex '45; E. O. Berry, '12; Dr. Silas (Shag) Taylor, '99; Julian Himes, ex '43; and Dr. Baleom S. Taylor, '26. The Rev. Mr. Rives, president of the Boston Chapter of the General Alumni Association, and Dr. Silas Taylor, a regional director, heartily endorsed the plans that are being made for the celebration of Lincoln's Centennial.

NOTED SCHOLAR DIES

Oscar Gacitua, Chilean pianist, was presented in recital on Tuesday, March 17, at 8:00 p.m. His program, consisting of selections from Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Debussy, and Prokofieff, was well received by the audience. Mr. Gacitua, who recently made an auspicious United States debut in New York’s Town Hall, was hailed by critics as deft, accurate, and highly expressive.

Rabbi Herbert E. Drooz of Temple Beth Emeth in Wilmington, Del., spoke at chapel services on Thursday, March 19. Speaking on the subject of “Judaism and Social Justice,” Rabbi Drooz stressed the age-long emphasis of Hebrew religion on the ethical aspects of the messianic kingdom, or “Kingdom of God” in human life. Following his chapel talk, Rabbi Drooz discussed “The Bible and Democracy” with students and faculty of the Seminary. In the afternoon he met with a combined class in English history and economics to discuss the historic role of the Jew in European, English, and American life. He did much to help Lincoln men understand the Jewish point of view and the program for social action.

Miss Margaret Flory, secretary for Student Work in the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, gave an illuminating talk on her recent flying tour of student centers in Asia at the chapel period on Tuesday, March 24. From Bangkok to Beirut, Miss Flory’s traveling companion was Mrs. Rosa Page Welch, noted Negro soloist, who helped the people of Thailand, India, Pakistan, and Syria-Lebanon catch the spirit of Christ through her soulful interpretations of Negro spirituals as well as through contact with her rich personality. In the afternoon Miss Flory spoke to the Ladies’ Missionary Society and their guests from neighboring missionary societies.

Professor Paul Mercier, a member of the staff of the Institute Francaise d’Afrique Noire Occidentale at Dakar, was the speaker at the University Assembly on Tuesday, April 14. He is appearing in this country under the auspices of the French Government. Following his morning talk on the subject of “Changing African Societies,” Professor Mercier addressed classes in history, sociology, and French.

The Rev. Frederick S. Price was guest preacher on Sunday, April 26. Pastor of the Memorial Presbyterian Church in Lancaster, Pa., the Rev. Mr. Price spoke on “The Persistent Love of God.” Dr.

STUDENT NEWS AND NOTES

The Lincoln University Glee Club presented the Jewish Young Folk Singers of New York City in a concert of music of many lands on Friday, March 27, at 8:00 p.m. Under the direction of Robert DeCormier, the group sang songs of many nationalities in their original language. Negro spirituals and English translations of foreign folk songs were also included in the concert, which featured Earl Robinson's "Ballad for Americans." The solo was sung by Roland V. Jones, a student in the Lincoln University Theological Seminary, who has been a member of various singing groups under the direction of Mr. DeCormier.

The Student Senate and the Social Science Club presented the Honorable V. K. Krishna Menon, the alternate Indian delegate to the United Nations, to a capacity audience in Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel on Tuesday, April 14, at 8:00 p.m. Mr. Menon, who introduced the Korean truce proposal in the United Nations, spoke on "India and the United Nations." He told the audience that India stands with the people who seek to better their status. Pointing out that cynicism among people can be fatal, Mr. Menon urged everyone to give his support to the program of the United Nations, which is desperately trying to bring peace to the world.

You cannot run away from a weakness; you must some time fight it out or perish; and if that be so, why not now, and where you stand.

LINCOLN BULLETIN
The Pennsylvania State College of Optometry has announced the availability of a four-year full tuition scholarship (monetary value $650.00 a year), which is offered annually to a qualified graduate of a Pennsylvania institution of higher learning. Applicants are judged on the basis of high school record, college record, and the recommendations of the authorities of the college awarding the Bachelor degree. Applications for the scholarship must be received by June 15, 1953. The recipient will be notified between July 15 and August 1.

Because of the acute shortage of professional college, school, and public librarians, the Carnegie Corporation of New York has made it possible for the Atlanta University School of Library Service to offer four five-hundred dollar and ten three-hundred dollar scholarships to interested and qualified students for the 1953-54 school year. Interested persons should write to Mrs. Virginia L. Jones, director of the School of Library Service.

Predoctoral fellowships are available for Negroes in the biological and physical sciences related to medicine through funds provided by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The fellowships cover a period of one to three years depending upon the time needed for completion of the Doctor of Philosophy degree. The program of the first year's work should be presented in detail together with evidence of approval by the institution concerned. If the request is for more than one year's study, the subsequent program with evidence of approval by the institution must be received four months before the beginning of the second year's work. The candidate should submit the names of three references from whom confidential information may be obtained concerning his professional qualifications. Stipends ordinarily range from $150 to $300 per month during each year of the fellowship, but will vary from $400 to $1200 for a period of one to three years depending on the field of study.

The Central Trust Company of Cincinnati, one of the hundred largest banks in the United States and the oldest trust company in Ohio, wants high caliber college graduates of character and ability to train as specialists in selling, investments, accounting, lending, systems and methods, operations, advertising, market research, foreign banking, and personal trust and corporate trust services. Usually within two years a qualified college graduate may expect to be an administrative assistant, assistant branch manager, assistant department manager, credit or investment analyst, or business development specialist. For further information write to Mr. Albert A. Graves, Personnel Director, The Central Trust Company, Fourth and Vine Streets, Cincinnati 1, Ohio.

College graduates are invited to investigate career opportunities available with Anchor Hocking Glass Corporation. Classifications covered by the corporation's on-the-job training program include accounting, personnel, sales, production, supervision, chemistry majors, and mechanical, electrical, industrial, ceramic and design engineering as well as many others. More than ten thousand employees work in thirteen plants located in Ohio, Indiana, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, California, and Canada, and in forty-five sales offices located in principal cities throughout the United States and Canada. The graduate has the advantage of working with a smaller group where individual talent and initiative are recognized and where he can be a part of a large organization which offers broad opportunity, economic stability, and a sound lasting career. To arrange for interviews or to obtain further information write to the Personnel Department, Anchor Hocking Glass Corporation, Lancaster, Ohio.

For full information on job opportunities with the Food Machinery and Chemical Corporation, write to the Industrial Relations Department, San Jose, Calif., or Industrial Relations Department, Westvaco Chemical Division, 161 East 42nd Street, New York 17, N. Y. Inquiries from graduating mechanical engineers interested in design, chemical engineers, and chemists with B.S., M.S., and Ph.D. degrees will be given special consideration.

The Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company of Springfield, Mass., with agencies in key cities across the country, is seeking college-trained personnel to become career life insurance salesmen and members of the office staff. Thorough training for jobs with a future will give those who are selected the best head start toward capitalizing on their particular abilities.

Permanent career opportunities are now available at Philco Corporation, Philadelphia 34, Pa., for electrical engineers, mechanical engineers, and physicists. Qualified graduates are invited to join the staff and share in the rewards of leadership in radio, television, microwave, refrigeration, and other household appliances, as well as in communications and other electronic equipment for industry and the Armed Forces.

A number of career service opportunities are available in the United States Department of Agriculture for those with agricultural, scientific, and administrative training. Since the authority to employ personnel is decentralized, information concerning employment may be obtained from employment officers of the Department at locations throughout the country.

N. C. HIGH SCHOOL IS TRIBUTE TO ALUMNUS

In the fall of 1936 the Rev. Grover C. Hawley, ’32, ’36, was called to the principalship of Creedmoor Elementary School, which had its beginning as a one-teacher school in the early 1920’s. Growth and development of the school were somewhat slow, but by 1935 it had become a three-teacher school, which it was at the time the Rev. Mr. Hawley became principal. Under the leadership and guidance of the new principal, along with the splendid support, encouragement, and cooperation of the administrative officers of the county, parents, teachers, and friends, a high school department was established in the fall of 1936. Although this development brought joy to the Creedmoor community, there were numerous obstacles to be overcome. The school lacked adequate equipment, instructional supplies, library facilities, and school bus transportation.

During the school years 1936–37 and 1937–38, the parents transported their children to and from school at their own expense. By the spring of 1938 $480.00 had been contributed by parents, teachers, and friends toward the purchase of a school bus. After the introduction of bus transportation, Creedmoor High School immediately experienced rapid growth and development. Equipment, supplies, and teaching aids increased considerably. A gradual consolidation and expansion program was begun.

Because of the sincere interest, enthusiasm, effort, and many sacrifices of the principal, citizens of the Creedmoor District requested that the name of the school be changed to the G. C. Hawley High School. The Granville County Board of Education readily assented, and in 1946 the name was officially changed. Since the Rev. Mr. Hawley has been principal of the school, the faculty has increased from three to forty-four teachers and the student body from one hundred to fourteen hundred pupils. The building program has resulted in the construction of five educational buildings and a cafeteria valued at approximately one million dollars.

ALUMNUS DIRECTS FIELD WORK ON WEST COAST

Just as Lincoln has led in the supply of a steady stream of denominational leaders for the emerging Negro church, she seems destined to pioneer in the supply of executives for the emerging interracial Christian church. Probably the most interesting example of integration in the workday world of denominational promotion and administration is found in the offices of the Northern California Baptist Convention, where Henry H. Mitchell, ’41, is a director of Field Work and Extension. Eight years ago he started out as secretary for Negro work, primarily concerned with church extension in a state whose Negro population has increased almost four hundred per cent. In addition to organizing new works, he dealt with plans, sites, buildings, and promotion for new and old churches alike. He and his wife also devoted considerable time to the development of a Christian education program.

Today Mitchell, who holds the Bachelor of Divinity degree from Union Theological Seminary, coordinates all the Missionary Extension of a Convention with an operating budget of some $150,000 annually, over two hundred churches, and thirty mission churches and centers. In addition to the multitude of administrative details such as receiving field report, making reports and requisitions to the national home missions office, convening the Missionary Extension Commission and executing their policies and decisions, and promoting and supervising collections of the "Missionary Pardners" plan for "grubstaking" new promotions, he performs several other jobs. He is still the field secretary for the General Association, composed of fifty-two Negro churches which prefer to remain in their own association. He does the composition, the re-writing of submitted articles, some photography, the layout, and proofing for the Northern California Baptist Advance (ten issues a year) and the Nevada Sierra Baptist Bulletin (six issues a year) and prepares releases for denominational organs and newspapers.

Although he is not a lawyer, Mitchell has had abundant experience in composition, negotiation, and filing of articles of incorporation, by-laws, and agreements for churches. He also does remedial auditing and sets up accounts for churches needing such services. He is also responsible for counseling with established as well as new churches on property negotiations, building plans, and construction estimates. As is customary among the various denominations, he represents the Convention in the Comity Commission of the Northern Nevada Council of Churches and he appears for the Convention at the New Work Committee. His itinerary is augmented also by pulpits, promotional engagements, speaking engagements. Total mileage for his work averages three thousand miles a month, mostly by car. About half of his working time is spent out of the state, with a conference or meeting in the East once a year. His only objection to the work is that it takes him away from his family more than he likes. The family includes his wife Ella, who has the Master of Arts degree in Christian education from Columbia and who is an instructor at Berkeley Baptist Divinity School; Henry IV; 7; Muriel, 5; and Elizabeth Ann, 8. Their home, which they partially built themselves, is at 901 Jones Street, Berkeley, Cal.

Murray, his classmate at Princeton Theological Seminary, spoke at the Lancaster church.

Two talented sisters, Irene Rosenberg, pianist, and Sylvia Rosenberg, violinist, were presented in recital at 8:00 p.m. on Monday, April 27. The varied program, from Paganini to Bartok, was enthusiastically received by students, faculty members, and visitors.

CLASS SECRETARIES

The following class secretaries have sent in their names to the Office of Public Relations:

1908—Rev. F. Rivers Barnwell
1911—George I. Read
1915—Harrison H. Cain
1924—Dr. George D. Cannon
1934—Robert H. Loving

We have an unverified list of class secretaries which we shall have to use unless class secretaries respond to our appeal.

YALE FIRST AGAIN IN ALUMNI FUND SURVEY

The 1952 Alumni Fund Survey of the American Alumni Council shows an increase in alumni gifts of two million dollars over the 1951 Survey, as well as an increase of more than four million dollars in gifts from other solicited groups, such as parents, friends, corporations, and community. Yale again leads the “Top Ten” in the amount raised with its second consecutive million-dollar year, while Dartmouth, with sixty-five per cent of its alumni contributing, continues to hold the leading spot in “Percentage of Alumni” participating in its fund. In total funds received during the year, Notre Dame with $963,993 closely follows Yale. In third place is Harvard followed by Union, Dartmouth, Princeton, Vassar, Stanford, Cornell, and Chicago.

Princeton ranks second in “Percentage of Alumni” participating with its sixty-one per cent. Next is Mount Holyoke, Vassar, Regis, Bates, Worcester Polytechnic, Amherst, New Jersey College for Women, and Drew.

Because of a gift of $494,000 from one individual, Union College stands above the nine other leading colleges with its “Average Gift” of $271.59. Second place is held by Notre Dame with $134.73, followed by Hillsdale, Mills, Westminster (Pa.), Lehigh, Vassar, Lowell Textile, North Dakota, and St. Louis. In the category of “Number of Contributors,” Harvard, by combining the totals of Harvard College and the Business, Law, and Medical Schools, replaces last year’s leader, Yale, which drops to second place. Ohio State, Dartmouth, Princeton, New York, Pennsylvania, Cornell, Smith, and Stanford complete the honor roll list in this competition.

SPORTS SUMMARY

WRESTLING
On Friday and Saturday, March 27 and 28, five Lincoln University wrestlers participated in the N.C.A.A. Tournament, which was held at Penn State College. Although none of our wrestlers qualified for the semi-finals, the participation was important, for it marked the first time that Lincoln wrestlers have been entered in this tournament. Those who participated were Herman Graham, 130-lb. class; Eddison Hairston, 137-lb. class; team captain Clayton Carothers, 147-lb. class; Robert Cobbins, 157-lb. class; and Jerome Cooper, 167-lb. class. All of these men are C.I.A.A. champions for 1953. Coach Gardner's matmen are looking forward to next year's schedule, which includes eleven meets.

TRACK
Coach William (Wild Bill) Hunter has been able to put together a track team that has made a creditable showing in the limited number of meets in which it has participated thus far. In the first of these meets held on April 11, Lincoln, lacking strength in its track events, lost to West Chester State Teachers' College, 84 7/15-51 8/15. Tom Miller and LaVal Cothron were outstanding in the low and high hurdles, but West Chester dominated sprint, distance, and relay events.

The following week a much improved team faced Fort Dix in a dual meet and took seven first places to defeat the visitors 71 1/2-67 1/2. Lincoln dominated the pole vault, high jump, broad jump, 220 low hurdles, 100-yard dash and the 220, and won the 220 high hurdles by forfeit.

Lincoln entered two events in the Penn Relays, the 1/4-mile and the 1/2-mile. Although the participants showed good form, they failed to win either of the events. The team will journey to Howard for a dual meet and to Baltimore for the C.I.A.A. championship meet to round out its track schedule for the year.

BASEBALL
To date the baseball team has won only one of the four games played, taking its opening game from Howard, 8-6. The team has subsequently lost to New Castle Air Base, 9-4; Bainbridge Naval Training Station, 8-1; and Edgewood Arsenal, 18-2. The Lions will meet the same teams again and also Delaware State College and The King's College before completing their schedule.

DEAR DR. FARRELL:

I enjoyed the Meeting you called here last Fall in Columbus, Ohio, to inform the former students of Lincoln University of its Centennial Celebration, and that each Alumnus is expected to donate at least ($100.00) One hundred dollars or more to this Celebration.

Afreed to planning far in advance what I do and especially the amount of pennies which I shall be able to give, I have decided to put Lincoln on my 1953 budget and give the one hundred dollars this year and through my Metropolitan Life Insurance and estate, shall will Lincoln ($1000.00) One thousand dollars which will be paid at my passing. The Life Insurance and estate, shall will Lincoln (its Centennial Celebration, and that each Alumnus is expected to donate at least ($100.00) One hundred dollars or more to this Celebration. Since that time to allow the faculty to be perfectly cordial, and my living quarters are quite comfortable. In many ways, that is enough—but not always.

You can appreciate the situation. On the campus, I am treated just as any other student and have all the rights, privileges, and duties as others; in the provincial town of Charlottesville, it is quite another story. It is no worse than I had come to expect but it hurts nonetheless. There are millions of other things to say but let them wait 'till I see you—or 'till you read my memoirs.

The Time story on Nkrumah created quite a stir here. Everyone knows that I am a Lincoln graduate so they wanted to know if I knew him, etc. That flattered me quite as much as his making Time's cover must have flattered you.

But the thing that really caused talk here was the “deportation” incident. “What type a place is Lincoln? Are the so-called ‘pink’ allegations well-founded?” It was an endless sea of ridiculous questions. Of course, I answered that to my knowledge and belief there wasn’t even the slightest cause for worry. “Lincoln men prize themselves on their rugged individualism. That’s as far as it goes.” It is good to know, however, that so many of our professors stood by the student.

Let me close by saying that everyday Lincoln grows dearer. She has prepared me well. Even among, amidst the fairest of the fair, she holds high her head. This is dreadfully trite but it’s sincere. A lot of us underestimated Lincoln while we were there. Underestimating Lincoln is the great mistake.

Sincerely,

TILTON BRINKLEY, JR., ’52

DEAR MR. FARRELL:

Thank you very much for your letter of congratulations upon my election as Moderator of Detroit Presbyterian. You know, of course, that the good wishes from my “old school” made me especially happy. Keep up the good work that you are doing!

WILLIAM H. MOLESON, ’38

DEAR DR. FARRELL:

The Lincoln University Bulletin arrived a few days ago. Truly I am most flattered to find my picture and such a nice write up. “Quiet, selfless, Christian”—these words make me feel I have quite a standard to live up to.

Thank you for honoring my little efforts so grandly.

Sometimes I feel my usefulness is most over but today I received a letter from a boy who is studying medicine in Chicago in preparation to go as a missionary to Africa soon. He said my letters always encouraged him to go on with his plans when so many who call themselves Christian think he is “balmy” in the head, as he put it, to give his life to missions.

So, if my prayers and my letters can still encourage others perhaps my life is not useless even though I am not so active as I used to be.

Enclosed is a token gift for the Centennial Fund.

F. LORAIN MILLER

(The Bulletin welcomes letters from alumni and friends and will publish as many as space permits in whole or in part.)

THE LINCOLN UNIVERSITY BULLETIN

Vol. 56 Spring, 1953 No. 4

Edited by H. Alfred Farrell with the assistance of Mrs. Pauline Gardner and Roland V. Jones, '55S

Entered as second class matter at Lincoln University, Pa., under act of August 24, 1912

PRESIDENT'S DESK

Educational institutions, by strict historic usage, date their "birthday" from the issuance of the charter. Occasionally colleges and universities "fudge" on this respectable tradition in order to take their rank in an older generation than is warranted by the strict proprieties of historical accuracy.

Lincoln University—always, whatever its other limitations, an honest institution—was "born" on the day when the Governor of Pennsylvania, then William Bigler, signed into law the act granting a charter to the trustees of Ashmun Institute. This was April 29, 1854. The charter was later amended, and the amending act, changing the name to Lincoln University, was signed by Governor John A. Curtin on May 14, 1866. But the charter of Lincoln University was, in fact, the amended charter of Ashmun Institute, not a new charter.

In actuality the first Board of Trustees of Ashmun Institute, later Lincoln University, was organized on October 5, 1853. With some propriety, then, Lincoln University might date its foundation from 1853 rather than from 1854. The charter date has been selected as the "birthday" for the reasons given above.

Centennials for colleges and universities will be coming rather frequently during the next twenty years, for the period from 1850 to 1870 was the hey-day for the foundation of American colleges. Most of the teachers colleges, the colleges in the Middle West and in the South and the older colleges for Negroes were founded in this period.

Statistically compared, Lincoln University is older than 80 per cent of the four-year American colleges and universities that include liberal arts courses; it is older than 96 per cent of all American teachers colleges; and it is older than 95 per cent of all junior colleges.

Lincoln is, of course, the first institution chartered anywhere in the world to provide a higher education for Negroes. We have, therefore, a most respectable place in a list of Centennials of any kind of American institution for the higher education of youth. But the glory that rightfully belongs to our institution, as the first founded to provide a higher education for Negroes, has even higher and transcendental values than the racial description implies. This was the first institution for Negroes because it was also the first institution where the founders spoke boldly against racial discrimination based on the theory of racial inferiority. The founding of an institution where Negroes were to be taught Latin, Greek, philosophy, theology, and the sciences was a declaration of faith in the equal capacity of all men, everywhere, to assimilate the highest culture. It struck at the very foundation of the chattel slavery then existing, and of racial oppression that has persisted throughout the world since; for the only ultimate defense of racial oppression is a belief in racial differences, and in racial inferiority, on the side of the oppressed, and racial superiority, on the side of the oppressor.

Giving additional high meaning to the glorious past the Lincoln University Centennial will commemorate is the new slogan adopted by the Board on April 18, 1953, with all of its major implications:

"TREE PERSONS IN A FREE WORLD THROUGH EDUCATION AND BROTHERHOOD"

Having, in 1853-54, boldly launched forth on the foundation of a revolutionary institution designed to achieve a revolutionary aim and faith in the equal capacity of all men, Lincoln University proposes in 1953-54, first, to celebrate its first century of noble aspiration and revolutionary achievement; and, second, to launch a new and equally revolutionary program as a higher institution again in the forefront of human endeavour; again a pioneer, but this time on the equally challenging frontier of all-embracing and embracing human fellowship and brotherhood.

The planning Committees have set six principal CONVOCATIONS to be held throughout the year. The cooperation of all alumni and other friends of the University is earnestly solicited, in initial planning, in preparation, and in attendance.

On September 18 the inaugural Convocation will be held on the University campus, with a distinguished speaker and celebrated guests representing our international mission. On November 8, in Philadelphia, at the Tindley Temple, will be held a Convocation featuring the Theological Seminary. A Conference and Convocation to give special emphasis to the contribution of Lincoln University to the field of science is in the planning stage. This Conference and Convocation will probably be held in Philadelphia on February 12 and 13.

From March 26-28 a Conference stressing the Arts and Humanities will be held (Continued on page 17)

THE COVER

Having entered to learn, the Class of 1953—college and seminary—now goes forth to serve, taking with it the high ideals and aims of beloved Alma Mater. The class presented Lincoln with a beautiful orange and blue banner to display on special occasions, a fitting gift in view of the approaching Centennial year.

HAVE YOU REMEMBERED LINCOLN UNIVERSITY IN YOUR WILL?

FORM OF BEQUEST

To the Trustees of The Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $ . . . . . .

to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.

FROM THE PRESIDENT'S DESK
A Pictorial Review of COMMENCEMENT . . . 1953

Dr. George Cannon, '24, alumnus trustee; Dr. William Hallock Johnson, president emeritus of Lincoln University; Mrs. Eugene P. Roberts; and Dr. Horace M. Bond, '23, admire the rare oriental tree planted in memory of Dr. Eugene P. Roberts, '91, outstanding alumnus and former president of Lincoln's Board of Trustees, on Sunday, May 31.

Flanked by Dr. Horace M. Bond and Mrs. William Gosnell, Mrs. Richard T. Lockett, national president of the Ladies Auxiliary, is shown breaking ground for the new Guest House, a project of the Ladies Auxiliary. Mrs. Gosnell, a past president, inaugurated the idea eight years ago. The ground-breaking took place on Monday, June 1.

Members of the Ladies Auxiliary pose on the scene of the location of the new Guest House, which will cost around $20,000 and is expected to be ready for occupancy during the Centennial year. It will be a fitting symbol of the tireless devotion of the women to Lincoln University. Alumni chapters are expected to contribute much of the furnishings.

Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, '34, executive assistant to the president, welcomes Governor John S. Fine to the campus for Commencement exercises on Tuesday, June 2. Governor Fine flew from Harrisburg to Oxford in order to be present at Lincoln's 99th Commencement.

Attorney Cornelius McDougald, Jr., '33, president of the General Alumni Association, greets J. Saunders Redding, ex '27, speaker at the annual Alumni Banquet on Monday night, June 1. Looking on are Dr. Johnson and Dr. Bond. McDougald and W. Beverly Carter, who finished out the terms of others, were elected president and secretary at the annual meeting of the General Alumni Association.

Judge Herbert Millen, '10, vice president of the Board of Trustees, congratulates Mrs. Ruth Fales, a native of Germany, who is the first woman to receive a degree from Lincoln. Mrs. Fales, who majored in psychology, is the widow of Dr. Walter Fales, who was formerly professor of philosophy.

Mrs. Richard T. Lockett and her mother, Mrs. S. LeRoy Morris, who has not missed a Commencement in sixty-one years, pose with Attorney McDougald and Dr. Harold R. Scott, '25, alumni trustee and former president of the General Alumni Association, at the Alumni Banquet.
Dr. Andrew Murray, dean of the Theological Seminary, presents the Rev. Milton Thompson, '03, '06s, to Dr. Bond for the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity. Dr. Clement M. Jones, '30, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Science, and Dr. Paul P. Boswell, '30, received the Alumni Award, given each year by the General Alumni Association to the alumnus who best exemplifies Lincoln traditions.

Governor Fine receives the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Dr. Bond. New York Congressman Jacob K. Javits also received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. He was cited for his interest in legislation affecting minorities. Governor Fine was later called on to speak briefly to the Commencement audience.

Pearl Buck, noted author, delivers the Commencement address to a large and appreciative audience. Recipient of both the Nobel Prize and the Pulitzer Prize, Miss Buck received the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters. Kalu Ezera, Nigeria, delivered the salutatory; Martin L. Kilson, the valedictory; and Henry B. Sweet, the seminary address.

Mrs. Richard T. Lockett presents Dr. Bond with a check for $15,000 for the Ladies Auxiliary Guest House. The banner presented by the Senior Clares can be seen in the background.
LINCOLN'S ACCREDITATION REPORT

PART I

Editor's Note: Because of the length of the report to the Commission on Accreditation of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, only sections of it can be published in THE BULLETIN. The editor has endeavored to select those sections which he feels will be of greatest interest to alumni, former students, and friends of the institution.

2. Have there been, in recent years, studies or reviews on behalf of the institution or any of its component units, looking toward a new statement of purpose?

During the past year (1952) the Committee on Objectives, meeting jointly with the Committee on Curriculum, drafted a statement (indicated under point 1 of this section) which we feel will serve as a statement of our purposes until a more adequate review has been made.

Funds are now being sought from The Fund for the Advancement of Education for a comprehensive self-evaluation study.

The College of Lincoln University proposes to make a study of its curriculum, with a view to such modifications as may bring about the most desirable outcomes in a small liberal arts institution.

A self-appraisal would help determine to what extent Lincoln should reform her curriculum in terms of general education aims. To do this funds will be needed to review our needs to study further both the theoretical and practical aspects of general education as found in institutions of the Eastern United States.

Specifically, we wish to know:

1. What limitations and problems now hamper our curriculum?
2. How we are using our course of study to realize within the student those qualities of mind and personality which will be required of him.
3. How we are using our classroom procedures to further these needed qualities.
4. How we are using tests and grades to achieve these qualities.
5. How we are using interviews and counseling activities to produce able thinkers and good personalities.
6. How successful we have been in producing students of competence in logical and forceful thinking.
7. To what extent can we be certain that our cited results have a definite causal relationship to our methods and procedures.

8. To what degree is our restricted clientele (in terms of race) a function of inadequacies of curriculum content, of faculty, or of imaginative creativeness?

In addition, we wish to determine—through joint faculty study assisted by visiting consultants, through visits by selected faculty members to representative liberal arts colleges affording interesting innovations, and through a review of available literature—which of the several approaches to general education may be best incorporated into the educational structure of Lincoln University; or indeed, whether we may not develop a new approach based on our peculiar needs and situation.

4. To what extent can the purposes and objectives as stated, in answer to the preceding questions, be carried out by the institution with its present program, organization and resources?

It is our belief that the purposes and objectives of the College can be carried out, adequately, by the institution with its present program, organization and resources.

An examination of the current course of study (1951–52) indicates that, as a factual matter:

a. The courses of study (some of which alternate) are adequate.

b. The faculty personnel represents a well-prepared staff and represents, too, an average distribution of twelve students per teacher (388 to 20). This figure does not include eight teachers who are part-time instructors or lecturers. The academic preparation of the teaching staff speaks for itself.

c. The facilities are adequate for effective work. Although, in the library there is at present some congestion, even this problem will be remedied with the addition of a library wing (1958).

d. Although adequate, in a basic sense, we need and are planning to obtain facilities offering more study and living space.

II. PROGRAM

1. Is provision made for the study and evaluation of the instructional program in the light of the purposes and objectives of the institution? How?

Provision is made for the study and evaluation of the instructional program in the following ways:

a. Through proper review and drafting of the Course of Study by the College Committee on Curriculum, annually.

b. Through careful supervision of the instructional program by the Dean of the College and by the President of the University.

c. Through a series of testing programs, beginning with admissions and following through the four-year interval of College instruction for each student.

1. Pre-admission tests for freshmen
2. Freshman placement tests
3. Freshman placement testing program (not given in 1949)
4. Departmental major examinations
5. Graduate Record Examinations

f. By evaluation studies made by other departments in graduate schools, especially in the Medical Colleges.

e. By carefully checking on the adequacy of all textbooks.

d. By conferences with teachers concerning their instructional problems and course organization plans.

c. By carefully studying achievement record of all students in graduate schools involved in this report.

b. The procedure between departments remains relatively the same as above.

c. There are no other undergraduate schools involved in this report.

7. Are there distinctive curricular features to which the institution desires to direct attention?

4. Are there distinctive curricular features to which the institution desires to direct attention?

f. Laboratory facilities for special examinations.

g. Diathermy and whirlpool treatments.

h. Ten-bed infirmary.

i. Referral service to hospitals. (Ten days of hospitalization furnished by the institution).

k. A school dentist is available one day per week at the dental clinic on the campus. Referrals to dentists at other times.

l. Physical education and health classes with intramural participation are required of all students for four semesters.

The school health services are coordinated by the Dean of Students with the physician and the dentist. There is an advisory committee with faculty and student members. The physician has two student assistants and the dentist one.

III. ORGANIZATION

2. Supply a copy of any written material defining the functions of trustees, faculty, and administrative staff.

(From 1929 Charter)—Be it enacted . . . by the name, style and title of "Lincoln University" under the care and direction of a Board of Trustees . . . who with their successors in office, shall be and hereby are declared to be one body politic and corporate . . . and by the same shall have perpetual succession, and shall be able to sue and be sued, plead and impale in all courts of law and equity and shall be capable in law and equity to take hold, and purchase, for the use and benefit of said University, lands, goods, chattels of any kind whatever by gift, grant, conveyance, devise or bequest from any person or persons whosoever . . . and the same from time to time to sell, convey, mortgage, or dispose for the use and benefit of said University; and they shall have the power to have a common seal . . . and to provide libraries, apparatus, and other needful means of imparting a full and thorough course of instruction in any or all the departments of science, literature, the liberal arts, classics . . .

That the Board of Trustees shall have the power to purchase, put up, or procure suitable buildings; they shall have power to appoint and remove the necessary professors and teachers and name their salaries; to establish rules and regulations for the government of the Institution; to appoint such officers and agents for their own body as may be deemed expedient and to adopt and establish their own by-laws and regulations.

That the Trustees shall faithfully appropriate all moneys and other effects that may come into their hands for the sole benefit of the said institution, nor shall any bequest or donation made to and accepted by the said Board for specific educational objects ever be diverted from the purpose designated by the donor . . .

That the Trustees of said University shall have full power to confer all such literary degrees and academic honors and titles as are usually conferred by University corporations.

See Constitution and By-Laws of the Board of Trustees. (Approved June 6, 1959.)

3. Describe any recent studies of the administrative organization or the competence and adequacy of its personnel.

PLANNING FOR THE CENTENNIAL

Wilmington, N. C., alumni extend Southern hospitality to Dr. H. Alfred Farrell in the form of a seafood dinner while Centennial plans are discussed. Seated clockwise around the table are the Rev. Benjamin H. Baskerville, '44, '47s; the Rev. Reuben H. Jeter, '44; William H. Bryant, '47; George A. Gore, '38; Robert White, '38; Dr. Frank Amund, '03, president; B. F. Washington, '39, secretary-treasurer; and Dr. Farrell.

Lincoln Bulletin
Dr. Horace M. Bond presented awards to the Charles S. Johnsons of Fisk University as the Family of the Year and to a Korean War veteran at the Academy of Music in Philadelphia on May 10; spoke at Mt. Zion A. M. E. Church in Darby, Pa., on May 17; attended the United Negro College Fund luncheon, at which President Eisenhower spoke, in Washington, D. C., on May 19; and spoke to the Octoraro Historical Society on Lincoln’s Centennial at the Aglen Presbyterian Church in Atglen, Pa., on May 22.

On June 5 Dr. Bond served as a member of an Advisory Committee on Negro Education for the Ford Foundation in New York City, and on June 10 he was Commencement speaker at the Havre de Grace High School in Havre de Grace, Md. He addressed a Masonic group in Chester, Pa., on June 12 on the subject of “New Departures in Africa”, conferred with various Foundation groups in New York on Lincoln’s new program on June 16; and received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Temple University on June 18.

From June 19-21 Dr. Bond attended the Aaronsburg Assembly as one of a hundred American leaders brought together to celebrate and plan for extended areas of inter-racial and inter-cultural understanding. On Sunday, June 21, he gave the address in memory of James S. Shannon, late pastor of the Salem Lutheran Church and founder of the Aaronsburg Assembly, which takes its theme from the Jew, Aaron Levy, who founded the Pennsylvania town in 1785. Dr. Bond served as consultant to the Tennessee Valley Authority in an educational planning conference of land grant colleges at Tuskegee Institute from June 27-29.

Dr. H. Alfred Farrell attended the Pittsburgh Courier Workshop on public relations and publicity from May 15 through May 17 and represented Lincoln at the Summer Work Conference of the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Universities on the campus of Beaver College, Jenkintown, Pa., from June 15 through June 17. Throughout May and June Dr. Farrell has been speaking to Masonic and Elk lodges in Philadelphia about the 1953 United Negro College Fund campaign.

Dr. Paul Kuehner, accompanied by Dr. Farrell, attended the spring meeting of Presbyterian-affiliated colleges at Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pa., on May 6. Representatives from Beaver, Lafayette, Waynesburg, and Grove City Colleges were also present.

Dr. John A. Davis, professor of political science, attended the Citizenship Clearing House, a meeting of Eastern Pennsylvania political scientists, at the University of Pennsylvania May 8-9.

Assistant Professor Sayre Schatz has completed a chapter on “Economics” for Volume I of Contemporary Social Sciences, which the Stackpole Company of Harrisburg, Pa., is publishing.

Dr. DeForest Rudd, professor of chemistry, and Assistant Professor Norman E. Gaskins attended the fourth Annual Workshops on general chemistry and analytical chemistry at Pennsylvania State College June 10-19. The Workshops are sponsored by the American Chemical Society to permit teachers to meet and discuss their problems through the free exchange of ideas and experiences.

Associate Professor Thomas M. Jones filled a number of speaking engagements during the spring: Avon-Grove Lions Club, Avon-Grove Rotary Club, West Chester Kiwanis Club, Kenneth Square Optimists Club, Chester County Macabees Association, Delaware County Macabees Association, Agenda Club of West Grove, Chester County Federation of Women’s Clubs, Delaware Fellowship Commission, Collegiate Track and Field Club of Philadelphia, Avon-Grove High School, Kennett Square High School, and Swarthmore High School. The Olympics marathon runner received athletic awards from the Mayor of Philadelphia, the Philadelphia Association of United States Olympians, and the Collegiate Track and Field Club.

The Rev. C. Randall Hook, ex ’49, at his home in Steubenville, Ohio, June 10, 1953.

Sayre Schatz, assistant professor of economics, has been awarded a Social Science Research Council grant of $600 to supervise a study of one of America’s oldest and most famous farmers’ markets, the Barnsley “Tattersall” Market in Southern Chester County.

FACULTY NEWS AND NOTES

The Rev. Dr. Benjamin F. Glasco, ’18, pastor of Borean Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia, was guest speaker at chapel services on Tuesday, May 5. Dr. Glasco made a stirring appeal to all Lincoln men to accept the claims of Christ as a personal Saviour in these days of uncertainty and corruption. In introducing the speaker Dr. Bond referred to the fact that a great-grandniece had been the brickmason who made and laid the bricks for Ashmun Hall, the original college building in 1856.

The Rev. Dr. Jesse B. Barber, ’15, ’18s, former dean of the Seminary, returned to the campus on Sunday, May 10, to be the Mother’s Day speaker. His subject was “The Sunset Glow,” which he interpreted as the heavenly radiance reflected in our mothers’ lives. He also baptized Laurence Foster, Jr., and received him into church membership as he had previously done for his sister Yvonne. Dr. Barber is at present associated with the Division of Evangelism in the Presbyterian Board of National Missions as Secretary of Work in the Atlantic, Blue Ridge, and Canadian Synods.

Mr. Noah Hershey of Parkesburg, Pa., and two other representatives of The Gideons, International led the chapel services on Tuesday, May 12, and afterwards distributed copies of pocket testaments to all who wished them. They also placed Bibles in each room of the Guest House and in the reading room of the library.

Under the direction of Mrs. Norman Gaskins, superintendent of the Sunday School, the children of the Sunday School rendered a Children’s Day Program on Tuesday, May 12. Among the faculty children who participated in the program were Laurence Foster, Jr., Norman Gaskins, Jr., James Bond, Corinna Fales, Kay Suthern, Marita Rivero, and Bonnie Suthern. The program consisted of songs, scripture reading, memory verses, and choral reading. The offering was sent to the Presbyterian National Missions as a contribution for National Missions Day. Money raised on this day is used to alleviate the suffering of underprivileged children of all lands.

1953-54 ALUMNI DUES
All checks for the payment of alumni dues should be made out to THE GENERAL ALUMNI ASSOCIATION OF LINCOLN UNIVERSITY in the amount of $10.00 and sent to the secretary.

The third Annual Pan-Hellenic Ball was held in the Grim Gymnasium on Friday, May 1, from 9:00 p.m. until 1:00 a.m. George Johnson, Camden, N. J., senior, is president of Pan-Hellenic Council, which is composed of the following fraternities: Alpha Phi Alpha, Beta Sigma Tau, Kappa Alpha Psi, Phi Beta Sigma, and Omega Psi Phi.

On Wednesday evening, May 6, the Philosophy Club presented a panel discussion on the subject “The Nonrational Element of Human Behavior” in the Little Theater. Discussants were Drs. Philip S. Miller and Henry G. Cornell and Mr. Samuel Bradley. Dr. Elizabeth Beardsley, who joined the faculty at the beginning of the second semester, served as moderator. Dr. Cornell approached the subject from a psychological point of view; Dr. Miller went back to classical times for his discussion; and Mr. Bradley showed a decided inclination for the Romanticist point of view. The well-attended discussion was followed by a question-and-answer period, after which refreshments were served. Anselm Ofodile is a member of the June graduating class, president of the Philosophy Club.

The African Students Association presented one of the year’s outstanding programs on Saturday evening, May 9, when Asadata Dafora and his group of dancers appeared in the Grim Gymnasium. The authentic interpretations of the African dancers were well received by the audience. Members of the Association also appeared on the program singing African songs. The second annual program of the group brought many students from the campuses of Swarthmore and Bryn Mawr Colleges and alumni and friends from many nearby cities, including Philadelphia. Martin Karpeh, a senior from Liberia, is president of the Association.

The fourth Annual Sigma Day Concert was held at 8:00 p.m. on Sunday, May 10, in the Mary Dool Brown Memorial Chapel. Presented in recital were Mary Lou Sales, soprano, Philadelphia; Lucille Saly, contralto, Philadelphia; Robert C. Moore, tenor, Philadelphia; Reginald Farrar, baritone, Wilmington, Del., and Anthony G. Mecoli, pianist, a Temple University student. The guest speaker was Mr. Julius C. Smimmons, national junior vice-president of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity. Speakers of the program were Mu Chapter, Lincoln University; Epialon Chapter, Temple University; Nu Sigma Chapter, Philadelphia; and Kappa Beta Sigma, Brooklyn. Edwin Ellis, a member of the 1935 graduating class and now a student in the Seminary, is president of Mu Chapter.

Honors Day exercises were held in the Chapel on Thursday morning, May 14, at which time Dr. George J. Becker of the Department of English, Swarthmore College, spoke to the audience on the subject “Of Human Bondage.” According to Dr. Becker, a liberal education tends to loosen and mitigate bonds under which we all suffer in one way or another. A liberal education enables us to check our lives for importants things and thus avoid being mired in trivialities; tells us what ideas are valid and valuable; and enables us to rise above hysteria by reviewing events, ideas, and people coolly.

The following recipients of prizes were announced: the Class of 1900 Prize in English, David W. Robinson, Baltimore; the Kappa Alpha Psi Prizes in Oratory (Freshmen), Ira J. K. Wells, Charleston, W. Va., and Paul Waters, Harrisburg, Pa.; the S. LeRoy Morris Prize in Biology, Anselm A. Ofodile, Nigeria; the Quindain Prizes in Biology, Ernest H. Smith, Bethlehem, Pa., and Leonidas R. Sellers, Philadelphia; the Walter F. Jerrick Prize in Biology, Othello H. Curry, Jr., West Cape May, N. J.; the C. Morris Cain Prize in Bible (College), George M. Kimani, Kenya; the Class of 1915 Prize for excellence in scholarship and athletics, Andrew Ransom, Wilmington, Del.; the William H. Modella Award for exemplification of the ideals of Lincoln University, Kulu Ezera, Nigeria; the Amy L. Johnson Award for improvement in personality and scholarship, Martin L. Kilson, Ambler, Pa.; the Henry Ward Beecher Memorial Award of $200 to a student of satisfactory scholarship and character who plans to enter the Christian ministry, George R. Baldwin, Brunswick, Ga.; the National Ladies Auxiliary Award for campus cultural development, Kulu Ezera; the New York Chapter (Ladies Auxiliary) Scholarships of $115 to George Baldwin and $100 to Martin L. Kilson; the National Chapter Scholarships of $100 each to Andrew H. Ranson and George F. Henry, Media, Pa.; the Washington, D. C., Alumni Scholarship of $100 to William F. Henson, Jr., Washington, D. C.; and the Samuel Robinson Scholarship Awards of $150 in Bible, Joseph DeLaine, Lake City, S. C.; Charles Dennis, Liberia; Wesley Graves, Jamaica, N. Y.; Julian F. King, Philadelphia; Patricia Ramer, Lincoln University, Pa.; James A. Washington, New Haven, Conn.; Paul Waters; and Othello H. Curry, Jr.

Announced at Commencement: (College) The Charles G. Lee Award for excellence in English, Thomas Williams, Atlantic City; the Edward K. Marrow Award for the highest average by a graduating New Jersey senior, Joseph Daniels, Linden; the Rohm-Haas Fellowship Grant of $2,200, Theodore R. Whitney, Jr., Philadelphia; the Danforth Foundation Award of $1,150, Kulu Ezera; the Harvard Residence Fellowship of $1,100, Martin L. Kilson. (Seminary) The Robert H. Nassau Prize for exemplification of the ideals of the Theological Seminary, Henry B. Sweet, ’24, Chicago; the Lifie Reed Prizes of $10 and $5 in Sacred Theology, Peter George, Liberia, and Robert W. Freitag, Denver, Col.; and the C. Morris Cain Prize in Bible, James E. Jones, ’51, Jackson, Mich.

Roland Cunningham, a senior in the Theological Seminary, was elected treasurer at the Regional Conference of the Middle Atlantic Region of the Interseminary Movement, sponsored by the National Interseminary Committee, a part of the Division of Christian Education in the National Council of Churches, U. S. A. The Conference was held at Colgate-Rochester Divinity School April 16-18.

The following members of the Lincolnian staff qualified for keys: Eugene D. Brockington, Philadelphia; John Hopkins, Trenton, N. J.; Ben Johnson, Philadelphia; Howard Cesear, Newark, N. J.; Richard Holmes, Orange, N. J.; Samuel J. Lancaster, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Ernest Smith, Bethlehem, Pa.; Kulu Ezera, Nigeria; Martin Kilson, Ambler, Pa.; Donald Ucker, Philadelphia; Roland Jones, Philadelphia; and James Fender, Philadelphia.

SCHOLARSHIPS, FELLOWSHIPS AND JOB OPPORTUNITIES

The National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students was established in 1947 by a group of seven college presidents to help Negro students gain admission and scholarships at non-segregated colleges. In the last few years a number of traditionally all-Negro and all-white colleges have opened their doors to students of all races and have become or are becoming interracial campuses. Some of these changes were taken as a result of court actions; others were voluntary. To take advantage of this new situation, NSSSFNS has inaugurated a "two-way integration" project and is looking for qualified high school students to refer to these schools. These students will be selected in the course of the organization's regular selection process, counselled, and referred to these newly interracial campuses in exactly the same manner as always. Students attending these schools will have priority for supplementary scholarship awards. Students interested in the "two-way integration" project of NSSSFNS are required to include a hundred-word statement on why they want to attend an interracial college. LINCOLN ALUMNI CAN HELP RECRUIT WHITE STUDENTS BY INFORMING THEM OF THE NATIONAL SCHOLARSHIP SERVICE FUND, 81 WEST 110TH STREET, NEW YORK 26, N. Y.

Awards are available under the Fulbright Act for university lecturing and advanced research in the following countries: Austria, Belgium and Luxembourg, Denmark, Egypt, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Iraq, Italy, Japan, Netherlands, Norway, Pakistan, Sweden, and the United Kingdom and Colonial Dependencies. Application forms and additional information are obtainable from the Conference Board of Associated Research Councils, Committee on International Exchange of Persons, 2101 Constitution Avenue, Washington 25, D. C. This competition is specifically for university lecturing and postdoctoral-level research. Graduate students desiring to enroll for courses abroad or to pursue a directed program of studies at the pre-doctoral level should apply at their local Fulbright Adviser or directly to the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York City. Applications must be postmarked no later than October 15, 1953.

Predoctoral fellowships are available for Negroes in the biological and physical sciences related to medicine through funds provided by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The fellowships cover a period of one to three years depending upon the time needed for completion of the Doctor of Philosophy degree. The program of the first year's work should be presented in detail together with evidence of approval by the institution concerned. The candidate should submit the names of three references from whom confidential information may be obtained concerning his professional qualifications. Applications are accepted at any time during the year. Application blanks are available from National Medical Fellowships, Inc., 951 East 58th Street, Chicago 37, Ill., which will forward nominations for fellowships to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., for action and announcement of awards.

Curtiss-Wright Corporation, Wright Aeronautical Division, Wood-Ridge, N. J., has set up a two-year intensive Management Development Program so that qualifying young men may assume first-level supervisory positions after an initial five to six months of training. Those making the grade will receive between $80 and $90 a week after the initial training period. The selection of these men will depend upon ability, stability, and maturity, much more than a student's college major and grades. Only those in the upper half of their class will be considered. Part-time and/or college summer jobs in a machine shop or heavy industry, along with many extracurricular activities, will be an asset. Men with adequate group adjustments and evidence of potential leadership ability are desired. Since the training is so intensive and those selected will be called upon to assume responsibility so soon, the Corporation is interested in men who are 21 to 27 years of age, married, veterans, who have majored in fields of commerce, business administration, industrial management, industrial engineering, and liberal arts. The above are only optimum requirements. Each individual will be considered as such.

The Koinonia Foundation of Baltimore is recruiting personnel for work abroad. Typical of the present demand are the following needs: industrial and financial administrators for many countries; agriculturalists or foresters for Nigeria; teacher of statistical methods for Colombia; vital statistician for Colombia; taxation expert for Cambodia; economic advisor for Taiwan; statistical sampling expert for Thailand; secondary school teachers for Germany; teacher of science for Sierra Leone; director of physical education for the Y. M. C. A. in Bangkok, Thailand; teacher of management for Haiti; all kinds of engineers for many countries; calculator of industrial costs for Bolivia; insurance manager, actuary, and accountant for Iran; health officers for many countries; ceramics expert for the Philippines; and industrial labor inspector for Cuba. Terms of the appointments vary from four months to several years. Frequently a knowledge of one or more languages is essential. For further information write to Mr. Samuel S. Board, Koinonia Foundation, Pikesville Box 886, Baltimore 8, Maryland.

ACCREDITATION REPORT

in 1951 for The Division of Higher Education, Board of Christian Education, Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., which was sent on June 11, 1951. We report it as it was received in its entirety.

"Twenty-eight per cent (of the College faculty in 1951) hold the doctorate and only 12.5 per cent have only the first degree. This shows a fairly high level of preparation for a college of this size."

It should be added that the picture for 1952-53 has improved considerably.

6. State the policy of the institution with respect to freedom of teaching.

Academic Freedom

1. Institutions of higher education are conducted for the common good and not to further the interest of either the individual teacher or the institution as an end in itself. The common good depends upon the free search for truth and upon its free exposition. Academic freedom is essential to those purposes and applied to both teaching and research. Freedom in research is fundamental to the protection of the rights of the teacher in teaching, and of the student to freedom in learning. It carries with it duties correlative with rights.

2. The teacher is entitled to full freedom in research and in the publication of the results, subject to the adequate performance of his other academic duties.

3. Any member of the Faculty of the University proposing to engage in any outside work, which may be construed as interfering with his university engagements, must file a description of the nature and extent of the employment with the President of the University. Mutual agreement is expected. If the decision of the President is adverse to the Faculty member, he may appeal directly to the Board of Trustees.

4. The teacher is entitled to freedom in the classroom in discussing his subject.

5. For Faculty or the University Faculty should at all times pay the strictest regard to matters of professional ethics.

6. Duties of members of the University Faculty shall include attendance in proper academic costume at all of the formal academic occasions scheduled by the University, unless relieved by special permission of the Dean of the University. Meeting of the several faculties within the University should be attended, subject to similar conditions.

8. Draw an organization chart of the student personnel program showing the services directly connected with student personnel work and their relationships with each other. This chart should show all aspects of the student personnel program extending from recruitment through admission, advisement, guidance, discipline, government, extracurricular activities, to occupational placement and alumni organization.

Summer, 1953

The personnel services at The Lincoln University are generally coordinated by the Dean of Students. Some services, however, such as recruitment and admissions, are performed by officers but close liaison is maintained in such services and activities.

The college’s concern for the welfare of the student begins with the recruitment program. Pre-admission tests are given and high school transcripts and recommendations are scrutinized carefully to seek to determine if the prospective student is a good college risk. Students whose test scores and high school records appear to indicate that they are not likely to succeed are discouraged from coming to Lincoln.

Students exercise a large share of responsibility in the personnel program. The Personnel Committee is composed of four faculty members and four students. The Student Senate, which is composed of representatives from various student organizations, has overall supervision of the student activities and organizations. There are numerous clubs which are formed by the students with the advice of faculty advisers. There are five social fraternities and three honorary ones. Students serve on various college committees with the same status as faculty members of these committees. The institution subscribes to the idea that students should run student affairs. The experience thus gained is excellent training for civic participation in the school community and in the larger world outside.

The Faculty-Student Personnel Committee serves as a liaison body between faculty and students in addition to its usual policy-making function in the personnel field. In the area of discipline the committee exercises also a judicial function.

9. Present evidence as to the qualifications of your two most recent freshman classes, including a distribution of high school averages or rank in the graduating high school class and distributions of scores on any entrance tests or other standard examinations which they have taken, such as the American Council Psychological Examination, the College Entrance Board tests, ratings in the National College Testing Program for Freshmen, and the like. (Do not give raw scores but distributions which have national significance.) Show the relation between entrance credentials and college grades earned in the freshman year.

Since only a small percentage of the high schools from which we have applicants indicate the average or rank of the students, such a tabulation would necessarily be incomplete, and would give little factual information about the qualifications of our freshmen.

As an aid in the selection of qualified freshmen we have, in recent years, given pre-admission tests (the ACE Psychological Examination and the Myers-Ruch High School Content Test) in those centers from which we receive the majority of our applicants. This testing program has proved very helpful to the Admissions Committee.

Beginning 1953, we are giving these tests in cooperation with eight other colleges, which makes it possible to test a larger percentage of our freshmen.

FROM THE PRESIDENT

on the campus. There will also be a Convocation. On April 29 and 30 a Conference with the theme JUSTICE AND BROTHERHOOD, stressing the role of the Social Sciences, will be held on the campus, with April 29 designated as Charter Day. Leading national and international figures will be asked to participate.

From June 4-8 will be held the climactic Centennial celebrations, to end with a great Commencement Convocation on June 8.

From these events, it is hoped, will be derived both the satisfaction that comes from memorializing a great past, and the strength, courage, and vision with which to go forth to a new and higher plane for the University in its relation to the Community, the Commonwealth, the Nation, and the great wide field of human brotherhood. The year is a challenge to all of us; and we invite the earnest and loyal participation of all in this great projection.

Sincerely,

HORACE M. BOND

The Theodore Asare mentioned in the last issue of The Bulletin is the uncle of Theodore Asare of the class of '50. Alumnus Asare has recently been appointed to a position in the Senior Civil Service of the Gold Coast. He is in charge of cooperatives in the mandated territory of Togoland. In this important role Asare will supervise cooperatives in a territory of 13,000 square miles. He is the first American-trained Gold Coaster to be appointed to a position in the Senior Civil Service of the Gold Coast.

Alexander Anderson and Emlen A. Brooks received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity from Drew University on June 8.

Edwin C. Sullivan (ex), a member of Kappa Sigma Pi, honor fraternity of Meharry’s School of Dentistry, and Omicron Kappa Upsilon, national honorary society of Meharry’s School of Dentistry, received two prizes along with his degree on June 8: the American Society of Dentistry for Children Prize and the Mizzy Prize in periodontia.

LINCOLN VS. VIRGINIA UNION
TWO INSTITUTES TO BE HELD ON CAMPUS THIS SUMMER

The Institute on Racial and Cultural Relations, sponsored by the National Council of Churches in cooperation with the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., will be held at Lincoln from July 30 through July 24. A number of persons from all over the country are attracted to this Institute annually.

From July 24 to August 1 the annual Summer Institute on Africa will be held on the campus. This year the Institute is being held in collaboration with the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History. This new cooperation is expected to increase the attendance and add greater interest to the 1953 meeting.

SEGREGATION SUIT SETTLED IN FAVOR OF STUDENTS

Damages totaling $500 were assessed against Joseph Crow, owner and manager of the Oxford Theater, and damages of $50 each were assessed against H. L. Johnson and Townsend P. Cox, borough policemen, by U. S. District Judge George A. Welsh, who upheld the constitutionality of Pennsylvania's non-segregation laws in an opinion handed down on June 11. At the same time Judge Welsh issued two injunctions, one of which restrains all three defendants from interfering with the rights of persons to sit in any portion of the theater they choose. The other injunction prohibits the policemen from enforcing any order of segregation of Negroes. The suit was entered by three Lincoln University students after they were evicted from the theater on January 11, 1950, for refusal to take seats in the section set aside for Negroes.

LINCOLN MAN IS COMMUNITY LEADER IN MARYLAND CITY

Leon S. Roye, '27, principal of the Havre de Grace High School in Havre de Grace, Md., has done an astonishing job as a community leader during the twenty-three years that he has lived in that city. During the period of his residence in Havre de Grace Roye has revolutionized the life of its Negro citizens and has played a major part in the development of the entire community. He has inspired scores of young men and women to continue their education, and Havre de Grace can now boast of many who have gone on to prominence in various professional and technical fields. He also carried on a vigorous program of adult and part-time education, equipping workers to take good posts in the numerous governmental agencies located in and around Havre de Grace. He has worked with community leaders and state and civic authorities in "integrating" Negroes into all services, including the membership of Negro physicians on the staffs of local hospitals. His school and community program will be considerably enlarged when he goes into a new building now under construction at a cost of $500,000. In a quiet and simple way Leon S. Roye is doing a tremendous job, for which all the citizens of Havre de Grace are grateful.

HAIL AND FAREWELL!

IF YOU HAVE NOT RETURNED YOUR ALUMNI DIRECTORY FORM, PLEASE FILL IT OUT AT ONCE AND RETURN IT TO THE OFFICE OF PUBLIC RELATIONS—even though you do not wish to subscribe for the directory. It is hoped that the Centennial Directory will be the most complete directory yet issued, and it can be with your cooperation. The directory form was printed in the winter issue of the bulletin, but if you wish to keep your copy intact, another blank will be sent to you on request. Actual work on the directory was begun in June, and additions to blanks already returned will be accepted up until December 1. The directory will be ready for distribution in the spring of 1955.

If your address is incorrect in any respect, please clip and return to the Office of Public Relations.

published quarterly for the friends and alumni of Lincoln everywhere
It is unusual for one college president to devote a public address before varied alumni to the praise of the alumni of another institution. But that is what President Benjamin Mays of Morehouse College did on October 5 when he addressed 768 alumni of the United Negro Fund Colleges in Chicago during the annual meeting of the Fund in that city. Dr. Mays was generous in his praise of Lincoln University alumni. I think it only proper, therefore, to take this message from Dr. Mays' address, which was on the subject of "What the College Owes Its Alumni and What the Alumni Owe the College."

The college, said Dr. Mays, owes everything to its alumni. Lincoln University is not merely "an institution located in Chester County, Pennsylvania"; it is rather the alumni of the institution who give it distinction—men like J. C. Price, George Cleveland Hall, E. P. Roberts, and Walter G. Alexander, of the generation that has passed; and men like Poindexter, Jason, Langston Hughes, Lanier, and countless others of our own and living generation. Lincoln University, said Dr. Mays, owes everything to its alumni, who give it a distinction and prestige that is worth more than fine gold, although it cannot be exactly measured in cash terms.

This much granted, Dr. Mays then raised the question of what the alumni owe to their colleges. They owe, he said, everything; and this whether from the wealthiest university in America—Harvard—or from the poorest in the land. All higher education, he said, is partially a public charity. No Harvard student can possibly pay for his education, an education that is but little more than the net worth, in buildings and endowments, of these institutions had given to the colleges; and how much they were now giving. In each case, the colleges surveyed— including Harvard, Amherst, Dartmouth, Williams, Bowdoin, Bates, Oberlin—reported that their endowment and building plant had come principally from alumni gifts; and this was true, whether it was Harvard, with its $250 million dollar endowment and $250 million dollar plant, or Amherst, with its seventeen million dollar endowment and ten million dollar plant. And, Dr. Mays continued, in addition to these permanent resources, the alumni of these institutions are now giving magnificently in annual giving campaigns. Dartmouth leading all of the colleges of the Nation, with 70 per cent of its alumni giving each year to their college a total of more than $800,000 a year.

Now Lincoln men are graduates of an institution now completing its one-hundredth year. Everyone realizes that the circumstances of its alumni are not to be compared with those of the alumni of the institutions referred to above. Lincoln University has had to be, beyond any of these institutions, one where education was offered almost free of cost up to about 1930 and where, since that time, only a very small fraction of the cost of education was expected to be paid in cash by the students.

But we now enter a new century and a new day. Our alumni rightly expect us to show to the world endowments for faculty salaries and buildings for students similar to those to be found at Amherst, or Williams, or Bowdoin, or Oberlin. We cannot and do not complain. We owe our alumni everything.

But do not the alumni, also, owe the institution—everything? The fine automobiles, houses, and social levels reached through education provided at a pittance—is this not a debt of honor and an eternal first call upon their resources? Surely, dear Alumni, if you expect us to present to the world the visage of colleges that have catered to more fortunate economic classes, you will now realize that most of those handsome fronts of other institutions came from the gifts of their own alumni and that you will not require, we hope, more of your Alma Mater than you yourself are able and willing to give.

Amherst reports that a net worth of twenty-seven million was donated principally by its alumni. Lincoln's net worth now, in terms of its endowment and the re-

Principals in the Inaugural Convocation of the Centennial of Lincoln University are pictured above: Dr. Henri M. Yaker, university chaplain, who read the Scriptures; Dr. Andrew E. Murray, dean of the Theological Seminary, who gave the invocation; Dr. Harold F. Grim, dean of the University, who read the citation and presented the recipient of the honorary degree; Dr. Horace M. Bond, president of the University, who spoke on "The Historical Significance of Lincoln University"; the Honorable Clarence L. Simpson, ambassador of the Republic of Liberia to the United States, who made the Centennial Inaugural Address and upon whom the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred; Judge Herbert Millen, who represented the Trustee Board; Dr. Philip S. Miller, professor of classical languages, who pronounced the benediction; and Professor Manuel Rivero, University marshal. Processional and recessional music was furnished by Professor Orrin C. Suthern II at the organ.

A near-capacity audience was on hand for the Centennial Inaugural Convocation held in the Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel on Friday, September 18 at 8:00 p.m. The text of Mr. Simpson's address follows:

Dr. Bond, Members of the Board of Trustees of Lincoln University, Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is indeed a pleasure to be here this evening, and to share with you in this wonderful ceremony commemorating the Centennial year of Lincoln University.

May I be permitted to assure the authorities of this institution that I am greatly indebted to them for the honour which they have done me, and this honour is also appreciated by the Government of Liberia, which it is my privilege to represent in the Capital of your great and progressive Nation.

Liberia's interests in Lincoln University are not only peculiar, but manifold. Upon its founding in 1854, it was named Ashmun Institute; it thus bore the name of a noted American, an ardent Christian, and one who had devoted the vigour of youth and his life to genuine and sacrificial services in behalf of Liberia.

Yes, Jehudi Ashmun served as Governor of Liberia during its Colonial days; he laboured hard for the Independence of the Colony; took an active and leading part in the formulation of its laws, and in so many ways assisted in the growth and development of Liberia, particularly during its early days.

In appreciation of his undaunted courage, unstinted labor and supreme heroism, the main street of Monrovia, our Capital, on which are located the Executive Mansion, the Department of State, the Post Office Department and many other important buildings, including the Centennial Pavilion in which Liberian Presidents are inaugurated, very fittingly bears the name of Ashmun.

This great man had been educated for preaching and extending the Gospel of Christ; he had been a teacher in a literary institution, but as an adventurer, during the Colonial days of Liberia, he wended his way to distant Africa, became fanatically interested in Liberia, placed himself at the head of an unorganized, feeble, heterogeneous community. He also acted as Legislator, Soldier, Engineer. He formed and put into operation a system of government; he swayed the minds of the uninformed mass of human beings, and moulded them into unity of purpose; he assisted in making them free men and free women, children of God, and habituated them to the objective of governing themselves as a free people and a free nation.

But regrettably, whilst in the performance of the arduous task to which he had assigned himself in behalf of humanity and a race who were striving for the pursuit of happiness and self-government, illness affected his mortal frame; and amidst the tears and regrets of the Colonists, their valiant leader Ashmun embarked for the United States, thereafter closed his useful life and he lies buried in New Haven, Connecticut.

On such an auspicious occasion as this when we foregather at the first Convocation of the Centennial year of this historic institution, which was originally named for the immortal Ashmun, we do well to take a retrospective view of his life, and my compatriots in the Republic of Liberia also pause in solemn salute to his great name and memory.

It is indeed a truism, "the workman dies, but his work goes on"; this is applicable to the infant Colony of Liberia founded in 1822, in behalf of which Ashmun dedicated his life. In 1847 it became a Free, Sovereign and Independent State; and its sovereignty remains as ever unshaken. It continues to give a good account of itself in developing its human and natural resources; its government has continuously remained stable and orderly; it maintains friendly ties with governments of the free world; it participated with the United States and her allies during both world wars; it is a charter member of the United Nations; it is represented on United Nations committees and commissions, and it is a staunch supporter of the principles of international cooperation as the safest road to everlasting peace among the nations of the world.

Likened unto the Republic of Liberia, the Ashmun Institute which was established by the Presbytery of New Castle, at a Stated Meeting, held on 5th October 1853, has throughout the past century developed and expanded as an institution for the dissemination of scientific, classical and theological education to youth not only of this country, but also to youth from other parts of the world, and it is gratifying to state that Lincoln University has been of tremendous educational value to young men who have entered its four walls from South, East and West Africa; some of whose names I shall refer to later in this address.

Attention must also be invited to the fact that after serving as a literary center over a decade, those entrusted with the conduct of Ashmun Institute decided that it should broaden its scope and function; accordingly, in 1866, its Charter was amended and its name was changed to Lincoln University.

It was thus named for another noted American and a great liberal to the Negro race. I refer to the illustrious patriot, statesman, philanthropist, and lamented “Abe Lincoln,” the sixteenth President of the United States, who during his natural life delighted to serve the long-oppressed and neglected people for whom this institution has been provided.

It was therefore considered an appropriate expression of gratitude that the enlarged plans of this praiseworthy educational undertaking should be the first institution to bear the worthy name of him who did so much to lift the crushing load from the minds, hearts and bodies of the sons and daughters of Africa.

I know without a shadow of doubt that all of you who are present at these inspiring exercises will agree that this matrix of learning, with its magnificent campus, located amidst the beautiful and healthy surroundings among the hills and farmlands of Chester County, Pennsylvania, whose centennial we inaugurate this evening, could not have been named for a better, grander and nobler figure in American history, than that of the great emancipator, Abraham Lincoln.

My friends, the event which has brought us here this evening is indeed unique and singular, while it is true this is not a commencement period when old graduates return so as to renew ties with Alma Mater and a new group of Alumni which have been ushered into existence, yet this occasion can not fail to remind old and new graduates, faculty and trustees, parents and friends of the distinct role of this institution, what it has meant to them, and what it is still capable of doing in the future. As we reflect on the significance of this university in the life of the state and of the nation it becomes appropriate to consider its place in modern society.

As we are aware, universities are the most stable and permanent of human institutions. Through all the changes and chances of history they endure, imbued constantly from the font of knowledge of youth as each new class appears on the scene. Oxford, the oldest of Anglo-Saxon institutions, has undergone the storms and stresses exceeding a period of 800 years and it still survives in its services to each new generation. Harvard, which Americans delight to refer to with pride, is now in its fourth century, while four other American institutions have already commemorated their bicentennials: William and Mary, Washington and Lee, Princeton and Yale.

It is true the universities I have just mentioned are mainly white institutions, but I have referred to them merely to indicate their permanence.

Howard, a leading Negro university, which has legally been in existence since 1867, has also made valuable literary contribution.

This university which is now celebrating its 100th anniversary has had an efficient and fine record which has been adaptable to the needs of the many youth who have entered its fold. It must certainly be a source of pleasure and satisfaction to the well-wishers of Lincoln University, in the United States, and abroad, and to its trustees, faculty and alumni to review that splendid record which we are all proud of.

Under the very capable administration of Dr. Horace Mann Bond, I have every reason to believe that Lincoln will in the years ahead continue the splendid tradition for which it was founded and continue to render an ever-expanding service to the youth of this land and to the teeming youth of Africa.

At this initial convocation in celebration of the centennial of this university, it may be useful to remind ourselves of the nature, function and responsibility of a university.

The basic philosophy which led to the creation of the university as an integral part of a system of general education is just as sound today, as it was one hundred years ago; moreover, higher education in this or any other university must continue to play a leading role in the advancement of civilization and culture.

Today, colleges and universities are the guiding posts and the standard bearers of the entire system of education throughout the world; they are the mainstay of the professions; they are first and foremost the source of competence in science and the arts.

During war and in peace-time the universities as centers of learning have proven themselves indispensable instruments of cultural progress and national welfare, not only in America but in other countries where they are established.

It may also be stated that in this country in particular, there is a greater degree of opportunity to attain higher education than anywhere else in the world. Universities in this country have shown and continue to show greater responsiveness to the needs of society than in most countries.

The scientific, technological, medical and surgical advantages of our time spring from the universities. They have proven themselves as the creative and dynamic forces of progress. Why is this? It is because a university is after all the institutional embodiment of a quest and an urge for knowledge that is basic in human nature, and as old as the human race. However, men vary in the intensity of their passion for the everlasting search for knowledge as well as their competence to pursue it.

Recorded history, therefore, presents humanity with a series of scholarly pioneers mainly in the universities who have advanced knowledge from age to age and increased man’s ability to discover new ideas and new knowledge.

A university, especially such as Lincoln, must therefore be broad-minded and receptive to a variety of skills and viewpoints, and rely upon open competition as the surest safeguard for permanence.

If this university is to continue its onward march of progress in the future as we know it will, its whole organization will require constructive criticism and the presentation of ideas in an atmosphere of freedom and confidence. It is mainly by this process that the real purpose of academic freedom is attained. It must also be made clear that academic freedom whether in this or any other university should never and must never be utilized as a shield for those who would violate law and order.

We live in an age of knowledge, of scientific methods, of psychological approach to many national, international and business problems, and it is only through centers of learning such as the colleges and universities that they are acquired.

It therefore becomes necessary that the universities of the day, whether white or coloured, should be vital forces for maintaining and perpetuating a strong, vibrant and articulate democracy in the formidable struggle in which we are engaged for survival in the free world.

As this university is about to enter the second century of its purposeful existence, I am sure all of us gathered here wish it success in its unrolling and consecrated service to young men who will enter its portals in the years ahead. Let us hope and pray that it will receive all the support that is necessary to invest it with permanent strength.

I must now direct my remarks to the service which Lincoln University has rendered to Africa and especially to (Continued on page 16)

IV. FACILITIES

A. PHYSICAL PLANT AND EQUIPMENT

3. Describe the program for maintenance, rehabilitation, and expansion.

In general the operation and maintenance program has as its main objective to see to it that within budgetary limits the University plant is prepared and in condition each day to serve the educational program and to provide those services needed by students and faculty to enable them to devote their attention and energies to the requirements of instruction.

The regular program of operation and maintenance involves the following:

1. Supplying utilities services to some 45 buildings, including classroom buildings, student recreational buildings, dormitories and other auxiliary buildings, and faculty houses.
   a. Heat from central heating plant.
   b. Electric current from University distributing system.
   c. Water from University wells and storage tank.
   d. Sewage disposal through University facilities.
2. Supplied housekeeping services to 5 dormitories, 2 classroom buildings, the Chapel, the Administration Building, and the campus grounds.
   a. Students are expected to take care of the routine housekeeping within their rooms. Janitor service is provided for corridors, washrooms.
   b. Janitor service is provided throughout other buildings other than dormitories.
3. Providing repairs and maintenance for some 45 buildings, and for furniture and furnishings in dormitories, classrooms, recreational buildings, and other buildings used in instructional program. Also providing repairs and maintenance for campus and grounds installations.
   a. Regular maintenance staff handles all routine repairs and maintenance, including painting and decorating.
   b. Students and faculty members who wish to do their own painting and decorating may obtain the materials from the University.
   c. Those repairs involving extensive electrical work, plumbing and steamfitting, sheet metal work, carpentry, etc., are handled through outside contractors, with help from maintenance staff.
4. Providing rehabilitation services.
   a. Regular maintenance staff handles relatively small jobs.
   b. Rehabilitation involving extensive alteration or addition to buildings handled by outside contractors, with help of regular maintenance force.
5. Providing security and safety.

1. How and when is the budget made up and approved?

Following is a summary statement explaining how and when the budget is made up.

Budget making is generally initiated in late February or early March for the fiscal year which begins the following July.

The President of the University holds conferences with individual department and activity heads for the purpose of giving preliminary consideration to the educational program needs and recommendations for meeting them.

The Business Manager furnishes the President with data on income and expenditures for the prior budget period, and reviews with the President the income expectations for the ensuing period.

Department and activity heads submit budget requests to the President. This procedure is more or less informal, depending upon the nature of the program involved and the amount of funds in question.

The Business Office prepares the preliminary budget in cooperation with the President, on the basis of his tentative understandings with department and activity heads.

The preliminary budget is reviewed with the Administrative Committee, in light of the overall estimate of program needs and estimates of income and expenditure.

The President confers with individual department and activity heads with respect to tentative budget allocations. He may also, and usually does, review the budget prospects at a University Faculty meeting.

The budget, as revised through discussion with department and activity heads and through the review by the Administrative Committee, is submitted to the Board of Trustees in April of each year for tentative approval.

Additional revisions are made in the budget, in light of changing circumstances, and in view of further discussions between the President and department and activity heads, the revised budget is submitted to the Board of Trustees in June of each year for a second tentative approval.

The budget, including revisions subsequent to June, is presented to the Board of Trustees in November of each year for final approval.

*By Resolution of the Board of Trustees of the University in November, 1944, the receipts from the United Negro College Fund are to be applied toward reduction of the accumulated deficit, and they have been so applied. If these receipts are considered as operating income each year, they serve to reduce the amount of the annual deficits, and to show annual surpluses for the fiscal years ended June 30, 1945, 1946, and 1952.

6. Is there an annual audit by an outside firm of certified public accountants?

There is an annual audit of the financial records and books of account by Messrs. Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., Accountants and Auditors, 1500 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

7. What is the extent and allocation of insurance coverage?

a. Fire Insurance covering buildings and contents, having an estimated 100 per cent insurable value (per survey of February, 1952) of $8,125,043. The University 90 per cent co-insurance requirement is met in the amount of $8,123,459.
b. Comprehensive Liability Insurance covering risks as follows:

Bodily injury liability—automobile . . .
Bodily injury liability—non-auto . . .
Property damage liability—automobile . . .
Fire Arts Pledges Insurance covering specific items in art collection . . .
d. Primary Commercial Bond Insurance covering fidelity of various University employees up to a maximum of $10,000.
e. Power Plant Insurance covering liability and damage resulting from boiler explosion.
f. Workmen’s Compensation covering injury to employees, according to specified weekly compensation rates and disability provisions.

8. Is expenditure directly under a comptroller?

The function of budget control is assigned to the Business Manager.

9. What are the current funded surplus and deficit?

The current funded surplus is $76,626.98.

10. Give the personnel and qualifications of the investment committee and a brief description of the way in which it operates.

The Finance Committee has general responsibility, under standing instructions from the Board of Trustees, for management of the University Endowment. In addition, the Committee supervises the investment of Plant Funds, and may also be called upon between meetings of the Board of Trustees to authorize actions with respect to meeting Current Operating Fund needs.

The Committee meets usually about ten times a year on call. For each meeting a current valuation list of securities in the University investment portfolio is prepared and distributed in advance to the members. At the meetings the Committee considers the status of the portfolio in light of the market situation and the investment policy established by the Committee. Members come to the meetings prepared to recommend what changes in the portfolio seem desirable. The recommendations are fully discussed in the meetings. Decisions to buy or sell securities are made by unanimous vote or general concurrence of the members.

Dr. Horace M. Bond addressed the Institute of Race and Culture at Lincoln on July 24, and from July 25 to August 1 he served as discussant and presiding officer in the annual Summer Institute on Africa. During the months of August and September Dr. Bond did research work in connection with the Supreme Court cases on segregation under the direction of Alumnus Thomas P. Fales when he became ill. A graduate of Swarthmore College, Dr. Beardley earned her Master’s degree at Columbia and her Doctor of Philosophy degree at Yale.

Inaugural Conference of President Foster of Tuskegee Institute (October 29-31).

Dr. H. Alfred Farrell served as director of the annual Summer Institute on Africa, which was held on the campus from July 25 through August 1. The Association for the Study of Negro Life and History co-sponsored the Institute this year. Dr. Farrell participated in a panel discussion of “Problems of Modern Africa” at the annual meeting of the Association in Nashville October 23-25. During November he will recruit students in Pittsburgh, Columbus, St. Louis, where he will attend the Workshop on Wills, Annuities, and Special Gifts (Nov. 16-17), East St. Louis, Kansas City, and Indianapolis.

Dr. Paul Kuehner, accompanied by Dr. Farrell, attended the fall meeting of Presbyterian-affiliated colleges at Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pa., on October 5 and 6. Representatives from Beaver, Grove City, Lafayette, and Waynesburg Colleges were also present.

Professor J. B. MacRae, dean of students, was visiting professor in education at Atlanta University's summer session.

Dr. Andrew Murray, dean of the Seminary, contributed an article, “The Negro Church Must Lead,” to The A. M. E. Church Review (April-June, 1953).

Assistant Professor Donald C. Yelton, librarian, accompanied by his wife, spent a month in the British Isles during the summer. Their itinerary included Shannon, Dublin, Liverpool, North Wales, Edinburgh, Scottish Highland, Isle of Skye (Inner Hebrides), York, Lincoln, Norfolk Coast, Cambridge, Oxford, Stratford-upon-Avon, Cotwolds, the Lake Country, and London. In Edinburgh the Yeltons visited Dr. Arthur Motley ‘28.

Faculty and Staff Additions

Dr. Henri M. Yaker, who holds degrees from Oberlin, New York University, Union Theological Seminary, and Columbia University, comes to Lincoln as assistant professor of religion and University chaplain. He was formerly a member of the Department of Philosophy, School of Education, New York University. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, Dr. Yaker is currently working on a monograph dealing with religion and science.

Dr. Moses Lukasser, who holds three degrees from Columbia, joins the faculty as visiting professor of political science. A member of the American Economic Association, Dr. Lukasser, whose dissertation was on “Postwar Wage and Salary Stabilization,” assisted in editing Volume 1 of the official history of the National War Labor Board, “The Termination Report: National Disputes and Wage Stabilization in Wartime,” for which he prepared seven chapters. He also edited and prepared thirteen chapters of the official documentary history of the Board entitled “The (Continued on page 22)

Y.; Philosophy Club, Witold Cohn, senior, Philadelphia; and Seminary Union, James Jones, senior, Jackson, Mich. Eugene Brockington is also editor of The Lincolnian, student newspaper.

The Philosophy Club was addressed by Dr. Henri M. Yaker on Wednesday evening, September 30. Dr. Yaker spoke on the subject "Has Religion Really Answered Science?" The Chaplain agreed that the criticism of logical positivism against most metaphysical theology was basically sound and that the philosophy of modern science has reduced some of the alleged theological interpretations of the problem of indeterminacy in physics to a meaningless jargon and syntactical silliness. The reason for this, explained Dr. Yaker, is a misconstruction of the nature of metaphysics in a tradition which infects philosophical theology from the time of St. Thomas through modern philosophical theology. This misconstruction is thinking that we can establish existence, and therefore God's existence, by some deduction from the law of necessity. This is both impossible and meaningless.

The Y. M. C. A. Cabinet was host to all freshmen and presidents of campus organizations on Wednesday, October 14, at 8:00 p.m. in the Little Theater. Refreshments and an enjoyable program made the annual Freshman Mixer an occasion to be long remembered.

Pan-Hellenic Council sponsored an alumni-undergraduate smoker as a part of Homecoming in Rendall Hall on Saturday, October 17, immediately after the game. Graduates and undergraduates swapped opinions over hot chocolate, cookies, and cigarettes. Later alumni and students attended the Varsity Club dance in the Grim Gymnasium.

The Seminary

The Seminary has continued its steady growth this year. The current enrollment is twenty-four students. Many of the seminarians are married and have set up homes in Veterans Village.

A face-lifting was given to Houston Hall by the students of the Seminary. Under the direction of Seminary Union President James Jones, the Mt. Sinai residents started the improvement of their building by converting one of the rooms into a chapel, which is to be used for devotional and meditations. The room was painted and rearranged by the students themselves. An asphalt tile floor was also laid in the hall of the main floor. Several other improvements are being planned.

Two Seminary graduates of the class of 1933 have been ordained recently. Henry (Continued on page 29)
The Social Science Research Council announces the inauguration of a new program of stipends and fellowships designed to identify and assist able students at an early stage of their education. A grant from the Behavioral Sciences Division of the Ford Foundation enables the Council to offer, during a period of three or four years beginning in 1955, Undergraduate Research Stipends which may be followed by First Year Graduate Study Fellowships. It is hoped that a period of first hand research at a time when career choices are often made will afford qualified students an opportunity to consider the scientific study of human behavior as a career, and will also be in itself a valuable educational experience not usually available in college curricula.

Undergraduate Research Stipends will be awarded to college juniors who will devote eight weeks or more during the summer between their junior and senior years to research under the intimate guidance of designated faculty supervisors. It is expected that the research begun in the summer will be brought to completion as a part of the student's academic work for the senior year. Awards of First Year Graduate Study Fellowships will be made in the latter part of the senior year to about one-half of the undergraduate stipend holders who have shown superior promise of making successful careers in the scientific study of human behavior. The research stipend for an undergraduate will be $500, which should cover the student's living expenses for the summer and leave a balance applicable to the expenses of his senior year in college. The stipend for first year graduate fellowships has been tentatively set at $1500. Students are urged to submit applications early in the academic year 1953-54 for awards for the succeeding summer.

In order that decisions may be made with a minimum of delay, yet without excluding good applications by imposing a too early deadline, faculty members contemplating the proposal of projects and nomination of students for stipends are asked to notify the Council by letter as soon as possible and certainly not later than February 9. Preliminary letters should give very briefly the essential facts about the project and proposed participants, indicating at least tentatively what provision would be made for supervision of the student's work both during the summer and during the ensuing academic year. It is expected that awards will be announced not later than May 1. Applications and preliminary correspondence should be directed to the Social Science Research Council, 726 Jackson Place, N. W., Washington 6, D. C.

Ever-expanding Alcoa needs engineers, metallurgists, and technically minded "laymen" for production, research, and sales positions. Benefits are many, stability is a matter of proud record, opportunities are unlimited. For more facts, write the Aluminum Company of America, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

At General Electric a world of opportunity awaits the college man of today—a world limited only by his own ability and interest. Hundreds of scientists, engineers, chemists, physicists, and other college graduates are "getting ahead" fast at General Electric. The variety of General Electric products and the diversity of the Company's operations provide virtually unlimited fields of opportunity and corresponding rewards, both materially and in terms of personal satisfaction, to young men who begin a G-E career. By placing prime importance on the development of talent and skill, developed through G-E training programs and broadened through rotational job programs, and by providing incentives for creative minds, General Electric is hurrying young men into success in an industry that is devoted to serving all men through ever-increasing and ever-widening uses for electricity, man's greatest servant. TELEVISION SERIES LAUNCHED IN COOPERATION WITH WFIL

On Friday, October 9, at 11:30 a.m., Dr. Horace M. Bond launched Lincoln University's new television series on WFIL's University of the Air in Philadelphia. The new series deals with Africa, and during the course of its fifteen weeks the program will concern itself with the place, the people, the Europeans in Africa, and the present and the future of Africa. In addition to Dr. Bond, the following members of the faculty will make appearances from time to time: Dr. Laurence Foster, Dr. Donald Davies, Dean J. Newton Hll, and Professor Olin C. Sutherin H...
The Philadelphia Chapter of the General Alumni Association was host to a bus load of Philadelphia high school seniors, part of whom are shown above, at Homecoming. Pictured with the group are Rev. William Stevenson, '20, '28s, president of the Philadelphia Chapter, and S. Raymond Overton, '35, (l.) and Willis G. Hare, '35, and Frank T. Coleman, '36, who made the arrangements for the trip to the campus. Washington, D. C., alumni brought six high school seniors to the campus to witness the game between Lincoln and Virginia Union.

Members of the Ladies Auxiliary, of which Mrs. Richard Lockett (center) is president, took time out from their meeting to look over the progress of the new Guest House which they are financing and to pose for a picture on the scene of their most ambitious project. The Guest House is expected to be ready for occupancy by the last of the year.

LION MAKES NEWS

Our staff has finally gotten together, and, no doubt, we are making news, news that focuses on you and on us. Why are we making news?—Well, primarily because this is the 1954 Lion. This year being the celebrated Centennial Year of Lincoln University places the Lion in a unique position in that it will be the Centennial edition.

Deviating slightly from the University Centennial Theme—"Free Persons In A Free World Through Education And Brotherhood" to our theme which reads "Free Men In A Free World Through Education And Brotherhood," we place the emphasis on the graduates of our University. We believe that this title is significant, in our case, because Lincoln University is primarily an all-male school, and it permits us to put great stress on the historical background and progress of our great Institution and its Men. It is our sincere hope that within the realm of our historical section we will be able to devote plenty of space for history and the achievements of Lincoln graduates within the past one hundred years. To make this section a complete success we need your pictures from Lincoln. All contributions will be deeply appreciated.

An Annual published by the students of an institution portrays the calibre of students of that University. Often it is through this medium that the interest of prospective students is aroused. The 1954 Lion will be viewed by more people than any other yearbook because it will carry the significance and prestige of being the only yearbook to feature the achievements of you, the Alumni, in the historical section.

You, and everybody else, will want to preserve this Annual for future reference and as a keepsake for the years to come.

Realizing that you, the Alumni and Friends of our Alma Mater, want to see a publication worthy of the Centennial Year, we are asking for moral and financial support to assure the 1954 Lion of great success. The responsibility is as much yours as ours! Do your share! Take this opportunity to become an advertiser, a sponsor, or a patron!

Help the 1954 Lion maintain its position in making news, help it to put you in the very spotlight. Only through your assistance will you get that Lion you want and should have!

ACT

You know it, I know it, well, everybody knows it—A TRUE Lincoln man has a funny ability to forget things. So just to save you from this very habit we are asking you to tear off the enclosed postcard, fill it in, and (yes, I almost forgot myself, put a stamp on it too, just to keep Uncle Sam happy) send it off TODAY! For although tomorrow is "another day," I am willing to bet you, you may forget it and miss that great opportunity!

Lion Makes News is written for your enjoyment and information by the 1954 Lion's Editor-in-Chief and the members of the business department, and edited by Witold L. Cohn, business manager of the 1954 Lion.
AND PUTS YOU IN THE SPOTLIGHT

The 1954 Lion . . .

KNOCK, KNOCK, WHO'S THERE?

Have you ever had the opportunity to invest in a gold mine, or an oil well—by-passed it and later discovered that you missed a chance to make a large profit on your investment? Well, here is an opportunity, I know you won't overlook, the opportunity to advertise in the GREATEST yearbook in the history of Lincoln University. The chance to advertise in a Centennial Lion comes but once in a 100 years, so you will never have an opportunity like this again.

Since this is THE Lion of the Centennial year class and since enormous effort is taken to let thousands of people know about it, we are sure that we will sell 500 or more copies as souvenirs throughout the whole U. S. A. You can't ask for a better distribution! At least 20 persons will read every copy, so you can imagine the beautiful coverage we get. And as each copy will be cherished and reread for many years, your ad will remind everybody about you and your business. All of our readers, decision making people of high prestige and better than average income, are friendly toward the Lion, and associate your name with ours. What an opportunity to get new business connections, what a chance to increase your business!

And the prices are low, yes very low—$35.00 for a full page; $20.00 for 3/4 page; $12.00 for a 1/4, and only $7.50 for 1/8 of a page. Only a fraction of a penny per reader. You can't ask for anything better! Remember—each penny will work for you for years to come! So don't let this golden opportunity slip past you! Order today an ad in the 1954 Lion, and reap large returns on your small investment!

. . . and its Staff

YOU OUGHT TO BE IN PICTURES!

Don't be kidding yourself—the 1954 Lion does not have any lions on its staff, but we still have some pretty good men to produce this great Annual.

Our staff is headed by Howard Caesar, a brilliant writer and organizer, with rich experience as Associate Editor of our University newspaper, KRS of Omega Psi Phi, and Freshman Advisor. Caesar is assisted by Eugene D. Brockington in the capacity of Associate Editor. Brockington, head of the Lincolnian and Lincoln Chapter of N.A.A.C.P., owns a magical pen too. Rufus Thomas, secretary of the Lincoln Players for two years now, our Literary Editor, assumes the responsibility for all grammatical mistakes you may find, while Bravell Nesbitt is the "boss" of our sport section. A basketball and track letter man and a tennis champion, Nesbitt will do a good job. William L. (one cartoon per minute) Jones shows an example of his art above. An old marine, he will make a fine Art Editor. Responsible for "pushing" the staff when necessary is our Production Manager—Russell Minton, President of Kappa Alpha Psi.

Witold L. Cohn, well known to make profit in any situation, heads our financial department. He is assisted by Herbert Lemmon, Harry L. Morris, and Claudius A. R. Ebrock.

Remember?—Of course you do, at least if you are a member of the class of 1922. The good old football team—the good old times. And it is no coincidence that you see this picture here, for in this Centennial year we are producing a yearbook covering school activities for the past century. It is only natural that we appeal to you for assistance in procuring old pictures. Remember: this book is as much ours as yours! It is your duty as a Lincoln man to help us to produce it. We will appreciate any pictures you may have from your Lincoln years, whether they be sports, "rabbles," or intellectual. Mail them to Howard Caesar, Editor-in-Chief, Office of Public Relations, Lincoln University, Pa. Write your name and class, and a small comment with it, and we will be responsible for its return. Be a part of this great Annual by submitting at least one picture! We will be looking for your answer!
An alert cameraman was on hand to photograph the only touchdown made by the Lincoln Lions against Virginia Union. The spectacular play gave hopes of better things to come, but the Lions were no match for the powerful Panthers from Richmond, Va.

Dr. Horace M. Bond presents a bouquet to charming Miss Gracie Williams, Homecoming queen, as her lovely attendants look on. Attendants to the queen were Miss DeLores Sterling, a sophomore at the University of Pittsburgh; Miss Shirley Emanuel, a June graduate of Torrington (Conn.) High School; and Miss Janette Peters, a June graduate of Central High School in Trenton, N. J. Miss Williams is a junior at Shippenburg State Teachers College, where she received the honor of being the first girl of her race to become a majorette.

The Panthers and the Lions battle it out for gridiron supremacy, but it was soon evident that the Lions were hopelessly outclassed by the fleet Panthers, who have been giving a good account of themselves this year.
The 1953 Lincoln University Lions

Lincoln 13, Fort Meade 0
After being held scoreless during the first half, Coach Gardner’s speedy charges started to roll in the third period. Captain Tom Miller raced twenty yards to the Generals’ 22-yard line where he lateralled to Frazier (Tiny) Taylor, who scored easily. Miller again thrilled the spectators when he broke loose in the last period of play and carried the ball 94 yards for a touchdown.

Upsala 33, Lincoln 12
Twice defeated by the Lions, the Vikings bounced back with a vengeance that swept the Lincoln gridsters off their feet in every quarter of play. The Lions managed to score in the second and fourth quarters, but the Vikings scored at least once in every quarter and twice during the second quarter. Upsala’s Tom Henderson completely overshadowed all other players.

Morgan 26, Lincoln 0
Scoring in every quarter but the last, the Morgan Bears ran roughshod over the Lincoln Lions, who fought gamely but never seriously threatened the Morganites except briefly in the fourth quarter. A sharp assortment of passes and running plays defeated the Lions.

Virginia Union 26, Lincoln 6
The Lions struggled valiantly against the superior Panthers who clawed them in all but one period of play. The Lions drew blood in the second quarter and held the Panthers scoreless in the third period of play, but they were unable to overcome the 14-point lead of the Virginia Unioners, who scored again in the last quarter.

Lincoln 3, Trenton Teachers 1
The first score came early in the second quarter when Erich Getzen, Lion center, passed to left guard David Okoye, who scored. Later in the same quarter right guard Kwesti Anderson set up a score for Getzen. Seconds before the period ended, the Teachers managed to score. During the third quarter Okoye passed to Prince Browne, who passed to Getzen, who dribbled through the enemy to score again.

Lincoln 1, King’s College 0
Although Prince Browne and Erich Getzen pounded balls at the opposing goal consistently throughout the game, Merrick Collier, who substituted for Kwesti Anderson early in the fourth period, drove home the only score of the game as he swung hard into a short pass from Prince Browne.

FROM THE PRESIDENT

placeable value of its buildings, is approximately four million. Up to 1915 Lincoln alumni had contributed to the institution less than $6,000 in its prior history. From 1915 to 1945 Lincoln men contributed approximately $80,000 to the net worth of the institution. Since 1945 they have contributed to our present net worth—endowment and buildings—approximately $150,000 in cash, with other bequests made but not realized as yet that have at least an equal value, and perhaps a much larger one. In short, in all the ninety-nine years of the institution's history, the alumni of Lincoln University have contributed approximately 5 per cent of the net worth of the institution; and 80 per cent of these gifts have been made during the last decade.

This is a magnificent effort at the dawning of a new century. It shows, we think, that Lincoln University has come to a day comparable to other similar institutions, which rightfully look to their alumni for their principal support. From here on out we have, I think, the right to look for our chief support from the gifts of alumni and to expect them to raise their percentage of our net worth from the 5 per cent now visible to the major figure now to be found at other institutions.

We have asked that each living Lincoln man contribute at least $100 to our Centential Fund. Should every Lincoln man do, so, our physical face would show a tremendous "face-lifting"; and so would the proportion of our net worth contributed by alumni to the institution.

No doubt about it: Lincoln University owes its alumni everything.

No doubt, the alumni of Lincoln University owe it everything. How much are they willing to pay on their debt?

THE CENTENNIAL

Liberia, the land of my nativity and a land of hope and great promise.

About a month ago, the president of this university was gracious enough to send me two treasured documents having to do with the history of this university—one was a sermon delivered at the founding of the Ashmun Institute by the Reverend John Dickey, whose labour in behalf of this institution is so well known in Pennsylvania that it need not be elaborated upon by me; his theme was "Ethiopia Shall Stretch Out Her Hands unto God."

In a most lucid manner he described in that memorable discourse how Ethiopia, or the people who inhabited the land of Cush, would be converted to God and spread forth their hand in worship; that they would ultimately kindle the lamp of religious knowledge and by that light they would eventually be elevated among the peoples of the earth.

That prophecy which was made about five-score years ago concerning the people of Africa has been borne out by the actual facts.

The second document which fell into my hand was the dedicatory speech of the Reverend C. Van Rensselaer, opening the institution on December 31, 1856, entitled "God Glorified by Africa," in which he also outlined in a prophetic manner how it was hoped this institution would serve Liberia.

In addition to the founders of the Ashnum Institute being strong supporters of the American Colonization Society, to which Liberia owes its origin, a number of the graduates of Lincoln have gone to Liberia and have thrown in their lot in building Liberia as an African State.

I refer to Armstrong Miller, James B.
Amos and Thomas H. Amos; the latter must be credited with founding the first Presbyterian Church in Liberia, whose missionary activity has been most valuable.

In 1873, eleven students from Liberia entered Lincoln University, and during the following twenty years approximately twenty students from Liberia attended Lincoln, thus materializing the dream of the Reverends John Dickey and Van Rensselaer.

Among Liberians who have donned the academicus of Lincoln are Albert K. Peabody, whose son is presently a member of the Liberian Legislature; Luke B. Anthony, another graduate of Lincoln, who during his natural life served the country as a medical doctor and Professor of Mathematics at Liberia College. Whilst a lad it was my rare privilege to drink at the font out expressing my sincere appreciation to the unceasing responsibility for each of us.

I cannot speak to you here tonight without expressing my sincere appreciation to
Dr. Bond and members of the trustee board of Lincoln University for the honour which they have done me this evening in confering upon me the degree of Doctor of Laws, which I greatly treasure and value.

May I be permitted to add, that in honouring me you have also honoured the country which I represent in Washington.

Ladies and gentlemen, I know that I also reflect your sentiments in wishing Lincoln University the best of luck, prosperity in its educational undertakings and Godspeed as it enters the second century of its existence.

C. LIBRARY

2. State the objectives of the library as related to the objectives of the institution.

The objectives of the library are:

a. To implement the curriculum by providing and making accessible to students and faculty the books and periodicals required for the effective conduct of courses offered by the University.

b. To provide, as far as practicable, those books and periodicals which, irrerespective of the requirements of particular courses, are deemed of value to the students’ general education, to the maturing of his outlook as an individual and as a citizen, and to his understanding of his own civilization and of other civilizations, both past and present.

c. To provide, within budgetary limitations, materials deemed necessary to the development of the scholarly interests of the faculty within the various areas of these interests.

d. To care for and to exhibit the University’s museum collections.

e. To provide space for the display of student art and of items from loan collections.

3. Describe material resources of the library, including principal features of the book and periodical collections, special collections, audio-visual aids, etc.

The library’s resources comprise approximately 54,000 books, including bound periodicals, distributed throughout the major divisions and departments of learning. Owing to the presence of a Theological Seminary and to the inclusion, throughout the University’s history, of a required course in Religion, the concentration of books in this area is high, accounting for approximately 7,700 titles. The reference collection comprises about 1,000 titles, or 1,700 volumes. There is a special Negro collection (with emphasis upon the American Negro, but including African material), comprising about 1,240 titles, including bound pamphlets. A small colcollection of “Lincolniana” consists of books by and about Lincoln alumni and faculty members, also reprints of articles written by alumni and faculty members. The library also is charged with the custody of a collection of African art (the Susan Reynolds Underhill Collection) comprising about 500 items.

The library currently receives 984 periodicals.

The library does not at present possess a microfilm viewer or microfilm collection.
There is a microcard viewer and a small collection of microcards, including both book and periodical titles.

4. How adequate is the library building in relation to needed seating capacity, book capacity, library functions and services?

The present library building is too small for our present needs. However, an addition to the existing structure is to be built.
The proposed addition will double stack capacity, treble seating capacity, and substantially enlarge service areas. Per capita seating capacity (in reading rooms and carrels) will exceed, in the expanded structure, the prescribed minimum for college and university libraries, and stack capacity will accommodate normal growth during about two decades. Funds have been allocated for the new construction, working drawings have been prepared, and a contractor has been secured. It is expected that ground will be broken in March, 1953.

5. Are the functions of the library stated in any of the official documents of the institution—chart, by-laws, catalogue, etc.? If so, please quote.
The functions of the library, as they will be stated in the forthcoming catalogue, are as follows:

a. To procure, by purchase, subscription, and exchange, those books, periodicals and other materials deemed necessary to fulfilling the educational needs and objectives of the institution.

b. To so organize library holdings, by efficient procedures of classification, cataloguing and shelf arrangement, as to make them readily accessible to users.

c. To secure through the processes of inter-library loan, required materials not in the library’s possession.

d. To provide trained reference service and to supplement the instructional program of the institution by guidance in the selection and use of reading material.

e. To safeguard library materials against physical deterioration.

6. What are the responsibilities and authority of the chief librarian? To whom does he report? Does he publish an annual report? If so, submit a copy of the last report.

The responsibilities and authority of the chief librarian are stated briefly in the By-Laws of the Faculty, as follows:

Article I. Administrative Officers

8. The Librarian shall be the administrative officer in charge of the Library and the custodian of the University’s art collection.
He shall have the power to recommend, to the President, appointees to the staff of the Library and shall submit, with the aid of his committee, an annual budget for the Library.

The librarian does not publish an annual report.

7. Is there a library committee? How is it chosen? What are its functions, authority and responsibility?

There is a library committee consisting of the librarian, as ex-officio chairman, and four members elected from among the University faculty by that body. The elected members of the committee advise the librarian in all matters connected with the operation of the library. The committee as a whole presents recommendations to the University faculty or administration regarding matters that require the approval of these bodies. In addition the committee determines each year the alloc-tation to individual departments of funds earmarked for book purchase.

8. What provision is there for teaching the use of the library to students?

As part of the freshman orientation program, all freshman students are given instruction by the librarian in the use of the library, with particular emphasis on the card catalogue and the reference collection.
In addition, individual instructors sometimes bring groups of students to the stacks to familiarize their classes with the resources in their respective areas of study.

9. What is the faculty rank or status of the chief librarian? Of other library staff members? Do they have faculty voting privileges? On what college committees do the chief librarian and other staff members serve?

The present rank of the chief librarian is that of Assistant Professor, but the position is not fixed by statute at this grade. The chief librarian has voting privileges in both the University and College faculty, and is eligible to faculty committees. The assistant librarian does not have faculty status.
The chief librarian serves currently on a special Self-Evaluation Committee. He is not now a member of any standing committee other than the Library Committee.

10. How many volumes (exclusive of pamphlets and public documents) are there in the library?

There are approximately 54,000 volumes in the library, exclusive of unbound pamphlets and public documents.

11. What is the number of new titles accessioned during each of the last five years?

1951-1952 — 2,500

12. What is the number of volumes discarded during each of the last five years?

No record exists of the number of volumes discarded during the last five years.
A record of discards has been initiated during the current academic year.

13. What is the number (not names) of periodicals currently received in each of the major subject divisions? Give the list of periodical indexes received. What percentage of the periodicals indexed in each is currently received?

Periodicals currently received by major subject divisions are as follows:

Modern Languages, Literature,...
Philology — 10
Classical Languages, Literature,...
Archaeology — 4
Music — 3
Drama — 1
Art — 2
Religion and Theology — 27
Philosophy — 7 Political Science (including Law,...
Public Administration) — 22
Sociology and Anthropology — 16
Mathematics — 9
Physics — 6
Chemistry — 7
Biology — 8
Technology — 6
Medicine and Public Health — 6

*Excludes titles listed under other headings, e.g., History, Education.

The periodical indices received are: Reader's Guide to Periodical Literature; International Index to Periodicals; Education Index; Biography Index; PAIS; Index to Selected Negro Periodicals. The library received 57.5 per cent of the periodicals indexed in the Reader's Guide, 26.4 per cent of those indexed in the International Index, 19 per cent of those indexed in the Education Index, 10.8 per cent of those indexed in PAIS, and 90 per cent of those indexed in the index to Selected Negro Periodicals. (The Biography Index contains no complete listing of periodicals indexed, thus no percentage can be computed.)

14. Is there an annual library budget? Amount? Per cent of total expenditure of institution? Who determines the institutional allocation of the library budget? Does the library budget cover all institutional expenditures for books and periodicals? What part of the budget is in free or unrestricted funds at the disposal of the chief librarian?

The amount of the library budget for the current academic year is $20,157.50, a figure representing about 30.1 per cent of the total institutional budget. The institutional allocation of the budget is determined by the University administration in consultation with the librarian and the library committee. The allocation among departments of funds set aside for book purchase is determined by the library committee with the approval of the faculty. Books and periodicals for the specific use of administrative offices are purchased from other than library funds. There are no absolutely unrestricted funds at the disposal of the librarian; there is, however, in the current budget, an item of $800.00 for book purchase which is expended at the sole discretion of the librarian. Another item of $400.00 is expended at the librarian's discretion within the area of Negro and African literature.

15. Who is responsible for choice of new books?

Of the $5,165 allocated for book purchase, $800 is expended by the librarian, at his sole discretion, and another $400, earmarked for the Special Negro Collection, is expended at his discretion, within the particular subject area. The $765 currently allocated to Reference is also at the librarian's disposal. Choice of books for purchase from the $765 remaining is vested in the heads of departments, subject to review by the librarian.

16. What was the expenditure for each of the last five years for:

- Salaries
- Books
- Periodicals
- Binding (including periodicals)
- Supplies, equipment, etc.

Totals: $16,450.59

*Note on Salaries: The first item represents only the amount of cash salaries disbursed to regular staff members, whether full-time or part-time. It was thought advisable to show this figure as a separate item; on the other hand it has been necessary to add two items not included in the questionnaire—the items "Housing and Meals (Staff)" and "Salaries (Student)—since these also are expenditures charged to the library budget and appear in the totals.

17. How many outside loans per student were made for the last full academic year?

The number of outside loans per student during the last full academic year was 23.3.

18. What is the number of loans per faculty member for last full academic year?

The number of loans per faculty member during the academic year 1951–52 was 21.5. (It should be noted that in computing this figure loans to members of faculty families are credited to faculty members, since no distinction has been made in statistical records maintained in the library.)

19. How many hours a week is the library open? How many hours a week is professional reference service available?

The library is open 58 hours per week during the regular academic session. Professional reference service is available 38 hours a week.

V. OUTCOMES

1. Give a list of the institutions to which your graduates of the last five years have gone for advanced study (senior colleges, professional, graduate, etc.) showing the number entering each institution.

American University, Washington D. C. 3
Boston University, Boston, Mass. 4
Brooklyn Law School, Brooklyn, N. Y. 3
Columbia University, New York City 9
Howard University, Washington, D. C. 44

2. Is there a program for the follow-up of the institution's graduates to determine the extent of realization of institutional purposes and objectives? If so,

a. Please describe it.

b. Attach copies of any recent formal study conducted under the program described above (including studies of records in advanced studies).

There is a program for the follow-up of the institution's graduates. To some degree it permits us to estimate the extent of realization of institutional purposes and objectives. Briefly the program follows:

A. In the Office of the Registrar

1. A file of every graduate with a record of his requests for transcripts and the institutions to which such transcripts were sent.

2. When acknowledgment of acceptance is made by the graduate school or by the student, such information is turned over to the Alumni files of the Public Relations Office.

B. In the Public Relations Office (Alumni Records)

1. A complete file of all graduates is kept. This is revised as information reaches us.

2. Questionnaires are sent out from this office to all graduates. The compilations are made and published in the form of Alumni Directories.

Directories published:

1918: Editor—George Johnson
1946: Editor—Laurence Foster
1953–54 (in process): Editor—Alfred Farrell

This data has permitted us to determine the following information concerning our graduates and to estimate the extent to which purposes and objectives have been realized.

1. See Exhibit (A)—Record of students in Medical Sciences (Medicine, Dentistry, Biological Sciences).

2. See Exhibit (B)—Record of students in Law.

3. Observe the following statistics from compilations in the Public Relations Office (incomplete data):

33 academies and high schools founded by Lincoln men.
32 instances of Lincoln men serving as presidents of colleges.
38 colleges and universities with Lincoln men now employed as faculty members. This includes 40 southern institutions.

Lincoln University, Lincoln University, Pa. 7
Meharry Medical College, Nashville, Tenn. 19
Michigan, University of, Ann Arbor, Mich. 3
New York University, New York City. 18
Pennsylvania, University of, Philadelphia, Pa. 9
Pittsburgh, University of, Pittsburgh, Pa. 4
Temple University, Philadelphia, Pa. 12
Yale University, New Haven, Conn. 3

Lincoln University Bulletin of Washington, D. C. (public schools and universities).

3 Deans at Howard University
2 Professors in Howard University Medical School
3 Professors in Howard University Liberal Arts School

LINCOLN BULLETIN

REV. L. M. OSOQUE, '04, '07s—died at his home in Mt. Airy, N. C., October 11, 1953.

Dr. WALTER F. JEREMIAH; '13—for thirty-five years a practicing physician in Philadelphia, Dr. Jerrick, "scholar, philanthropist, and friend to all," died at University Hospital in Philadelphia, October 23, 1953.

Rev. James WADE, '08—pastor of the Mt. Zion Baptist Church in Chicago, the Rev. Mr. Walker, died at his home October 25 (?), 1953.

John H. Taylor, '30, received the Doctor of Philosophy degree in chemistry from the University of Delaware on September 20, thus becoming the first Negro ever to receive a doctorate from the institution. Taylor's thesis, "A Study of Sabine and Some of Its Derivatives," took four and a half years of research and writing. A chemistry teacher at Howard High School in Wilmington, Taylor was first denied admission into the University in September, 1947. Through the efforts of Mrs. F. T. Jamison, president of the Wilmington Branch of the N. A. A. C. P., the way was paved for the admission of Negro students on the graduate level by February, 1948. Taylor, who received the Master of Science degree in chemistry from the University of Pennsylvania in 1949, was accepted as a doctoral candidate by the University of Delaware in November, 1949.

Prior to accepting his present position at Howard High School, the distinguished Lincoln alumnus, who is married and the father of a teen-age daughter, taught for one year at Howard University, where he held a teaching scholarship in the Department of Chemistry. During World War II he taught pre-flight aeronautics in the Air Age Program in Wilmington. For ten years he has been sponsor of the N. A. A. C. P. Youth Council. He is delegate at large in the Delaware Council of Education where he represents Negro secondary schools in Delaware. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the New Castle County Active Young Republicans, and has served three terms as vice president of the Home and School Council.

Taylor's achievement was the occasion for a special editorial in the Wilmington Sunday Star: "The Star wishes to congratulate Dr. Taylor. But also to be congratulated are the administration of the University of Delaware and the students—both white and Negro.

"For, in adapting so quickly, intelligently and completely to a new situation, they have created another milestone on the slow and often tortuous route of progress in the field of human relations."

"Two-Way Integration" project in the current issue of the Lincoln University Bulletin. I think this was a constructive move and hope that it will produce the desired results.

We [National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students) are indeed glad that Lincoln becomes one of the first predominantly Negro institutions to enroll a white student who is receiving supplemental assistance from us under the "Two-Way Integration" project.

One morning just before Christmas three announcements of gifts came to this desk. One letter announced a grant of $20,000 from the Ford Fund for the Advancement of Education. A telephone call brought the happy news that an anonymous Foundation had made a grant of $15,000 to provide scholarship opportunities for foreign students under the New Program of Lincoln University. A letter enclosed a check for $100 from Willard J. McLean, ’11, enrolling him as a Lincoln University Centurion.

One is always grateful for every gift to the cause, and the good will the gifts convey is without measure or distinction so far as the amount is concerned. Yet I do not believe that the officials of either the Fund for the Advancement of Education or of the anonymous Foundation will mind it if I here confess a particular sense of appreciation for Mr. McLean’s gift. And that peculiar and altogether unique feeling extends also to the Lincoln men whose names appear as donors to our Centennial Fund in the back of this magazine and to the many other Lincoln men who will soon be adding their names to that list.

The third gift came from a man who is a schoolteacher. For thirty years or more of his active life, he worked for a pittance, receiving perhaps a third of what the salary scale for teachers of the majority race in North Carolina received. Only for a very short span of his life—and this during a period of excessive inflation—has his salary approached that of other American teachers; and even here the rewards are far from any adequate relevancy to devotion and training.

Yet this man has the love and integrity and generosity of heart to give to Lincoln University a gift of $100 in its Centennial year. It is a substantial gift; how substantial it is may best be measured in terms of what it will buy for Lincoln University.

Mr. McLean’s gift will buy 100 cubic feet of new building construction. Lincoln University proposes a New Program and needs a newer plant in which to conduct it. The addition to the library nears completion; the next unit scheduled is a dormitory. That dormitory will include approximately 350,000 cubic feet and cost approximately $350,000. We have $220,000 now available for the new dormitory, over and above the library cost; we need only 1,300 of our 3,500 living alumni and former students to follow Mr. McLean’s example, and the dormitory is paid for. Beyond that, we need a dining hall or a student union as the next unit; $100 each from the remaining 2,200 alumni will do the job.

Of course some men can, should, and will give more. From the standpoint of annual and life-time income, there are Lincoln men who by contrast with Mr. McLean’s annual or life-time income could, and indeed doubtless will, give more—much more.

We are grateful to the Fund for the Advancement of Education and to our anonymous donor, whose respective gifts of $20,000 and $15,000 give living flesh and blood to the New Program of Lincoln University. We are grateful also—more than we can say—to the McLeans of Lincoln University, who give at one and the same time tribute to the kind of education that was received in the Old Program of Lincoln University and brick and mortar to the physical home of a new idea. May their tribe prosper in the land!
Lincoln University's name suggests its nature and ideals—its humanitarian establishment a hundred years ago to emancipate the minds of an unprivileged people; its position just over the Pennsylvania line from Maryland; its practical insistence on the dignity of man as man, not as a member of a particular group. It is plagued with the economic difficulties which beset its people—and beset all colleges to a distressing extent—but it is in many ways a sound, strong institution.

OBJECTIVES

Lincoln offers its students the customary program of a liberal arts college and, through the seminary, basic training for the pastorate. The college makes little point, in its announcements, of vocational preparation, although obviously its men must have that as a primary purpose in coming to college. It reflects its history in a scientific, and especially pre-medical, interest, and it seeks to develop in its graduates a spirit of love and reverence toward the Giver of all good and the Author of its laws. The University's name suggests its humanitarian estabishment throughout by inadequate secretarial assistance and insufficient equipment. Administrative officers or of undue assumption of administrative functions by the Board.

Each of the individual administrative officers is competent, knows his duties, understands inter-administrative relationships, and is cognizant both of the general objectives of the university and the relationship of his own program to them. Morale appears generally high. While the duties and functions of the several officers are not usually explicitly defined, there appears to be no conflict in functions, due no doubt to the small size of the institution. The preparation of an administrative manual would be helpful.

Six of the eight major administrative officers carry teaching duties in addition to their administrative loads, the two exceptions being the treasurer-business manager and the librarian. In the semester covered by the report submitted by the university, the president taught 3 semester hours; the dean of the college, 18; the registrar, 14; the dean of students, 6; and the dean of the seminary, 12. Considering 15 semester hours as a normal instruction load, these eight administrative officers carried an instructional load equivalent to four full-time teachers. This, in theory at least, means that the administrative work of the university is carried on by the full-time equivalent of four persons. There is no question but that the administrative services would be improved if the heavy teaching load of some of the officers were to be substantially reduced.

The administrative officers are characterized throughout by inadequate secretarial assistance and insufficient equipment. Additional secretarial assistance would relieve the relatively high-paid administrative personnel of routine clerical duties.

The president performs in a satisfactory manner the usual functions of the chief executive of a small institution. It is evident that he gives educational leadership to the faculty, that he is cognizant of the basic problems of the institution, and that he is concerned with the selection of the best faculty members available. Some administrative procedures, however, particularly in the area of budget formulation and control, are carried on in too informal a manner. There appears further to be a lack of clarity in the administrative procedures to be followed during the president's frequent protracted absences from the campus.

The dean of the university is shown on the administrative chart as the administrative officer next in line to the president. As a matter of fact, he has very little to do as an administrator, his chief function being to sign checks and preside at faculty meetings in the absence of the president. Although the matter is not of basic importance, it would seem that the responsibilities of this position could well be discharged by a member of the faculty.

The treasurer-business manager has charge of financial and business operations, and under direction of the Finance Committee of the Board of Trustees administers the investment portfolio of the institution. He is handicapped by too small a staff, a problem which is accentuated by the fact that the assistant financial officer teaches six semester hours in accounting. The most serious shortcoming observed is the failure to provide the president and department heads with periodic financial reports. It is difficult to see how financial control can be effectively exercised under present conditions.

The registrar serves only the college. The dean of the seminary acts as registrar and admissions officer for that division and all seminary records, except those of graduates, are kept and maintained in his office. The registrar, who carries a normal teaching load from 9 to 16 semester hours, has insufficient clerical assistance to discharge adequately the functions of his office. He can not make studies of educational problems or provide the deans, advisers, and departmental heads with periodic reports on the academic records of students. The recording of grades, however, and the general status of student records are good. The records of the seminary students are not protected from loss in case of fire, and the evaluation committee has some question as to the adequacy of protection afforded the college records. The registrar is doing a satisfactory job under present circumstances, but an effort should be made to reduce his teaching schedule in order to allow him additional time to discharge his other administrative responsibilities.

The work in alumni and public relations is coordinated by the dean of students, who normally carries in addition a teaching load of 12 hours could be reduced.

The student personnel services are coordinated by the dean of students, who is charged with the responsibility of treating minor ailments, and a part-time physician.

The college faculty is satisfactory in regard to number, distribution by rank, training, and experience. There is undesirable turnover, however, at the rank of instructor, where only two of the eleven teachers have served more than one and a half years at the institution. The salaries paid, while low, appear to be in line with those paid in institutions of comparable size and level when the cash value of the housing perquisite is taken into consideration. From time to time the institution loses some of its better professors because they cannot support the competition of higher faculty members.

Academic administration is carried on by the dean of the college and the dean of the seminary, under the general supervision of the president and with the assistance of faculty members. The dean of the college discharges his responsibilities in a very satisfactory manner but he could do a more effective job if his teaching load 12 hours could be reduced.

The student personnel services are coordinated by the dean of students, who normally carries in addition a teaching load of 6 to 12 hours a semester. In the absence of specialized personnel, a large part of the program is carried by student advisors, student dormitory proctors, faculty advisors, and faculty committees. A small institution where intimate interpersonal relationships are possible does not require the complex personnel organization appropriate to a large institution. While it is impossible to ascertain within the limits of a few days' observation the actual effectiveness of the student personnel procedures, it is apparent that there are a number of shortcomings in the Lincoln program. The dean of students himself is competent in both a personal and professional sense, but the program is too extensive to be handled effectively by one part-time administrative officer. The following weaknesses were observed:

The dean of the students both counsels and disciplines students, with a resultant conflict in these functions; in the lack of dormitory directors, other than students, the dormitory life of students is inadequately controlled and directed; there is inadequate provision for academic, personal, and vocational counseling; little emphasis is given to the social and cultural development of students; and no formal effort is made in the placement of graduates.

The university health service is under the direction of a physician on full salary who spends three hours a day at the institution and who is on call at all other times. A dentist spends one day a week at the school. There is an 8-bed infirmary, including a 2-bed isolation room, and nursing service is provided by student assistants.

Hospitalization is available in nearby towns. Routine physical examinations are given all students at the beginning of the year, and the physician examines the food services periodically. In view of the fact that a large portion of the physician's time is spent in treating minor ailments, it is probable that a more satisfactory and at the same time more economical program could be provided with a full-time nurse and a part-time physician.

The college faculty is satisfactory in regard to number, distribution by rank, training, and experience. There is undesirable turnover, however, at the rank of instructor, where only two of the eleven teachers have served more than one and a half years at the institution. The salaries paid, while low, appear to be in line with those paid in institutions of comparable size and level when the cash value of the housing perquisite is taken into consideration. From time to time the institution loses some of its better professors because they cannot meet the competition of higher salaries offered elsewhere. This problem could best be met by increasing the range of salaries at the professional level, so that a higher maximum salary could be paid to the best qualified professors. The teacher-student ratio is approximately 1 to 15 and the median class appears to have an enrollment of less than 15 students. In view of the financial condition of the institution consideration well be given to increasing the average class size with a resultant economy in operating expenses.

Provision for the protection of the tenure of faculty members is standard and satisfactory. Promotion policies of the institution are not clear; administrative officers and faculty members are not in agreement, for example, as to the qualifications of teachers appointed or promoted to the rank of professor. The retirement plan is confusing and unsatisfactory and does not adequately cover all members of the faculty. The entire retirement problem is now under consideration by the Board of Trustees.

There is every evidence of faculty participation in governing the institution and in determining educational policy. There have been no complaints of any restriction of academic freedom. There appears to be no exploitation of faculty members in the assignment of excessive administrative duties, except as pointed out above that administrative officers carry excessive teaching loads. The institution operates in a democratic manner, and while there are the normal conflicts and grievances, administrative-faculty-student relationships are, on the whole, satisfactory.

THE COLLEGE PROGRAM

Lincoln University's highest enrollment, some years ago, was 534. It has 515 students today. There are doubtless several reasons for this decline; but if President Bond's stand against athletic scholarships is one of them, he should be commended for his attitude, particularly since many of alumni have been critical.

The college's course offerings, while far from numerous, appear to be reasonably selective and adequate for the educational program. Evidence for this comes from the catalog, from visits to classes, and from the fact that many of the graduates enter medical and dental schools or are admitted to other graduate schools.

Requirements for admission as adminis- tered are similar to those of other approved colleges. It would, therefore, perhaps be better to restate these requirements in the catalog; for example, six units of elective subjects out of fifteen units are higher than is usual, and four years of English are usually listed as three units in this part of the country.

From an inspection of the records in the registrar's office, it appears that a sizable number of applicants are rejected because of poor high school records and that applicants generally must have grades comparable to those required by other good colleges. Also, it appears that the published rules for probation or dismissal because of unsatisfactory scholarship are enforced.

The quality of the classroom work appears excellent, as does the rapport between teachers and students. Some laboratories are better equipped than others, notably that in organic chemistry where their supplies have been richly supplemented by a gift of three truck loads of material from the Arthur H. Thomas Co. Also, a grant from the Research Corporation, New York, has made possible the purchase of some very fine equipment. The equipment in physics and in psychology is more open to question, especially for offering majors in these fields.

Continuation of so extensive an offering of physical education courses might also be questioned.

An examination of ten or twelve of the newest books—and good ones—from the library, indicated that the students are not putting any undue burden on the present facilities of the library. For example, the edges of the books were as clean as when they were taken from the printer's engine and the filing cards showed that the books had not been taken out. Of course, this is not as unusual as we like to think, and many a student has his hands full in covering material in the textbooks used. At the same time, it might be well to try at Lincoln to incite more students into prying into some things not in the assignments—to venture, in the words of Stephen Leacock, "behind the beyond" on their own initiative.

The evaluation committee commends Lincoln for its athletic program. President Bond and the faculty are to be congratulated upon the courageous de-emphasis policy they have initiated. The coaches and members of the physical education de-
William M. Ashby, executive secretary of the Urban League of Eastern Union County, N. J., since its organization in 1944, retired December 31, but intends to continue making use of his broad knowledge of social work as a volunteer or in part-time employment. Under his direction the Urban League grew to 1,000 members and increased its budget by more than two-thirds. Ashby has devoted thirty-six fruitful years to social welfare work and community intergroup relations. Before coming to Elizabeth, he spent ten years with the Urban League in Springfield, Ill.

In Memoriam

"Time like an ever rolling stream
Bears all its sons away"

Lewis M. Hunt, '48—died in New York of a gunshot wound November 6, 1953.

Dr. Norman J. Cotton, '04—died in St. Mary's Hospital, Orange, N. J., after a long illness, November 18, 1953.

Claude F. Johnson, ex '49—mail marked "deceased" returned from Washington, D. C., December, 1953.

Dr. David M. Scott, '10—mail marked "deceased" returned from Aiken, S. C., December, 1953.

Dr. Francis C. Sunner, '15—died of a heart attack at his home in Washington D. C., January 11, 1954. He was chairman of the Department of Psychology at Howard University.

Curlester Williams, ex '50—reported missing in action August 11, 1950. Sgt. Williams was presumed dead on the Army's latest (January) list of military personnel missing in Korea.

We must aim always at institutional improvements; otherwise the self-evaluation which is inseparable from the survey necessary at the time of accreditation would be little more than a gesture at pleasing those who carry the responsibility for our regional association. It is therefore incumbent upon us to establish, with some degree of clarity, those questions of larger and deeper meaning which lead toward general institutional improvement. This is a moral obligation rather than a duty.

Dean J. Newton Hill

The measure of a man's real character is what he would do if he knew he would never be found out.

FACULTY NEWS AND NOTES

was the speaker at the annual meeting of the Community Center in Moorestown, N. J., November 18. From November 15-18 he participated in the re-evaluation of the University of Maryland by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. On November 22 he spoke at Reeve Memorial Church in Philadelphia, which is pastored by the Rev. George F. Ellison, '07, '10s. On November 29 Dr. Bond flew to West Africa by way of London and Tripoli. The trip was under the auspices of the Institute of African-American Relations, an organization devoted to the development of intercultural relations between Africa and America.

In West Africa Dr. Bond interviewed leading African on behalf of the Institute. At Kano, in Nigeria, he visited the native administration, interviewing the Chiroma (son of the Emir of Kano) and other officials. At Kumasi, in the Gold Coast, he attended several sessions of the African Nationalists Conference called by Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah, '39, '42s. At a meeting at Prempeh Hall on December 6, Dr. Bond was one of four Lincoln men appearing on the program of eight speakers. The principal speaker was Dr. Nnamdi Azikiwe, '39, of Nigeria. His Excellency, the Prime Minister, presided. Adjei, ex '42, also spoke. Two other Lincoln men were in the audience: Theodore Asare, '39, recently appointed to an important post in the Senior Civil Service, with responsibility for cooperatives in Ashanti (the principal center of the cooperative movement in the Gold Coast and Willis J. Randolph, ex '34, an important official in the General Accountant's office. In his speech Dr. Azikiwe took occasion to give a moving tribute to the part played by Lincoln University in the rejuvenation of West Africa.

In Accra, the Gold Coast, Dr. Bond interviewed various members of the Supreme Court of the Gold Coast and other high officials. His next stop was at Freetown in Sierra Leone, where he saw Dr. William Pitzjohn, '43, lecturer at the University College and a member of the Legislative Assembly; Dr. David E. Boyce-Johnson, '30, senior medical officer in the Sierra Leone Health Service and director of the large and efficiently operated central hospital of the colony; and G. A. John, '51s, principal of the A. M. E. Boys High School.

In Freetown Dr. Bond interviewed various members of the Cabinet and other officials, including the Honorable A. G. S. Randle, Minister of Education, whose son, A. G. S. Randle, Jr., is attending Lincoln University. His next stop was at Dakar in French West Africa, where he was well received by high officials, including M. Boissier-Palun, president of the Council of French West Africa, and a member of the staff of the Institut Francaise d'Afrique Noire.

Returning by way of Lisbon, Madrid, London, Iceland, and Newfoundland, Dr. Bond completed his quick journey on December 17 when he landed in New York.

On December 27 he spoke at the historic Christ Church in Philadelphia at a meeting sponsored by the Grand Lodge of Prince Hall Masons of Pennsylvania to commemorate the life and work of Absalom Jones, the first Negro ordained as a priest of the Episcopal Church in the United States and the first Grand Master of Prince Hall Masons in Pennsylvania. Absalom Jones and Richard Allen were both friends of John Miller, the grandfather of John Miller Dickey, Lincoln's founder, who worked heroically with them in caring for the sick during Philadelphia's yellow fever epidemic of 1793.

Lincoln's busy president attended meetings of the Presbyterian College Union and the Association of American Colleges at Cincinnati on January 11 and 12. On January 13 he spoke in Memphis at a meeting of the Bishops' Council of the A. M. E. Zion Church, of which Bishop John W. Martin, '02, '03s, is the senior bishop. Bishop Daniel C. Pope, '28, was the presiding chairman. The occasion was the celebration of the centenary of the birth of Lincoln's famous alumnus Joseph C. Price, '79, '81s, the founder of Livingstone College. It was announced at the meeting that Bishop Pope had been approved to receive an honorary degree from Lincoln University. He returned soon to take up his work as Bishop of West Africa for his denomination. From January 16-18 Dr. Bond attended the annual meeting of the United Negro College Fund in Boston, speaking at the St. Cyprian's Church on January 17.

H. Alfred Farrell visited Pittsburgh, Columbus, East St. Louis, St. Louis, Kansas City (Mo and Kan.), and Indianapolis (November 9-20) and Bridgeport, New Haven, Hartford, Springfield, and Boston (December 7-11) to talk to students about Lincoln University. While in Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Indianapolis, New Haven, Hartford, and Boston, he met with groups of Lincoln alumni who pledged greater interest in the activities of the institution.

Dr. Farrell attended the District II Conference of the American Alumni Council in Atlantic City January 7-9, and while there he met with the Atlantic City alumni on January 9. On January 15 he was the principal speaker at the annual dinner meeting of Fellowship House in Reading, Pa.

Dr. R. Banks Blocher, assistant head master of the Phelps School, was guest preacher on Sunday, October 25.

The Rev. George W. Webber, dean of students at Union Theological Seminary, was the guest speaker at the University Assembly on Thursday, November 5. He spoke about his experiences at the East Harlem Protestant Parish, which he helped to found in 1948.

The Rev. Russell Williams, active in interracial church activities, spoke at the Sunday chapel services on November 8.

The Rev. E. M. Ketcham, employment counselor for the East Harlem Protestant Parish, was guest preacher on Sunday, November 15.

The Rev. Matthew Davis, '31, rector of St. Monica's Church in Philadelphia, spoke at the Sunday chapel services on November 22. Father Davis is Episcopal chaplain to Lincoln and Cheyney students.

The Rev. W. T. Mollegan, professor of New Testament Ethics at the Virginia Episcopal Theological Seminary, delivered the message at the Sunday chapel services on December 13.

Dean J. Newton Hill and Dr. Paul Kuehner appeared on the program of the annual meeting of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools in Atlantic City November 27 and 28. Dean Hill was a member of the panel that discussed the subject "Self-Evaluation—An Opportunity for Institutional Improvement," while the panel of which Dr. Kuehner was a member discussed the subject "Registrars' Policies, Procedures and Practices." On November 15 Dean Hill addressed the open meeting of the Interracial Committee of the Wilmington Council of United Churchwomen at the Second Baptist Church in Wilmington, Del. His subject was "The Contribution of the Negro to American Culture."

Dean J. B. McRae represented Lincoln University at the Conference of Personnel Deans at the University of Pittsburgh on October 26 and at a meeting of the Higher Education Division of the Pennsylvania State Education Association in Harrisburg on November 20 and 21. On November 22 he represented Lincoln at the four hundredth broadcast of Americans All in Washington, D. C., a program conceived and supervised by Tomlinson Todd, '36.

- Talented Stage Star Congratulates Star Performer

Hilda Simms, who gained fame through her performance in "Anna Lucasta," presents Bristol Leake, New York City senior, with a prize for his performance in "The Last Mile," the first presentation of the Lincoln Players for 1953-54.

At its second meeting for the semester on Wednesday evening, October 28, the Philosophy Club discussed the subject "Does Life Have a Meaning?" The discussion was started by four student panel members: David Thomas, senior, Philadelphia; Robert Rivers, junior, New York City; Herbert Lemmon, senior, Philadelphia; and George Baldwin, junior, Brunswick, Ga. The question was discussed from four points of view: historic, philosophic, religious, and economic. Dean J. Newton Hill addressed the group on Tuesday evening, December 15, on the topic "Art and Aesthetics," and on Wednesday, January 13, the meeting was devoted to a discussion of the subject "Capital Punishment." Richard Holmes, senior, Orange, N. J., and Witold Cohn, senior, Philadelphia, discussed the pro side of the topic while Philip Gerard, freshman, Virgin Islands; George Baldwin, junior, Brunswick, Ga.; Isaiah Smith, sophomore, Bethlehem, Pa.; Joseph Barber, sophomore, Pittsburgh; Donald Taylor, sophomore, Donora, Pa.; and Russell Willis, junior, Altoona, Pa.

The Social Science Club presented Dr. Henry Cornwell at its meeting on Wednesday, November 11. Dr. Cornwell spoke on the subject "The Application of Social Research to Problems of Social Action." Harry Morris, senior, Jamaica, N. Y., is president of the group.

The Lincoln Players presented "The Last Mile" on the campus Thursday through Saturday, November 19-21 and at the University of Delaware on Monday, January 18, at 8:15 p.m. The leading roles were enacted by Lonnie Fuller, sophomore, Philadelphia; Bristol Leake, senior, New York City; William Jacques, sophomore, Columbia, S. C.; Y. C. Ferguson, junior, Blytheville, Ark.; Cecil Marquez, freshman, Norfolk, Va.; Albert Crawford, senior, Jamaica, N. Y.; Lacees McKnight, junior, Media, Pa.; Philip Gerard, freshman, Virgin Islands; George Baldwin, junior, Brunswick, Ga.; Isaiah Smith, sophomore, Bethlehem, Pa.; and Russell Willis, junior, Altoona, Pa.

The Y. M. C. A. held its annual Christmas Party for the children in the community on Monday, December 14, at 8:00 p.m. in Mary Dod Brown Chapel. Herbert Lemmon, senior, Philadelphia, is president of the Y. M. C. A.

Nu Chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity presented Samuel Dilworth, pianist, in recital Thursday, January 14, at 8:15 p.m. Currently a senior at the Manhattan School of Music, Mr. Dilworth, a native of the Bronx, is president of the group.

To inspire deeper religious thinking among all students, whatever their faith, Dickinson College is bringing to its campus many of the great pulpit voices of America in a series of worship services at the morning chapel hour. In the course of sixteen services—two each month—the students will hear representative American clergymen of various faiths.

A faculty committee at Princeton University is at work on a year's course introductory to the whole area of social science, including anthropology, social psychology, and sociology, as well as the older, more established fields of politics and economics. The course is being planned because of a belief that all students should have the advantage of our accumulating understanding of how societies develop and operate.

Gifts, grants, and bequests to Teachers College, Columbia University, for the 1952-53 academic year totaled $1,285,444, a new record for the college.

Fifteen universities in the United States now have library collections of over a million volumes, according to the Office of Education. Harvard leads with 5,848,794 volumes, followed by Yale with 8,124,607 and the University of Illinois with 5,570,378.

Marlboro College in Vermont is experimenting with a practical forestry course with the purpose of integrating the field work in forestry with the academic curriculum and at the same time enabling students to earn part of their college expenses.

More thorough training in oral and written English, broader cultural background, and a more effective system of guidance for students were recommended in a report of a study made at Lafayette College through a grant from the Fund for the Advancement of Education.

Job opportunities for Negro clerical and secretarial workers are definitely continuing on the upgrade, according to a survey conducted by the William Penn Business Institute among National Urban League branches. The study found that the number of positions in the white-collar field now exceeds the number of qualified applicants.

Dr. Clarence E. Macartney, pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, and former Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, was the principal speaker at the convocation of the Theological Seminary at Tindley Temple in Philadelphia on November 8. The convocation was sponsored by the Lincoln alumni of Philadelphia. Lincoln has sent more than a thousand graduates into the Christian ministry, and they can be found serving all major denominations.

Dr. Bond is shown with some of the Lincoln alumni who attended the National Urban League Conference in Philadelphia: Thomas Lee, '26, Human Relations Commission of Philadelphia; George B. Winston, '21, '24s, executive secretary of the Urban League, Springfield, Ill.; Dr. Bond; William M. Ashby, '11, who recently retired as executive secretary of the Urban League, Elizabeth, N. J.; Furman Templeton, '35, executive secretary of the Urban League, Baltimore, Md.; and Philip J. Winfield, '36, industrial relations secretary, Dayton, O.

Professor Manuel Rivero presents Lt. Col. Elmer P. Gibson, '26, ex '29s, to Dr. Bond for the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity as the Rev. William P. Stevenson, '26, '28s, president of the Philadelphia Chapter of the General Alumni Association looks on. Honorary degrees were also conferred upon Dr. John A. Mackay, the Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church; Dr. Hardy C. Liston, president of Johnson C. Smith University; Dr. William M. Gerber, international vice-president of the B'nai Brith; and Dr. Ralph C. Hutchison, president of Lafayette College.
Mr. Julius Rosenwald II, a trustee of Lincoln University, appears with members of the North Jersey Chapter of the General Alumni Association to whom he spoke on the subject of "The New Program of Lincoln University." Dr. George Cannon, '24, who recently became a permanent member of the Trustee Board after serving as an alumni representative, accepted the invitation of the chapter to be present to hear Mr. Rosenwald. Dr. Cannon is chairman of the Committee on Lincoln's New Program. Dr. Ellsworth Marron, '36, is president of the North Jersey Chapter. Two other trustees, Dr. David G. Morris, '18, and Dr. Harold R. Scott, '25, are members of the progressive chapter.

The Ford Foundation is offering scholarships and fellowships to young Americans who wish to begin or continue studies on the Soviet or East European areas during the academic year 1954-55. The Wassell Organization, Inc., of Westport, Conn., which manufactures products in office and record procedure, is looking for men to handle products. They offer an exclusive territory; seven patent-protected products; national advertising; direct mail to all industries, banks, retailers, etc.; demonstrating equipment on a memorandum charge (no investment); education training for two weeks in Westport with periodic refresher courses; annual conferences; handling of all bookkeeping and collection on sales; and commissions on sales within a week of shipping invoices.

The following is expected of a man: education in business economics or office or plant experience; the desire and ability to sell; a spirit of optimism and confidence in the future; a real desire to meet and talk to people; sufficient money to pay his personal expenses for a period of three to six months while he is getting started; his own car; attendance at the company's school in Westport for two weeks; establishment of a small office with telephone; and willingness to work hard and a desire to fit himself and his products into his territory on a business-like basis that over a period of time will give him a place in the community and the financial rewards that go with this position.

COOPERATIVE INTERCOLLEGIATE EXAMINATIONS MARCH 1-15

The Cooperative Intercollegiate Examination Program will be sponsored by eighteen colleges this year. Examinations will be given between March 1 and March 15 in approximately one hundred high schools in twenty-seven states. They will include a general scholastic aptitude test and an English reading test, which will be scored by the Educational Testing Service in Princeton, N. J. The results will be sent to two or more colleges named by the student and also to the student's high school.

Costs of the program will be borne in part by the participating colleges and in part by income from a $2.00 fee to be paid by each student. Students must register for the examination and pay the fee by February 15. For information they may write to Intercollegiate Examination Program, Fisk University, Nashville 8, Tenn. Lincoln alumni are urged to direct the attention of promising high school graduates to the examinations, which will serve as a basis for scholarships and admission.

EVALUATION

The administrative and faculty committees of the college are to be complimented for their willingness to cooperate in that policy. Athletics and sports have never received a great deal of emphasis or subsidization. Prior to World War II, there was a rather loose subsidization through negligence in collecting fees for room and board. In 1946 and a few years thereafter, alumni undertook to underwrite a limited number of scholarships. This proved unsuccessful because the alumni failed to fulfill their obligations. The college made good on the alumni commitments. More than a year ago, the administration and faculty decided to eliminate all forms of subsidization, fulfilling, however, the promises outstanding to the students then enrolled. At present, the last twelve are receiving room, board, and tuition. Within two years they will all be gone, and subsidization will be entirely ended.

The sports program includes football, basketball, track, wrestling, and soccer. An intramural program in all these sports involves practically the entire student body, a particularly wise provision because the isolated geographic position of the college curtails other recreational outlets.

Athletic policy is determined by the faculty, through a committee of five—four from the academic fields and one from the physical education department. The program appears to be financed primarily out of the general budget of the college; for most contests no admission fee is charged. Only one football game yields substantial gate receipts. If the whole athletic program is conceived as an educational function of the institution, as it is, its cost should not be thought of as an athletic deficit, but as a necessary educational expense.

THE SEMINARY PROGRAM

The evaluating committee's general impression of the seminary was favorable. There is a disposition, at first, to question whether, in view of the small enrollment, the continuance of the seminary is justifiable. In the academic year 1951-52 there were only 19 students enrolled; however, during the second semester of the current year, 1952-53, the number is 20. (Note: 1953-54, 22) and the dean has high hopes for the future. He bases his confidence on the remarkable increase of this year, the new policy which places more emphasis on the inter-racial aspect of the institution (6 of the 20 seminary students are white), and the more aggressive recruitment policy being contemplated. Should his hopes be realized, this seminary should constitute a splendid laboratory and example in the working out of harmonious race relations.

There are four full-time faculty members and two adjunct professors. This gives a ratio of about four or five students to each full professor. There is much individual instruction, by well trained men. Two of the full-time teachers have B.A., M.A., and B.D. degrees, while the other two have a Th.D. in addition. The instruction given by these men is of a high order. As the enrollment increases, another full-time faculty member should be added, in view of the fact that one assistant professor is also pastor of a church nearby.

The faculty has given much time to curriculum study. The course offerings are solid, with a fair number of electives. The school is to be congratulated on not trying to offer many degrees, but concentrating rather on the B.D. work alone. As the faculty increases, richer offerings will be possible.

The evaluating committee is presenting a favorable report on the live and workable, though small, seminary library.

The seminary is housed in one building, which contains the class rooms, the library, the administrative offices, and the chapel. While this building makes possible the carrying on of the work, the evaluating committee believes that the morale of the institution would be greatly strengthened if a new building were provided, or at least the present one were remodeled. There is an endowment of $400,000, the interest on this providing a $600 scholarship for each student enrolled. Since the total charged per year is $750, each student must provide only $150.

THE LIBRARY

The educational objectives of the university must be kept in mind in appraising the Lincoln Library. For the college this objective is the traditional liberal arts aim of preparing students for community living, especially Negro community living. For the seminary the aim is to prepare students to be effective pastors. These objectives are to be achieved through its two necessary functions: readers' services, and technical services.

For the seminary, the readers' services are of the best. The collection of books available is small, but very well chosen and readily accessible to the students. The small collection of about 2,200 volumes is housed on shelves in the classrooms of the seminary building, which makes for an excellent learning situation. Under ordinary circumstances this might be a handicap. At Lincoln it is not, since each faculty member acts as a reference librarian. Use of the books is good.

For the college, the readers' services are inadequate. The books are not being used as much as they ought to be. Few students seem to come to the library for other than required reading or daily newspaper reading. The collection, by and large, is well selected, although wasteful duplication was in evidence. The periodicals were those selected, although wasteful duplication was in evidence. The periodicals were those has rather than expansion of its collection. A trained assistant librarian, who can offer the student reading and reference guidance, ought to be added.

The technical services of the library are good. Standard work-tools and processes are employed. The output is sufficient. The staff seems competent. The catalogue is in good order. Accuracy records seem to be maintained.

Both readers' services and technical services are hampered by inadequate facilities. The physical plant is poor. The building is not safe from fire, and is in disrepair. The workroom for the staff is crowded. There is inadequate seating room for the student body. Some of this will be remedied with the completion of the proposed new wing.

The budget is adequate for the size of the library. One exception is in the matter of binding. More should be allocated to prevent depreciation of the collection. Expanded use of the library will make mandatory a larger budget: this should be anticipated.

The weakest aspect of the library is the position of the librarian. He gives evidence of being a competent person. He needs integration into the university administration. There is evidence that for a number of years inadequate written liaison existed between the president and the librarian. For the seminary section of the seminary report to the evaluation committee was not written by the librarian, nor seen by him until a member of the committee showed it to him. The relation of the librarian to the library committee stands in need of clarification.

Despite these criticisms, however, the Lincoln University Library is on the whole helping to achieve the educational objectives the University has set for itself.

FACILITIES

The management of facilities at Lincoln University accords with the chart presented and with accepted good principles of college management. The business manager, who is responsible for this area, reports directly to the president.

Practically all the buildings used for educational, housing and feeding activities were erected or acquired before 1919, except one dormitory (1931), the gymnasium (1947), the science building (1923), the auditorium (1936), and Fellowship Lodge (1941). Most of the oldest buildings are of construction which makes fire protection extremely difficult. In spite of their age, they are kept in good repair.

The library building is in poor condition, in addition to being inadequate for its function. The university has plans and funds for an addition which should make vania Music Teachers Association, which was held at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia on November 6 and 7.

Professor Manuel Rivero attended the schedule making meeting of the Eastern College Athletic Conference at the Biltmore Hotel in New York City on December 10 and 11. Later Professor Rivero joined Assistant Professor Robert Gardner, Mr. William Hunter, and Mrs. James Frankowski at the C. I. A. A. meeting in Washington, D. C., December 10–13. On December 18 Professor Rivero attended a meeting of the 1935 Rose Bowl Team coaches at the Faculty Club of Columbia University.

Chaplain Henri Yaker spoke to the Men's Club of the First Presbyterian Church in Oxford, Pa., on November 24 on the subject of "The Future of the Negro Institution." On December 10 and on January 8 the Urban League of Greater Boston presented Dr. Yaker, who spoke on "The Aims and Future of Negro Higher Education."

A daughter, Judy Deborah, was born to Assistant Professor and Mrs. Sayre Schatz on December 20 and a son, Toye George, Jr., was born to Dr. and Mrs. Toye G. Davis on December 29.

Dr. Andrew Murray, dean of the Theological Seminary, represented Lincoln at the meeting of the Council of Theological Education at Buck Hill Falls November 2–4. Of particular interest to Lincoln was the recommendation that a joint committee of the Council and the Board of Christian Education study the newly developed program of the Seminary and the University. Dr. Murray presented the work of Lincoln University at the Seminary Sunday Service of the Fagg's Manor Presbyterian Church on January 10. During the first semester Dr. Murray and Professor Donald Davies taught courses in the Lay Leadership Training School held by the Methodist churches of Cecil County and vicinity at Port Deposit, Md.

Savannah, Ga., has been studying with Theron W. Hart for a number of years. His program consisted of works by Haydn, Beethoven, Grieg, Tchaikowsky, Chopin, Liszt, and Raff. Robert Winters, senior, Mendenhall, Pa., is president of the chapter.

The Lincoln University Glee Club opened its 1935–36 season with an appearance at Tindley Temple in Philadelphia in connection with the Seminary Convocation on Sunday, November 8. In preparation for its annual Christmas Concert the Glee Club gave two off-campus recitals. On Thursday, December 5 the group appeared at the Salem Baptist Church in Jenkintown, Pa., under the auspices of the Huntington Valley Independent Social Club, and on Thursday, December 10 the Glee Club gave a concert for the Haven Methodist Church Men's Club in Wilmington, Del. In connection with its Christmas Concert the Glee Club presented talented Anne De Ramus, pianist, who helped to make the evening an artistic success. On Sunday, December 13, the University Ensemble were guests of the Guy Marinier program "Great Music," which was televised via WPTZ, Channel 3, in Philadelphia. On Monday, December 7, the Glee Club appeared on another program which was given both radio and television coverage: the annual Freedom Foundation Day program at the beautiful chapel at Valley Forge. Mrs. Ethelyn Taylor, a special student majoring in music in the college, is the accompanist for the group. A former student at the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music, Mrs. Taylor is continuing her studies under Professor Orrin C. Sutherland, organist-conductor and director of the Glee Club.

The following Lincoln University students were selected for inclusion in Who's Who among Students in American Universities and Colleges: Claudius Elocock, New York City; Richard Holmes, Orange, N. J.; John D. Hopkins, Trenton, N. J.; James E. Jones, Jackson, Mich.; and Harry L. Morris, Jamaica, N. Y. All are seniors in the college, with the exception of Jones, who is a senior in the seminary. The students were selected on the basis of excellence and sincerity in scholarship, leadership and participation in extracurricular and academic activities, citizenship and service to the school, and promise of future usefulness to business and society.

The Seminary

The Seminary basketball team, under the direction of Willie Taylor, has four wins in as many starts: Lancaster Seminary (55–49), Mount Airy Lutheran Seminary (45–44), Crispus Attucks Center, Lancaster (71–67), and the Kappas (38–16). The team will play Princeton Seminary on February 15. Taylor, who hails from Mississippi, is a senior in the Seminary this year.

A Gospel Team has been organized in the Seminary for the purpose of Christian witness in the various churches. This organization came as a result of many suggestions by members of the Seminary family and neighboring churches. Its plan consists of sharing the Church School hour, participation in the morning worship, fun and fellowship with the young people in the evening.

There are four men on the team: Willie Taylor, '54; Galen Work, '56; Jim Jones, '54, and Charles Thomas, '54. Where overnight accommodations are necessary, lodging is expected to be provided. If services are required for Sunday only, the church extending the invitation will furnish the meals. No special guarantee is required in order to secure the Gospel Team. However, each member of the Team may receive $2.50 and five cents per mile from a fund underwritten by the Seminary and supported by each church visited.

Any church desiring to have the Gospel Team come to them should write:

The Rev. Robert L. Shirley, '50, '53, was married to Miss Helen M. Foster at the Queen Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia on November 22. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Benjamin F. Glassco, '11s. Mr. Shirley is the pastor of the Siao Presbyterian Church in Elizabeth, N. J.

DR. JOHNSON ESTABLISHES F. L. MILLER SCHOLARSHIP

President-emeritus William H. Johnson, who served as president of Lincoln University from 1926 to 1936, presented the institution $500 toward the F. Lorraine Miller Scholarship and stated that "Miss Miller has shown that monetary gifts, even if small in comparison with the munificence of the wealthy, can be transmuted into personal relationships of priceless value. The beauty of her service to Lincoln and to Lincoln's sons is known only to a limited circle, but we hope that her name may always be remembered at Lincoln University. We trust that many years of happiness and good health may be added to her life of selfless devotion, and that rich spiritual rewards may come to one who has helped to prepare young men for careers of usefulness and honor, and has taught them to realize that the opportunity of service is the best gift that life can offer."

A scholar of wide repute, Dr. Johnson retains the keen interest in the classical and theological studies that won him wide reputation during his teaching and administrative days. He is an active member of the Board of Trustees, and for Lincoln University, to which he contributed so much, he retains that deep affection a great man inevitably develops for a noble undertaking in which he has participated so unselfishly for many years.

When people complain of life, it is almost always because they have asked impossible things from it.

it acceptable. Construction is to begin before the end of June 1933.

The refection also is inadequate: too small, and poorly equipped.

All the dormitories except Rendall Hall are in poor physical condition. Renovating them would not meet the major problem of structural deficiencies. A new dormitory is included in the building program.

The faculty houses are now assigned to members of the university community on the basis of rank and seniority. No rent is charged for such housing, which includes the cost of heating. This system of assignment has given rise to some dissatisfaction. The administration has tackled this problem through a sub-committee of the administrative committee, which has a report ready.

The small but highly effective operation and maintenance crew is supplemented by part-time students who do much of the janitorial work. The spacious campus is well kept, in spite of limited funds.

There is a definite program of rehabilitation of the plant. The United Negro College Fund is expected to provide a part of the needed funds. Additional money is expected from the current centennial drive, and still other funds from private benefactors. The business manager reports that $85,000 is already in hand, with an additional $85,000 to be received before the end of the year. A contribution of $50,000 is expected from the Mills Foundation. A total of $500,000 appears to be Lincoln University's expected share from that part of the United Negro College Fund which is specifically earmarked for permanent improvements.

The centennial celebration, a university-sponsored fund raising activity, has provided $33,000 so far. The university officials feel certain of $75,000, and hold that $150,000 is a possibility, from this source.

The needs listed by the university in its report to the evaluation committee appear reasonable and within the realm of possibility. The $74,000 for new faculty houses might seem high in view of the number of faculty houses already owned by the university, but Lincoln is located some distance from urban housing, and has, as a matter of policy, found it desirable to require most faculty members to live on campus. Some of the present faculty buildings are temporary, post-war facilities, and will be undesirable as living quarters within a few years. It is therefore sound planning to provide for their replacement.

LINCOLN BULLETIN

LINCOLN ALUMNI PROMINENT IN N. A. A. C. P. CASE

Lincoln University was well represented in the preparation of the historic briefs presented by the N. A. A. C. P. to the Supreme Court on November 16, 1953, asking the Court to declare legal segregation unconstitutional under the Fourteenth Amendment.

Chief Counsel for the N. A. A. C. P. is Lincoln's alumnus, Thurgood Marshall, '30, who justly bears the reputation of being America's foremost legal expert on Civil Rights issues. Collier's Magazine recently called him "Mr. Civil Rights." His principal assistant on the N. A. A. C. P. legal staff is Robert Carter, '37, another Lincoln alumnus.

President Horace M. Bond prepared a historical section for the brief designed to answer affirmatively the Supreme Court's question as to whether the 39th Congress that submitted the 14th Amendment, or the States that ratified it, believed that it would abolish segregation. His research established the fact that of twelve states admitted, or readmitted to the Federal Union under the rules laid down by the 39th Congress, all eliminated any reference to segregation in their constitutions in order to make those documents conform to the 14th Amendment, as required by the 39th Congress.

Dr. John A. Davis, formerly of the Lincoln University faculty and now a member of the faculty of City College in New York, served as coordinator for the research which utilized the services of scholars from all of the great universities of America.

The activity of Lincoln University alumni in these vital civil rights cases is a continuation of the long tradition of civil rights activity for the University's graduates, which includes the fact that four of the eleven men who met with W. E. B. Du Bois in 1905 to found the Niagara Conference, precursor of the N. A. A. C. P., were Lincoln men: Archibald and Francis Grimke, '70, Nathan F. Mossell, '79, and J. Milton Waldron, '86.

$20,000 GRANT TO LINCOLN FROM FOUNDATION

Lincoln University was one of sixteen colleges and universities recently awarded a grant from the Fund for the Advancement of Education for an institutional self-study. Lincoln received $20,000 to make its self-study, and the grant will enable the faculty to make a study of its own internal program of liberal arts education as well as to study the problem of developing a truly interracial and international institution.

If a man gives a woman wealth, it is only a proof of his generosity; but if he gives her his time, it is a proof of his love.

REPRESENT YOUR GRADUATE OR PROFESSIONAL SCHOOL AT THE CENTENNIAL COMMENCEMENT!

It is planned to have the academic procession at the Centennial Commencement, June 8, 1954, consist of the alumni holding advanced degrees from various graduate and professional schools.

In order to assure your appointment and to secure academic gowns for the occasion, it is necessary for the University Marshal, Professor Manuel Rivero, to know well in advance if you will attend the Commencement and wish to serve in this capacity.

All alumni holding advanced degrees from other institutions, who plan to be present on June 8 and represent their graduate institutions in this climactic academic processional, are requested to send the following information to Professor Rivero at once.

Name _____________________________________________
Advanced degrees from ________________________________ (Specify degree and institution)
I will represent in the academic procession on June 8. Please order academic regalia for me. My height is ______, chest size ______, and head size ______.

ACREDITATION REPORT

Tuskegee, Ala.
You are doing the alumni a great service in publishing pertinent parts of the accreditation report. It is giving us new insight into the complexities of an educational institution.

GEORGE C. BRANC, Sr., M.D., '17
Indianapolis, Indiana
With the publication of material like the accreditation report, the BULLETIN is fulfilling a real need in letting alumni and former students know what is actually going on at Lincoln. More power to you!

"LOST" LINCOLNITES

Some men might resent the designation "lost Lincolnites." Why not use "Address Unknown"?

ARTHUR RANKIN, '07

Winter, 1953-1954

Richmond, Va.
You are doing a marvelous job of tracking down men who do not keep in touch with Lincoln. Perhaps you can impress it upon those who graduate to keep the school informed of their progress. You are in a position to be of great service to the Alumni Association as well as to Lincoln University. Here's hoping that you stay at Lincoln a long time.

C. L. EVANS, '33, '36s

Pittsburgh, Pa.
I am actually shocked by the long list of men who are out of contact with their alma mater. How can men profess to love Lincoln and not even send in a change of address? How much valuable time you must waste trying to locate them again. You are to be congratulated for relentlessly pursuing them.

I think the BULLETIN has been greatly enhanced by the use of more pictures. I enjoy reading it very much, especially when I see faces I haven't seen for many years.

HOWARD WRIGHT, '32

The cover on the fall issue of the BULLETIN was most attractive. Almost I am persuaded that Lincoln should "go co-ed" —if we could get co-eds like Miss Williams at Lincoln!

SUPPORT THE
UNITED NEGRO COLLEGE FUND

UNITED in a joint endeavor, the thirty-one member colleges of the United Negro College Fund have received from three to ten times as much money each year through the Fund as they were able to raise through their individual efforts. In 1943, the year before the Fund was organized, the colleges involved were able to raise only $250,000 by themselves. Through the first united appeal in 1944, $765,567.63 was raised for those same institutions and at a much lower cost in both time and money. Since then, UNCF has raised more than $1,000,000 annually for its member colleges.

NEGRO education has been greatly enhanced by the United Negro College Fund, which has brought national recognition to the work of its member colleges through its year-round publicity effort. Outstanding among such achievements is the UNCF College Choir series featured since April 1950 on the American Broadcasting Company network. The choir broadcasts, which represent a record in public-service time devoted to any one agency on a major network, are heard over some 170 ABC stations, in the United States, Canada, and Alaska. The commercial cost of such important time would be prohibitive—exceeding $100,000 yearly—but through the cooperation of ABC's Public Affairs Department with the Fund, the colleges have been enabled to tell their story to a vast American audience each week on the choir programs, which originate in New York Sundays at 10:30 on Station WABC.

COLLEGE days swiftly pass, but individual alumni organizations have found new strength and incentive through inter-organization for Fund campaigns. A natural outgrowth has been the formation of the National Council of UNCF Alumni, which was organized in Chicago in 1947. Today this organization represents 75,000 alumni—graduates and former students of the member colleges of the Fund. Local alumni councils have been formed in twenty-nine cities. They serve as a permanent board to work in the interest of encouraging young men and women to take fullest advantage of higher educational opportunities, to stimulate alumni interest in their individual colleges, and to enlist alumni support of the annual United Negro College Fund campaign.

FUND or no fund, the member college would go on somehow, but they could not do the effective job they are now doing. A total of $233,279.41 was received in 1953 by Lincoln University from the United Negro College Fund. The money was used for both operating and capital improvement purposes. Of the amount received $26,842.41 was allocated for current budget expenses, including scholarship aid, teaching and laboratory equipment, library books, faculty salaries, and student health programs. The balance, $206,437, represents a grant from the Fund's five-year building campaign for $25,000,000, known as the National Mobilization of Resources for the United Negro Colleges. Through the money received from the Fund's Mobilization program, Lincoln has been enabled to make an addition to the library and to project plans for the erection of a new dormitory. Thus we urge YOU and all other members of the Lincoln University alumni family to give your wholehearted support to the United Negro College Fund. Give generously of your time and money, and help make the 1954 Campaign the most successful yet!

FROM THE PRESIDENT’S DESK

We are asking all alumni who have degrees from graduate and professional schools to let us know if they are planning to attend Commencement. The University will then write to that graduate or professional school, asking that this alumnus be designated as an official delegate to the Convocation. For example: Dr. John Doe, after graduating from Lincoln, attended Meharry Medical College. If he plans to attend Commencement and lets us know in advance, we will write to Meharry and ask that Dr. John Doe be designated as a delegate to represent Meharry at the Commencement Convocation.

As another example: Attorney James Roe, after graduating from Lincoln, attended, and was graduated from, Fordham Law School. Once notified by Attorney James Roe, we will write to Fordham Law School, asking that Attorney James Roe be designated a delegate from the Fordham Law School to our Commencement Convocation.

Such designations will, of course, be gladly made. If there are, say, fifteen men from Meharry, Meharry will be asked to designate each as an official delegate. Such delegates will be listed by name in the Commencement program, and they will be included in the academic procession as official delegates of their respective graduate and professional schools. Preferably, although not by mandate, they will be expected to wear academic caps and gowns. The University will make arrangements to rent such regalia for alumni serving as delegates, if provided with head size and height in sufficient time.

REPORT OF AN EVALUATION OF LINCOLN UNIVERSITY

FINANCES

The financial records of the university are under the supervision of the business manager-treasurer. He has an experienced assistant, who also serves as an assistant professor and teaches 6 semester hours. The records and annual reports appear adequate for the operation and in conformity with college and university standards. The business manager advises that no monthly or periodic reports are made to the president or Board of Trustees. Both would find such periodic reports helpful.

The procedure used in the formulation of the budget is informal, possibly a carry-over from the days when the president was intimately concerned with all financial activity. This informality appears to cause some misunderstandings between department heads and the administration, as there is presently no systematic procedure for presentation of needs, or procedure to advise responsible officials as to budgetary decisions.

The University received $165,500 from the State of Pennsylvania during 1951-52. . . . Each of 50 state senators has a right to nominate as many as 12 students to each of the state-aided colleges. On this basis, Lincoln University has a potential scholarship load of 600 students annually. In 1952-53 it had 140 senatorial scholarship students.

The grant received from the state is a vital part of the university's income. It also represents a potential danger, in that the student load could be increased more than fourfold without a comparable increase in the state grant. With the limited classrooms, housing, and feeding facilities, such an increase could squeeze out nonsenatorial scholarship students and cause a serious reduction in income from student fees.

The information submitted by the university indicates that approximately 34 per cent of the income from student tuition fees is devoted to scholarship aid. This seems rather a high percentage for an institution dependent upon student fee income for its existence.

The accumulated deficit on June 30, 1952, was $82,025. The operating deficit for 1951-52 was $8,972.03.* It must be pointed out in this regard that the university finds it necessary to have pails of water in each corridor for emergencies.

Fire insurance coverage seems adequate. Protection of property from fire is a problem not easily solved in this location, four miles from the nearest town, with only a moderate size water tank on location. The university still finds it necessary to have pails of water in each corridor for emergencies.

The investment committee appears well qualified to carry out its responsibilities. The over-all earnings of the fund are a good test of their qualifications.

Lincoln University has an arrangement under which Lafayette College furnishes training for students who wish to take work in the field of engineering. The student completes three years of his work at Lincoln, two years at Lafayette, and at the end of five years receives a degree from Lincoln and a professional degree from Lafayette. A similar arrangement exists between Lincoln University and the Barnes Foundation for students who wish to major in fine arts. The Barnes Foundation, however, bears the full cost of the art instruction.

The general impression of the evaluation committee is that the Lincoln University dollar is well spent. There is little evidence of waste. Everyone at the university is aware of the acute financial period through which the institution is going. Each employee in the business area appears to be qualified and to know his job. Each employee also appears to get satisfaction from performing his assignment well.

OUTCOMES

The committee had the usual difficulty in weighing the outcomes of instruction at Lincoln University. Observation of the program in operation inclined them to the feeling that the institution is accomplishing what it sets out to do. This is clearly the case in the theological school, where a sensibly limited objective and a solid educational program allows the faculty to concentrate their resources. The institution proposes to train pastors; it is training pastors, apparently adequately; and the pastors it trains are serving the church.

The college is harder to judge. What evidence there is, is good. In many instances, surely, the college is producing the kind of men, and fitting them for the kind of opportunity and citizenship, it declares it intends to do. A substantial proportion is able to go on to graduate work in medicine, law, and other fields. Scattered alumni have earned distinction.

But the alumni records are not very revealing in an over-all sense. They pick out individuals, but they do not show a cross-section. A third of the students, for example, are majoring in biology. They are not all able to get into medical schools. What percentage does? What percentage finally qualifies for practice? If too large a proportion find they cannot do what they came to college to do, and what their college permitted them to attempt to do, inadequate guidance, at least, is indicated.

The evaluating committee does not charge that this is so. It regrets a lack of available information. That Lincoln is no worse off in this regard than many of its peers is hardly a satisfactory answer, nor is it one the university is advancing. There is a new and wholesome emphasis on alumni work and on studies of alumni achievement, partly in preparation for the coming centennial celebration. This is encouraging. It should produce analyses of the college needs for its educational planning, if it does not bog down because those who should be doing it are overloaded with other duties. What will happen is, of course, tied in with the institution's financial exigencies. Its intentions are good.

The evaluating committee is of the opinion that one of the university's weakest areas is its paucity of educational studies of undergraduates and graduates alike. The committee's recommendation that administrative officers be given lighter teaching loads does not arise from humanitarian considerations, but from the knowledge that self-analysis is one of any institution's essential projects, if it would fulfill its destiny.

SPORE, 1964

PART II

Inter-fund borrowing is justified by the business manager on the basis that it does away with the necessity of bank loans. The item of concern, however, is the amount of $67,716 due to the permanent or endowment fund. In principal, endowment funds should remain inviolate, unless interest is paid from current funds for the use of the money.

The university finds it necessary to borrow cash periodically. The bank loans are usually repaid from the quarterly allotments made by the State of Pennsylvania. These allotments are made a month or two after the close of the quarter: the university must show that its income was insufficient to meet expenditures for the period involved. Only the amount necessary to cover the deficiency of the quarter, up to one-fourth of the annual appropriation, is made available.

The firm which audits the accounts annually is nationally known and fully acquainted with college and university systems and reports.

The over-all earnings of the fund are a good test of their qualifications.

Each of 50 state senators has a right to nominate as many as 12 students to each of the state-aided colleges. On this basis, Lincoln University has a potential scholarship load of 600 students annually. In 1952-53 it had 140 senatorial scholarship students.

DR. HORACE M. BOND brought to conclusion the television series on Africa on WFIL's University of the Air on January 29. On February 1 he presided at the National Freedom Day Meeting at Congress Hall in Philadelphia and returned to the city on February 8 to speak to the Parent-Teachers Association at Overbrook High School. He was one of the principal speakers at the Religious Leaders Conference in Baltimore on February 9, returning to that city on February 13 to attend the C.I.A.A. President's Council at Morgan State College. Dr. Bond attended the Centennial Luncheon at Gimbel's on February 18 and the Lincoln Day Dinner at the Hotel Bellevue-Stratford on the evening of the same day. On February 14 he spoke in Hartford, Conn., at the United Negro College Fund Meeting and on February 23 in Oxford, Pa., to the Men's Club of the First Presbyterian Church. On February 27 he welcomed the regional meeting of the African Students Association of the Americas to Lincoln University.

On March 2 Dr. Bond was interviewed on his Lincoln's Centennial over Station WPTN in Philadelphia. He journeyed to New York on March 13 to meet with the Committee on Lincoln's New Program, and on March 16 he participated on a panel of college presidents to discuss the subject, "Southeast Asia," for the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia. Dr. Bond was invited to attend the planning session for the Fulbright Scholars Conference at Swarthmore College on March 19. After speaking at the United Negro College Fund Meeting and on March 21, he attended a series of conferences on Centenary Planning in New York City March 22-25. He returned to the city to greet South African alumni, Rev. Thomas C. Katiya, '00, '08s, and Rev. Livingstone Mzamba, '06, '09s, on March 29 and to be interviewed over Station WLIR on March 30.

Dr. Bond attended the Girard College hearing on discrimination in Philadelphia on April 5, and on April 7 he spoke on "Emerging Nations of West Africa" for the Philadelphia World Affairs Council. He participated in the World Fellowship Day program at the New Garden Memorial Church in Kennett Square on April 11, and on April 20 he entertained the Committee on Higher Education of the Presbyterian Synod of Pennsylvania. On April 21 Dr. Bond appeared on the new television series to speak on "John Miller Dickey," and that evening he spoke to the Media Fellowship Commission. He attended the United Negro College Fund Dinner in Philadelphia on April 28 and the Alumni-Trustees Dinner in Philadelphia on April 27. Dr. Bond spoke at the Mt. Pisgah A. M. E. Church in Philadelphia on April 25 and at the Second Baptist Church in Wilmington on April 27.

DR. H. ALFRED FARRELL journeyed to New York City on February 2 to meet with the members of the New York Chapter of the General Alumni Association. He returned to the Rotary Club of Oxford, Pa., on "The Centennial of Lincoln University," and on February 10 he spoke to the members of the Douglass Round Table at Douglass Junior High School in Chester, Pa., later meeting with Lincoln alumni who are interested in forming a chapter. On February 14 Dr. Farrell was guest speaker at the Calvary Episcopal Church in Philadelphia. Another recruiting trip in the Midwest (March 1-12) carried him to Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Gary, Chicago, and Detroit, and while in Chicago and Detroit he met with chapters of the General Alumni Association. On March 28 he represented Lincoln at its 75th anniversary program of Americans All in Washington, D.C., and on March 29 he met with Baltimore alumni in order to revitalize the chapter there. The recently organized Eastern Long Island Chapter was visited April 3. Dr. Farrell attended the second annual Pittsburgh Courier College Workshop on Public Relations and Publicity April 7-9, and while in Pittsburgh he met with the Lincoln alumni of that area. On April 14 he met with alumni in Wilmington, Del., and on April 26 he returned to Baltimore to be a guest at the smoker given by the chapter. Dr. Farrell, chairman of the Pennsylvania Membership Committee of the College Language Association, represented that organization at the Charter Day Convocation on April 29.

DEAN J. NEWTON HILL was the first speaker in a series of four monthly forums on the humanities at Howard University February 23. On March 4 and 5 he attended the National Conference on Higher Education in Chicago and while there he was invited to talk on Lincoln University's self-study project. The Hanover Presbyterian Church in Wilmington, Del., where the Rendails, former presidents of Lincoln, frequently spoke, tendered Dean Hill an invitation on March 7 to be the principal speaker at special services. The church was founded in 1772. On April 9 he addressed the student body of Montclair State Teachers College.

DEAN ANDREW E. MURRAY accepted an invitation to be guest speaker at the First Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia, Pa., on February 28. On March 8 he addressed the Men's Club of the West Grove Methodist Church on the Centennial of Lincoln University, and on March 22 he spoke to alumni at the National Conference on Higher Education in Chicago and while there he was invited to talk on Lincoln University's self-study project. The Hanover Presbyterian Church in Wilmington, Del., where the Rendails, former presidents of Lincoln, frequently spoke, tendered Dean Hill an invitation on March 7 to be the principal speaker at special services. The church was founded in 1772. On April 9 he addressed the student body of Montclair State Teachers College.

DEAN ANDREW E. MURRAY accepted an invitation to be guest speaker at the First Presbyterian Church in Phoenixville, Pa., on February 28. On March 8 he addressed the Men's Club of the West Grove Methodist Church on the Centennial of Lincoln University, and on March 22 he spoke to alumni at the National Conference on Higher Education in Chicago and while there he was invited to talk on Lincoln University's self-study project. The Hanover Presbyterian Church in Wilmington, Del., where the Rendails, former presidents of Lincoln, frequently spoke, tendered Dean Hill an invitation on March 7 to be the principal speaker at special services. The church was founded in 1772. On April 9 he addressed the student body of Montclair State Teachers College.

The Rev. Philip J. Ramstad, chaplain of the Kiskiminetas Springs School in Saltsburg, Pa., was guest preacher Sunday, January 24. A graduate of the University of Minnesota and Union Theological Seminary, the Rev. Mr. Ramstad dealt with the changing conditions in the world and pointed out that God is the only lasting thing.

The Duo Di Roma (pianist and cellist) displayed exceptional virtuosity in the performance of a varied and exciting program on Tuesday, January 26. Ornella Santoliquido opened the program with a group of compositions by the great eighteenth-century Italian pianists, the major item being a Vivaldi Concerto. Miss Santoliquido was joined by cellist Massimo Amfitheatrof for the second group of numbers, comprising the four movements of a sonata by Boccherini. The second half of the program opened with Mr. Amfitheatrof's performance of Kodaly's Sonata Opus 8, after which he was joined by Miss Santoliquido for the final work of the evening, Strauss' Sonata Opus 6, which brought enthusiastic applause from the audience.

The Rev. Herbert P. Landes, pastor of the Kennett Square Presbyterian Church, spoke at the Sunday chapel services on January 31. Speaking on the subject of "The Discipline of Faith," the Rev. Mr. Landes cited three disciplines: the discipline of worship, the discipline of honest thinking, and the discipline of fellowship. As far as we are able, we must be intelligent and reasonable about our faith, and there is a place for honest doubt and intellectual inquiry. The road through God's gate (kingdom) is narrow (requiring discipline), but it is for all His children. The only kind that walk there are those that love the Father, serve the Son, and follow the Spirit.

Rawn Spearman, tenor, was presented in recital on Wednesday, February 10, at 8:15 p.m. The program, presented in five groups, included the Baroque masters, Tunder, Galuppi, Handel, and Rameau; lieder by Schubert; modern French songs by Messiaen and Poulenc; the famed "Adolphe" by Beethoven; a modern English and American group by Aylward, Williams, Quilter, and Nordoff; and four Afro-American work songs by Frederick Hall. Mr. Spearman, a graduate of Florida A. and M. University, was a member of the choir and the a cappella ensemble under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern II, now a member of the Faculty News and Notes
The Lincoln University Chapter of Beta Sigma Tau Fraternity was host to the Northeast Regional Conclave April 9-11. Represented in the conference were delegates from Hobart College, Hobart Alumni Chapter, University of Buffalo, Columbia University, Johns Hopkins University, Morgan State College and Baltimore Alumni Chapter. One of the highlights of the conclave was the address given by Dr. Bond during the general assembly.

The Lincoln University Players presented “Angel Street” in the Little Theatre on the campus February 4-6 and at the Harlem Evening High School in New York on April 2. Appearing in the leading roles were Miss Carol Foster, a graduate of Howard University and now a student at the New York Institute of Languages; Richard Brown, freshman, Savannah, Ga.; Miss Sylvia Hill, freshman, Lincoln University; Mrs. Alice Suthern, the wife of Professor Orrin C. Suthern; and David Robinson, junior, Baltimore.

The Social Science Club presented Mrs. Hilda Koch at the University Assembly on Thursday, February 25. Mrs. Koch drew upon her own experiences to give a graphic picture of Europe today: human problems of living in a divided city like Berlin; problems of occupation as observed particularly in Koblenz; adolescent refugees from East Germany; and the relationships of victor and vanquished. Her lecture was that the social sciences deserved to be considered sciences.

The African Students Association is making plans for its annual African Students Weekend to be held on the Campus Saturday, May 15. Martin Karpel, a junior from Nigeria, is president of the organization. African students in Philadelphia met with the campus group on Saturday, March 6.

The Political Science Club presented Mr. H. Orman Yeldar, labor relations consultant, on Tuesday, March 9, at 8:30 p.m. in the Guest House. Mr. Yeldar discussed the controversial Taft-Hartley Law.

The Y. M. C. A. and the Philosophy Club joined forces to sponsor a Conference on Philosophic Implications of Religious Living. Students from Swarthmore, Bryn Mawr, and the University of Pennsylvania also participated in the Conference. Through the efforts of Dr. Elizabeth Beardsley, Philosophy Club adviser; Dr. Donald Davies, “Y” Cabinet adviser, and Dr. Henri M. Yakley, University chaplain, several distinguished speakers appeared: Dr. William Hordern, Swarthmore College, Morgan State College and Baltimore Alumni Chapter. One of the highlights of the conclave was the address given by Dr. Bond during the general assembly.

The Guidance Bureau of Southern Oregon College has found that adjustment to college work is the major concern of college freshmen. “Not knowing how to study” is the primary problem facing new students. Other problems: “not spending enough time in study,” “need for a part-time job,” “getting low grades” and “easily distracted from work.”

At the request of the Board of Education, members of the class in local government at Vassar College made a house-to-house canvas of one of the school districts for data that will assist the board in providing for additional lower-grade facilities in that area.

According to a study just completed by Hamilton College, the best size for a small college is 750 students. The study points out how little additional expense is needed in many parts of a college budget as enrollment increases. At a figure of less than 750 overhead is costly in terms of the number of students; to go beyond 750 would be to risk certain personalized small college values. The study shows that there is only a small pick-up in academic and financial efficiency between 750 and 1,000 students.

During the 1953-54 academic year, no student flunked at Bryn Mawr College, which has a small number of students and a relatively large faculty. It leads all women’s colleges in the United States in the production of scholars. This year one out of every four of the faculty holds fellowships or grants.

The Temple University Annual Giving Campaign for 1953 hit an all-time high with total receipts amounting to $106,390.37, topping 1952 receipts by $35,261.85. Percentage wise this represents a participation of over 11 per cent of the alumni, an increase of 2 per cent over the previous year.

Gifts to Stanford University during 1953-54 set a new record of $4,000,000. Gifts were received from 12,900 donors in each of the forty-eight states. Alumni gifts also increased to a record level.
The Ladies Auxiliary Guest House, which is now in the process of being furnished, stands as a symbol of progress on Lincoln’s campus. The building will be dedicated on June 7, after which open house will be held.

Richard Brown, Savannah freshman, and Sylvia Hill, daughter of Dean J. Newton Hill, display their histrionic ability in a scene from “Angel Street,” which the Lincoln University Players presented February 4–6.

One section of the main table at the Lincoln Day Dinner in Philadelphia on February 12 shows (l. to r.) Rev. Benjamin Glasco, ’11s; Rev. Juttee Garth, ’26, ’37s; Rev. Dr. Leonard G. Carr, ’33s; Attorney Lewis M. Stevens; Attorney James K. Baker, ’41; Attorney Thurgood Marshall, ’30s; and Rev. William P. Stevenson, ’26, ’28s.

Dr. Bond points to Lincolniana at the opening of the Gimbel’s Exhibit on February 12 in the Little Gallery of the Philadelphia store. Mr. Arthur Kaufmann and freshman Ernest Levister listen attentively to early accounts of Lincoln University which are graphically illustrated by letters, journals, medals, and pictures.
David Robinson, Baltimore junior; Miss Carol Foster, guest artist; and Mrs. Alice Suthern, wife of Professor Orrin C. Suthern II, are shown in a tense dramatic scene from "Angel Street."

Completing the personnel at the main table of the Lincoln Day Dinner in Philadelphia are Dr. Bond; John (Tex) McCrary, Judge Herbert E. Millen, '10; Mr. Walter Phillips; Rev. Ulysses Blakely, '26, '39s; and E. Washington Rhodes, '21. The Abraham Lincoln Awards were presented to Marshall and McCrary, and a special plaque was given to Dr. Bond for distinguished service by the Philadelphia Chapter of the General Alumni Association.

Mr. Julius Rosenwald II, a trustee of Lincoln University; Dr. Bond; Attorney Lewis M. Stevens, president of the Board of Trustees; and Mr. Arthur Kaufmann examine an old family Bible included in the exhibit.
Members of the Little Theatre Club of Swarthmore College and of the Lincoln University Players pose together after a performance of "All My Sons" by the Swarthmore students on Lincoln's campus, March 25.

The main waiting room of the Upper Manhattan Medical Group Center is comfortable and restful. Starting with five patients in 1948, the group, consisting of twenty-six white and colored physicians, has enrolled almost twelve thousand patients to date.

The conference room of the Center contains an excellent medical library, which is constantly being added to. Five physicians who received their undergraduate training at Lincoln University are associated with the Group: Dr. George D. Cannon, '24, radiologist; Dr. Charles A. Walburg, '29, gynecologist; Dr. Alvin Mason, Jr., '38, pediatrician; Dr. Floyd C. Mourning, '32, internist; and Dr. Edward L. Mais, '32, internist.

Dr. George D. Cannon, '24, and Attorney Cornelius McDougald, Jr., '33, are two of the guiding lights of the Upper Manhattan Medical Group. Dr. Cannon, who conceived the idea, served as medical director from 1948 to 1950. Attorney McDougald now serves as attorney and administrator for the Group.
SCHOLARSHIPS, FELLOWSHIPS AND JOB OPPORTUNITIES

The Atlanta University School of Library Service is again offering four five-hundred dollar and ten three-hundred dollar scholarships to interested students for the 1954-1955 school year. For further information write to Dr. Virginia L. Jones, director of the Atlanta University School of Library Service.

Through funds provided by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, National Medical Fellowships, Inc., is offering predoctoral fellowships to Negroes in the biological and physical sciences related to medicine. The fellowships cover a period of one to three years depending upon the time needed for completion of the Doctor of philosophy degree. All candidates should submit the names of three references from whom confidential information may be obtained concerning their professional qualifications. Application blanks are available from National Medical Fellowships, Inc., 951 East 58th Street, Chicago 37, Ill. Applications are accepted at any time during the year, and will be forwarded to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis for action and announcement of awards.

To a few college graduates who are qualified by ability, training, and experience to undertake advanced study and research, the New York University School of Retailing offers academic and research scholarships and research and teaching assistantships on a nationwide competitive basis. Candidates for scholarships and assistantships must make separate applications for these awards. Those interested are invited to write to the Dean of the School of Retailing, Washington Square, New York.

Qualified scientists are still urgently needed in various Federal agencies in the Washington, D. C., area. The Government service offers excellent opportunities to scientists of all levels to pursue effective and satisfying careers, with advancement determined by competence and stature as a scientist rather than by administrative position. The major emphasis of most laboratories is research and the investigators participate to a large extent in the shaping of the programs that are undertaken.

The National Bureau of Standards is the Government's principal agency for fundamental research in physics, mathematics, chemistry, and engineering. Engaged in a broad program that ranges from atomic physics to building technology, the National Bureau of Standards offers a wide variety of opportunities for scientists, ranging from significant research and development projects to the direction of major programs. A staff of about two thousand physicists, chemists, mathematicians, and engineers is engaged in the Bureau's program of diversified research. Work in these fields includes basic research, applied research, development, testing, calibration, and advisory scientific services. The diversity of activity gives scientists the opportunity to choose the exact area of greatest interest to them.

If interested, get Form 5001-ABC from the nearest first- or second-class postoffice, from a Civil Service regional office, from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C., or from the National Bureau of Standards, Washington 25, D. C. Fill out the form completely according to the directions given, and send it to the Executive Secretary, Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, National Bureau of Standards. After the form has been received by the Board you will be sent more detailed information about the education, experience, and physical requirements, other information of general interest to applicants, and additional forms to complete your application. Be sure to specify clearly the title of the position or positions for which you are applying so that the correct supplemental information will be sent to you.

The Naval Air Material Center in Philadelphia urgently needs engineers of all kinds as well as mathematicians, metallurgists, physicists, physicians, psychologists, and technologists. Applicants should file Standard Form 57 with the Industrial Relations Department, Naval Air Material Center, Naval Base, Philadelphia 12, Pa.

The National Federation of Settlements and Neighborhood Centers has issued a summer service bulletin which lists job opportunities throughout the country. For a copy of the bulletin, write to National Federation of Settlements and Neighborhood Centers, 159 East 52nd Street, New York 22, N. Y. Applicants for positions must write directly to the agency in which he is interested.

Men camp counselors are needed for August only at Camp Linden at Northbrook, Pa., near West Chester. The camp is operated by United Neighbors Association of Philadelphia; and interested persons are asked to contact Mrs. Chester R. Leighty, 623 Catharine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

OBJECTIVES, POLICY, ORGANIZATION, AND OPERATION OF THE INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETIC PROGRAM AT LINCOLN UNIVERSITY PENNSYLVANIA

Adopted by the Faculty on Recommendation of the Faculty Committee on Athletics February 26, 1954

OBJECTIVES

1. The objectives of the program of intercollegiate athletics are the development of health, good sportsmanship, group loyalty and wholesome living among the greatest possible number of the student body.

2. Intercollegiate Athletics are regarded as an essential part of the educational program of the institution and are therefore subject to Faculty control and regulation.

FINANCES

All athletic money shall be handled by the Treasurer of the University. He shall be responsible for the collection of all gate receipts for athletic contests sponsored by the University.

MANAGEMENT OF CONTESTS

1. Intercollegiate contests, except as herein provided, shall be played on the grounds of educational institutions.

2. Contests shall be scheduled only with institutions that have similar standards of eligibility, and which provide equal or nearly equal competition.

3. Contests which involve extreme distances or require long absences from classes are to be discouraged.

4. Absence from classes for contest shall be kept within the faculty approved program for intercollegiate athletics.

5. Copies of all contracts shall be filed in the office of the University Treasurer.

6. All post-season contests shall be avoided.

7. Only one contest in each sport may be played in any season under non-collegiate management. Arrangements and approval of such contests must be made at least six months in advance.

8. Insofar as practicable, transportation for intercollegiate contests shall be made by common carrier. In the event that common carrier is not used, the University shall maintain adequate trip insurance for private transportation.

HEALTH SUPERVISION OF ATHLETICS

1. The University physician will act as final authority on all cases related to the physical condition and general health of participants in intercollegiate athletics.

2. Appropriate insurance for accidents and injuries shall be provided by the University for participants in intercollegiate athletics.

3. All participants in intercollegiate athletics shall be required to have a physical examination by the University physician prior to the beginning of the season in each sport.

STUDENT PARTICIPATION IN ATHLETICS

1. All varsity sports conducted or supported by the University shall be considered major sports.

2. The Committee on Eligibility and Academic Standing shall be the final authority on questions regarding eligibility for athletic competition.

3. No student may compete in two varsity sports simultaneously unless he receives permission from the Dean of Instruction and the University physician.

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE FOR ATHLETES

1. Participants in intercollegiate athletics must meet the same standards of academic performance, economic need, and leadership qualities as are required of all other students in order to qualify for, receive, or retain financial assistance.

2. Financial assistance to athletes may be rendered only by the University authorities who are responsible for such assistance for other students.

3. Athletic Grants-in-Aid are to be curtailed and finally eliminated in accord with the following provisions:

   (a) No such grant-in-aid may be extended to any athlete whose first enrollment at the University occurs after September, 1932.

   (b) Athletes receiving such grant-in-aid prior to September, 1932 may continue their eligibility for that assistance for a maximum of four (4) years from the date of enrollment.

   (c) Athletes who withdraw from the University for approved reasons may resume receiving grant-in-aid, provided that the period from withdrawal to re-enrollment does not exceed three (3) years.

AWARDS

1. There will be two letter awards for athletic competition: an eight inch "L" and a six inch "L".

2. Each letter will be accompanied by a certificate of award.

3. Athletes who complete one full season as a member of a team shall be eligible to receive a certificate and six-inch letter.

4. Athletes who complete a season and meet the following requirements shall be eligible to receive a certificate and an eight-inch letter:

   Football—Participation in at least two-thirds of the games.

   Basketball—Participation in at least three-fourths of the scheduled games.

   Soccer—Participation in at least one-half of the scheduled games.

   Baseball—Participation in at least one-half of the games played.

   Track—A total of five points in the Conference Championship meet. First place in any national or sectional meet. An accumulated total of fifteen points in all meets—dual, conference or national.

   Wrestling—First place in C.I.A.A. Tournament. Second place winner in C.I.A.A. provided there are three or more contestants in the weight division. A place winner in a sectional or national tournament. Win three or more matches in a dual or triangular meets or in tournaments.

   Senior managers may be awarded an eight-inch letter on the recommendation of the coach.

   Any athlete who has earned three six-inch letters in the same sport will become eligible for a major letter in that sport.

7. Letters can be granted at the discretion of the coach for performance of unusual merit.

8. Team captains are to be chosen, by ballot, at the end of the season at a meeting of the University team to which they belong.

Redding High School, Middleton. Dean MacRae served as consultant for the Georgia State Department of Education at the meeting of principals in Columbus, Ga., on March 29. He attended the Conference of Personnel Deans at Howard University on April 1 and 2 and the convention of the American Personnel and Guidance Association in Buffalo April 11–15.

Dr. Paul Kurien spoke at the March 8 meeting of the Rotary Club in Oxford, Pa. His subject was "Foreign Students in the United States." He has been appointed to the Committee on Constitution and By-Laws of the Middle States Association of Collegiate Deans and Registrars.

Dr. Henri M. Yaker attended the Midwinter Conference of University Chaplains of the Eastern Area, which was held at Carlisle, Pa., on January 27–29. On March 7 he was the speaker at the West Cincinnati St. Barnabas Church.

Professor Oscar C. Suthern, II attended the Board meeting of the National Association of Negro Musicians, Inc., in New Orleans February 26–28. He is executive secretary of the organization. On March 2 Professor Suthern was presented in an organ recital at Wiley College.

Dr. Donald M. Davies gave an illustrated lecture on missions in Egypt and Ethiopia during a meeting of the Chester County Federation of Methodist Men in the Oxford Methodist Church on February 16.

Dr. Samuel Stevens was the Men's Day speaker at St. Peter's Methodist Church in Wilmington, Del., on March 28. He and his wife have recently adopted an eight-month-old baby girl.

Mr. David E. Carnegy, teaching fellow in mathematics, addressed an open meeting of the Wilmington Branch of the American Association of University Women on February 19. Mr. Carnegy, who was born in Freetown, Sierra Leone, West Africa, spoke on "Education and Economic Development in Black West Africa."

the faculty of Lincoln University. After serving in the Army, where he attracted attention in Army shows, Mr. Spearman enrolled for study in the music section of the American Theatre Wing. Among his teachers has been the noted tenor Roland Hayes.

The Rev. Dr. C. Hans Evans, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Coatesville, Pa., filled the pulpit on Sunday, February 14. A well-known old testament scholar, Dr. Evans spoke on the concern God has for our thoughts. Religion of the heart is not enough; our minds also should think of religious questions.

Professor Hans Kohn, a member of the faculty of the City College of New York, spoke to students, faculty, and friends of the University on Thursday, February 18, at 7:30 p.m. A native of Prague, Professor Kohn spoke on "Russia: A Historian's View," tracing the development of Russian culture through its capitals. When the capital was at Kiev, the leaning was toward the West. With the advent of Ivan the Terrible, the capital was moved to Moscow and the influence was Asian. In the seventeenth century Peter the Great strengthened the contacts with Europe again and made St. Petersburg the capital of Russia. Tragedy came with Lenin in 1917, who moved the capital back to Moscow. He believed that the true gospel, no longer called Christianity but Communism could save the West. Professor Kohn believes that we must convince the Russians that we are strong and united, and that their hopes for saving us are in vain. For a long time we shall live neither at war nor at peace.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph F. King, pastor of the historic First Church in Oberlin, Ohio, accepted the invitation to be guest preacher on Sunday, February 21. His subject was "Dreams and Prayers." People dream, he said, about important things like human I and Thou relationships, not theology, politics, or economics. Prayers cannot heal everything as it is commonly assumed, but they can heal when they involve the basic relationship of I and Thou and When the I and Thou are man and God. Prayer changes things, but these things are not material nor are they individual.

Dr. Mary Lyman, dean of women and professor of English Bible at Union Theological Seminary, was guest speaker on Sunday, February 28. An ordained Congregationalist minister, Dr. Lyman spoke on the subject of "Religion as Pioneer Experience." Stating that religion must be based on more than an escape from fear, the speaker expressed the belief that religion must be creative, it must be new, it must go forward, and it must have pioneer spirit and pioneer hope. By faith and pioneer hope Abraham left Ur, and by such faith we today must go forward in religion.

Mr. Will Herberg, author of Judaism and the Modern Man and several other books, was the speaker at the University Assembly on Tuesday, March 2. Speaking on the subject of "Faith, Anxiety, and the Courage To Be," Mr. Herberg stated that because of modern trends in thought, people today have neither a simple faith in God nor a belief in secular panaceas. He felt that men lead a more worried existence today than ever before. According to the lecturer, there are three levels of present-day anxiety: physical fear, the neurotic insecurity of people who know that there is really nothing to worry about, and the deep apprehension arising from man's knowledge of his mortal weaknesses, and his conflicting desire to overcome these weaknesses. Many people have turned from "scientism" to psychotherapy to find peace of mind and freedom from feelings of guilt. Mr. Herberg concluded that in order to overcome the deepest of our insecurities, we must have the "courage to be" and the power to live creatively. Our basic psychological needs are self-acceptance, selfhood, and expression of ourselves. Only the acceptance of something beyond the capacity of human acceptance—this something is God—gives man his "courage to be."

The Rev. David Romig, pastor of the Riverdale Presbyterian Church in New York City, spoke at the Sunday chapel services on March 7. Mr. Romig comes from several generations of preachers. His father is the well-known Rev. T. F. Romig, pastor of the West End Reformed Church in New York City, and his brother is assistant rector of the famous Trinity Episcopal Church in Boston.

Mr. Joseph Carwell, a former member of the State Department, lectured at the University Assembly on Thursday, March 18. His subject, "Soviet Strategy in Asia," growing out of his experiences in Japan and Korea, gave his listeners much food for thought regarding ultimate Russian domination of the world through appeals to the downtrodden and undernourished peoples of the world.

Dr. Clifford Earle of the Presbyterian Board of Social Concern and Education spoke to members of the faculty at an informal tea on Tuesday, March 23, at 4:30 p.m. Dr. Earle spoke on the Presbyterian Church's commitment to social responsibility and concern and its interest in social action generally. He defended Dr. John Mackay, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., who was accused of being "communistic" by a small reactionary group in Pittsburgh because of his pronouncements on social concern.

Twenty-three oil paintings by Claude Clark were exhibited for two weeks in the Vail Memorial Library beginning Sunday, March 31. Mr. Clark, head of the Department of Art at Talladega College, has exhibited his paintings in New York, Philadelphia, and other large cities. Included in the exhibit were several paintings done in Haiti and Puerto Rico.

Pa., led the observance of Religious Emphasis Week on the campus March 31 through April 2. Discussions were held daily with student groups, to whom Mr. Bishop gave the benefits of his years of experience.

The Rev. Brewer L. Burnett, moderator of the Presbyterian Synod of Pennsylvania, was guest preacher on Sunday, April 4. Pastor of the Green Ridge Presbyterian Church in Scranton, Pa., Mr. Burnett spoke on the growing nature of faith, declaring that the “Sunday School miniature” of God is not enough. Our faith must grow abundantly in times when the hydrogen bomb threatens all life.

The Rev. Dr. E. Fay Campbell, secretary of the Department of Campus Christian Life of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., brought an inspiring message to his audience on Sunday, April 11. Disclaiming that Christianity is a kind of “warm glow,” Dr. Campbell stated that it offers only “room on the cross for you and me.” We should take this seriously in an age when investigation committees threaten our liberties. The persecutors of Christianity always commit their sins in the name of religion, as witness the Nazis and the Communists, but Christianity is a realistic road to Calvary, not a form of hysteria.

more; Professor Emile Caillet, Princeton Theological Seminary; Professor George Boas, Johns Hopkins University; and Professor Edwin E. Aubrey, University of Pennsylvania. The theme of the Conference was centered around four schools of thought: Neo-Orthodoxy, Fundamentalism, Naturalism, and Liberalism; and students sought answers to such questions as, “Can neo-orthodoxy be a means of reviving a dead church?” “Can fundamentalism really save us?” “Is naturalism an answer to Christian failure?” and “What is the liberal’s protest?”

The Lincoln University Players presented the Little Theatre Club of Swarthmore College in “All My Sons” in the Little Theatre on Thursday, March 25, at 8:15 p.m. The visiting theesprians were well received in the powerful Arthur Miller drama.

The annual Student Senate Weekend was held Friday and Saturday, April 9 and 10. On Friday night students and their guests enjoyed a Mardi Gras dance and on Saturday afternoon a picnic. On Saturday evening at 8:30 p.m. Beta Sigma Tau Fraternity presented William Frank, modern dancer, in recital in the Little Theatre. Mr. Frank is a candidate for a degree in the dance at the Juilliard School of Dance, where he is studying under the internationally famed dancers Doris Humphrey and Martha Graham.

The Glee Club, under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern, II, rendered a program of choral music at St. James Episcopal Church in Philadelphia on Sunday, February 21. The group sang at the Campbell A. M. E. Church in Media, Pa., on Sunday, April 11, and on Tuesday, April 13, made a tape recording for its broadcast on Sunday, April 25. The University Ensemble, consisting of Ralph Lowry, junior, Pittsburgh; William Womack, sophomore, Lynchburg, Va.; Alonzo Bennett, junior, Baltimore; George Braxton, sophomore, Harrisburg, Pa.; Robert Phillips, junior, Pittsburgh; Thaddeus Phillips, junior, Rock Hill, N. C.; Herbert Lemmon, senior, Philadelphia; and Jefferson Jones, junior, Cleveland, Ohio, furnished the music for the Lincoln Day Dinner at the Hotel Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia on Friday, February 12 and also sang at the United Negro College Fund Alumni Conference in Washington, D.C., on Friday, February 19. The Ensemble appeared at the Bethel A. M. E. Church in Lancaster, Pa., on Thursday, April 8.

The University Quantum, consisting of Messrs. Lowry, Womack, Bennett, Braxton, and R. Phillips, sang at the Wilming-pton, Del., meeting of the United Negro College Fund on Friday, February 26. The Glee Club presented the choir of the Norfolk Division of the Virginia State College on Saturday, April 8. The group was en route to New York to fill an engag-

The Seminary

Under the leadership of James Jones, ’52, a senior in the Seminary and president of the Seminary Union, alumni of the Seminary met at Lincoln on February 25. The following officers were elected: Rev. H. Garrett Lee, ’33, ’34, president; Rev. Mansfield Summerville, ’21, vice president; Rev. Hooker D. Davis, ’44, secretary; and Philip Ramer, Seminary senior, treasurer. Among the alumni who attended the meeting were the Rev. Messrs. Sholton B. Waters, ’45, McClain C. Spann, ’06, ’08; Chester L. Marcus, ’48; Benjamin F. Glascoc, ’11; Arthur D. Williams, ’12; Charles H. Mack, ’20, ’26; Charles S. Freeman, ’09, ’08; H. Octavius Graham, ’26; Robert Moody, ’20, ’24; Samuel C. Stevens, ’31, ’44; Ralph B. Thompson, ’14, and Reginald J. Daniels, ’48.

The Seminaries at Lincoln and Lancaster held a day of fellowship and prayer on Lincoln’s campus March 2. The class discussions and the experiences later shared in the chapel among the students and professors enriched the spiritual lives of all. Each man went his way with renewed faith in Christ and hope for the future.

Troup 39 of the Cub Scouts is planning a play, “The Wizard of Oz,” under the direction of the Den Mothers. The group is sponsored by the Seminary.

The Seminary Annis are extending their ranks to include wives of the college students. New officers for next year are Mrs. Henry Fordham, president, and Mrs. Philip Ramer, secretary.

The following men have spoken to the Seminaty student body either in class or during noonday devotions: Rev. Frank H. Stoup, director of field work for the Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia; Mr. Claude Conley, executive of the Synod of Pennsylvania; Rev. Robert L. McKibben, field director for the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.; Rev. G. W. Davies, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Oxford, Pa.; Rev. Gordon W. Mattice, secretary to the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.; and Dr. Clifford Earle, secretary of the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.

LETTERS

CLASS SECRETARY

Your recent communications should stimulate attendance and contributions by Lincoln men for the Centennial observance. I trust the class of 1915, of which I am a member, will make a creditable showing. Pres. Charles Pieters and I have sent out several letters recently.

UNITED NEGRO COLLEGE FUND
New York, N. Y.

We have just received a copy of the winter edition of the Lincoln University Bulletin, and are very happy to see such an excellent layout.

We are very grateful for this fine cooperation, and feel confident that it will help stimulate men of Lincoln to greater participation in UNCF campaigns.

Again, our many thanks.

RANDALL L. TYUS,
Field Director

CENTENNIAL FUND
Roxbury, Mass.

Enclosed please find One Hundred Dollars ($100.00), payable to the Lincoln University Centennial Fund. When I consider the benefits I received from dear old Lincoln, this amount is very small and trivial. However, I am very glad to be able to make this contribution.

HARVARD FELLOWS
Cambridge, Mass.

I hope that Lincoln will develop a Seminar and individual research program for undergraduates (seniors in the main), for it is indispensable for anyone intending to do graduate work. Such a program, I think, would go a long way toward making Lincoln the great undergraduate school that it is capable of being. Actually, I can assure you that Lincoln has prepared me well and I am highly indebted to her for doing so; especially her faculty, which, I am certain, is a far better faculty than most schools of her size and far better than most of her students realize. I do not regret one moment of my stay at Lincoln, and feel that a more interested student body would make for a much better educational and intellectual life. I say interested and not capable simply because when I was there many of the students were very capable, in fact much more capable than I, but lacked the interest. This, it seems to me, is the "tragedy" of it all.

MARTIN L. KILSON, '33

Cambridge, Mass.

Let me here state that Lincoln University should be proud to have two students in this year's graduate class. According to the Dean of the Graduate School in a welcoming speech to us, out of a total of more than 2,000 applicants last year, only 540 were selected and admitted. It is interesting to see that the distribution, which was not deliberate, ran as follows: Princeton 9, Yale 8, Stanford 7, Cornell 8, Columbia 8, Swarthmore 5, etc., down the line to Lincoln 2. In the undeliberate distribution, students were admitted solely on their merits covering almost all of the world from Canada to South America and from Norway to the South Sea Islands.

Well, it is too premature to predict anything else. But we certainly hope to uphold the confidence which Lincoln University has reposed in us. We shall do our best, God helping us!

LADIES AUXILIARY

The Ladies Auxiliary of Lincoln University has seen its long-range project realized. The building of the Guest House has been completed. Now, under the able leadership of its chairman, Mrs. William Leon Brown, the Guest House Furnishings Committee is diligently engaged with the business of furnishing this beautiful new house.

This is a great added short-range responsibility which the Auxiliary has undertaken and we hope of all interested and concerned is earnestly solicited. Won't you respond if you have not already? Make your check or money order payable to the Ladies Auxiliary of Lincoln University, and mail it to Mrs. Carrie W. Williams, 5318 Girard Ave., Philadelphia 31, Pa.

The Centennial Year of Lincoln University is now all but history. There remain several additional events: one is a national radio broadcast, "The Stubborn Men," in the "Let There be Light" series, scheduled for 300 stations during the week of September 12, commemorating the heroic stubbornness with which Lincoln's immortals—John Dickey, Isaac N. Rendall and the rest—persisted in their passionate conviction that persons of African and American Negro descent deserved the very highest education. Under the sponsorship of the radio division of the National Council of Churches, this is a program you will want to hear. Check your local station programs. Recordings may become available.

The Centennial Convention is scheduled for October 30—Homecoming Day—when the President of the Republic of Liberia, W. V. S. Tubman, will visit the campus and receive an honorary degree.

The Centennial Year has been marked by moments of greatness appropriate to a great institution, from the opening Convocation on September 18, through the Theological Seminary Convocation in Philadelphia on November 8, and to the Centennial Gimbel's Exhibit and Luncheon, followed by the Lincoln Day Dinner on February 12. The Charter Day Convocation on April 29 was a superb occasion, with more than 300 American and overseas universities sending representatives, and with thousands of handsome testimonials coming from the greatest and oldest universities in the world. The meetings of friendly groups—the Friends Historical Association on May 15 and the African Students Conference June 24-28—were additional highlights.

The Charter Day Convocation reached a high of pomp and circumstance; filmed versions were telecast in each of the sixteen countries now having television; it was rebroadcast by radio to every point of the world; and full accounts were published in the press of seventy-seven countries.

This was a worthy prelude to Lincoln University's New Program. The Centennial Commencement was all that was warmest and dearest in the Lincoln University all of us love. We ring down the curtain on the past with lingering memories of affection, of perfected human brotherhood and love.

Now we enter into a New World, a New Function and a New Program. Before we do so, you will indulge the President, I hope, in one last, fond look at the past.

This is a look into the eyes of those Lincoln Men who have so generously contributed to the institution. No one knows better than I what your contributions, great or small, mean in the way of real sacrifice. I know the little things—and the not so little things—that money would have bought for you, for your wife (n.b. hope she doesn't mind), and for your children.

I am sure your wife, your sweetheart, your children, all think you're quite a wonderful guy. I know, too, in your Lincoln-Man Manner, that you shrug off praise, commendation, and effusive thanks—for one good thing you learned here at Lincoln, long ago, was to be wary of "buttering-up," "apple-polishing," or "jive."

And yet and still—permit me to make this valedictory comment on our Centennial. It is, that the very highest tribute to the institution and to its good works is the willingness it has induced in its alumni to sacrifice for the institution, or for any cause held dear to them. As the great men came and went through our great institution, from the opening Convocation, to sacrifice. I know the little things—and great or small, mean in the way of real sacrifice. I know the little things—and the not so little things—that money would have bought for you, for your wife (n.b. hope she doesn't mind), and for your children.

It is, that the very highest tribute to the institution and to its good works is the willingness it has induced in its alumni to sacrifice for the institution, or for any cause held dear to them. As the great men came and went through our various Centennial activities; as the happy throngs of alumni departed on June 8, they left behind on our serene campus this eternal memory:

"The tumult and the shouting dies;
The Captains and the Kings depart.
Still stands thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart."

And with their gifts, our alumni donors left precisely that: an humble, a contrite, and a grateful heart. Boys,—we think you are very wonderful!
The Centennial of Lincoln University

Excerpts from the address by Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower at the Charter Day Convocation, April 29, 1954:

... I am deeply impressed by the “new program” which Lincoln’s Trustees have adopted to guide its administration in the decade to come. A university that has as its primary mission education for “worldwide understanding based on the concept of brotherhood” deserves well of our Republic and our Commonwealth—for unless the United States succeeds in leading the peoples of the world toward greater mutual understanding and a renewed dedication to the brotherhood of man, all other educational missions will have gone for naught.

In the United States ... one hundred years is a relatively long period. Being younger, perhaps more impatient, and yes, even more optimistic than peoples in other lands, we believe that time itself is precious, and the challenge of the century that lies ahead.

When one of the nation’s outstanding universities pauses, therefore, in its one hundredth year to take stock of what it has done and what it means to do, of where it has been and where it intends to go in the development of its program, it is a good and convenient time for all of us to redefine the goals of education and their relation to our national life. It is characteristic of the spirit of service to the world community which has guided Lincoln University throughout its distinguished history that this convocation has been built around a broad theme of general, as well as educational, interest—namely, “Free Persons in a Free World through Education and Brotherhood.”

All the streams of modern history are surging relentlessly toward the unification of our world. Physically, the world has already one, considering the speed of communication and modern travel. It is already one in economic interdependence. But it is divided into a thousand small parts, and especially into two great parts, politically, ideologically and morally—and that is the core of the great and critical problem facing the free world, the American people, and contemporary higher education in the United States . . . .

We are clearly at a period in history when, to gain our great purposes, we must depend primarily upon persuasion rather than coercion. While remaining militarily strong, we must at the same time build the sturdy structure of permanent peace—a structure compounded of genuine human understanding, of enlightened and mutually helpful economic cooperation, of effective political cooperation among all free nations and through the United Nations, and of power which the free peoples of the world may use to put down aggression by any who would violate the peace . . . .

If America’s new position of international leadership requires anything from educated men and women, it requires minds that are broad, trained in critical thinking, tolerant in judgment, skilled in creative compromise, and dedicated to democratic principles. Everywhere, teachers, trustees, educational administrators, and students are struggling with the problem of developing and maintaining an educational experience that will help build minds capable of contributing constructively to the solution of problems caused by modern interdependence.

Success in this task requires, I think, that colleges and universities focus their attention on building programs designed to help each student achieve six definite goals:

The first is specialized training for the making of a living, or of a home . . . . Without it, our economic prosperity would be drastically reduced; and democracy requires the high productivity yielded by specialization, for a democratic society will be sustained best in an atmosphere of abundance . . . .

But a too-exclusive specialization, either in work or education, makes for intellectual narrowness. It creates partial minds, whereas interdependence desperately demands whole minds. Partial minds very (Continued on page 16)

Earl Gumbs, '51, and Michael Thorne, '56, who have completed two years at the University of Mainz Medical School in Germany, traveled back to the United States just to attend the Centennial activities. Unable to get into a medical school in the United States, both alumni entered foreign schools, Gumbs the University of Lyon and Thorne the University of Paris, each transferring to the University of Mainz after one year.
FACULTY NEWS AND NOTES

DR. HORACE M. BOND presided at the Charter Day Convocation on April 29 and at the concluding session of the Social Science Conference, which was held at Lincoln April 29-30 in connection with Charter Day. That evening he attended a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Institute of African-American Relations, of which he is president, in Washington, D. C. On Sunday, May 2, he appeared with Lincoln's venerable South African alumni, the Rev. Thomas C. Katiya, '00, '08s, and the Rev. Livingston N. Mazamba, '06, '08s, on the CBS television program "Lamp Unto My Feet," which originated in the New York studios of CBS and was televised nationally. That afternoon Dr. Bond accompanied our distinguished alumni to a literary tea in Harlem, sponsored by the American Friends of Liberia, in honor of Melvin B. Tokon, '33, poet-laureate of the Republic of Liberia; and that evening to an inter-racial musicale in Wilmington, Del., where the Rev. Mr. Katiya was introduced and spoke briefly.

On May 6 Dr. Bond, the Rev. Messrs. Katiya and Mazamba, and several African students journeyed to TV Station WPTZ in Philadelphia, where a program on Africa under the auspices of the Philadelphia Board of Education was televised. On May 7 Dr. Bond presided at a Conference on Social Work held at Cedar Crest College in Allentown, and on May 10 and 11 he attended the Supreme Council (Masonic) in Philadelphia. On May 14 a radio program on Lincoln's Centennial, scheduled for broadcasting in October, was taped at Lincoln by the Glee Club and Dr. Bond. The next day he gave the principal address to the Friends Historical Association, which met at Lincoln to commemorate the part played by Quakers in the founding of Lincoln University, as well as the bicentennial of John Woolman's famous letter committing Friends to oppose human slavery.

Dr. Bond addressed the annual Forum of the Pittsburgh World Affairs Council on May 20 on the role of underdeveloped countries in present world politics; spoke at the annual meeting of Pennsylvania Elks in West Chester on May 23; accompanied other faculty members to New York, on May 24 to attend a conference on Lincoln’s New Program with leaders of agencies sponsoring international education; and returned to West Chester on May 30 to be the principal speaker at the Memorial Day Exercises sponsored by the American Legion.

June 1—welcomed the Right Honorable Nnamdi Azikiwe, '30, premier-designate of Eastern Nigeria, on his arrival at International Airport; June 5—addressed a luncheon meeting in Rochester in the interest of the United Negro College Fund; June 7—spoke at a luncheon in honor of Dr. Azikiwe, sponsored by the Philadelphia Board of Trade at the Commercial Museum in Philadelphia; June 10—presided at a Conference on Student Life at Swarthmore College, held to inform visiting foreign scholars on American education; June 12—guest of the British ambassador at a dinner given for Dr. Azikiwe at the British Embassy; June 13—speaker at the Inspirational Service held annually for graduates of the Atlantic City High School; June 14—participated, along with Dr. Joseph W. Holley, '00, '08s, in the funeral service of Richard Lockett, '18, which was conducted by the Rev. Wyatt B. The Rev. William Richards, totally blind since the age of four, was guest preacher Sunday, April 25. Mr. Richards spoke on the real meaning of faith in a handicapped life, pointing out that the real depth of a faith is the willingness to meet life in spite of all difficulties. He referred to the crippling effects of segregation as he experienced them in his work with minority groups of several origins.

Dr. Lawrence Scott, columnist for the Kansas City Call and formerly director of Fellowship House in Kansas City, Mo., was chapel speaker Tuesday, April 27. A paid worker for the American Friends Service Committee, Dr. Scott, who has been a teacher in the interracial Kansas City Baptist Theological Seminary, spoke on "Interdependence."

The Rev. Dean Charles Matthews of Auburn Theological Seminary in New York brought the morning message on Sunday, May 2. An expert in rural sociology and the rural ministry, Dean Matthews spoke about the way God affects our lives and how he uses us in affecting the lives of others without our knowing it.

The Rev. Francis Davis, industrial relations secretary of the Urban League of Greater Boston and a Universalist-Unitarian minister, was guest preacher Sunday, May 9. He told of the hopes of the Urban League to break down prejudices of white and colored peoples in their relationships on the job and of the achievement of the League in housing.

Rabbi Joseph Reich of Temple Beth-el in Coatesville, Pa., was the final Sunday guest speaker for the school year when he filled the pulpit on May 16. Speaking on "Jewish Characteristics," Rabbi Reich listed five typical characteristics of the Jew: attachment to scholarship, aversion to violence, humanitarian concern for his fellowman, moral integrity of family relationships, and devotion to the religion of his forefathers.
The Philosophy Club and the Political Science Club sponsored a panel discussion on “The Origin of Government” Monday, April 26, at 8:00 p.m. in the Little Theater. Dr. Philip Miller led the panel, which was composed of Joseph Carter, junior, Washington, D.C.; and James Prentice, junior, Pittsburgh, for the Political Science Club, and Philip Gerard, sophomore, Virginia Islands; and William Womack, sophomore, Lynchburg, Va., for the Philosophy Club.

The fifth Annual Sigma Day Concert was held at 3:30 p.m. on Sunday, May 2, in the Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel. Presented in recital were two white artists, Boyd, tenor; and Annabelle Parrish, mezzo-soprano. Attorney Oliver C. Eastman, treasurer and past president of Epsilon chapter, Lincoln University; Nu Sigma Chapter, New York, spoke on the subject “Freedom in the Atomic Age.”

The following recipients of prizes were announced at the Honors Day Convocation on Friday, May 14: the Class of 1900 Award to the student who best exemplifies the ideals of Lincoln University, Richard A. Holmes, Orange, N.J.; and the Amy L. Johnson Award for outstanding improvement in personality and scholarship, Herbert M. Lemmon, Philadelphia.

The Lincoln University Branch of the African Students’ Association held its fifth Annual African Students Weekend on Saturday, May 15, at 8:30 p.m. in the Grim Gymnasium. Traditional and modern dances of Africa were presented by Lincoln University students assisted by members of the African Students’ Union of the Americas, the African Student Union of the State of Pennsylvania, the Gold Coast Student Union of North America and Canada, the African Students of Swarthmore College, the Nigerian and Cameroun Student Union, and the African Students’ Association of Howard University. The program was dedicated to Lincoln University as a gesture of the appreciation of millions of people for the University’s unique contribution to the social and political evolution of the African continent.

Concert pianist Lois Towles presents Robert Phillips a Glee Club Award for 1953-54 as Professor Orrin C. Suthern II, director of the Glee Club; Mrs. Ethelyn Taylor, accompanist; and members of the Glee Club look on. The awards were presented at the spring concert of the Glee Club on Saturday, June 5. In addition to the Glee Club, Ralph Lowry was heard in two selections at the piano, Tchaikovsky’s “March Slav” and Leuena’s “Malaguena.”

Librarian Donald Yelton (l.) and Dr. Laurence Foster (r.) are shown with Mr. Clarence E. Pickett, honorary secretary of the American Friends Service Committee and speaker at the concluding session of the Social Science Conference, which was planned by Dr. Foster and held on the campus April 29-30. The Conference featured three simultaneous panel discussions: (1) What can the American student expect from an international and intercultural college? (2) What can the student from abroad expect from an international and intercultural college in the United States? and (3) Toward better world citizenship through group dynamics.

Mrs. Louise C. Hill (Hannah) and Ernest Levister (Moishe) try to comfort Carlyle Mason (Aaron) in a touching scene from “The High School,” which along with “Bontche Schweig” was presented Friday, June 4, for the benefit of alumni who returned to the campus for the beginning of Commencement activities. The plays, based on Jewish life, were taken from Arnold Perl’s “The World of Sholom Aleichem.” Bishop John P. Predow, '40, of the African Union Methodist Episcopal Church was the Baccalaureate speaker on Sunday, June 6. Speaking on "Learning of Jesus," Bishop Predow pointed out to the members of the Senior Class that the three greatest infinitives of man are to live, to do, and to die. Alphonso Jones, president of the Junior Class, receives the mantle of seniority from Richard Holmes, president of the Senior Class, at Class Night Exercises on Monday, June 7.

James R. Smith, a member of the graduating class, was the recipient of a $50 check for his essay, "Bethlehem and Its Founders," which placed second in the College Essay Contest sponsored annually by the Pennsylvania Society of the Colonial Dames of America. Dr. Nnamdi Azikive, '30, prime minister-elect of Eastern Nigeria and speaker at the Annual Banquet of the General Alumni Association on Monday, June 7, paid tribute to his Alma Mater for equipping him for the great task that lies ahead.

Officers of the Ladies Auxiliary of Lincoln University are shown just before the formal dedication of their Guest House on Monday, June 7: (l. to r.) Mrs. W. Leon Brown, chairman of the Guest House and Guest House Furnishings Committees; Mrs. Adolphus E. Henry, chaplain; Mrs. Richard T. Lockett, president; Mrs. Leslie P. Hill II, treasurer; Mrs. Frank Hailstok, recording secretary; Mrs. Harold E. Pierce, financial secretary; and Mrs. J. LeRoy Williams, historian.

Music at the Alumni Banquet was furnished by three members of the Lincoln University Quartette of the early twenties: (l. to r.) Duncan E. Pope, '24, John L. Mitchell, '24, and Cecil Halliburton, '23. James R. Smith substituted for Ernest W. Whiteside, '24, who was unable to be present. Other reunion classes with planned programs were 1904 and 1934, which presented $3,200 to the Centennial Fund.
The Honorable Richard Hartshorne of the United States District Court and trustee of the Duvalia Mills Foundation was the speaker at the dedication of the annex to the Vail Memorial Library on Tuesday, June 8. In the background are Dr. William H. Johnson, Dr. Horace M. Bond, Bishop John W. Martin, '02, '05s, and Attorney Lewis M. Stevens, president of the Board of Trustees of Lincoln University.

Richard A. Holmes, '54, and Andrew M. Robinson, '91, break ground for a new dormitory on Tuesday, June 8, as Dr. Azikiwe, Dr. Bond, Bishop Martin, and the Rev. James E. Jones, '52, '54s, look on. Dr. Azikiwe read his poem "To Lincoln" during the ground-breaking ceremonies. The dormitory is expected to be ready for occupancy in September, 1955. The Rev. Mr. Jones will serve as chaplain during the school year 1954-55.

Commencement speaker Lindsay F. Kimball, vice president of the Rockefeller Foundation, was heard by the largest audience in the history of the institution. Speaking on "Education for American Citizenship," Dr. Kimball, who is also chairman of the National Mobilization Drive of the United Negro College Fund, stated that if our American democracy is to be anything more than a happy collection of phrases, it will require the participation of everyone of its citizens. James E. Jones, '52, delivered the seminary address, "A Chosen People."
The honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon the Rev. Thomas C. Katjya, '00, '03s, South African Presbyterian minister for fifty-two years, and the Rev. Howard W. Thurman, university minister at Boston University.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters was conferred upon the Rev. Livingstone N. Mzimba, '06, '09s, pastor of one of the largest African churches in South Africa under the Presbyterian jurisdiction, and American philanthropist Lessing J. Rosenwald, who combined a career in business with the responsibilities of religious leadership.

Melvin Tolson, '23, professor of creative literature at Langston University, and Dr. William H. Sinkler, '28, medical director of the Homer Phillips Hospital in St. Louis, received the honorary degrees of Doctor of Letters and Doctor of Science respectively.

President Buell G. Gallagher of City College of New York received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws and William D. Sherrett, connected with Lincoln University for more than forty-five years, an honorary Bachelor of Arts degree.
SCHOLARSHIPS, FELLOWSHIPS AND JOB OPPORTUNITIES

Under the will of the late Emma Binz of Cleveland, the Western Reserve University School of Medicine is the beneficiary of a trust fund, the income from which is to be used to “assist worthy and needy students without discrimination as to the race, color or creed of the students to be benefited.” The Emma and Frank Binz Memorial Scholarships which have been established have a four-year value of $5,500 each, the total representing $8,200 for tuition, $700 for a microscope and books, and $400 each year toward living expenses. Consideration will be given only to those applicants who are nominated by the Dean of the College or the Premedical Advisor, who must certify to the character, ability, and financial need of the applicant. Applications, which must be forwarded to the School by the Dean of the College or Premedical Advisor, should be completed by October 15. Application blanks may be obtained by writing to the Committee on Admission, School of Medicine, Western Reserve University, Cleveland 6, Ohio. It is anticipated that a college will rarely, if ever, nominate more than one candidate in a single year. Two Binz scholars are expected to be appointed each year.

Through the College of Education and the Division of Student Personnel and in cooperation with Detroit and other metropolitan schools, Wayne University is offering full and part-time college instructorships, assistantships, and fellowships to exceptionally competent young men and women interested in gaining valuable experience while working toward a Master’s or Doctor’s degree in such fields as administration and supervision, audio-visual education, psychology, secondary school education, teacher education, and vocational education. For further information regarding the type and amount of service to be performed and the extent of graduate study permitted in each appointment category, specific stipends and how they are paid, possible tuition waivers and G. I. privileges, additional stipends for summer employment, the number and types of openings available in June and September, and the availability of employment opportunities for wives of candidates, and additional information about the College of Education, Wayne University, and cultural activities in Detroit, write to W. E. Lessenger, Dean, College of Education, Wayne University, Detroit 1, Michigan.

Careers opportunities in physics, chemistry, metallurgy, engineering, mathematics, and electronic science are available for civilian scientists in the naval activities of the Potomac River Naval Command and at the Engineering Center, Fort Belvoir, Va. The wide scope of the research and developmental programs being conducted in these establishments sets up a continuing need for highly productive and creative scientific personnel. These programs provide a challenging opportunity for interesting employment in excellently equipped laboratories performing highly significant and important work in the interest of our country’s welfare. The Potomac River Naval Command includes all field establishments of the Navy in and around the metropolitan area of Washington, D. C., and in areas adjacent to each side of the Potomac River down to Chesapeake Bay.

No written test is required. Applicants’ qualifications will be rated on a scale of 100 by subject matter specialists and will be determined by professional evaluation of their experience, education and training as shown in their applications and on further corroborative and supplementary information which may be obtained. Confidential inquiries, including contacts with the applicants’ superiors or associates, may be made concerning their research ability and experience record. Each applicant must furnish with his Application Form 57 a list of courses which were completed in an accredited college or university or for which an accredited college or university has allowed credit toward graduation, showing the descriptive title, the grade received, and the semester hours credit allowed for each course, and the name of the accrediting institution. A registrar’s transcript is not necessary but may be used to furnish this information.

Applicants must file the following: Forms 57 and 5001 ABC; a separate application Form 57 for each position the applicant desires to be considered; Form 15 required for certain veteran preference claimants; a copy or photostat of college transcript, or a complete list of courses; and a list of all publications, writings, and reports related to the field, and if possible, a reprint or copy of each. Forms may be obtained from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Eighth and F Streets, N. W., Washington 25, D. C., any first or second class post office, except in Regional Headquarters cities where the forms must be obtained from the Civil Service Regional Office; or from the Executive Secretary, Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners for Scientific and Technical Personnel of the Potomac River Naval Command, Building 37, Naval Research Laboratory, Washington 25, D. C., with whom the forms should be filed.

ALUMNI SELF-STUDY QUESTIONNAIRE

We are seeking information from alumni in connection with the self-study survey which is being conducted by Lincoln University under a grant from the Fund for the Advancement of Education. Your answers will be helpful in Lincoln's study of its own internal program of liberal arts education as well as in the study of the problem of developing a truly interracial and international institution. You are asked to fill out and return the questionnaire IMMEDIATELY. It will not be necessary to sign your name to the questionnaire. Please feel free to elaborate upon any question, to raise questions not herein touched upon, or to discuss related points that come to mind, using additional paper, if necessary.

THE CENTENNIAL

naturally cluster around their special vocational interests, and thus are created scores of human pressure streams, running head-on into each other . . . .

Specialization and interdependence have induced social changes of such bewildering speed that the citizen-mind can scarcely comprehend. Hence, we frequently devise social action within an obsolete factual framework which leads us to our second goal of higher education, namely: to help each student achieve an understanding of all the broad fields of knowledge—the physical sciences, the biological sciences, the social sciences, the humanities . . .

A third goal is the development of the skills of communication. So many of us in America these days don't really know how to read, or write, or speak, or listen . . . . Every individual is dependent on others in a multitude of ways, and his true success or failure—as a producer and as a citizen—depends vitally on his ability to analyze and assess what he hears or reads, and to state logically and clearly what he knows, thinks, or wishes to ask . . . .

This brings me to the fourth goal: the fostering of wisdom, or the development of the capacity for sound judgments. Here, how students are taught is as important as what they are taught. Or, more accurately, how students learn, is as important as what they learn. Perhaps the greatest achievement a student can attain is to learn how to learn. Students, in class and out, must be encouraged constantly to formulate judgments, express them, and test them against objective facts and judgments of others.

And this brings me to the fifth of our goals, namely that every student should gain from his total experience in college an abiding commitment to the democratic way of life and to the spiritual values underlying it—a commitment based, not upon indoctrination, but upon genuine understanding . . . . Every citizen has a right to expect that our educational institutions will contribute directly and effectively to the strengthening of the democratic system which maintains them . . . .

A genuine, abiding commitment can be achieved only if the student really understands the basic theories and practices of democracy and its fundamental moral values, as well as the basic theories and practices of other systems and ideologies—in all the forms they have taken throughout history. The glory of it is that democracy, with all its shortcomings, is the best social system ever devised by man . . . .

Lastly, our colleges and universities today face the difficult task of helping their students think in global, as well as in national and local, terms. This sixth goal means that all university students, regardless of their vocational interests, must be given an opportunity to gain understanding of the social, economic, political, and military problems of our modern world. From his study of world affairs, each student should develop a deep comprehension of the international community, a constructive understanding of people in other lands, and an awareness of the serious responsibilities he must shoulder as an adult citizen . . . .

Thus, in the struggle for the minds of men in which our generation is engaged, our colleges and universities are on the front lines leading the cause of freedom in brotherhood. Toward the day when there shall be widespread understanding among the peoples of the world, and peace with justice among the nations. As educators follow Lincoln University's example by preparing young men and women for the responsibilities of citizenship in a democracy, so will the whole community of free nations be enriched and solidified in these years of peril.

The Seminary

The second Annual Potluck Fellowship sponsored by the Seminary Alumni for their husbands and friends, was held in the McCauley Refectory on Tuesday, May 10.

The 1953-54 Seminary Banquet was held in the McCauley Refectory on Wednesday, May 11. As master of ceremonies, H. Herbert-Taylor, Seminary middey, presided over a varied program. One interesting feature of the program was the rendition of "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" in the Bassa dialect by the Rev. David Mandeng, a Cameroun pastor, who is studying in the Seminary. James E. Jones, Seminary senior and president of the Seminary Union greeted the guests; the Gospel Team, composed of N. Charles Thomas, Willie T. Taylor, and Galen R. Work of the Seminary, and James R. Smith of the College, rendered several selections; and Dr. Philip Miller, the speaker for the occasion, reminisced about past experiences in the theological work at Lincoln.

The following recipients of prizes were announced at Commencement: the Robert H. Nassau Prize, James E. Jones, '53, Jackson, Mich.; the Miss Lode Reed Prizes in sacred geography, Galen R. Work, Kennett Square, Pa., and Alphesus L. Bright, Bridgeport, Conn.; and the C. Morris Cain Prize in English Bible, Robert Freitag, Denver, Colo.

Have You Remembered Lincoln University In Your Will?

FORM OF BEQUEST
To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $......................... to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
From The President's Desk

The Centennial Year having passed, the University turns to a new Century of Service, now designed to include the universal concept of human brotherhood. The picture on the cover shows new students enrolled under Lincoln University's New Program. The student body now includes representatives from every continent. This auspicious beginning has been made possible largely through generous gifts of $15,000 from the Lessing J. Rosenwald Foundation Fund and approximately $1,000 from Mrs. Janet R. Becker for scholarships applicable to implementing the New Program. Another substantial indication of interested helpfulness has come through a gift of $10,000 from the Firestone Trust Fund.

Gifts and appropriations to Lincoln University in the Centennial Year exceeded $400,000. The sacrificing response of alumni was particularly notable. It is hoped that some systematic form of annual giving may be devised in the near future through which alumni and friends of the institution may coordinate and regularize their giving. To this project officials of the General Alumni Association are giving their concerted consideration.

Lincoln University, equipped with a new and potent idea for human service, is grateful to those who have generously given of their substance in the past. Its new needs are as tremendous as its new and challenging program. We are confident that all will rise to the new challenge.

What Other Colleges Are Doing

Skidmore College students are conducting a Leadership Training Program to learn group administration and efficient procedures. Faculty members are assisting with demonstrations of parliamentary procedure and group dynamics. The program aims at wider knowledge and participation in the College Government Association by all students and a greater efficiency for officers and leaders.

One hundred and twenty-six of nearly three hundred industrial concerns in the Greater Bridgeport area have contributed $258,500 to the University of Bridgeport's building fund campaign. The University hopes to receive additional funds in order to break ground this year on a gymnasium-auditorium for the Seaside Park Campus.

Washington College of Chestertown, Md., has liberalized class attendance, permitting unlimited absences for juniors and seniors who have high grades. High-ranking senior students in the College of Arts and Sciences at New York University are free to miss classes without penalty. The faculty voted to allow unlimited absence from classes for seniors on the dean's list.

Stephens College has a two-year grant of $20,000 from the Fund for Adult Education established by the Ford Foundation to conduct a national pilot study experimenting with materials and methods for encouraging alumni of colleges and universities to continue their liberal education.

Colgate University has revised its general education program after a trial run of eight years. The new program will include a two-year upper-class sequence in the domestic and foreign problems of America (Social Science), the present two-year under-class sequence in the Humanities (philosophy and religion, music, visual arts, and literature), one year in Natural Science, and one semester in English Communication.

Long Island University has opened a College of Business Administration this fall, the first of a series of changes planned by the university in a program designed to upgrade and expand the institution. A special program has been mapped out in conjunction with the Division of Teacher Education of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences for students who plan to teach business subjects in secondary schools.

Alumni chapters of Springfield College in Massachusetts have undertaken a self-study program designed to discover how the chapters can become more effective for both the local members and the college. All phases of chapter activity will be covered in the yearlong study.

Dartmouth College has set a goal of $660,000 for its fortieth anniversary alumni fund campaign.
THE HONORABLE William Vacanarat Shadrach Tubman, eighteenth president of the Republic of Liberia, was the recipient of the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at a special Convocation on Saturday, October 30, at 4:30 p.m. in the Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel. He was elected President of Liberia in 1943 for a term of eight years and was re-elected in 1951 for a second term of four years which expires January, 1956. Born in Liberia on November 29, 1895, Mr. Tubman is a descendant of early settlers who reached the new colony in 1834 from Augusta, Ga. His interest in law caused him to desert teaching for the legal profession, in which he rose rapidly because of his unusual ability and acumen, qualities which stand him in good stead as President. His decade of wartime and postwar administration has been acclaimed by many as the most progressive decade in Liberia's history. His stirring address paid tribute to early Lincoln University graduates who went to Liberia and to the strong tie existing between Lincoln and Africa.

GIFTS AND APPROPRIATIONS to Lincoln University reached a new annual high of $410,301.11 in its Centennial year. Income from gifts has risen steadily during the past ten years, the 1944-45 figure being $120,839.98. Contributions from alumni and from the Ladies Auxiliary exceeded $70,000 during the past year. During the ten-year period just completed, gifts to the institution totalled $1,976,134.17, of which $300,000 is estimated to have been contributed in "live" gifts and bequests by alumni. Not included in the total figure is another $200,000 devised by the alumni through bequests, but not yet received by the institution. Last year the university received $69,706 from the United Negro College Fund for capital and plant purposes and $27,437.75 from the same source for current expenses.

Every College and University Has at Least—

Ten Responsibilities To Alumni

• Ernest T. Stewart, Jr.

Since I had no part in selecting it, I can freely express my admiration for the specific wording of the topic assigned for discussion. The fact that the subject of alumni is included on the program—for the first time, to my knowledge, at such a meeting—is cause for gratification in itself. But for professional educators to phrase the question this way instead of the reverse is a welcome surprise.

It is traditional for an institution to expect so much from its alumni and to give so little. It is traditional to think only in terms of the responsibilities of the alumni to the institution—and of ways and means of converting those into cash. It is traditional to regard alumni service as a one-way street. Yet now, in this pioneering venture, we are given the opportunity of analyzing the more challenging and significant question of an institution's responsibilities to its alumni. These can be grouped under ten arbitrary headings as follows.

The first responsibility is to insure that a vigorous, productive alumni program exists: the responsibility to initiate one if it is not there; to nurture if it is dormant; to encourage if it is already doing a job. With so many striking examples apparent on other campuses of what a sound alumni program can mean to a college or university, how can an institution feel otherwise? Organized alumni are a potent new force for good in higher education, and the responsibility seems clear to put them to work in the institution's behalf.

Some historical background is needed here. In the beginning the impetus for formal alumni organizations came from the graduates themselves. Probably without exception, the older associations have had such origins. Yet in recent years, and particularly since World War II, the picture has changed. Now it is the institution, and more likely a new and vigorous president, who recognizes the value of organizing his alumni and launches the program, or who breathes new life into one that is standing still.

II

Coupled with this responsibility is a second: to guarantee a firm financial base for the alumni program, through partial or complete subsidization if necessary. Here again there has been a significant change in the old order. Alumni associations were once self-sustaining operations, financed solely by dues or occasional gifts. The discouragingly small percentage of alumni who joined were able to maintain their ties with alma mater: the others dropped out of sight. Today only a few active associations remain that are completely free of institutional subsidization. Even in tax-supported colleges where legislative appropriations may not be permitted for general alumni activities, partial subsidization—office space, funds for the maintenance of alumni records, salaries for some of the staff—is the rule and not the exception. Hastening the need for subsidization is the decision, frequently made, to abandon dues in favor of an alumni fund. Even with a wide variety of types of membership at a rising scale of rates, a dues program asks only a set amount and limits potential income. Dues also fail to inspire on the part of the giver a feeling of contributing to the cause of education. Unless the alumni body is large and the collection rate high, a dues-type association is limited in the calibre of the executive and staff it can hire, the magazine it can publish, the program it can conduct and the contribution, financial and otherwise, it can make to the institu... tion. There is a further drawback. Such programs and services as they do offer are limited to that relatively small dues-paying group. The rest of the alumni, virtually cut off from contact with their college, lose interest rapidly, and the chance to tap their potential for support is soon gone.

Into that situation alert administrations are stepping, with subsidization to hire the brains and provide the capital needed to do a job. The subsidy may seem heavy to an institution for a while. But the alumni body is a long-term investment, and soon the phenomenon occurs that has long been an inspiration: the fact that the percentage of the total cost paid by alumni through contributions rises constantly and soon wipes out the entire college responsibility. Later, and the timing will vary, the alumni become a source of financial support on a recurring, dependable basis second to none.

There is no limit to the amount that an alumni fund, properly nourished as part of a broad alumni program, can mean in terms of annual income to an institution. Yale has hit a million dollars in each of its last three years, but. . . .

An alumni magazine is naturally thought of as the first essential here, and it is. Yet, no matter how good, it cannot do the job alone. Other publications — regular messages from the president or other officials regarding such matters as reunions and homecomings mailed at reasonable cost to all former students—may be necessary, and without question are if the magazine does not reach all alumni. There are also further opportunities for effective communication in connection with traditional events. On-campus gatherings such as reunions and homecomings can become and are becoming more than mere social affairs. Off-campus gatherings such as alumni club meetings and banquets offer additional opportunities for two-way communication that should not be overlooked. If the alumni are to be asked to serve alma mater, they have a right to expect, and the college has a responsibility to provide, current information and interpretation on the institution’s standing, programs, problems, hopes, aims and aspirations.

There is another danger here in the assumption that alumni are familiar with a college today just because they spent four years there in the past. We also tend to assume that alumni are familiar with a certain program or problem just because they have had a chance to read about it in print. Bear in mind an ad-

Dr. Horace M. Bond addressed the Conference on Africa, sponsored by the Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced Studies, at the Sheraton Park Hotel in Washington on August 11, and on August 25 he gave the memorial address at the Fiftieth Anniversary meeting of Sigma Pi Phi held at the University of Pennsylvania.

On August 26, under the auspices of the Institute of African-American Relations, Dr. Bond left this country for Africa. In Liberia he interviewed President W. V. S. Tubman and other officials; in the Gold Coast he interviewed Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah, '39, '42s, who sent greetings to all Lincoln men. He also saw Robin Mbura, '43, now assistant manager of the Industrial Development Corporation but missed Ako Adjei, '42, newly appointed Minister of Public Works in the Gold Coast All-African Cabinet.

In Lagos, Nigeria, Dr. Bond saw K. Ozuomba Mbadive, '43, Minister of Land and Natural Resources in the Central Nigerian Federation Cabinet, and the Rev. Dr. James H. Robinson, '35, who was on an extensive tour of Africa. Dr. Robinson was busy recording radio lectures for NBC and preparing articles for outstanding American magazines. By chance, he also saw Dr. William Fitzjohn, '43, who was on holiday from his post as lecturer at the University College at Freetown, Sierra Leone.

In Enugu, capital of Eastern Nigeria, Dr. Bond interviewed Dr. Nnamdi Azikiwe, '30, Prime Minister of Eastern Nigeria, and later saw Ibanga U. Akpablo, '42, Minister of Education; Mbonu Ojike, '42, Minister of Public Works; and Chinyere Achara, '51, now a member of the faculty of Iheme Memorial College, Nsitogae.

In Ibadan, capital of Western Nigeria, Dr. Bond interviewed Obafemi Awolowo, Prime Minister of that region, and talked with Reuben O. O. Ikekiana, '42, who is operating an important hospital and clinic in this great city of 750,000 population.

In Kaduna, capital of Northern Nigeria, Dr. Bond interviewed the Sardauna of Sokoto, Prime Minister of that region, and was greeted by U. Igwa Ukohe, '51, later Master of Science, Michigan, recently appointed to a lectureship in the Nigerian College of Arts and Sciences at Zaria.

En route to the United States, Dr. Bond stopped briefly in London and conferred with American and Colonial Office officials regarding recent developments in Western African education. He returned to the campus on September 23.

Other engagements: October 3-5, attended annual meeting of the United Negro College Fund at Atlanta University; October 7, lectured at Delaware State College on "The Problems of Integration"; October 20, attended official functions for President Tubman in Washington; and October 29, made remarks at the First Presbyterian Church of Oxford, Pa., on the occasion of its Bicentennial Celebration, the date being observed as Lincoln University Day.

Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, executive assistant to the president and director of public relations, was the speaker at the monthly public meeting of the Interracial Council in Lancaster, Pa., on October 17.

Dr. Henri M. Yaker, assistant professor of religion, attended the meeting on Campus Christian Life, sponsored by the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., October 21-23. Dr. Yaker participated in a panel on "The Philosophy of Education in a Bible Department." In attendance were professors of Bible and college chaplains from all Presbyterian schools.

A son was born to Coach and Mrs. Robert Gardner on July 19. He has been named Philip.

Mr. James Frankowsky, instructor in mathematics, was married to Miss Grace Jackson, secretary to the President, on September 11.

The Seminary Reception, welcoming new students into the Seminary fellowship, was held in the Ladies Auxiliary Guest House on September 30. Edwin Ellis, a middler in the Seminary, presided and introduced guests. After a period of fellowship, the group enjoyed refreshments, which were provided by the Seminary wives.

Officers of the Seminary Union for the current year are as follows: president, Edwin Ellis; vice president, Robert Freitag; secretary, Alpheus Bright; treasurer, Forrest H. Brown; chaplain, Sewell Cropper; and interseminary representative, Joseph Stevens.

Several new students have enrolled in the Seminary this year, making a total enrollment of twenty-four. Among the new Seminarians are:

William L. Banks of Philadelphia. A graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, Banks, who is married, is studying for the Baptist ministry.

The Rev. Forest T. Benner of West Grove, Pa. Pastor of the Nazarene Church at West Grove, Mr. Benner obtained his college degree from Johns Hopkins and is completing his seminary work at Lincoln.

Forrest H. Brown of Denver, Col. Brown is a student for the Presbyterian ministry. He received his engineering degree from the University of Colorado and is especially interested in aeronautical engineering. He spent last summer working for the Presbyterian Board of National Missions in Alaska, and he hopes to make a career in missionary aviation.

Jerome Cooper of Republic, Pa. A June graduate of Lincoln University, Cooper was active in athletics.

Thomas H. Wallace of Chattanooga, Tenn. Married and the father of two children, Wallace is a student for the Baptist ministry. He is a graduate of Tennessee Temple College and is at present serving a church in Elkton, Md.

Grant Williams of Pittsburgh, Pa. Williams, who received his college degree from Bloomfield College, is a student for the Presbyterian ministry and comes to Lincoln as a transfer student from Andover Newton Theological School.

The first Annual Alumni Convocation of the Seminary was held on October 5. The Rev. Dr. Benjamin F. Glasco, '11s, moderator of the Presbytery of Philadelphia, presided at the opening session, at which Dr. William L. Imes, director of field service, New York State Council of Churches, spoke on "The Challenge of Integration." At the evening session, the Rev. Milton A. Galamison, '45, '47s, pastor of the Siloam Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, spoke on the subject of "The Church Moves toward Integration." The Rev. H. Garnett Lee, '33, '35s, is president of the Seminary alumni.

A series of lectures on Marriage Counseling is being sponsored by the Seminary in cooperation with the Pennsylvania League for Planned Parenthood. These lectures, which bring to the campus outstanding physicians, are designed to help Seminary students become better acquainted with the biological and psychiatric background of marriage. This same series of lectures has been given at Lancaster Seminary and Crozer Seminary. The lectures are given each Monday evening for a period of eight weeks.

The annual Field Work Directors' meeting was held on Lincoln's campus October 22-23. This meeting brings together men who are responsible for field work in the Presbyterian Theological Seminaries and the Boards of the Church. Dean Arthur H. George of Johnson C. Smith Seminary was chairman of the meeting. Other participants were Dr. C. Morton Hanna, Louisville Theological Seminary, executive secretary of the Department of Ministerial Relations; Dr. Calvin Schnucker, Dubuque Theological Seminary; Drs. Mueller and Lang of the Board of National Missions; Dr. J. Christy Wilson, Princeton Theological Seminary; the Rev. J. Marcus Priester, Board of Christian Education; and Dr. Jarvis M. Cotton, Western Theological Seminary. The Conference dealt with problems of field work of seminary students.
The National Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Program is designed to recruit, for the teaching profession, at the college or university level, young men and women who possess the highest qualities of intellect, character, and personality: in particular, those who have not thought of an academic career or at least are undecided upon it. The Program, which is a development on a nation-wide scale of the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Program established by Princeton University in 1945, is sponsored by the Association of Graduate Schools in the Association of American Universities. Since 1952, the Fellowships have been underwritten jointly by the thirty-seven universities comprising the Association of American Universities and by generous grants from the Carnegie Corporation and the General Education Board. It is planned to award one hundred and fifty Woodrow Wilson Fellowships for the academic year 1955-56, and possibly a larger number in subsequent years. For the present, the Fellowships will be confined to those whose primary interest lies in the Humanities and the Social Sciences. The Woodrow Wilson Fellowships are awarded upon invitation only and only upon nomination by members of the academic profession. Acceptance of a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship entails no obligation to enter the academic profession. The sponsors of the Program ask only that the Fellow give the possibilities of the profession his most serious consideration. Application blanks may be obtained from the academic profession, from whom confidential information may be obtained concerning their professional qualifications. Applications, which should be sent to 951 East 58th St., Chicago, 37, Ill., are accepted at any time during the year, and will be forwarded to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis for action and announcement of awards.

Owens-Illinois of Toledo, Ohio, is interested in qualified young men with either technical or non-technical backgrounds for training in sales, production management, or general engineering. Write directly to the Director, Selection of Specialized Personnel, Owens-Illinois, General Offices, Toledo 1, Ohio.

To develop college graduates for future agency openings, the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company of Hartford, which conducts its field activities through eighty branch offices known as general agencies, is inaugurating a Management Training Program and invites interested personnel to write to Horace R. Smith, Superintendent of Agencies, for a copy of the booklet which describes this program in detail as well as other career opportunities.

The Dow Chemical Company is looking for sales trainees to represent Dow in the fast-growing chemical industry. These men may be graduates in any field of study who have one year or more of college chemistry. The company offers excellent opportunity because of its rapid growth and its policy of promotion from within. The trainee is fitted for the job with a comprehensive training course which explains company organization, policy, finance, research, production, technical service, and sales methods. For further information on the opportunities offered college graduates in Dow's sales training program, write to the Technical Employment Department, Dow Chemical Company, Midland, Mich.

The Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Company, St. Paul 6, Minn., manufacturers of hundreds of varied products for home and industry from cellophane tape to lithograph plates, is seeking qualified personnel in research, sales, or staff management divisions.

Three members of the class are sons of Lincoln alumni: Jesse F. Anderson, Jr., whose father was a member of the Class of 1932; Arthur J. Robinson, Jr., whose father was a member of the Class of 1934; and David C. Waters, whose father was a member of the Class of 1919.

THE LECTURES and Recitals Series for 1954-55 began with the presentation of Dr. Richard M. Sutton, one of America's great physics teachers, on Wednesday night and Thursday morning, October 6 and 7. A member of the faculty of Haverford College, Dr. Sutton was awarded the Oersted Medal by the American Physical Society in recognition of his great talents as a physics teacher. He has served on the College Board and the Graduate Record Examination Committees and as president of the American Association of Physics Teachers. He lectured and demonstrated several simple principles of physics. On Friday, October 22, at 8:15 p.m. the Lectures and Recitals Committee presented Gary Graffman, concert pianist, in recital. Winner of the Rachmaninoff Fund Special Award in 1948 and the Leventritt Contest in 1949, Mr. Graffman delighted his audience with selections from Mozart, Brahms, Shubert, Prokofieff, and Liszt's arrangement of three Paganini caprices.

TEN RESPONSIBILITIES

monition from a president who knows his alumni well: "Never overestimate the amount of information your alumni have on any subject concerning the college; but never underestimate what they will be able to do—once they have the facts."

Responsibility five involves a willingness on the part of the institution to recognize that the alumni have come of age. "Alumni are and of a right ought to be full-fledged members of the university family," President Arthur S. Adams of the American Council on Education declared in an address last summer. "As such they should be asked to assume responsibility, they should have full information, and their opinions on vital matters of university policy should be seriously sought and seriously considered."

Such recognition is predicated on the view that the most vocal and ubiquitous alumni, who have tarred their ranks with a big brush, are actually only a "lunatic fringe"; and that for every one like that, "interested only in the things that do not matter," there are ten standing by silently with deep feelings of respect for the institution and the work it is doing. They are the ones whose talents must be tapped and whose services will gratify the institution that has the wisdom to bring them into the picture.

There are many ways of demonstrating that recognition. Direct alumni representation on boards of trustees and other key policy groups is one; respect for the views of alumni councils is another. Many alumni are now serving as emissaries of their institutions at official functions and in such delicate areas as secondary school recruiting. Alumni advisory councils or committees are now sitting down with faculty, by invitation, to bring "to consideration of university policy a kind of perspective and a breadth of experience which are not always found among those whose careers have been spent in academic life." That recognition extends also to the alumni director, who should not be saddled with a wide variety of extraneous duties, treated as a mere records-keeper, deprived of professional status or excluded from inner policy circles. "Colleges and universities must be concerned with alumni, the human product they turn out," according to President A. Hollis Edens of Duke. "Yet how can the alumni make a contribution to the intellectual world if the college itself treats the alumni association as a side show?"

Have You Remembered Lincoln University In Your Will?

FORM OF BEQUEST

To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $......................... to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
More than seventy percent of Lincoln University's enrollment of 250 men will participate this year in 80 contests with 45 different colleges. The institution has "de-emphasized" athletics only to the extent of adopting as strict a "simon-pure" policy as any college in the country. No athletic scholarships of any kind are given, either by the institution, alumni, or friends. An extensive program of intercollegiate competition in football, soccer, basketball, wrestling, and track places the opportunity for intercollegiate competition at the door of the large majority of Lincoln students. Golf is soon to be included, as new putting greens are being added to the school's physical exercise facilities. Debating, incidentally, is another intercollegiate activity.

The policy of encouraging intercollegiate competition for the boy with average physical equipment instead of going out to recruit expensive and highly talented "stars" is paying off in more ways than one. It does give the true "amateur" a chance to compete as well as keep the costs of a full athletic program at a minimum. Morale is generally high in athletic teams. Lincoln coaches find themselves without the headaches and inter-squad divisions so often found where high-priced "prima donnas" have to be coddled and pampered. The boy out for a sport at Lincoln is out because he loves the game, and he knows that all that is expected of him is his best.

Experience with the policy shows that in games won and lost a "break-even" may be expected; and occasionally there is a championship team in a sport like wrestling, in which Lincoln has dominated the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association for the last four years in succession. Since 1945 Lincoln football teams have won 52 per cent, lost 42 per cent, and tied 6 per cent of their games.

Because Lincoln's traditional rivals in Conference competition have been located in the South, while the new policy is to develop athletic relations with colleges in a closer area, Lincoln's opponents cover a wide area, from Johnson C. Smith University at Charlotte, N. C., to King's College at Wilkes-Barre, Pa. During the current season Lincoln athletic teams have played or will play in North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey. Among nearby colleges on Lincoln's schedules are King's College of Delaware, Delaware State College, Lycoming College, Trenton State Teachers College, King's College of Pennsylvania, Bloomfield, Moravian, Millersville State Teachers College, Lock Haven State Teachers College, West Chester State Teachers College, Bloomsburg State Teachers College, Rider, Elizabethtown, Philadelphia Textile, Morgan State, and Lincoln's oldest rival, Howard University of Washington, D. C.

Outstanding performers in Lincoln athletics come from widely separated areas, as shown by the list of captains and captains-elect: in football, Joseph Kenney, a graduate of Summit High School in Newark, N. J., and David Slaughter, a graduate of John Bartram High School in Philadelphia, Pa., co-captains of the 1954 squad; Albert Johnson, a graduate of Park Central High School in Bluefield, W. Va., captain-elect; in soccer, Isaiah Smith, a graduate of Bethlehem High School in Bethlehem, Pa., and Prince Browne, a graduate of the high school department of the College of West Africa in Liberia, co-captains; and in baseball, Joseph Kenney, captain-elect. Big Jim Cooke, triple-threat man in football, basketball, and track, is a graduate of the Park Street High School in Peekskill, N. Y.
THE ACCOMPANYING PICTURE might very well be captioned “Student into Alumnus,” for in accepting three 21-inch television sets for Rendall, Cresson, and Lincoln Halls from the General Alumni Association, represented by S. Raymond Overton, '33, (r.) assistant secretary, James Prentice, a senior and president of the Student Senate, made this statement: “The gesture of the General Alumni Association today has made me—and, I'm certain, many other students—conscious of the fact that we have entered into a life-time association with Lincoln University and that we should regard our senior year not so much as a terminal point for our student days but rather as a beginning point for our interest in alumni activities. The interest that the General Alumni Association has shown in the students of Lincoln will bear fruit in the year's to come as we go forth and take our places in society, mindful of our obligations to those who come after us and to Lincoln. It is significant that we accept these television sets on Homecoming, for the day will henceforth have more meaning to the students currently enrolled in Lincoln.”

BIOLOGY IS THE MAJOR field of slightly more than one-third (15) of the forty-two members of the Senior Class. Following in order are political science, 6; chemistry, 4; history, 4; economics, 3; psychology, 3; philosophy, 2; physical education, 2; mathematics, 1; religion, 1; and sociology, 1. The nineteen biology and chemistry majors are, for the most part, headed for medical or dental schools, with several having been accepted already.

THE GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY has instituted a new plan to provide additional financial assistance for American colleges and universities through direct grants of funds. The plan is known as the Corporate Alumnus Program, and it is the intent that gifts will be made from the fund in amounts equal to those made by G-E employed alumni during 1955. The plan is thought to be unique in business-education circles because it provides for joint participation in the giving program by individual employees who are college graduates and by the General Electric Educational and Charitable Fund. The company employs some 23,000 college graduates with earned degrees from more than 540 colleges and universities. Contributions of any such college graduate, up to $1,000 within the year, will be eligible for contributions from the Fund. The plan further stipulates that contributing employees must have at least a year's service with the General Electric Company; the contributions must be an actual gift and not merely a pledge; and it must be made to an accredited U. S. college or university of which the contributor is an earned degree holder. The trustees of the General Electric Educational and Charitable Fund are strongly convinced that one of the greatest untapped sources of continuing support for higher education lies in regular contributions by alumni.

DURING THE PAST QUARTER (November-January) students and faculty have had their lives enriched by the appearances of Mr. Julius A. Thomas, industrial Every College and University Has at Least—

Ten Responsibilities To Alumni

© Ernest T. Stewart, Jr.

VI

Responsibility six closely parallels its predecessor, for a willingness to welcome alumni into the family carries with it a responsibility to put them to work. Their individual and collective talents must be utilized and developed if a program is to flourish. Ironically, the easy way out for an administrator is often to do a job himself without outside counsel or help. Skill is required, and he has a responsibility to apply it, to harness the energies and abilities of the alumni, to visualize a variety of assignments and the right men for each, to nourish their sense of pride in accomplishment, to develop good men constantly for new and enlarged duties. “Participation is as essential to democracy as energy is to physics” is a rule that applies equally to our democratic institutions.

This recital of institutional responsibilities should be interrupted briefly to take a brief look at the other side of the coin. There is a lot of fallacious thinking on the subject of alumni loyalty. There is a naive belief on the part of faculty and administration that alumni loyalty is easily converted into cash and that alumni will support an institutional program just because they are alumni. Every graduate, they assume, must feel a deep sense of obligation to the college which equipped him to earn a living and to enjoy a more complete and satisfying life. All that is needed, they believe, is to remind him of that obligation, adding of course that no student ever paid the complete costs of his education, public or private.

The idea is fine, and valid to a certain extent. Yet they err in rubbing in that fact of indebtedness, just as petty politicians do with European nations on foreign aid programs, and then wonder why the constant reminder fails to produce results. When are we going to learn that emphasizing an obligation is no way to make a friend? To make an enemy, La Rochefoucauld pointed out long ago, do him a favor; to make a friend, let him do you a favor. Or, in the words of the late Chancellor Day of Cornell: “It is a fallacy to think of building alumni support by first trying to arouse loyalty and then asking for active work or financial support. Give the alumnus a job to do for the institution, and he strengthens his loyalty while doing it.” Friend raising and fund raising, institutions must realize, go hand in hand.

Number seven is the responsibility of providing a satisfying student experience, a matter which goes deep into the heart of the whole educational program. The basic purpose of the institution, of course, is to furnish the best possible education and not necessarily to produce loyal alumni. Yet the efforts of the alumni director to fashion a sound program depend on these former students and on what happened to them during their undergraduate experience.

This does not answer the question: is indoctrination of students in alumni responsibilities advisable? It is hard to say. Yet can we justify our failure to provide higher education in what might be called the values of higher educations—the concept of the nature of the institution in which our students are enrolled and the role that it plays in American life? The fact that there are good teachers, whom former students will remember with affection and respect long after they have forgotten the contents of the courses, is an invaluable factor in producing good alumni. But can the faculty do more? Can they themselves reflect more pride in the institution and its role? Can they subtly instill that pride in their students? Can they help in developing an institutional sense that ideally accompanies a rich educational experience?

The story is told by one of the veteran alumni secretaries of an exchange between him and a professor as they (Continued on Page 6) witnessed a sorry spectacle of alumni immaturity at homecoming. "There go your alumni," snorted the professor. "There go your former students," the secretary snorted right back. "You had them for four or more years and we have to take what you produce."

VIII

Eighth on this arbitrary list is the responsibility for the continuing education of their alumni. Though it is just coming to be looked on as a responsibility, it is perhaps the most exciting and promising new development in the alumni field. For it is all too true that graduation usually marks an abrupt end to the educational processes for the individual. The diploma, as a speaker recently pointed out, becomes "a vast sheepskin curtain shutting him off from the most stimulating intellectual adventures of his life." That speaker, William W. Tomlinson of Temple University, urged in the strongest terms that steps be taken "to make the college a more dynamic part of the intellectual world of its graduates." Others in education feel the same way. President Robert G. Sproul of the University of California believes that the alumnus should be able to continue "to draw nourishment from ideas that are not loaded or slanted or corrupted. He needs an Alumni University, as it were. And I should rather have a million dollars today for such an enterprise than any other I can think of at the moment." Currently such programs as the Smith Alumnae College, the Michigan Alumni University, the Stanford Conferences and the Penn State Institute are the exception rather than the rule. But there are many encouraging signs of activity in this area, including the probability of foundation grants. Only a few institutions may now recognize a responsibility for such programs, but inevitably the number will increase.

IX

Number nine is the responsibility to enlist the alumni as spearheads in the never-ending battle for public understanding and support. These are difficult times for higher education. A wave of anti-intellectualism is apparent; academic freedom is on the defensive; legislatures are often unwilling to face up to the financial responsibilities that the enrollment bulge will bring; public apathy, lack of understanding and downright antagonism are reaching a serious stage. Alumni, not sufficiently alerted to the danger or armed with the facts, have unfortunately failed to take their positions in the front line of defense.

Surely there is an institutional responsibility here—to accept alumni as the key to any program of public relations and to take the necessary steps to make their efforts effective. Though alumni have appeared to let education down, where does the responsibility really lie? In analyzing the recce of those who have been making capital out of attacks on education, one educator has declared: "Today we are paying the price of the colleges' neglect of their alumni. The whirlwind is being reaped. It is time these armories of ideas and knowledge passed out weapons to their graduates and let them stand and fight."

Saved until last, though it parallels the first and many of the others, is the responsibility of the institution to uphold its standards and to utilize its maximum resources to move constantly ahead. All of its constituencies must be concerned with the welfare and growth of the institution. As the group farther removed from the day to day activity, the alumni may be the slowest to realize and accept their share of the burden. In view of what they have to contribute, can the institution deny its responsibility to enlist their help? Can it afford not to have the moral support and the power of example that comes from a realization that the alumni are on its side and believe in what it is doing?

As the financial position of many institutions deteriorates, they are turning to outside sources of aid—philanthropists, foundations, corporations, community—in hopes of finding quick and easy solutions. More and more they are running into the question: What are your own alumni doing to help? Do those who are the direct beneficiaries of your educational program think well enough of you to give their support? And if not, why not? Are you in effect seeking to go on relief when thousands of able-bodied members of the family are doing nothing to help?

President Wilson M. Compton of the Council for Financial Aid to Education holds that alumni fund raising is an indispensable responsibility of an institution—"the condition which must be met before going out outside support." And even 35 years ago President Charles William Eliot of Harvard was recorded as saying: "It is of course largely by the extent of the support accorded to a college by its own graduates that the world judges the right of that college to seek cooperation of others in planning for the future. An institution that cannot rally to its financial assistance the men who..."

Described as "one of the great citizens of Atlantic City," C. Morris Cain, '12, '15s, was honored with a testimonial dinner on November 4 for fifty years of outstanding community service. Cain was praised for playing an important part in breaking down racial barriers, and in general for helping make the city a better place for everybody. Shown in the picture are Monroe L. Mendelsohn, vice president and general manager of the Atlantic City Press and general chairman of the affair; Major Joseph Altman, toastmaster; Cain, the honoree; Dr. Horace M. Bond, the principal speaker; and Bayard L. England, president of the Atlantic City Electric Company, who presented a scroll to Cain.

Dr. Horace M. Bond was the speaker for the Catholic Interracial League of New York on October 31 on the occasion of the annual award of the James J. Hoey Medals for outstanding interracial service.

On November 1 Dr. Bond attended the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of Colleges at Hershey, Pa., and on November 4 he was the principal speaker at a testimonial dinner for C. M. Cain, '12, '15s, who was honored in Atlantic City for fifty years of outstanding service. On November 7 he was the speaker for the University of Pennsylvania Wesley Fellowship at Asbury M. E. Church in Philadelphia and on November 9 he went to Boston to attend the funeral services of Frazier Taylor, '55, which were held on November 10. The following day he was back in Philadelphia to attend a meeting of the Board of Trustees. On November 23 Dr. Bond attended a committee meeting of the Institute of International Education in New York and on November 30 he journeyed to Louisville, Ky., to speak at the annual meeting of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Dr. Bond attended and spoke at the reception for Finance Minister Gbedemah of the Gold Coast at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York on December 4, and on December 9 he returned to New York with a group of Lincoln students to visit the United Nations. He was back in New York again on December 15 to attend the meeting of the Budget Committee of the United Negro College Fund.

January engagements took Dr. Bond to Fisk University on the 19th for the Conference on Desegregation and to Kennett Square, Pa., on the 26th to speak on Lincoln's New Program at the meeting of the Rotary Club.

Dr. H. Alfred Farrell met with Chester alumni on November 4, Baltimore alumni on December 9, Washington alumni on December 14, and Philadelphia alumni on December 15. The Washington meeting was the annual dinner meeting of the chapter, and Dr. Farrell was the guest speaker. From November 8 through November 16 he visited schools in the following New England cities: Bridgeport, New Haven, Hartford, Springfield, and Boston. While in Hartford, Dr. Farrell met with the alumni, who formed a chapter of the General Alumni Association. He will tour the South beginning February 13, meeting with alumni and visiting high schools.

Dr. Paul Kuehner and Dean J. B. MacRae attended the 68th annual convention of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools in Atlantic City November 26 and 27. Dr. Kuehner served on the Committee on Introductions and Hospitality. Meeting at the same time was the Middle States Association of Collegiate Registrars and Officers of Admission, of which organization Dr. Kuehner is a member of the Committee on the Constitution and By-Laws.

Dean J. Newton Hill represented Lincoln University at the meeting of colleges and universities conducting self-study projects under grants from the Ford Foundation. The meeting, held at Princeton, N. J., on December 3 and 4, centered around group discussions and reports of progress.

Dr. Elizabeth Beardsley, visiting professor of philosophy, participated in the fifty-first annual meeting of the Eastern Division of the American Philosophical Association, held at Goucher College December 28-30. In the section dealing with American philosophy, Dr. Beardsley gave comments on a paper delivered by Mr. Paul Welsh, "Some Metaphysical Assumptions of Dewey's Philosophy."

Professor Manuel Rivero attended the Schedule Making Conference of the Eastern College Athletic Conference in New York from December 3 to 6. He also attended the meeting of the National Collegiate Athletic Association in New York from January 3 to 6, and participated in sessions of the American Baseball Coaches Association.

Assistant Professor Robert Gardner addressed the members of the Brooks-Irvine Memorial Football Club of South Jersey in Camden on November 8. Motion pictures of the games played during the present school year were shown. Coach Gardner also spoke and showed films at the dinner meeting of the Washington alumni on December 14. He attended the sessions on the (Continued on Page 15)
On the basis of excellence and sincerity in scholarship, leadership and participation in extracurricular and academic activities, citizenship and service to the school, and promise of future usefulness to business and society, five Lincoln University seniors, four in the college and one in the seminary, have been elected to “Who’s Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges”: (seated) James A. Prentice, political science major, Pittsburgh, Pa.; and David W. Robinson, chemistry major, Baltimore, Md. (Standing) Edwin Ellis, seminary senior, Middletown, Del.; Richard L. Huff, chemistry major, Lincoln University, Pa.; and Robert Rivers, psychology major, New York, N. Y.

The Philosophy Club was addressed by Dr. Bernard Phillips, chairman of the Department of Philosophy at the University of Delaware, on Wednesday, November 17, at 8:00 p.m. Dr. Phillips, the recipient of two Fulbright Fellowships for study in India and Japan, spoke on “The Spirit of Oriental Philosophy.” In reporting his academic observations, Dr. Phillips revealed that he was profoundly impressed by Oriental thought.

The Political Science Club had as its guest speaker Mr. Wilson Harwood on Thursday, November 18, at 8:30 p.m. Assistant director for the Administration of the National Science Foundation, Mr. Harwood spoke on “The International Geophysical Year, 1957-1958 —Our Experiment in International Cooperation.” The subject grew out of the plan of thirty nations to develop a coordinated system of research in 1957-1958 to add to the knowledge of the physics of the earth. Slides were shown during the discussion, and a question and answer period was held at the end.

The Glee Club, in conjunction with the Community Ensemble, presented its annual Christmas Concert on Tuesday, December 14, at 8:30 p.m. The Glee Club was heard in Beethoven’s “Hallelujah,” Christiansen’s “Beautiful Saviour,” Tschenokov’s “The Cherubic Hymn,” Leontovich’s “Carol of the Bells,” “Bring a Torch, Jeanette” (trad.); and Gevaert’s “A Joyous Christmas Song.” The Community Ensemble sang Bach’s Cantata No. 140 “Sleepers, Wake” and Dawson’s “Behold That Star.” The audience, Glee Club, and Ensemble joined in singing traditional Christmas carols. The program was under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern II.

Dr. Herman M. Somers, chairman of the Department of Political Science at (Continued on Page 14)
Edwin Ellis, '53, a senior, represented the Seminary at the 38th Annual Convocation of the School of Religion at Howard University on November 3, 1954. He led devotions at the afternoon session.

On November 28, 1954, Albert Pier- on, a senior, was called to the Doe Run Presbyterian Church at Doe Run, Pa. He had been serving the church as student pastor during the past year. He completed his work at Lincoln in January.

The Seminary Gospel Team, under the direction of Alpheus Bright, a middler from Bridgeport, Conn., is increasingly being called upon to fill a number of engagements. Recently the group has appeared at the following churches: First Presbyterian Church, Glenolden, Pa.; Thorndale Methodist Church, Thorndale, Pa.; Calvary Monument Chapel, Gap, Pa., and Friendship Methodist Church, Gum Tree, Pa.

David Mandeng, a French Cameroun student, was a guest of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church along with twenty-seven other students of eleven countries at the Board’s retreat grounds in Stony Point, N. Y., from December 23 to December 27, 1954. Representatives of the following countries were present: India, Brazil, China, Indonesia, Korea, Japan, Philippine Islands, Lebanon, Pakistan, Thailand, West Africa, and the United States. Such activities as the singing of carols of many nations and worship services enabled the members of the group to realize a great deal of fellowship. Sunday, December 26, was International Sunday in the local presbytery, and the group, dividing into teams, visited the churches in the area in the morning.

Seminary Day was observed in many churches throughout the country on January 9. Lincoln’s Seminary participated in the observance by sending members of the faculty as well as students out to speak at various churches. Dr. Samuel G. Stevens flew to Detroit to speak at the St. John Presbyterian Church, of which the Rev. James Jones, ’52, ’54s, is pastor; and Dr. Murray spoke at the First Presbyterian Church in Phoenixville, Pa. Seminarians Galen Work, a middler, and Robert Freitag, a senior, went to Kennett Square, Pa., and Atglen, Pa., respectively.

The Seminary Union accepted as its major project the continuation of the beautifying of Houston Hall. The members joined hands to complete the painting of the classrooms, and at the present time are renovating Room 10 on the second floor for a student lounge. The coat rack in the main hall on the first floor, the towel racks in the rest rooms, and the doorstops were supplied and installed by Forrest Brown, a junior from Denver, Col.

The Seminary is taking an active part in the Interseminary Movement, which is fostered by the Interseminary Committee of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. Forrest Brown, the local representative, (Continued on Page 15)
Scholarships, Fellowships &
Job Opportunities

- Washington University of St. Louis has available for the fall of 1955 a number of graduate fellowships and research assistantships ranging in amount from $600 to $1,000 exclusively for persons interested in securing an M.B.A. or M.S. degree. Students with degrees in liberal arts, business administration, or engineering are eligible. They must be specifically recommended on the basis of personal acquaintance by some faculty member or administrator. Recommendations should be sent to Dean Ross M. Trump, School of Business and Public Administration, Washington University.

- Teaching assistantships, graduate fellowships, and research assistantships for the academic year 1955-1956 are available at Carnegie Institute of Technology in the following fields: chemical engineering, chemistry, civil engineering, electrical engineering, mathematics, mechanical engineering, metallurgical engineering, and physics. The Institute will consider applications from qualified students who wish to begin or return to graduate study in the fall of 1955. It is suggested that candidates write for application forms and information at an early date. Applications for admission to graduate study and for assistantships or fellowships, together with transcripts of record and other supporting evidence, should be submitted as early as possible, preferably not later than March 1, 1955. However, applications from able and well-qualified candidates will be considered if received at a later date. Address all inquiries to the Dean of Graduate Studies, Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh 13, Pa.

- There is an acute shortage of qualified teachers in the Gold Coast, and applications from Americans for temporary service under the Fulbright plan will be welcomed. Such applications should be addressed to the Teacher Exchange Section, the United States Office of Education, The Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington 25, D. C. The Gold Coast is particularly short of teachers of physics, chemistry, and biology, but also needs teachers of English, French, Latin, geography, domestic science, mathematics, mechanics, and building and teachers of engineering for technical schools. Applicants must have a Master's degree, or an equivalent technical qualification, from a first-grade institution.

- In April, 1955, the Maryland Casualty Company will begin formal training of candidates for future positions as special agents with the company. A special agent is a salaried employee, with headquarters at one of the branch offices, who calls on local agents representing the company. He gives these agents assistance, encouragement, and advice in the development and production of business. He may be called on to make direct personal contact with prospects for the active solicitation of business. He must be articulate, have facility in dealing with people, and command respect. The job requires considerable travel, mostly by automobile. During the training period, the candidate is paid a nominal subsistence wage of $250 a month, with merit raises spaced at six-month intervals during the first year. While not required, insurance or business administration majors are preferred. Interviews may be arranged through Ralph A. Ashton, manager, Education Department, Maryland Casualty Company, Baltimore 3, Md.

- The Dentists' Supply Company, 500 W. College Ave., York, Pa., is desirous of increasing its sales force, and is looking for persons who initially fulfill the following basic qualifications: (1) male and unmarried, (2) 21 to 30 years of age, (3) college graduate, and (4) military service completed. The company is anxious to employ men who have evidenced leadership in student affairs, athletics, and public speaking and who have had to work toward some part of their college expenses. Previous sales experience is not essential, as successful applicants will undergo an extensive four-month training course. Application blanks may be obtained from Thomas Ridgway, employee relations manager, and applicants who are (Continued on Page 14)

WITH THE UNDERGRADS

Haverford College, addressed the members of the Political Science Club on Wednesday, January 12, at 8:30 p.m. Dr. Somers, whose subject was "The Presidency and the Control of the Bureaucracy," has served in a variety of governmental, private, and academic posts. He has been with the Wisconsin Department of Public Welfare, the National Resource Planning Board, the Committee on Social Security of the Social Science Research Council, and the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion. The author of several books in the field of political science, he has recently published Worker's Compensation in collaboration with his wife.

The Lincoln University Players presented "The Front Page" by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur in the Little Theatre for three nights beginning Thursday, January 13. The play deals with a group of men in the grip of their jobs as news reporters and shows the extremes to which they will go to garner a sensational headline for the front page. Featured in the cast were the following students: Harry Lambert, '57; Charles Collins, '58; Isaiah Smith, '55; William Jones, '55; Edmund Preston, '56; Jesse Jenkins, '55; Lonnie Fuller, '55; Moynamiah Choudry, '56; Donald Coaxum, '57; Carlyle Mason, '55; Robert Lawson, '56; Joseph Kenney, '55; David Robinson, '55; Lancess McKnight, '55; Richard Greene, '58; DeWitt Myers, '58; Troy Chapman, '57; and Stanley Braxton, '58. Guest players included alumni Lloyd Higgs, '53, and Mrs. Ruth Fales, '53; faculty wives, Mrs. Alice Suthern and Mrs. Edith Ross; and the Misses Bertha Jackson and Helen Mathews of Chester, Pa. Immediately following the performance on January 15, critic-judges awarded a prize to Carlyle Mason for the most outstanding performance by a student.

relations director of the National Urban League; Dr. J. B. Danquah, noted Gold Coast scholar; the Rev. Richard Prue, traveling representative of the Greater Europe Mission; and representatives of Moral Re-Armament. Speaking on the job opportunities, Mr. Thomas gave several invaluable pointers to job seekers and urged every student to prepare himself as well as he could for his chosen profession. Dr. Danquah told his audience of developments in the Gold Coast, of his happiness in seeing the American Negro about to obtain first-class citizenship, and of his work with the United Nations to bring peace to the world. The Rev. Mr. Prue, speaking on the subject of "The Evangelization of Europe" gave a vivid picture of a growing religious consciousness in Europe in an effort to combat Communism. Explaining that his work was primarily concerned with getting Bibles and religious literature into the hands of more Europeans, he invited the interest of his audience in the work of the Greater Europe Mission. Although not primarily a religious movement, Moral Re-Armament is boomed as an ideology that can re-make the world. With moral and ethical plays like "The Dictator's Slippers" and "We Are Tomorrow" by British author and journalist Peter Howard, MRA dramatizes the need for men to change their ways. Started by Pennsylvania-born Frank Buchman in 1938, MRA inspires all individuals to live by four standards: absolute love, absolute honesty, absolute unselfishness, and absolute purity. It teaches men how to take time to be quiet, to listen, and to follow the guidance of God.

On January 13 Lincoln University said goodbye to two alumni who for almost ten months called Lincoln home again. In March, 1954, the Rev. Thomas C. Katiya, '00, '03s, and the Rev. Livingstone N. Mzimba, '06, '09s, returned from Africa to their Alma Mater for the first time since their graduation. The celebration of the Centennial seemed an appropriate time for "possibly that last look at Lincoln." During the course of their stay they endeared themselves to everyone with whom they came in contact. They visited many churches and schools to fill speaking engagements, and added new luster to the name of Lincoln University wherever they appeared. At a special assembly in their honor, at which their favorite hymns, "Rock of Ages, Cleft for Me" and "Jesus Shall Reign Where'er the Sun," were sung, tribute was paid to them by Dr. Horace M. Bond, for faculty and trustees; by Student Senate president James Prentice, for the student body; and by Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, for the alumni. Centennial medallions were presented to each of the distinguished visitors, who came thousands of miles to stand once again on "that sacred soil." Onward, Christian soldiers!

I cannot say, and I will not say
That he is dead.—He is just away!
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there.
And you—O you, who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return,—
Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here;
Think of him still as the same, I say:
He is not dead—he is just away!

have taken its degree and whose diploma is their passport into the world is in a poor position to ask assistance from any others. It is not merely what the alumni give; it is the fact that they do give that is of supreme importance.

Organized alumni activity—the phenomenon of American higher education—is, despite its Nineteenth Century roots, a product of recent decades. It is a bouncy, new arrival on the scene and it is viewed with distrust and misgivings by those who are quick to recognize its faults and slow to see its virtues. It needs time in which to prove itself; but perhaps more important, it needs new opportunities to get across its records of accomplishment and its potential for service.

The traditional jokes about alumni are now wearing thin. Taking their place are testimonials to the strength of alumni endeavor. Here are two from among many that might be selected. "In the centuries ahead," says President Sproul, "the record of history may well show that the greatest contribution that the United States has made to the advancement of education is in the creation and cultivation in alumni of a sense of continuing membership in and responsibility toward their colleges and universities." And from President Charles Cole of Amherst: "Alumni loyalty alone can preserve the freedom of American education."

VOLUME 58, NO. 1

Detroit, Mich.

Just received the Bulletin and had to take time out to tell you that you have developed one of the finest publications we have ever had. It is among anybody's best. Congratulations!
Ray Hatcher, '34

Washington, D. C.

You are doing a splendid job in the editing of the Lincoln University Bulletin. It is a very attractive publication.
Clarence Mitchell, '32

Harper's Ferry, W. Va.

I think the new size of the Bulletin gives it a distinctiveness which the previous size did not have. The Bulletin has been very well done and it certainly should be continued.
Leroy D. Johnson, '31

MISS UNCF

Chicago, Ill.

You will probably recall that the Lincolnites here were very fortunate in having a charming young lady crowned "Queen" at the last UNCF annual Tea. The contestants sold ten cent votes to friends and well-wishers. Miss Nancy Howard, whose picture accompanies this letter, was successful in selling $134.00 worth of votes and was declared the winner and duly crowned "Miss UNCF" at the climactic point of the Tea. Needless to say that this was an occasion of great joy to the Lincolnites and friends of Lincoln. It proved to be a great stimulation to the alumni here. The total raised by Lincoln was $332.50. Miss Howard, who is eighteen, is a June graduate of the Hyde Park High School, and is now attending Chicago Teachers College, where she is majoring in education, preparatory to teaching. She excels in art, and among her hobbies are dancing and cooking.

RESPONSIBILITIES TO ALUMNI

Detroit, Mich.

It was refreshing to read for a change that a university has responsibilities to its alumni. Mr. Stewart's article is first-rate, and I am looking forward to the next installment. You are to be commended for printing it. The article contains much food for thought.
H. Franklin Brown, '37

Chester, Pa.

I certainly enjoyed reading "Ten Responsibilities to Alumni" in the fall issue of the Bulletin. It points the way to a vigorous Alumni Association. You have done a great deal to make all alumni conscious of our General Alumni Association, and it was fitting and proper that you should receive the Alumni Award last Commencement. Keep up the good work!
Leon J. Hill, '30
Hartford, Conn.

Mr. Stewart's article in the fall Bulletin might very well serve as a basis for operation between chapters and the University. The officers of the General Alumni Association have a floor plan for working out closer ties with the Administration.

CENTENNIAL MEDALLION
Wilmington, Del.

Nobody else, I am sure, except probably President Abraham Lincoln could have ever packed a Hundred Years of educational history and activities of a school in so small a metal volume as is to be found in this Centennial Medal. It inspires, spurs and urges me to want to live a hundred years longer, and to do another hundred good deeds—especially educationally, and to die economically wealthy enough so as to leave a contribution to society—especially educationally—for the benefits I have received from it; and most certain for the educational benefits I received from Lincoln University.

The daring challenge of the century ahead, I am sure, will be adequately met with foresight, courage, precision planning, and financial support. The great host of Lincoln University graduates will not falter in seeing to this.

Have You Remembered Lincoln University In Your Will?

FORM OF BEQUEST
To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $......................... to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
From The President’s Desk

The following report, in the form of a reprint from Italica, September, 1954, VOL. XXXI, No. 3, was sent to Lincoln University by Dr. Frank M. Snowden, Jr., cultural attache of the American Embassy in Rome.

Report of the Delegate from the A. A. T. I. to the Charter Centennial Convocation of Lincoln University

The AATI was represented at the Centennial Celebration of Lincoln University at Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, on April 29, 1954, by “President-Emeritus” (so it was listed on the program!) Angeline H. Lograsso.

The occasion was truly inspiring and of historic importance, as Time magazine and other publications recorded. There were present over three hundred delegates from educational institutions, learned societies, religious and educational associations of the United States and foreign countries. The oldest university represented was Cambridge, founded in 1200, whose delegate brought greetings in Latin read from a huge manuscript to everybody’s delight. Hundreds of greetings from universities over the world decorated the walls of the library. Italy was represented in these greetings by the Universita di Firenze, Universita degli Studi di Pisa, Universita degli Studi di Trieste, Universita di Cantania, Universita di Padova, Universita Cattolica del Sacro Cuore, the Milan Polytechnic Institute, and the Pontificio Instituto Biblico. It was a cosmopolitan and gay display of colorful scrolls, seals, banners and beautiful calligraphy, symbolically significant, since, together with the bright insignia and colors of the academic togas from all over the world, including a very picturesque one from Africa, it served to mark the distinction and renown achieved in one century by Lincoln University, the world’s first institution of higher learning for Negroes. Indeed, chartered four years before the Civil War, Lincoln University has sent forth alumni who have distinguished themselves in every field as educators, writers, poets, doctors, lawyers, judges, legislators, public administrators, United States Ministers. As official representatives from the United States, as educators and missionaries to Africa, they have exerted a great cultural, educational and religious influence for good on that continent. Dr. Hildrus A. Poindexter, one of the world’s recognized authorities on tropical diseases and now the Head of a U. S. Public Health Mission to West Africa, is a Lincoln alumnus.

Among the recipients of Honorary Degrees were Milton S. Eisenhower, President of Pennsylvania State College; Carlos P. Romulo, Special Ambassador and Personal Representative of the President of the Republic of the Philippines; Father John La Farge, S. J., Associate Editor of America Press, Organizer and Director of the Catholic Interracial Council, a pioneer in the great work of interracial understanding, the vicissitudes of which pioneering he has recorded in a lively recent autobiography The Manner Is Ordinary.

The emphasis in the convocation speeches was on humanistic education in the social sciences and on the importance of education for the understanding of other nations and peoples. And since languages are an indispensable vehicle, of understanding, their role did not go unnoticed. It was fitting, therefore, that the AATI should have been represented along with the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese, the American Classical League and sister organizations.

Respectfully submitted,

ANGELINE H. LOGRASSO
CALENDAR OF UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES
February 14—Dr. Louis A. Warren, editor of Lincoln Lore, spoke to faculty and students informally on Lincolniana.
February 27—The Jewish Choral Group of the Hillel Foundation of Philadelphia was presented in a program of Jewish religious and folk music, traditional and contemporary.
March 30-31—Mr. Guilermo Nanneti, educational director of the Pan-American Union, visited the campus as a consultant for the Self-Studies Project. He talked informally with faculty members and to students at a University Assembly, and later gave an illustrated lecture to the entire campus community.
April 5—The Rev. Arthur D. Williams, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, West Chester, Pa., was guest speaker at chapel services. His talk, entitled “Trees,” was based on Psalm 1:3.
April 12—Mr. Noel Sargeant of the National Association of Manufacturers addressed faculty and students on the interest of the Association in education.
April 13—Mr. Douglas Haring was presented by the Lectures and Recitals Committee in a lecture on “Japanese Culture.”
April 14-15—Mr. Harold Cooper, a product of English public schools and Oxford and American graduate education and formerly director of public relations in Nigeria, was another consultant for the Self-Studies Project. He spoke to students and faculty members while on the campus.
April 17—The Rev. Casper I. Glenn, ’44, assistant pastor of the St. Augustine Presbyterian Church, New York, brought the Sunday morning message. He brought a number of students who attend his church.
April 18—Mr. Michael Florenski, appearing under the auspices of the Lectures and Recitals Committee, spoke on “The Russian Revolution.”
April 19-21—RELIGIOUS EMPHASIS WEEK. The Rev. Robert P. Johnson, graduate of Bloomfield College, Union Theological Seminary, and the University of Pittsburgh, brought inspiring spiritual messages to students and faculty. The Rev. Mr. Johnson, pastor of the Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church in Washington, D.C., serves as assistant secretary of the City and Industrial Work of the Board of National Missions, Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

Woes That Beset The Colleges

"High-class flophouses where parents send their children to keep them off the labor market and out of their own hair."

This is a definition of U. S. colleges as seen by Robert M. Hutchins, one-time chancellor of the University of Chicago and a controversial figure among educators. His opinion is not shared by business; nor by young Americans or their parents. The popularity of colleges is rising steadily.

Each spring finds business combing college graduation lists more feverishly than ever in the search for new recruits. Each fall, more and more young men and women line up for enrollment. Over 25% of the nation's 18-to-21-year-olds now attend college, against only 4% at the turn of the century.

Trouble—But despite their rising popularity, most privately endowed schools of higher education in the U. S. now find themselves in their worst financial crisis on record. Over half the nation's 1,200-odd private colleges were reported recently to be operating in the red; as many as 200 of them actually were afraid of going under.

Indeed, the Council for Financial Aid to Education sees a need for some $30 million annually just to overcome "present bona fide operating deficits on non-tax-supported colleges." And Dean Rusk, head of the Rockefeller Foundation, has warned that "higher education could well use today . . . $300-million to $400-million per year of new money not now available."

Cause — All colleges, big and small, have felt an historic financial squeeze during the postwar years. Privately endowed schools, which can't call on taxpayers automatically to make up their deficits, have been particularly hard hit. While the demand for higher education has been zooming, the capacity of private colleges to satisfy the demand has been lagging further and further behind.

The main cause of this trouble has been the price inflation of the last 15 years, and particularly of the period since V-J Day. The college dollar could buy roughly 100 cents worth of goods back in 1939; now, it hardly buys much more than 50 cents worth. This has really hurt.

Between 1940 and 1950, for example, college enrollments jumped 75%. That is a handsome sales increase. But in the same period, the educational income of colleges—measured in terms of purchasing power—rose only about 64%. Moreover, the picture has grown even darker since 1950. The Korean War touched off another rise in prices.

Along with inflation has come a rapid advance in science and technology. This made many courses far more costly for the colleges in 1950 than in 1949, and the trend continues today.

Endowments — Few private colleges have ever had to depend solely on tuition fees for their income. They have drawn a good deal of income from endowment funds. But these funds no longer cover so large a portion of college costs as they once did. Here's why:

Since 1939, tax collectors have been taking huge bites out of the incomes and estates of the wealthy — once the prime source of endowment gifts. The new-money flow from this source has dropped sharply.

Due mainly to the federal government's "easy money" policies of the last 20 years, the yields from endowment investments have been cut sharply.

Inflation has materially cut the purchasing power of endowment income.

The result: In 1940, endowment income provided private colleges with as much as 26% of all their income; in 1950, only 14%. Some observers estimate the figure is now 11% to 12%.

Tuition — Thus, most privately endowed colleges must now depend more than ever on tuition fees for a livelihood. In 1950, these fees accounted for as much as 68% of all their income; in 1950, only 14%. Some observers estimate the figure is now 11% to 12%.

Obviously, the increasing size of student bodies has caused some of this rise in tuition fees' relative importance. But that hasn't been the only cause. Like business generally, colleges have been forced to jack up sharply the price of their product. In the decade ending with 1950, college tuition fees were (Continued on Page 6) hiked 50% to 60%. Many schools have since felt a need for even further mark-ups. Yale University, for instance, after another year of deficit operations, has just raised its rates by 25%.

The Plant — The future of college finances looks somber. It’s apparent that college expenses, already burdensome, will increase.

Judging from present signs the stampede after college training will continue for a long time. Hence, many private colleges will have to plunge into costly plant-expansion programs if they hope to handle their share of the increased student population.

Some privately endowed schools now have excess facilities that will help hold down future expansion costs. But observers say most of such facilities were built years ago. Two-thirds of the present capital plant of tax-supported schools has been built within the past 20 years, authorities say, but the private college group has done little recent “permanent” construction.

The Staff — Another college expense likely to increase in the years ahead is that of teaching staff salaries. Indeed, many think this is the most burning fiscal problem the colleges face today.

The colleges must consider not only holding their current staffs, but also attracting new teachers to staff future plant enlargements. The second half of the problem could well prove costly.

Teachers’ salaries today are not attractive when compared with pay scales in other fields. According to a survey made in mid-1952 — and the picture probably hasn’t changed much since — college professors’ salaries, after adjustment for the increased cost of living, were actually 12% lower than in 1941-42. By contrast, industrial workers’ “real wages” rose 55% in the same period.

Sources? — Where will the colleges get the new money to meet these short-term and long-term needs?

Tuition fees can be hiked further. But nobody is sure just how much further. Colleges are no different from business in this respect: They, too, can price themselves out of the market. It already takes at least $1,500 to $2,000 a year to put a youngster through college. Educators wonder how much further they can raise these costs without losing many students of the kinds they want.

Endowment fund income might be upped further by cutting down on low-yielding, fixed-return investments and expanding common stock holdings. Most colleges have already taken steps in this direction. A survey of one group of private colleges, for instance, with $1.7-billion of endowment funds, showed bonds accounting for 35% of all investments, preferred stock 6.5%, common stock well over 50%.

Harvard — A shift toward common stock undeniably helps, but doesn’t cure all a college’s fiscal maladies. Take the case of Harvard University.

It has gone in heavily for commons; they comprised 51% of Harvard’s endowment holdings on June 30, 1954. And the stock operation itself has been highly successful. New-money receipts totaled $8.3-million in the 1953-54 fiscal year; the market value of Harvard’s fund increased by some $57-million during the same period. Gains in common holdings were almost solely responsible for that part of the increase not accounted for by new money.

Harvard’s common stock holdings have performed their income-producing function successfully, too. As a result of the commons’ predominance, the fund’s rate of return on cost was 5.09% last year — against 4.55% in 1950, 4.63% in 1948, and 4.84% back in 1937 (when commons made up only 30.7% of investments).

But all this has only eased, not solved, Harvard’s fiscal problems. The university’s investment income covered 42.4% of its costs back in 1940, only 31.4% last year — even though the income itself increased sharply, to $12.2-million, during the period.

Other Hopes — What other sources of income are there for a college? There are three main categories:

Alumni. Reportedly, there are now about 300 functioning alumni funds. Their efforts in 1953 are said to have dug up for the colleges some $70-million in new money. Many think both their number and their success in raising money could grow under more intensive cultivation.

Other individuals. Millionaire philanthropists are apparently being taxed into extinction. But today there are record numbers of men earning $10,000 and up who have donatable funds.

Dr. Horace M. Bond was the guest speaker at the February 9 meeting of the Rotary Club of Philadelphia and on the Lincoln Day Program given by Detroit alumni on February 11 at the Hartford Avenue Baptist Church, of which the Rev. Charles A. Hill, '19s, is the pastor. On February 12 Dr. Bond represented Lincoln at the Centennial of Michigan State College in Lansing, and on February 17 he discussed the topic "New Movements for African Independence: American Foreign Policy —Help or Hindrance" with Mr. Fenner Brockway, a member of the British Labor Party at the Philadelphia Fellowship Commission.

The next night he was the guest speaker at the Lincoln Day Dinner given by Pittsburgh alumni. On February 24 Dr. Bond served as a panel member for the National Conference Workshop of the Institute of International Education in New York. At noon the next day he spoke at interdenominational services at the West Presbyterian Church in Wilmington, Del.

On March 2 Dr. Bond spoke briefly and presented citations to the Rev. Dr. James H. Robinson, '35, Clarence Mitchell, '32, and Professor Manuel Rivero at the Lincoln Day Dinner given by Philadelphia alumni. He was speaker at the Sunday Morning Assembly of George School in Bucks County, Pa., on March 6, and the next day he participated in the 1955 Forum Series of Howard University, speaking on the subject of "Criteria for New Self-Governing Countries." On March 10 Dr. Bond attended the luncheon meeting of the Educational Advisory Committee of Metropolitan Philadelphia's Educational Radio and Television Corporation. He was the speaker at Lenten services held in Kennett Square on March 16, and from March 18 to 22 he attended the annual Convocation of U. N. C. F. presidents in New York. On March 30 he returned to Pittsburgh to be one of the speakers at the Fourth Annual World Affairs Forum for Youth, and while there he addressed students at Westinghouse and Fifth Avenue High Schools.

April engagements took Dr. Bond to Francis Junior High School in Washington, D. C., on April 6 and to Philadelphia on April 15 for a luncheon in honor of Assistant Secretary of Defense Hensel. Subsequent engagements were cancelled because of his illness, which necessitated hospitalization.

Dr. H. Alfred Farrell spent a month (February 13—March 13) recruiting and meeting with alumni in the South. His tour carried him to Charleston and Bluefield, W. Va.; Lynchburg, Norfolk, Suffolk, Portsmouth, and Newport News, Va.; Oxford, Creedmoor, Sedalia, Durham, and Wilmington, N. C.; Charleston, Orangeburg, and Columbia, S. C.; Savannah, Macon, Augusta, and Atlanta, Ga.; and Jacksonville, Fla. On February 26 Dr. Farrell was guest speaker at the Southeastern Regional Meeting of Lincoln alumni held at Tuskegee, Ala. Alumni from Tennessee, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and Alabama were invited to the meeting, which may become an annual affair. Two chapters of the General Alumni Association, Tidewater and Savannah Area, were revitalized during his visit, and Macon alumni declared their intentions of forming a group.

Dr. Paul Kuehner and Dean J. B. MacRae attended a meeting of foreign student advisers of the Philadelphia area at International House in Philadelphia on February 14. On February 23 and 24 Dr. Kuehner attended the National Conference on Exchange of Persons at the Park Sheraton Hotel in New York.

Dean J. Newton Hill was the guest speaker at the Sunday morning service of St. Cyprian's Protestant Episcopal Church in New York on February 20. Prior to that engagement Dean Hill served February 13-17 on an evaluation team of the Middle States Association to review the accreditation of Thiel College, Greenville, Pa.

Dean J. B. MacRae attended the meeting of the American College Personnel Association in Chicago April 6-8, and while there was the dinner guest of Dr. Henry Goss, and his wife, along with eleven members of the Chicago Chapter of the General Alumni Association: Joseph W. Rhetta, '12; Foster B. Jack-Included among the twenty-one guests of the Philadelphia Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon on February 9 were five Lincoln University overseas students: Uttamprakash Christian (2nd from left, 2nd row), Shing-Hwa Tsai, George Nemethy, Chul Yung Cha, and David Mandeng (all 3rd row, left). Dr. Horace M. Bond was the guest speaker.

Jackson, '36, president of the chapter. After dinner there was a discussion of Lincoln's past and future, and the alumni present were happy to know that money is in hand for a new dormitory. A recording of the proceedings of the Lincoln Day dinner sponsored by the chapter on March 21 was played.

Professor Manuel Rivero, director of athletics, was cited by the Philadelphia Chapter of the General Alumni Association for his long years of service to Lincoln University, at its annual Lincoln Day Dinner on March 2.

Orrin Clayton Suthern II, professor of music, played an organ recital in Chicago on March 27 at St. James Methodist Church under the auspices of the R. Nathaniel Dett Club, a branch of the National Association of Negro Musicians. Mr. Suthern is the executive secretary for this organization of some two thousand musicians, white and colored. In March Mr. Suthern repeated by request the February organ recital on the campus in Mary Dod Memorial Chapel. This program was completely devoted to the organ works of Johann Sebastian Bach, and was played as part of the world-wide tribute to the great Bach scholar Albert Schweitzer. This recital was the last in the regular winter series of Sunday Vesper Organ recitals given monthly by Professor Suthern.

An hour of music on Friday evenings, established by interested students with the cooperation of Mr. Suthern, is enjoying moderate success. Music lovers gather in Room 4 of the Library where the new Hi-fi set has been placed to listen to recorded programs and commentaries by Mr. Suthern and qualified students of the music classes.

Assistant Professor Samuel T. Washington has received a scholarship to attend the Graduate Workshop for Education in Family Finance to be held at the University of Pennsylvania this summer. The Workshop is sponsored by

The Glee Club, under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern II appeared in recital at Elkton, Md., on Sunday, February 6, and at Swarthmore College on Thursday, February 10.

Beta Sigma Tau Fraternity presented George Riabikoff, pianist, in recital on Thursday, February 24, at 8:30 p.m. A prisoner of the Nazis during World War II, Mr. Riabikoff was tortured to the extent that it was believed that he would never play the piano again, but through great faith, determination, and long agonized hours of practice, he gradually regained use of his hands and began to play again. He comes from a very musical family, related both to Tchaikovsky and Rachmaninoff. Although his program was composed of selections from Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Debussy, and Prokofieff, it was his rendition of Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Art Exhibition" that drew prolonged applause from his audience.

The Political Science Club presented Mr. Francis Tworzydlo as guest speaker on Wednesday, March 2, at 8:30 p.m. Mr. Tworzydlo, counselor-at-law, is borough solicitor for Oxford and councilman for the borough of Kennett Square. He spoke on "The Government of Oxford, Pa." In conjunction with the Philosophy Club, the Political Science Club presented Mr. William G. Hamilton, public information officer of the United States Information Agency, on Wednesday, March 16, at 8:30 p.m. Speaking on "The Voice of America Abroad," Mr. Hamilton showed a film to illustrate the variety of activities of the agency.

As a part of their cultural program, the members of the Lampodos Club of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity initiated on Monday evening, March 14, the first pledge club-sponsored discussion pertaining to the expansion of enrollment at Lincoln. Dr. H Alfred Farrell, executive assistant to the president and director of public relations, led the discussion and then answered questions put to him by panel members (Joseph Harris, '57, David C. Waters, '58, Martin Riley, '58, Robert Wren, '58, and Ronald Haley, '58) as well as by students in the audience. The discussion was continued the next night when questions were addressed to Dr. Paul Kuehner, registrar; Dr. Philip Miller, professor of classical languages, and Dr. Thomas Jones, professor of history. Many different phases of the problem were discussed, with many helpful suggestions coming from students.

The Lincoln Players, under the direction of Dean J. Newton Hill, presented Christopher Fry's "Sleep of Prisoners" on the campus Thursday, March 17, and at Swarthmore College on Friday, March 18. The drama seeks to probe the consciences and relationships of men in time of war. "The Swarthmore Phoenix," student newspaper, was lavish in its praise of the production and its direction, which "to some degree rendered the play a three-dimensional experience." Richard Brown, '57, "gave a sensitive and convincing portrayal of the conversion of David King from the nervous, distraught, and bitter character of the Prologue to a more mature, relaxed, and perceptive state of mind." David Robinson, '55, as Peter Able, "exhibited a knack for varying his tone from the whimsical to the tragic." George Braxton, '57, "was eminently adequate, sustaining the slightly greater maturity of the Corporal recreated as Adam, Joab, and the Angel of God." Carlyle Mason, '55, "managed to convey

The Sphinx Club of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity sponsored a panel discussion of the topic "Are Greek letter organizations beneficial to a college community?" on Thursday, March 24, at 7:30 p.m. Participating on the panel were two faculty members, Dr. Henry Cornwell, associate professor of psychology, and Dr. Henri M Yaker, assistant professor of religion, and four students, James Prentice, '55, Y. C. Ferguson, '55, Philip Gerard, '56, and Jesse Jenkins, '55. Dean J. Newton Hill served as moderator.

Two new student organizations have been formed in recent months: the International Club, which has Sofiri Green, '57, as president, Uttamprakash, '58, as secretary and George Nemethy, '57, as treasurer; and the Chemistry Club under the leadership of David Robinson, '55. The Chemistry Club was organized to discuss points which would not ordinarily be discussed in class.

Mr. Austin H. Scott, the business manager, represented Lincoln at a pilot study of standard classification of financial operations held on the campus of Clark College, Atlanta, on January 27. Lincoln is one of sixty colleges selected from all regions of the United States to participate in the pilot study in cooperation with the Fund for the Advancement of Education and Cresap, McCormick and Paget, management consultants. The study seeks to explore possibilities of improved financial reporting and administration through cooperative endeavor among the colleges toward further standardization of income and expenditure classification,

The Second Annual Day of Prayer was held on the campus on March 1. This activity is held jointly by Lancaster Seminary of the Evangelical and Reformed Church and Lincoln Seminary, alternating yearly between the two campuses. The theme for the day was "The Ministry."

The program consisted of two periods of devotions. The morning devotional message was delivered by Ruediger Bremme, a German exchange student at Lancaster Seminary, who spoke on "The Minister’s Relation to God." The afternoon devotional message was delivered by Edwin Ellis, ’53, a senior, who spoke on "Preaching to the Man of Today." Part of the day was devoted to prayer and study, with the body divided into eight prayer and study groups. Four group leaders were selected from each seminary. Students and faculty members of both institutions were in each group.

The luncheon period, which began at 12:30, was highlighted by a brief historical address on Lincoln University by Dr. Horace M. Bond, after which Mr. Donald Yelton, the librarian, led the group on a tour through the library, especially the new wing.

The day came to a close with a period of witnessing and study led by Dean David Dunn of Lancaster and Holy Communion led by Dr. Samuel Stevens of Lincoln and Dr. Donald Englert of Lancaster. Everyone went away imbued with a feeling of fellowship and hoping that the Day of Prayer would continue to be held through the years.

Three new students entered the Seminary in February:

John Ferguson of Kirkwood, Pa. Student pastor at the Unionville Presbyterian in Unionville, Pa., Ferguson is completing work in the college for his Bachelor’s degree.

George Sanville of Glen Moore, Pa. A graduate of Houghton College in New York, Sanville is pastoring the Presbyterian Church at Forks-of-the-Brandywine, Pa.

Willis Tabor of Detroit, Mich. Married and the father of five children, Tabor became interested in Lincoln through the Rev. James Jones, ’52, ’54s, pastor of St. John’s Presbyterian Church in Detroit, of which Tabor, a graduate of Wayne University, is a member.

The Seminary is playing an increasingly active part in many communities. More than one third of its students serve as pastors in churches of nearby communities. Students and faculty members are called on often to visit, teach, or take part in various programs fostered by local churches. Dr. Donald M. Davies has given a series of lectures in the following communities: Claymont, Del.; Atglen, Pa.; and Perryville, Md. The Seminary Gospel Team, under the leadership of middler Alpheus Bright, spent Sunday, March 6, at the Toughkenamon Presbyterian Church, of which Dr. Davies is pastor. Willis Tabor led the services, and Grant Williams delivered the morning message. The group also participated in Sunday School activities.

On February 18 the Presbyterian students of the Seminary visited the Presbyterian Board of Missions in order to become acquainted with the duties and operations of the Board. The purpose was accomplished through a series of short talks, group discussions with various departmental leaders during the lunch hour, and an informal discussion session. Having seen the Board in action, the students returned to Lincoln with new insight into the mission program of the church.

The class in Christian education, taught by Dean Andrew Muray, has as its major project the teaching of a six weeks training course for preparing youth for church membership. The classes have been well attended by young people from surrounding localities and on the campus. Interest is high and participation has been excellent. The classes offer the seminary students who teach them splendid opportunities for understanding some of the problems they will meet after graduation when they become established in their own churches. The youth learn to understand the Bible, the church, and their responsibilities as young Christians.

Scholarships, Fellowships &
Job Opportunities

There is a continuing and urgent need for scientific personnel in various Government laboratories in the Washington, D. C., area. The most critical needs include the following: physicist, mathematician, electronic scientist, electronic engineer ($3,410 to $7,040 a year); physical chemist ($4,205 to $5,940 a year); biochemist ($4,205 and $5,060 a year); and physical science aid and engineering aid ($2,950 to $4,205 a year). Senior students with major study in an appropriate field can, upon graduation, qualify for the positions paying $3,410 a year. Appropriate graduate study is necessary to qualify for positions paying $4,205 and $5,060 a year. Undergraduate study in one of the physical sciences such as chemistry, physics, mathematics, geology, or metallurgy, or in one of the branches of engineering, will be accepted as meeting the requirements for physical science aid and engineering aid positions paying $2,950 and $3,175 a year. For requirements to be met, application blanks, and instructions on filing applications, write to the United States Civil Service Commission, Bureau of Departmental Operations, Washington 25, D. C.

The Counsellor Placement Bureau of the Association of Private Camps, 55 W. 42nd St., New York 36, N. Y., offers free placement service to those who like outdoor life and working with youth during the summer. Varied positions are offered for counsellors and leaders in the following areas: waterfront, athletics, tennis, golf, music, dancing, kindergarten, general activities, nature study, pioneering, arts, crafts, ceramics, horseback riding, riflery, fencing, and auxiliary camp functions. Salaries depend upon specific position and individual background. In order to maintain high standards of camping, a minimum age of nineteen years and completion of one year of college are required. Experience is desirable but not essential for all types of positions. The camps are located in New York State, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, and Canada.

Predoctoral fellowships are available for Negroes in the biological and physical sciences related to medicine through funds provided by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The fellowships cover a period of one to three years depending upon the time needed for completion of the Doctor of Philosophy degree. The program of the first year's work should be presented in detail together with evidence of approval by the institution concerned. The candidate should submit the names of three references from whom confidential information may be obtained concerning his professional qualifications. Stipends ordinarily range from $150 to $200 per month during each year of nine to twelve months. Marital and dependency status will be considered and adjustments based on the individual needs of each applicant may be made. Applications accepted at any time during the year. Applications blanks are available from National Medical Fellowships, Inc., 951 East 58th Street, Chicago 37, Ill., which will forward nominations for fellowships to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., for action and announcement of awards.

Because of the acute shortage of professional college, school, and public librarians the Carnegie Corporation of New York has made it possible for the Atlanta University School of Library Service to offer four five-hundred dollar and ten three-hundred dollar scholarships to interested and qualified persons for the 1955-56 school year. Interested persons should write to Mrs. Virginia L. Jones, director of the School of Library Service.

FACULTY ADDITION

Dr. Jefferson W. Davis, Jr., a graduate of New York University, received his doctorate in chemistry from the University of Paris in 1954. Up until February 1, when he joined the faculty at Lincoln University, he was engaged in research at the Institute Pasteur in Paris. A member of the American Chemical Society and the Chemical Society of France, Dr. Davis has published results of his research in the Annals de Chemie and Comptes Rendus. He is currently engaged in research on amino acids and proteins.

BULLETIN BOARD

FIVE CHAPTERS OF THE GENERAL Alumni Association held Lincoln Day observances this year: Detroit, February 11; Pittsburgh, February 18; Philadelphia, March 2; Washington, D. C., March 5; and Chicago, March 21. At the Detroit and Pittsburgh programs Dr. Horace M. Bond, the president of Lincoln University, was the principal speaker. The Rev. Dr. James H. Robinson, ’35, was the principal speaker at the Washington dinner, and shared the spotlight with Clarence Mitchell, ’32, at the Philadelphia dinner. Along with Professor Manuel Rivero, director of athletics at Lincoln, the two distinguished alumni were given citations by the chapter. The Chicago Chapter presented Mr. Julius Rosenwald II, a member of the Board of Trustees, who was heard by nearly 1,000 persons on Lincoln’s New Program.

WOES OF COLLEGES

Business. Corporations are directly dependent on higher education to staff their growing, increasingly complex, and exacting operation. And the private liberal arts colleges, hardest hit financially, are playing a key part in supplying trained men and women for business.

Business has become increasing aware of this. So has the federal government; the corporate income tax code allows deduction for donations to colleges. So have the courts; recent decisions have approved donations, against the wishes of some stockholders, even when there was no visible “direct benefit” to the corporation. And there have been no signs that the majority of stockholders disapprove of such donations.

% Upswing — Business has been getting more generous with gifts to support “outside” activities. Such donations totaled $250-million in 1950, against only $30-million in 1936. Last year, the total was $350-million.

However, colleges have received far from a lion’s share of this money. It’s estimated that their take came to only $50-million in 1950, $60-million in 1953. And the private liberal arts colleges took in only a small portion of the college money. Many corporations apparently feel that gifts to specialized colleges and laboratories bring more tangible results.

Many businessmen argue that the thinking this represents is wrong. It’s true, they say, that returns from donations to liberal arts colleges may be less tangible. But they insist that definite benefits emerge. When all is said and done, they point out, corporations can only operate freely in a stable environment; and liberal education helps maintain this needed stability.

Alternatives — It’s hard to guess whether business will continue expanding its donations to colleges. Educators hope fervently that it will; if corporations don’t give even more freely than they have so far, many men believe, it’s questionable that liberal arts colleges can survive as private enterprises.

Observers foresee these possible results of continued financial trouble: (1) a further weakening of the private colleges’ position, and (2) a growing tendency to ask Washington for support. The second part of this prediction is truly frightening to many educators. They remember the story of a man who, one cold night, invited a camel to sleep with its head in his warm tent. Before long, the entire camel was inside.

In Memory of One Who Gave Eighteen Years of Service to His Alma Mater

When all is done, and my last word is said,
And ye who loved me murmur, “He is dead,”
Let no one weep, for fear that I should know
And sorrow too that ye should sorrow so.

When all is done and in the oozing clay,
Ye lay this cast-off hull of mine away,
Pray not for me, for, after long despair,
The quiet of the grave will be a prayer.

For I have suffered loss and grievous pain,
The hurts of hatred and the world’s disdain,
And wounds so deep that love, well-tried and pure,
Had not the power to ease them or cure.

When all is done, say not my day is o’er,
And that through night I seek a dimmer shore;
Say rather that my morn has just begun,
I greet the dawn and not the setting sun,
When all is done.

THE SEMINARY

Dr. Clair M. Cook, associate director of the National Religion and Labor Foundation of Columbus, Ohio, was guest of the Seminary on March 14. He gave a message at noon in the Houston Hall chapel, and led the discussion in the afternoon of the combined classes in Christian ethics and social ethics. The Foundation is a voluntary membership organization dedicated to the promotion and extension of social and economic justice in the industrial life of the nation.

FORM OF BEQUEST

To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $.......................... to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
We are happy to report to alumni and friends a spectacular increase in applications for admission to the September, 1955, class. Increased room deposits parallel this index and point to the largest (and best qualified) entering class since 1948 when the tide of World War II veterans began to ebb. It is no secret that a falling enrollment since 1949 has been a source of serious concern to all. While characteristic of institutions with a predominantly Negro male enrollment, the continuation of the decline seemed to have most serious consequences for Lincoln.

The downward trend showed symptoms of reversal when the enrollment for the second semester (February, 1955) of 1954-1955 showed an increase over that of the first semester. This was the first time in Lincoln's history (and probably of other colleges) that this had happened. Colleges usually expect a decline of from ten to fifteen percent in enrollment from September to February. The reversal of the trend is confirmed by the number of applications and room deposits received this spring. Taking the year 1949 as a base and letting the numbers received that year represent an index of 100.0, the following table represents our experience for the years since from February 1 to June 30 (1955 figure up to June 28):

Many factors help explain these figures. The Korean War situation has eased, lessening draft and enlistment calls. The "post-depression" crop of babies is coming of college age, following the drought of the early 1930's when the American birth rate reached its lowest point in modern times. And, meanwhile, the University has stepped up its program of establishing contacts with prospects, with Registrar Paul Kuehner and faculty members active. Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, freed of Centennial duties, has travelled hither and yon, and his work shows results. Mr. John Hobart, recently added to the staff, has made extensive studies and contacts relative to our enrollment problem, with emphasis on the interracial aspects.

The alumni have been particularly helpful in many places. They have "cheered the weary traveller" and spent their own money and time to give a generous hospitality that also was easy on the University's expense accounts. To select out of a host any individual or group of individuals is, as always, dangerous and invidious. Yet we ask forgiveness for mentioning one individual, for what he has done may serve both as an example of what many others have done and as a model. We refer to Edgar W. Flood, '33, of Pittsburgh and to the Pittsburgh alumni. (1) A careful planning program, including social events shared by alumni wives, led up to a dinner-dance at which the president spoke. Present as honored guests were the principals of Pittsburgh's largest and best high schools, together with key guidance and counselling officers. (2) Engagements were made for the president to speak at high school assemblies. (3) Mr. Flood opened the way for Dr. Kuehner, Dr. Farrell, and Mr. Hobart to gain access to high school counsellors and officers. Our heartfelt gratitude goes to Mr. Flood, to the Pittsburgh alumni, and to all alumni who have helped. The results show that their help greatly matters.
CALENDAR OF UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES

April 26—Dr. Charles Wagley, professor of anthropology at Columbia University, visited the campus at the invitation of the Division of Social Sciences and as a consultant for the Self-Studies Project. He visited classes and later spoke on the subject “Race Relations in Brazil” to faculty members. Dr. Wagley has made extensive studies of modern Brazilian rural communities.

April 28—The Swarthmore Players presented Pirandello’s symbolic play “Six Characters in Search of an Author.”

May 5—Mr. R. Sumarjo, director of the New York Public Information Office for the Republic of Indonesia, also served as a consultant for the Self-Studies Project, giving a critical view of the structure and aims of Indonesian education. While on the campus, Mr. Sumarjo spoke at the University Assembly, visited several classes, and conferred with members of the International Students Association.

May 8—Dr. Richard I. McKinney, head of the Department of Philosophy at Morgan State College, was guest speaker at the Sunday chapel services.

May 9—Mr. George Goodman, ’26, a former member of Fisk’s faculty and now vice president of Station WLIR in New York, accepted the invitation of the Steering Committee of the Self-Studies Project to be a consultant on phases of Lincoln’s New Program. Mr. Goodman met with a special faculty Committee on Student Placement, the Committee on Admissions, and the Curriculum Committee. At Fisk Mr. Goodman was concerned with student personnel.

May 13—Carol Brice, noted contralto, appeared under the auspices of the Lectures and Recitals Committee.

May 17—The Division of Social Science sponsored a one-day Public Service Center Conference on the campus, at which Dr. Horace M. Bond spoke on “The Importance of College Men in Public Service.” Public service positions available on the federal, state, and municipal levels were discussed respectively by Dr. Franklin G. Conner, Career Development Program, U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.; Mr. Norman Sharpless, chief examiner, Pennsylvania State Civil Service Commission, Harrisburg, Pa.; and Mr. Donald C. Wagner, personnel director, Philadelphia Civil Service Commission, Philadelphia, Pa.

Harvard University topped the honor rolls of 1954 alumni funds in the alumni gifts to the fund ($1,233,448) and in the number of alumni contributors (30,402). In total alumni giving Wesleyan University was first with $7,030,291. Princeton University had the highest percentage of alumni contributors: 67.9%. The other nine in each category follow: Alumni Gifts to Fund — Yale, Notre Dame, Columbia, Princeton, Dartmouth, Vassar, Wellesley, Cornell and Stanford; Number of Alumni Contributors — Yale, Ohio State, Princeton, Dartmouth, University of Pennsylvania, Cornell, New York University, Smith, and University of California; Percentage of Alumni Contributors — Dartmouth, Mount Holyoke, St. Paul’s School, Regis, Amherst, Connecticut College, Jefferson Medical College, Milton Academy, and Worcester Polytechnic Institute; Total Alumni Giving — Harvard, Cornell, Yale, Smith, Princeton, Union, Dartmouth, Rutgers, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

While in 1954 General Motors expended $2,500,000 in its program of financial support to higher education, its newly developed program will bring GM’s total contribution to $4,500,000 annually when it is in full operation in its fourth year. The new program, which supplements what is already being done, consists of three parts: (1) a college plan under which 250 four-year scholarships will be awarded by 107 private and 39 public institutions in thirty-eight states.
Responsibilities Of The Institution To Its Alumni And Vice Versa

J. ST. CLAIR PRICE

Recently there came to my attention in a local daily a cartoon which has some relevance to this occasion. It was a picture of Freshman Registration Day in State College, U.S.A.

Behind broad tables sit bespectacled round-shouldered faculty members. These are freshman advisers. Long lines of bewildered students wait their turn for registration and advice. At one of the tables an adviser is in the process of counseling a student. He says to him: "You have a choice young man. We have courses that will give you a rounded education, others to fit you to earn a living, and still others to merely make you an alumnus."

This cartoon carries an implication with which I am sure you will not agree, namely, that an alumnus is a mere graduate whose boisterous return to the campus at home-coming provokes some disgusted professors to remark sarcastically to alumni secretaries: "There go your alumni." The professors mean, of course, that these alumni are an immature, irresponsible lot.

But the alumni secretary snaps back: "Yes and there go your former students. You had them for four years. We have to take what you produce."

Both views, it seems to me, are exaggerated and as always in such controversial matters the truth lies somewhere in the middle. Colleges are only one of the social agencies that educate. But they are the most important and most responsible. They are the full-time agencies charged by society with helping young people to devote their lives to socially useful ends. Thus to the extent of this obligation they are responsible for the miscarriages of the alumni. (For truly by their products, their fruits, shall ye know and evaluate colleges!)

But, on the other hand, it must be remembered that caricature generally contains an element of truth. Some alumni are merely graduates whose voices rise to high heaven when the football team slips down the conference ladder; some indeed are spry old gentlemen who return only to reminisce at class reunions; and others are jolly fellows who, occasionally get together simply to spin a few yarns, sing some college songs, enjoy a meal and then depart with a pleasant—if not effective—feeling for the old school. Others are graduates, with or without honors, who "once departed, diploma in hand" never return either to praise or to blame or to help.

It is my contention, therefore, that there are responsibilities which educational institutions bear to their alumni and vice versa. And with your indulgence I should like to discuss these briefly.

Before doing so, though, let me make this declaration: I have no axe to grind. I am not a professional worker in the field of alumni relations, nor am I wholly responsible for the administration of any educational institution. But, as a student of education, I am naturally interested in alumni relations as a problem in higher education in a democracy.

The first responsibility of an educational institution, it seems to me, is to incubate good alumni by giving them a worthwhile, satisfying experience as undergraduates. It is my belief that this is the crux of the problem of developing effective alumni relations. No alumnus feels a real sense of obligation to an institution if he thinks that he has received little or nothing from it. This point of view is not brand new but it is still basic.

A case in point.

Imagine, if you will, the experience of a Lincoln graduate who transfers to a college of liberal arts at Howard University, was honored by the General Alumni Association at its Annual Banquet on June 6 for his contribution to education. His stirring address, delivered at the banquet, is reprinted in full so that all alumni might read it. Other recipients of Alumni Awards were Atty. John C. Hawkins, '03; Dr. Middleton T. Amhright, '33; Norman E. Gaskins, '34 (posthumous); and Atty. James K. Baker, '41. A plaque was presented to Dr. William H. Vick, '94, for consistent interest in and loyalty to his Alma Mater and General Alumni Association.

RESPONSIBILITIES

one of the large mid-western universities to complete his undergraduate work. At the institution there is no dormitory life—for him. Classes are large, some lecture sessions numbering two or three hundred. There is no regular university assembly, no student-union. There are no class advisers, no counselors for individual students before they get into trouble academically or otherwise. There is no class identification, as such, and consequently no class spirit. Fraternities take their place, more or less.

The result is that he feels no sense of belonging to the university. To him it is simply a place he pays the prevailing rate for so many hours of political science, so many potential credits in psychology, etc. Nobody knows him as a person save the kindly busy Dean and him he saw face-to-face three times in as many years — once at admission, again when negotiating a loan, and finally at exit.

He misses the personal and social incentives to study and to excel. So he substitutes domestic for academic satisfaction. He becomes a happy, responsible benedict, but a struggling, perfunctory student. In the end he has even to be notified by the office of the Registrar that he had completed the requirements for graduation and could, upon paying the proper fee, receive his diploma. Such an environment is not conducive to producing good alumni...

Davis of Emory University elaborates upon this point when he writes: "A good alumnus has had a pleasant, satisfying and rewarding experience at his college or university. He feels he was equipped to the maximum extent for a fuller, richer and better life because of having attended his school. He feels he has gotten something out of college and he wants other young people like him to have the same opportunity."

The following brash letter from a Cornell alumnus to President Farrand further illustrates this point of view:

"My friends speak of a heritage I have gotten from Cornell University. The only legacy I am certain I received from that institution of learning was the licker habit. It took me years to get over it. And, quite frankly, I could have acquired this same habit in two years at Harvard, while it took me four at Cornell.

"My contacts with Prof. Morse Stephens, Cuthbert W. Pound and one or two others were priceless, of course. But my contacts with other members of the faculty were about as valuable and even less interesting than association with a group of Latvians, or Letts.

"I refuse to get steamed up over Cornell. You have neither an Eastern university nor frankly a Western one. All you have is a group of rather inharmonious buildings in a glorious setting, a silly, undemocratic, un-Christian fraternity system and a large mass of unwelcome, misplaced women called co-eds."

But how can a college or university guarantee a satisfying, worthwhile experience? It cannot, despite the subtle, smug remark of President Woodrow Wilson to the anxious mother of an entering freshman. Said he to her, reassuringly, when she asked whether he thought her boy would fare well: "Madame, Princeton guarantees satisfaction, else we return the boy."

Now there are several elements in the program of a college which help to produce satisfied prospective alumni. Some are curricular; many are extracurricular; others are neither. The disgruntled Cornell alumnus enumerated some of these. Chief among them, in my opinion, are the teachers. The faculty itself must be proud of and in love with the institution — its ideals, its traditions, its purposes, its program. All of these it should know well and believe in.

How can this be assured? It cannot. But it can be approached by exercising care in the selection of the teachers and by involving them later in the formulation of policies for the continuous improvement of the work of the institution. For then they become partners in and salesmen for the educational enterprise of the institution. They become part of the academic family of the institution.

Of course, they must be technically competent and be interested in sharing their knowledge with students in such a way as to inspire and develop them. In other words, they must be great classroom teachers. But this alone is not enough. (The Cornell alumnus realized this fact!) They must be great teachers who are so committed to the program of the institution that it becomes for them a cause. In this way their total influence upon the student will be constructive and affective. This I suppose is what Emerson had in mind when he wrote to his daughter in college that he didn’t care what her subjects were but that he was much concerned in knowing who her teachers were. This too is what James Hilton meant when he created and glorified the devoted and beloved Mr. Chips.

A second responsibility of the institution is to motivate and engage its students after graduation (i.e. its alumni) by providing them with opportunities for performing challenging tasks for the institution. To paraphrase the ancient Greeks, men have their greatest loyalties not to those institutions that give them the most but to those that give them a sense of achievement.

The major tasks of participation may take several forms. An excellent example is that of the Alumni Advisory Council of Ohio State consisting of 22 members elected by the Alumni Association. The essential features of its organization are these:

1. It is officially advisory to the President of the institution and to him alone. He may take its recommendations or leave them (as he sometimes does).

2. All alumni recommendations must clear through this channel. The president is under obligation to consider no complaint or suggestion or advice which has not been cleared in this way.

Another example is the alumni council recently established at Haverford College, Pa. It meets once a year to discuss college policy with the President and the other members of the faculty and the Administration. In turn, it informs the alumni at large in their localities of the rationale of college policy, changes, etc.

A TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY of
PHILIP SHERIDAN MILLER
(1896 - 1955)

I shall remember him as a man of intense idealism, of high ethical standards, of understanding and sympathy for human beings, of rare knowledge and of a vibrant optimism . . . I shall remember him as a scholar, as a man with a mind full of exciting classical impressions. For him the classics pulsed with life; they stirred him deeply and he, in turn, mastered the happy faculty of pouring forth those impressions, in undiminished strength, in superabundance and with great zest . . . I shall remember how he sometimes startled us with his uncanny mastery of the power of words. Always learned, always virile, full of power, sometimes cryptic, often recondite but never, oh, never guilty of pedantry . . . I shall remember him as a colleague always willing to accept the minds of students who came to him, and to open the doors leading to ancient lore that they might walk in and observe the beautiful aspects of a classical age, not because he said they were beautiful, but because he had the gift, the extraordinary gift of a teacher, of arousing students so that they might learn facts as well as see visions . . . His personality permits me to venture a comparison with some qualities seen in Browning's character "The Grammarian."
   This (man) throws himself on God, and unperplexed
   Seeking shall find Him . . .
   This man decided not to Live but Know . . .
   . . . Let joy break with the storm;
   Peace, let the dew send!
   Lofty designs must close in like effects . . .
   Loftily lying,
   Leave him, —still loftier than the world suspects."

—J. Newton Hill
The Philosophy Club presented Dr. Monroe Beardsley of Swarthmore College's Department of Philosophy on Wednesday, May 4, at 8:00 p.m. Dr. Beardsley's subject was "What Is Aesthetic Value?" Although the subject was of particular interest to students in the Division of Humanities, it brought out many other students and faculty members.

Nu Chapter and the Sphinx Club of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity presented Edward Cole, pianist, in recital on Thursday, May 5, at 8:00 p.m. Mr. Cole, who began the study of piano at the age of fourteen, presented a well-rounded program to a small but appreciative audience that enthusiastically received his Chopin numbers.

The Lincoln Players brought the 1954-55 season to a close with the presentation of "Revue '55" and "Sorry, Wrong Number" on Friday and Monday nights, May 6 and 9. An original series of skits written by students, "Revue '55" spoofed and satirized individuals and situations well known to the Lincoln community. Featured in the skits were Carlyle Mason, '55, Edmund Preston, '57, Y. C. Ferguson, '55, Harry Lambert, '57, Bristol Leake, '55, Joseph Kenney, '55, Isaiah Smith, '56, Lonnie Fuller, '56, and Ernest Levister, '57. "Sorry, Wrong Number" was notable for the number of faculty wives who appeared in it. The leading role was taken by Mrs. Dorothy Jones, and in supporting roles were Mrs. Edith Ross, Mrs. Alice Davis, Mrs. Lillian Lukaczor, Mrs. Letta Schatz, Mrs. Mary Farrell, and Mrs. Ruth Fales. Professor Manuel Rivero appeared briefly, as did Carlyle Mason, '55, Jesse Jenkins, '55, and Frederick Goings, '58. Mr. Abram Hill directed the performers.

The sixth Annual Sigma Day Concert, sponsored by Mu Chapter of Lincoln University and Nu Sigma Chapter of Philadelphia, was held at 3:30 p.m. on Sunday, May 8. Presented in recital were Edwin C. Moss, tenor; Cornelia King, soprano; Alma Miller, pianist; Elizabeth Staples Pierce, contralto; and Calvin L. Barlow, baritone. All are members of the Les Crescendoes Chorale of Philadelphia, directed by Walter H. Moss, Jr., who was accompanist for the singing performers.

"Honors Day is the most significant day on the academic calendar," Dr. John H. Franklin, noted scholar and historian, told Lincoln University students and faculty members at the annual observance of Honors Day in the Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel on Thursday, May 12. Pointing out that achievement in college has some bearing on achievement in later life, the Howard University professor stated that honors come to those who remain true to the highest standards and those who do not gain honors are unwilling to pay the price to acquire information. "Knowledge cannot be acquired without effort, and satisfaction should come with the acquisition of knowledge. The glitter and the tinsel should not blind one to the real values of a college education."

It was announced at the convocation that an Atlantic Monthly Creative Writing Contest certificate of merit had been received by Chul Yung Cha, '58, Seoul, Korea, and that the first prize in the short story division of the College Language Association Creative Writing Contest had been won by Cecil G. Marquez, Jr., '57, Norfolk, Va., for his story "The Dancer Awakes." Music for the occasion was furnished by the Glee Club, under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern.

Announced at Commencement: the C. Morris Cain Prize for excellence in Bible studies, David C. Waters, '58, Trenton, N. J.; the National Ladies Auxiliary Awards to A. Kwesi Anderson, '55, Gold Coast, West Africa; Clinton Smith, '56, Austin, Tex.; and Herman Wilson, '56, Tyler, Tex.; the National Ladies Auxiliary Award for scholarship and character, Gladys Winfield, '55, Coatesville, Pa.; and the Frazier Taylor Memorial Award (a gold watch by Silas (Shag) Taylor, '09) to the athlete who best exemplifies the old Lincoln spirit, Carlyle Mason, '55, Wilmington, N. C.

The Rohm-Haas Grant of $2,200 was divided equally among Richard L. Huff and Ralph J. Lowry, seniors, and Walter Scriven and Lonnie Fuller, juniors.

Mr. Lester Mondale, leader of the Philadelphia Ethical Society, was presented by the Philosophy Club at its final meeting on Thursday, May 12, at 8:00 p.m. A graduate of Harvard Divinity School, Mr. Mondale has been a Unitarian minister in Evanston, Ill., and Kansas City, Mo. Speaking on the subject "Authoritarian or Humanistic Ethics?" Mr. Mondale expressed views not in keeping with the traditional concepts of God and religion. The meeting proved to be one of the most stimulating ever sponsored by the organization.

The International Students Association, established for the purpose of providing an atmosphere in which friendship and understanding between students of all countries can be developed and maintained, presented a program of traditional and modern songs and dances in the Grim Gymnasium on Saturday, May 14, at 8:00 p.m. Dr. Marguerite Cartwright of the Department of Sociology of Hunter College in New York was the guest speaker, and she captivated her audience with her account of the Asian-African Conference in Bandung, Indonesia, and of her visit to Africa. Greetings were expressed by foreign students in their native languages, and the audience watched or listened to Korean folk-songs, Negro spirituals, the mambo, African war dances, and African love songs.

The Political Science Club closed out the school year with the presentation of Mr. John W. Roberts, councilman for the borough of Oxford, at 8:15 p.m.

The annual Seminary Banquet was held in the McCauley Refectory on Tuesday, April 26. Dr. E. Luther Cunningham, '30, '33s, was the principal speaker, and his vast experience in religious, social, and civic activities was reflected in his timely address. Senior David Mandeng spoke briefly on his experiences at Lincoln and expressed how greatly he had been benefited and what he intends to do when he returns to his home in Cameroun, West Africa. All seniors were given three minutes to discuss their plans for the next five years. A quintet, composed of seminary students Edwin Ellis, Galen Work, Willis Tabor, and Jerome Cooper and pre-seminarian Claude Edmonds, were heard in several spirituals during the evening. Dr. Andrew Murray, dean of the Seminary, closed the program with brief remarks about the accomplishments of the institution and its future outlook.

Willis C. Tabor, a junior of Detroit, Mich., succeeds Peter George, a June graduate, as pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Oxford, Pa. A graduate of Wayne University, Tabor was engaged in the study of law before entering the ministry. In his home church he served as president of the Laymen's Council, church school teacher, and youth adviser and was also secretary of the Executive Council of the Detroit Council of Presbyterian Men. Possessed of a great deal of zeal, Tabor gives every indication of being a success in his new field of endeavor.

Joseph Stevens, a middler of Appleton City, Mo., has been appointed student pastor of the Modena Presbyterian Church, near Coatesville, Pa., to succeed Charles N. Miller, who resigned in the spring. Stevens has served as assistant to the pastor of the Hamilton Presbyterian Church in Baltimore and as student pastor of the Pencaedr Church at Glasgow, Del.

Grant Williams, a June graduate, has accepted a position with the Cleveland Inter-City Parish, where he will work (Continued on Page 22)

• Springfield College, long identified with rehabilitation and guidance training on the graduate level, has obtained a grant from the United States Office of Vocational Rehabilitation to prepare qualified persons for careers as vocational rehabilitation counselors. In addition to regular courses, training will include visits to hospitals and other centers, and classroom demonstrations and lectures by medical and rehabilitation specialists. Programs will normally extend over a twelve-month period within which time the requirements for either the Master of Education or Master of Science degree may be satisfied. A thesis is required for the Master of Science degree. Preparation will include basic courses in counseling psychology, with an emphasis upon research, appraisal, and community resources as they apply to work with the handicapped. Applicants for this program should have a Bachelor’s degree, including twelve semester hours of undergraduate psychology and related subjects. In addition to an ability to work with people, applicants should have a definite interest in guidance as it relates to the rehabilitation field. Persons with previous training in the rehabilitation field may be excused from appropriate courses, thus shortening their program or permitting the substitution of electives according to individual interest and need. Scholarships of $1,600 each are available to a limited group of qualified students. A number of graduate assistantships and counseling internships are also available to full-time students. For additional information, write to the Director of Graduate Studies, Springfield College, Springfield 9, Mass.

• The Division of Child Welfare of the Cook County Department of Welfare in Chicago is seeking child placement workers and supervisors who have Master degrees from, or the equivalent of at least a year's training at, a School of Social Work, and with from three to five years experience in child placing, home-finding, and adoption. Salaries for caseworkers will be $3,900 and for supervisors $4,800. Qualified persons are urged to apply to the Personnel Office, Cook County Department of Welfare, Room 1727, 160 N. LaSalle St., Chicago.

• The Department of Defense, which includes the Departments of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, is seeking systems accountants (general, cost, and property) to fill a number of vacancies. Persons employed as systems accountants (general) will be concerned with the development of the general accounting structure of an organizational entity, such as a military department, or a bureau, operating agency or field installation thereof, including the integration of the subsidiary cost, inventory, appropriation, budgeting and disbursing systems and the control of inter-office transactions through a system of interlocking accounts. Those who are employed as systems accountants (cost) may be assigned to surveys of the operations, accounting systems and internal controls of manufacturing or service agencies operated by the Department of Defense, and will design and install cost accounting systems and procedures covering job order, process or standard costs, including industrial budgetary controls. Persons appointed to positions of systems accountants (property) will survey and systematize and install accounting for property in the Military Supply System in terms of quantities and dollars, including supplies and equipment (in inventory and in use) and accounts covering real property. Applicants must have had at least six years of progressively responsible work in accounting positions requiring the application of the principles and theory of accounting and the performance of difficult and important accounting duties. The grade or salary level for which applicants are considered qualified will be determined by the quality of their experience as shown by the scope and level of the responsibilities involved. No written test is required. Competitors will be rated on the extent and quality of their experience, education, and training relevant to the duties of the position. For fuller particulars and necessary forms to be filed, write to the Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, Department of Defense, The Pentagon, Washington 25, D. C.

(2) a national plan whereby 100 four-year scholarships will be awarded annually to graduates of secondary schools who are winners in a competitive examination to be conducted by the Educational Testing Service; and (3) the foundation plan under which GM will make unrestricted grants of $10,000 each to foundations representing private institutions in Indiana, Michigan, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New England, and a grant of $35,000 to the United Negro College Fund to be used for operating expenses of thirty-one Negro institutions. The private colleges and universities involved in both the college and national plans will receive grants-in-aid ranging from $500 to $800 per scholarship and the scholarship awards will range from $200 to $2,000 annually depending upon need. The first 350 students receiving scholarships will enroll as freshmen in September, 1955, and when the program is in full operation in its fourth year, 1400 students will be receiving benefits. A total of 306 colleges and universities will receive direct aid under the General Motors’ expanded program of financial support to higher education.

The financial hurdle to a college education grows higher each year, as colleges and universities, both publicly and privately supported, increase tuition and fees in a determined but usually unsuccessful effort to keep pace with the rising costs of instruction in the face of decreasing proportionate income from other sources. One recent study reported by Francis J. Brown in Educational Sociology shows an increase, in the decade 1942-43 to 1952-53, of 65 percent in tuition and fees of publicly supported institutions. Substantial further increases have been put in many institutions since 1953. It can easily be demonstrated that the added income from students has not permitted colleges and universities to be lavish in the expenditure of funds. A recent study of the National Education Association based on data for 1952-53 cites the average salary for beginning college teachers as $3,000 a year and the average for full professors as approximately $7,000. One of the reasons for the low salaries is that colleges and universities are still doing their utmost to assist needy students. A recent survey of twenty-five colleges with enrollments under 3,000, made by Treasurer John M. Schlegel of Lafayette College,1 reports that total student aid increased from $1,730,000 in 1948-49 to $4,000,000 in 1952-53. Only 36 percent of the aid was endowed. "This means," he says, "that these twenty-five institutions poured into student aid in 1952-53 from operating funds an average of $102,000 per college." That money could have been used for faculty salaries or other purposes if those colleges had been content to serve only the children of those financially able to pay the full tuition fee.

was chosen valedictorian of the graduating class and was awarded a prize from the Graduate Faculty Alumni Association for an outstanding dissertation. Dr. Hans Simons, president of the New School, announced that Mr. Schatz's dissertation was one of the finest ever submitted to the New School. He has been a member of Lincoln's faculty for the past five years.

Dr. Thomas Jones displayed rare acting ability in the leading role of "The Male Animal," the first production of the Community Players, which was presented in the Little Theater on June 9, 10, and 11. The play was directed by Mr. Abram Hill.

on Monday, May 16. Mr. Roberts, who is chairman of the Council's Finance Committee, spoke on the subject "Politics and Issues in Oxford and Chester County," and his interesting talk provided much food for thought for the political science majors.

Charles Collins, '58, president of the Freshman Class, was a member of the panel appearing on the televised New York Times Youth Forum on Sunday, May 22. Collins, who was the youth governor of Ohio in his senior year in high school, acquitted himself well when he spoke on the panel topic, "Can Youth Accept Citizenship Responsibility?" The subjects included the making of a good citizen, meaning of freedom, right to dissent, and the values of studying foreign government.

Clint Smith, '56, and Norman Reeves, '57, placed first and second respectively in the Elizabeth H. Train Oratorical Contest held on Wednesday, May 18. Honorable mention went to Frederick Goings, '58.

The Lincoln University Glee Club, under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern II, gave its annual spring concert on Sunday, June 5, at 7:30 p.m. Early comers to Commencement particularly enjoyed the Glee Club's rendition of "Honor, Honor," "If I Get My Ticket," and "The Builder." The Ensemble was heard in a group of numbers. Certificates or letters were presented by Professor Suthern to all participants, and special awards were given for attendance.

Carlyle Mason, '55, and Isaiah Smith, '56, members of the Lincoln Players, were prominently cast in the Community Players' production of "The Male Animal," which was given on the campus June 9-11.

Cleveland. His duties will include in group ministry in the slum areas of preaching, counseling, providing centers for worship, and endeavoring to improve living conditions. Williams has had similar experience in Boston and New York.

William Banks, a junior from Philadelphia, is busily engaged in gathering material for a paper he is writing on "The Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man." Banks, who has been a prominent figure in campus evangelism, has distributed tracts to the student body on several subjects, the last being on "Profanity." He is to be highly commended for his efforts in this area.

The Seminary Union met on Thursday, May 12, to elect officers for the year 1955-56. The new officers are as follows: president, Galen Work; vice president and interseminary representative, Forrest Brown; secretary, Willis C. Tabor; treasurer, Alpheus Bright; chaplain, William Banks; and public relations officer, J. Sewell Crophopper '52. The new officers held an executive meeting the next week to make plans for the work they hope to do next year.

David Mandeng was the only student in the Seminary who had the opportunity to attend the General Assembly in Los Angeles in May. His trip, partially financed by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, included several stops at Southern churches and colleges, where he told of his experiences in America.

Dr. Samuel G. Stevens, professor of homiletics, suffered an appendicitis attack during the last week of April and was hospitalized for several weeks at the Coatesville General Hospital. Shortly afterwards Professor James Brown went into the same hospital with pneumonia. The Rev. Fred Keefe, pastor of the New London Presbyterian Church, carried on their classes during their absence.

Dr. Donald M. Davies, professor of Biblical literature and languages, and two associates will conduct a five-weeks tour for the Bibleland Tours Association beginning in July. Egypt, Israel, Jordan, Greece, and Italy are among the places of interest to be visited. Dr. Davies, who has made frequent trips abroad, spent ten years in Ethiopia as a missionary. He has long been active in various types of religious work.

Dr. Andrew E. Murray was the Baccalaureate speaker at Delaware State College on May 29.

DIRECTORY

Baltimore, Md.

I wish to take this opportunity to extend to you and Lincoln my congratulations for two excellent publications, the Directory and the Bulletin. They have been the means of keeping me in touch with the school and my classmates. When the first Directory was published I picked out all the men in Class of '28 and sent them Christmas cards and that has been going on every year.

Louis E. Harmon, '28
Roanoke, Va.

Congratulations on such a fine edition of the Alumni Directory.
M. Arthur Camper, '47, '50
Suffolk, Va.

The Alumni Directory is an excellent piece of work.
Edwin C. Sullivan, '50

The Centennial Directory has been received, and I like it very much. I think it is better than those I have seen before.

James H. Robinson, '35
Scranton, Pa.

The new directory is invaluable. It shows that much time and effort went into its preparation.

BULLETIN

You are doing an excellent job as editor of the Bulletin. May each issue continue to dispense information of profound interest to all Lincolnites.

Allen Baxter, Jr., '51
Macon, Ga.

The Bulletin is a gem, and I enjoy reading it. It is informative in many respects, too. I enclose the $1.00 subscription. I enjoyed meeting you and being for a little while in your august presence. I received new inspiration for the dear old school, and am highly resolved to do, what I can in this corner.

J. Hansell Lissimore
Montclair, N.J.

Allow me to congratulate you on the continued improvement of the Bulletin. I look eagerly for every issue as it gives news of Lincoln man everywhere, what they are doing, and their activities in general. Why do you not make a "Special Appeal" to every alumnus to send you $1.00 to help pay for the publication of the Bulletin? I am sure no Lincoln man would refuse to send that meager sum for a periodical which means so much to him.

William H. Vick, '94
Wilmington, Del.

Enclosed please find my check for two dollars in payment of my subscription to the Bulletin. It's worth much more.

PUBLIC RELATIONS

Gary, W.Va.

My purpose in writing, in addition to renewing an old and valued acquaintance and paying an old bill, is to send the name of one of my homeroom students who desires to enter Lincoln this fall... You are doing an excellent job and I commend you for the wholehearted effort you have put forth in behalf of Lincoln.

Harold P. Cooper, '34
Washington, D.C.

I wish to express my sincere appreciation to you for your honest endeavors in trying to promote L. U. Please continue to do so even though the going is often rough.

W. T. Murphy, '35
Norfolk, Va.

Please accept my many, many thanks for the fine services rendered by sending the commemorative plates. The scene brings back some fond memories since I was on the spot and witnessed the dedicatory ceremonies by President Harding... I really did enjoy your stay in Norfolk. Lincoln men need to get together more often to be well posted on our college and at the same time swap "thrice-told" tales of our college days. We will follow your suggestion about the smoker and do hope Lincoln will get some of our students.

James P. Archer, '24
Detroit, Mich.

Dr. Bond might have told you of the successful Lincoln Day affair we had at Charlie Hill's Church on Friday, February 11th. We have received many favorable comments from the program, and we hope to have similar ones each year. Please accept my sincere thanks for making it possible for us to have Dr. Bond as our speaker. Without your assistance and suggestions this program wouldn't have been successful.

While we are reminded that pride goeth before a fall, and should therefore be eschewed, there is no injunction against gladness, especially the gladness a wise son giveth to a father. Lincoln University has great reason for that kind of gladness, and we share with all the sons of the University some specific examples.

In the summer, 1955, issue of THE BULLETIN, indications of a reversal of our recent drought of students were mentioned. The fall enrollment confirms earlier portents. The enrollment in the college is at 288, representing a 24.1 per cent increase over the last year, and (with Ashmun Hall not available) an overcrowded dormitory situation. Indeed, we were obliged to reject other well-qualified students for lack of dormitory space. Psychological examinations show the current Freshman Class to have a median higher by 5 percentile points than last year's class (national norms) and 10 percentile points above the median of prewar freshman classes.

On analysis, a number of factors explain this remarkable phenomenon. The Lincoln sons deserving particular mention for gladdening our hearts are (a) the Pittsburgh alumni in general and Edgar W. Flood, '33, specifically (Pittsburgh sent us a bumper crop of first-class freshmen); and (b) ten Lincoln fathers who sent sons (and one daughter!) of first-class quality back to Alma Mater. (Incidentally, our female enrollment, limited to non-residents since we have no dormitory facilities, remained static at 4.)

An analysis of careers chosen by Lincoln men, throughout our history, shows a continuing dispersion. The historic dominance of the ministry gave way to medicine in the decade 1910-1920. Up to the 1930's Lincoln men who went on for advanced training concentrated in professional education in theology, medicine, and law. There is now a definite trend toward advanced graduate study in the scholarly disciplines. Six Lincoln men received Ph.D. degrees in 1955: Charles Blalock, '37 (Pennsylvania, social work); Jesse E. Gloster, '41 (Pittsburgh, economics); Thomas J. Edwards, '48 (Temple, psychology); Archie Young, '49 (Pennsylvania, chemistry); Lonnie Cross, '49 (Cornell, mathematics); and Emo O. Awa, '51 (New York University, international relations). This is the largest number of Lincoln men to qualify for the highest advanced academic degree in any one year to date.

Kalu Ezera, '53, one of three Lincoln men enrolled in Harvard graduate facilities last year, has just been elected to a studentship in Nuffield College, Oxford. He took his M.A. at Harvard in June. He is also enrolled as a resident fellow of Balliol College, and is hoping to qualify for the Oxford Ph.D. within the next year. This is probably the highest academic distinction yet won by a Lincoln alumnus. A concurrent general honor has come to Lincoln in being placed on the select list of American colleges qualified to nominate candidates for Rhodes Scholarships.

By the time this BULLETIN reaches you, construction will be well under way on the new Robert Baxter McRary Dormitory, designed by John Miller Dickey, great nephew of our founder. The dormitory, with provisions for 120 beds, will extend our capacity to 425 for 1956; and already applications and inquiries for 1956 indicate that we shall not have any difficulty in filling all available space with good students next fall.

What has been called Lincoln's NEW PROGRAM — with planned diversification of the student body by race and international distribution and orientation of the curriculum toward the World Society — goes apace. The number of American white students increased in the same proportion as the general increase; they are now 5 per cent of the entire enrollment. Overseas students — African, Asiatic, and South American — number 22 and account for another 7 per cent of the combined college and seminary enrollment.

We are deeply grateful to the wise sons who have given gladness to our hearts.

October 30—The Rev. Dr. Francis S. Downs, a member of the Board of Trustees since 1924, was guest speaker at the Sunday morning church service. Dr. Downs has just recently returned from a visit to Africa.

THE UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION has completed plans to improve and expand its recruitment program at the college level. The major objective was to simplify the problem for the college student by consolidating the number of examinations for entry into the Federal service, but the new examination will not take the place of current examinations in the physical sciences, engineering fields, and certain other technical fields. It will be open to holders of higher degrees regardless of subject matter specializations or fields of major study, and will lead to a wide range of positions both in Washington and throughout the country for which no specialized educational preparation is required. The entrance salaries for these positions now are $3410 for those with bachelor degrees and $4205 for those having higher degrees or qualifying graduate work or experience. The new examination program has the following major advantages: (1) retention of the best features of the Junior Management Assistant examination for those who wish to try for management internships; (2) insurance of maximum agency participation in the examination; (3) expansion of the use by the Federal service of college caliber candidates; and (4) development of a simpler and unified approach to the colleges.

FOR THE PAST DECADE THE NATION'S COLLEGES and universities have been caught in a destructive financial squeeze. It is particularly destructive for independent, privately endowed institutions. Unless extraordinary measures are taken to relieve this financial squeeze, it promises to become progressively worse. To let it do that is to court a national disaster. In broad outline, the financial problem that afflicts our colleges and universities is simple. The demand for their services has increased rapidly, and promises to keep on increasing even more rapidly. At the same time, their financial capacity to provide these services has lagged behind, primarily because of price inflation. Between 1940 and 1950

J. ST. CLAIR PRICE

Minor but equally important tasks of participation which alumni do and should be encouraged to perform relate to recruitment and admissions. It is my belief that the institution should take the initiative in setting up ways and means by which interested or lukewarm alumni may supply it with a continuing stream of good students — sons, daughters, friends, scholars, scientists, artists, athletes.

Obviously, there are other varieties of providing opportunities for constructive participation by alumni in the work and operation of the institution. This is as it should be, since American education is of necessity built upon the principle of diversity.

Generally speaking, though, all such plans may be divided into two classes depending upon the theory of school administration held by the institution. If, on the one hand, it is believed that “a democratic administration of an educational institution exists when every constituent member has some regular and representative way in which to register judgment upon matters of educational importance with the assurance that this judgment will somehow affect the institution,” (and if former students are considered constituent members) then there would be at least the disposition to extend the principle of participation to competent and responsible alumni. If, on the other hand, the opposite view prevails then it is reasonable to expect that alumni will be regarded as mere outsiders.

It seems safe to say, though, that on the whole college and university alumni are willing to serve the interests of their institution and to support the cause of higher education in general.

But there are obstacles to the application of the principle of participation. One of the newest of the college presidents, himself an ardent advocate of the theory of alumni participation, admits this after one year at Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y. He points out that it is not lack of interest nor apathy which constitutes the central problem in administering alumni relations. Rather it is misguided zeal. All graduates simply cannot be put to work at challenging tasks. Fisk can’t give jobs to all of its 4,600 alumni; Swarthmore to its 9,000; Harvard to its 120,000. All who volunteer or who are urged to do so by zealous alumni secretaries can’t be put to work. Thus Dr. Horn concludes that a sounder attitude toward alumni participation is to get working those graduates who can be most useful to the institution — whether they volunteer or not. And he might well have added that this should be done without offense to the volunteers or embarrassment to the institution.

A third responsibility, it seems to me, is to nurture the alumni by keeping them fully informed regarding the objectives, policies and problems of the institution. Essentially this is a technique for retaining the membership of all or most of the alumni in the college community whether they are able or not to participate in the productive sense just discussed. Only a handful of alumni can serve at any one time as members of an advisory council or committee, and still fewer can serve during a certain period as members of the board of trustees or of any similar governing board. But all at least can be fully informed of what is going on at the institution. The disgruntled and critical alumnus is usually one who is not fully informed. It is true that a graduate may have to be persuaded that the resignation or discontinuance of his favorite professor does not necessarily mean the destruction of the university. Another, brought face to face with the facts, may be willing to admit that he was wrong in assuming that most faculty members today are communists. Still another, after an inspection and explanation, may agree that it is just as well to tear down the Old Main Building before the termites finish the job.

So much for the responsibilities of the institution.

Are there any obligations of the alumnus to the institution?

Probably only one of major importance. It is to support the institution financially provided, of course, he (or she) has had a satisfying, worthwhile experience during the period of his residence. This is a moral obligation not legal. For if it were simply legal then the university could sue and attempt to collect its bill. The fact is that no student in an American institution of higher learning, private or public, ever pays the full cost of his education. Indeed it has been pointed out by Millet, Executive Director of the Commission for Financing Higher Education, that if a student were expected to support the whole range of work undertaken by higher education the burden to him would be much greater than it has already become.

The reason is that student fees constitute about one-third of the income of American colleges and universities. The other sources are endowment earnings, philanthropic gifts, and government appropriations — local, state and federal. This method of financing higher education is no happenstance. Instead it is the expression of a policy which seems to work best in a free society such as ours. It is a policy based upon the principle of variety of sources of income as opposed to monopoly of support and hence monopoly of control.

Frankly then the alumnus as citizen should feel an obligation to help repay what amounts to a subsidy which he enjoyed from society. But this simple truth is often abused in alumni fund-raising. For what, may I ask, does it profit an institution to cite figures from its budget proving conclusively that four-fifths of the total cost of the education of an alumnus was paid by other mature citizens, if in so doing it run the risk of losing the financial and moral support of that alumnus? This sort of thing is done entirely too often nowadays!!

A far more effective approach appears to be to assume, for the purposes of persuasion, when necessary, that the alumnus is correct in his belief that he has paid in full for the cost of instruction per se, but to insist that he is still under obligation to support the cause of higher education if he cares to be considered a good alumnus. Such an alumnus, by definition, is one who feels he has gotten something worthwhile out of college and wants other young people, like him, to have the same opportunity and is willing to contribute to the cost of it.

Now whether or not he cares to be regarded as a "good alumnus" is a matter of choice. And choices of this kind cannot be settled by mere argument or by browbeating because they are essentially moral choices.

Another and final reason why alumni should contribute to the financial support of their colleges is that it is a necessary means of earning support from outside sources. (That such support is desirable if we are to preserve the values of our present system of financing higher education we have just attempted to show.) In the case of private institutions this support must come from private sources — from foundations, from corporations, from churches and from sundry other groups interested in supporting private, higher education. It must come also from individuals, alumni chiefly, and from friends of alumni who have been sold by them on the needs and services of the Alma Mater. This, it seems to me, is a primary obligation.

But under what circumstances is a college or university, private or public, most likely to succeed in securing funds from philanthropy? The answer is obvious. To the extent that the institution itself is actually struggling to initiate or support some project or program considered worthy.

Dr. Compton, president of the Council for Financial Aid to Education, testifies that the question almost universally asked by business concerns interested, in principle, in financial aid to higher education is: "What are the colleges doing to help themselves?" Are they seeking the help of their immediate constituents including their own trustees, the parents of their students, the community and the church if church-

REV. ARTHUR E. RANKIN

Livingstone Returned is a moving account of the journey of Livingstone's body from the steaming African jungle where he died to its final resting place in Westminster Abbey. Besides depicting with unforgettable realism and sympathy the trials and devotion of the band of natives who made the journey, the book is a fascinating treasure-trove of African lore. The life of man and beast on the Dark Continent is described with careful detail, and a little-known phase in Livingstone's career is brought to light.

The book was inspired by a short story Dr. Rankin read and a desire, thereby created, to know the details of this evidence that the teachings of the great missionary lived on after his death. Three years of research and effort have brought about this accurate and faithful account. Dr. Rankin has a gifted style of writing that carries his reader along with it, and one feels as though he is reliving the experiences of Susi and Chumah, two of Livingstone's faithful followers.

A 1907 graduate of Lincoln University, Dr. Rankin has enjoyed an eventful and successful ministerial career. During World War I he was a United States Army chaplain, and has since been a minister, teacher, and Navy aide, having served as security officer at the United States Navy Hospital in 1951 and 1952. During his many years of service to his fellow man, Dr. Rankin, who resides in Philadelphia, engaged in pioneer church building and civic and fraternal activities through such organizations as the North Philadelphia Civic Club, the Elks, and the Masons. He is also a member of the Presbyterian Fellowship of Ministers and the Presbyterian Council of the North and West.

Dean Andrew E. Murray conducted an Interracial Workship under the auspices of the Pottsville Interracial Council on Wednesday, September 28, in Pottsville, Pa. He also represented the Seminary at the annual meeting of the Council of Theological Education at Buck Hill Falls October 24-26. At the invitation of the Wilmington Council of Churches he conducted a five-week course for laymen on “The Protestant Way.”

The Rev. Frederick Keefe, pastor of New London Presbyterian Church, is serving as instructor in Greek in the Seminary this school year.

A reception for Seminary students and faculty was held in the Ladies Auxiliary Guest House on the evening of Thursday, September 29. Galen Work, president of the Seminary Union, presided and introduced old and new members of the Seminary fellowship.

Alpheus Bright, a senior, has opened a new series of radio broadcasts on behalf of the Seminary over Station WCOJ in Coatesville, Pa.

The Rev. Gustavo Envela of Spanish Guinea has enrolled in the Seminary. He is the first pastor from Spanish Guinea to come to the United States for theological studies. His coming was made possible by many friends, who contributed toward his travel expenses; by the Seminary, which has given him full scholarship aid; and by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, which provides for his travel expenses during his stay in the United States.

Since the Seminary graduated its largest class in many years (12) last June, its enrollment is not as large as it was last year; however, in addition to the Rev. Envela, five new students were enrolled.

As one means of promoting the progress of science, the National Science Foundation plans to award approximately 700 graduate and 80 postdoctoral fellowships to individuals planning to undertake graduate study in the sciences during the 1956-1957 academic year. These fellowships will be awarded in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological, engineering, and other sciences, including anthropology, psychology (other than clinical), geography, certain interdisciplinary fields, and fields of convergence between the natural and social sciences.

The term interdisciplinary fields includes all overlapping fields of the natural sciences (such as biochemistry, biophysics, geochemistry, statistics and statistical design, oceanography). Fields of convergence as here used include the subjects in which the natural sciences (and mathematics) converge with the social sciences and in which a fundamental element of experimental, quantitative training and methodology is both needed and employed; approximately 20 awards are to be made to applicants in these fields. Examples of such convergent fields are mathematical economics, demography, information and communication theory, and the history and philosophy of science. Awards are not made to individuals to pursue a course of study designed to prepare them for careers in medical practice and comparable fields; however, applications will be accepted from students who intend to obtain advanced training in one of the medical sciences directed toward a career in research.

Graduate Awards — This category includes awards to individuals studying for either masters' or doctoral degrees. First Year Fellowships will be awarded to students entering graduate school for the first time or those who will have completed less than one normal year of graduate study, as of the beginning of the tenure of their fellowships. Intermediate Fellowships will be awarded to students who will have completed, as of the beginning of their fellowships, an amount of graduate training considered by the institutions at which they are in attendance to be a normal year of graduate study, but who will require more than one additional year to complete the requirements for a doctoral degree. Terminal Year Fellowships will be awarded to students who expect to complete the requirements for a doctoral degree. Terminal Year Fellowships will be awarded to students who expect to complete the requirements for a doctoral degree within one calendar year from the date on which they enter on the tenure of their fellowships.

Postdoctoral Awards — This category includes awards to individuals who, as of the beginning of their fellowships, have earned a doctoral degree in one of the fields of science listed above or have had research training and experience equivalent to that represented by such a degree. An individual who holds a degree such as M.D., D.D.S., or D.V.M. and desires to obtain further training for a career in research is eligible for a postdoctoral award provided he can present an acceptable plan of study and research.

Fellowships will be awarded on March 15, 1956. Applications for graduate fellowships must be received in the Fellowship Office of the National Research Council, which assists the National Science Foundation in the screening of applicants, by January 13, 1956. Applications for postdoctoral fellowships must be received in the Fellowship Office of the National Research Council by December 19, 1955. The address of the Fellowship Office of the National Research Council is 2101 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington 25, D. C.

The competition for Opportunity Fellowships by the John Hay Whitney Foundation is open to any citizen of the United States (including residents of territories) who has given evidence of special ability and who has not had full opportunity to develop his talents because of arbitrary barriers, such as racial or cultural background or region of residence. Candidates are expected to be mature enough to have given positive evidence of exceptional promise, yet young enough to have their careers before them; in general to be between the ages of 22 and 35; and to have completed their general education. While the Committee of Award has full discretion to take all factors into account and make awards outside the above ages and qualifications, candidates under 35 are given decided preference. The fellowships are open not only for academic study (graduate) but also for any kind of training or experience (journalism, industry, labor, the arts, etc.) which may be most useful in developing varied talents and varied forms of leadership. Awards are expected normally to range from $1,000 to $3,000 depending on the nature of the proposed project and the financial need of the candidate. Awards are made annually by a special Committee on the basis of formal written applications by the candidates on forms provided by the John Hay Whitney Foundation. Completed applications must be filed not later than November 30 so as to assure ample time for processing applications, assembling references, and making selections. Awards are announced in April or May. Communications should be addressed to Opportunity Fellowships, John Hay Whitney Foundation, 630 Fifth Avenue, New York 20, N. Y.

The Social Science Research Council has announced the availability of the following fellowships and grants-in-aid: Research Training Fellowships, for persons who have demonstrated exceptional aptitude for research in social science and who wish to obtain more advanced research training than that provided in the usual Ph.D. program; Fellowships in Political Theory and Legal Philosophy, for young scholars who are pursuing theoretical and philosophic studies to secure training through research or further study of legal and political thought and institutions; Faculty Research Fellowships, for young social scientists who early in their careers have demonstrated conspicuous research ability and promise and need opportunity for the greater realization of this promise; Grants-in-Aid of Research, for individual investigators who need help to complete small research projects that are already well under way; Grants for Research on History of American Military Policy, for historians and other social scientists possessing the doctoral degree or its equivalent who desire to do research on American military policy between 1750 and 1939 (except the Civil War period); Grants for Slavic and East European Studies, for scholars engaged in research in the social sciences or in the humanities relating to the U.S.S.R., the Baltic states, Finland, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, Albania, and Yugoslavia; and Grants for Research on State Politics, for individual scholars possessing the doctoral degree or its equivalent to do research on political processes in a state or states of the United States. Applications should be filed not later than January 9, 1956, with the Social Science Research Council, 726 Jackson Place, N.W., Washington 6, D. C. Blanks may be obtained from the Council.

The American Political Science Association is sponsoring again next year ten Congressional Fellowships for political scientists and journalists. Preference will be given to applicants in the age group 25 to 35. The following types of experience and training are suggestive rather than binding: (1) completion of two years' graduate work in political science plus one year of experience in politics, teaching or public administration; or (2) A.B. degree (honor graduate) in political science or international relations, with two years of full-time practical experience in newspaper, radio or television work. Applications must be submitted prior to January 15. Awards will be announced in March. Preference will be given to candidates without extensive experience in Washington, D. C. Further information may be obtained from the American Political Science Association, 1726 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Washington 6, D. C.

The Ford Foundation is offering Fellowships for the academic year 1956-1957 for graduate training in the social sciences and the humanities related to Asia, the Near East, the Soviet Union, Eastern Europe and Africa. The purpose of these Fellowships is to help increase the number of American men and women who understand and can interpret the cultures, histories and current problems of these areas. The Fellowships are part of a broader Ford Foundation program to help meet the need in the United States for the knowledge and understanding of foreign areas that is required for the effective discharge of this country's increased international responsibilities. These are training fellowships intended to encourage the combination of foreign area knowledge with training in a discipline. They are not designed to support the research projects of mature and established scholars. Fellowship proposals should contribute to the applicant's overall training aims and to his ultimate career objectives. Awards will depend primarily on the quality and promise of the individual applicant. The need for increasing the number of Americans competent in disciplines now under-represented in foreign area studies will, however, be taken into account. Applicants should not ordinarily be over 40 years of age. Applications must be submitted on or before December 15, 1955. Application forms and further information may be obtained from the Ford Foundation, Att: Foreign Area Training Fellowships, 477 Madison Ave. (15th Floor), New York 22, N. Y.

The Ford Foundation is also offering for the academic year 1956-1957 a few fellowships for special graduate training related to international and foreign affairs. These awards will be made to exceptionally promising American men and women who seek to develop a combination of skills relevant to this general field which will contribute to their capacity to teach and do research. The fellowships are intended primarily for persons who wish to broaden their background for teaching and research by combining training in international relations with training in economics, history, political science, sociology, anthropology, philosophy, social psychology or related fields, or with training in the history and culture of one or more nations of Asia, the Near East, Africa, or the Soviet and East European areas; persons now studying or teaching a social science, other than international relations, or one of the related humanities, who wish to add at least one year's graduate training in international relations either as the basis for a career or to supplement their existing competence; or persons who have had specialized foreign area training who wish to supplement this with a year's training in international relations. In establishing individual stipends, the Foundation will take account of the applicant's qualifications, experience, present position, family status, and special expenses, including transporta-

FOOTBALL

Johnson C. Smith 18, Lincoln 12
Sophomore Bob McCoy was responsible for Lincoln's two touchdowns in the second half of the game. The Lions nearly evened the score in the last minutes of play on a 44-yard pass from Richard (Junior) Greene to Jordie Ewell, but the ball was lost on the succeeding play.

Lycoming College 18, Lincoln 6
Lincoln got its tally in the second period of play when Jordie Ewell grabbed a Lycoming pass on the 2-yard line and galloped 98 yards.

Virginia Union 19, Lincoln 0
Trying desperately for their first win on Homecoming, the Lions proved to be no match for the Panthers from down Virginia way.

Delaware State 18, Lincoln 0
The Hornets stung the Lions — but good!

Hampton 35, Lincoln 0
It was a good try, but availed nothing!

Lincoln 6, St. Paul 0
At long last victory — thanks to the Roxbury Rocket, Bob McCoy.

Shaw 41, Lincoln 0
The Shaw University Bears completely outclassed the Lincoln Lions.

SOCCER

Lincoln 2, Trenton State 2
Scoring for Lincoln were Gladstone Akpanah and Horace (Trinidad) Young in an effort to avenge last year's 3-2 defeat.

Howard 6, Lincoln 2
Akpanah and Karioki NJiri tried hard, but the Lions were no match for the Panthers in a thrilling game which ended with last year's score.

Elizabethtown 5, Lincoln 1
Edwin Moses was the lone scorer for Lincoln.

Rider College 2, Lincoln 1
Akpanah scored Lincoln's lone goal.

Carleton College has undertaken an in-service program for the improvement of college teaching. Eight instructors who recently have obtained their doctoral degrees are devoting one-fourth of their time to the project. The group meets weekly as an interdepartmental seminar to consider the organization, history, and philosophy of higher education, and to become familiar with good methods and materials used in college teaching through classroom visits and discussions with experienced members of college faculties. As a background for their study, they are familiarizing themselves with the college programs of admission, placement, records, and counseling in order to gain an understanding of their influences on the work of the classroom.

Talladega, Ala.

At the beginning of the year before I get too busy, I wish to congratulate you on the excellent issues of the Lincoln Bulletin. I look forward to each issue. It has been a means of my keeping up with what is taking place at the school and with the activities of the many Lincoln men I know. I also enjoy going through the directory.

James O. Hopson, '27

Powells ville, N. C.

Enclosed you will please find my check to cover my renewal of The Bulletin. It is my means of keeping in good connection with my Alma Mater.

T. M. Garriss, '32

Quogue, N. Y.

I would like to thank you very much for remembering me by sending The Lincoln Bulletin while I was in the Navy. The Bulletin is just about the only means I have of keeping posted on what goes on at Lincoln. Please accept my enclosed money order for a yearly subscription to the Bulletin.

Al Taylor, '53

Los Angeles, Cal.

I have just finished my copy of the Bulletin and enjoyed every page of it. It's a delightful lift from everyday routine to relive the days on the campus through the Bulletin and to keep up with classmates. Enclosed is my subscription fee of $1.00 and I am also enclosing a second dollar to pay for a subscription of the Bulletin to be mailed to my High School Library. The address is Booker T. Washington High School, Flora and Good Streets, Dallas, Texas. Continue this subscription each year and bill me. I hope to interest a few Texas men in Lincoln.

Emerson Emory, '48

Fayetteville, Tenn.

It was quite a treat for me to be back on the campus once more during the Commencement Exercises. I think everything was carried out nicely. I also enjoyed your report before the Alumni Association. Personally, I think that you are doing a swell job and that you are to be commended. I must confess that I too have been negligent in sending in my subscription for the Lincoln University Bulletin. I am enclosing a check for $4 which will pay for my Bulletin for the year 1955. I hope all Lincoln men will respond to your request. I think the Bulletin is a grand avenue through which all Lincoln men can be kept in touch with each other.

L. M. Donalson, '26

ALUMNI RELATIONS

Richmond, Va.

I appreciate your keeping me posted on the activities of Lincoln University. It has revived my interest which, to say the least, had become dormant.

C. L. Evans, '33

Siagon, Vietnam

Please find enclosed a check for $10.00 as my Annual General Alumni dues and one for $100.00 as a contribution to Lincoln. I wish it could be more. I am looking forward to returning to the U.S.A. early in 1956. Will then return to Lincoln to renew acquaintances.

Hildrus A. Poindexter, '24

Detroit, Mich.

I sincerely regret that your travel activities will be curtailed this coming school year, due to the fact you will be teaching at the University. I hope, however, that with your busy schedule you will be able to pay us a visit either the early part of the fall or for our Lincoln Day Program the early part of February.

H. Franklin Brown, '37

Raleigh, N. C.

I am secretary of the class of 1903. There are only six of us now living out of a class of thirty-five.

Dr. Horace Mann Bond
President
Lincoln University
Lincoln University, Pennsylvania

Dear Dr. Bond:

A few days ago I received the Lincoln University Bulletin. And following my usual pattern of reading "From The President's Desk" first, I noted some very kind remarks you had made about me, the Pittsburgh Alumni Chapter and alumni chapters as a whole.

To say thanks for the compliment paid me and the work our chapter is trying to do for Lincoln is a small return for Lincoln's investment in me and I believe that the men of our chapter share a similar feeling.

Within my experiences, men who have attended Lincoln have been most verbal in their praises and seemingly sincere love for dear ole Lincoln. I have observed what appears to be a feeling of oneness and a common bond among the men when our Alma Mater is sung. Yet, I believe we fail miserably when it comes to expressing our high praises, feeling of oneness and sincere love for Lincoln on a more tangible level. I am cognizant of the outstanding work many of the men are doing. I am merely pointing out the necessity of broadening the base and involving more men in the active work of the school which is our duty as alumni.

May I include a note about the position in which Dr. Farrell has served. I feel he has done an outstanding job in motivating men of Lincoln to think more realistically about our school, its problems and needs. Although there had been some planning in regard to organizing our own chapter, he provided the spark which brought into reality our plans. The support secured from his office has been most helpful to us in our organizational plans as well as programming. I hope some provision can be worked out whereby our school will be able to develop a strong recruiting department and at the same time the Alumni Chapters nationally will be in a stronger position to give more active support to every phase of Lincoln's program.

May I thank you again for your kind remarks and I hope you have had an enjoyable vacation.

Sincerely yours,

Edgar W. Flood, 1933
President
Pittsburgh Chapter
Lincoln Alumni Assoc.

A new program that will enable students to enroll at the University of Delaware for two years will be started next fall. Freshmen who do not want a four-year degree may select terminal-certificate programs in accounting, general business, secretarial duties, general arts and science, biological sciences, and chemistry.
college and university enrollment increased from approximately 1 1/3 million to 2 1/3 million — about 75 percent. Over the same period the educational income of these institutions, measured in terms of its actual purchasing power, increased only about 64 percent. Thus, at the end of the decade, our colleges and universities as a group had, on the average, about 6 percent less to spend per student than they had at the beginning. Meanwhile, the rapid advance of science and technology had made a good college or university course a much more expensive operation than it was in 1940. Since 1950 the financial squeeze on our colleges and universities has been intensified, largely because of another wave of price inflation touched off by the Korean War. In terms of actual purchasing power, the independent liberal arts colleges are now spending at least 20 percent less per student than they spent in 1940.

RESPONSIBILITIES

related? “The interest of businessmen,” he continues, “is attracted instinctively to the idea of helping those institutions which are doing the best job to help themselves.”

And so, I conclude with the ironic question familiar to most of you: “Must the graduates of today become the alumni of tomorrow?” My answer is no. Not merely the alumni of the cartoon! But I do believe that they can, in increasing measure, become productive members of our academic community if both they and the institution assume their responsibilities each to the other and both to the cause of higher education.

In Memoriam

“Time like an ever rolling stream
Bears all its sons away.”

Dr. Howard T. Jason, '92, '95s—died July 2, 1955, after a short illness in Dixie Hospital, Phoebeus, Va., where he resided with his daughter. Among his survivors are Dr. Robert Jason, '24, and Dr. Howard Jason, '29.

Dr. Millard F. Allen, '90—for fifty-seven years a practicing physician, Dr. Allen died September 7, 1955, in a convalescent home in New Haven, Conn.

George Woods, a New York restaurateur, who was made an honorary member of the Lincoln University Alumni Association by the Class of 1924 at its reunion in June, 1954, died September 9, 1955, in Sydenham Hospital, New York. Woods' induction into the Alumni Association was a tribute to his generosity in helping students through college. The Rev. Augustus E. Bennett, '10, who was attending the Centennial Commencement, inducted Woods at the Y. M. C. A. Lodge on the campus.

Bishop John W. Martin, '02, '05s—senior bishop of the A. M. E. Zion Church, Bishop Martin held, in addition to two earned degrees, three honorary degrees conferred by his alma mater. Active for years in the Chicago Chapter of the General Alumni Service, he set example for other alumni. Dr. Horace M. Bond was among those who paid tribute to this great alumnus, who died October 16, 1955, in Chicago and was buried October 20.

Dr. William M. Frazier, '25—president of Mississippi Industrial College, Dr. Frazier died at his campus home November 6, 1955. Funeral service and burial were held in Gary, Ind., on November 9.

Have You Remembered Lincoln University In Your Will?

FORM OF BEQUEST

To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $................................. to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
Some thirty-five years ago, under the leadership of the late Dr. George E. Cannon '93 (the late Dr. Walter G. Alexander, '99, said that the Alumni Association never amounted to much before Dr. Cannon took over), Lincoln alumni began the custom of making gifts to the institution at their Commencement reunions. These class reunion gifts have been substantial; the Class of 1925 holds the all-time record with its magnificent 20th reunion contribution in excess of $13,500, through which the existing track was constructed.

This year (and with the spirited help of Dr. George D. Cannon, '24) EACH alumnuus is urged to make a gift to the institution, with the target date of June 5—Commencement—for final reports.

Annual alumni gifts have become one of the biggest collegiate businesses. In 1954 reports show:

Princeton is the current champion in the percentage of alumni giving; Yale leads all the rest in the amount. The importance of Princeton's gift can be measured by realizing that it accounts for a sum equal to one third of Princeton faculty salaries.

We have set no goal in total amount. We HAVE set a goal in terms of participation. Naturally that goal is 100%. The smallest gift and the largest will be treasured to the same degree as they help us reach that goal.

Lincoln as an International Institution

We like to get letters from alumni, wherever they are. One we liked particularly came on January 20 from James G. Barringer, '50, who has been studying the erudite subject of Old Anglo-Saxon philology at the University of Bonn, with the help of a Fulbright Scholarship. He wrote: "During a recent visit to London, I chanced to meet Mr. Edward Blyden ('48; now lecturer in the University College at Freetown, Sierra Leone, West Africa) who sends kind thoughts to both you and Dean Hill. Later at Mr. Blyden's home I met Mr. Theodore Asare who was a classmate of mine (Asare is head of a Cooperative Bank in the Gold Coast and visits London frequently on special missions). It's always a special joy to greet another Lincoln man — especially so when one is very far from home."

Whether it's Times Square or Trafalgar, Broad Street, Central Avenue, State, Canal, "it's always a special joy," and has been for these 103 years! I liked the casual way in which James G. Barringer, philologist by way of Roanoke, Va., described his meeting with Blyden and Asare; and he was right, of course, for Lincoln University is truly an international institution.
CALENDAR OF UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES

November 6—The Rev. William Tapscott, pastor of the Morning Star Baptist Church of Catonsville, Md., was guest speaker at the Sunday morning service.

November 10—Mr. Lester Granger, executive secretary of the National Urban League, continued the series of University Assemblies devoted to vocations.

November 15—The Rev. Bryan Greene, noted British evangelist, was presented to students and faculty at the chapel hour by the Theological Seminary.

November 17—Dr. Robert S. Jason, '24, dean of the Howard Medical School, spoke to the student body on "Vocations in the Medical Sciences."

November 22—Herbert Albin, violinist, was presented in recital by the Lectures and Recital Committee.

January 15—The Rev. G. D. Kelsey, associate professor of Christian ethics at Drew University Theological Seminary, brought the Sunday morning message.

January 18—The Nieuw Amsterdam Trio was presented in recital by the Lectures and Recital Committee.

February 9—Rabbi William A. Sanderson, under the sponsorship of the Jewish Chautauqua Society, spoke at the University Assembly.

FIFTEEN OF THE FORTY-SIX MEMBERS of the Senior Class have biology as their major field. The class has four more members than last year's Senior Class, which also had fifteen biology majors. Chemistry has replaced political science as the second choice of the Seniors. Ten are majoring in Chemistry this year as compared with four last year. The five political science majors are one less than last year's majors. Following in order are sociology, 5; economics, 4; history, 2; mathematics, 2; religion, 1; physics, 1; and English, 1. Nearly all of the twenty-five biology and chemistry majors plan to enter medical or dental schools.

TODAY IN THE UNITED STATES are more than eight million college graduates. Fifty years ago about 1 in 24 persons of college age went to college; today nearly 1 in 4. Within ten years the college population will be greater by one-half. Within twenty years it will be doubled. These prospects are ordinary arithmetic. These boys and girls have been born. They are approaching college age. This is not a speculation about what may happen, but a simple account of what will happen. During the last World War ten million young men took the Army General Classification Test. This is the most formidable source of information which our country has ever had of the college-ability of American youth. It showed that nearly one-half would benefit from at least two years of college training, and that a third would benefit from a four-year college course. Of the young people of college age of average or greater native ability about 80 per cent now graduate from high school. Apparently over 60 per cent of the top fourth in ability in our high school graduates go to college; 40 per cent of the second fourth; about 30 per cent of the third fourth; and 20 per cent of the lowest fourth. These are impressive figures. They mean that nearly one-fourth of all the young people of college age in this country go to college. This proportion is more than five times as high as in England; seven times as high as in Germany; ten times as high as in France. These are simple statistics. But they have a tremendous meaning in America and around the world.

An Interesting Experience
In Race Relations

By HENRY H. MITCHELL

A recent Supreme Court decision caused quite a stir among Christians. Because so many are now troubled by all the complications relative to race relations, speaking of such problems is no longer as unwelcome as it was, even in the most staid circles. This is especially true when those who speak on this troublesome issue can report helpful examples of what can be and is being done to meet the challenge.

For some years many racially mixed schools have employed teachers and some principals of colored races. Here and there may be found a non-white pastor of a predominantly Caucasian congregation. We American Baptists are probably among America's most progressive at this point. I believe I hold a unique position. I am a Negro doing administrative work in a denominational office which serves a predominantly Caucasian group. After three years of such experience, maybe now it should be told how this feels and how it works from the inside.

Like many members of a disadvantaged minority, I was anxious to see something new get started. Then when it did, I began suddenly to be afraid. I was offered the post of field representative not as a racial experiment, but because of operational efficiency. The missionary savings looked good, but I wondered what it would cost my office in public relations.

I accepted the offer and began to work. Nothing untoward happened. Then I had to get into the touchiest problem in all race relations: restrictive covenants.

Not able to dodge the task, I proceeded fearfully toward the business of knocking on doors in a beautiful subdivision and requesting amendments to the covenants. With the necessary papers in pocket, I met three men from the church and prayed with them in their car. Then we went forth two by two to get signatures. On these depended a title policy, and on this depended the building of a New Frontiers church. Not a single family refused us. What cause for rejoicing!

The miracle was accomplished because the issue, after all, was not race. Even though restrictions are a delicate subject at best, the issue here was: "Shall we amend restrictions so that a church rather than a single family residence can be built on these four lots?" We had a plan and sketches to show our taste and architectural harmony. All agreed it would be an asset to the community.

I think I finished learning a lesson that day. Yes, the issue is not a race. The issue is "What work is there to be done, and who can best do it?" To be sure, this is not always true in the North and West. It can at times be a grave oversimplification. Nevertheless, it seems to me that Christians ought henceforth to assume that race is immaterial. They will be wrong, occasionally, and there will be problems. But in addition to being right most of the time, their very assumption will give needed education in the balance of cases.

I've sometimes wondered if my appearance is responsible for my ready acceptance. I would be more inclined to think so were it not for the fact that I had served this same area for seven years as a Negro missionary. While I may not look like a Negro, my wife and children do. My wife has had a happy experience in her nation-wide labors as an American Baptist teacher of church school teachers.

This almost color-blind world in which we live and work is all the more wonderful when you realize that a large percentage of our Northern California Baptists are fairly recently from the South. Time and again I have found people from "down yonder" hospitably insisting that I save missionary money by eating and sleep-

Joseph C. Waddy, '35, is among those distinguished alumni who have made outstanding contributions to the field of law. As a part of his work in the general practice of law, he represents three Negro railway labor organizations. While a comprehensive working knowledge of the entire field of railroad legislation is essential, Attorney Waddy's work is primarily in the courts and before administrative tribunals and is limited for the most part to labor problems as they peculiarly affect Negro railway workers. He has recently scored a sweeping victory for the men he represents.
Mrs. Lottie Wilson, for more than fifty years a member of the Lincoln University community, was tendered a testimonial banquet by the members of Beta Chapter of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity on December 14. Shown in the picture (l. to r.) are George K. Henry, '57, master of ceremonies; Dean Harold F. Grim, principal speaker; Mrs. Wilson and her husband, Alphonso Wilson, '16; and David Bridgeford, '56, president of the chapter. Beta Chapter had its beginning in Mrs. Wilson's home.

The Philosophy Club held a panel discussion on Wednesday, November 9, at 8 p.m. on the subject "Does Man Have a Free Will?" Speaking for determinism were Troy Chapman, '58, and McCaigher Gallagher, '57; and for indeterminism were Milton Coulthurst, '57, and Cecil Marquez, '57. George Nemethy, '56, was moderator. At the Thursday, December 1, meeting of the organization Dr. John Fisher of Temple University discussed "Kierkegaard and Modern Existentialism." The Rev. Preston Williams, assistant professor of religion, spoke to the members of the Philosophy Club on Wednesday, January 11, on "History and Our Future Hope" and reviewed Toynbee's A Study of History and Miller's The Use of the Past.

The Political Science Club held a panel discussion on Monday, November 21, at 8 p.m. on the subject "Is French Colonial Policy in North Africa Justifiable?" The subject was discussed from three viewpoints: the viewpoint of the North African, the viewpoint of the Continental Frenchman, and the viewpoint of a member of the world community. Participating in the discussion were Mrs. Lillian Lukaczer, the wife of Dr. Moses Lukaczer, adviser to the Political Science Club; David Carney, instructor in mathematics, who comes from Sierra Leone; overseas (African) students Herbert H. Thomas, '59, and Karioki Njiiri, '56; and American students, Paul Cannon, '56, and Harry Seay, '59. Dr. Sidney W. Salzburg, economist for the Department of Labor of New York City, was presented by the group on Wednesday, December 14. Speaking on the subject of "Labor Relations: A New Function in City Government," Dr. Salzburg stated that his choice of subjects was prompted by the recent merger of the CIO and AFL unions.

The Social Science Club held a panel discussion on Wednesday, November 30, at 8 p.m. on the subject "Scientific Advances and Their Social Good." The panel was made up of the following faculty members and students: Professor William Cole, Division of Natural Sciences; Associate Professor Donald Yelton, Division of Humanities; Paul Waters, '56, and Phillip Gerard, '56, students in the Division of Social Sciences; and Milton Corsey, '56, and Ernest Levister, '57, students in the Division of Natural Sciences.

The Biology Club, under the guidance of Dean Harold F. Grim, had Dr. Arthur H. Thomas, '29, as its speaker on Wednesday, December 7. Dr. Thomas, who is director of surgery at Mercy-Douglass Hospital in Philadelphia, spoke on “Narcotics, Its Usage and Evils.” On Thursday, February 23, the group listened to Dr. Albert Schatz, director of research and professor of microbiology at the National Agriculture College. Co-discoverer of streptomycin, Dr. Schatz spoke of “The Philosophy of Science.”

The Lincoln University Players scored a resounding success with their first production of the school year, “Twelve Angry Men,” which their director, Mr. Michael Lafferty, elected to do in a comparatively new medium known as “theater-in-the-round.” The play was presented three nights, Thursday and Friday, December 8 and 9, and again on Wednesday, December 14 for a performance that was cancelled on December 10. Heading the cast was Isaiah Smith, '56, president of the dramatic group. Other members of the cast were John L. Brooks, II, '59; James D. Lafayette, '59; Charles R. Brown, '58; Charles I. Williams, '57; Byron Reed, '59; Howard G. Skinner, '59; Lonnie E. Fuller, '56; Levan Gordon, '57; Cecil Marquez, Jr., '57; Herbert H. Thomas, '59; Charles Collins, II, '58; and Donald Keiffer, '59.

The Annual Christmas Carol Concert was presented by the Glee Club on Tuesday, December 13, at 8:30 p.m. in the Mary Dods Brown Memorial Chapel. Raymond Frith, baritone, was guest soloist. Under the capable direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern, II, the Glee Club was heard to advantage in such numbers as Beethoven’s “The Heavens Are Telling,” Palestrina’s “Adoramus Te, Christe,” Arcadelt’s “Ave Maria,”
The Seminary

Dean Andrew E. Murray occupied the pulpit of St. John's Presbyterian Church in Detroit on Seminary Sunday, January 8. The pastor of the church is the Rev. James E. Jones, '52, '54s.

Forrest Brown, a middler, and the Rev. Gustave Envela, a junior, attended the Quadrennial Conference of the Student Volunteer Movement held in Athens, Ohio, during the Christmas holidays.

Alpheus Bright, a senior, was the speaker at the Community Presbyterian Church in Wilmington, Del., on Seminary Sunday. The Rev. Maurice Moyer, '49, '52s, is pastor of the church.

On Tuesday, November 8 Chaplain Stanton W. Salisbury spoke to the Seminary on the Church's program for those in the armed forces. He stressed the importance of preparing our young people for the temptations they will face during their military service and the necessity of keeping in touch with them while they are serving their country. He reported on the efforts the armed forces are making to give moral guidance to those who enter the service.

The fall retreat of the Seminary was held at Kirkridge on November 21 and 22. There was a good attendance of students and faculty, and one alumnus was present. As always, it was a high point in the life of the Seminary, resulting in an eagerness to reach out for the new experiences which God has in store.

The annual Seminary Alumni Convocation was held on Tuesday, February 7, in Houston Hall. The theme was "Evangelism," with the convocation planned to help pastors carry out a dynamic program of winning men and women to Christ. The Rev. Donald G. Lester, associate secretary of the Division of Evangelism of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., gave the opening address and outlined the theme for the day. Seminar groups considered various aspects of a program of evangelism. The closing address was made by the Rev. Alfred L. Pugh, '48, '51s, pastor of the Mt. Ararat Baptist Church in Rutherford, N. J.

A week of special programs, November 27 through December 5, marked the joint celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of the Berean Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia, and the forty-fifth anniversary in the ministry of its pastor, the Rev. Dr. Benjamin F. Glaseo.

1933

The Rev. Dr. Leonard G. Carr, pastor of the Vine Memorial Church and treasurer of the National Baptist Convention of America, was recently elected to the Board of Directors of the Carver Loan and Investment Company in Philadelphia. Dr. Carr founded the Vine Memorial Church over twenty years ago, and under his capable direction and leadership it has grown to be one of the nation's largest institutional churches.

1950

The Rev. Norman M. Rates has recently been appointed chaplain at Spelman College in Atlanta.

The Rev. John H. Wilson has been installed as pastor of the Bethany Presbyterian Church inEnglewood, N. J. He is now residing at 209 Englewood Avenue in Englewood.

1953

The Rev. John H. Scott, Jr., has accepted the position of college chaplain and teacher of religion and social science at Leland College in Baker, La. He has already begun his preaching ministry in the college chapel and will start teaching the second semester.

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination (announcement No. 48B) for social worker (general) and social worker (child welfare) for duty in the Bureau of Indian Affairs of the Department of the Interior. The positions are located in the Southwest, Rocky Mountain, Far West, and central areas of the United States and in Alaska. Except for social-worker positions headquartered in area offices, duty stations generally are located on Indian reservations in isolated rural areas often at some distance from the nearest urban community. Therefore, ability to adjust to association with a limited number of people in such isolated situations is essential to success in these positions. Ability to drive a car is essential for positions located on reservations and the applicant must be able to demonstrate such ability prior to appointment. When available, furnished quarters are provided by the Government for appointees at rates comparable to prevailing prices in the particular area.

Social workers (general) provide case and general social services for Indian people living on reservations or in districts under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Indian Affairs. These services include assisting Indians to improve their social and personal adjustment in matters of health, medical care, employment, housing, use of income, and administration of general assistance. They obtain or provide protective services for children in their own homes and placement of children away from their homes, when necessary, in foster homes, institutions, and through adoptions. They work with tribes and with appropriate agencies toward the strengthening of family life, the development of community action for betterment of living conditions, and integration as citizens of their local community, county, and state. In the higher grades they play, administer, supervise, or coordinate programs in the above work.

Social workers (child welfare) evaluate the social needs of Indian children; provide or secure through appropriate public, voluntary, and tribal agencies protective and other casework services for children in their own homes or in foster care; work with tribes and other appropriate agencies toward the strengthening of family life and the development of community action for children. In the higher grades they plan, direct, supervise or coordinate programs in the above activities.

No written test is required. Applicants' qualifications will be rated on a scale of 100, on the basis of an evaluation of their technical competence and ability as well as experience, education, and training as stated in their applications and on any additional evidence secured. Added credit in rating will be given to that experience acquired immediately following technical training. Applicants who qualify on experience and/or training may be required to appear for an interview. Notice will be given in advance of the date and place of the interview. Traveling expenses incurred by the applicants must be paid by them. The interviews will be conducted at points as convenient as conditions permit. The standard interview is designed to determine whether or not applicants have the personal characteristics that are necessary to deal effectively with the people contacted and the situations encountered in these positions. Among the personal traits considered will be presence, manner, self-expression, patience, flexibility, initiative, and resourcefulness. Application forms may be secured from the Board of United States Civil Service Examiners, Bureau of Indian Affairs, Department of the Interior, Washington 25, D. C.

Chemists, mathematicians, electronic scientists, metallurgists, and physicists are needed in various Federal agencies in Washington, D. C., and vicinity (announcement 46B). The National Bureau of Standards is one of the principal Federal agencies for basic and applied research in physics, chemistry, mathematics, and engineering. The National Institutes of Health, major research branch of the Public Health Service, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, conducts research in all types of medical and related activities.

INTERESTING EXPERIENCE

ing in their homes. A most safe and conservative judgment in this matter would be that southern extraction has not at any place been a liability to brotherhood in my work.

Some have tried to debunk this unexpectedly good acceptance of mine by pointing out that it would be foolish to antagonize a man who has considerable influence on appropriations for salary aid and building loans. Even if it were true, which I doubt, it might be well to use others like me for this kind of work just for the subtle power it gives to the re-education of the receiver! As for myself, I find the response just as warm among fully self-supporting churches, with no need for apple polishing.

Several of my eastern friends who just can’t believe my report have advanced the idea that “some guys just push their way into anything.” They don’t seem to know that Baptists don’t push very easily. It might be said that the path was prepared by purposeful acceptance and seeking of responsibility. This might be mistaken for over-aggressiveness, but if it actually had been it would hardly have accomplished the result.

The happiest phase of this work to me as an individual lies in the deep satisfaction that comes in the belief that God Himself has placed me here. A lifetime of seeming rebuffs now appears to have forced me into a variety of experiences all of which are useful now. There is profound joy in feeling that He was at work in all those events. My life is full of interesting people and ever new challenges and is undergirded by the conviction that all I ever learned in college or seminary, or in a multitude of jobs, was simply preparation for work in the Kingdom at such a time and place as this. I have the feeling also that God must have prepared others, others whom we may have overlooked. Next time you ask God for a Kingdom servant, ask Him to look among all His children. There is no telling what showers of blessing can come from such yielding, both upon you and him whom God sends.

Adams' "Cantique de Noel," and Handel's "Hallelujah." The congregation joined the Glee Club in singing such Christmas favorites as "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," "We Three Kings of Orient Are," and "Silent Night, Holy Night." Mr. Frith sang Handel's "Thus Saith the Lord" and "But Who May Abide" and McGimsey's "Sweet Little Jesus Boy." On Thursday, January 12, the Glee Club sang at the annual banquet of the Pennsylvania Potato Growers Association held in connection with the Annual Farm Show in Harrisburg.

The Y.M.C.A. Cabinet was host to the village children on Thursday, December 15, at 8 p.m., when it gave its annual Christmas party in the Little Theater.

The Chemistry Club, which has George K. Henry, '57, as president and Dr. DeForest Rudd as adviser, has been increasing its chemical knowledge beyond the scope of regular classroom work by means of papers presented by students with at least a C-average in twelve hours of chemistry and the desire to become a member of the organization. The group has held meetings on December 15, January 5, and January 19, at which papers have been read by Paul Cannon, '56 (iron and steel), William Womack, '57 (temperatures), and George Nemethy, '56 (glass). Guest speakers and lectures by Dr. Rudd and Dr. Leroy Johnson are scheduled for future meetings.

George Nemethy, '56, who is majoring in chemistry, has received a $1300 fellowship in chemistry at Cornell University for the school year 1956-57.

JOB OPPORTUNITIES

In the Department of the Army appointments will be made to the following organizations: the Army Map Service, an independent installation reporting to the Chief of Engineers, employing principally mathematicians; the Army Medical Service Graduate School of Walter Reed Army Medical Center, the primary center for basic research on medical problems of military significance; the Diamond Ordnance Fuze Laboratories, an installation with the important function of conducting research and development in the various physical sciences and engineering to produce fuzes for use in bombs, rockets, mortar shells, land mines, guided missiles, and similar weapons; the Office of the Chief Chemical Officer, which directs the performance of research necessary for the development and procurement of chemical, biological, and radiological materials; the Office of the Chief of Ordnance, which provides for the research, development, manufacture, distribution, and disposal of ordnance materiel; the Office of the Chief Signal Officer, which is responsible for the development and provision of new or improved equipment or methods in signal communications, including electronics and in photography; and the Office of the Quartermaster General, responsible for the design, research, development, and testing of quartermaster supplies which will meet the most exacting requirements of combat and service conditions.

Similar positions are available in the Department of the Navy, the Department of the Air Force, Agricultural Research Service, the Bureau of Mines, the Food and Drug Administration, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, and the U. S. Weather Bureau. If you are interested in these positions, get Card Form 5001-ABC from the nearest post office or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C, and after filling the form out completely according to the directions given, send it to The Executive Secretary, Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, National Bureau of Standards, Washington 25, D. C. After the card has been received by the Board, you will be sent more detailed information about the education, experience, and physical requirements, other information of general interest to applicants.

Letters

St. Thomas, V. I.

I received the fall issue of the Bulletin and enjoyed reading it very much. It is most gratifying to know that the enrollment is increasing to the point where all of our dormitory facilities are 100% in use. I enclose hereewith a check for $8.00. Would you please send me a copy of Lincoln University Poets and the Centennial Alumni Directory.

This will acknowledge receipt of the Fall Bulletin, and I enjoyed reading this copy very much. The Bulletin usually relays to me news that I would have otherwise been several years getting. I think this is the only channel by which all Lincoln men can keep abreast of what is happening on the campus as well as of former classmates.

L. M. Donaison, M.D., '26
Norfolk, Va.

Greetings for the year and many thanks for the fine line of Bulletins in the past. We here in the Tidewater area are in the painful throes of what appears to be a continual reorganization . . . I have contended since the formation of this chapter that alumni chapters are more than glorified "bull sessions" that just happened because a geographical proximity fosters a more than often infrequent gathering of these genuinely sincere "old-timers." Lincoln can be only as strong as the individual and collective strength of chapters and any local program that is not based, either directly or indirectly, upon the immediate or remote university program is doomed from the start . . . Any suggestions that you think will assist us in the program launching will be greatly appreciated.

Winston "Mike" Tyler, '31
Ambridge, Pa.

I received a card sometime back and then a more recent letter from Dean Murray of the Seminary there inviting me to attend the Seminary Convocation (Feb. 7th). I couldn't make the affair but I did send him $50 to use any way he chose in the interest of the school. I'm telling you about this because it was you that brought me back to Lincoln and put my name in the Directory of former Lincoln men.

FORM OF BEQUEST
To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $................................. to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
From The President's Desk

The Trustee Meeting held April 21 was largely concerned with the progress of what the president of the Board, Attorney Lewis M. Stevens, characterized as the "biggest building program in Lincoln's history." The new McRary Dormitory to house 124 men is well on its way toward completion. Preliminary plans for a new dining room-student union were approved; under these plans the old McCauley Refectory will be remodelled to provide meeting rooms for fraternities and other groups, with a snack bar, a recreation room with billiards and other games, student organization offices, and a small orchestra practice room for "hot jazz," "swing," or "sweet" music groups — whatever may be the reigning style when the building is remodelled. The new dining room building will have space to seat 350 persons at once for meals — cafeteria style, a large and elegantly appointed lounge, and all of the usual accessories. The basement will include space for four bowling alleys and additional recreation space.

Also approved were the following: preparation of plans for a new science building, variously estimated to cost from $200,000-$400,000; a survey and the preparation of preliminary plans to develop a nine-hole golf course; the all-weather surfacing of two tennis courts; and the construction of a new baseball field and handball courts.

The Board also authorized salary increases for faculty members that range up to 15% but average 8%. Salary increases for administrative personnel were set at a flat percentage of slightly less than 8%.

Advance registration was reported to indicate a prospective 20% student enrollment increase for the 1956-57 term.

A brief report of recruiting activities by Mr. Hobart, our field representative, follows herewith.

Notes On Recruiting

by JOHN H. HOBART Field Representative

The number of persons of college age in the United States is now at its lowest point in 25 years, and any increase in the total number of applications received is occasioned by a higher percentage of students seeking to enter college. That this increase is coming largely from the lower half of the graduating classes is evidenced by the poor academic standing of many of the applicants.

This is a period when the help of alumni, and other concerned friends of Lincoln University, is urgently needed to seek out good students and encourage them to apply for admission to the college.

A splendid example of what can be accomplished by an interested and alert alumni association is furnished by the Pittsburgh Chapter of the General Alumni Association.

I spent five days in Pittsburgh February 20-25 visiting six high schools and attending two evening meetings of student clubs, contacting a total of seventy-six potential college students. This busy schedule was arranged by the Reverend LeRoy Patrick, president of the Pittsburgh Chapter.

Another trip of special interest and promise was made through New England early in March. Schools were visited in Greenwich, Bridgeport, New Haven, Hartford, Springfield and Providence, and twenty-four prospective applicants were interviewed. In addition, valuable contacts were made with student advisors and high school principals in the area, most of whom were very friendly and cooperative.

The Atlantic City Chapter of the Alumni Association, under the chair-

CALENDAR OF UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES

February 12—The Rev. Dr. J. Oscar Lee, '31, race relations secretary of the National Council of Churches, brought the morning message to mark the beginning of Religious Emphasis Week.

February 23—David Bar-Illan, pianist, was presented in recital by the Lectures and Recitals Committee.

March 1—The Rev. Gayraud Wilmore, '47, continued the series of University Assemblies devoted to vocations. He spoke on "Religious Vocations."

March 15—Mr. Douglas Cornell, executive officer of the National Academy of Sciences and Natural Research Council, addressed students and faculty on the subject of "Satellites and Civilization."

April 5—The Y.M.C.A. Cabinet and the Lectures and Recitals Committee jointly sponsored the appearance of Mrs. Yvonne Mapp in a piano recital. Mrs. Mapp is the wife of Mr. Isaac Mapp, '49, instructor in biology.

April 12—Mr. B. G. Dunavant of Isotopes Extension, U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, was guest speaker at the University Assembly. His subject was "Radioisotopes—New Keys to Knowledge."

April 29—The Rev. James W. Parrish, pastor of the Shiloh Baptist Church in Columbus, Ohio, was guest speaker at the Sunday morning service.

OTHER MOVE ON THE PART OF BUSINESS to come to the financial aid of American colleges and universities has been announced by Smith, Kline and French Foundation, a philanthropic organization created by Smith, Kline and French Laboratories, a Philadelphia pharmaceutical firm. The Foundation will match with donations of its own all contributions made annually by individual SKF Laboratories employees to four-year accredited college or universities from which they hold earned degrees, or which they attended for at least two full academic years. No distinction will be made between privately-endowed or tax-supported colleges. The Foundation's plan, referred to as the organization's Corporate Alumnus Program, is aimed primarily to help colleges and universities "augment required capital and general operating funds, provide for extended student enrollment, strengthen educational facilities and curricula, and improve incentives for the highest quality of teaching." Apportionment of the grants for these purposes will be left entirely to the discretion of the institution. Francis Boyer, president of Smith, Kline and French Laboratories, pointed out that while SKF's first consideration with respect to education "has been and still is with the medical and allied sciences, for which it has long maintained a continuing program of financial support," the Foundation has a responsibility to do what it can to aid college and university training generally.

THE NUMBER OF PERSONS OF COLLEGE AGE is now at its lowest point in twenty-five years. On July 1, 1955, there were roughly 15,100,000 persons 18 to 24 years old, compared with 16,000,000 in 1950, 16,600,000 in 1940, and 15,500,000 in 1930. This group has been declining slowly from its 1943-44 peak of about 16,900,000 as persons born during the 1930's reached college age and replaced those in the group born during the late 1920's. The college-age group is now made up entirely of persons born during the depression years, when birth rates were at the lowest point in our history. For the remainder of this decade, small annual gains will be registered, however. Between 1960 and 1965 the group will grow quite rapidly as the major wave of "war babies" and the initial wave of postwar babies reach college age, gaining, on the average, about 4 percent per year during this period. By 1965, persons of college age will number one-third more than at present (July 1955). The group will continue to grow at a relatively rapid pace:

Two years ago at Commencement time, Lincoln men and friends of the institution celebrated with great rejoicing the 100th year of the pioneer Negro college on the American scene. The founders and the staff of educators who followed them were acclaimed for their deep devotion to service and remarkable competence in training men. Lincoln men had every reason to be proud of their Alma Mater: no other Negro college could approach her record with respect to the high proportion of citizens of distinction among her graduates.

The sparkling achievements of Lincoln men, in practically every field of endeavor, cannot, however, be explained solely in terms of the high quality of instruction and guidance they received from the faculty. Aside from good teachers, Lincoln also provided within her walls a scholarly environment, an atmosphere of academic competition, a high level of esprit de corps — generally referred to as "the Lincoln Spirit" — and some degree of isolation from urban distractions. It would be difficult to assay the relative value of each of these factors in contributing to Lincoln's production of successful graduates in her first century of existence. There are probably additional factors, even more intangible in nature, which deserve a part of the credit.

But institutions cannot rest on their past laurels. When they fail to keep abreast of the times they are discarded in favor of other institutions better able to serve the social needs of the moment.

What does the future, both immediate and long-range, hold for Lincoln? The drop in enrollment and scholarship in recent years could mean that she is losing her drawing power in the student market. Have colleges that once ranked far below Lincoln in prestige increased so rapidly in stature in the past decade or two that they now out-draw Lincoln? Or, has Lincoln retrogressed in the meanwhile through failure to maintain the standards of the past? Has the scholarly environment at Lincoln deteriorated? Is academic competitiveness less in evidence today? Is the "Lincoln Spirit" dead or dying? Has the isolation of Lincoln in terms of its geographical location changed from an advantage to a handicap? Can the situation be explained by the fact that Lincoln depends almost wholly on the fluctuating male segment of the student market?

An answer must also be found for another question which all Negro colleges which will be called upon to face: Is there a future for Negro colleges as such? Assuming that the answer will be in the negative, these colleges regardless of their past prestige, must become interracial in character or pass off the scene. In view of her location north of the Mason-Dixon line, it would seem that Lincoln must take the lead in integrating its student body, not in a token manner but substantially. But will Lincoln be able to compete successfully for white graduates of high schools in the state with Swarthmore, Haverford, Bucknell, Temple, Lafayette and the University of Pennsylvania?

There is no simple formula for reaching a solution to the problems Lincoln faces as she begins her second century. The best minds among her academic staff and alumni must be brought to bear on the situation. There is no point in dissipating the energies of these minds in charges and countercharges as to what person or persons are responsible for the existing state of affairs. The situation calls for the setting aside of personal ill-feeling and smoldering grudges and the pooling of all resources that will help Lincoln to grow and prosper.

The first step to be taken must be that of assembling and analyzing the facts in the case. The specific areas of the total problem should be sketched out and persons of broad experience in

The Norman E. Gaskins Memorial Fund

IN MEMORIAM
Norman Edward Gaskins
1912 - 1955
Devoted teacher;
Friendly colleague;
Cooperative colleague;
Patient Christian;
Lincoln University
Graduate 1934;
Member of the Lincoln University Faculty in the Department of Chemistry
1937 - 1955
Requiescat in Pace.

We wish to take this opportunity to express our thanks to the many friends of the late Norman E. Gaskins for their aid in establishing a memorial to him.

We have received donations in the amount of one thousand one hundred five dollars ($1,105.00). This enables us to present to the University a fund of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) to endow a prize in Organic Chemistry, which will be known as the Norman E. Gaskins Memorial Prize.

On Sunday, February 19, 1956, the first anniversary of his passing, there was unveiled and dedicated a bronze plaque bearing the above inscription.

Dean Harold F. Grim paid a beautiful tribute to Norman in the unveiling address. Dr. Andrew E. Murray of the Seminary offered the dedicatory prayer.

Mrs. Ermalene Gaskins, the widow, and sons, Norman, Jr., and Owen, were present for the occasion.

The plaque is in the southwest corner of the Mary Dod Brown Chapel.

We are very grateful to all who helped to make this memorial possible.

The Seminary

During the last two weeks of March, a team from the Theological Seminary of Lincoln University (Pa.) visited colleges in the Southern states. The team was made up of Dr. Andrew E. Murray, dean of the Seminary, and two senior students in the Seminary, Alpheus Bright, of Bridgeport, Conn., and Galen Work of Kennett Square, Pa. The purpose of the trip, which had been planned before the recent disturbances in Tuscaloosa and Montgomery, Alabama, was to visit students on college campuses and to challenge them to enter the Christian ministry. As it turned out, the team was able to make many contacts with groups and individuals who are working to reduce racial tension and create an atmosphere of good-will.

In every place the team visited, the way was opened by Lincoln alumni who showed the most gracious hospitality and arranged for meetings with those who could assist in the team's mission. The three have many pleasant memories of visits with alumni, and report that Lincoln men are active in many ways in their local communities and churches.

Although there are many depressing aspects of the present situation in the Southern states, the group was encouraged by many positive efforts which were being made. These are the items which are not reported in the headlines, but which are helping to build for the future. In Montgomery, Alabama, for example, the courageous leadership of the ministers in leading the bus boycott has brought a new respect for the church, even on the part of those who were formerly indifferent to religion. It was noticed that more young men were thinking of the Christian ministry as a result of the example of the Rev. Martin L. King of Montgomery. In the past few years there has been a serious shortage of qualified young men entering the ministry, but there seems to be (Continued on Page 19)
Scholarships, Fellowships &
Job Opportunities

- Flint Junior College of Flint, Mich., is planning to expand its faculty by the addition of approximately twenty-five instructors. The college is experiencing unusually fast growth and is desirous of finding outstanding young men and women with sound educational backgrounds who are good teachers. Preference will be given to those who have or are near the Ph.D., but consideration will be given to candidates who have at least an M.A. degree and some teaching experience. Applications are desired for the following areas: business, business machines, history, physics, biology, speech, economics, mechanical drawing, languages, political science, chemistry, English, mathematics, physical education, and psychology. Address all correspondence to Dean Clyde E. Blocker.

- The Counselor Placement Bureau of the Association of Private Camps, 55 W. 42nd St., New York 36, N.Y., offers free placement service to those who like outdoor life and working with youth during the summer. Varied positions are offered for counsellors and leaders in the following areas: waterfront, athletics, tennis, golf, music, dancing, kindergarten, general activities, nature study, horseback riding, pioneering, arts, crafts, ceramics, riflery, fencing, and auxiliary camp functions. Salaries depend upon specific position and individual background. In order to maintain high standards of camping, a minimum of nineteen years and completion of one year of college are required. Experience is desirable but not essential for all types of positions. The camps are located in New York State, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, and Canada.

- Predoctoral fellowships are available for Negroes in the biological and physical sciences related to medicine through funds provided by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The fellowships cover a period of one to three years depending upon the time needed for completion of the Ph. D. degree. The program of the first year's work should be presented in detail together with evidence of approval by the institution concerned. The candidate should submit the names of three references from whom confidential information may be obtained concerning his professional qualifications. Stipends ordinarily range from $150 to $200 per month during each year of nine to twelve months. Marital and dependency status will be considered and adjustments based on the individual needs of each applicant may be made. Application blanks are available from the National Medical Fellowships, Inc., 951 E. 58th St., Chicago 37, Ill., which will forward nominations for fellowships to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., for action and announcement of awards.

- The United States Government is offering challenging and interesting employment to agricultural research scientists, who are needed in many optional fields. For example, the Smithsonian Institution offers unique opportunities for research in systematic zoology and botany, involving study of all groups of animals and plants. The positions to be filled are in Washington, D.C., and vicinity, and other locations throughout the United States, including territories and possessions. If you are appointed, you will probably work in the Department of Agriculture, but you may also be considered for positions in other Federal agencies, including the Department of the Interior and the Smithsonian Institution, which afford unique opportunities for research in systematic zoology and botany, involving study of all groups of animals and plants.

To qualify for these positions you must have a bachelor's or graduate degree from an accredited college or university, with major study in or related to the optional field or specialization for which you apply. You must also have had from one to three years of professional experience that shows ability to perform productive research work. Graduate work with major study in or related to the optional field or specialization for which you are applying may be substituted for experience up to a maximum of two years of exmanship of Mr. C. Morris Cain, sponsored a Lincoln University Day in Atlantic City on Sunday, February 12. Ten pulpits in the city's churches were occupied in the morning by Lincoln faculty or students from the Seminary. In the afternoon a public meeting was held in the high school and Judge Herbert E. Millen and Dr. Horace M. Bond were the principal speakers. This effort was followed up by the Atlantic City Chapter bringing nineteen students by bus for a day's visit to Lincoln on Wednesday, February 22, altogether a most worthwhile undertaking.

Seven public high schools in Philadelphia have been visited, but so far the student response is disappointing. There is a golden opportunity for the alumni to work more intensively among prospective students throughout this whole area. A special effort was made to stimulate interest in Lincoln in its local community. All the Chester County high schools were visited and, although the number of students contacted was small, the helpful attitude of the student advisers and principals was particularly encouraging, and we look toward a steadily growing enrollment of local students during these next few years.

Visits to the high schools in Dover, Middletown, and Wilmington, Del., were made also in March; and eight students expressed their interest in Lincoln.

During April twenty-two high school students were interviewed in Washington, D.C., and eleven in Baltimore. The high schools in all the major towns and cities in Pennsylvania have been visited during the year, but I feel it would be impossible to over-emphasize the importance of some primary work at the school and among the students by a local resident who is an alumnus, or good friend of Lincoln University. Where this has happened the effectiveness of my visit is increased tremendously, and I should like to hear from any who are willing to help with this work.

each area recruited to work out the most effective approach to a solution. Following this, the administration, alumni, students, faculty, and trustees must pledge their collective support and operate as a unit in the direction indicates by wisdom and objective inquiry. The administration and faculty must expand their imagination and vision into new areas of education in keeping with the trends of the time. The alumni must contribute funds and support in helping to revitalize Lincoln and in safeguarding her high prestige among American colleges.

There is no longer time for pettiness and division; there must be no further delay in organizing all forces and resources for wise planning and expeditious action.

a slight shift in the direction of greater interest in the ministry. If this is true, then the work of Lincoln's Seminary, which is completely integrated, will be increasingly significant in the years immediately ahead. Church groups are very eager to employ Lincoln graduates, and the only regret is that there are so few to offer them.

Two recent Seminary alumni are now affiliated with the Presbyterian Church, U.S., which is rapidly expanding its Negro work. Henry B. Sweet, '24, '53s, is celebrating the first anniversary of the church he organized in Atlanta. Although the congregation is just one year old, it has already completed plans for a new church building and construction is to begin in the near future. William Taylor, '54s, who is minister of the only Presbyterian U. S. church for Negroes in Charlotte, N. C., has had wonderful success in his ministry. The church building, which was completed recently at a cost of over $75,000, is the center for an active community program. No less than five basketball teams are sponsored by the church, together with a day nursery and scout troops.

Frank Gordon, '39, '42s, of Knoxville, carries a heavy load of work in a well-established church. In addition to his pastoral duties he takes graduate work at the University of Tennessee, teaches at Knoxville College, and is active in the N.A.A.C.P. Although he was defeated in his recent bid for election to the Knoxville School Board, he received a surprisingly large vote in a very hotly contested election.

In Mississippi the group visited with Caesar Coleman, '50s, who now directs the leadership education program of the C.M.E. Church. He travels extensively, and carries a heavy load of responsibility.

William Mercer, '41, '44s, who serves a Presbyterian, U.S.A., church in Atlanta, is making plans for the relocation of the church in a new suburban development. Also in Atlanta, the team had an opportunity of seeing the work Norman Rates, '50s, is carrying on as chaplain of Spelman College.

This brief account mentions only some of the Seminary alumni the team met. There is not space to mention all the Lincoln men who helped the team on its tour. It is certain that their efforts will mean a great deal to the Seminary as it seeks to attract the best young men to train for the ministry at Lincoln.

Dr. Donald M. Davies represented the Seminary at the inauguration of the new president of Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Va.

Galen Work, a senior, was licensed by the Presbytery of Chester at its last regular meeting. He delivered the morning address on May 5 in Mary Dods Brown Memorial Chapel.

The Rev. Ernest Lilley, pastor of the Malvern Presbyterian Church, spoke to the Seminary on "Audio-Visuals in the Church" on Wednesday, April 18.

The Rev. Arnold Kuhl, field director of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Synod of Pennsylvania, presented books to students in the Seminary on Wednesday, April 25. The books are an annual gift of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education.

On Thursday, May 3, the Seminary-Annies, wives of Seminary students, held an open meeting and a covered-dish supper at the Old Guest House. Mrs. William G. Silbert, wife of the minister of the Presbyterian Church in Phoenixville, Pa., was the speaker.

The Rev. James Parrish of Columbus, Ohio, spoke to Seminary classes on April 26 and 27.

A Student Poll On Athletic Scholarships

By DR. HORACE M. BOND

According to a student poll taken on April 26, the student body is overwhelmingly in favor of granting athletic scholarships. Of 187 students voting, 172 (92%) said they favored the practice.

When it was pointed out that someone had to pay for athletic scholarships, and when asked if the student was willing to bear the cost of various amounts of subsidization through increased student athletic fees, the following vote resulted:

| Not Voting | 12 (6.4%) |
| Unwilling to pay anything | 51 (27.2%) |
| Willing to pay $15 more | 56 (29.9%) |
| Willing to pay $28 more | 27 (14.4%) |
| Willing to pay $35 more | 32 (17.1%) |
| Willing to pay $70 more | 9 (4.8%) |

The “administration” takes this poll with entire seriousness. The implications will be considered, in proper order, by the Faculty Committee on Athletics, the Faculty Administration, and by the Board of Trustees.

It may be well to recall here the basic principle of amateurism as defined by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, to which Lincoln University (through the CIAA) belongs:

“An amateur athlete is one who engages in athletics for the physical, mental or social benefits he derives therefrom, and to whom athletics is an avocation. One who takes or has taken pay, or has accepted the promise of pay, in any form, for participation in athletics or has directly or indirectly used his athletic skill for pay in any form does not meet this definition of an amateur.”

Yet the NCAA does approve of “athletic Scholarships” to the extent of “commonly accepted educational expenses.” A great many persons cannot reconcile this practice with the principle of amateurism quoted above from NCAA standards. The “Wes” Santee case has rightly stirred the American public to re-examine the inconsistencies and hypocrisies of our “amateur” code, especially where the granting, by colleges, of “athletic scholarships” is concerned.

My own and principal objection to granting athletic scholarships is that the money I am called upon to administer, as president of Lincoln University, was not given to provide special assistance to young men specially endowed with extraordinary qualities of motor coordination, physical agility, and muscular strength. These are admirable qualities, and I share, with millions of other Americans, the highest admiration for those, in and out of our student body, who possess these special attributes. I disagree altogether with the NCAA in one of its other “principles” that frowns upon extension of special assistance to athletes by persons outside of the college. I see no reason, for example, (aside from the “principle of amateurism” which should, I think, immediately bar all types of athletic scholarships) why, if the NCAA allows any form of assistance to athletics, a wealthy alumnus should not be permitted to support an otherwise acceptable student in college, because John Q. Jones wants to spend his money in that way.

Indeed, it seems to me much more ethical for the college to permit athletes to be financed in this way than in the way apparently sanctioned by the NCAA; and that is, to permit funds given for general educational purposes to be siphoned off to the special support of athletes.

If Lincoln University students are able, and willing, to provide special assistance to athletes among their number, from their own contributions in increased fees I, for one, would be in favor of letting them do so.

The University is now spending approximately $20,000 a year—excluding coaching salaries—for an extensive program of intercollegiate athletics, that covers football, soccer, basketball, wrestling, tennis, track and field, and baseball. This amounts to approximately $70 per student per year. The General Fee from students, listed to cover charges for library, health, athletic events, and non-academic student activities is set at $60.00 each year.

If we now—openly and honestly—increased this General Fee by from $15 to $25 to be collected from students and set aside the amount realized (from $4,500 to $7,500) for making special grants to athletes I should favor doing so. I would also favor giving to students wide powers over nominating the potential recipients of such assistance; although here we would run athwart another NCAA “principle”, which is that all forms of athletic aid should be “administered by” and through “its regular committees or other agencies for the awarding of scholarships and grants-in-aid to students generally.”

I have long believed that one of the great mistakes made in American colleges, over the years, in the administration of athletics, was to transfer controls, as well as support, successively from students to athletic administrators. When intercollegiate athletics were young—fifty years ago—at Lincoln and elsewhere, students financed, managed, and coached all of their athletics. The English still do it that way; and a system that can produce Roger Bannisters and John Landys is not lightly to be dismissed as impracticable.

My strong belief is for increasing student responsibility for the self-management, control, and support, of his own activities, including athletics. Hence my entire willingness to accede to our student will to have athletic scholarships—if they will pay for them.

LETTERS

GRATEFUL ALUMNUS

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the members of the Faculty and the student body who were so kind to my family and me during my recent illness. I especially want to thank those members of the student body who were able to donate blood to me when it was so urgently needed.

The response was typical of the unselfish attitude of Lincoln men which has continued to prevail through the years.

Each year Lincoln recognizes by observance of Honors Day the achievements of those individual students who have attained excellence in general scholarship and in other fields of meritorious endeavor.

Awards now exist only in the areas or fields of English and Public Speaking, Natural Science, Athletics and Scholarship, and the Bible.

There are at present no awards offered for distinctive achievement in such areas of the humanities as classical and foreign languages or historical studies. Nor are there any awards in the areas of the Social and Behavioral Sciences, such as psychology, sociology, anthropology, political science and economics.

The interest of alumni or alumni groups who might wish to award such honors or prizes is solicited. Such prizes, consisting either of a small cash remuneration of ten to twenty-five dollars, or a book of great distinction, or loving cup, or plaque, might be named for distinguished members of faculty, alumni, or board of trustees who have achieved distinction in the respective field or area for which the award is donated, or also of course for the donor.
Weddings, Births, Deaths (give dates).

COVER PICTURE—Norman V. A. Reeves, president of the Student Senate, is shown reading the dedicatory plaque in honor of alumnus Robert B. McRary, whose will made provisions for a bequest to his alma mater. The dedication ceremony was a part of the Homecoming activities on October 27. Three plaques were also dedicated in the Vail Memorial Library in honor of William Vail, who made the original library building possible; J. Warren Marshall, who contributed funds for the addition to the library; and Irvin Underhill, who presented his African collection to the University.

Have You Remembered Lincoln University in Your Will?
FORM OF BEQUEST
To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $......................... to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
As of June 30, 1956, when our fiscal year ended, the first LINCOLN UNIVERSITY FUND showed a total of $4,389.46. Since that date to October 15, an additional $1,120.87 has been received, and that amount will be credited to the 1957-58 campaign. These contributions have come from 162 individuals and six alumni clubs. While we do not have the precise number, it is probable that some 250 Lincoln men made donations to the first FUND. This means that only 7.1% of our 3,500 living alumni contributed to the first campaign.

Our first showing is truly magnificent; we received what was the equivalent of an endowment gift of $125,000, one-tenth of the annual yield of Lincoln’s present endowment. Under the direction of our energetic and devoted chairman, Dr. Henry Goss, ’16, two special efforts feature the 1956-57 FUND.

One is the organization of the CENTURY CLUB — donors of $100 or more —directed by Frank J. Hutchings, ’18. There are already three members of this exclusive club for the 1956-57 campaign.

Two is the setting of a goal of 700 contributors to the 1956-57 FUND, that is, 20% of our living alumni. Note that the goal is to increase the percentage of alumni who give. To do this, alumni chapters and key alumni in cities without chapters can help by doing the following:

1. Start “Ever-Alumnus -A - Donor” campaigns in their cities. Alumni rolls may be divided into assignments of five names each, and the responsibility for contacting each name in his list of five (or ten) can be given to a good worker.

2. Report gifts by individual names, not by chapter or groups. No matter how small the contribution, we want to have individual names listed on our Honor Roll of donors. Such a listing will help us figure out accurately our success in meeting our goal, which ultimately is to reach 100% among alumni. (PRINCETON HIT THE 72% MARK LAST YEAR!) We appreciate, of course, gifts from chapters, but there is no way to acknowledge the individual nor give credit to high percentage records for cities, states, and classes, unless we have an individual record.

It seems that the New York City area wins the laurels for the first year in numbers of donors, in amount, and in percentage of alumni donating. As the FUND grows in efficiency of organization and reporting, we will be able to make more exact statements and give honor where honor is due. Meanwhile—

Thank you one and all! We’re on our way!

November 1—Dr. William Keiffer, Wooster College professor, spoke to students and faculty on "Nuclear Energy of the Future" at a University Assembly. Dr. Keiffer's trip was sponsored by the American Chemical Society.

November 8—The Lectures and Recitals Committee presented Claude Frank, pianist, in recital. Mr. Frank is a member of the music faculty of Bennington College.

October 27—Unveiling of dedicatory plaques in Vail Memorial Library and McRary Hall as part of Homecoming activities.

A NEW LAW HAS JUST GONE INTO EFFECT whereby for the first time a state—Massachusetts—has set up a college loan program for qualified students who need financial assistance if they are to get a college education. This program represents a bold and imaginative step forward, at a time when there is mounting concern lest thousands of able students be denied the benefit of higher education because of financial inability to meet the increased costs of such an education. Any student who has completed his first year at an accredited college and whose legal residence is in Massachusetts will be eligible. The program is not in any sense intended to encourage only the elite, the necessarily small group of brilliant but needy students. If a C student has the drive to finance his way through college, it is felt that he should have the opportunity to do so. While the extent of such loans has not yet been fixed, it seems reasonable to expect that the student can borrow up to $1500 a year for three years. The student will be allowed a reasonable amount of time after graduation to pay back the loan. Since the loans are made through banks which are protected by a guarantee fund of at least $100,000 held by the Massachusetts Higher Educational Assistance Corporation, it is expected that interest rates will be low.

COMPANIES AND FOUNDATIONS with alumni gift-matching programs:

The Alumnus' Task In The College Crisis

by Dwayne Orton

Independent, private, higher education is in trouble. The impending enrollment bulge which started in the baby-boom of the forties and which soon will double the college population arrives at a time when higher education is under-housed, under-staffed, and under-fed.

Inflation in costs, the drop in percent return of endowment income, the point of diminishing returns in tuition raises, the scarcity of great fortunes for windfall gifts, and the competition of industrial salaries for faculty services, plague the independent private college at the very time when the need for its peculiar social contribution is paramount and when enrollment demands are about to skyrocket.

One view of the critical economic depression in the colleges is portrayed by a set of comparisons presented by Beardsley Ruml:

"In 1904, the average professor's salary in large universities was $2,000. The 1953 equivalent to match the economic progress of top railroad employees . . . is $12,070. But bear in mind that $2,000 in 1904 was an average figure, and the economic equivalent $3,000 a year in 1904 is $18,105 in 1953, and of $4,000 a year is $24,140 . . .

"It seems clear to me that to restore the liberal college faculty to its relative economic position of fifty years ago, our minimum salary objectives for professors should be an average of about $15,000 a year, with a maximum of about $30,000, and with corresponding levels in the lower academic ranks."

Nor is this a remote and historical situation. Studies of the Council on Financial Aid to Education show that "between 1939 and 1954 teachers' salaries in the privately-supported colleges and universities increased only about 60% while during this 15-year period the cost of living went up 93.4%.

This same report, our most authentic source of this critical data, found in a survey of 753 colleges that $3,000,000,000 in endowments will be needed in the next ten years. In addition, they will need $2,500,000,000 in new funds for buildings, equipment, and maintenance during the same period.

Unlike most business operations, the increase in volume of work, through larger enrollment does not improve the position of the college. Rising enrollments only increase the deficit, and, consequently, the need for "gift" funds. More students require more facilities but tuition fees cover only 50 to 70 percent of operating costs (Redlands 66 percent) and make no contribution to capital investment. Because 35 to 40 percent of students require financial aid, the college must solicit outside scholarship funds which might otherwise go into capital investment. Inflation has made matters worse by hoisting operating costs 50 percent since 1948 while tuition fees have risen only 25 percent. The college administrator caught in this squeeze dreams he is the horror-stricken prisoner in Poe's "Pit and the Pendulum" while the walls close in on all sides.

In the face of the crisis, some colleges plan to restrict their growth, raise tuition to the limit, and concentrate on "quality," leaving the "bulge" to the tax-supported institutions. If there is any peculiar social responsibility of the private institution, if it has any special cause, if it constitutes a bulwark of independence and freedom in the body of education, for it to fail to maintain its fifty percent proportion of the entire college enrollment is to deny its birthright and desert its post. Society has a way of dealing with the slothful servant who hoards his talents. The privately endowed Christian college has a mission to perform which must not in the future be limited to a number equivalent to today's enrollment while the attendance of American youth (Continued on Page 6) at college doubles. Ways must be found to keep the independent, private college fulfilling its mission.

At a time when the Western World is crying for an educational Pied Piper to assemble more scientists, technicians, and engineers, I am reminded of some remarks Edward Johnson, retired Director of the Metropolitan Opera Association, made at the dedication of a business machines factory:

A realistic view of the world and its people at mid-20th Century produces a deep sense of need for “artists” in all areas of occupation of life. The cry of humanity everywhere is that the creations of the hand and the head should be graced by the influences of the heart.

The marvelous creations of our tools of the hand and ingenuity of the head threaten to destroy us unless the character of the heart controls them for human welfare. Ideas without ideas are sentimental, pious pap, but ideas without ideals destroy civilizations. International diplomacy requires the liberating arts of tolerance, forbearance, understanding, love, and the will to peace. Industrial production is more than money, materials, and machines. It is dependent on the voluntary coordination of men. A home does not consist of shelter, food and lodging. Love turns a house into a home.

When St. Paul finished his scientific treatise of the 12th Chapter of Corinthians — that inimitable exposition of the organism of the body and its interdependent unity — he swung into the grand concepts of the 13th. It was a natural progression from science to love — the fulfillment of all without which all man’s achievements are sounding brass and clanging cymbal.

Affairs of the heart are a special province of the liberal arts. To be sure, social values are the concern of all institutions of higher learning but the liberal arts college assumes a particular trusteeship in this area. The liberal arts college with Christian education commitments goes the “second mile” in this matter and, in addition, accepts the obligation of infusing all its teaching and activities with Christian idealism and Christian principles of conduct.

Since this discussion is addressed to alumni of a liberal arts college with Christian education responsibilities, let us suggest the responsibility of the individual graduate in this crisis.

He may feel called upon to defend the value of the liberal arts college in our technically surcharged society. Here he is on solid ground. In spite of the clamor for technical personnel, major institutions recognize the essential place of the liberally educated man in today’s life.

The soldiers, sailors, and airmen are diplomats as well as technicians. The new Air Force Academy devotes about half its curriculum to the liberal arts. The engineer works in groups, leads men, and involves social consequences as never before.

Gano Dunn told Cooper Union from the vantage point of his life experience as a leading engineer:

“If an engineer’s training neglects the great human mirrors of history and languages, particularly his own language, if his mind and heart are not sensitive to the great political and social forces of his day and his community, if he but feebly develops those subtle qualities of character that make for personality, his career as an engineer is limited, no matter how much science he may know.”

The social responsibility and public influences of a business require the manager to be competently aware of the human effects and the social implications of his economic power. Fortune Magazine expressed this well in “The Domestic Economy”:

“The many corporate managers who solemnly chose ‘service’ for their motto are not really trying to fool anybody. They are groping, if only subconsciously, for a new social principle by which their power may be made legitimate.”

The growth of leisure, the widespread possession of property, and the increase of democratic participation in community affairs puts a premium on breadth and depth in one’s mental equipment.

In his personal giving, the alumnus may be impelled by the fact that he did not pay for all of his education. Alma Mater staked him to a third of it. Annual participation in “Living Endowment” funds is a significant way of helping. A fifty dollar contribution to current expense is worth $1,250 in endow-

Dr. Horace M. Bond attended the meeting of the Trustee Committee on the New Program in Philadelphia on July 7, and on July 13 he went to Washington, D.C., for the meeting of the President's Committee on Education Beyond the High School.

August engagements carried him to Fort Benning, Columbus, Ga., on August 27 and to Boston on August 31 for a sub-committee meeting of the President's Committee.

September — 9, addressed Prince Hall Memorial Day Services at Zion Baptist Church, Philadelphia; 13, attended Convocation of International College of Surgeons in Chicago to receive honorary membership; 15-24, attended Conference of Black Writers, Scholars, and Artists in Paris, France. (The American delegation of five was headed by Professor John A. Davis, formerly a member of the Lincoln faculty and now a member of the faculty of City College of New York. Dr. William T. V. Fontaine, '30, professor of philosophy at the University of Pennsylvania, was also a delegate. A high point in the Conference came when the distinguished French linguist and poet, Senator Leopold Senghor, and Richard Wright, the novelist, agreed in characterizing the poetry of three Lincoln men as "the greatest," not only among persons of African descent but in the entire world. They were referring to Melvin Tolson, '23, Langston Hughes, '29, and Bruce Wright, '42.)

October—1-2, attended annual meeting of the United Negro College Fund in Atlanta; 4, attended Budget Meeting at State Capitol in Harrisburg; 5, attended meeting of President's Committee in Washington, D.C.; 11, attended meeting of Board of Directors, International African-American Corporation in New York; 15, attended meeting of Philadelphia Commission on Higher Education; 19, attended meeting of Board of Directors, Educational TV Station WHYY in Philadelphia; 20, attended meeting of Council on Theological Education, Buck Hill Falls, Pa.; 24, attended Board meeting of Station WHYY in Philadelphia and addressed De Molay Chapter in Philadelphia; 26, delivered Edwin C. Embree Memorial Lecture at Founder's Day, Dillard University, New Orleans; 30, addressed Assembly, Beaver College, Glenside, Pa.

Mrs. Robert McRary and Dr. Horace M. Bond stand beside the plaque to be placed in McRary Hall, named for her husband, whose will provided for a substantial bequest to Lincoln. The distinguished alumnus was a member of the class of 1885.

November 2, attended meeting of Trustee Committee on Theological Seminary in Baltimore; 13, attended Conference of Fund for the Advancement of Education in New York; 14, attended meeting of the Board of Trustees of Lincoln University in Philadelphia; 25, gave Pew Rally address in memory of Dr. Eugene P. Roberts, '91, at St. James Church in New York; and 29, addressed Assembly, Hofstra College, Long Island, N.Y.

Dr. Harold F. Grim, dean of the University, represented Lincoln at the annual meeting of the Association of Presidents of Colleges and Universities at Pennsylvania State University October 28-30. The group considers problems peculiar to Pennsylvania institutions.

Henry, '57; and Linzy Scott, '57; and McRary Hall Dormitory Council, Warren Barrick, '59, and James Bronner, '57. Robert E. Lawson, '57, is editor of The Lion, the yearbook.

The members of the Biology Club, sponsored by Dean Harold F. Grim, heard recent graduates in a discussion of the subject "A Medical Student Looks at Medical School Entrance Requirements." At the meeting on Thursday, October 11, at 8:00 p.m. All of the graduates are currently attending Howard Medical School: Morton Rosenbaum, '50, Thaddeus Phillips, '55, Ernest Smith, '53, Joseph Daniels, '53, and Leonidas Sellers, '53.

Ernest Levister, who left Lincoln at the end of his junior year, is one of three Lincoln students currently at Lafayette College under the 3-2 engineering plan. The other two students are Albert Randle and Shing-Hwa Tsai, and the three are the first to enter Lafayette under the arrangement.

The Philosophy Club presented Professor John S. Adams of the Philosophy Department of the University of Pennsylvania at its meeting on Tuesday, October 16, at 8:00 p.m. Professor Adams, who combines a considerable background in all the arts with an especial interest in music, spoke on the topic "What Is Art?" On Monday, November 19, at 8:00 p.m. the group presented Professor William Hordern of the Department of Philosophy and Religion of Swarthmore College. Dr. Hordern, the author of Christianity, Communism, and History and A Layman's Guide to (Continued on Page 23)
Dr. Andrew E. Murray, dean of the Seminary, is spending his sabbatical leave in Edinburgh, Scotland. Dean Murray left the campus early in July and travelled in England, France, and other countries before going to Edinburgh to study in September. He will return to Lincoln for the second semester. He was accompanied by his father, brother, wife and daughter. In the absence of Dr. Murray, Dr. Donald M. Davies is acting as dean of the Seminary.

Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, A.B., M.A., New York University, Ph.D., Columbia University, the new John H. Cassidy associate professor of the classics in the college, is also teaching New Testament Greek in the Seminary.

The Rev. Frederick L. Keefe, who taught New Testament Greek until the chair in classical languages was filled, is now teaching religion in the College. The Keefes recently became the parents of a baby boy.

Dr. William C. Young, A.B., Hanover College, Ind., B.D., Princeton, Ph.D., Edinburgh, is serving as visiting lecturer in church history. Dr. Young, who pastors the State Ridge Presbyterian Church in Cardiff, Md., did extensive travelling in Europe and Central America as a student guide during the years 1949-55.

Dr. Samuel G. Stevens reports that the John Miller Society has an increased membership, with many of the new members definitely committed to theological training.

The Annual Seminary Retreat was held at Happy Valley Camp, near Port Deposit, Md., October 1-3. The new site was chosen because of its nearness to Lincoln University, which served to attract more of the off-campus students. Happy Valley Camp is a recently acquired camp by the Synod of Baltimore. There was time and space at Happy Valley for volleyball and football. Several of the older participants (everyone that is) came away with a few aching muscles. The work chore consisted of sawing some fallen trees. Everyone wanted to be an instructor during the work period, but some wood was sawed in spite of the instructors. The fellowship enjoyed was somewhat different from that which usually took place at Kirkridge, but the attendants, both new and old, came away from Happy Valley with renewed spirits and a closeness toward each other not held before. Rev. Robert Rice, missionary from Korea spent two days at the Retreat, and his presence did much to lift the spirit of everyone present.

The new students in the Seminary this term are Matei Markwei, Gold Coast, West Africa; Christian J. Davenport, Lynchburg, Va.; and James R. Cobb, Organa, N.C.

Willis Tabor represented the Seminary at the North and West Presbyterian Council held in Harrisburg October 10-14.

Forrest Brown, James Cobb and Willis Tabor were the seminary's representatives at the Inter-Seminary Council Conference held at Mount Airy Theological Seminary in Philadelphia on November 2, 1956.

William L. Banks, a senior has received a call to the Nazarene Baptist Church in Philadelphia. Banks, who was ordained July 27, 1956, at his home church, Shiloh Baptist, began his pastorate at the Nazarene Church in August.

FOOTBALL

J. C. Smith 7—Lincoln 0
J. C. Smith scored on a 5-yard pass play to defeat the Lions in their opener. The Lincolnites outplayed and outran the Golden Bulls but could not score.

Virginia Union 31—Lincoln 7
A George Jefferson-to-Theodore Ellis pass was the only touchdown Lincoln could score against the Panthers. Ellis converted for the extra point.

Delaware State 50—Lincoln 0
The Delaware State line was too much for the Lions. The hard-charging Hornets held the Lions to two first downs and minus 60 yards rushing.

Hampton 12—Lincoln 6
This game featured two 65-yard touchdown runs within a period of three minutes. Joe Franklin of Lincoln scored on a 65-yard dash in the third period and after the next kickoff Al Jackson of Hampton went the same distance.

Lincoln 25—St. Paul 0
Quarterback Tae Ellis scored twice as the Lions trimmed St. Paul. This was the Lions’ first win in five outings, and they scored more points than they had all season. Other Lion scorers were Percy Cupid and Fletcher Bryant. Richard Green kicked the extra point for Lincoln.

Shaw 49—Lincoln 0
The Shaw Bears up-ended the Lincolnites in a game which saw fourteen fumbles divided between each team. This was the third Lincoln shut-out this season.

Howard 13—Lincoln 0
Howard now has a 21-20 edge in the series. Nine games have ended in ties, while one was declared “No contest.”

SOCCER

Philadelphia Textile 3—Lincoln 0
Lincoln could not get their offense working in this affair. This was the debut of the new coach, Isaac Mapp.

Rider 2—Lincoln 1
Lincoln dropped a heartbreaking decision to Rider. Sam Essandeh scored the lone Lincoln goal in the third period.

Howard 8—Lincoln 0
Howard University outplayed and outclassed the Lions on Homecoming Day.

Philadelphia Textile 2—Lincoln 1
Sam Essandeh was once again the Lincoln scorer as the Lions went down once again to Philadelphia Textile.

Elizabethtown 5—Lincoln 0
The Lions ended their season by dropping this one. The loss gave the Lincolnites a 0-5 record for the '56 season.

CROSS COUNTRY

Howard 27—Lincoln 28
Lincoln dropped the opener to Howard by one point on Homecoming Day. This was the first cross-country team for Lincoln in a number of years.

Cheyney 35—Lincoln 35—Maryland State 70
Cheyney runners swept the first three places in the meeting for the win. Lincoln took second by placing four runners in the first places. Wayne Bethel, fourth in the race, was the first Lincoln runner across.

Lincoln 17—Maryland State 41
Martin Riley of Lincoln set a Maryland State course record in this meet. Lincoln took five of the first six places for their win.

Cheyney 20—Lincoln 35
For the second time this season Cheyney State Teachers outran the Lions. James Lafayette, Jesse Anderson and Martin Riley, were finishers in the first ten for Lincoln.

C.I.A.A. Championships
Only three teams entered runners in the championships, and Lincoln managed to take second place behind Morgan State College.

ment. Special drives for stadia, frat houses, and other peripheral projects should not side-track a regular participation in operations.

However, it is as an influential member of society that he can help most. As a church member he can encourage benevolent support to the college. Lawyers and bankers have many opportunities to "steer" contributions, trust funds, annuities, and wills in the direction of the private college.

As a businessman, he can place his influence behind the movement to support the private colleges from the current funds of business enterprise. Although $39,432,624 were donated to 701 colleges by corporations and business concerns in fiscal 1954-55, and although this source of contribution ranked fourth in total volume (behind Alumni, Foundations, Religious Denominations), it barely has been tapped.

American business leaders are aware of the crisis in the colleges. They are beginning to realize that they are citizens of the community with responsi-ability for the welfare of all institutions—including the college. They are conscious of the new belief that education is an "Investment" in people, and that education for freedom and freedom of enterprise go hand in hand. They see that a healthy private college will mean less taxes for public colleges. It is now generally accepted that the business health of a community is inter-related with the educational health of that community in particular and the nation at large. They are convinced that gifts to such institutions create good reputation and indirectly but surely promote sales.

This field is not exclusive to large corporations. Small and local businesses are no less dependent upon a society in which independent education for free and responsible citizenship flourishes.

The alert and devoted alumnus in business will throw his weight on the side of the corporate contributions. Alumni support of the private college in crisis is the mature, moral equivalent of the undergraduate spirit in the fight to "do or die for dear old Siwash" on the field or in the bleachers. This crisis goes deeper and lasts longer than a sports season and a conference title. It calls for a continuing identification of the alumnus and Alma Mater. It gives the graduate a sense of belonging to the cause of education throughout his career. It makes him a participator in the constant renewal of society which is education's high purpose. He becomes by his postgraduate association and contribution a defender of the faith.

Dr. H. M. Bond, President,
Lincoln University,
Pennsylvania, U.S.A.

Dear Doctor:

Hello Doctor, how are you? Well, I hope. I also hope you had another good and successful year, and must be in need of quietness and rest after commencement, and I congratulate you on your continued success.

We are experiencing just now severe winter, without rain and lots of wind; the country is having dry and cold weather, and we have had no crops to reap. I do not know what will happen next. Any way we'll hope for the best.

Tell Mrs. Bond I still have the brown sweater she made me put on one morning in April in 1954; it still revives the memories of the past, simple as the incident was, it took me back to 1901, when we eight, raw Africans, were handed suits of nicely fleeced underwear, as the winter months were coming on. After that you handed Dr. Katiya a suit of underwear, saying, "You will find these still useful." I keep the brown sweater to remind me (almost in detail) of the most wonderful, enjoyable, and successful vacation I ever spent in my life. If I ever succeed, as I intend to, I'll elaborate on that vacation, with you as Manager.

My purpose in writing just now is to send you a copy of my photo and family taken this month, to show you that I am still preserved through the Grace of God, and your efforts in what you did for me when I was there; had I not been hardy and healthy as I was when I returned from America I would not have resisted the malaria fevers and the tsetse flies, in Nyassaland, when I visited it last year.

Nos. 1 is my wife, 2 our daughter, 3, granddaughter; the two little ones are my oldest son's boys; he has two other daughters older than the boys; they live with their parents in the Free States, where he pastors a church.

Dr. Katiya visited this part of my district last month and I asked him if he still remembers U.S.A.? He said, "I long for it now."

May God bless you and yours,

L. N. Mzimba

Lincoln University, Penna.

Dear Dr. Kuehner:

I arrived home on Saturday, October 27 after a most interesting and enlightening week.

Your cordial reception and guided tour of the University was appreciated. Our discussion on Wednesday afternoon on the philosophy, ideals, and opportunities in Lincoln University was one of the highlights of the trip. Your own personal experiences and your dedicated feeling toward the University is something that I will always remember.

It is our hope that we may both enjoy the privilege of having a student or students from Wayne High School enroll in your college.

If by chance, you are ever in our vicinity, please stop in to see us. It will be a pleasure to see you again.

Sincerely yours,

John Van Dyken, Principal

Langston Hughes, '29 and Milton Meltzer have collaborated to create... what this reviewer considers quite the finest popular treatment of Negro history ever published. Indeed, it merits the very highest distinction among popular works on American history.

A reviewer usually discounts the publisher's "blurb" that appears on the jacket. For once, I think their appraisal of A Pictorial History almost modest; I could not, for myself, find better words to express my own reaction. And so I quote from the jacket description, recommending the words as "gospel truth":

"Here, for the first time, is an authoritative, panoramic picture story of the Negro in America, from the arrival of the first African slave ship to present times, covering every aspect of Negro life—social, political, artistic and economic. This unique book, lavishly illustrated with more than 1,000 reproductions of pictures, paintings, broadsides, drawings, woodcuts and cartoons, contains concise pictorial accounts of all the important events in the Negro's dramatic struggle for freedom. There are pictures of every famous and important Negro from Nat Turner, Frederick Douglass, and Dred Scott to modern leaders such as Adam Clayton Powell, William Hastie and Ralph Bunche.

But this book is much more than a collection of pictures—fascinating as they are. Beginning with the origins of the Negro in Africa, the authors trace in text and picture the story of the Negro as a slave and as a free man, where he came from, what he has contributed, how he has affected and, in turn, been affected by American life, and finally, where he is headed. Included in this absorbing account are reproductions of news editorials, letters, posters, handbills, and pamphlets ranging from the early days of the slave trade to the recent desegregation decision of the Supreme Court.

"These innumerable and varied illustrations constitute the largest and most important pictures of Negro history ever assembled in one volume. Portraying every aspect of the role of the Negro in American history, they were selected from the many thousands in Milton Meltzer's and Langston Hughes' personal collections as well as from public and private sources throughout the world."

Years of study and research went into the preparation of this volume and because of the authors' happy blend of sound scholarship and clear narrative style, the reader gains from these pages a remarkable understanding of the great dramatic background, the rich heritage and the unquenchable spirit of the Negro people."

It is a beautiful book, in matchless typography; and the text is clearest prose writing at writing's simplest and best.

The book covers everything; we are glad to see the story of Lincoln's famous Grimke Brothers (Archibald and Francis, '72); of the pre-NAACP Niagara Movement, where four of the eleven founders were Lincoln men (A. H. and F. J. Grimke, '72, Nathan F. Mossell, '79, J. M. Waldron, '86); and Thurgood Marshall, '30, photographed on the steps of the United States Supreme Court Building.

So comprehensive, and beyond value, is this book, that I had a momentary feeling of sadness to think I had seen it after years of studying in rare and remote libraries, to discover what it sets forth with such compact ease and beauty. Beyond this melancholy reflection, however, was the great joy in knowing what a blessing the authors have conferred on future generations. Its range and competence is such that it will be a gold mine for scholars, and, I think, an irresistible and inspiring treasure-store for the smallest child.

To fellow alumni, I say: "If you do not immediately rush down to the bookstore and get this book for yourself, your family, and especially for your children, you deserve to be expelled from the ranks of the alumni of Lincoln University!" Strong words, mates: but that is just the way I feel about this wonderful, wonderful book.

lyn October 18 and 19. Dean Johnson, who is also associate professor of chemistry, gained valuable industrial experience this past summer at the Pennsalt Chemical Company. His article, "Sleuthing in the Chemistry Laboratory: An Impromptu Project," appears in the August, 1956, issue of the Journal of Chemical Education.

Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, superintendent of the Sunday School of Ashmun Church, attended the Leadership Training Institute sponsored by the Presbyterian Church at Wilson College during the week of August 5. He has been elected president of the Community Service League, an organization designed to effect closer relationship between the campus and the village.

Dr. Paul Kuehner, registrar, participated in a panel discussion on the subject of "The Registrar in Guidance" at the meeting of the Middle States Association of Collegiate Registrars November 23 and 24. Dr. Kuehner is a member of the Statutes and By-Laws and Hospitality Committees.

Professor J. Newton Hill, who resigned from the position of Dean of the College, is devoting full time to the teaching of English and to the arranging and supervising of art classes at the Barnes Foundation.

Professor Orrin C. Suthern II began his monthly organ recitals on Sunday, October 21, in the Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel. During the summer Professor Suthern attended the annual meetings of the American Guild of Organists in New York and of the National Association of Negro Musicians in Detroit. He is executive secretary of the latter organization.

Dean J. B. MacRae has attended the following meetings: annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Education Congress in Harrisburg, Pa., September 25 and 26; annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Personnel Deans Association at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., October 4 and 5; a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Philadelphia Guidance Association in Philadelphia October 9; a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Pennsylvania Association of Liberal Arts Colleges for the Advancement of Teaching at Harrisburg, Pa., October 24; and a meeting of the Pennsylvania Institutional Teacher Placement Association in Harrisburg, Pa., October 25.

Assistant Professor Samuel T. Washington attended seminars and lectures on consumer debt and auditing standards in business finance at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania on Alumni Day, October 12.

Dr. Elizabeth L. Beardsley, visiting lecturer in philosophy, read a paper entitled "Moral Worth and Moral Credit" on November 10 before a meeting of the Fullerton Club, a regional philosophical society which meets every month at Bryn Mawr College.

Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, chief consultant to the Orientalia Division of the Library of Congress, joins the faculty as associate professor of classical languages. Dr. Schwartz, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of New York University, took his M. A. at New York University and his doctorate at Columbia University. He is the author of three books dealing with Hittite, Persian, and Indo-European cultures and numerous articles in scholarly journals.

Mr. Robert Hellman, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of New York University, joins the faculty as instructor in English. A promising young writer, Mr. Hellman holds the degree of Master of Fine Arts in creative writing from the State University of Iowa. He has taught in two French Lycees, at the State University of Iowa, at Black Mountain College, and at City and Hunter College in New York.

Mr. Holman Jenkins, a graduate of The Citadel, is serving as visiting lecturer in political science. Mr. Jenkins, who took his M. A. at the University of Pennsylvania, is pursuing work toward the doctorate at the same institution. Prior to coming to Lincoln, he was assistant professor of political science at Gettysburg College and visiting professor of political science at Beaver College.

The Rev. Frederick L. Keefe, who holds the B. A. from Oberlin and the B. D. from Princeton Theological Seminary, joins the college faculty as instructor in religion. He formerly taught New Testament Greek in the Lincoln Theological Seminary.

Mr. Robert E. Smith, '53, joins the faculty as assistant instructor in English and physical education; Mr. Stanford A. Mumford, '56, as assistant instructor in physics and mathematics; and Mr. William Womack, '57, as assistant instructor in mathematics and chemistry.

Mr. James Frankowsky, instructor in mathematics, to the rank of assistant professor.

The Political Science Club sponsored a Political Rally on Wednesday, October 31, at 8:00 p.m. Speaking for the Republican Party was Atty. Cecil Moore of Philadelphia and for the Democratic Party Mr. William R. Gruver, executive secretary of the New York Stevenson Committee.

The Chemistry Club, in conjunction with the Philosophy Club, presented the nationally known chemist, Dr. William Keiffer, at its meeting on Thursday, November 1, at 8:00 p.m. Dr. Keiffer, who spoke at the morning University Assembly on the subject of "Nuclear Energy of the Future, addressed his evening audience on the topic "What Scientists Are Up To."

Beta Kappa Chi, scientific honorary society, presented Dr. Madison S. Briscoe, '26, as guest lecturer on Thursday, November 8, at 12:00 noon. Dr. Briscoe, a member of the Howard University faculty, spoke on the ecological factors associated with diseases in Central America and Panama.

In Memoriam

Isaiah R. Reed, '87, died at the St. Elizabeth Hospital in Washington, D.C., on October 13, 1956. He had been hospitalized at this hospital for more than twenty years.

Dr. Fannin S. Belcher, Sr., '93 died at his home in Savannah, Ga., September 8, 1956.

Elijah J. Gregg, '99, died at his home in Fayetteville, N.C., October 29, 1956.

Dr. Alvin S. Mason, '06, well-known physician of Salem, N.J., succumbed October 25, 1956, in Sydenham Hospital in New York.

Dr. George C. Branche, Sr., '17, prominent neuropsychiatrist and medical administrator at the Veterans Administration Hospital, Tuskegee, Ala., died September 12, 1956, after several months of declining health.

Cecil D. Halliburton, '23, registrar and director of admissions at Fisk University, died August 23, 1956 in Hubbard Hospital, Nashville, Tenn., following a heart attack. Before coming to Fisk in 1953, Halliburton was for three years president of Vorhees School and Junior College, Denmark, S.C. He was also previously associated with St. Augustine's College, serving as professor of social science, dean and assistant to the president for twenty years.

and the activities of the library staff. Since many of the libraries are highly specialized, the work often lies chiefly in one subject-matter field such as law, legislative reference, medicine, economics, education, foreign relations, public administration, engineering, or agricultural, biological, or physical sciences. In such libraries the librarians will be required to serve specialists in these fields who are the principal users of the libraries. Because the materials in libraries are often in foreign languages, librarians in many positions must have a knowledge of one or more foreign languages. The extent of the librarians' responsibilities will depend upon the grade levels of the positions held. Positions will be filled in various Federal agencies in Washington, D.C., and vicinity. Some positions outside the United States and U. S. Territories and possessions may also be filled.

To qualify for these positions, you must have completed a full four-year college course including or supplemented by thirty semester hours of study in library science. In addition, you must have had from two to four years (depending on the grade or position for which you are applying) of experience in professional library work and must pass a written test. Full details regarding requirements will be sent to you after you file your application card Form 5000-AB with the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D.C.

COVER PICTURE—Some of the students who visited the United Nations on November 20 are shown in the foyer of the General Assembly building. The delegation of forty students and staff members was conducted on a tour of the building, attended the afternoon meeting of the General Assembly, and consulted with various national delegates to the United Nations. Reporters who cover the U. N. noted that the visitors were from Lincoln University, “the century old college that is remaking itself from the first college founded for Negroes into one built on United Nations lines—in enrollment, aim and composition.”

Have You Remembered Lincoln University in Your Will?

FORM OF BEQUEST

To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $__________________ to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
The February 4 issue of Time Magazine has an article on “Here Come the War Babies.” Two officials, one from a “famous Ivy League University” and the other from Haverford College, are quoted as saying that with present standards as they are, the “old grads” of these institutions would now have a hard time gaining admission to their Alma Maters. Acting President MacIntosh of Haverford, formerly Director of Admissions, said, “I sometimes doubt if I would have admitted myself.”

These statements were admittedly “intentionally exaggerating”; but they do emphasize the problems “the coming tidal wave of students” portends.

There are many tricks to statistical comparisons that await the unwary. In this field, one is that the national picture of a “tidal wave” has been built up, principally from rapidly growing populations on the Pacific Coast. States in the Northeast have shown a much smaller population growth, and if their collegiate enrollment prospects are separated from national figures, it is clear that prospective college enrollments in the East will be much smaller than the Pacific Coast, or than National statistics would suggest.

Any true Lincoln alumnus, worth his salt, believes passionately that the college began to go to the dogs immediately after his graduation. It gave me singular food for thought recently to hear a hoary alumnus, who entered in 1948 and graduated in 1952, commiserate with me: “Of course,” he said, “you don’t have the quality of students that were there when we were students.”

One does wonder, really, what has happened to admission standards at Lincoln. One way to find out is to compare different generations in their comparative standing on national “intelligence” tests. Here the present generation is clearly several notches above the past. But, to be fair about it—now, most of our students come from the Northeast, and from big cities; in the 1920’s and early 1930’s, a considerable portion came from the South, and from small towns. Big city populations have an environmental edge on small town and rural students in “intelligence test scores”; and Northern, over Southern students. But—is that “intelligence?” For one, I don’t think so!

A sample check on admissions from 1929-1935 showed us, the other day, that our current students are coming from higher ranks in their high school classes, and that we reject many more applicants than formerly. To this degree, we could repeat to the alumni what the “Ivy League” professor told his alumni.

But the alumnus could respond: “Yes, but the high schools were better in our days!” And he may be right.

This is an ancient argument that only time can help answer. Our recent graduates have done well in graduate and professional schools. How they will fare in life, only years can tell.

My own theory is that always—and everywhere—the younger generation is better than the old; you can say what you will of “juvenile delinquency” and “degeneration.” The youngsters ought to be better; and I think they are better. I think they are better now at Lincoln than they were in my time; and I believe quite firmly that time will prove this so.

But—I really won’t quarrel with you, if you disagree. After all—there never was a later class that came up to ’23’s record!

January 13—The Rev. Dr. J. Christy Wilson, director of field at Princeton Theological Seminary, was guest speaker at the Sunday morning church service.

January 20—Dr. Jesse Barber, '15, '18s, a member of the Department of Evangelism of the Board of National Missions, Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., brought the Sunday morning message.

A STRONG PLEA FOR THE HUMANITIES was made by the leading educators at the recent annual meeting of the American Council on Education in Chicago. A grave concern was shown over the tremendous pressures used to turn the best high school students toward careers in the sciences, engineering, and other technological fields. According to a statement made by Arthur S. Adams, president of the Council, "Our strength lies in the freedom of choice that we give to our scholars and teachers to expand in the direction that they may desire. We must continue to treat our students as individuals with individual needs and capacities. It would not help us any to deflect students into fields for which they are not qualified." Even though engineering is the problem of the moment, how can we tell what kind of skilled worker may be needed twenty to twenty-five years from now, John Davis Williams, chancellor of the University of Mississippi, asked. He pointed out that youth trained in humanities and liberal arts will be useful citizens regardless of specific needs. At the same meeting section discussions were held on the relationships of higher education to (1) industry, (2) labor, (3) agriculture, (4) the local community, (5) the states, and (6) the Federal Government.

NINE CONTRACTS HAVE BEEN AWARDED recently to colleges and universities for cooperative educational research programs by the Office of Education, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Funds were authorized for the first time for such programs by Congress under P. L. 531, passed in the spring of 1956. These contracts include three with Syracuse University, two each with Boston and Indiana Universities, and one each with Vanderbilt University and Regis College. The three projects to be undertaken by Syracuse University are (1) a three-year study of the attitudes of parents toward mentally retarded children, their education, present social adjustment, and later adult adjustment; (2) a three-year survey of the effects of community pressures, personal satisfaction and dissatisfactions, and other factors on the development of teaching careers; and (3) a one-year appraisal of how factors such as per-Building Golden Fences for Higher Education

By JOHN A. POLLARD

Fundamentally concerned though we in education are with matters of the mind and heart and spirit, we meet under the sign of the dollar. We have to consider a problem which is measured, partly, in dollars running into the billions. The problem is national; and that is why, in thinking of it in financial terms, we have to raise our sights and our confident hopes.

Years ago the eminent Chicago architect and city planner, Daniel Burnham, gave us our guide. He said:

"Make no little plans. They have no magic to stir men’s blood and probably will not themselves be realized. Make big plans; aim high in hope and work, remembering that a noble logical diagram once recorded will never die, but long after we are gone will be a living thing, asserting itself with ever-growing insistency. Remember that our sons and grandsons are going to do things that would stagger us. Let your watchword be order and your beacon beauty."

I add one fairly accurate dimension to the magnitude of our particular problem for today and for many years to come. It is suggested by another of those stories flowing out of Texas at the rate of about 60,000,000 barrels a day. A Texan and a Kentuckian were locked in a fierce argument about which State, Kentucky or Texas, had the most wealth. The Texan boasted of black gold, of beef, of new industries, of shipping. "But," retorted the Kentuckian, "at Fort Knox we have most of the mined gold in the world—enough to build a wall ten feet high around the whole State of Texas." The Longhorn was not fazed. "Go ahead and build it," he said, "and if I like it I'll buy it."

Our job of building has to do not with walls but with financial fences for America's 1,800-plus colleges, universities, specialized schools and two-year and community colleges. Good fences make good neighbors, and good neighbors can help us to build better fences.

The good neighbors are what Arthur Adams calls "identifiable constituencies" of our institutions of higher education. If we present the case for higher education clearly and convincingly and in its great dimensions, we can, I am confident, by the efforts of ourselves and our neighbors build up the finances of our colleges and universities so that they will be adequate to the job which the nation expects them to do.

I think of the "fences" not as dividing lines but as links in a common endeavor of the highest national importance.

"What Do Colleges Need?"

One of the partners in our high enterprise is, slowly and surely but steadily, business and industry. But the large national business concerns require specific information before they make decisions. With respect to the colleges and universities they are asking two main questions: (1) What do the colleges need? and (2) What are other companies doing? (Although here we are not so much concerned with the second question as with the first, the staff of the Council for Financial Aid to Education is constantly searching for information about what all kinds of companies everywhere are doing on behalf of higher education. And the list of large companies which used the Council’s consultation services during 1955 alone includes many of the "Blue Chips" of the New York Stock Exchange.)

One note of caution, however, lest you think a healing avalanche of gold is about to flow upon your institutions. Last October, in an address at New Haven, Irving S. Olds warned against expecting too much too soon from the business concerns.

Mr. Olds might well have added, "or from all of the colleges either."

During 1954, when the CFAE, as a means of helping the colleges to help themselves, asked for financial information of the kind that might move some business concerns to the check-writing stage, a total of 753 of our 1,350 four-year degree-granting institutions completed and returned Council questionnaires. During 1955, in what may have been the first in a series of annual or biennial surveys of voluntary gifts and grants to higher education, the American College Public Relations Association and the CFAE (which co-sponsored the project) received completed forms representing 748 institutions. Virtually all of the nation's best known institutions of higher education took part in the effort. Harvard, for example, did a superb job of accounting for $16.5 million in gifts and grants received during the fiscal year 1954-55.

But what is to be done for, or about, the 45% of America's degree-granting colleges, universities and specialized schools which decline to help themselves by furnishing, to a disinterested group like the CFAE, financial information desired by business concerns as a help in creating aid-to-education programs? Aren't we here facing a particular financial problem of higher education?

On the brighter side, the 55% of the nation's colleges and universities which did complete the two sets of detailed questionnaires were most cooperative and interested. Naturally they saw the gleam of gold in the distance. But when in 1954 they were asked to estimate their rock-bottom needs during the next ten years—for additional endowments and funds for plant and equipment, above their present capital resources—the colleges seemed to be realistic, but perhaps a bit conservative in their askings. At any rate, a projection from their special cosmos to "the whole universe" of about 1,350 degree-granting institutions brought us by space ship to altitudinous academic needs which you and I had probably never before dreamt of: For additional endowment (unrestricted, faculty salary, scholarship, current operations and research), $4,111,625,000 will be needed; and for capital funds (buildings, improvements, equipment and maintenance), $4,024,666,288; making a grand total of $8,136,291,288.

These figures were published last June. Most of you have probably seen them. Many of you may by now have transformed them into a frame of reference — professional apparel of the kind into which you have to grow. Let me, however, if I may, indicate the kind of Paul Bunyan educational world into which we have come.

A total of 659 of the 753 institutions surveyed during 1954 now possess less than half of the endowment resources which they believe are necessary to maintain the quality and scope of their service at the 1954-55 level through the next decade. The CFAE reported: "The $3,175,000,000 additional endowment which 545 of these institutions report they need is a bedrock figure; it would enable them to meet mounting costs of operation and, with integrity, to educate the greatly increased numbers of students expected."

Increases Must Continue

Consider the problem now under another aspect. F. Emerson Andrews reported last March that the nation's 1,832 institutions of higher education (including junior colleges) received $150 million during 1951-52 in private benefactions for current operations. He went on to say that the colleges also reported receiving additional money for scholarships ($21 million), private gifts and grants for plant expansion ($72 million), and "non-expendable funds" ($96 million), presumably largely for endowment. The total was $339,000,000.

The survey of gifts and grants for 1954-55 completed by the ACPRA and the CFAE makes it clear that private giving to the nation's 1,352 four-year, degree-granting colleges and universities has increased by one half during the last three years, as indicated in the following comparison: Gift income of all kinds from all sources, of 1,832 institutions of higher education (including junior colleges) for 1951-52 came to $339,000,000, as noted above. Gift income of 748 degree-granting colleges and universities, reported in the ACPRA-CFAE survey, for 1954-55 (not including junior colleges and not including contract research) totaled $370,239,025.

It is reasonable then to estimate that the total gift income of all the degree-granting colleges and universities for 1954-55 was substantially in excess of $400 million and that the total for all higher educational institutions, including contract research grants, was in excess of $500 million (probably between $507 million and $517 million). Obviously there has been, between 1951-52 and 1954-55, a substantial rise (Continued on Page 14)

Dr. Horace M. Bond attended the Seminar on the Gold Coast at Haverford College on December 6, and the following day he went to Washington, D. C., for a meeting of the President's Committee on Education Beyond the High School. On December 8 he was in Cleveland, Ohio, for the Cleveland Educational Conference. Business of the Prince Hall Grand Lodge, which he serves as chairman of the Educational Committee, took him to Philadelphia December 10-11, and on December 12 he entertained Mr. Julius Nyerere, president of the Tanganyika (East Africa) National Union. On December 13 he was back in Philadelphia for a meeting of the Trustee Committee on the Seminary; and on December 14 he was in New York for a meeting of the Budget Committee of the United Negro College Fund.

January—7-10, attended meeting of Association of American Colleges in Philadelphia; 11, attended meeting of Institute of African-American Relations in New York; 18, conference, Philadelphia; 19, attended meeting of President's Committee on Education Beyond the High School; 22-23, visit of Seminary Consultation Committee, Lincoln University; 24, conferences, Washington, D. C.; 28, conferences, Philadelphia; 31, addressed 50th Annual Dinner of Armstrong Association in Philadelphia.

Dr. Harold F. Grim, dean of the University, and Mr. Peter Hall, instructor in biology, attended the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in New York December 26-31.

Dr. Leroy D. Johnson, acting dean of the College, was the Men's Day speaker at the Wesley A.M.E. Zion Church in Camden, N. J., on December 9. Dr. Johnson, who represented the University at the annual Founder's Day Dinner of the Washington Chapter of the General Alumni Association on February 16, has been invited to serve on the Membership and Welcoming Committee of the Philadelphia Section of the American Chemical Society.

Mr. Donald Yelton, University librarian, attended the 42nd Annual Conference of Eastern College Librarians at Columbia University on November 24. On December 8 Mr. and Mrs. Yelton attended a seminar on the Psychology of Race Relations at the headquarters of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace in New York. The seminar, sponsored by the Committee for Cultural Democracy, was conducted by the South African writer Colonel Laurens Van der Post.

Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, associate professor of classics, addressed the Beth Israel Sisterhood of Coatesville, Pa., on November 16. His topic was "Peoples and Cultures of the Near East."

Dr. Thomas Jones, associate professor of history, has been notified that the recently established "Hall of Fame" of Earlham College has designated him as its first member. As an undergraduate at Earlham, Dr. Jones participated in various sports, principally track and cross-country. He was captain of both teams, and was undefeated in three years of competition in distance running. He served as president of the Varsity Club, and after graduation continued to compete in long distance races until 1952, when he was a member of the United States Olympic Team. A member of the Society of Friends, Dr. Jones has long been interested in better human relations. On January 17 he addressed the Oxford Friends' Forum on "Race and Community," proposing a community planning committee to work out a pattern of harmonious group relations in the Oxford area.

Dr. Hubert Ross, assistant professor of sociology, was the Race Relations Sunday speaker at Walters Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church in Bridgeport, Conn., on February 17.

Notes On A Sabbatical Leave

After seven years of teaching at Lincoln I was granted six months' leave by the University for study and travel. This is part of Lincoln's program to improve its teaching by giving its faculty members opportunities to deepen their knowledge and to widen their perspectives. I am personally very grateful for this experience and hope that it will bear fruit in my future teaching.

I spent my period of leave in two ways—study and travel. The period of travel gave me a new opportunity of seeing the Church in action in other countries, working to meet the problems of modern society. At Frankfurt, Germany, we (my wife and daughter accompanied me) attended the Kirchentag, or Church Assembly, one of the most impressive developments in post-war Germany. This meeting, which came into being through the vision of Dr. von Thadden, a German layman, brings together hundreds of thousands of Christians from Germany and other lands. It is the only event attended by thousands from the Russian Zone in East Germany, and demonstrates the power of the Christian faith to overcome tragic divisions. On the last Sunday of the Kirchentag we were part of a crowd of 500,000 which gathered for a three-hour service on the outskirts of Frankfurt. Our greatest thrill was in hearing that the greetings from churches outside Germany would be brought by the Rev. J. Oscar Lee, an alumnus of Lincoln. We realized how much the world was looking to America for leadership in overcoming problems of prejudice and discrimination.

This problem of racial discrimination in the U.S. was the one we were constantly asked about. News of Clinton, Tenn., and Montgomery, Ala., found a prominent place in the newspapers and magazines. We did our best to tell of efforts being made to solve this problem, but it was often difficult to explain our failures to those who had heard our slogans about the democratic way of life. However, we found that people in Britain are aware that they, too, have problems. We heard Father Hudleston, of Johannesburg, South Africa, the author of Naught for Your Comfort, speak to a large audience of the challenge to the Christian Church presented by the racial policies of the South African government. He is one of a group of British people who are arousing the conscience of the nation to problems of prejudice within the Commonwealth.

These are only two examples of how the Church is trying to speak to the political and racial divisions of our day. Another group which is bringing new life to the conservative Church of Scotland is the Iona Community. This group, which is quite liberal in its social outlook, is trying to reach the working-people of Scotland, who look upon the Church as being out of touch with the needs of the people. I attended a conference on "Automation" in Glasgow, sponsored by the Iona Community. Here union leaders and workers explored the problems raised by the coming of automatic machines and how they might be solved. The meeting ended with a Communion service which brought the whole group together in a spirit of Christian fellowship.

Most of our sabbatical leave was spent in study in the Post-Graduate School of the New College in Edinburgh. This is one of the four theological colleges of the Church of Scotland and is part of the University of Edinburgh. We were surprised to find ourselves part of a tremendous, American "invasion." Some 88 Americans were enrolled at New College, as compared with about 50 Scots. In a newspaper interview one of the American students was quoted as saying that Americans came to New College for three reasons:

Scholarships, Fellowships &
Job Opportunities

Five additional fellowships leading to the Ph. D. degree in psychology with research concentration in mental deficiency have been announced by the George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn. The program is open to men and women who hold the bachelor's degree in liberal arts and science, psychology, sociology, education, or allied fields, and to those who hold the master's degrees in psychology. Renewal of traineeships is contingent each year upon satisfactory performance. The fellowships carry stipends of $2,400 per calendar year during both residence and internship training. Fellows are expected to devote full time to graduate study since no routine duties are asked of them. The program of studies extends over a four-year period for persons who hold the bachelor's degree and a three-year period for those with the master's degree. Students may elect to concentrate in either general-experimental psychology or clinical-counseling psychology. Each applicant must submit (1) all of his college and university transcripts; (2) his scores on the Graduate Record Examination including the aptitude tests, the area of profile tests, and one advanced test (arrangements can be made to take this examination at a convenient location by writing Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N. J.); (3) names of at least five of his instructors, including psychologists where possible; and (4) a personal statement describing his background and expressing his professional aims in psychology. Applications for fellowships and requests for information should be mailed to Professor Nicholas Hobbs, Chairman, Division of Human Development and Guidance, George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville 5, Tenn. Candidates may apply for fellowships at any time and may start their program at the beginning of any quarter. Closing dates for application for each quarter are as follows: Fall Quarter, March 1; Winter Quarter, June 1; Spring Quarter, October 1. Candidates will be notified of action taken on or before April 1, July 1, and November 1.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is in the process of expanding its personnel service program to include the fields of recruitment, training, classification and wage administration. There are approximately twenty vacancies of various levels of personnel technicians which need filling as soon as possible. The work is challenging and offers, in addition to a substantial monetary reward, the satisfaction of accomplishment in the development and installation of a broad and progressive personnel program. Moreover, there will be considerable opportunity for advancement. The incumbents of these positions will work in the Governor's Office and participate in a state-wide program of public personnel administration. They will acquire a broad education in the administration of state government as well as gain valuable experience in technical personnel work.

Following are brief descriptions, salary ranges, and experience and training requirements for the several classes of positions for which personnel are being recruited:

Personnel Technician I
This is technical personnel work at the entrance level. An employee of this class is expected to audit positions, conduct wage surveys, interview applicants and assist in a positive recruiting program. The applicant is expected to have such training as may have been gained through graduation from a four-year college or university, including courses in public or business administration, statistics, psychology, political science or related fields. The salary range for this class is $4,121 to $5,268.

Personnel Technician II
This is advanced technical personnel work. An employee of this class is expected to perform the more responsible and varied functions of classification, recruitment and salary administration. The work may include supervision over other personnel technicians. The applicant is expected to have one year of experience in public or private personnel work, and such training as may have been gained through graduation from a four-year college or university, including courses in public or business administration, statistics, psychology, political science or related fields. The salary range for this class is $4,121 to $5,268.

BASKETBALL

To date the Lions have dropped fifteen straight contests to their opponents. Eight of these losses have been to C.I.A.A. adversaries. The Lions are averaging 57 points a game on 324 field goals and 209 free throws.

The team is being paced by Theodore Ellis of Noristown, Pa. “Tae” has scored 235 points on 79 field goals and 58 free throws for a 16.8 average in fourteen games.

Richard Preston of Charleston, W. Va. holds the personal one-game high of 24 points, which he scored against Hampton.

WRESTLING

Millersville 34—Lincoln 0

The closest the Lions came to a point was in the 177-pound class where Dave Gardner of Pittsburgh, Pa., lost by a 4-2 score.

Morgan 34—Lincoln 10

Only Lions to win were Ronald Joseph, 115-pound class freshman, making his first wrestling start, and Donald Kendrick.

Virginia State 22—Lincoln 18

Lincoln winners in this closely contested match were William Thompson, 123-pounder; David Rice, 130 (captain and last year’s 130-pound C.I.A.A. champion; Donald Kenrick, 167; and Addison Taliaferro, unlimited.

SCHOLARSHIP AID

Scholarship aid valued at over $200,000 will be awarded to high school seniors this year by 23 cooperating privately-endowed colleges in 11 states.

Awards will be allocated on the basis of scores made on the Cooperative Intercollegiate Examination, to be given in 182 high schools throughout the country between Feb. 23 and March 8.

The examination program was organized six years ago to help eliminate some of the duplication of examinations for evaluating high school seniors. The participating colleges use the test results as one of the criteria for determining their scholarship awards, and several of them require all candidates for admission to take the examination.

Three of the colleges, Fisk, Morehouse and Talladega, have an early entrants program, and students in the 10th and 11th grades are permitted to take the examination for entrance to these three institutions. All of the cooperating colleges are members of the United Negro College Fund and are accredited by their regional associations.

The Cooperative Intercollegiate Examination Program maintains a liaison office at Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn., from which information may be secured.
sonality traits are involved in the choice of teaching as a vocation. Negotiations on nine other cooperative agreements are under way. These projects were among sixty proposals considered by the Research Advisory Committee of the Office of Education.

T WENEY-ONE OF THE FIFTY-SIX MEMBERS of the Senior Class majoring in biology, a check of the class reveals. Virtually all have intentions of entering medical school, with five having been already accepted. Second choice of the seniors are chemistry and sociology, with sixteen members of the class equally divided between the two fields. Following in order are psychology, 5; mathematics, 4; economics, 4; English, 2; history, 2; political science, 1; and physics, 1.

A DEPRESSING NOTE was sounded at a recent meeting of members of the National Association of State Universities with respect to the impending shortage of college teachers. One spokesman warned that the nation's colleges will be forced to employ "intellectual cripples" due to the inability to offer adequate inducements to attract and hold good teachers. In effect, he prophesied that the colleges will be staffed in the years ahead with "lame brains." The educators at this convention were told that the following steps should be taken in order to utilize present college teachers more effectively: (1) establish larger classes where it is academically feasible; (2) provide assistance for professors to give them relief from details; (3) reduce the practice of teaching too many subjects in fragmentary classes; (4) offer some courses only once a year or every other year; and (5) examine the fundamental teaching load. There is another way, of course, to attack this problem. That is to find the means of providing the financial inducements to recruit more teachers and to hold the present ones. If corporations and foundations follow the splendid example of the Ford Foundation in allocating millions of dollars for faculty salaries to private colleges, the compensation of teachers will increase. The effect of such practices should enable publicly supported colleges to request additional tax funds for faculty salary improvement.

BUILDING GOLDEN FENCES

in the gift income of the nation's institutions of higher education.

Manifestly, still greater increases in support are needed if the nation's colleges and universities are to do their work effectively, and if the diversified, dual structure of our system of higher education is to be maintained. This fact is underscored by the doubled enrollment expected in American institutions of higher education between 1955 and 1970. It is also emphasized by the total needs estimated as a result of the CFAE surveys—needs of $608 million annually for the next ten years, above present resources and income. Viewed in this setting, the grants announced last December by the Ford Foundation begin to fall into the perspective clearly drawn for them by the Foundation's chief officers. Those grants totaling $260 million go to 615 selected private colleges and universities, and are restricted to endowment. At an estimated five per cent interest, total income on the grants for all institutions would be $13 million a year. Compare that total with the $205 million a year needed just for additional income for current operations by all the degree-granting colleges and universities in the land, and you see that there will be abundant work for all of us in the years ahead.

Clearly, the colleges must have outside financial help, and an increasing share of it must come from business sources. Part of the solution lies, however, with the colleges and universities themselves. They must make clearer the unique services which they perform for their various constituencies, the greater opportunities for service which lie ahead, and their ability to use wisely the financial resources which may be made available to them for these purposes.

All of the identifiable constituencies be encouraged to make a fresh appeal of the colleges and universities should praiseworthy. All of the colleges and universities should bear as worthy an institution in American life. Given the facts, college alumni, community constituents, business concerns large and small, and the public generally must be encouraged to multiply the measure of support which they are now providing for the colleges and universities.

Men and Methods

So much for the size of the main financial problem facing higher education.

There are several other problems I should like to touch upon briefly, having to do with getting financial support from business concerns. Some people regard them as the last major untapped source of help for the colleges. Yet these concerns respond that they do not propose to "pick up the tab." They will help, increasingly, as they determine the size of what they are looking at; but they make it clear that their gifts must be a supplement to and not a substitute for help from other constituents.

We need not beware of business concerns if they come bearing gifts. They are friendly, and their gifts will be helpful. Equally helpful will be some lessons we can learn from them, chiefly relating to cost accounting and to auditing.

President Henry M. Wriston said recently that he believes our largest colleges and universities, mainly those with multi-million budgets, are if anything better managed, dollar for dollar, than most business concerns having sales volume equal to those budgets. It may well be that most of our colleges and universities have sound financial management. But many business men think otherwise. And many colleges do not see fit to make public disclosure of their financial affairs.

Since financial support for higher education is a two-way street, those who ask must, obviously, also account. Is it more blessed to receive than to "give"? Some are doing the job exceedingly well. Harvard, a privately controlled university, publishes an annual Treasurer's Report to the Board of Overseers which is a masterpiece. The University of Illinois also does a first-rate job of financial reporting. And one of the best annual financial statements I have seen is published by the Board of Higher Education for the City of New York covering its four municipal colleges.

At the end of perhaps three years, I believe most of the large business concerns plan to make some kind of audit of results of their gifts to colleges and universities. These companies are beginning to be sophisticated in their educational giving. Since they recognize the need for continuity, it can reasonably be expected that they will continue giving to institutions that have won and held their respect.

In selecting institutions to which they will make direct grants the companies are on their own. It is not the business of the Council for Financial Aid to Education to rate or appraise colleges. Hence we found interesting, and you may find instructive, the criteria which one large national corporation has worked out as the basis for direct grants to colleges:

1. Sound financial management.
2. Academic excellence.
3. Ability to obtain gifts from other sources, particularly alumni.
4. Availability of information about scholastic policies and operations.

Using values of this kind as a mirror, it is probably a healthy—and mayhap a rewarding—exercise for any college or university to look itself in the eye at least once in a while. For the colleges cannot merely say, "We need money." They must make public reports of their stewardship of present resources. And they must have clear plans for the use of additional resources for the future which they may seek.

Planning for the future requires very careful consideration by the best brains a college or university can address to it—from the trustees, the administration, the faculties, the alumni, the students and leaders in the community or area. In business planning it is the custom to look far ahead. There are of course many and obvious differences between a profit-making corporation and a non-profit college. But they have at least one fundamental similarity. They exist to serve a market.

Golden Fences

In planning its future development, in the opinion of Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., a graduate and a trustee of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, every college or university should set up an activity headed by the president of the institution. You will recognize the core of the development fund. It should include one or two members of the board of trustees who have the best opportunity to meet with people and who are in a position to help in financing the institution. In Mr. Sloan’s judgment, they should use their ingenuity and in every way try to develop ideas that will appeal to prospective donors. Colleges, he believes, should divide their needs into two categories: one in order of magnitude, one in order of necessity. For as far as business men are concerned they deal with specific things and not with generalities.

All of this seems to me to make sovereign good sense. I know that individual dividual philanthropists and corporate executives ask the most searching questions in arriving at decisions on gifts or grants to individual colleges and universities. They set great store by competent business management.

But they also are much interested in the potential for growth—not in size primarily but in quality. Their gen-ral concern is not so much with the institution as it is but as it aims to be and can become. Hence careful planning and projection into the future is more important today than it has ever been, and the development fund is an indispensable functioning arm of every college administration.

Remember Puck, who must have been the patron of the Seabees. He said, "I'll put a girdle about the earth your respective colleges and universities may take a bit longer. But I know you will all do the job.

(1) to have their babies free under the National Health Plan, (2) to take advantage of the lower cost of living, and (3) to take a Ph.D. under easier requirements. (We felt that this last reason was far from true.) The theological courses at New College are more traditional than those in most American seminaries (in method, not content), and do not give as much attention as we do to the “practical” subjects. However, Scottish students are just as interested in world affairs as are students of any country. We discovered this especially during the

The central figures in this chronicle of an American family and of the world that moulded them are the author's grandparents: Robert Fitzgerald, free-born son of a white mother and a Delaware freedman; and his wife, Cornelia, the offspring of the violent mating of a North Carolina slaveowner and a young slave girl. Piercing through the accretion of family legend, the author has skillfully woven her narrative from the combined strands of her own childhood memories and the devoted research of her mature years—a research which (as some of us recall) brought her to Lincoln University where her great-grandfather was already settled as an independent farmer when Ashmun was founded.

Into the narrative of Robert Fitzgerald's childhood in Hinsonville (Lincoln University) is woven an account of his father's assistance to the fugitive slaves who passed through the area by night, along the route of the Underground Railway; of the kidnapping ring that operated from Maryland and preyed on the free Negroes of the area; of the Christiana riot of 1851; and of John Miller Dickey's successful efforts to rescue the kidnapped Rachel Parker.

Entering Ashmun Institute two years after its foundation as one of a student body of six, Robert Fitzgerald attended until the outbreak of the Civil War. His long and devoted service to the Union cause (culminating in the first assault upon Petersburg in 1864) affords the occasion for much valuable data on the status and the contribution of Negro troops during the Civil War. Fitzgerald served two years after receiving a head wound, though his eyesight was impaired; he was not mustered out until October 1864, after a period of hospitalization. Returning to Chester County, he spent a year of study in the newly-created Lincoln University, before taking up his life work as an educator of the newly freed slaves in the South. The diary he kept during these years has furnished Miss Murray with many telling details of this period of great ferment and great aspiration.

The darker story of Cornelia's antecedents is counterpointed against that of the Fitzgeralds, and provides the author with material for a brief chronicle of ante-bellum Southern mores of great vividness and dramatic force.

What is most impressive, however, and makes the book exceptional of its genre, is that the drama has not upset the author's historical balance. Her intimate identification with the events she records is tempered by a strict concern for objective truth, for the way things actually were; if she walks in proud shoes, she can also eat the historian's humble pie, as when she explodes a cherished family legend of noble lineage. The result of her fortunate equilibrium between personal concern and the scholar's detachment from his materials is a work that is at once a personal testament and a fragment of American social history of sustained interest and considerable documentary value.

Suez crisis and the uprisings in Hungary.

My wife also attended lectures at the New College and our daughter, Phyllis Jane, attended a public school in Edinburgh. We attended a nearby church and tried to enter into the life of the congregation as far as possible. We found a friendly welcome and a desire to know more about the U.S. We tried to show them that we had more to offer than Davy Crockett and "Rock and Roll." One of our most pleasant experiences was visiting a Lincoln alumnus, Dr. Arthur Motley, of the class of 1928. He took his medical studies at the University of Edinburgh and then began his practice in Edinburgh. While he has become a successful and prominent citizen of Edinburgh, he still has pleasant memories of Lincoln days and of studying under Dean Grim.

We are grateful for the privilege of having six months' of study and travel abroad and look forward to sharing our new insights with the students at Lincoln.

A great American sociologist once said: "Only in men can institutions be found." This is true of Lincoln University where the educational program covers a number of things too numerous to mention here, and also aims to inculcate in each student the following ideals of citizenship — to be faithful without unbelief not only in himself, but also in his fellow man and above all in God; to be serious and not frivolous with his duties and roles, because little knowledge can be acquired without effort and purpose; to have virtue without vice, because these are the things that make a man. I hope that the alumni and student body of Lincoln will try to continue to live up to these ideals. Long live Lincoln!

As I read the Lincoln University Bulletin from time to time it thrills me to remember the names and places I am so well acquainted with. Dr. Henry Goss and I played on the 1913, 1914, 1915 football teams. I have been working in Mississippi since 1917 doing Sunday School Missionary work under the direction of the American S. S. Union of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

I was in New York this summer but did not have time to stop at the University. I am very thankful for what Lincoln did for me the three years and six months I was in the Theological School.

This is the fiftieth year of the Class of 1907. There are eleven known living members. We are desperately trying to get every member to be present at our reunion and make a presentation to the university. We have the promise of seven so far. Kindly give us a bit of publicity in the February issue of the Bulletin and we hope to be back for the May issue with a big prospective report on our Commencement activities. The 50-year members planning to return so far are Rev. M. S. Branch, Dr. Geo. F. Ellison, Dr. S. R. Green, Dr. J. W. Ross, Rev. Wm. Burgess, Prof. J. M. Montgomery, and Dr. Arthur E. Rankin, and we are bringing pressure on the others.

COMMUNITY PLAYERS

The Community Players, an amateur theatrical organization composed partly of Lincoln University people and partly of people from Oxford, West Grove, Avondale, and surrounding communities, has announced plans for two plays to be given this winter. On February 22 and 23 the group will present Christopher Fry's "A Phoenix too Frequent," along with two one-act plays given by the Lincoln Players; and on March 22 and 23 the group will present Kaufman and Hart's successful comedy "George Washington Slept Here."

The organization represents an attempt to draw together members of the Lincoln University community with other people of Chester County in an activity involving common interests. It is one of the first amateur theatrical groups in the United States to experiment with completely interracial casting. Alumni and friends of the university are urged to attend both productions. Tickets may be obtained by writing to Professor Orrin C. Suthern II, Lincoln University, Pa. Admission is $1.00 for each production.

SPRING, 1957

Published quarterly for the friends and alumni of Lincoln everywhere.
1853 To 1957 — A Prophecy Fulfilled, A Mission Completed

On March 6, 1957, the world acclaimed the independence of Ghana, a new African nation. Few realized the event marked an astonishing fulfillment of individual prophecy and institutional mission.

Lincoln University alumni and friends should know.

It was for this that John Miller Dickey preached his 1853 sermon in Oxford, announcing a bold plan to establish an institution designed to fulfill the ancient prophecy, “And Ethiopia shall soon stretch out her hands unto God.” Cortlandt Van Rensselaer titled his address, opening Ashmun Institute on December 31, 1856, “God be Glorified by Africa.” He amazed his scant audience by the confident assertion that independent states would some day arise in Africa, and that the hall he then dedicated would be trod by the “cultivated intellects” necessary to give leadership to these new Nations.

This was beyond clairvoyance. That Kwame Nkrumah, ’39, ’43s, (cover picture) should have been the one man to fulfill an ancient prophecy, to complete a century-old mission, is not accidental. The mathematical odds, the combinations of personalities, incidents, are not calculable.

Only with a great wonder, and a newly strengthened faith in the providence of God, may we now hail the long line of Lincoln founders, trustees, faculty, friends, and students, whose work this has been.

Together, we have conceived, nourished, and participated in the materialization of a mighty dream. By the grace of God, we now witness the great mystery of a providential mission completed. So rarely blessed, let us take courage that other mighty human dreams may yet in our lifetime, or that of our children’s children, find similar consummation through our devoted efforts.

... HORACE MANN BOND
The late Harry Washington Greene, '17, performed a great service by his assiduous studies of the acquisition of the academic doctorate by Negroes, culminating in the publication of the book Holders of Doctorates among American Negroes (Boston, Meader Publishing Company, 1948).

In honor of his long academic labors, it is fitting that we publish here a list of the known holders of the academic doctorate among Lincoln graduates, Negro and white. We welcome any information that would help correct and perfect this list.

Fifty names are listed below, holding 51 doctorates—J. E. Dorsey, '28, having uniquely earned two!

It is with interest that one notes that the banner classes are 1930 and 1931, four and five, respectively. Lest we commit ourselves too readily to conclusions about differential attainments among the classes, the vastly differing economic and social climates of various generations should be noted. In the early days, the Ph.D. was not an important desideratum in the teaching profession; and the great majority of Lincoln men went on to win advanced degrees in medicine and theology. One wonders if graduation into the cold, cold, economic world of the early 1930's, helps explain the proliferation of Ph.D.'s in that period!

The large number of Lincoln men of the current generation who are now qualifying for the doctorate promises to exceed all former figures; but the youngsters have the advantage of G.I. scholarships, an easier economic world, and an opportunity ceiling almost unlimited, as compared to their harassed forebears.

AN EXPANDED PROGRAM TO PROVIDE TRAINING for college teachers has been made possible through a $25,000,000 grant from The Ford Foundation. The funds will be used to extend and to develop the National Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Program, initiated by Princeton University in 1945 with support from the Carnegie Corporation and the General Education Board of the Rockefeller Foundation. The Foundation's grant will go toward the support of a program to attract able college students into the academic profession and will provide graduate fellowships to potential college teachers at the rate of 1,000 a year for the next five years. Although formerly fellowships were granted only in the humanities and social sciences, they will now include the natural sciences as well as mathematics.

A World In Change
An Address Delivered at the Charter Day Convocation at Lincoln University, April 12, 1957
by Leonard W. Labaree

We who are living in the middle of the twentieth century are acutely aware that our age is one of tremendous and accelerating change. Two world wars and many other lesser wars, both hot and cold, have transformed the map of the world. Old empires have collapsed; new states have arisen; the balance of power has shifted and continues to shift. Revolutionary changes in the means of transportation and communication, and in their speed have, for all practical purposes, shrunk this globe to a fraction of its former size while, at the same time, population has enormously increased and in many areas the span of life expectancy has greatly lengthened.

The peoples of vast regions, long subjected to colonial domination, have attained freedom and have established national states of their own. The stirring events in West Africa, which your president recently witnessed and in which one of your Lincoln alumni, Dr. Nkrumah, has played so central a part, were only the most recent of the notable developments involving the changing character of many regions and the altered relations of the races and peoples of the world.

Factors of change and development of every sort in our own country are too familiar to all of you to require any detailed enumeration here. It is enough to remark that, whether we like it or no, we are living, both as Americans and as citizens of the world, in a revolutionary age. Some of us deplore the situation, they long for the “good old days,” and do all they can to stop the clock or even to move its hands back to an earlier hour.

But, while it is possible in certain circumstances for individuals or groups of individuals to slow down the rate of change, or, if they prefer, to speed it up a little, or to alter in some degree its direction, it is quite impossible to stop the changes altogether. Social forces are at work which no man or group of men can effectively destroy. What we can do, and what we as educated men and women must do, is to use every ounce of intelligence and experience we can muster to see to it that these forces move us toward the most socially useful goals and that in their operation they inflict the least possible damage to the fabric of our society and the lives and spirits of the millions of individuals who compose that society.

To guide us in our actions we have the benefit of the experience of other ages in human history, especially of other ages of revolutionary change. In particular we can gain strength and understanding from the lives, the ideas, and the examples of great men who were leaders in other periods of great change and who helped to lay the foundations upon which we in our time must continue to build. History has many uses, as has its handmaiden biography, not the least of which is the opportunity to profit from a study of those men and women who have gone before us, who faced problems in some respects similar to our own, and who dealt effectively with issues important to the welfare of mankind.

One such age of revolutionary change was the eighteenth century, especially its second half. And one such American leader in many fields of human affairs was Benjamin Franklin. I happen to be devoting the present years of my career as a professional historian to a vast project for assembling and editing, in some thirty volumes, the surviving papers of Benjamin Franklin. Naturally, I am prejudiced in his favor. But I do not be-due I can be justly accused of undue prejudice when I assert that he lived in a period of tremendous importance for this country and for the world and that his contribution, in thought and action, was one of the most important made to that age and to the future by anyone born on this continent.

Franklin was born in Boston in 1706 and died in Philadelphia in 1790 at the age of 84. His life, which thus nearly spanned the eighteenth century, saw the rise of the American people from colonial subordination to England and intense localism within the several parts of the colonial world, to political independence and national union, a rise from the crude frontier provincialism to a cultural maturity of substantial achievements and great promise for the future. How great the change was can be illustrated from the history of the city he made his home.

A mere twenty-five years before Franklin was born the site of Philadelphia was a woodland tract at the junction of the Delaware and Schuykill rivers, inhabited only by a few Indians and by three Swedish pioneering brothers. As a city, it existed only in the form of a paper plan or map drawn by agents of William Penn. When in 1776 Franklin helped to draft the Declaration of Independence, the city where the Continental Congress met had the second largest population of any in the British Empire. It was excelled only by the metropolis London in the urban facilities it offered, such as well-paved and well-lighted streets, fire protection, and police patrols. Visitors from the Old World expressed surprise and pleasure at the physical characteristics of the city and the cultural life of its inhabitants. In many noteworthy aspects of this striking development, Franklin had personally played a leading part.

America during Franklin's lifetime experienced several critically important changes, none more fundamental than its achievement of political independence and its establishment of a firm and lasting union under our Constitution. Franklin was a central figure in the pre-Revolutionary controversies with the mother country and, during the war, the most effective and influential diplomatic representative abroad of the infant republic. At the Constitutional Convention he was the eldest statesman present, regarded by all his fellow delegates with such respect and esteem as is usually offered only to the few outstanding figures of an age.

Franklin's life also witnessed great strides in the intellectual and social life of America. Schools and colleges were founded; educational opportunities, though still far from universally available, were brought within the reach of a much larger proportion of American children and young people. Scientific investigation, especially in such fields as botany, astronomy and, above all, electricity, made great progress in America. Roads and highways were vastly improved, and postal service was speeded up. Political democracy made substantial advances, especially in some areas, and before Franklin's death a start was made — small but vitally important — in the abolition of chattel slavery. In every development I have named, in all this revolutionary change, Benjamin Franklin was a central figure.

In the light of these circumstances it should be profitable for us, who also live in an era of revolutionary change, to examine some of Franklin's attitudes and habits of mind. From such an inquiry we ought to be able to derive lessons which should be useful to us, both as individuals and as members of society, as we face the problems of our own age. Time does not permit a consideration this evening of more than a very few of the attributes or interests through which Franklin contributed so effectively during his own life time. From a very wide area of choice we must confine our attention to just three topics: his lifelong and insatiable curiosity; his unselfish devotion to human welfare; and his zeal for education.

One of the qualities which enabled Franklin to contribute so greatly to the advance of scientific knowledge was his deep-rooted curiosity. He wanted to know about things, and he seized every opportunity to find out. Everyone is familiar with the story of how he found out, by using a child's kite in a thunderstorm, that lightning and electricity were the same thing. But not everyone knows how regularly he used all sorts of other opportunities to find out about other phenomena of nature. May I cite just one example.

CHARTER DAY CONVOCATION: Senator Israel Stiefel of Philadelphia is shown listening to the Charter Day Address of Dr. Leonard W. Labaree along with Dr. Horace M. Bond, who is seated just behind the speaker. The honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters was conferred on Senator Stiefel, who was cited for his interest in education. Music for the occasion was furnished by the Glee Club, under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern, II.

Dr. Horace M. Bond was the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Y.M.C.A.'s and Y.W.C.A.'s of Newark, N. J., on February 13. On February 17 he was in Philadelphia to give the morning sermon at the Zion Baptist Church and to be the Men's Day speaker at the evening service of the Mount Carmel Baptist Church. He was Brotherhood Week speaker at Beth Israel Synagogue in Atlantic City on February 22.

From February 24 to March 23 Dr. Bond was in Africa, primarily for the Ghana Independence Celebration, but he also visited Nigeria. Among the alumni seen were Kwame Nkrumah, '39, '42s, prime minister of Ghana; Ako Adjei, '42, Minister of the Interior, Ghana; K. O. Mbadiwe, '42, Minister of Aviation and Communication, Nigeria; Clarence Holte, '34, representing Batten, Barton, Durstine, and Osborne; Daniel C. Pope, '23, A.M.E.Z. Bishop of West Africa; Laurence Foster, '26, professor of sociology, Lincoln University; Robert Freeman, '41, head of the new Ghana Gold Coast Insurance Company, a flourishing business; Robert E. Lee, '42, who has just settled in Ghana to practice dentistry; Nnamdi Azikiwe, '30, prime minister of Eastern Nigeria; Reuben O. O. Ikejiani, '42, head of the Eastern Nigeria Pharmaceutical Corporation, and leading physician of Ibadan; Nwabia Uka, '52, who later took his Ph. D. at the University of Southern California and who is now director of teacher training at the Oyo State Teachers College; I. J. K. Wells, '23, editor and publisher (Continued on Page 13)

The Political Science Club listened to Mr. Benjamin Loeb, reports officer of the Division of Reactor Development, U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, speak on the subject "Taming the Atom for Peace" at the Thursday, February 14, meeting of the organization. On Wednesday, March 13, a panel of two students (Roger Crawford and William Womack), two faculty members (Deans Harold F. Grim and Leroy D. Johnson), and two faculty wives (Mesdames Ross and Rudd) discussed the subject "What Is Right and What Is Wrong with the Lincoln Student?" Mr. Eli Rock, labor relations consultant in Philadelphia, spoke to the members of the organization on Unions and the City of Philadelphia" on Thursday, April 25.

The Philosophy Club presented, in connection with Brotherhood Week, a student panel discussion on "Religions of the World," on Wednesday, February 20. Speaking on Confucianism was Pal Bom Lee, Lincoln; on the Moslem religion, Hassan Mirreh, Lincoln; on Christianity, Charles Williams, Lincoln; on Buddhism, Koichi Tsunoda, Swarthmore; and on the Bahi faith, Hormoz Sabet, University of Pennsylvania. On Tuesday, March 19, a faculty panel discussion centered around the topic "How Far Can the Sciences Go?" On the panel were Professors Cornwell, Rudd, and Jenkins and Mr. John Hobart, field representative. Mr. Walter Maurer, reference librarian of the Orientalia Division, South Asia Section, Library of Congress, was the guest speaker. His subject was "Buddhism."

The Lincoln Players presented two one-act plays on Friday and Saturday, February 22 and 23, in the Little Theatre, "The Rising of the Moon" and "Transit." A third one-act play, "A Phoenix Too Frequent," was presented by the Community Players.

The Y.M.C.A. Cabinet presented to the campus community on Wednesday, March 6, the prize-winning film "Little Fugitive." On Sunday, March 24, the group sponsored Parents' Day on the campus, and on Thursday, April 4, brought Betty Allen, soprano, back to the campus for a recital. From Sunday, April 14, until Saturday, May 4, the Cabinet exhibited the water colors and prints of artist Francis McCarthy in the Vail Memorial Library.

The Glee Club was heard over the WABC Radio Network on Sunday, March 10, in a program dedicated to the new African state, Ghana. On Friday, March 15, the group gave a concert at Spingarn High School, Washington, D. C.; on Sunday, March 31, at St. Monica's Church, Philadelphia; and on Friday, May 3, at the Second Baptist Church, Asbury Park, N. J.

The Chemistry Club heard Dr. Douglas J. Hennessy, associate professor of chemistry at Fordham University, speak on "Thiamin (Vitamin B1)" on Friday, March 15. On Wednesday, April 10, Ernest Levister, who left Lincoln at the end of his junior year to enter Lafayette's School of Engineering, spoke on "Engineering Experience at Lafayette." His appearance was sponsored jointly by the Chemistry Club and Beta Kappa Chi.

Beta Kappa Chi, scientific honorary society, held induction services on Wednesday, April 3. The following students were given the oath of membership: Enos T. Andrews, Frederic T. Boulware, Marcella A. Crawford, Andrew Livingston, Norman V. A. Reeves, Stanley S. Tsai, and David C. Waters. Dr. Theodore Hawkins, '31, specialist in gynecology at Women's Medical College in Philadelphia, was the speaker for the occasion. The group presented Dr. Walter Clavan, Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Company, on Thursday, May 2. Dr. Clavan spoke on "Opportunities in Science Teaching and Industry in the Philadelphia Area."

The campus chapter of the N.A.A.C.P. raised $150.50 to send to the Montgomery Improvement Association of Montgomery, Ala.

The Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity sponsored a May Day Weekend celebration May 3-5. The guests of the fraternity enjoyed a record hop, a picnic, and a dance while on the campus.
The third annual Alumni Convocation of the Seminary was held on April 24-25. A total of 37 alumni were registered for the meeting, in addition to other visitors. The Convocation opened on Wednesday afternoon with a discussion of future plans for the Seminary. After some discussion the Alumni voiced their support of the work of the Seminary and urged the University Board of Trustees to strengthen and enlarge its program. Alumni also agreed to help in securing additional funds for the Seminary.

Officers were elected by the Seminary alumni as follows:
- Vice-President — Rev. Edwin Ellis, ’52, ’55s, Middletown, Del.
- Secretary — Rev. Alpheus Bright, ’56s, Philadelphia, Pa.

Devotional services on Wednesday evening were led by the Rev. James E. Jones, ’52, ’54s, pastor of St. John’s Presbyterian Church, Detroit, Mich.

The concluding session of the Convocation featured an address by Dr. William H. Borders, pastor of the Wheat Street Baptist Church, Atlanta, Ga., and one of the leaders in the current movement against bus segregation in Atlanta. He gave a challenging address on “Intelligence and Religion,” stressing the need of combining the two emphases.

The Urban League of Akron, Ohio, is looking for an industrial secretary to assist in planning and carrying out a program of job development and vocational guidance. He will also develop and serve lay committees which act persuasively to open new employment opportunities for Negro workers; make public appearances and field visits to proffer agency service in the hiring and upgrading of Negroes; stimulate the improvement of school vocational guidance services and the more general and effective use of these services by Negro youth; and develop and direct group vocational guidance activities in cooperation with the other departments of the agency. Graduation from an accredited college with a major in one of the social sciences is required. Also desirable is a minimum of three years of successful experience in race relations, industrial relations, personnel, case or group work, government service, or education, or some combination of these that has provided the applicant with an abiding faith and zeal for the work of the Urban League, a working knowledge of community organization, vocational counseling and placement procedures, and the ability to write and speak convincingly. A male between 25 and 45 is preferred, and the salary offered is between $4,800 and $6,000. For further information write to Raymond R. Brown, Executive Director, Akron Community Service Center, 250 E. Market St., Akron 8, Ohio.

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for trainee positions in the following fields: accounting, agricultural economics, biological and plant sciences, entomology, home economics, plant pest control, and statistics (agricultural and general). Most of the positions are in the Departments of Agriculture and Interior throughout the United States. Trainee positions in statistics (general) will be filled in the Bureau of the Census in Washington, D. C. The starting pay is $3,175 and $3,415 a year. Applicants must have had one year of general experience in the performance of clerical duties in an area of work which has demonstrated the ability to perform technical clerical duties satisfactorily at the GS-4 grade level and one year of specialized experience in progressively responsible work in which the duties of the position are to be performed. For example, the specialized experience required for payroll clerk, GS-4, is one year's experience in the computation, preparation, or maintenance of payrolls and pay records for a government or non-government agency, organization or institution. Applicants must take a written examination consisting of questions designed to test aptitudes for learning and adjusting to the duties (Continued on Page 22).

want to find out what they can do to help; and will prompt them to send for an 'action booklet' which will suggest specific ways they can help.” Presidents of 1,856 colleges and universities across the nation have been sent a 12-page campaign guide containing illustrations of the advertising and other material currently available, together with suggestions on steps institutions may take locally in connection with the national advertising campaign.

A RECORD TOTAL of $102,000,000 was contributed to institutions of higher education by their alumni in 1956, an increase of approximately 42% over the $72,000,000 donated by alumni in 1955. The American Alumni Council reports that total gifts to colleges from all sources have also increased considerably over the 1955 figure of $252,000,000. Although the final figures are not yet in, the AAC estimates that the total gifts may be close to $500,000,000. For a number of years Princeton University and Dartmouth College have led the list in the per cent of alumni giving (69.4% in 1955) but in 1956 Wofford College jumped to the top with 74.4% of its living alumni contributing to the alumni fund. Wofford reported only 12% in 1955. Dartmouth is in second place for 1956 with 70.9% of its alumni contributing to the alumni fund, and Princeton is a close third with 70.7%.

Letter of Richard Nixon, Vice President, to Dr. Bond March 25, 1957

I was greatly impressed throughout my trip to Africa with the impact Lincoln University graduates are having in that area of the world. Hardly a day went by but that I came in contact with a prominent business or government leader who had at one time attended Lincoln. You and your colleagues on the faculty are certainly to be congratulated for the splendid work you have done with exchange students from other lands. I hope Lincoln University can continue to render this significant public service in the years ahead.
Once, while Franklin was postmaster general of the Colonies, he was riding on horseback along a country road in Maryland with a group of local gentlemen. Suddenly they saw approaching through the valley below a whirlwind or miniature tornado. There was a common belief that a shot fired through a waterspout or whirlwind or any other vigorous interruption of its suction would destroy it. The other gentlemen were content to sit on their horses and watch the eddy swing past, tossing up dust from the road as it swirled along. Franklin, on the other hand, was curious. Spurring forward, he took after it, striking at it with his whip, trying to break it down, but without effect. "Soon after," he reported to a friend in England, "it quitted the road and took to the woods, growing every moment larger and stronger, raising, instead of dust, the old dry leaves with which the ground was thickly covered, and making a great noise with them and the branches of the trees, bending some tall trees round in a circle swiftly and very surprisingly, though the progressive motion of the whirl was not so swift but that a man on foot might have kept pace with it, but the circular motion was amazingly rapid. By the leaves it was now filled with, I could plainly perceive that the current of air they were driven by moved upwards in a spiral line; and when I saw the trunks and bodies of large trees enveloped in the passing whirl, which continued entire after it had left them, I no longer wondered that my whip had no effect on it in its smaller state. I accompanied it about three quarters of a mile."

Thus Franklin learned about whirlwinds. There must have been something ludicrous in the spectacle of the portly Postmaster General riding along through the fields and trees beside a whirling column of dust and leaves and striking vigorously at it with his riding crop in an attempt to knock it down. Doubtless the other gentlemen were amused at the sight. But Franklin did not care. Opportunity had presented itself to satisfy his curiosity; he had seized his chance and was rewarded by the addition of one more small bit of knowledge to his understanding of the natural world around him.

As with nature, so with people and the communities in which they lived. Franklin rarely missed an opportunity to observe and study the varied patterns of human nature and of society which he encountered in his travels through two continents. Observation and study were the basis for understanding, and understanding was essential to tolerance and to the friendly solution of human problems. It is small wonder that he came to be regarded as the Friend of the Human Race and to be loved and trusted by princes and by commoners, by bishops and by agnostics, by world famous scholars and by the semi-literate dwellers in the slums of Paris and London.

This broad understanding of his fellow men and sympathy for their problems helped to explain why Franklin was so unselfishly devoted to human welfare. I would not deny for a moment that he was personally ambitious or that he used all his opportunities to get on in the world. He started his Philadelphia career as an unknown, runaway apprentice with a few pennies in his pocket. He grasped every chance to make useful contact with influential persons who could further his career and he deliberately paraded his devotion to industry and thrift in order to make a good impression. That he succeeded in a material sense is evidenced by the fact that twenty-five years after his arrival in Philadelphia he had done so well that he was able to retire from active business as a printer and newspaper publisher and live thereafter on the income from his investments augmented by the modest salaries he received from public office.

But the accumulation of wealth was never the main object of Franklin's life. His major reason for retiring from business at the early age of forty-two was his wish to devote his remaining years to the welfare of his fellow men through scientific study and through public service. To his city, Philadelphia, to his colony and state, and to his country he devoted a large share of his time and energy and thought during more than thirty years. Through most of these years the salaries paid him did not begin to equal the expenses of himself and his family and in some of his offices he took no pay at all.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

His shrewd and ingenious mind enabled him to produce an astonishing series of inventions beneficial to mankind. Everyone knows, I suppose, about the lightning rod and the Franklin stove. Less familiar to some of you, perhaps, is Franklin's contribution to education in the chair with a writing arm, to be found today, I imagine, in nearly every college classroom in America. Many housewives, and the proprietors of every commercial laundry are indebted to Franklin for the mangle, a device of heavy rollers used for the ironing of sheets, towels, and other flat linen. Until the appearance of the supermarket every grocery had at least one extension arm by which the clerk could bring down from his top shelves packages of cereals and other goods without climbing on a ladder. The original model of this device was Franklin's invention for getting books off the top shelves of his personal library after age and illness made it too difficult for him to reach them directly. Lastly, I should be interested to know—but I shall not ask—how many of the older men and women in this audience are using at this moment one of Franklin's most helpful inventions, bi-focal eyeglasses.

These are some of the most conspicuous of Franklin's contributions to the comfort, convenience, or safety of his fellow men. Almost any one of them would be enough to bring lasting fame to its inventor. Almost any of them, adequately exploited and commercialized, might be expected to bring him considerable income. But not to Franklin, for he deliberately chose never to take money for his inventions. As he wrote a friend when he was seventy-one years old, "I have no private interest in the reception of my inventions by the world, having never made, nor proposed to make, the least profit by any of them." They were Franklin's free gift to his fellow men. If they proved of advantage to other human beings that was reward enough.

Franklin was interested in the material welfare of his fellows but he was equally concerned for deeper things. He had a passionate love of liberty, developed and broadened over many years. At first, as is so often the case, he was concerned chiefly for his own liberty and that of his natural associates. Like many other Philadelphia businessmen, for example, he had no hesitation, as soon as he could afford it, in buying Negro slaves as household servants. We do not know precisely when he became convinced that the institution of slavery was a violation of fundamental human rights. He was a humanist rather than a deeply religious man but perhaps such Quaker friends as Anthony Benezet helped him to realize that true humanism as well as true Christianity rendered the idea of human bondage intolerable. In any event Franklin enlisted in the cause of abolition and in his latter years lent the movement the support of his enormous personal prestige by becoming president of the first anti-slavery society, the Pennsylvania Society for Promoting the Abolition of Slavery and the Relief of Free Negroes Unlawfully Held in Bondage. It is noteworthy that the last public act of his long life was the signing of a petition to the House of Representatives praying that that august body do all in its constitutional power to discourage the slave trade. And then, as he lay on his death bed, wracked with pain, he wrote one last letter to a newspaper, in which he brought the full force of his keen satirical wit to bear in a personal attack on the vicious trade. This letter appeared in print less than one month before the grand old man was carried to his grave.

Our last topic is Franklin's concern for education. This is a large subject and properly considered would be more than enough to occupy us alone for this entire evening. I must, however, be brief, and shall pass over several aspects well worthy of your attention.

Benjamin Franklin himself experienced very little formal education. In all his boyhood he attended school for only two years. But he prized knowledge for its own sake as well as for the material advantages it could bring him. Hence he pursued through many years a program of self-education. He was a wide reader and taught himself to write effectively and well by practicing to imitate the best English writers he could find. He early became embarrassed at his inadequacy in arithmetic and so set about teaching himself. In time he learned not only that branch of mathematics, but at least some geometry, trigonometry, and calculus. He learned to read, write, and speak French with fair fluency and acquiring a reading knowledge of Spanish and Italian and from these went on to master Latin.

His habit of wide and varied reading continued through life. As his financial circumstances permitted he bought books in nearly every field of literary production, both the works of contemporary writers and the classics of earlier times. These books he read, mastered, and treasured. A learned visitor to his home in Philadelphia three years before his death described Franklin's personal library as "the largest, and by far the best private library in America." Thus Franklin made of himself, in spite of his meagre schooling, a thoroughly educated man.

Undoubtedly, the fact that he had been so underprivileged himself in the matter of formal schooling combined with his zeal for the welfare of others to make him one of the leading supporters of educational enterprises in America. Believing that his home city needed better school opportunities, he wrote and published in 1749 a pamphlet entitled Proposals Relating to the Education of Youth in Pennsylvania. The end result of his campaign was the establishment of the Academy in Philadelphia, which in time grew into what is now called the University of Pennsylvania. To the existing colleges in New England, Harvard and Yale, he made gifts from time to time. In the case of Yale, I might remark, one of his gifts was a piece of electrical apparatus to encourage scientific study, an interesting device of wood, glass, and metal, which now stands on display, fittingly enough, in the room of the Library where I have my desk as editor of the Franklin Papers. Nearly at the end of his life Franklin allowed his name to be used for the establishment of a new college in Pennsylvania designed for the education of boys of German descent and he made the largest single contribution to its initial fund. That institution is now known as Franklin and Marshall College. Then, to, he interested himself in more elementary education and, in those days before the development of an adequate system of public schools, he assisted materially in the establishment, in Pennsylvania and elsewhere, of so-called charity schools, where poor boys could get an adequate start in life.

For us here this evening, and for all Americans who are interested in one of the most vital problems of our age, the most interesting example of Franklin's concern for the rising generation was the part he played in the beginnings of Negro education. Here most emphatically his zeal for education combined with his devotion to human welfare to produce a truly revolutionary idea. Two hundred years ago there were literally no regular opportunities for Negro children to obtain systematically even the rudiments of an education. But Franklin thought there ought to be. He was in England in 1758 on a political mission for the Pennsylvania Assembly when he got to know the leaders of a relatively obscure missionary society, called Dr. Bray's Associates, who were anxious to support worthwhile causes in the colonies. He presented his idea to them. As a realist, he admitted very candidly that in the circumstances of the times it would be quite impossible to gain admittance for the children of slaves into the same schools as the children of their white owners, but he argued warmly for the extension of basic educational opportunities to this least privileged group of American children. The London society accepted his novel suggestion, established a school in Philadelphia, and with his support later set up similar schools in several other American communities. These beginnings were very small but, as we look back, we can see that a revolutionary change was underway. From this start, two hundred years ago here in Pennsylvania, have come results of incalculable value to our entire country. Lincoln University, now in its second century, may well be proud of its part in this development.

Five years later, when Franklin was back in Philadelphia his deep-seated curiosity combined with his devotion to human welfare and his zeal for education to produce a most significant result. He wanted to find out something for himself; this time, he wanted to discover whether Negro children could actually profit from formal education. He could remember that a few years back "everyone had said" that if you struck a miniature whirlwind vigorously it would collapse (Continued on Page 18) and disappear. He had experimented and found out that "everyone" was wrong. Now, "everyone said" that Negro children did not have the capacity for formal education, their memories were weak, and they could never accept the mental discipline of the schoolroom. Was this true? Franklin was inclined to believe that it was at least partially true but he determined to visit the Philadelphia school and find out definitely for himself.

So, in company with some other interested gentlemen he visited the school and sat by while the children were put through a thorough examination. Then he reported back to the secretary of the London society. "I was on the whole much pleased," he wrote in summary of his findings, "and from what I then saw I have conceived a higher opinion of the natural capacities of the black race than I had ever before entertained. Their apprehension seems as quick, their memory as strong, and their docility in every respect equal to that of white children." This may seem today to be a very mild statement, but at the time it was truly revolutionary. It is perhaps the earliest statement we have by a prominent American citizen of the principle of basic equality in mental capacity between the two races. As such Franklin's words have unusual significance. Once again his curiosity had led him firmly to the discovery that what "everyone said" was fundamentally wrong.

I am sure it will not have escaped your notice that what Franklin had helped to establish in Philadelphia was what we should call a segregated school. It is natural that you should ask what stand he would probably take on the issue of integration if he were alive today. Such a question is always difficult to answer about any man who lived in an age so different from our own. But from a long study of the man I believe I can suggest at least a partial answer. In his solution of the problem of Negro education in his own day he was both a realist and a revolutionary, moving emphatically forward but by careful stages. Most assuredly he would have no sympathy for those who have so long insisted on the "separate but equal" doctrine, while they have in fact so strongly emphasized the word "separate" but until recently have paid so little attention to the word "equal." As we have seen, Franklin, far ahead of most men of his time, came by direct observation to recognize that there are no inherent differences in intellectual capacity among peoples based upon their racial differences. It is my sincere belief that here in the middle of the twentieth century he would approve the Supreme Court's recent decisions. But as he did in his own day on many other difficult issues, he would have recognized that basic social and political attitudes change slowly and are best dealt with through the exercise of patience and restraint and by the process of education itself. And he would have confidence that men of good will on both sides of the issue could and would, if given the opportunity, work the problem through to its just and lasting conclusion.

Thus we have surveyed three characteristics of Benjamin Franklin which are among the most meaningful for us today. He lived in a revolutionary age, as we do today, and in several respects was, among his contemporaries, one of the truly revolutionary leaders in thought and action. He brought to the questions of his day, the scientific, the political, and the social problems of eighteenth century America, these three notable qualities: first, an intense curiosity, a desire to explore the unknown and to find out things that are helpful or necessary for man to know, both about nature and about his fellow men; second, a strong and unselfish desire to serve mankind and to better the lot of human beings at every level of society; and third, a deep conviction that education — both formal schooling and self-education — is essential to the happiness of the individual and the advancement of the human race. Franklin faced the revolutionary changes through which he lived fearlessly and intelligently. And he helped to guide those changes along useful and constructive paths. Perhaps we, as we face the revolutionary changes of our times can profit from his example.

In Memoriam

Dr. Charles A. Lewis, '05, died on March 3, 1957, at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia. Dr. Lewis had encouraged and financed many a young man eager for an education to come to Lincoln University, many of whom have gone on to become leaders in their fields.

The Rev. Roger G. Cannady, '10s, a retired minister of the AMEZ church, died at his home in Oxford, N.C., on January 30, following a long illness. He entered the ministry of the AMEZ church in 1916 and served the denomination for forty years at various churches in North Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia.

On March 24, the Rev. Cornelius Dawson, '17, was stricken with a heart attack while preaching at the Church of the Crucifixion in New Jersey, and died a short time later in the University of Pennsylvania Hospital. Father Dawson had served in the priesthood for 35 years.

Dr. William B. Butler, '19, died of cancer of the brain on February 21, 1957 in Baltimore, Md.

James H. Baker, '26, died in Washington, D.C., following an illness of two years. Among the important posts held by the late Mr. Baker were instructor in English literature at Lincoln University (Pa.), executive secretary of the Albany Urban League, administrator in the New York City Department of Welfare, president of the Baker Management Service, information specialist with the National Housing Agency in Washington, and president and owner of Jariv, Inc., a jewelry company.

The Rev. William Moore, '34s, passed away suddenly on April 3, 1957, at his home in Roanoke, Va. He was pastor of the Morning Star and Mount Moriah Baptist Churches located in Roanoke, Va.

Dr. Collins J. Reynolds, '36, succumbed March 15, 1957, of uremia poisoning. Prior to his death, Dr. Reynolds was teaching in the Cass Technical High School and was teacher of history at Wayne University in Detroit, Mich.

THE SEMINARY

WHEREAS, There is continuing and increasing need among all denominations for trained and informed leadership, especially among the Negro churches, and

WHEREAS, There is continuing and increasing need among all denominations for trained and informed leadership, especially among the Negro churches, and

WHEREAS, The general movement in city, state and world is toward ecumenicity, and

WHEREAS, The Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., has withdrawn its financial support, and

WHEREAS, It is incumbent upon alumni of every seminary to assist in the responsibility of raising funds for (Continued on Page 22) its maintenance and expansion program.

BE IT RESOLVED, That the Lincoln University Theological Seminary be continued as a graduate school for the training and education of dedicated persons (male or female) for the Christian ministry as pastors, teachers, directors and leaders of Christian education, and

BE IT RESOLVED, That the present high seminary standards be raised as quickly as possible to meet the demands of a changing church in a changing society, and

BE IT RESOLVED, That we concur with the conviction of President Bond, expressed in the Report of the Special Consultants to the Seminary (January 8, 1957, page 1), that this Seminary can more satisfactorily than any other institution "educate men of all races for the ministry of an 'integrated church in an integrated community,'" as well as "educate men of all races and nationalities for a world-integrated, ecumenical Church," and

BE IT RESOLVED, That there be a definite organization created among the Seminary alumni to spearhead alumni giving annually, and

BE IT RESOLVED, That the full resources and facilities of the University's Office of Public Relations be utilized to implement fund-raising, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the Seminary alumni co-operate with the Administration and Board of Trustees in every way possible (such as personal gifts, church donations, scholarship funds, general solicitations, etc.) in raising of an annual minimum of $30,000.00.

FACULTY NEWS

Dr. Moses Lukaczer has an article, "An Integrated Course in Economics and Political Science," in the January, 1957, issue of Progressive Education. The article points out the logical ties between economics and political science which help to make an integrated course a success, unlike attempts to integrate social studies and English, which have only a few logical ties between them.

Have You Remembered Lincoln University in Your Will?

FORM OF BEQUEST

To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $......................... to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
My final word as president of Lincoln University is one of deep gratitude to two special groups of Lincoln University alumni.

The first group is composed of those loyal self-sacrificing alumni who have given so generously and steadily to the institution during my administration. Including bequests, the gifts of alumni to Lincoln University from 1945-1957 have gone above the half-million mark.

The formal announcement of Dr. Bond's resignation as president of Lincoln University was made at the end of the Commencement exercises on June 4. The Board of Trustees elected him president honorarius for life and also assigned him the task of completing for publication a history of Lincoln University. Dr. Bond has been appointed the Alexander J. Inglis lecturer in education at Harvard University for 1957-58.

In the last two years the program of annual giving has grown from $4,514.46 in 1955-56—the first year—to $8,258.38, as of June 19, 1957. If we add in what the Seminary alumni have given, and what the Ladies Auxiliary has given this year—plus other alumni donations—we come close to $12,000 in alumni gifts for operating expenses during the last year.

Annual giving, alone, is equivalent to a new endowment resource of more than $200,000. It can be, and ought to be, and will be, doubled, tripled, quadrupled, within the next three years.

An honest, though valedictory, confession, is good for the soul. Lincoln's University's resources have grown greatly during my administration. Our annual income has tripled. The value of the physical plant has doubled, and teachers' salaries are in the top quarter of American colleges—in the top ten per cent in Pennsylvania. But Lincoln, doubtless, would have more money—had I been a better beggar! Now it is a sad disqualification of a college president that he does not like to beg; for the tincup is his badge of office and the "Beggar's Opera" his personal anthem.

But asking an alumnus for money is not really "begging"; it is asking him to acknowledge a debt he owes. So it has been a sadness to observe alumni well qualified to give, yet never giving; and it has been a great delight to see alumni—many who could not well afford to give—giving generously and gladly. To them I say, God bless you, one and all! May their tribe greatly increase. And may annual giving reach $25,000 in 1957-58 and soar to new heights in later years!

The second particular object of my affection is, of course, the "boys" who have attended Lincoln University during my administration. Now that we are all "old grads," we can afford to tell, at last, the quite unvarnished truth: our generation was quite the most intelligent, best educated, and most successful of any in the history of the institution. And, noblest of even this later, finest breed, was the basketball team of 1956-57. The boys didn't win a single game, but they played their hearts out and stuck to the end, always valiant, always coming back for more—with not an athletic scholar in a carload!

They are what I call MEN. If there have ever been finer ones in Lincoln's history, I'd like to meet them. They fought, they lost, they came back to fight again. To them, my deepest admiration and best wishes.

CALENDAR OF UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES

May 16—Dr. Eugene P. Chase, professor of government at Lafayette College and a Phi Beta Kappa senator, spoke on "Honors and the Ordinary Student" at the annual observance of Honors Day.

June 2—Dr. Horace M. Bond delivered the Baccalaureate address.

June 3—Alumni Day.

June 4—Commencement exercises.

THE AMOUNT THAT STUDENTS SPEND in attending college has doubled since 1939-40, Lawrence G. Derthick, commissioner of education, has reported in announcing preliminary findings of an Office of Education survey. Commissioner Derthick said that the expenditure per year for full-time undergraduate students attending public colleges this year averages about $1,500. A student in a private college pays about $2,000 a year. The average expenditure in 1939-40 was $747 for a student in a public college, and $1,023 for a private college student. Expenditures per student ranged from $200 to $5,500 per year. For the middle half of the group surveyed, the range was from $815 to $1,708. Figures include both living costs—clothes, room, board, travel, recreation or entertainment, etc.—and educational costs—tuition, fees, books, and instructional supplies and equipment. The base year for the survey was 1952-53. Projections for 1957 have taken into account the Bureau of Labor Statistics' cost-of-living index and also the rise in tuition, fees, and other college costs. More than 15,000 students from 110 colleges were included in the random sample for the survey. It was conducted by Ernest V. Hollis, director of the College and University Administration Branch of the Office of Education.

CONGRESSMAN CARL ELLIOTT OF ALABAMA, chairman of the Subcommittee on Special Education of the House Committee on Education and Labor, has announced that his Subcommittee will begin a series of hearings on the subject of Federal assistance to undergraduate college students, and that they intend "to plow the ground on this subject as it has never been plowed before." Hearings in Washington will begin this summer. They will be followed by regional hearings in the fall at central points in the Northeast, the Midwest, the West, and the South. Legislation based upon the hearings probably will not be written until early next year. Anticipating the lively interest in the possibility of Federal aid to undergraduates which has since developed in the 85th Congress, the American Council on Education's Committee on Relationships of Higher Education to the Federal Government last November adopted a statement of principles, "Desirable Features of a Federal Scholarship Program." The Committee further instructed President Arthur S. Adams to make a survey of the attitudes of Council members toward this statement and toward various types of Federal aid to undergraduates which might be considered by Congress. A preliminary report of the response of Council members was made to the Committee on Relationships at its meeting in March. Although not all members of the Committee personally approve a Federal Scholarship Program, the Committee unanimously voted to authorize the Officers of the Council to use the results of the questionnaire as the position of the American Council on Education on Federal Scholarships.

STRESSING THE IMPORTANCE OF CONTINUED CONTACTS with foreign alumni, the Department of State is urging American colleges and universities to give a high priority to maintaining such contacts. In a letter of April 15 to heads of institutions, Russell L. Riley, director of the Department's International Educational Exchange Service, stated in part, "Study undertaken in this country by foreign visitors . . . can make important and lasting contributions to the promotion of mutual understanding particularly if professional and personal (Continued on Page 14)
Polite Learning And A Liberal Education
VALEDICTORY
By William M. Womack, '57

Dr. Bond, Members of the Board of Trustees, Honored Guests, Members of the Faculty, Parents, Fellow Graduates:

It is impossible today to find a man who believes the right things were done to his mind. He was forced to learn too many things, or too few. Something was always left out or skimmed over too quickly — mathematics, poetry, the method of science, the history of this or that. The result is that he does not feel at home in the realms of nature and intellect. He knows he has missed something and has not the vaguest idea where to find it again.

There is undoubtedly no age that has thought its education is good enough. Life itself is never good enough; and the job of education, which is to remedy the defect, doubtless cannot be done. If life were perfect there would be no need of education. Life, however, remains imperfect, and so does education.

We cannot decide with certainty today whether to instruct a child in what will be useful to him in life or in what is excellent and fine. The issues today are between moral and intellectual education and between liberal and technical training.

What basically is a liberal education? It is certainly more than a classical education, more than an education in English literature and more than an education in what is called "the humanities." Each of these is necessary to the whole, but it is not the whole; nor, as education is conducted today, is it a large part.

An education in the literatures of Greece and Rome—particularly Greece—ought to be a great thing. Greek literature is not everything; yet it is the heart of what we need to know. The Greek and Latin languages, also necessary to our knowledge, are another matter. Our failure has consisted in confusing the relation between a proper study of the literatures and a proper study of the languages. The immediate result is that we have developed a hatred of Greek and Latin, and a prevailing ignorance of what they were once used for—to give an account of the world.

A similar argument can be made for English literature. It is seldom that the great books in English are widely read. This is somewhat due to the fact that lesser books, on the mistaken theory that they are easier, are preferred; in such a case the great ones are not read at all.

But books, even at their literary best — the humanities enveloping the arts — and classical education are only half of the liberal tradition. Without wisdom in the other half, which we label mathematics and science, they tend to become empty.

Let us look at the entire picture of liberal arts to see why they are necessary for the properly educated man.

The proper reference in the word
"liberal" is to a family of arts which have their own history and meaning. However, there is such a very vague acquaintance even with the names of these arts, and so little curiosity as to their function, that colleges of the liberal arts are seldom challenged to defend or explain such a title, and out of the thousands who annually become "masters" of the same arts, only a few ever know what they have been dubbed "masters" of. These arts by name are grammar, rhetoric, logic, arithmetic, music, geometry, and astronomy. Today we call the first three reading, writing, and thinking. The last four have been grouped under the name of physics.

The liberal arts are specific arts, clearly distinguished from the other arts and performing necessary human functions. They are always in a middle position between those arts with which we manipulate objects and those with which we create. They are specifically intellectual arts and are therefore keys to all of man's operations as man.

The educated man is a product. The process of which he is a product is the process of mastering the liberal arts or, more modestly, of acquiring them.

The liberal arts are an education in the art of communication. We talk in paradoxes and figures; the uneducated man either ignores the paradoxes or is infuriated by them. The liberal arts familiarize us with the standard allegories and prepare us to cope with those of the poets, the mathematicians, and the scientists.

The liberal arts make us expert in the species of things and in their quantities. Their aim is exactness and there is never such a thing as too much exactness. The liberal arts are the liberating arts. They involve memory, calculation, manipulation, and measurement and call for dexterity of both mind and hand. Without these powers, no mind is free to be what it desires.

The aim of liberal education is one's own excellence, the perfection of one's own intellectual character. The task of liberal education is to make itself loved so that excellence, the end it seeks, may in turn be loved.

We, the graduating class of 1957, are proud of our four years here at Lincoln and of the training she has bestowed upon us in the liberal arts tradition. We can point with pride to the fact that she has made us "men of polite learning and a liberal education."

We leave these walls with a feeling of sadness and it could not be otherwise after such four pleasant years; but we can be happy in the thought that the sacrifices which our parents made to make this education possible will not have been in vain. We are well equipped to go forth into the world to render that service which is expected of men who are educated in the liberal arts.

Please fill out and return the Alumni Biographical Record which appeared in the spring issue of the Bulletin.
The final issue of the Nash Hi Star for 1956-57, published by the students of Nash County Training School, Nash-ville, N. C., was dedicated to their principal, Willard J. McLean, upon his retirement from the teaching profession. McLean came to Nash County Training School in 1943, where he became well known and respected in educational circles in the community.

The Rev. Arthur E. Rankin, secretary of the Class of 1907, was spokesman for his classmates at the Annual Banquet of the General Alumni Association when representatives of reunion classes were called on to speak. At Commencement Dr. Rankin presented the plates of White's “Underground Railroad” to Lincoln.

Dr. Robert Jason, dean of the Howard University Medical School, presided over the Association of Former Internes and Residents of Freedmen's Hospital at its 35th annual meeting June 4-6. Dr. Jason was elevated to the post of Dean of the Howard University School of Medicine in 1955, and is the first former interne among 1,000 physicians who received their hospital training at Freedmen's Hospital to head the Howard Medical School.

Dr. Hildrus A. Poindexter, medical director PHS and chief public health officer, ICA/Surinam, Paramaribo, Surinam, has been elected to membership in “De Vereeniging van Geneesheeren in Suriname” (the Surinam Medical Association).
Dr. Horace M. Bond (l.) congratulates Dr. L. Deckle McLean on whom the honorary degree of Doctor of Science had just been conferred. Professor Manuel Rivero, University marshal, is adjusting Dr. McLean's hood. Dr. McLean, who would have been a member of the Class of 1925, left Lincoln at the end of his junior year to enter the Howard Medical School. The honorary degree of Doctor of Social Science was conferred upon Andrew M. Bradley, budget secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Horace M. Bond attended the meeting of the President's Committee on Education Beyond the High School in Washington, D. C., on May 17 and returned to Washington on June 9 to speak at the Plymouth Congregational Church Forum. On June 11 he conferred with officials of the state legislature in Harrisburg and succeeded in getting Senate Bill 720 amended to make Lincoln University, along with Temple University and the Universities of Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania, eligible for assistance in building construction under the General State Authority. A conference on foreign student exchange took him back to Washington on June 14. On June 26 Dr. Bond was guest speaker at the meeting of the Young Democratic Club of Chester County.

Dr. H. Alfred Farrell attended the tenth annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Group of the College English Association at Bucknell University on May 4. The meeting featured a panel discussion of the subject "The Freshman English Program to Meet the Specific Needs of Students." On Honors Day (May 16) Dr. Bond presented Dr. Farrell a certificate in recognition of his being voted "Most Popular Teacher" by the student body. On June 16 he was the Men's Day speaker at the Bethel Presbyterian Church in Plainfield, N. J. From June 27-30 he attended the Second Haverford Conference on English Composition and Literature.

Dr. Henry H. Cornwell, associate professor of psychology, was chosen by the student Board of Selectors as "Teacher of the Year." Dr. Elizabeth Beardsley, lecturer in philosophy, and Dr. Thomas Jones, associate professor of history, received first and second honorable mention. Dr. Cornwell was presented with an inscribed cup and a certificate on Honors Day. Dr. Beardsley and Dr. Jones were presented certificates. Teachers receiving the highest number of votes are considered by the Board of Selectors for the honor of being chosen "Teacher of the Year." Dr. Beardsley, who will be on leave of absence during 1957-58, was tendered a party by her colleagues on May 15.

Governor George M. Leader (r.) of Pennsylvania receives the congratulations of Dr. Bond after the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws had been conferred on him. Governor Leader was the Commencement speaker.

Mr. Dwight Morrow, instructor in history, received the Ph.D. degree in history from Harvard University on June 13.

Chul Yung Cha, one of the first students to enter Lincoln under the New Program, was salutatorian of the Class of 1957. He spoke on the subject “International Education — A Student Appraisal.”

The Senior Class gave a preview showing of its class night exercises in a special University Assembly on Tuesday, April 30, at 8:15 p.m. Faculty and students saw a program that was reminiscent of the “good old days,” thanks to the sponsor of the class, Dr. Leroy Johnson, ’31. The program was repeated for alumni on Monday, June 2, at 6:30 p.m.

An interesting program was presented by the International Students Association at the University Assembly on Thursday, May 2. Greetings were delivered in Hebrew by an Israeli; in Arabic by a Jordanian; in Armenian by another Jordanian; in French by a French student; in English by a student from Barbados; in Mende and Temme by two Sierra Leone students; in Twi and Ga by two Ghana (Gold Coast) students; in Ibo by a Nigerian; and in Kikuyu and Swahili by a Kenya student. Three African musical numbers completed the program, featuring a band of seven African students using native drums, calabashes, and a piano. Vocalists included a talented Nigerian singer, Sunny Akapaidiok, and the chieftain of the Denkyira state in Ghana, Nana Boa Amponsem, III. The program was under the direction of Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, associate professor of the classics.

Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity sponsored the eighth annual observance of Phi Beta Sigma Sunday on May 5 in Mary Dod Brown Chapel at 3:00 p.m. Members of the fraternity and their guests and friends came from many parts of the country to hear the young artists presented by the fraternity: John Rich, tenor; Willard Robinson, basso-profundo; and William Neal, pianist.

The Lincoln Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha, the national honorary fraternity in philosophy for undergraduates, was represented by Charles Lundy, Norman Reeves, James Warden, and Charles Williams at the national convention at Morgan State College on May 4. One of the discussion groups was led by members of the Lincoln delegation, and Charles Lundy was elected national vice-president for 1957-58. The group was accompanied by the faculty sponsor, Dr. Elizabeth Beardsley, lecturer in philosophy.

Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity held its annual Freshman Oratorical Contest on Tuesday, May 14, at 8:00 p.m. Richard A. Taylor was adjudged the winner with second and third places going to Howard D. Wood and Leroy R. Titus. Serving as judges were Doctors Cornwell, Farrell, and Johnson.

Honors Day

The following recipients of awards in the college were announced by Dr. Leroy Johnson, acting dean of the College, at the annual observance of Honors Day on Thursday, May 16: the Class of 1899 Prize for excellence in English, Robert E. Lawhon, ’57; the Class of 1900 Prize in debating, James Warden, ’58; the Kappa Alpha Psi Prizes in Oratory (freshmen), Richard A. Taylor; Howard D. Wood, and Leroy R. Titus.

In Memoriam

"Time like an ever rolling stream
Bears all its sons away."

Dr. James H. Tucker, '22s, died on Easter Sunday, April 21, 1957, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Josephine Scott, in East Elmhurst, N. Y., after a long siege of illness. Dr. Tucker was head of the Agricultural Department of Dinwiddie School and tutor director at Greensboro College in North Carolina.

The Rev. Dr. William W. Walker, '97, '00s, long-time pastor of the Madison Ave. Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, Md., died June 5, 1957. Three of his sons, William, '31, Alfred, '34 (deceased), and John, '38, are graduates of Lincoln.
Scholarships, Fellowships &
Job Opportunities

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for social workers (parole) for positions in Federal penal and correctional institutions. The Federal Prison Service and the Department of Corrections, District of Columbia Government, both offer career service opportunities. Appointees entering the service of these agencies through this examination will have an opportunity for advancement to higher grade social work positions upon acquisition of a minimum of one year of case work experience in a correctional institution and upon showing proper qualifications and aptitude for the acceptance and discharge of additional and more responsible duties. Opportunities are available not only within the institution to which appointment is made but also through transfer and/or promotion to other institutions within the respective agencies. Competitors will not be required to report for a written test but will be rated on a scale of 100 on the extent and quality of their experience and training relevant to the duties of the position. Such ratings will be based upon competitors' statements in their application and upon any additional evidence secured. The basis entrance salary is $4,525 a year. The register established as a result of this examination will supersede the register established under Announcement 9-14-3 of 1954 for Social Worker (Parole). Persons who attained eligibility under Announcement No. 9-14-3 of 1954 should apply for this new examination if they are still interested in receiving consideration for these positions. What to file: Form 57 (showing title of position and number of announcement, 9-14-3 of 1957), Card Form 5001-ABC, and Standard Form 15 (for veterans). Forms may be obtained at post offices or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C., and should be sent to the Executive Secretary, Board of United States Civil Service Examiners, U. S. Penitentiary, Leavenworth, Kan.

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for clinical social workers for positions to be filled in hospitals and regional offices of the Veterans Administration throughout the United States and in Puerto Rico. Clinical social workers in the Veterans Administration provide medical and psychiatric social work service to veterans in hospitals and domiciliaries, and to those receiving outpatient care in mental hygiene and other clinics. The social worker, in line with the medical goal of health and restoration of the veteran to the best possible adjustment, helps the veteran fully develop his own abilities and gain maximum value from medical and other benefits available through the Veterans Administration and community resources. Applicants must have successfully completed all the requirements for the master's degree from an accredited graduate school of social work based upon the completion of two years of graduate study including courses in casework, psychiatric and medical information, and all the supervised fieldwork required for the second year curriculum by the school of social work attended. In addition to meeting the educational requirement, applicants must show successful, progressively responsible social work experience. The evaluation of the applicant's performance and potentialities for clinical social work will be based upon information obtained through confidential inquiry of his social work supervisor and other persons familiar with the quality of his work. Qualifying experience must have been gained in the social work program of a hospital or clinic or in a welfare agency such as family service, child welfare or public welfare, or in a similar agency maintaining acceptable standards in the provision of social service to individuals and families. Separate registers will be established for Clinical Social Worker, grades GS-7 and GS-9. These registers will supersede all those es-(Continued on Page 18) contact can be maintained with the foreign visitor after he has returned to his own country.” The Department’s recommendation for increased emphasis on “follow-up” measures is being made at the suggestion of the American Council on Education’s Commission on Education and International Affairs, as well as members of the United States Advisory Commission on Educational Exchange. American colleges and universities are making a very significant contribution to the entire exchange program. The Commission hopes that it may be possible for institutions to cooperate still further with the Department of State in carrying out its recommendations for additional continuing contacts with our foreign academic visitors. The personal follow-up through institutions in which the visitor has been a student, faculty member, or visitor will mean even more than such follow-up through Government or the operating agencies.

ALUMNI VS. SENIORS

The thrill-packed softball game, scheduled as a part of Commencement activities on June 1, brought reminiscences of former days. As the dust of battle subsided, the Alumni were on the long end of the 6-5 score. The Seniors with their airtight defense jumped into the lead and maintained a 5-0 edge until the fifth inning when the Alumni bunched hits to trail by 5-4. Led by the heavy bats of Smith, Cooper, Mumford, and LaMar the Alumni scored two more runs in the sixth for the margin of victory.

Letters

A SON FOR LINCOLN
McKinney, Texas

I am using this letter to inform you of my new address so that you might make the correction for sending my copy of the next Bulletin . . . I don't believe I have mentioned it before but on last October 12 I became the proud papa of a 10 lb. 14½ oz. boy, named Jr. of course, and a candidate for the class of 1978 or thereabouts. This makes a total of three tax exemptions for me; the first two were girls, twins and now age 4. I would like for them to enter Lincoln also since it is now coed but my wife, who is a Central State graduate, won't give in.

Emerson Emory, M.D., '48

CLASS SECRETARIES

Next year I hope to have much more time to do things that a good class secretary should do. I hope to retire at least by January, which will give me time to do the many things I have been wanting to do for quite a long time.

Ernest P. Sandidge, '12

Wishing you every blessing and that the work of our great institution continues to prosper.

Charles S. Freeman, '02

LOCAL CHAPTERS

Detroit, Mich.

I have appointed an active Scholarship Committee and some funds should be available by fall for scholastic help for a deserving young man. The Committee has been instructed to do a thorough job of screening so that we won't have the same results as were evident heretofore. The members are willing to dig down deep into their pockets if the student is qualified and deserving.

H. Franklin Brown, '37
President

Indianapolis, Ind.

New officers of the local alumni chapter installed at the recent meeting were:

President, Marion R. Perry, '12; Vice President, Joseph C. Williams, ex'32; Secretary, Charles M. Hayes, '13; Treasurer, Dr. L. Randle Young, '30; Regional Supervisor, Sea H. Ferguson, '25.

Committee on Fund Raising: Sea H. Ferguson, chairman, with instructions to "initiate immediately a campaign for funds for Lincoln in any way or manner legal, dignified and honorable."

Committee on Students for Lincoln: Emory A. James, '16, chairman; Committee on Public Relations: Atty. Patrick Chavis, ex'42, chairman.

Charles M. Hayes, '13
Secretary

ANNUAL GIVING

Ambridge, Pa.

I'm sending $50.00 to help in the Annual Giving Fund for Lincoln. I sent $50.00 the past April to the Seminary Convocation, so this brings my total up to $100 for this year. I'm praying for the success of the school and that God will bless this great work. I hope that the classes of '30- '33s will not let the school down in its great need.

Rev. Theodore R. Snowden, '30, '33s

REUNION ECHOES

Wilberforce, Ohio

The thrill of returning to Alma Mater after battling with sin, sickness and ignorance for 50 years cannot be expressed. I regard the campus as one of the most beautiful that I have seen lately and I have the opportunity to see many of them.

James M. Montgomery, '07

ALUMNI AWARD

Jacksonville, Fla.

Thanks very much for your letter of June 5, 1957, and also the package containing a certificate of award from the Alumni Association with citation and translation. I find it difficult to express my appreciation for this award and to you particularly for your prompt transmittal. It may seem queer but I can think of no honor that I have received to date that has brought me more elation than this one. I shall write a letter of acceptance and appreciation to the General Alumni Association, and one to Dr. Hopson for accepting the award for me.

FORM OF BEQUEST

To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $_________ to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
No one takes an acting president very seriously. If he sought the job, he has demonstrated an appalling want of judgement; while if he let himself be dragooned into accepting it, his instinct of self-preservation is so evidently blunted that he is a bad bet the next time he heads his car out onto Route One. Then there is the probability of an unavowed factor in his selection, namely that his teaching could be curtailed with less loss to the students than in the case of any other professor. He finds little incentive to initiate policies, which, even if there is time to get them under way, are likely to be reversed by his successor. Besides, while he of course fancies himself an authority on policy, he is a little vague about the matter of implementation.

So what the acting president does is sit back and wistfully scan the horizon for the aforementioned successor, trusting that the new momentum of the old ways and of tentative penetration into the new ways will carry the institution along for a while.

Actually, the old ways are playing out pretty fast. As Whitehead remarks, Humpty Dumpty was a very good egg, but it is impossible to set him up on the wall again. Reverential as our attitude must remain toward Lincoln's past, the future cannot be its straight-line prolongation. Our first hundred years were almost awesomely rich because our contribution matched the times, and, in the matching, helped shape them to something far better. That will always be one of our chief glories, but by our very success we worked ourselves out of a job, at least out of the job we were used to doing. In consequence we face a further period of transition that will require vision and tenacity on the part of everybody, and, more specifically, the patience and understanding of you, the alumni. Also, and you have been conditioned to expect this, your money.

This piece and, given the limitations of space, the next one, will be mainly about several goals. The alumnus who expects originality in what follows is warned to turn to another page of the Bulletin, or to pick up a good book; he will not find it here except as I sometimes tend to cloud questions with personal quirks. But in prescribing for rigor academicus, or whatever you want to call it, as in prescribing for the mumps, originality is perhaps not such an indispensable virtue after all. Anyway, most of what follows has been said for a long time—and said better, for that matter—and has been freshly re-examined and even acted on, but not as yet with such a degree of success as to make the problems look more like opportunities than problems.

For one thing, further integration is pretty close to first order of business. We are up against the paradox that we can no longer best serve any race by serving that race exclusively. Of course, for decades we have had a few white students here, and that is precisely what we still have—a few. This notwithstanding the fact that a largely segregated school is in the North, today, an anomaly.

Some facets of the difficulty I do not pretend to understand; others seem more obvious, as that we are close to the Mason and Dixon line, in a region with a plethora of good competing colleges. Furthermore all progress, but especially social progress, is at times slow, spotty, superficial and cussedly erratic. Thus despite the awareness of good men who have devoted themselves to helping it along, integration has been hard to come by. Our purpose should be, it seems to me, to continue a frontal attack on the problem via direct attempts at recruitment, and at the same time to try for a solution by indirection—an appeal through the increasing of areas of excellence in our offerings, the improvement of our already very competent faculty and an expansion of our already considerable foreign contingent. (If you detect here a hearty echo of the New Program, you are not deceived.) This, together with the growth and renovation of our physical plant, raises a host of new perplexities, mostly centering about fi-

September 19—Opening Convocation of 104th year.

October 19—Homecoming.

October 27—Dr. Francis S. Downs, a member of the Board of Trustees and a retired Presbyterian minister, was the speaker at the Sunday morning church services.

October 31—Rabbi Martin M. Weitz of Beth Israel Temple, Atlantic City, N. J., was the speaker at the weekly University Assembly. His subject was "New Frontiers for the Future."

November 3—The Rev. Maurice J. Moyer, '49, '52s, pastor of the Community Presbyterian Church, Wilmington, Del., brought the Sunday morning message.

November 7—The Honorable Ebenezer Ako-Adjei, '42, Ghana's Minister of Justice, addressed the University Assembly and told his audience about the progress and problems of the new nation. In the evening the Lectures and Recitals Committee presented John Pennink, pianist, in recital.

HIGHER EDUCATION IN THE UNITED STATES is an enormous charity. Though board and lodging are usually charged for at cost, an insignificant number—possibly none—of the three million students, even at the most expensive institutions, pay the full cost of their instruction proper. All get a standard discount, its size depending on the local cost level, the institution's wealth, and how eager the institution is to attract talented students who may lack the cash to pay full costs. Campus cost accounting is still largely a primitive art, so that figures must be accepted with caution, but it is probable that the private institutions' standard discounts average about $500 a year, those of state institutions about $800. Moreover, the many worthy students who find that the discounted tuition fee is still too high for them seek and often get an extra discount in the way of a grant or scholarship. An increasing number of institutions are turning to a central body, College Scholarship Service, for help in determining which students should get aid and how much. This ensures a fairer system of scholarship awards, but it by no means decreases the worries of the institutions as the 1970 hordes approach. Somebody, after all, must finance the discounts, which, on the basis of present practices, could top four billion by 1970.

APPROXIMATELY 3,450,000 STUDENTS will be enrolled in the colleges and universities during the current academic year, according to a preliminary estimate of the United States Office of Education. This is an increase of 206,000 over the 3,244,000 enrolled in 1956-57. It is calculated that one of every four persons in the United States will attend school or college this year. The Office of Education reports that institutions of higher education estimate they will spend $3,600,000,000 on new facilities during the five-year period 1956-60. This figure is based on current costs at the time the estimate was made (1956) and does not take into account the decreasing purchasing power of the dollar due to inflationary trends. It amounts to double that which was spent during the previous five-year period.

SPEAKING AT BUTLER UNIVERSITY, Dean Blair Stewart of Oberlin's College of Arts and Sciences outlined a radical plan that would double college enrollment without greatly increasing campus facilities and faculties. To follow his plan, colleges first would have to adopt the quarter system in place of semesters and conduct classes all year. Students would attend school only two quarters each year with quarter intervals between terms. But they would continue their studies "on their own" during their non-resident quarters. This system would result in a "more mature student" at graduation. While a class of students is off the campus, another class would be attending school with the same faculty, making the college available to twice as many students.
Lincoln University
A Statement Of Objectives
As Drawn Up by the Committee on the Presidency for Presentation to the Board of Trustees

Lincoln University desires to put to best use its spiritual heritage and the insights, inspirations and associations gained from over 100 years of experiences as the oldest liberal arts college for Negroes in the world. Because of its experience and associations, Lincoln is uniquely qualified to offer positive leadership in an effective way throughout the multi-racial world in which the United States will find itself even more intimately a part during the century ahead.

Education in general is so circumscribed by nationalistic and cultural orientations that graduates of even higher educational institutions are not well prepared for worldwide living. The failure of many liberal arts subjects to incorporate the contributions and points of view of a wide spectrum of cultures and peoples constantly hampers international understanding.

Affinity With Africa

Lincoln has inherited from its early and recent past an affinity with Africa which enables it to offer the possibility of a liberal arts education in America that can do much to bridge the gap between Anglo-Saxon and African cultures, extending perhaps even to Asian cultures. With this as a cornerstone, Lincoln can seek as time goes on to develop a worldwide orientation. It can hope to attract students from many nations to a campus where all students may participate in extra-curricular activity as well as in scholarly work. Thus it might demonstrate the values flowing from the intermingling of persons coming from various cultures.

The achievement of the goal of a "United Nations" university would surely be facilitated by the drawing force of a center for resource materials and advanced learning on such an unfolding subject as Africa. The center should be able by its excellence to attract to Lincoln some faculty, graduate scholars and undergraduate students wanting to do research requiring special knowledge and data in that field. Logically, special course and teaching would develop at such a center.

The objectives of Lincoln University are, therefore:

1. to develop extensive resource material on Africa;
2. to establish a school which will be outstanding with reference to African affairs;
3. to modify traditional liberal arts courses so as to incorporate the best features of other cultures;
4. to create an undergraduate body drawn from all peoples of the world; and
5. ultimately to offer graduate training in African affairs.

To accomplish these objectives, Lincoln will need to enlarge its student body, faculty and physical facilities, and to arrange for extensive exchanges of students and faculty members with universities in America and abroad.

A Feasibility Study

The first step of the University toward inaugurating such a new program must be a feasibility study made with the aid of the faculty, alumni, and trustees, and directed by competent outside persons. Such a study should include, if feasibility is found to exist, a development plan based on the findings of the study. The plan and report must show in convincing detail:

1. the potential student demand in the United States and abroad for such an institution as envisaged for the future Lincoln;
2. the present availability of faculty qualified to bring scholastic pre-eminence to Lincoln in such a broadened concept of liberal arts and in public affairs with special reference to Africa;
3. the possibilities of developing such faculty over the years by study, travel research and teaching;
4. an appraisal of the education to be imparted and the probable demand for graduates of the new Lincoln on the part of government, business, and the professions both in American and abroad;

(5) an evaluation of the general usefulness of such a resource of learning, information, research and teaching to our nation and the world at large; and
(6) an analysis and appraisal of possible financial support and a plan proposing precise ways in which such support might best be sought.

Qualities Sought in New President
To carry out these objectives the Committee on the Presidency is seeking a man who has or comes nearest to having the following qualities:

(1) the normal attributes of a well educated and considerate gentleman;
(2) a good mind, ability to grasp a new subject quickly, freedom from prejudice and preconception, imagination coupled with a good sense of reality, wisdom, foresight, ingenuity, sense of excellence, abundant energy, emotional maturity, capacity for detail, persistence, tact and a sense of humor;
(3) ability to write clearly and forcibly and to speak well with both small and large gatherings;
(4) proven capacity for friendship and for inspired leadership, good organizing ability and administrative talent;
(5) sufficient familiarity with academic life to win the support of the faculty, select good people for university work, build up the academic life and standards of the University, and perform the president's role with dignity and good relations with all;
(6) sufficient experience in the affairs of business and government to be effective in dealing in these areas in regard to financial programming and appeals for financial support, enrollment of students for in-training through advanced studies, and placement of graduates from the University;
(7) international understanding and a reputation for concern in this area of interest;
(8) a believer in the great cause which Lincoln University represents today.

The following citation was read by Alfred Neal, '38, at a dinner given by the Ministerial Alliance of Washington, D. C., in June in honor of Dr. Frank Wilson, who resigned as dean of Howard's School of Religion in order to become education secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. Neal presented Dr. Wilson with an attache case from the Washington, D. C., Chapter of the General Alumni Association.

Frank T. Wilson, Scholar, Athlete, Servant of God and Friend of Mankind.

Because of your devotion to your Alma Mater, The Lincoln University, and your unselfish untiring efforts in behalf of the local chapter of The Lincoln University, we are greatly indebted to you.

Wise counseling, administrative brilliance, willingness to serve, keen sense of humor and diplomatic wisdom are only a few of your many qualities that we admire and will miss.

Many of us have known you as Dean of Men, teacher, administrator and a God-fearing man working for the betterment of all people.

You have walked with kings and not lost the common touch. You have labored in many fields on a national and international scale without just reward. Your own innate modesty only serves to deepen our appreciation for your statue as a man among men.

On behalf of the local chapter of The Lincoln University, it is not only a pleasure, but an honor for me to present this gift to you as an expression of the high esteem in which we think of you.

As you go forth in your new endeavor we pray to Almighty God that through his guidance your work will be a success and your rewards will be multiplied.

The Seminary

This year the Seminary welcomed one of its largest new classes in several years. For the first time the student body includes two students from Asia, Toshio Mine of Ube City, Japan, a graduate of Yamaguchi University and a junior in the Seminary, and the Rev. Tae-Whan Oh of Taegu, Korea, a minister in the Korean Presbyterian Church and a special student in the Seminary. In addition, the Seminary has enrolled two special students from Ghana, the Rev. George Badu and the Rev. Edward Ohemeng. The other new students are:

  Lymell Carter, Jacksonville, Tex.—Texas College.
  Paul Gordon, Media, Media, Pa.—West Chester State Teachers College.
  Willard Grace, Oxford, Pa.—Eastern Nazarene College.
  DeLysle Henry, Cumberland, Md.—Eastern Nazarene College and the University of Pennsylvania.
  Anderson Porter, Bristol, Va.—Mary Holmes Junior College and Lincoln University.
  Charles Williams, Philadelphia, Pa.—Lincoln University.

A new addition to the Seminary faculty is the Rev. L. Charles Gray, '35, '38s, of Jersey City, N. J., where he is pastor of the Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Mr. Gray is teaching courses in practical theology.

Dr. Samuel G. Stevens, associate professor of practical theology and homiletics, is on partial leave this year for further study.

Several neighboring ministers have been invited to lead Seminary devotions: the Rev. Donald N. Scofield of the Oxford Baptist Church, the Rev. Richard Neff of the Nottingham Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. Laurence McMaster, Jr., of the First Presbyterian Church of Oxford.

At its recent meeting the Presbyterian Council of Theological Education voted to continue Lincoln (along with Johnson C. Smith and Bloomfield) as an associate member of the Council and to continue the current appropriation to the Seminary. The help of the alumni in making the continuation possible is greatly appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Tabor are the proud parents of a son born on September 30. The baby weighed 7 lbs. 2 ozs. and has been christened Jonathan Jordan. Tabor, student-pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Oxford, Pa., is a senior in the Seminary. Little Jonathan was welcomed by five other little members of the Tabor family.

Scholarships, Fellowships & Job Opportunities

The National Science Foundation announces that applications are now being accepted in four fellowship programs which will lead to the award of approximately 1,000 fellowships in March 1958. NSF fellowships are awarded in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological, engineering and other sciences including anthropology, psychology (excluding clinical psychology), geography and certain interdisciplinary fields, and fields of convergence between the natural and social sciences. Selection of persons for fellowships will be made from among citizens of the United States solely on the basis of ability.

I. PREDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

These fellowships provide an annual stipend, payment of tuition and fees, dependency allowances for married fellows and a limited travel allowance. The closing date for receipt of applications for 1958-1959 will be January 3, 1958. Awards will be made on March 15, 1958. Fellowships will be awarded in three categories as follows:

First Year Fellowships—Annual stipend, $1,600. Awarded to students entering graduate school for the first time or those who have completed less than one normal year of graduate study as of the beginning of the tenure of their fellowships. Seniors in college who will receive the baccalaureate degree during the 1957-1958 academic year are eligible to apply for these awards.

Intermediate Fellowships—Annual stipend, $1,800. Awarded to students who will have completed, as of the beginning of their fellowships, an amount of graduate training considered by the institutions at which they are in attendance to be a normal year of graduate study, but who will require more than one additional year to complete the requirements for a doctoral degree.

Terminal Year Fellowships—Annual stipend, $2,000. Awarded to students who expect to complete the requirements for a doctoral degree within one calendar year from the date on which they enter on the tenure of their fellowships.

II. POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM (REGULAR)

These fellowships are awarded to individuals who, at the time they enter on the tenure of their fellowships, will have received a doctoral degree in science (or the equivalent in scientific training). An annual stipend of $3,800, payment of tuition and fees, dependency allowances for married fellows and a limited travel allowance are provided. The closing date for receipt of applications for awards to be made on March 15, 1958 will be December 23, 1957.

III. SENIOR POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

This program is intended primarily for recognized senior scientists five years or more past the doctoral degree at the time application is made. Stipends are based on a salary-matching principle but are reduced by the amount of other fellowships or similar support. A travel allowance and an additional allowance for special needs are also normally available. The closing date for the receipt of applications will be January 13, 1958. Awards will be made on March 18, 1958.

IV. SCIENCE FACULTY FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

This program is designed for college science teachers who plan to continue teaching and wish to increase their competence as science teachers. Eligibility requirements include a baccalaureate degree and three years of...
FOOTBALL

National Agr. College 37—Lincoln 0

The Lions traveled to Doylestown for their first game of the season as guest of the "Aggies," who weren't too hospitable as they inflicted a disastrous defeat upon the Lions. Freshman Allen Tindall emerged as a potential Lincoln star, gaining 71 yards in nine tries. Lincoln showed ability to move the ball but was plagued by fumbles.

Virginia Union 43—Lincoln 6

Lincoln's Homecoming was marred by the Lions' second straight defeat before a crowd of 1,500. Lincoln's defense proved unable to stop the hard running of "Chuck" Robinson and John Braxton, although guards James Tyler and Stan Williams and tackle Bob Smith gave stellar performances. Lincoln scored its lone touchdown on a ten-yard pass from Johnny Latimer to halfback Joe Franklin.

Delaware State 26—Lincoln 0

An alert Delaware State team completely overpowered the Lions, who were unable to muster a sustaining drive. Delaware's Bob Naylor was a thorn in the side of the Lions throughout the game. Lincoln's team seemed unable to do anything right as it lost its third straight game.

Hampton 16—Lincoln 7

The Lions seemed to be on their way to their first win of the season as they led the Pirates 7-3 with about three minutes left in the game. Trying a desperation pass, Bill Smith of Hampton threw the ball 25 yards for a touchdown, which proved to be enough to defeat the Lions. The Lions scored their touchdown on a screen pass from Johnny Latimer to Whit Walker. Lincoln displayed a great defensive exhibition with three goal line stands.

Lincoln 24—St. Paul 0

Led by fullback Norman Trueheart and halfback Richard "Junior" Greene, the Lions ran roughshod over the St. Paul eleven. Trueheart collected two touchdowns and Greene and Billy King were responsible for one each. The win broke a four-game losing streak.

CROSS COUNTRY

St. Joseph 21—LaSalle 43—Lincoln 86

Haverford 95—Temple 173

Lincoln was able to place third in its first and probably toughest meet of the season, which was run at Haverford College. St. Joseph, with one of the top cross country teams in the state, easily took top honors.

Lincoln 15—Bowie 45

Bowie proved to be a pushover for the swift Lions as Lincoln swept the first five places. Freshman Eddy Williams placed first with a time of 21:26. Martin Riley, Norman Campbell, Raymond Betz, and Anthony Bowers followed in that order for Lincoln. The meet was run at Bowie State Teachers College in Maryland.

West Chester 22—Lincoln 39

Lincoln traveled to West Chester only to be defeated in its third meet of the season. The Lions did manage to place two runners in the first five, with James Kimani and Eddy Williams taking second and fourth places respectively.

Lincoln 18—Howard 59—Bowie 59

In their first home meet of the season the Lions emerged victorious, taking first place for the second time this year and placing four men in the first five. James Kimani, who hails from Kenya, broke Lincoln's course record with a time of 19:23. Howard managed to place one man (McMillan, third) in the first five.

Lincoln 26—Elizabethtown 31

Lincoln climbed over the .500 mark after defeating Elizabethtown College at Elizabethtown. James Kimani again set the pace for the Lions with a time of 22:54. Raymond Betz placed fourth for the Lions.

Lincoln 18—Bainbridge 40

In a steady downpour of rain the Lincoln Lions extended their winning streak to three straight wins with
SPORTS IN REVIEW

Kimani taking first place and Eddy Williams, Norman Campbell, Martin Riley, placing second, fourth and fifth respectively to lead Lincoln to its third consecutive meet win.

Lincoln 25—Cheyney 30

Coach Tom Jones' distance men were "up" for this meet and had every intention of bringing Cheyney State's unbeaten record of 6-0 to an end. The upset was overshadowed by the magnificent running of James Kimani over the three-and-a-quarter-mile course. Kimani set a new course record of 18:41, breaking the record of 19:23 which he set on October 26 of this year. Other Lincoln men who placed in the top five were Eddy Williams and Martin Riley, who placed third and fourth respectively.

SOCIOCR

Rider 4—Lincoln 1

In their season's debut the Lions showed lots of potential despite their losing effort. Samuel Essandoh scored the Lions only goal in the third quarter.

Lincoln—Philadelphia Textile

The game between Lincoln and Philadelphia Textile at Textile was postponed because of a flu epidemic.

Elizabethtown 7—Lincoln 0

Lincoln traveled to Elizabethtown only to be shut out by Elizabethtown College. Despite the stellar performances of Jesse Anderson, Abu Fadika and Hal Taylor, the Lions were unable to muster a winning attack. Lincoln's chief weakness seems to lie in its halfbacks.

Lincoln 2—Philadelphia Textile 1

For the first time this season the Lions combined speed, teamwork, and a few breaks to win their first game. The outstanding playing of Samuel Essandoh, Robert "Bootie" Rainer, Pomti Ellis, and Hal Taylor was very instrumental in the Lincoln victory. All of Lincoln's scoring came in the first half of the contest with goals by Rainer and Essandoh.

ances, but none I am sure will prove beyond our power to cope with.

In any case, we cannot rest on the laurels justly earned from a notable triumph in a field now grown too narrow.

Next time, I will touch on reasons for believing we must try to become a larger school, and why being larger would in some respects make us better, or at least make others think us better, which is not quite the same thing. That is, I will if I am still around.

NEW FACULTY MEMBERS

Mr. Alfred F. Anderson, who is serving as visiting lecturer in mathematics and physics, holds the B.S. degree in mechanical engineering from Worcester Polytechnic Institute and has completed all requirements except the dissertation for his Ph.D. in education. He was formerly dean of boys at Oakwood School in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Mr. Charles W. Mason is taking the place of Dr. Elizabeth Beardsley, visiting lecturer in philosophy, who was granted a year's leave of absence. A graduate of Wheaton College (Ill.), Mr. Mason received his M.A. degree from the University of Delaware and has done additional study at New York University and Johns Hopkins.

Mr. Robert Winters, a 1954 graduate of Lincoln, is serving as assistant in the Department of Mathematics. He has recently completed a tour of duty in the armed forces.

Mrs. Sophy Cornwell, an assistant in the library, is a part-time instructor in the Department of Modern Languages. She is currently teaching a course in conversational Spanish. Mrs. Cornwell received her B.A. degree from New Jersey College for Women, where she majored in Spanish. She has also worked as a Spanish translator for the United State Office of Censorship.

Mr. Paul Lunt, research consultant in the field of sociology, is teaching the classes of Dr. Laurence Foster, who has been granted a leave of absence. Mr. Lunt is co-author of The Social Life of a Modern Community and The Status System of a Modern Community.

The Political Science Club and Pan-Hellenic Council jointly sponsored a panel discussion on the subject “What Is Needed for Successful Integration of the Schools in the South?” on Wednesday, October 23, at 8:00 p.m. On the panel were three faculty members, Dr. Henry Cornwell, Dr. Dwight Morrow, and Drs. Moses Lukaczer; a faculty wife, Mrs. Estelle Scott; and two students, James M. Warden, '58, and Hugh G. Greenidge, '61. Byron Reed, '59, was moderator. The panel members were in agreement on (1) the need for more self-confidence among Negroes, (2) the need for Congress to enforce the racial laws already passed, and (3) the need for increased efforts to improve race relations.

On Monday, November 4, the Political Science Club presented Dr. Thomas M. Jones, candidate for county treasurer on the Democratic Party ticket, and Mrs. Elizabeth Burt, candidate for jury commissioner on the same ticket. The duo spoke on “The Issues in the Chester County Elections.” Mrs. Burt gave her views of what she termed “Republican oppression” and Dr. Jones spoke on “one-party monopoly.”

The members of the staff of The Lincolnian presented a skit at the University Assembly on Thursday, October 24, to make students more aware of the presence of the student newspaper. Charles Collins, '58, who spent his junior year abroad at the University College of the Gold Coast in Ghana, was interviewed by a Lincolnian reporter on his experiences in Ghana. Collins called for closer relationships between American Negroes and Africans, whom he termed “blood brothers.”

Dr. Walter H. Hodge of Longwood Gardens addressed the members of the Biology Club on Thursday, October 31, at 8:00 p.m. Dr. Hodge, who has been guest lecturer at Harvard, gave an illustrated lecture on botanical advances in modern civilization.

college or university teaching experience. Stipends are based on a salary-matching principle but are reduced by the amount of other fellowship or similar support. A travel allowance and an additional allowance for special needs are also normally available. The closing date for the receipt of applications will be January 13, 1958. Awards will be made on March 20, 1958.

For information and application materials relative to this program write: Division of Scientific Personnel and Education, National Science Foundation, Washington 25, D. C.

More detailed information concerning each of the above programs is contained in the Announcement folders for 1958-1959 which may be obtained by writing to the addresses given above. Individuals may apply in only one National Science Foundation Fellowship Program for a given award period.

- The American Council of Learned Societies is making available $100,000 for grants to aid humanistic research during the academic year 1958-1959. A limited number of grants will be considered for 1957. The grants will provide varying amounts, depending on need, not to exceed $3,000 each.

Purpose of Grants
To provide funds for significant humanistic research in progress.

Types of Research Programs
This program is intended primarily to advance humanistic knowledge through the support of important research projects in the following fields: philosophy, including the philosophy of science and the philosophy of law; philology, languages, literature and linguistics; archaeology; art history and musicology; history, including the history of science and the history of religions; and cultural anthropology, including folklore. Programs in the social sciences and the natural sciences which have a humanistic emphasis will be considered. Grants may be used for travel necessary to gain access to materials, for clerical and stenographic assistance, for the reproduction of materials, and in a limited number of cases for assistance to publication. As a general rule, grants will not be made to provide free time for the scholar,
JOB OPPORTUNITIES

Applicants will be accepted from men and women who have completed a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university with above average grades and who did not complete teacher training. Applications to enter the program in the summer of 1958 (June) must be received before March 1. Application forms and catalog are available from the Johns Hopkins University, Department of Education, Master of Arts in Teaching Program, Baltimore 18, Md.

COVER PICTURE—Each season at Lincoln has its own particular beauty, and there are those who are partial to winter. They back up their claim with pictures of a recent snowstorm that seemingly enhanced the natural beauty of Lincoln's spacious campus. This picture of Vail Memorial Library is offered as evidence.

Have You Remembered Lincoln University in Your Will?

FORM OF BEQUEST

To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $____ to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
From The President's Desk

In the last issue I ended by suggesting that Lincoln should grow, that whatever our optimum enrollment might be, we are certainly now well under it.

For one thing, more students would mean more revenue without a corresponding increase in administrative or faculty overhead. The new dormitories needed we could probably get, and to some extent they would be self-supporting. Even if we doubled in size we could still operate very well with one dean of the college, one dietician, one class in, say, physical chemistry, and so on.

And we now have too many one-man departments. It would probably be better to study exclusively under Aristotle than to divide your time among Aristotle and several of his disciples, but few colleges seriously suppose themselves staffed with Aristotles, and the breadth of view promoted by contact with more than one man in a field is incontestably good. Furthermore, one man, if he teaches also some underclass courses, cannot offer his majors a full upperclass program.

A larger enrollment would also tend to eliminate "splinter" classes — those attended by not more than three or four students a year. This concern for the individual may be admirable, but it is terribly expensive. Beardsley Ruml argues rather cogently that one way to get colleges and faculty salaries out of the doldrums is to reorganize the curriculum for a student-teacher ratio of about 20 to 1. At Lincoln, in the college, the ratio is now in the neighborhood of 12 to 1, and it is of course lower than that in the Seminary.

Where are the new students for the greater enrollment to come from? A wave that will swamp the colleges in the 'sixties has been heralded, but it is thus far the veriest ripple, and is apt anyway to become more tidal in the faster growing western states like Arizona and California than in and about Pennsylvania. This then may not be the whole answer, and I will propose another. They could come from coeducation.

At the college nights held by various high schools, girls sometimes inquire in large numbers, and eagerly, about the possibility of going to Lincoln. Of course they are rather naive never to have heard of the discrimination which we practice against them, and all we can do is secretly deplore their sex and turn them down in favor of boys who half the time are their academic inferiors.

Coeducation is a moot point, emotionally so, and one may madden rather than persuade by advocating it. It is anathema to those who prize Lincoln as one of the few remaining male sanctuaries. Much as I incline to a nostalgic sympathy with these misogynists, the plain truth is that this country, and almost any organization in it that you can think of, is in crying need of brains, and we are doing ourselves no good by shutting out half the potential supply. Let other sanctuaries then be founded, nurtured and even endowed, if more are needed, but Lincoln is an educational institution and not primarily a refuge from anything, let alone half the human race.

On the principle that girls are people, too, I claim we owe them something educationally. And they would repay us. They would refine, not effeminate, and reinforce more than they distracted. They would put our men on their mettle in the classroom, and in and out of class dispel some of the social bleakness of the place by their innocent camaraderie — and we would undertake to keep it innocent.

We have had a kind of token coeducation lately, by way of day students, and the results have been good. It is hard to believe these results would suddenly deteriorate from mere increase in numbers.

To sum up, coeducation would appear to be the fastest and easiest innovation for swelling our enrollment without lowering our standards, and it has some validity as an end in itself as well as a means to an end.

We academicians are all too prone to talk and talk and write and write and (Continued on Page 14)
CALENDAR OF UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES

November 24—The Rev. Dr. Thomas B. Hargrave, '23s, former pastor and missionary, brought the Sunday morning message.

December 3—The Lectures and Recitals Committee presented Lucretia West, contralto, in recital.

December 5—Mr. John Burris, guidance director at Bristol High School, addressed the University Assembly.

December 12—Mr. Charles A. Maher, recruiting representative of the Third U.S. Civil Service Region, told students of job opportunities in the Federal Government.

January 14-16—The Rev. Dr. William H. Borders, pastor of the Wheat Street Church in Atlanta and one of America's great preachers, was the speaker for Religious Emphasis Week.

COLLEGE ENROLLMENTS HAVE SET A NEW RECORD this year for the sixth year in a row and will climb substantially with the opening of the second semester, the Office of Education has announced. A total of 3,068,000 students enrolled in 1,890 colleges and universities early last fall, an increase of 4.1 percent over the 2,947,000 who enrolled in the fall of 1956. Last fall's enrollment was 45 percent above fall enrollments in 1951, the year of lowest enrollments since World War II, and 25 percent above 1949, the peak year for enrollments in the immediate post-war years. U.S. Commissioner of Education Lawrence G. Derthick said that during the remainder of the school year, college and university enrollments are expected to climb to an all-time high of approximately 3,460,000. The 45 percent increase in college enrollments since 1951 compares with an increase of only about 2 percent during the same period in the number of persons 18 to 21 years old. Due to an unprecedented increase in the number of births during the mid-1940's the number of college-age persons in the population will start to climb steeply in the early 1960's, Dr. Derthick pointed out. In the next decade the number of young people seeking enrollment in college is expected to double. Despite the larger proportion of young people going to college in recent years, there are still large numbers of able students who do not obtain a college education, Dr. Derthick said.

RECENT MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY GRADUATES have voted five to one in favor of the type of general education the M.S.U. Basic College provides. This is the answer from a survey of nearly 3,000 graduates of the past three years. The Basic College provides courses in natural science, social science, humanities, and communication skills for every M.S.U. student, regardless of his major. The courses total 45 credits, about one-quarter of the academic work each student takes for graduation. Graduates especially endorsed the general education content of these courses, pointing out their cultural value, their help in developing new interests, their practical information and "the increased thinking ability they generated." They voted six to one in favor of continuing the basics as required, not elective courses.

SIGNIFICANT PROGRESS HAS BEEN REPORTED FOR the first three months of the campaign on behalf of higher education sponsored by the Council for Financial Aid to Education, Inc., and directed by the Advertising Council. During that period newspapers carried over 10,000 higher education advertisements running to a total of more than 2½ million lines. In several weekly or monthly magazines of large circulation, ads were carried, and 135 business journals ordered electroplates for a total of 290 pages of ads. For use in buses, subways, and trains 90,000 cards were provided. The Council distributed 60,000 copies of the pamphlet The Closing College Door. Moreover, commercial radio

How important to our future as a nation are our Christian colleges? How do they rate educationally and what do they do which cannot be done by other institutions of higher learning?

I have been asked these and like questions a hundred times. The inquiry itself implies not hostility, but uncertainty or sometimes merely curiosity. We live under a constitutional government which on political principle separates the church from the state and the state from the church. No informed person wants to tamper with that principle. We live in a society which more and more has become dependent on higher education. The most spectacular, and probably the most important, event in American higher education in this century has been the phenomenal rise of the state universities. In recent years they have come largely to dominate higher education in many areas, especially the West, Midwest, and South.

The liberal arts colleges and the universities independent of the state today enroll 45 percent of our fulltime college students. Of these, one-half are in church-related institutions. Also most of the so-called independent colleges and the private universities which do not regard themselves as "church-related" have their historic origins in the initiative of some religious movement.

I am a graduate of a Christian college. The motto on its seal reveals its purpose—"Pro Christo et Literis,"—For Christ and Learning. Also I have been, for many years, president of one of the state universities. I never accepted, nor do I now accept, the premise that the state universities are "godless" institutions. I have seen thousands of their students follow the example of their presidents and leading faculty members and go to church, not now and then, but regularly. I have seen as much practice of Christian living on the campus of many a state university as on the campus of many a church-related college. It is fortunate for this country that this is so. This republic was established and this nation built on foundations of Christian morality. Today in an age of danger in a turbulent and bewildered world we derive great strength from these spiritual backgrounds. But a structure is no stronger, safer, or more secure, than its foundations.

The Christian colleges and the universities built around them are not merely places to which thousands of young men and women may go for a few years of instruction and study. They are a part of the promise of American life. As educational institutions and as "seats of learning" they are the chief stewards of the nation's religious culture. This stewardship the colleges, of course, share with the churches. But the churches need the colleges even more than the colleges need the churches. The nation needs both. As individuals and as a people, we cherish our freedom. But there can be no freedom without law; nor law without morality; nor morality without religion; nor any of these without understanding; nor understanding without education. "The safety of the nation is in the education of her youth."

There is no basic conflict between the Christian colleges and the higher educational institutions of the state. In fact, the administrators of the great state universities generally are among the most convinced friends of these colleges.

History confirms the political premise that a mixture of statecraft and religion is evil; but even more important, the premise that statecraft in a society without the leaven of religion eventually loses its moral objectives and becomes an instrument not of freedom but of oppression. If we doubt that, we need only to look around us.

Nor is there conflict between the Christian colleges and the great private non-denominational and non-church-related colleges and universities. Many of these are taking strong leadership (Continued on Page 6)
CHURCH-RELATED COLLEGE

in the encouragement of religious interest and in the study of religion. Notable among these are America’s oldest institutions of higher learning.

The great strength of our system of higher education is in its diversity, in the composite of institutions directed and financed by the state and institutions directed and financed independent of the State; institutions related to, dominated by, or even owned by the church, and institutions wholly separate from the church. The Christian colleges are of greater value in American life because there are so many other institutions which themselves have no concern in Christian higher education even though they share the same interest in the vitality in this nation of the precepts of Christian morality on which it is founded.

Among the colleges and universities generally is an important common tie, namely their interest in liberal education—liberal in the original sense of the word, education “worthy of or befitting a free man.” To the liberal arts colleges generally the recent pronouncement of Harvard College should be a great encouragement. Here is our oldest college, with many roots in colonial American religious culture. It is also—in a valid sense—the principal “inventor” of the American university as it has developed within a short century and as we know it today. Harvard University is bursting with prestige around the world—most of it deserved. Yet in recent months we hear the voice of its president saying to the country that Harvard University with all its professional and graduate schools will never be any better than Harvard College, that little college devoted to liberal education, founded in 1636, which up to the time of the Revolution could print its entire curriculum of studies on two small pages. And to improve Harvard College, a college of liberal arts, he asked its friends to provide $75,000,000—perhaps more. Could there be in this age of rampant technology a more dramatic evidence of the worth in American life of the worthy liberal arts college?

This country has the means of providing for all the needs of Harvard College and of the other 800 liberal arts colleges. Harvard no doubt will look primarily—but not solely—to her alumni. The 650 church-related colleges will look primarily—but not solely—to their alumni and to their churches. During the past three years the voluntary financial support of higher education generally has increased much but not nearly enough to enable the colleges to meet their opportunities and their responsibilities. Between 1951-52 and 1954-55 such support increased by one-half to a total of $500 million. During that period support from business corporations more than doubled to eighty millions. A recent report shows for 49 colleges and universities combined, including all types and sizes and including 12 with Protestant church connections or backgrounds, an increase of 45 per cent in gift income between 1954-55 and 1955-56. These are all encouraging developments. But in general the churches themselves are not doing their share.

There are important exceptions. I have in mind one small denomination which has one related college—a good one. One-half of the total educational income of that college comes regularly from its related churches through a unique form of self-imposed “taxation.” This college is enabled to provide educational opportunity at low cost to its students because of the deliberate continuing and living philanthropy of the members of this church. They provide almost the entire gift support of the college, amounting to nearly $500 per year per student.

There are 422 Protestant church-related four-year colleges and 222 Catholic, and many other two-year colleges. Important among the Protestant denominations with many related colleges are the Methodist, Lutheran, and Presbyterian churches. A comprehensive nation-wide survey, published over a year ago by the Council for Financial Aid to Education showed the annual financial support of the church colleges by the church bodies to be about like this:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Church</th>
<th>Amount Provided by Enrolled the Churches</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Lutheran</td>
<td>$143. 62%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Methodist</td>
<td>69.34%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Presbyterian</td>
<td>64.25%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

As a Presbyterian, I take no satisfaction in this meagre record. The

Dr. A. O. Grubb, acting president of Lincoln University, was host to a distinguished group of area educators at a luncheon at the Midday Club in Philadelphia just before the holiday season. The educators are consultants on the new program and the new president. Present at the luncheon and for the discussion which followed were Dr. Hugh Borton, president, Haverford College; Dr. Lawrence E. Dennis, vice president for academic affairs, Pennsylvania State University; Dr. Gaylord P. Harnwell, president, University of Pennsylvania; Dr. Robert L. Johnson, president, Temple University; Dr. Katharine E. McBride, president, Bryn Mawr College; Dr. Courtney C. Smith, president, Swarthmore College; and Dr. Daniel W. Wood, administrative assistant to the president, University of Delaware. Mr. John H. Hobart, field representative for Lincoln, also represented the administration. Attorney Lewis M. Stevens and Judge Herbert E. Millen, president and vice president of the Board of Trustees, and Messrs. Roger S. Firestone, Walter M. Phillips, and Julius Rosenwald, II, members of the Board, were also present.

Dr. Leroy D. Johnson, dean of the College and professor of chemistry, has accepted appointment as area aide on the Membership and Welcoming Committee of the Philadelphia Section of the American Chemical Society.

Dr. Paul Kuehner, registrar, attended the annual meeting of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools in Atlantic City November 29 and 30. In addition to serving on the Committee on Welcome and Hospitality Dr. Kuehner served on the Committee on Statutes and By-Laws of the Middle States Association of Collegiate Registrars.

Professor Manuel Rivero, athletic director, and Assistant Professor Robert N. Gardner, football and wrestling coach, attended the Invitational Workshop Conference of the National Collegiate Athletic Association at Johns Hopkins University November 24-26.

Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, associate professor of classics, attended the joint meeting of the American Philological Association and the American Archaeological Association at the Hotel Statler in Washington, D. C., December 28-30. Sessions of the A.P.A. were given over to papers on classical authors. Those of the A.A.A. were devoted largely to papers on classical archaeology and the linguistic problems of Cretan “Linear A” and “Linear B.” The Greek ambassador honored the society and its president, Dr. Mylonas, with a reception at the embassy.

Dean J. B. MacRae and Mr. Holman Jenkins, visiting lecturer in political science, accompanied by eight Lincoln students, were special guests at the luncheon of the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia on January 27. The Hon. Julius C. Holmes, special assistant to the Secretary of State, spoke on “Africa, Challenge to the Free World.”

FOOTBALL

Lincoln 8 — Howard 0
A safety, a touchdown, and outstanding defensive play enabled the Lions to defeat the Bisons in the 51st meeting of the two schools and the final game of the season for Lincoln. Sparked by the hard running of fullback Norman Trueheart, North Adams, Mass.; halfbacks Richard Greene, Orange, N. J.; and Bennie "Doc" Dudley, Pittsburgh, Pa.; and quarterback Jonathan Latimer, Washington, D. C.; Lincoln compiled 222 yards rushing as compared with 5 yards for Howard. Latimer’s excellent passing enabled him to become the fifth leading passer in the C.I.A.A.

Both teams were held scoreless in the first half, but after seven plays in the second half, Lincoln’s Addison Taliaferro of Springfield, Mass., and James Tyler of Pittsburgh, Pa., tackled Howard’s Charles Smith in the end zone for a safety. Late in the third quarter, Lincoln started rolling once more from its own 19-yard line. At the beginning of the fourth quarter, Trueheart plunged over from the 1-yard line to cap a beautifully executed 81-yard drive.

With the win (Lincoln’s first since 1954) the Lions moved within two games of tying up the series, which now stands at 22-20-8 and 1 no contest. The annual classic was begun in 1890.

CROSS-COUNTRY

Cheyney 22 — Lincoln 36
Cheyney bounced back from a defeat at the hands of Lincoln the previous week to hand the Lions their third loss of the season. Before the race everything looked in favor of Lincoln, but nobody told this to the Cheyney Warriors. As their 5 ½-mile course took its toll, the ever-fickle fates suddenly pulled an about face and left the Lions “roarless.”

The shin splints of Eddy Williams (Wayne, Pa.) disabled him, and the other Lincoln runners, who were not used to such a long course, began to tire. As a result, Cheyney was victorious. Despite the team loss, James Kimani of Kenya was able to place first in the meet, running the course in 28:03. The other Lions who obtained points for Lincoln were Raymond Betz, Philadelphia, Pa.; Martin Riley, Philadelphia, Pa.; and Norman Campbell, Jamaica, N. Y.; who finished 6th, 7th, and 10th, respectively.

Howard Invitational Meet
There was a great deal riding on this meet and the Lions were definitely out to win it. The prizes at stake were (1) a chance to hold the upper edge over Cheyney for the season; (2) a team trophy; (3) revenge against Morgan for last year’s defeat; and (4) the mythical C.I.A.A. cross-country championship.

Once again the ever-fickle fates put Lincoln at a disadvantage. After the team had arrived in Washington, D. C., it was discovered that James Kimani, number one runner, had a temperature of 102, thus barring him from the race and injuring Lincoln’s chance for the championship. In spite of this handicap, the Lions made a good showing. The win and team trophy went to Cheyney. First place individual honors went to Robert Berry of Morgan State. Lincoln’s first man to cross the finish was Eddy Williams, who placed third in the meet.

Although Lincoln placed second in team honors, they became holders of the C.I.A.A. cross-country championship because Cheyney is not a member of the conference. Team placements were as follows: (1) Cheyney State Teachers College, (2) Lincoln University, (3) Morgan State College, (4) Howard University, (5) Maryland State College, and (6) tie between Delaware State College and Bowie Teachers College.

SPORTS IN REVIEW

SOCCER

Howard 8 — Lincoln 0

On November 11 the Lions traveled to Howard University only to meet with a disastrous defeat at the hands of the strong Bisons. It was a close, evenly played game in the first quarter, but in the second quarter and throughout the remaining part of the contest, it was all Howard with Lincoln on the defense most of the time.

Lincoln finished the season with a 1 win - 4 lost record. Lack of depth in the squad and not sufficient teamwork were the primary reasons for Lincoln's poor showing.

WRESTLING

Lincoln 16 — Elizabethtown 16

On December 10 the Lions traveled to Elizabethtown, Pa. to meet the tough Blue Jays of Elizabethtown College. Arnold Humphrey, a sophomore from Huntsville, Ala., made his debut as a wrestler for the Lions a great one as he won his match by pinning his opponent in 28 seconds of the second period. He was wrestling in the 123-pound class.

In the 130-pound class, freshman Eddy Williams won by decision 7-2. Donald Kendrick, a senior from Huntsville, Ala., won by decision in the 157-pound class, 9-4. Sophomore Carl Dickerson from Duquesne, Pa., wrestling in the 167-pound class, gained a victory by pinning his opponent in 1 minute and 52 seconds of the third period. Rounding out the Lincoln victories, 215-pounder Addison Taliaferro defeated Elizabethtown's Terry Bush, a husky 235 pounder. He won with a body press in 25 seconds of the third period.

The Lion's losses were in the 137-, 147-, and 177-pound classes.

Millersville 32 — Lincoln 0

Lincoln proved to be a very hospitable host as they allowed the matmen from Millersville State Teachers to return home with a victory and shutout on their record books. Four of the Lions lost by decision and the other four were pinned. Douglas Simpson, a freshman from North Braddock, Pa., made his debut as a wrestler, and in spite of his loss he made a tremendous impression on the coach and spectators.

Lincoln 35 — Virginia State 11

On January 17 Lincoln was host to a strong State team who had high hopes of taming the Lions, but fell far short of accomplishing it. The 115- and 123-pound classes were won by Johnny Haines and Arnold Humphrey on forfeit. Eddy Williams pinned his opponent in 1 minute and 24 seconds of the third period. David Rice pinned his man in 41 seconds of the third period. The 147-, 177-, and unlimited classes were won by Horace Hord, James Donaldson, and Addison Taliaferro on forfeit.

The Lions were tamed in the 157- and 167-pound classes as Donald Kendrick lost by decision and Carl Dickerson was pinned in 22 seconds of the third period.

Lincoln has a promising group of freshmen on the squad this year through whose strength Coach Robert Gardner hopes to build another successful team. They are as follows: Eddy Williams, Wayne, Pa.; Edward McGee, Ardmore, Pa.; Leonard Billups, Newport News, Va.; James Donaldson, Madison, Fla.; Douglas Simpson, North Braddock, Pa.; and Johnny Haines, Horace Hord, Ronald Wade and Charles Nickens, all from Pittsburgh, Pa.

BASKETBALL

The semester and the first half of the 1957-58 basketball season is over. It is not known at this writing what success the Lions had in their final examinations, but it is a fact that the cagers have thus far amassed four victories which is more than the sum total of the last two seasons and they still have nine games to increase their win column.

Presbyterians can do much better than this. So can the others. Many of the denominations have important forward-looking plans to increase the amount of church support of their colleges. But this support must be made a major objective and not merely a minor philanthropy of the churches.

The churches have a great opportunity to fortify a vital part of American life—and a great responsibility. This responsibility should not be left solely to the ministers of the churches nor to their trustees. Nor solely to the denominational officers. The responsibility should be broadly shared, if not assumed, by the laymen, who after all compose the churches. For this reason I hope that the newly established National Committee of Church Men for Church Colleges may be able to encourage active interest among the tens of millions of church laymen who—to use a current paraphrase—"can if they will."

The pending nationwide public-service advertising campaign in behalf of American higher education should provide an advantageous opportunity to mobilize greater public interest in the significance, the opportunities, and the needs of the Christian colleges. The Advertising Council, which will conduct the campaign, has committed itself for at least a two-year period. The Council for Financial Aid to Education, which is sponsoring the campaign, is hopeful that the colleges and universities themselves will take advantage of this opportunity to make appropriate appeal for the interest and support of their logical constituencies.

Such a concerted effort can be made to put American higher education, and with it the Christian colleges, on a new and a higher level of public understanding, interest, and support. This I believe is important because the greatest opportunities and the greatest responsibilities of the Christian colleges lie right ahead of us—almost before our eyes. What happens to American education will eventually happen to America.

The Y.M.C.A. Cabinet held its annual Christmas Tree Lighting Exercises at 8:00 p.m. on Friday, December 13. The campus and local community gathered around the beautiful outdoor tree to hear a brief worship service by Dr. Samuel G. Stevens, University chaplain, and to sing carols, after which presents were distributed to the children. Just before the exercises the children were the guests of the Cabinet at a showing of "The Little Lamb," a dramatic and inspirational story of a stray lamb who becomes "a most important lamb" on the first Christmas Eve.

The annual Christmas Program of the Glee Club was presented on Tuesday, December 17, at 8:30 p.m. The major composition of the Glee Club was Charpentier's "Magnificat" for three male voices, organ and two violins. Daisy Leathers (Mrs. Rawn Spearman), mezzo-soprano of New York, was guest soloist.

Beta Kappa Chi, honorary scientific fraternity, was in charge of the University Assembly honoring the memory of George Washington Carver on Thursday, January 9, at 11:40 a.m. Dr. Hubert Ross spoke on "The Education of Scientists of Negro Heritage." Certificates for membership in Beta Kappa Chi were presented to James E. Crump, Samuel Essandoh, Orville Kean, Martin U. Riley, and George J. Williams.

SPORTS IN REVIEW

Their wins are over Philadelphia Pharmacy, Lycoming College, National Agricultural College, and Howard University. With the exception of the National "Aggies" and Howard wins, they have displayed their best basketball in losing causes against Delaware State and Maryland State.

Theodore "Tae" Ellis who hails from Norristown, Pa., is leading the team in scoring with 265 points, an average of 20.4 points a game, but the all-around playing of George "Cal" Williams from Los Angeles, Cal., and Billy Ray "Tex" Smith from Bryan, Tex., has been very instrumental in the team's success. Not to be forgotten are the two most promising new members on the squad, freshmen Edward Harris of Philadelphia, Pa., and Leonard Closeen of West Chester, Pa., who have added the much-needed depth to the team. Harris is one of the top scorers on the squad.

Coach Bob Smith is hoping that his cagers will have a better second half and thus give Lincoln its first respectable basketball record in the last four years. The scores of the games thus far are as follows:

- Millersville 96, Lincoln 71
- Howard 81, Lincoln 64
- Delaware State 68, Lincoln 63
- Rider 82, Lincoln 58
- Lincoln 91, Phila. Pharmacy 54
- Elizabethtown 94, Lincoln 69
- Phila. Textile 98, Lincoln 80
- Maryland State 65, Lincoln 64
- Lincoln 83, Lycoming 66
- King's 84, Lincoln 61
- Lincoln 62, National "Aggies" 55
- Morgan State 92, Lincoln 66
- Lincoln 72, Howard 69

Dear Classmates:

Three years ago, the administration of Lincoln University initiated their Annual Giving Program, to have its Alumni give money to help out in the high cost of things it takes to run a school nowadays.

If you remember, the administration picked the “16” Class to head up this Drive. To my way of thinking, that was quite an honor and a challenge to our Class to give to our Alma Mater a real service.

The President of the General Alumni Association saw fit at Commencement in June to put your humble servant in charge for two more years. That was an honor to be asked to serve again. Now fellows, I have not been in the habit of playing on a losing team; just a point in question, at our 25th Class reunion at Meharry, my Dental Class, just 35 of us, turned over to Meharry $10,175.00. I remember vividly fourteen of us gave $500.00 each in that effort which was the best effort of any class in the history of Meharry. I am quite sure that is the reason the administration of Lincoln put me in charge of their fund.

Now I am asking you to give just $100.00 annually. I found in the Directory just twenty-four names and addresses of the Class. I really think eight out of twenty-four could and will give $100.00 each, and join the Century Club and the other sixteen will give enough to make up the $1,000.00 annually. Let me know what you think.

We owe it to Lincoln to do that much and more when we think of those teachers who gave their lives for us, the Rendalls, Carter, Wright, Miller, Finney, Ridgley, Carr, and some who are still with us. Doctors George and William Hallock Johnson have retired. Professor Harold Grim is still on the job after forty-five years of service. Those who are still with us will feel proud of us if we put forth a special effort now, don’t you think so? Did you know 85% of the Trustee Board joined the Century Club last year, and most of them are not graduates of Lincoln? Do you know I have had two or three letters of encouragement from Governor Leader of Pennsylvania, hoping us success in our Fund Drive. Don’t you think those are sufficient reasons to give and pay our just debts to our Alma Mater?

Please join the Century Club so your name will be on the Honor Roll Page of the Bulletin. Dr. Farrell will have a certificate for you in June. You should see mine; I have it framed in my office. Send your contribution to the Lincoln Fund in care of Prof. Austin Scott (who is business manager of the college), Lincoln University, Lincoln University, Pennsylvania and not to me.

Classmates, Lincoln University is calling us to furnish the leadership to prosecute this most worthy program, yes, upwards of 4,000 of us will be expected to take part. Our goal is $64,000 annually.

Don’t forget the slogan: “GIVE AND LET LINCOLN LIVE.”

I will be expecting to hear from you. As ever,

Your devoted classmate,

Henry

COVER PICTURE—The gifts of alumni to their schools are making history and the headlines, but more importantly they are enabling the schools to meet the challenges of the times. Lincoln alumni can help Lincoln University make news with their giving to the Lincoln University Fund. New buildings, scholarships, increased teachers salaries, and general improvements are all possible through annual giving.

Have You Remembered Lincoln University in Your Will?

FORM OF BEQUEST

To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $________ to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
From The President's Desk

Two decisions were reached on Saturday, April 19, of mortal and vital import respectively. It is perhaps a commentary on the human condition, that while one will prove universally saddening, the other will not bring joy in all quarters.

The trustees, at their meeting in our library, voted to close the Seminary as of June 30, 1959. In view of the long and distinguished contribution of this constituent part of the University, they proceeded only with the greatest reluctance. However, the gradual withdrawal of support by the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., has led to increasingly large annual deficits, and a continuation of the Seminary without the aid of that church is clearly not feasible.

To Dean Murray and to Professors Brown, Davies, and Stevens go our admiration and our gratitude for their long, brave, and skillful effort against insuperable odds. The Seminary has served the University, the ministry, and the nation for a great many decades with signal success, though a success not always most appreciated where it was most obvious, and the Lincoln family everywhere will mourn its passing.

As an era closes with the Seminary, another will begin, and on a happier note, for the trustees also voted to authorize residential coeducation starting in September, 1959. We have had token coeducation for nearly ten years, by way of day students and special situations, but the active recruitment of girls and their housing on the campus will mark a really new policy, and as most of the faculty believe, a praiseworthy one. Present plans call for the remodeling and renovating of the Old Guest House (sometimes functionally misnamed the Faculty Club) to lodge a pioneer class of perhaps twenty girls.

In the hope that your attention has been riveted by the above, let me, before it wandered, renew an appeal which lacks novelty. That appeal is to support Annual Giving, and, if possible, to keep in mind also the United Negro College Fund. Dr. Henry Goss has been more eloquent about Annual Giving than I could possibly be, so consider me as echoing him there. But I would also like to point up the importance of the UNCF, an organization by which Lincoln benefits to the extent of some $30,000 a year, and an organization in which I have the uncomfortable feeling that we are not pulling our own weight. In helping with either of these fine campaigns, you help your Alma Mater.

"Until recently I thought I could not afford to contribute to my Alma Mater. My hope now is to make the Century Club at least once, and then to send two or more dollars to Lincoln every payday because my pay as a social worker is too small for larger contributions. This minimum $2.00 drop-in-the-bucket, if duplicated each month by 499 other L.U. grads of modest means, would total a record $12,000 a year, in alumni giving. This simple idea could support effective public relations, scholarships, teachers salaries, and other needs."

CALENDAR OF UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES

February 9—Dr. J. Oscar Lee, '31, executive director of the Department of Racial and Cultural Relations of the National Council of Churches of Christ, brought the Sunday morning message. Later he led the discussion on the subject "The Church and Social Problems."

February 12—In connection with Negro History Week Langston Hughes, '30, spoke at the University Assembly on "The Poetry of Negro Life."

February 13—The Lectures and Recitals Committee presented the famed Albeneri trio, consisting of pianist, violinist, and cellist, in recital.

February 27—Dr. Clarence H. Yarrow, associate secretary of the American Friends Service Committee, spoke on "Little Rock and Its Implications" at the weekly University Assembly.

March 13—Dr. Hilda A. Davis, coordinator of research on child development at the Governor Bacon Health Center in Delaware City, Del., addressed students and faculty members at the University Assembly.

March 31—Classical guitarist Rey de la Torre was presented in recital by the Lectures and Recitals Committee.

April 10—At the University Assembly Dean Leroy D. Johnson presented books to Mr. Donald Yelton, the librarian, from the Jewish Chautauqua Society.

April 20—The Rev. L. Charles Gray, '35, '38s, pastor of the Lafayette Presbyterian Church in Jersey City, N. J., was the Sunday morning guest speaker.

April 24—Mr. John Burris, guidance counselor of Bristol High School, was the University Assembly speaker.

TUITION AT LINCOLN UNIVERSITY, which in the face of rising costs has been held at $350 a year since 1947-48, will be increased to $450 beginning in September. The Senatorial Scholarships available to Pennsylvania students will remain at $350, and grantees entering Lincoln for the first time in September will have a balance of $100 to pay for tuition. Present holders of the scholarships will not be affected. The General Fee will also be raised from $60 to $70, and there will be slight increases in room rentals.

IN VIEW OF ITS STUDY OF Lincoln University in the light of test results and trends, as well as the background of the liberal arts program, the Curriculum Committee has recommended the modification of the basic education requirements for all students. Public Understanding And Support For Education

The American Council on Education, comprising 140 educational organizations and more than one thousand educational institutions, is a center of cooperation and coordination for the improvement of education at all levels, with particular emphasis upon higher education. Its Problems and Policies Committee, composed of distinguished educators, from time to time prepares and publishes statements on issues that are of concern to a broad sector of the Council's diverse membership and to the American people generally.

The statement of propositions that follows was developed by the Committee in a meeting in Washington in late January 1958 and is published with the unanimous approval of the Committee.

Propositions That Need Public Understanding

1. Most Americans now realize that our leadership, and indeed our national survival, is being challenged as never before in history. Most Americans must be brought to realize that the survival and well-being of this nation depend no less upon the strength of our educational system than upon the strength of our military establishment.

2. Educational institutions in a democracy are properly expected to meet the fundamental needs of society. If they are subject to passing whims and fancies, schools and colleges cannot perform this function. Responsible citizens share with educators a moral obligation to insist upon wise and careful planning to meet fundamental needs and to protect our educational institutions from 'hysterical demands and panicky reactions.

3. Critical analysis of our educational system is certainly in order, but mistaken efforts to place blame through name-calling and fault-finding should not be permitted to obscure the fact that our schools, colleges, and universities are seldom much better or worse than their respective publics want them to be. The best of our institutions certainly rise above common levels of aspiration, yet the vast majority simply mirror the values most commonly held. If American education is to undergo a general improvement, the people at large must place a higher value upon intellectual achievement and must be prepared to uphold higher levels of educational performance.

4. Lip service to the value of education is not enough. The critical need is for material support. The American people can afford to spend more on education. Doing this, however, will necessitate assigning a much higher priority to the importance of teaching and research as crucial forms of enterprise in a dynamic society. There must be a willingness to practice self-denial in paying higher taxes and in making heavier voluntary contributions to provide greater material support for education.

5. The time factor is extremely important, and basic issues must be faced now. Nothing less than a massive national effort, launched immediately, will do. Local support and control will remain the best safeguards and guarantors of excellence for our diverse educational system. They can and should be preserved, but bickering over forms and sources of financial support necessary to meet the present emergency can be disastrous. Positive and immediate action on all levels — federal, state, local, and voluntary — is the first imperative.

6. Economic inflation has already levied a heavier toll on educational institutions than on most other forms of enterprise. Still further inflation would be a more serious threat. If this possible consequence of vastly increased governmental expenditures for education is to be avoided, investment in our schools, colleges, and universities must take precedence over existing expenditures which are of less importance to our national security.

7. The total economic resources available for higher education, whatever (Continued on Page 6) they may be, will necessarily exist in limited amounts. One demand upon those resources is to raise the general level of performance in all schools and colleges. If this is allowed to be the only call, however, a tragic mistake will be made. A second, and vital, call upon our economic resources is to strengthen our leadership in all important fields and to add to our best existing institutions the appreciable support needed to meet the demands for the highest order of quality. Statesmanship must see to it that adequate support for the attainment of both goals is provided.

8. A genius of American education has been its unity through diversity. This diversity should be preserved, with strengthening all along the line and greater stress on the importance of quality everywhere. In short, all our human resources must be vastly strengthened through the medium of improved education.

Propositions That Need Public Support

1. The magnitude of the job to be done can hardly be exaggerated. We are not spending nearly enough on education. Modest measures will not do the job. In colleges and universities alone, the number of qualified students will be doubled by 1970, and a doubling of expenditures will not even perpetuate present inadequate quality levels. To do the job effectively, the following order of priorities should be observed:

- Salaries for teachers, scholars, and scientists should on the average be at least doubled;
- Existing institutions should be maintained more adequately and some of them greatly strengthened;
- Support for the establishment of new institutions will be necessary, but should not be supplied at the expense of existing institutions;
- Scholarship programs should stress quality rather than quantity, graduate as well as undergraduate study, and should be accompanied by a parallel system of grants to the institutions in which scholarship holders enroll.

2. Although federal support for educational activities already exists in many forms, excessive reliance upon it may weaken other sources of initiative. However this may be, we are in a national emergency, and prompt action of unprecedented magnitude is urgent. The truth seems to be that the Federal Government is the only agency which can act with sufficient speed and on a scale large enough to enable schools, colleges, and universities to accomplish their tasks. Action by the Federal Government need not, and should not, extend federal controls over education. Further, as a partial attack on a problem of such great size, it need not weaken initiative and action at the state, local, and voluntary levels. Federal support should be considered only as a necessary supplement to action by state and local entities, corporations, alumni, parents, churches, foundations, and philanthropic individuals. The initiative and interest of these agencies and individuals are the greatest asset of American education; they must now be exercised to an extent never before demonstrated.

3. Greatly increased amounts of money must be allocated to fundamental research and other forms of creative and scholarly activity. These can be carried on more effectively in our colleges and universities than anywhere else, because in the academic environment the creativity of central figures is reproduced by students who have worked with them.

4. If American education is to continue to serve the best interests of the nation, drastic measures to increase the supply of highly trained persons are required in many areas other than physical science and engineering. The need for teachers at all levels and in all fields is a compelling illustration. Continued progress in the humanities, the arts, and the social sciences, as well as in science and technology, is highly essential to our national survival and well-being.

5. Totalitarian methods are not necessary to counter the threats of a totalitarian power. These threats can be countered and overcome by our own American strengths, strengths which in education include academic freedom for teachers, scholars, and scientists; freedom of mobility and choice of programs of study and vocations by college students; diversity of programs, forms of control, and philosophies.

Following an illness of eight days, Earle U. Byrd died at the home of his sister, Mrs. L. Marie Robinson on March 12, 1958 in Oklahoma City, Okla. Known to his classmates as "Count," he had served as head of the Science Department at Douglas High School for 23 years before becoming principal of the Inman Page Elementary School, a position he had held for eight years. His entire teaching career was spent in Oklahoma City, Okla.

The C. H. Bynum Elementary School, newest educational institution in Kinston, N. C., was named in honor of Dr. Charles H. Bynum, '89, father of Charles H. Bynum, Jr. In 1898 Dr. Bynum began the general practice of medicine in Kinston, N. C., and served the community until his death in January, 1938. Always interested in various educational, civic and community enterprises, Dr. Bynum was one of the men instrumental in bringing about the establishment of the Adkins High School and in awarding the "Bynum Cup" to a worthy senior, a provision still continued by his family.

Ambassador Ibrahim Anis of the Republic of the Sudan (l.) and Dr. A. O. Grubb, acting president of Lincoln University, admire the handsome citation that was presented to Ambassador Anis at the International Friendship Tea sponsored by the Philadelphia Lincoln Dames on February 23 in Philadelphia. Also honored were Ambassador Daniel A. Chapman of Ghana and Ambassador George Padmore of the Republic of Liberia. The event, which was held in the Hotel Sheraton, attracted some 700 persons.

On January 31 Dr. A. O. Grubb, acting president of Lincoln University, and Professor William Cole journeyed to Harrisburg to meet with the General State Authority and with Davis, Poole and Sloan, architects, who are drawing the plans for Lincoln's as yet unfianced science building. On February 13 he was one member of the Lincoln committee which met at the Warwick Hotel in Philadelphia with the Council on Theological Education to discuss the future relationship between the University and the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.; and on February 23 he was back in Philadelphia with Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, director of public relations, and several African students to attend the very successful International Friendship Tea sponsored by the Lincoln Dames and the Ladies Auxiliary at the Sheraton Hotel.

Dr. Grubb and Mr. Paul S. Lunt and Mr. William Carson, the self-studies staff, met with several members of the Board of Trustees at a luncheon at the Warwick Hotel on March 14 to discuss the self-studies, and on March 18 he represented the University at a convocation at Dickinson College.

On April 5 Dr. Grubb, accompanied by Professors William Cole, Thomas Jones, and Donald Yelton, Dean Leroy D. Johnson, Mr. Austin H. Scott, and Mr. John Hobart, field representative, attended a luncheon at the Playhouse Inn, New Hope, Pa., given by trustee Mr. Julius Rosenwald II for trustees and faculty representatives. The group, examining the feasibility of a Department of African Affairs for Lincoln, heard Mr. William Duggan, Department of State representative, and Mr.

The Glee Club and a trio of international students (Charles Collins, Ghana-America; Emeal Arraf, Israel; and Haroutune Basmadjian, Jordan) appeared at points in Southern New Jersey February 6-11 to participate in the celebrations of Race Relations and Brotherhood Weeks. The students spoke on the topic "'No Man's Lands' of Today."

The Atlantic City unit of the National Conference of Christians and Jews and the Brotherhood Council of Atlantic County, in cooperation with participating organizations, co-sponsored the programs. On Wednesday, February 12, the Glee Club sang at a meeting of the National Conference of Christians and Jews at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia. Subsequently the group has sung at the Berean Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia (March 2), the Avon-Grove High School (March 7) and the Lower Merion High School (March 9).

On Wednesday, February 12, at 4 p.m. the members of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity tendered a reception in honor of its distinguished brother Langston Hughes, '30, who was on the campus in connection with Negro History Week. Students and faculty members were the guests of the fraternity.

The Chess Club made an auspicious entrance into the intercollegiate chess arena on Monday, February 24, when it drew its match with the highly favored team of Haverford College, second last year in the Philadelphia Area College Tournament. Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, associate professor of classics, is the Lincoln team's adviser.

The Philosophy Club presented Professor Gerhard Friedrich of the Department of English of Haverford College at its meeting on Wednesday evening, February 26. Professor Friedrich discussed the philosophical implications of several poems in his recent volume of verse, The Map Within the Mind.

The Seminary

On February 9 Lincoln Seminary Day was observed in several Philadelphia churches with seminarians taking part in the service. Following arrangements made by the Rev. William L. Blake, '57, the participants were Arthur Honore at Mt. Ephraim Tabernacle Baptist Church, Johnie Minley at Nazarene Baptist Church, Lewis Barrett at First African Presbyterian Church, Edward Ohemeng at Reeve Memorial Presbyterian Church, Lymell Carter at United Baptist Church, and Dean Andrew Murray at Berean Presbyterian Church.

The course in Church in Community this semester under the leadership of the Rev. Charles Gray has invited several church leaders to speak on various aspects of the Church's ministry in the community. Thus far the class has heard the Rev. H. Richard Siciliano on "Koinonia and Church Fellowship," the Rev. Harold H. Baldwin on "The Body of Christ and the Church's Living Heritage," the Rev. Robert P. Johnson on "The Authority of the Word and the Church Program," and the Rev. Elbert W. Strothers on "Survey Techniques for the Local Parish."

Seminary students were guests of the Americans for the Competitive Enterprise System in Philadelphia on February 27. The group attended a seminar dealing with the organization of economic life and its religious implications.

Dean Andrew Murray attended a meeting of the counselors in Presbyterian seminaries in New York City, February 28 and March 1. On March 6 he spoke to the West Grove Rotary Club about the history and work of Lincoln University.

Seminary Chapel speakers have included the Rev. David Hyatt of the New London Methodist Church on March 11, and Rabbi Martin M. Weitz speaking on "Judaism and Social Justice" on March 18.

A presentation of books to Seminary students was made by the Rev. Paul D. Wells, representing the Board of Christian Education, on April 18.

SOUTHERN TRIP

The following letter, composed by the Rev. James H. Brown, is an account of the Southern trip made by the Seminary faculty member and two seniors. The letter was sent to friends of the Seminary and a report of the trip was given at the University Assembly on April 17.

Dear Friends:

Two years ago our Dean, Dr. Andrew E. Murray, and two seniors pioneered the way travelling inter-racially through the Southland visiting colleges and universities in a program of recruitment. It turned out to be a very fruitful ministry in reconciliation.

On March 12th of this year a similar team of reconciliation started out on a two-week tour southward. Rev. James H. Brown was the faculty member, and Messrs. Kermit Overton and Willis Tabor were the seniors. We had the barest and most tenuous arrangements with which to start out.

Our first stop was Harrisonburg, Va., on the campus of Eastern Mennonite College. Here a large and effectual door was open unto us as we shared together the reality of the oneness of the Body of Christ in a broken world. The faculty were called together for an informal discussion on the vexing human problems confronting the Church today. Again and again we had great liberty and effectiveness in bearing testimony to the power of prayer in the context of corporate fellowship.

The same gracious welcome and the many surprises of unknown friendship followed us throughout the trip. It was nothing short of miraculous—all 3,000 miles of the journey.

In the course of our travels we visited Knoxville College, Knoxville, Tenn.; Mississippi Industrial College and Rust College in Holly Springs; Mary Holmes Junior College in West Point, Miss.; (Continued on Page 21)

Job Opportunities

• Applications are being sought from qualified scientists and engineers for employment at the Redstone Arsenal and Army Ballistic Missile Agency at Huntsville, Ala. Redstone is the control center of all activities in the Army's guided missile and rocket weapons fields. Employment in these positions provides opportunity to serve with top scientists, engineers, and military technicians in vital and challenging work essential to the national defense. There is an immediate and urgent need for chemists, engineers, electronic scientists, mathematicians, metallurgists, and physicists for filling positions with salaries ranging from $4,480 to $12,690 a year. Information about the requirements to be met is given in civil service announcement No. 5-35-1(58) which may be obtained from many post offices throughout the country or from the U.S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C. Applications for these positions will be accepted until further notice and must be filed with the Board of U.S. Civil Service Examiners, Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala.

• The United States General Accounting Office, directed by the Comptroller General of the United States, has announced an examination for accountants and auditors (No. 150B) to fill positions in the General Accounting Office in Washington, D. C., and in its regional offices located in various cities throughout the country. To the extent possible, successful applicants will be appointed in the geographic location of their choice. Opportunities may arise for voluntary reassignment to other regional offices and to overseas offices. The European Branch is located in Paris with suboffices in Frankfurt, London, Madrid, and Rome. The Far Eastern Branch is located in Tokyo. Persons appointed to these positions are employed in various capacities on (1) comprehensive audits of Government agencies, corporations, and related activities, including contractors engaged in Government work, and (2) accounting systems survey, evaluation, and developmental work in the various Government agencies.

The grade or salary level for which applicants may be determined qualified will depend primarily on quality of experience as reflected by scope and level of responsibility, complexity and difficulty of assignments, diversity, and progressiveness. No written test is required. Competitors will be rated on the extent and quality of their experience, education, and training relevant to the duties of the position.

Interested persons should file Form 57, showing the title of the examination, the number of the announcement, and the lowest salary acceptable; detailed statements on those portions of experience considered qualifying; Card Form 5001-ABC; and Standard Form 15 for those claiming 5- or 10-point veteran preference. Forms may be obtained from any post office, from a U.S. Civil Service Regional Office, or from the U.S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C. Send applications to the Executive Secretary, Board of U.S. Civil Service Examiners, General Accounting Office, 441 G Street, N.W., Washington 25, D. C. Applications will be accepted until further notice.

BASKETBALL

If blame can be attributed to the final examinations, then apparently they took quite a toll and left the Lincoln cagers in the wake of a disastrous second half. The 0-9 record, a very unsuccessful half to say the least, is sufficient proof that the "roaring" Lions of the first half were completely tamed or domesticated in the second. This gave the Lions a 4-18 record for the 1957-1958 season.

Theodore "Tae" Ellis, who hails from Norristown, Pa., led the team in rebounds and total points. His 335 rebounds, an average of 15.5 per game, placed him 8th in the CIAA and 29th in the country (small colleges). His 370 points, an average of 16.7 a game, placed him 10th in the CIAA in scoring.

The unsung hero of the team, Eddie Harris, Philadelphia, Pa., was second in team scoring with 231 points, an average of 10.5 per game. His all-around playing made possible what success the team did have. Not to be forgotten in giving honors is next year's captain, Billy Ray Smith of Bryan, Tex., who was Lincoln's ace playmaker.

Although Coach Bob Smith is losing his key players through graduation, George Williams, Los Angeles, Cal., Ralph "Bevo" Cato, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Theodore Ellis, the future remains bright. A strong J.V. team, ably coached by Howard "Tank" Williams, will move up to aid the returning lettermen. The team will be led by Wendell McKelvin, a new student from New York City; Ivar Browne, New Bedford, Mass.; Clifford Saunders, Whitesboro, N. J.; and Frederick Kelly, Bethlehem, Pa. About this year's team, all I can say is, "Wait until next year."

The scores of all twenty-two games were as follows:

- Millersville 96, Lincoln 71
- Howard 81, Lincoln 64
- Delaware State 68, Lincoln 63

The Lions traveled to Baltimore on February 7 and defeated a strong Morgan team in a close contest that was not won until the last match was over. The Lions were victorious in the 115, 123, 147, 167, and unlimited classes. The 115-pound class was won by Johnny Haines of Pittsburgh. He pinned his opponent in 1:45 of the second period. Lincoln 33—Howard 11

On February 14 the Lions, still angry at themselves for the humiliating defeat in their previous match, were host to Howard and made the Bisons the victim of their vengeance. Johnny Haines won by forfeit. In the 137-pound class David Rice of Memphis, Tenn., pinned his opponent in 2:31 of the first period. Horace Hord, Pittsburgh, Pa., wrestling in the 147, pinned his man in 2:44 of the second period. Carl Dickerson won by a fall in 2:24 of the third period. Edward McGee won by forfeit and Ronald Wade pinned his man with a half-nelson in 2:50 of the second period. The Lions were defeated in the 123, 130 and 191-pound classes. The Lions ended the season with a 3-2-1 record.

The scores for the season were as follows:

Lincoln 16, Elizabethtown 16

Wrestling Championship
Lincoln University played host to the 25th annual CIAA Wrestling Tournament on February 28 and March 1. Virginia State was the pre-tournament favorite to win the championship. Coach Willis of State voiced his disapproval of early predictions, pointing to his team's record during the regular season.

Lincoln emerged from the first session, which was held Friday evening, February 28, with four finalists. They were Johnny Haines, David Rice, Douglas Simpson and Edward McGee. Haines, wrestling in the 115-pound class, met the defending champion Calfee of Virginia State. Haines was declared winner and new champion by virtue of his two points. Defending champion David Rice of Lincoln successfully defended his title by defeating Bailey of Virginia State 3-0 in the 137 pound class. Organic of Virginia State defeated Simpson in the 167-pound class, and Morgan's Jones retained his title by pinning McGee in 0:45 of the second period. Congratulations to Johnny Haines and David Rice, 1958 CIAA champions!

Virginia State won team honors and Sidney Rodgers of Howard, champion in the 123-pound class, was voted the outstanding wrestler of the tourney. Team standings were as follows:

Virginia State 90
Morgan State 70
Lincoln University 57
Howard University 38

BASEBALL

In the first five games of its 14 game schedule, the Lions have only been able to win two games. Glenn Hamm of Oxford, Pa., has a record of 1-1 with an earned run average of 2.88. Bennie "Doc" Dudley of Pittsburgh, Pa., has a 1-2 record and an earned run average of 5.04. Catcher Arnold Barrett of New York, N. Y., is leading the team in hitting with a .364 average. Outfielders Fred Kelly, Bethlehem, Pa., and Wendell McKelvin of New York City both have .333 averages. Barrett also leads in stolen bases with four. First baseman Charles "Stump" Lee of Kennett Square, Pa., leads the team in runs-batted-in with six. The team has only been able to add two extra base hits to the statistics; that and the fact that they are failing to hit in the clutch are probably minor reasons for their bad showing. The chief cause is the poor defensive backing the pitchers are receiving. The team's 2-3 record is as follows:

Millersville 4, Lincoln 2
Swarthmore 10, Lincoln 4
Lincoln 5, Rutgers 4
Lincoln 15, Delaware State 4
Rider 17, Lincoln 6

In a triangular meet held at Delaware State in Dover, the Lions made a good showing, but not good enough to win first place honors. Again it was Hall and Williams who kept Lincoln in the running. Both duplicated their tremendous feat at Cheyney, Hall taking first in the low hurdles and the 222 and 440-yard dashes and Williams winning the one and two-mile runs. "Tae" Ellis placed first in the high jump.

Lincoln’s one victory and the scores of their defeats give sufficient proof that the team is doing very badly this year. In that lone victory Winston Blackett, Barbados, B.W.I.; James Burgette, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Robert Carter, McKeesport, Pa.; Leonard Lockley, Springfield, Mass.; and James Watson, Trenton, N. J., were winners. Charles Collins, Cincinnati, Ohio, was the sole winner in the Morgan match. The team’s lack of experienced players is probably the chief reason for its poor showing.

The actions called for cannot be postponed. The priorities must be established immediately. Should we fail to do these things, the deferred costs will be too staggering to be met in time. If the nation is to survive and prosper, we must start making the basic provisions now.

Wayne Fredericks of the Ford Foundation, make a number of illuminating suggestions, and also heard an excellent summing up by President Emeritus William Hallock Johnson, who at ninety-three puts nearly all the members of two younger generations to shame by his vigor and his mental keenness.

At intervals during this period Dr. Grubb and Mr. Hobart attended several sessions of a subcommittee of the Trustees Executive Committee in Philadelphia; also with Mr. Hobart he visited UNCF headquarters in New York City, where he found Calvin Rauillerson, '43, in a responsible position.

Dean Leroy D. Johnson was moderator of a panel composed of two overseas students, James Kimani and Ali Abu-Hijleh, at an interracial breakfast held in the Community Center of Langhorne, Pa., on April 20. The panelists spoke on "Student Views of the Role of the United States in East Africa and the Near East." On April 27 Dean Johnson was the Men's Day speaker at the Bethel A.M.E. Church in Langhorne.

Dr. H. Alfred Farrell attended the regional meeting of the National Council of Presbyterian Men in New York February 14-16 and the Conference on College Communication and Composition in Philadelphia March 27-29. On April 12 he attended the meeting of the Eastern Long Island Chapter of the General Alumni Association in Hollis, N. Y.

Dean J. B. MacRae represented Lincoln at the United Negro College Convention in Minneapolis March 14-17. President Carroll V. Newsom of New York University was the principal speaker. His subject was "The Challenge to America."

Assistant Professor Robert N. Gardner was the principal speaker at the meeting of the New York Chapter of the General Alumni Association on April 11.

Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, associate professor of classics, attended the annual meeting of the American Oriental Society at the Hotel Sheraton-McAlpin in New York during the first week of April. At the meeting he read a paper on "The African Language Program at Lincoln University." Dr. Schwartz is currently engaged in recording on tape, with phonetic transcriptions and translations, the native languages of African students on the Lincoln University campus. Nine languages have thus far been recorded and five more are in process of preparation. The program was further discussed by Dr. Schwartz in a lecture at New York University, where some of the recordings were played. Conferences were also held at this meeting for cooperation among New University, the Foreign Service Institute of the State Department, and Lincoln University in future African language work.

Dr. Moses Lukaczer, professor of economics, has been awarded a Ford Foundation Fellowship to study at Yale University this summer. The fellowship entitles him to a place in the Faculty Research Seminar in Economics under the directorship of Dr. Charles E. Lindblom of Yale. There are only ten places in the Seminar and Dr. Lukaczer was in competition with faculty members of liberal arts colleges in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York. Although Lincoln University is in Region II, Dr. Lukaczer competed in Region I in order that he might study with Dr. Lindblom. The Seminar will run from June 23 to August 15.

in the cast of "The Crows Nest" were Laurence Neal, Theodore Perrine, and Roland Fisher. In the cast of the second play, "The No 'Count Boy," which was repeated March 14 and 15, were Deborah Redd, Herman Wilson, Lawrence Harrison, and Mrs. Mary V. Farrell.

The Y.M.C.A. Cabinet, under the direction of Mr. Emery Wimbish, assistant librarian, presented the motion picture version of Sophocles' "Oedipus Rex" to the campus community on the evening of Thursday, March 6 and the Temple University Choir on the evening of Tuesday, March 11. In conjunction with the Department of Sociology the Y-Cabinet sponsored a symposium on "The Negro in American Culture." The Negro in literature, art, and music was discussed respectively by Dr. Margaret Just Butcher, professor of English at Howard University; Professor J. Newton Hill, Lincoln University; and Professor Orrin C. Suthern, II, Lincoln University. On Sunday, April 20, the highlay successful Parents' Day was repeated by the Y-Cabinet.

The Debating Team, composed of Herman Wilson, Frank Berry, and Donald Smythe-Macaulay, met a team from Mercer University, Macon, Ga., in an Oregon-style debate on Thursday, March 13, at 6:30 p.m. The subject of the debate was "Resolved: That Racial Segregation of the South Should Be Maintained."

Dr. Sayre Schatz, a former member of the Lincoln faculty and now at Hofstra College, spoke to members of the Political Science Club on Thursday evening, March 13, on "Problems of Economic Development in Underdeveloped Countries." Dr. Schatz was recently awarded a Ford Foundation Fellowship for a year's study of Africa at Boston University to be followed by a year in Africa. On Wednesday, April 16, at 8 p.m. Dr. T. P. Szafer spoke to the members of the organization on "City Planning in Poland." Dr. Szafer, an exchange professor from the Polish Academy of Fine Arts in Warsaw, is now at the School of Fine Arts of the University of Pennsylvania. He discussed the problems involved in rebuilding the Polish cities destroyed in World War II and illustrated his talk with slides and a film.

Beta Kappa Chi, honorary scientific fraternity, had Dr. Joseph Williams, 29, as its guest speaker on Thursday, April 10 at 7:15 p.m. Dr. Williams, past national president of the fraternity, spoke on the subject of "Beta Kappa Chi's Inception and Its Role in the Space Age."

Dr. Howard J. Francis of the Pennsylvania Salt Chemical Corporation addressed the members of the Chemistry Club on Friday, April 11, at 3 p.m. Dr. Francis is director of the Analytical Organic Section of the Research Laboratories at Whitemarsh, Pa.

The Social Science Club presented Dr. Moses Lukaczer, professor of economics, and Dr. Henry Cornwell, associate professor of psychology, at its meeting on Wednesday, April 23. The two professors discussed the topic "Interrelations between Economics and Psychology."

Stillman College in Tuscaloosa and Tuskegee Institute in Tuskegee, Ala. While in Tuskegee we spoke to 1,100 students in the very modern Tuskegee High School. We spent overnight with Clarence Jordan on Koinonia Farm, whose Christian witness to the oneness of the Body of Christ was the most memorable experience of our trip. From there we journeyed to Atlanta speaking in the West Hills Presbyterian Church, where Rev. Henry Sweet is the pastor, and in the Radcliffe Memorial Presbyterian Church, where the Rev. William Mercer ministers. Chaplain Norman Rates is doing a fine work at Spellman College. Our next stop was Orangeburg, S. C., the home of South Carolina State College. On the way north and homeward bound we made contact with Dr. Lafayette Parker at State Teachers College in Fayetteville. Raleigh, N. C., was our final stop in the South, with the Rev. Robert Shirley, who in less than a year is making himself a positive factor in the ministry of the Gospel to his church and the wider community.

The genuineness of our welcome at every point along the way, together with the high esteem in which Lincoln University is held by the many educators we were privileged to meet, continues to amaze us.

We feel that any word description of this experience is hopelessly inadequate. But we did want to give you a skeleton account of our efforts to recruit young men to the Gospel ministry.

After reading about all the alumni chapters that have been formed over the country, I wonder if I couldn't interest the Lincoln men here in Texas in getting together. There are a number here but in scattered places, so it would have to be a state group. If you have a list of the alumni in this state, please send it to me with addresses and I'll keep you informed of the outcome.

Have You Remembered Lincoln University in Your Will?

FORM OF BEQUEST

To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $____ to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
The Classes of 1958, pictured above, had many outstanding achievements to their credit.

The Seminary graduates are not only scholars but also uncommonly personable and persuasive orators; and it is a good thing for our peace of mind as well as our pocketbooks that they are committed by vocation, character, and training to the service of God and man and not to any fiendish chicanery. In this brief space it is impossible to mention individuals, except perhaps to remark that in Mr. Oh, for instance, they offer a man who would not be miscast as the archetype of international amity.

Having matriculated in the fall of 1954, the College group was in a sense the first class of Lincoln's second century; it produced our first woman valedictorian, as well as 21 other honors graduates, 20 of them of the usual gender; it had in Ernest C. Levister, Jr., the first Lincolnian to receive an engineering degree from Lafayette College under the 3-2 plan. And it shone in extracurricular accomplishments and the important graduate record examinations.

I feel particularly close to Lincoln '58 because I signed their diplomas in my sole bow as praeses and because the College class was kind enough to dedicate the Lion to me, an act of faith when it happened last autumn and one which, for all I know, they may have occasionally regretted since.

Well, there they are, and now, as the saying runs, they have gone out into the world, although it is not easy to tell just where else they have been living for the past three or four years. We will follow their careers with both hope and concern, knowing that what they and their predecessors and successors do will determine what Lincoln is and will constantly redefine her level of dependability and prestige. We of the faculty have already graded them as students; with time, and as their lives take further shape, they will pass or fail us as mentors. And of this too we are sure: they have carried away with them from this quiet place not only their suitcases and knickknacks and books and other personal belongings, but also some very personal intangibles which include a host of memories and the blessing of the entire Lincoln family.
May 15—Dr. Charles H. Boehm, state superintendent of schools for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, spoke on "Education in the Future" at the annual observance of Honors Day.

June 1—Dr. Irvin Underhill, pastor of the Nunda (N.Y.) Presbyterian Church, delivered the Baccalaureate address. Dr. Underhill is the donor of the Underhill African Collection in the Vail Memorial Library.

June 2—Alumni Day.
June 3—Commencement exercises.

In a move designed to broaden the base of financial support for higher education, the American Alumni Council has established the Alumni Incentive Awards Program, financed initially by a grant from the United States Steel Foundation. Under the program, recognition and cash awards, including a top prize of $10,000, will go to the colleges and universities selected by a panel of judges as those which have demonstrated notable success or improvement in obtaining financial support from alumni. Criteria that will serve as guides to the judges in making their selections will include the amount of funds raised from graduates and former students, percentage of alumni contributing, objectives, size of average gift, improvement over the previous year's record, and additional evidence of a planned effort to broaden the base of support. Eight classifications have been established for the program, with $1,000 awards and certificates going to the leading institution in each group. The top award will go to one institution rated as the leader of all classifications. The program is designed to provide an added incentive both to the alumni whose support is sought and to the institutions and their formal alumni organizations seeking that support. The cash prizes will be presented to the presidents of the winning colleges and universities to be used in furthering the best interests of the alumni and educational fund raising programs of their institutions.

Alumni of the New York area are in the planning stages of a Lincoln University Alumni Council of Greater New York. The idea, fostered by the Eastern Long Island Chapter of the General Alumni Association, has the agreement of representatives of other chapters in that area, who feel that it will be a firm step forward in encouraging increased activity by Lincoln University alumni. The following purposes have been set forth for the Council: (1) to foster closer relationships among alumni groups in the Greater New York area; (2) to stimulate interest in Lincoln University among the alumni, the public and prospective students; (3) to develop joint programs for the purpose of raising funds for the alumni chapters involved; (4) to stimulate interest in new chapters in the area, where this is practical; (5) to assist the chapters and make suggestions for more efficient functioning to the representatives; (6) to establish liaison with the representatives of Lincoln University and keep abreast of the needs and programs of the University; and (7) to coordinate all chapter activities and programs. The New York, Brooklyn-Long Island, and Eastern Long Island Chapters of the General Alumni Association are working jointly on the plans for the Council.

Effective September, 1958, students at Lincoln University may major in the field of general business. The program of studies will require the completion of twenty-four hours of credit in courses in business and related courses in economics, in addition to the basic course, principles of accounting. The following is a suggested program of studies for the major in general business:

Today, Lincoln stands on the threshold of a new era. She had her beginning more than a hundred years ago when the major problems in this country were primarily domestic, eminent among which were those related to the debasement of human dignity and the exploitation of human chattel under the deplorable institution of slavery. It was to help erase this stain upon our nation that John Miller Dickey and his colleagues founded the institution which was later to bear the name of the Great Emancipator. The hopes and dreams of Dickey and those who labored with him in dedicating their lives to this task have been many times fulfilled in the record of leadership and achievement which graduates of Lincoln have won for themselves in the course of the first hundred years of this institution's existence.

The recognition earned by Lincoln men as outstanding professional men and community leaders served as concrete and irrefutable evidence in helping to dispel the pre-slavery notion of the Negro's inferiority. In this assemblage tonight it is not necessary to take the time to document this fact with names and incidents. We know them well and take pride in our common heritage at Lincoln.

But, as history has revealed, recognition of individual worth and ability has not always brought an overt change in racial attitudes and an end to group injustices and proscriptions. The reaction in the southern part of the nation following the Emancipation was to pass racial laws to insure lower-class whites from this threatened competition, and to install political demagogues in local, state and national offices on the votes of a fearful, insecure class of southern whites, the Negro meanwhile being kept out of the political picture by laws, poll taxes, bogus literacy tests, and other devious means. In the North, restrictive covenants and discriminatory practices limited, until comparatively a short moment ago, the opportunities for Negroes to live where they wish, work at their highest skills and patronize public facilities.

These barriers to full citizenship and carriers of hate and abuse had to be dealt with, and Lincoln men, utilizing the knowledge and skills instilled in them, have played prominent roles in the fight for civil rights, the franchise, equal job opportunities, and full participation in publicly supported programs and facilities. You know their names as well as I do. A landmark in this fight came in 1954, the year of Lincoln's one hundredth anniversary, with the successful argument before the Supreme Court, master-minded by our own Thurgood Marshall, against the separate-but-equal fallacy which had (Continued on Page 6) relegated the Negro to second-class citizenship, despite the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution.
Lincoln and the Years Ahead

I don't believe that we as Lincoln men are being unduly boastful in claiming that our Alma Mater was a prime factor in developing the necessary leadership for this crucial and long period of transition between slavery and full citizenship, which we hope is now in the "mopping up" stage. As the world's first institution for higher learning for Negroes, Lincoln University has trained more than its quota of Negro persons of renown, despite its small output of graduates as compared to that of larger institutions.

I call upon you tonight, my fellow alumni and friends, to face up to the fact that the 1954 Supreme Court decision marked a turning point in American history, especially with respect to the status of Negro citizens. While the final "mopping up" is being done, it behooves Lincoln to be readjusting her sights and targets in line with changing circumstances and conditions. An enlightened and responsive alumni is important in helping to promote a new direction and a fresh emphasis. It is characteristic of alumni, however, to regard tradition and past history as sacred and to resist change even in the direction of progress. I am going to take advantage of this opportunity as your speaker to try to convince you that the times demand change and that we must look forward rather than behind us, if we would help rather than hinder.

Let us examine some of the phenomena which face us in these times and which will surely influence the future of our Alma Mater. Let us, first of all, take an objective and realistic look at the current trend to desegregation and integration in education, as a part of the general democratizing movement in this country, in terms of what effect this trend will have on Lincoln. The day for which we have been fighting for decades is rapidly approaching. How will Lincoln fit into the new scheme of things? Will she be prepared and able to find and fit into the niche which will justify her continued existence? Will we have to concede that hers was an interim function and that the point has been reached when the must vacate the stage? Are we in danger of losing our ties to one another through the loss of our Alma Mater?

I contend that the recent implementation of the constitutional rights of Negroes through the Supreme Court ruling of 1954, and the new Federal Civil Rights Commission and the state advisory committees, will affect the tenure of many Negro schools and colleges which were brought into existence to provide Negro students higher education not available to them in many of the institutions already on the scene. The lowering of racial barriers by law of the land, backed up by military force when needs be, ends the virtual monopoly which Negro colleges have enjoyed for many years over Negro high school graduates.

Some of us for sentimental reasons may regret this consequence, but none of us in his right mind should prefer to see segregation and discrimination continue because it perpetuates a Negro institution, agency or job. Anyone who finds himself in a dilemma on this point is surely a mixed-up, insecure individual. It is decidedly to our advantage to be full citizens with all the rights and privileges thereunto pertaining, in lieu of continuing as second-class citizens, involved in a constant process of compromise and accommodation as a technique for minority survival in a dichotomous society. With the integration in force there will be no reason for Negro colleges per se, except possibly during a short-as-possible period of transition and adaptation.

Our students should be as free as any other students to choose the schools which seem best for serving their needs. If what a given student needs is more abundantly available at M.I.T. or Bucknell, that should be his choice, all things else being equal. I think I can consider myself loyal to Lincoln and yet take the position that Lincoln is not necessarily the best school for every individual Negro student. And I would apply this principle even to sons of Lincoln grads . . .

As we prepare to compete in the larger arena, is it not essential that we seek the best available training, wherever it is to be found? Are we going to insist on protecting our educational institutions, good, bad or indifferent, on the basis of sentimental—

In 1957 he was recommended to President Eisenhower to be appointed to serve on the newly authorized U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

In a history-making episode for the state of Pennsylvania, Attorney Robert N. C. Nix, Sr., was inducted into the House of Representatives of the United States Congress, to become the first Negro Congressman from Pennsylvania, and the fourth Negro member of the House, joining Representatives William Dawson, Illinois; Charles Diggs, Michigan; and Adam C. Powell, New York, all Democrats.

Dr. Hildrus A. Poindexter writes that he is nearing the completion of his tour of duty in Surinam but expects another assignment “somewhere soon.” This year he will complete about 13 years of foreign medical service with the government. His greatest handicap has been a lack of proficiency and aptitude for foreign languages.

“Beginning in 1944 while on military duty, I tried to understand some of the New Guinea dialects, then Tagalo in the Philippines and in 1945 Japanese. To learn to greet people in 18 different West African dialects was the next chore. This was followed by trying to communicate with Mr. Average-man in Vietnamese, Tonkansese, Cambodian, Laotian or Thia in the clinics and fields and with the sophisticated officials in French at the discussion table. Now it is Dutch at the office and Surinaams, Hindustani, Javanese or another of the West African dialects in the field or ‘bush.’

“During these 13 years I have been exposed to 30 different foreign languages or dialects. From these different ethnic and language groups I have found the Kpellee tribe along the Yah River in West Africa the most haughty in greetings and the Laotian the most picturesque. The Laotians by graceful gesture with body, hands and eyes can convey the equivalent of a whole sentence with a single sound.”

The congregation of St. Philip's Protestant Episcopal Church of Brooklyn, N. Y., celebrated in April the parish's 59th birthday and the Rev. John M. Coleman's 25 years as rector at an anniversary dinner in the parish hall. During the quarter of a century of Father Coleman’s rectorship the membership has increased from 682 in 1933 to the present total of 1,753. He is a member of the executive committee of the Brooklyn Branch of the N.A.A.C.P., an associate member of the Department of Religious Education of the Diocese of Long Island, and a member of the Interracial Committee of the Brooklyn Division of the Protestant Council.

Just before he addressed the Commencement audience, Roy Wilkins (l.), executive secretary of the N.A.A.C.P., had the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws conferred upon him by Acting President A. O. Grubb. He told the members of the graduating classes to follow the crusaders of the twentieth century who destroyed the separate-but-equal theory, for in addition to their general obligations as citizens, Negro American graduates have a particular duty to perform.

On April 13 Dr. A. O. Grubb, the acting president, addressed briefly the meeting at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel which opened the Philadelphia campaign of the United Negro College Fund and at which Dr. F. D. Patterson was the main speaker. With Field Representative John Hobart, Dr. Grubb returned to Philadelphia on April 25 to meet with a subcommittee of the Board of Trustees. On April 28 he journeyed to Harrisburg to confer with Mr. A. J. Caruso of the General State Authority concerning the presentation Lincoln will make as a bid for help with a program of building expansion. That evening he was a member of a panel at the Oxford High School to discuss the subject “After High School, What?” On May 8 Dr. Grubb and Mr. Hobart conferred in Washington with Mr. William Duggan of the African desk of the State Department on Prime Minister’s Nkrumah’s visit to Pennsylvania (although apparently not to Lincoln University) on July 26.

Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, associate professor of the classics, has been granted a fellowship for study at Brandeis University this summer. In addition to attending an advanced seminar in Mediterranean archaeology, he will lecture on Hittite influences in Greek epic literature and participate in an evaluation of recent Minoan discoveries. The startling thesis of Professor Cyrus Gordon, director of the summer institute at Brandeis, that the language of Cretan “Linear A” is Akkadian, will highlight the work of the seminar. Dr. Schwartz hopes to assist in testing the validity of this thesis.

Assistant Professor James W. Frankenky was the choice of students for the “Teacher of the Year” honor. He received a certificate at the Honors Day Assembly on May 15 and was later presented a plaque. Dr. DeForest Rudd, professor of chemistry, and Dr. Thomas Jones, associate professor of history, (Continued on Page 20)
The Political Science Club presented Dr. Sidney Wise, chairman of the Department of Government, Franklin and Marshall College, at its meeting on Tuesday evening, April 29. Dr. Wise's subject was "National Political Parties," and he concentrated on the qualifications of candidates for offices in various states. The organization held its final program of the year on Monday, May 5, at 8:00 p.m. Dr. DeForest Rudd, professor of chemistry, and Mr. Robert Hellman, instructor in English, discussed the question "Is America Democratic?" with two American and two overseas students.

The members of the Chemistry Club had the pleasure of hearing Dr. George Seidel of the duPont Company speak on "Qualities Necessary for Success in the Field of Chemistry" at the meeting held on Thursday, May 1, at 8:00 p.m. Dr. Fred Hazel, professor of chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania, was the guest speaker on Wednesday, May 7, at 7:30 p.m. Dr. Hazel spoke on "Aspects of Colloidal Chemistry."

On Friday, May 2, at 8:15 p.m. the Y.M.C.A. Cabinet, in conjunction with the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, presented Miss Promila Devi of Bombay, India, in a program of classical Indian dances. Miss Devi is a student at the University of Pennsylvania. Rounding out a most successful year, the Y-Cabinet presented the Haverford College Drama Club and the Bryn Mawr Drama Guild in Shakespeare’s hilarious "Comedy of Errors" on Sunday, May 11, at 3:00 p.m.

On Thursday, May 8, the Chess Club travelled to Bethlehem, Pa., to play a match with Lehigh University’s team. When the smoke of battle had cleared away some hours after hostilities began, the Lincoln team was victorious by a score of 3-2 and also victorious on total boards by a score of 4-3. Victories were scored by Andrew Ransom, Robert Bivins, and Charles Lundy. Other members of the team were Nolvert Scott and Ivan Rakos. Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, the team’s adviser, defeated the Lehigh faculty adviser. Outstanding was the performance of Charles Lundy, who was offered a draw at a point where he was a pawn down but pluckily decided to continue the game, which he eventually won. The first season of play of the Chess Club in the intercollegiate chess league has been spectacularly successful.

The Glee Club appeared in recital at the New Rochelle High School on Thursday, May 8, and gave its annual Spring Concert the next evening in the Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel. Guest artist was Miss Lorraine Phillips, mezzo-soprano, and guest accompanist Mrs. Catherine Anderson. Miss Phillips was particularly effective in her rendition of Brahms’ “Rhapsody,” which she sang in German, supported by the Glee Club. On Thursday, May (Continued on Page 20)

Dr. Donald M. Davies, professor of Biblical literature, represented the Presbytery of Chester as a commissioner to the Presbyterian General Assembly in Pittsburgh in May. It was at this Assembly that the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., united with the United Presbyterian Church of North America to form the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

The annual Seminary Banquet honoring the graduating seniors was held in the Refectory on May 5 at 6:30 p.m. The speaker was the Rev. Dr. James E. Kirkland, minister of the Union Baptist Church of Philadelphia, Pa. Dr. Kirkland was introduced by Dr. Samuel G. Stevens, associate professor of practical theology, Grace before dinner was said by Mr. Christian J. Davenport, and the Rev. George A. Badu was master of ceremonies. Greetings were brought by Andrew H. Ransom, president of the Seminary Union, by members of the graduating class, and by members of the faculty.

Kermit E. Overton, who received his B.D. degree on June 3, and his wife, have been appointed missionaries by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. This is the first such appointment of a graduate of Lincoln in recent years, and it emphasizes the Church's policy of integration in its missionary staff throughout the world. Overton was ordained by the Presbytery of Philadelphia at the Berean Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia on June 11.

The annual dinner meeting of the Seminary Anns (the organization of Seminary student wives) was held at the Ladies Auxiliary Guest House on Tuesday, May 13, at 6:00 p.m. The speaker was the Rev. Charles Rice, minister of the Faggs' Manor Presbyterian Church, and now serving as Moderator of the Presbytery of Chester. Mr. Rice gave an interesting account of some of the problems facing the minister and his wife in the work of the ministry.

On April 19 the University Board of Trustees voted to terminate the work of the Theological Seminary by June, 1959. The small enrollment and the withdrawal of financial support by the Presbyterian Church made it necessary to take this action. Students will be enrolled for one year only beginning in September, 1958. It is hoped that a positive religious program may be developed at Lincoln to take the place of the Seminary.

The following recipients of awards were announced by Dean Andrew E. Murray on Honors Day, May 15:

Paul E. Gordon
C. Morris Cain Prize in English Bible—

Robert H. Nassau Prize (to senior best exemplifying the ideal of the Seminary in scholarship and personality)—

Scholarships, Fellowships &
Job Opportunities

• The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for recreation directors (No. 155B) to fill positions chiefly in the Department of the Air Force. The position of recreation director includes (1) base recreation directors or assistant base recreation directors and (2) staff recreation directors at major air command and sub-command headquarters only. A base recreation director initiates, plans, manages, and coordinates a complete, diversified, and well-rounded leisure-time activities program for youths, unmarried adults, and family groups. A staff recreation director develops plans, policies, and procedures for effective and economical utilization and management of recreational personnel (employees and volunteers), facilities (on base and off), and funds, in the furtherance of the Air Force recreation program for military personnel and their families.

Applicants must have had progressively responsible experience in the direction, planning, coordination, control, or administration of a recreation, social welfare, or personnel program, that demonstrated ability to (1) establish and maintain effective working relationships with individuals and groups; (2) communicate ideas and enthusiasm to other individuals and groups; and (3) understand and work with various ages and classes of people in a wide variety of situations. They must also have had responsible experience that required as principal duties the planning, organizing, developing, and evaluating broad-gaged recreation programs, and specifically providing practical work in a majority of the following functions: (1) preparation and defense of budgets, (2) analysis of needs and resources, (3) development of programs, (4) planning and maintaining facilities, (5) evaluating programs, (6) training leaders, (7) using volunteers, (8) motivating participation, (9) measuring participation, and (10) publicizing programs.

For a maximum of three years of the required general experience, applicants may substitute successfully completed study in a resident school above high-school level at the rate of one full year of study for nine months of experience, provided such study included an average of at least three semester-hour credits (or equivalent) per year in the subjects of recreation philosophy and recreation administration such as planning broad-gaged recreation programs, and planning and utilizing recreation facilities, etc. The successful completion of all graduate study required for a master’s degree in recreation may be substituted for one year of specialized experience. Competitors will not be required to report for a written test but will be rated on a scale of 100, on the extent and quality of their experience and training relevant to the duties of the position. Such ratings will be based upon competitors' statements in their applications and upon any additional evidence which may be secured.

Interested persons should file Form 57, showing the title of the examination, the number of the announcement, and the lowest salary acceptable; Card Form 5001-ABC; Standard Form 15 for those claiming 5- or 10-point veteran preference; and a brief summary statement of not more than three significant accomplishments in the field of recreation management, preferably achieved within the past five years. Forms may be obtained from any post office, from a U. S. Civil Service Regional Office, or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C. Application should be filed with the Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners having jurisdiction over the area in which the applicant wishes employment.

• The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for engineering, mathematics, and physical science aids and for engineering and physical science technicians (No. 154). Engineering aids and technicians perform subprofessional engineering work in one of the branches of engineering, such as civil, electrical, mechanical, etc. Depending upon the branch of engineering and the nature of work required, (Continued on Page 21)

BASEBALL

The Lions ended the season on May 19 in the city of "Brotherly Love" with a 5-4 win over Philadelphia Pharmacy. The win gave them a seasonal total of four wins against seven losses, a .364 percentage. The 4-7 record certainly was not indicative of the team's potential. Trivial mistakes and costly errors were the prime reasons for their poor showing; not forgetting the fact that they lost four key players during the latter part of the season: two due to injuries and two due to suspension.

Wendell McKelvin of New York City led the team in hitting with a .293 average. McKelvin started the season in right field and also did a magnificent job at filling in for catcher Arnold Barrett, also of New York City, who was injured in mid-season and stayed on the casualty list the remainder of it.

Stellar second baseman and captain of the team, Arthur Harris of Fort Washington, Pa., finished the season with a .279 batting average. He also led in runs batted in and stolen bases with 10 and 6 respectively.

Charles "Stump" Lee, Kennett Square, Pa., led in fielding with a .932 average. Most of the pitching was handled by Bennie "Doc" Dudley, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Glenn Hamm, Oxford, Pa. Dudley won 2 and lost 4 with an earned run average of 5.45, but led in strikeouts with 40 while pitching 43 innings. Hamm won 1 and lost 3 with an earned run average of 4.84.

The team suffered a vital loss when outfielder Frederick Kelly, Bethlehem, Pa., broke an ankle while chasing a fly ball. At the time of the injury he was batting .333 and had a fielding average of 1.000.

Other members of the squad were Granville Bain, Nassau, Bahamas; Richard Beane, Roanoke, Va.; David Jay, Bethlehem, Pa.; William King, Newark, N. J.; Jonathan Latimer, Washington, D. C.; Ernest Parker, Bridgeport, Conn.; Billy Ray Smith, Bryan, Texas; and Richard Terry, New York City. The results of all eleven games are as follows:

GOLF

This year, after an absence of many years, the Lions had a golf team. They only had two matches, both against Howard and both ending in 3-3 ties. The first game was on April 21 and the Lions lost to the Bisons at the Rock Manor Country Club in Wilmington, Del. Lincoln's Herman "Tex" Wilson, Tyler, Tex., shot a 92 to win the medal play. The match was played in two foursomes.

The second match was played on April 28 at Washington, D. C. Again "Tex" Wilson had the lowest score, firing a 78 under adverse wind conditions. Other members of Lincoln's squad were Bernard Jefferson, New York City; Richard Beane, Roanoke, Va.; Jonathan Latimer, Washington, D. C.; and Bennie "Doc" Dudley, Pittsburgh, Pa.

TRACK

Maryland—81, Lincoln—43
Delaware State—25

On April 30 at Lincoln these three teams met for the second time in a triangular meet and again Maryland came out on top. Richie Hall, Princeton, N. J., acquired the greatest number (Continued on Page 14) of individual points for the Lions by breaking the tape first in the 440-yard dash and 220-yard low hurdles, placing second in the 220-yard dash, and taking third in the 100-yard dash. Theodore Ellis, Norristown, Pa., high-jumped 5'6" to take first in that event. He also placed second in the discus and shot put. Percy Cupid, Ambler, Pa., placed second in the javelin and the 100-yard dash.

Hofstra—61, Lincoln—56

The Lions played host to Hofstra on May 6. Once again Lincoln's "Four Horsemen" of the track, in the persons of Richie Hall, "Tae" Ellis, Percy Cupid and Eddy Williams, carried the load, but again the load proved too heavy for them to bear.

Hall took a first in the 220 and 440-yard dashes and the 220-yard low hurdles. He also took a third in the broad jump. Ellis won the discus, high jump, and shot put. Cupid won the javelin, 120-yard high hurdles, and 100-yard dash. Eddy Williams, Wayne, Pa., placed first in the two-mile run and second in the mile run. Leonard Billups, Newport News, Va., came in second behind Hofstra's MacDonald in the half-mile run.

West Chester—77, Lincoln—48

On May 13 Hall, as usual, took the 220 and 440-yard dashes and also the 220-yard low hurdles. Cupid placed first in the 100-yard dash followed by Lincoln's Walter Sullivan of Philadelphia. Ellis took a first in the shot put and a second in the high jump. Eddy Williams won the two-mile run.

It is evident from the many first places received by the Lions in their five meets that the reason for their bad record this season (1 win, 2 seconds, 2 losses) was their lack of depth on the squad. With Hall, Cupid, and Williams returning next year, along with Sullivan and Billups, there should be quite an improvement over this year's record providing we receive that depth from returning lettermen and members of next year's freshman class. Other members of this year's varsity track team (not yet mentioned) were Jesse Anderson, Leonard Bethel, Raymond Betz, Arthur McNeal, Roger Crawford, Ray Sherrod, William Brown, and Martin Riley, all from Philadelphia, Pa.; Ivar Browne, New Bedford, Mass.; Donald Clark, Belmar, N. J.; Joseph Franklin, Mobile, Ala.; Alex Powell, Duquesne, Pa.; Robert Randolph, Newark, N. J.; James Sanders, Spartanburg, S. C.; and Arthur Trappier, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The season's results are as follows:
Lincoln 71, Cheyney S.T.C. 67
Maryland State 68½, Lincoln 53,
Delaware State 30½
Maryland State 81, Lincoln 43,
Delaware State 25
Hofstra, 61, Lincoln 56
West Chester 77, Lincoln 48

Lincoln 8 Cheyney 1
Millersville 9 Lincoln 0

Morgan State 6 Lincoln 3

Morgan State 9 Lincoln 0

Although the season was not to end for the Lions until May 5, it came to an end on April 29 when the Lions traveled to Baltimore only to be shut out 9-0 by Morgan State. The Lions had two more scheduled games which would have given them a chance to improve their record, but the match with Rutgers was rained out on May 3 and the one with Howard was cancelled on May 5, thus leaving them with a 1-6 record.

Graduating members of the tennis team are George Williams, Los Angeles, Cal.; James Watson, Trenton, N. J.; and Charles Collins, Cincinnati, Ohio. Returning lettermen are James Burgette, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Robert Carter, McKeesport, Pa.; Winston Blackett, Barbados, B. W. I.; Leonard Lockley, Springfield, Mass.; and Bernard Roebuck, St. Thomas, V. I.

grow out of the narrow, bigoted training that many of them evidently received from their parents.

It becomes our duty in this democracy which needs "a heap of fixing" to stimulate and promote integration, not impede its progress or renege in accepting it. As a result, we will grow more fully to the limits of our potentialities in an environment of wider and keener competition. We must want to grow and compete on a wider scale. If we have grown lazy and complacent in making ourselves satisfied with the limited opportunities of the past, we must spruce up and seek higher heights, as Jackie Robinson did in Big League baseball and Althea Gibson in Wimbledon and Forest Hills tennis when these fields were eventually opened to Negroes.

Honors Day
The following recipients of awards in the college were announced by Dean Leroy Johnson at the annual observance of Honors Day on Thursday evening, May 15: the Class of 1899 Prize for excellence in English, James M. K. Warden; the Class of 1900 Prize in debating, Herman Wilson; the Kappa Alpha Psi Prizes in oratory (freshmen), Nathan A. Harris, first; Eddy Williams, second; and Ronald Wade, third.

The S. LeRoy Morris Prize in biology for the highest average in biological science, Frederick Boulware; the William S. Quinland Prize in biology, Andrew Livingston; the Walter F. Jerrick Prize for the greatest improvement in the study of biological science, Richard Greene; the A. M. Dickinson Prize in biology, Sunny S. Akpaidiok.

The C. Morris Cain in Bible, Winston Blackett; the Class of 1916 Prize in athletics, Robert G. Smith; the Walter Fales Memorial Award in philosophy, Hasson Mirreh; the Norman Gaskins Memorial Award in organic chemistry, Enos T. Andrews; the Samuel Robinson Scholarship Awards in Bible, Winston Blackett, Ralph C. Cato, Samuel Lancaster, Alan Clark, William J. Gaskill, De Witt Myers, Lawrence P. Neal, David Rice, and Robert E. Wren; the Ladies Auxiliary Scholarship, Richard A. Taylor.

The E. K. Marrow Memorial Award (to the graduating student from New Jersey with the highest average), David Waters; the William H. Madella Award (to the graduating student who has made the most general progress and has demonstrated high character, conduct, and scholarship), Warren A. Barrick; the Amy L. Johnson Award (to the student showing most improvement in personality and scholarship), Nolvert P. Scott; the Henry W. B. Campbell Award (to the student combining qualities of scholarship and Christian character), equally to Jesse F. Anderson and Martin U. Riley; the Rabbi Weitz Beth Israel Temple Award (to the student combining qualities of scholarship and Christian character), equally to Jesse F. Anderson and Martin U. Uiley; the Rabbi Weitz Beth Israel Temple Award (to the student who does most and best for interfaith, interracial and intergroup cooperation on a world level), James N. Kimani; the Freshman Mathematics Achievement Award, Robert Randolph; the General Chemistry Award, Austin D. Scott; the Eastern Long Island Alumni Scholarship in memory of Norman Gaskins, John L. ature of the specific position, they perform such functions as testing engineering materials, assisting in surveys in the field for construction purposes, conducting or assisting in the performance of efficiency tests of machinery and equipment, making the less difficult engineering calculations, preparing technical material for engineering reports, specifications and estimates, and performing related work as assigned.

Mathematics aids assist mathematicians or other professional and scientific employees in work involving the use of algebra, logarithms, trigonometric functions, and higher mathematics, in the computation of experimental or theoretical data. Some of these positions involve the tabulation and plotting of values obtained from film, photostats, and recording instruments and devices. These employees usually do not determine the formulas or methods to be used in computation, reduction, or analysis of scientific data, but do the individual computational operations as outlined by professional and scientific personnel.

Physical science aids or technicians perform subprofessional technical and scientific work in one of the physical sciences as chemistry, geology, geophysics, metallurgy, or physics. Depending upon the branch of science and the nature of the job, the work includes such functions as conducting or assisting in conducting chemical or physical tests or analyses, making appropriate calculations, assisting in field work, and doing related work as assigned.

The successful completion of a full four-year or senior high school curriculum which has included six half-year courses in one or any combination of the following subjects may be substituted for one year of the required general experience: chemistry, drafting, mathematics (algebra, geometry, trigonometry, etc.), or physics. High-school study may not be substituted for any part of the specialized experience required for any grade. Pertinent residence undergraduate or graduate study completed in an accredited college or university may be substituted year for year for the required total experience, except that such education may not be substituted for the specialized experience required in grades GS-6 and above. For engineering aid or technician, the major field of study must be in engineering; for mathematics aid, it must be in mathematics; and for physical science aid or technician, it must be in physical science. Pertinent residence study completed in other schools above high-school level, or study in related fields, will receive appropriate credit in accordance with the courses shown in the application.

No written test is required. Applicants' qualifications will be related on a scale of 100, on the extent and quality of their experience, education, and training relevant to the duties of the position. Such ratings will be based upon competitors' statements in their applications, and upon any additional information secured by the Commission. Applicants may be required to submit proof of qualifications claimed, but should not submit such proof unless it is requested. Exaggeration or misstatement will be cause for disqualification or later removal from the service. Applicants who desire credit for education must furnish the following information: the full name and location of all high schools, colleges, etc., attended; the dates of each period of education (show months of year when course began and ended); full title of degree with date (actual or expected); list of courses intended to meet the requirements specified, indicating number of semester hours of credit for each; and majors, minors, and other courses, with number of semester hours of credit for each.

See last statement of previous announcement for what to file. If you are not entitled to military preference, file Form 70 (Proof of Residence), which is required only for certain positions in the apportioned service in the Washington, D. C., area. Applications should be filed with the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C.

The Fall Term

Begins Tuesday, Sept. 16
On Friday evening, April 11, 1958, at the clubhouse of the Gallivanters in New York City, a smoker was held by the Lincoln University Club of New York, Inc., the New York Chapter of the Alumni Association, at which all Lincoln men of the greater New York area were invited and all the alumni associations in Queens, Nassau, Brooklyn and New Jersey were urged to send their officers and representatives.

As many as one hundred men were present from points all over the metropolitan area and a spirited discussion was held in response to a fine talk given by the guest of honor, Mr. Robert N. Gardner, coach of football and wrestling. Genuine interest in the affairs of and at Lincoln was manifest by all those present.

The entire cost of this affair was borne by the New York Chapter and all contributions made by those present were earmarked for delivery to the University for the purpose of providing athletic scholarships. It was agreed that this money would be sent as a contribution from the alumni of the Greater New York Area and we desire to make this fact plain, as promised.

Enclosed herewith is a check representing the entire amount collected that evening, amounting to the sum of $227.00. A list of all contributors to this fund follows:

... AND MINUS

Trenton, N. J.

I tried, without any success, to start an alumni group here. I received one telephone call and later a letter from Dr. Austin '08 expressing his interest. The others did not contact me or show up at the meeting. I asked them to express their interest in organizing a chapter if they were not able to attend. So, I assume there is, at present, little or no interest in the idea. This is a disappointing failure on the part of Lincoln men.

FORM OF BEQUEST

To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $____________ to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
From The President's Desk

Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah is amused by his picture in the 1939 Lion, which was a part of a Washington, D. C., exhibit welcoming him to the United States in July.

The Lincoln luncheon on July 26 was a gala event. It brought to Harrisburg Dr. Kwame Nkrumah '39, '42s, and his party as guests of honor, while the 130 present included Governor Leader, who in welcoming the Prime Minister threw in some kind remarks about the University; other prominent state officials; representatives of the U.S. Department of State, headed by Wiley T. Buchanan, chief of protocol; business executives; and a notable gathering of trustees, faculty, and alumni, some of whom had come from as far away as Chicago and Oklahoma.

Dr. William P. Stevenson '26, '28s, Judge Herbert E. Millen '10, and Dr. E. Luther Cunningham '30, '33s, appeared on the program, and the persuasiveness of their diction and delivery was in the best tradition of Lincoln forensic skill.

However, the high point in some very good post-luncheon oratory was the Prime Minister's warm and witty little talk.

It should be borne in mind that a crammed program of White House and other Washington appointments had left Dr. Nkrumah exhausted; he had been rushed at 80 miles an hour from Hershey Airport to Harrisburg in a convoy of state police cars, and then hustled, robe flying, into the Penn Harris Hotel, still twenty minutes behind in a schedule which called for late afternoon appearances in Philadelphia. Some abstraction on the part of the Prime Minister during the lunch-

ALENDAR OF UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES

October 19—Mr. John Ware, III, burgess of Oxford and a member of the Board of Trustees of Lincoln University was the guest speaker for the annual observance of Laymen's Day.

October 23—The Lectures and Recitals Committee presented the New York Trio (piano, violin, and cello) in recital.

October 26—Dr. Francis Shunk Downs, long-time member of Lincoln's Board of Trustees, brought the Sunday morning message.

October 30—Dr. Frederick W. Schantz, dean of engineering, Lafayette College, addressed students and faculty members at the University Assembly.

November 2—The Rev. Dennis R. Fletcher, '35, was the Sunday morning speaker. He is an administrative officer of the Methodist Church.

November 6—Mr. F. J. Rarig, secretary and head of the Legal Department of the Rohm and Haas Company, addressed the University Assembly on the subject of "The Conflict between Science and the Humanities."

November 10—The Janacek Quartet of two violins, viola, and cello was presented by the Lectures and Recitals Committee.

THE PROPOSAL THAT COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES raise tuition fees to cover the full cost of instruction, advocated by a number of writers on education in recent months, has been strongly attacked by Robert P. Ludlum, president of Blackburn College. Writing in the October issue of the Educational Record, he admits that in these days of financial crisis this method of doubling a college's income from students is simple and alluring, but he calls it "a basic change in the philosophy which has guided the private colleges of the nation." He points out that American institutions of higher learning have acquired endowments from private philanthropy amounting to $3 billion. These endowments, he says, "have enabled students to receive the advantages of the programs without paying in tuition charges, what the programs actually cost . . . The philanthropist has assumed, I believe, that he was giving support to the colleges precisely to make higher education available to students as a benefit of their society." Charging the student the full cost of his education would therefore be "breaking faith with the donors." With regard to future fund-raising, he asks this question: "If the colleges were then to be taking the position that it was the responsibility of the student to pay in full for his education, would it not, by extension in the popular mind, be thought that educational institutions should be entirely self-supporting? Why, in other words, aid a college or university in any way—by the provision of scholarship funds, buildings, or anything else—any more than one feels an obligation to contribute to the support of a large corporation or the corner grocery store?"

THE MEMBERS OF THE EASTERN LONG ISLAND CHAPTER of the General Alumni Association of Lincoln University continue to set the pace for the other twenty-four chapters, many of which exist chiefly on paper. Last year the Long Island alumni provided seven partial scholarships for students from Nassau County and hope to provide more this year with the proceeds from their Columbus Day Third Scholarship Dance. One of the highlights of the dance was the introduction of Les Luvaux Femmes, an auxiliary composed of wives of Lincoln men but open to all women interested in the affairs of Lincoln University. The auxiliary proposes to establish and foster a keener interest for women in the cultural, social, educational and physical development of Lincoln University.
Let us get back to Lincoln and its fate as integration proceeds. I can see only one solution that has merit. As Negro college aspirants become more and more integrated into the mainstream of college-bound students, in the same way our colleges must lose their identifying racial labels and be integrated fully into the body of American colleges, meeting the same standards required of all other colleges of their class and location.

It should not be a matter of Lincoln and other similarly-affected institutions defensively holding the line against formerly "white" colleges which are now competing for the Negro student market, but of the so-called Negro colleges becoming competitors themselves in the common market and winning more non-Negro students on the basis of excellency of faculty, curriculum, academic reputation, and all that goes into a top-notch college.

Lincoln, by virtue of her geographic location in Pennsylvania, should be a leader among the Negro colleges in becoming colleges for every one, regardless of race. There is no reason why Lincoln should not be a pacesetter in this regard. She has always accepted white students; among our classmates in 1924 was a descendant of John Miller Dickey. The trustees and administration have enunciated a policy of open admissions. The problem is to attract more students from this source through an intensive cultivation of the high schools of Pennsylvania and the neighboring states. And in the beginning this cultivation must include principals and counselors as well as students. For if the school officials who advise students are not enthusiastically cooperative, interest built up in students will be dampened by their negative or indifferent attitudes . . .

Lincoln will face this problem but it will not be insurmountable. It is not insurmountable because young people are beginning more and more to realize that one of their most serious "blind spots" is their lack of knowledge and understanding of people and human nature, and their ineptness in dealing with other peoples and groups. The enrollment of white students in Fisk University has been drawn primarily from students who have become conscious of this shortcoming and who decided that life for four years among a predominant group of another race will aid them in their social thinking as well as in their academic development. In attracting such students, however, the curriculum offerings must be first-class. The degree which they receive upon graduation must provide prestige and recognition comparable to that which they earn in any other institution they might choose.

What must be done to prepare Lincoln for crashing through the racial barrier into the company of the best schools in the region? One of the chief ingredients will be money: for new buildings, facilities, teachers, and many other needs. Raising money and winning support in these days are not often accomplished by the eloquence of the president of the college in painting a pathetic picture of a poor but deserving institution which needs a financial handout to continue its service to an underprivileged segment of the population. Present-day philanthropists have in the main established foundations and educational consultants who are less moved by emotional appeals and pleadings. These experts are trained to regard the educational picture on a regional or national basis, and grants are made to institutions for programs which aid the educational complex, rather than a particular institution and its separate faculty and student body.

This is another new phenomenon which we as alumni must understand: the day of strong individualism in institutions, as in persons, is becoming passe. What an individual college achieves for its own sake is no longer of great importance, unless that achievement is of benefit to education (Continued on Page 6) as a whole, and an aid to the general progress. What will raise Lincoln's prestige will be the extent to which she fits into the system of Pennsylvania colleges and adds something which otherwise might be less adequately supplied.
Lincoln and the Years Ahead

The importance of this regional and national teamwork among the colleges becomes very evident when we take a look at still another phenomenon of these times: the increased birthrate following World War II, which will make the college enrollment potential in 1970 practically double what it was 15 years earlier. The effect of this is expected to create a national shortage of teachers, space and facilities, and make it difficult for many applicants to secure admission to their preferred colleges and for some to enter any of the better colleges. It was probably in anticipation of this situation that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania recently increased its support of Lincoln. The extent to which we will qualify for further support will depend upon the returns that Pennsylvania gets on its investment.

Let us not be led to think that because of this impending wave of students soon to be applying for admission Lincoln's worries will all be over. It is true that she may have no trouble filling her dormitories and enrolling an optimum of students in terms of her facilities and staff. But what will it avail us if we do not get a fair share of the better students among those we admit, if most of our enrollees are mediocre or worse? If the better students rate Lincoln so low among the colleges they prefer that she becomes only a catch-all for students rejected by other colleges, the future will be very dim. The quality of her students and graduates is what has made Lincoln what she is today. How content would we be to see her at the bottom level of Pennsylvania colleges in ratings and prestige, even if the campus has a prosperous, well-populated outward appearance?

If the quality of students drops seriously, can we expect to hold our best teachers and to attract others of equal competence? My impression over the years has been that Lincoln has maintained a staff of excellent teachers because they are the type who would rather teach good students at lower pay in Lincoln's isolation than to get more money but also more frustration working at a college with a higher pay scale but poorer students. If this guess is true, will they not begin to leave if student quality at Lincoln drops?

Faculty members of high competence and flexibility will be sorely needed in a situation in which it is predicted that the supply of students will increase several times more rapidly than the supply of experienced teachers. The new teaching methods and arrangements which will be instituted to cope with this problem will require these qualities... All of our colleges therefore find themselves on the threshold of a new era, which will demand new approaches to education. This new era is characterized by a larger and rapidly increasing market of students, together with vastly wider areas of knowledge, including the new thermo-nuclear field, the need for expensive scientific equipment, and an urgency to move ahead in giant strides in keeping pace with Soviet scientific advances.

In view of the enormous dimensions of the job facing the colleges in the years ahead, one thing seems clear: the common objectives can be more adequately and less expensively attained by groups of colleges working jointly, and using equipment and staffs collectively, rather than by the conventional arrangement of each institution working separately and in isolation. Lincoln has already taken a step in this direction with her cooperative engineering program with Lafayette College supplying the technical, advanced courses to students who receive their basic background at Lincoln. More needs to be planned and worked out in this regard. This means that Lincoln must strengthen and round out her basic program so that other colleges will rate her as a competent partner in any cooperative arrangement of mutual advantage.

But if Lincoln is to win an outstanding place in the new scheme of things, she must do, more than provide basic, general courses. She must be able to boast of some field in which she is especially able as a recognized authority. On this point I would recommend special attention to the further develop-

John R. Custis, Sec'y

Lincoln has lost another distinguished son in the person of the Rev. John Q. Evans, late of Des Moines, Iowa. Evans, who died on September 20, 1958, following a stroke, was instrumental in sending students from the state of Iowa to Lincoln University. Among them were Oscar L. Glass, '46, our informant concerning Mr. Evans' death, and Robert N. Hyde, '41.

'07

Arthur Rankin, Sec'y

The Rev. Dr. Arthur E. Rankin, church editor for the Philadelphia Tribune, was honored on his 80th birthday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Edward C. Campbell of Philadelphia on September 6. The Olivia Rankin Guild and friends sponsored the occasion.

On August 4 Dr. A. O. Grubb, the acting president of Lincoln, visited Phi Beta Kappa headquarters in Washington, D. C., in connection with the University's application for a charter. On August 22, at the invitation of Willis C. Tabor, '58s, he and Mrs. Grubb had lunch at a migrant labor camp near Cochranville. During September, except for one Philadelphia meeting with a subcommittee of the trustees, he stayed on campus. On October 1, he went to Harrisburg to take part in the discussion which followed the architects' presentation of 45 pages of blueprints of the new science building to the General State Authority. On October 6 and 7 he attended the annual U.N.C.F. meeting in New York City, and on October 8 an all-day conference on higher education and a dinner at the University of Pennsylvania.

On October 15 Dr. Grubb and Mr. Austin Scott, the business manager, met at the Midday Club in Philadelphia, with Mr. Phillips and the University accountants and attorneys and returned to Philadelphia October 17 to consult several trustees. On October 22 he brought W. J. Trent of U.N.C.F. to the campus, and also met with trustees in Philadelphia. He spoke briefly at a dinner honoring Mrs. Amy Johnson, the retired postmaster at Lincoln University, at the Nottingham Inn on October 25. Dr. Grubb was in Philadelphia with a subcommittee of the Trustee Committee on the Presidency on October 27, and on October 28 he represented the University at the convocation commemorating the 125th anniversary of the founding of Haverford College. On the evening of October 30 he was one of three judges of floats and individual entries in an elaborate Halloween parade in Oxford.

On November 13 Dr. Grubb and others from the campus attended the fall meeting of the Board at the Warwick, Philadelphia.

Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, director of public relations, served for two weeks during the month of July. He was in charge of activities for junior children. On October 11 Dr. Henry Cornwell, associate professor of psychology, and Dr. Farrell, joint sponsors of a campus reading laboratory for freshmen, attended the first meeting of the College Reading Association and were enrolled as charter members. The subject of the conference was "What Is College Reading?" On October 23 Dr. Farrell addressed the members of the Loyal Club of the Kimberton Lutheran Church on the subject of "Human Relations in Our Time."

On November 8 he represented Lincoln at the funeral of Dr. Silas (Shag) Taylor, '09, in Boston.

Dean J. B. MacRae was a member of a panel to discuss the question "What Can Colleges, Schools, and PTA's do to prepare people to live in integrated communities?" on October 21 as a part of the 1958 Fall Forum Series presented by Media Fellowship House in cooperation with the Delaware Council on Human Relations. The subjects of the forum were related to education, employment, and housing. Dean MacRae is professor of education and dean of students.

Dr. Laurence Foster, professor of sociology, has been named by Gov. George Leader to a 17-member committee to study discrimination in housing. Dr. Foster returned in September from a year's leave of absence to work on a project in Africa.

Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, associate professor of classics, who was awarded a fellowship to Brandeis University last summer for a post-doctoral seminar in Minoan archaeology, has undertaken the task of deciphering the Phaistos disk, the famous terra cotta tablet unearthed in 1908 in Crete, which has hitherto defied all attempts at decipherment. Dr. Schwartz is satisfied that the hieroglyphic script of the disk is connected graphically with the script of the Cretan Linear A inscriptions, while the language is an earlier Greek dialect of the Cretan Linear B inscriptions. He plans to publish the results of his investigation very short-

The Seminary

An ecumenical note resounds from the ranks of the Seminary as its doors are about to close. Korean Hee Bo Kim and Ebenezer Abba Offei and Ebenezer Ansah of the Ghana Presbyterian Church constitute most of the latest additions to the special student class of the Seminary. Also enrolled is Enoch Abenoyap, who came with his wife and two children from the French Cameroons.

Two local students comprise the Junior Class: John Ramsey and Robert Durand, both from the Coatesville, Pa., area.

Serving as visiting lecturer on the Seminary faculty is the Rev. Warren H. Ball of Lancaster, Pa., where he is pastor of the Highland Presbyterian Church. Mr. Ball lectures on parish administration.

Several neighboring ministers have been invited again to lead daily Seminary devotionals. The Rev. Howard E. Pusey of the West Grove Presbyterian Church accepted an invitation to lead one of the devotionals.

The annual Seminary retreat was held at Kirkridge, near Bangor, Pa., October 20-23. Greater spiritual fellowship resulted from the prayers, hikes, shared responsibility, and discussion of the subject “The Fruits of Fellowship.”

Arthur J. Honore, a senior in the Seminary and student pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Oxford, Pa., was married to Miss Ophelia Perry at the Zion Baptist Church in Philadelphia on September 6, 1958.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Grace became the parents of a daughter on October 5, 1958. Christened Sarah Ann, the baby weighed 9 lbs. 1½ ozs. at birth. Grace, a middler in the Seminary, lives in Oxford, Pa.

GIVE TO THE LINCOLN UNIVERSITY FUND AS GENEROUSLY AS YOU CAN TODAY
Scholarships, Fellowships & Job Opportunities

• The Department of American Civilization of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences of the University of Pennsylvania is offering grants, scholarships, and fellowships to qualified students who wish to do advanced work in American studies. The grants, ranging from $200 to $500, are for candidates for the M.A. or Ph.D. degree. Recipients of scholarships may also receive from $200 to $500 but will be exempted from the payment of tuition and fees. Full-time resident candidates for the Ph.D. are eligible for fellowships, which range from $1000 to $3000, and exemption from the payment of tuition and fees. For information and application forms, write to The Chairman, American Civilization, Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia 4, Pa. Applications will be accepted until February 18, 1959.

• Supported by a grant from the Fund for the Advancement of Education, the Johns Hopkins University Department of Education is offering an experimental program which should appeal to college graduates who would like to qualify for a career teaching such high school subjects as English, science, mathematics, foreign languages, and social studies. The curriculum extends through one calendar year and features courses in education, electives in the student's academic major, and a concurrent teaching internship (with pay) in the local schools. Graduates will meet teacher certification requirements and receive the degree of Master of Arts in Teaching. Each person will be paid not less than $1875 for one semester of full-time teaching. Each will also receive a fellowship covering one-third of the $1380 tuition for the course. Approximately thirty applicants will be selected. Only college graduates who have not completed teacher training are eligible to enter the M. A. T. program. Applications will be accepted from men and women who have completed with above average grades a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university. Applications to enter the program in the summer of 1959 (June 29) must be received before March 1. Application forms and catalogues are available from the Office of the Director of Admissions, The Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore 18, Md.

• The National Science Foundation has announced that applications are now being accepted in two fellowship programs which will lead to the award of approximately 1200 fellowships in March of 1959. Fellowships are awarded in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological, engineering, and other sciences including anthropology, psychology (excluding clinical psychology), geography and certain interdisciplinary fields, and selected social sciences. Selection of persons for fellowships will be made from among citizens of the United States solely on the basis of ability. Predoctoral fellowships which provide an annual stipend, payment of tuition and fees, dependency allowances for married fellows and limited travel and special allowances, will be awarded in three categories: first year ($1800), intermediate ($2000), and terminal ($2200). Postdoctoral fellowships are awarded to individuals who, at the time they enter on the tenure of their fellowships, will have received a doctoral degree in science (or the equivalent in scientific training). An annual stipend of $4500, payment of tuition and fees, dependency allowance for married fellows and limited travel and special allowances are provided. The closing date for receipt of predoctoral applications is January 5, 1959; for postdoctoral applications, December 22, 1958. For information and application materials related to these fellowships write to Fellowship Office, National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington 25, D. C.

FOOTBALL

Trenton State 38, Lincoln 12

The Lions opened the season on October 4 by playing Trenton State Teachers College in Trenton, N. J. Sparked by quarterback Bill Wagner, the Trenton Lions were able to walk off the field with a 38-12 victory over the small squad of the Lincoln Lions.

In the first half, Lincoln demonstrated to the fans that though they were outnumbered they would not be outplayed. With quarterback Jonathan Latimer of Washington, D. C., leading the team, the excellent pass-receiving of Whit Walker, Darby, Pa., and the fine running of fullback Dave Gardner, Pittsburgh, Pa., the Lions scored two touchdowns, matching those scored by Trenton. Lincoln, however, failed to score in points after touchdowns, pushing the Trenton Lions to the lead at halftime with a score of 16-12.

The third quarter saw the two teams engaged in a terrific defensive battle, but time took its toll on the exhausted Lincoln Lions. Trenton, ever aware of its superiority in manpower, substituted often and kept the Lions under continual pressure. By the fourth quarter the efforts of our men proved to be futile. Capitalizing on our fumbles, Trenton State enlarged the gap by scoring 22 points.

After that game, one needed no crystal ball to see the effect that the shortage of players would have on our remaining games. Lincoln has only a 24-man squad, and most of them are backfieldmen with little experience on the line.

National Agr. College 21, Lincoln 13

On October 11 Lincoln was host to the National "Aggies," a team from Doylestown, Pa., coached by Pete Pihos, former All-American and All-Pro. The first half was a hotly contested one which saw both teams put on fine defensive stands. Lincoln struck early and hard in the third quarter. Returning the kickoff to their own 49, and then being penalized 5 yards, the Lions marched to the "Aggies'" 30. Jonathan Latimer then "hit" Whit Walker with a screen pass and Walker ran 30 yards for a touchdown. Latimer added the extra point and Lincoln led 7-0.

The "Aggies," however, did not waste too much time in striking back. Bob Frantz intercepted a pass thrown by Latimer and ran 12 yards to the Lions' 26. Driving to the 1-yard line, Emory Markoviv of the "Aggies" fumbled and Lincoln's Donald Clark of Belmar, N. J., recovered it. Clark then punted to his own 26. In six plays the "Aggies" had a touchdown with Markoviv carrying it again over from the 5.

Lincoln again broke the deadlock in the final quarter. After the Lions' Dave Gardner recovered a fumble, the Lions marched to the "Aggies'" 12 and then Johnny Latimer "hit" Bob Randolph of Newark, N. J., in the end zone. Ironically enough, from this point the "Aggies" dominated the game. They received the kickoff and marched 52 yards, led by halfback William Wilson, who plunged over for a touchdown from the 1. They also scored another touchdown in the closing minutes of the game.

Virginia Union 50, Lincoln 6

On October 18 the Lions traveled to Richmond, Va., only to suffer a humiliating defeat at the hands of the powerful Panthers. In the opening minutes of the game, Virginia Union took the lead and went on from there to score 14 points in the first quarter, 16 in the second, 8 in the third and 12 in the fourth with five players sharing in the scoring.

Playing their first night game since 1956, the Lions got their only touchdown late in the last quarter on a pass (Continued on Page 14) from Jon Latimer to Don Clark. Faced by fresh substitutes, the Lions were never able to start any sustaining drives, thus resulting in a one-sided battle.

Delaware State 26, Lincoln 8
Lincoln was host to Delaware State College from Dover, Del., on October 25. After a scoreless first quarter, the Hornets of Delaware suddenly struck with lightning speed. Delaware's Morgan Little intercepted a pass tossed by Latimer on Lincoln's 45-yard line. On the first play from scrimmage, Irv Heath passed to Al Thompson for a 5-yard touchdown. Lincoln fumbled twice after taking the kickoff. Delaware State recovered the ball both times but capitalized on the second recovery with a touchdown by Heath, who took the ball over from the 5.

The Lions did all of their scoring in the third quarter on a safety and a 30 yard drive. After the safety Bob Randolph took the kickoff on the 49 and ran it back to Delaware's 42. Driving down to the 21, Lincoln lost the ball on downs, and Delaware took over. On the second down, Delaware fumbled and Lincoln's Roger Crawford of Philadelphia recovered on the 30. In nine plays Lincoln had a touchdown, capped by a 1-yard plunge by Whit Walker.

In the fourth quarter Delaware State broke the game wide open. After taking the kickoff in the closing seconds of the third quarter, the Hornets marched from their own 33 to Lincoln's 7 where Heath fumbled and Lincoln's Melvin Fowler of Roosevelt, N. Y., recovered. Lincoln's chance of pulling a game from the bag was erased on the first play when Latimer fumbled and Delaware recovered on the 6. Heath took the ball across from the 5 on the second play and Delaware led 20-8. The final touchdown of the game was scored on a 14-yard pass from Heath to Will Miller.

Hampton Institute 42, Lincoln 0
Approximately 750 people in attendance at Lincoln's Homecoming game on November 1 saw Hampton defeat the Lions 42-0. Lincoln took the opening kickoff on the 30-yard line. In a fourth-down kicking situation, Hampton's Clyde Clark blocked the kick and the Pirates took over on the 11. In five plays they had a touchdown.

Hampton struck again in the second quarter. After the Lions had lost the ball on downs on Hampton's 23-yard line, the Pirates took over and drove for the touchdown with Howard Corey taking it over from the 15. Hampton scored once more in that quarter, and at the end of the half the Pirates led 20-0.

In the third quarter Hampton scored twice. The deepest penetration that Lincoln made into Hampton territory came in the first quarter when the Lions drove to the Pirates' 19. The game closed with a dramatic 81-yard touchdown by John Caldwell of Delaware State.

CROSS COUNTRY
Each year since Coach Tom Jones organized the cross country team in 1956, the team has been improving. This year with the return of lettermen Raymond Betz, Philadelphia; James Kimani, Nairobi, Kenya; and Eddy Williams, Wayne, Pa., the Lions have continued their sensational pace.

Lincoln opened their season at home on October 11 against Bowie State, and gave the Maryland thinclads a sound trimming 16-45. James Kimani took first-place honors, running the 4.1 mile course in 22:18. He was followed by Eddy Williams. Third and fourth place honors went to two promising freshmen, Robert Betz, brother of Raymond, and David Walker of Philadelphia.

Two days later on October 13 the Lions were host to Bainbridge Naval Academy with Bainbridge meeting the same fate as Bowie. The score was 17-43. Bob Betz, Eddy Williams and David Walker took first, second and third place respectively.

Lincoln traveled to Glassboro State Teachers College on October 15 and returned home with another victory. The Lions swept the first seven places over Glassboro with Kimani, Williams and Bob Betz again sharing the first three places. Walker, Ray Betz, Robert Miller of Philadelphia, Pa., and Philip Gainey of Pittsburgh, Pa., took the 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th places respectively. Lincoln wrapped up the game with a 15-50 win.

Despite the illness of Lincoln's star runner, James Kimani, the Lions squeezed out a 26-29 win over their arch rivals, Cheyney State Teachers College on October 18. Running at Cheyney, Eddy Williams took top honors, followed by Bob Betz.

Lincoln was host to Cheyney and Millersville State Teachers College the following weekend. The Lions failed for the first time this season to take first place honors. Rod Sullivan of Cheyney beat them out of the honor. Nevertheless, Lincoln won the triangular meet 29-45-46 with Millersville scoring the 45.

On November 1, Lincoln's Homecoming day, the Lion thinclads met one of the top cross country teams on the East coast when they ran against West Chester State Teachers College. The meet was begun between halves of the Lincoln-Hampton football game. The fans, realizing that their team's 6-0 record was at stake, gave them plenty of support but that was not enough to slow down the running of West Chester's Douse and Bryan, both of whom crossed the tape in the record-breaking time of 21:27, thus breaking James Kimani's course record of 22:18. James Kimani, who finished third, crossed the finish line in 21:53 and Eddy Williams took fourth with a time of 21:58.

SOCCER

With Clarence Grumbine, a graduate of West Chester State Teachers College as the new coach, the soccer team got off to a good start with a 4-2 win over Glassboro State Teachers College. Abu Fadika, Sierra Leone, West Africa, scored two of the goals and John Godet, British West Indies, and Chris Renner, Sierra Leone, had one goal each.

On October 4 Lincoln was guest of Rider College and Rider was not too hospitable. The Lions were defeated 5-0. This game was followed by another loss, 8-0, to East Stroudsburg State Teachers College at East Stroudsburg on October 15.

A strong Elizabethtown College team journeyed to Lincoln and gave the Lions another whitewash 19-0. This was followed by a win over Rutgers 6-2. Our next two games were in losing causes with Lycoming College beating us 3-1 and West Chester defeating us on Homecoming day 6-0.

On November 5 the Lions were host to Eastern Baptist Seminary. With Abu Fadika leading the team with two goals, Lincoln won its first shutout of the season, 4-0. Leonard Mbooga, Nairobi, Kenya, and Charles Hamilton, Sierra Leone, also scored goals.

From the President's Desk

eon would then have been understandable, but he gave no sign of pondering a speech. Instead, he chatted easily with his table neighbors, and although he at one point borrowed a pencil, it was to draft a long telegram to his revered teacher, Dr. George Johnson, now of Wilmington, Delaware, about whom he had inquired. Thus, after Judge Millen's introduction, he simply said what came to him, mostly from the heart, for he spoke with feeling, if smilingly, and was obviously touched as he reminisced about the old school.
A text of Dr. Nkrumah's remarks, as transcribed from a tape recording, follows.

Governor Leader, ladies and gentlemen:
It seems that I may not be able to make my point very well, but I feel very strongly about it. Imagine a child of a family who has gone abroad and grown up. When he returns to the family house, he finds there has been growth in it, too. And no matter how much he has grown, he still feels a bit childish when he meets the old folks. I think that's the way I am here today. I come back to Pennsylvania, to Lincoln University, in that spirit, because how can I speak in any terms? If I look on my right here, I see Professor Grim, who taught me biology at Lincoln University; at my left is Professor Grubb, who taught me elementary French. As I look around me I see my colleagues, my classmates, my schoolmates. You see
I really have come home.

I have not come home to brag or to tell you of our achievements, but in all humility. I come to let you have some idea of the big problems confronting not only Ghana but the African continent, and the whole world, for that matter. I think it was under the influence of these things that I accepted the invitation of the president, your president, the President of the United States, at this time. Unfortunately, I have come at a time when the world is in turmoil. I hope that by hard work there shall be found a solution to the world's problems, and there can be if we take courage and face realities, and aren't just men who play with the facts.

What I want to say is that Ghana has become independent, and we thought that was going to be the end of it, but it wasn't. We are now facing two major problems in Ghana.
First of all, we have to fight in order to maintain our political independence.
Secondly, we must find ways and means to strengthen and diversify the economy so that the standard of the people can be raised. And when we come to America, as I said in Congress yesterday, we are not here to ask for loans; all we are asking for is investment. I personally feel that America has reached the place where she must serve others; unless she does so she cannot survive. That is the challenge I come to throw to the American people, Governor Leader.

Here in American we are going to find the ways by which we can increase the standard of living of our people.
But apart from that we are not the only people on the continent of Africa.
Africa, today, is divided and partitioned up among several great powers. At first only Liberia could speak of any African independence. Now within the last two years eight independent states have been established. Two months ago these independent states met in Accra, and formulated plans to enable us to assert that an African personality must be established in the world.
If Africa is to speak, Africa must be her own spokesman. Nobody can speak for Africa, because nobody knows the aspirations and hopes of the people; we have come to a point where we are saying now that our voice must be heard.

We are in the position that our voice cannot be heard alone; we must get together, so the eight African states met in conference. First, they established that an African personality has to emerge now. Secondly, that there is a real root of African consciousness.
These two must work together in such a way that it can lead to the solution of the world's problem. So I come here in this way. All that I want to say is that there are great problems facing us on that continent. There are others who are not yet free, many more than those who are free now.
We who are free and independent have the responsibility to do what we can to free the others. That's why we have said that our own independence is meaningless until it is linked up with the total liberation of the African continent.

That is quite a big job on our hands right now, and we need help from outside. Because by improving the standard of living of our people, Governor Leader, we shall be able to bring in people educated in the right life. These people will be in a position to educate the African in such a way that he can follow the right life in the pursuit of happiness. When we come to the United States, we come to strengthen the bonds of friendship and goodwill which exist between the people of Ghana and the people of the United States. We pray that this goodwill and friendship will continue to grow from strength to strength. If all of us stand together as one man, we shall be able to bring about peace for the world.

Just before I left I made a talk at all of the eight capitals of the eight African independent states. The amazing thing is that all of them are talking the same language. I remember that wherever I went—whether it was in Ethiopia or the Sudan, or with Nasser of the United Arab Republic—it was all one message. If you go, tell them this; if you go, tell them that. So I come with my pockets filled up with all that I should tell.

I think I am finding the right opportunities to tell them so in their particular quarters. I hope that my mission to the United States is going to be fruitful. I think that the communiqué that your president and myself were able to agree upon, which I am sure was published at 9:30 this morning will make you know that our visit to the United States has not been in vain and that the cooperation between all of us should continue so that we can make the world safe for peace. We feel that without peace the small nations in the world cannot even get a chance to improve their standard of living. If there is no peace we cannot survive. So we, the small nations have a vested interest in peace. That's why we are working. We are going to do all we can to cooperate with all of those who want to make peace possible in the world.

Again I want to thank you, Governor Leader, for making it possible for me to appear here to meet my old teachers and friends and classmates. It's a pity that when you come on such a talk, protocol will never allow you to do anything of your own. I hope that some day I shall be able to come to the United States so that I can visit the old places I want to visit and see the things I saw when I was here.

Thank you very much.

OLD GRAD*

Kwame Nkrumah is by heritage a chief of the Nzima tribe, on the Gold Coast of Africa; by election the first Prime Minister of the new African nation of Ghana; by vocation a revolutionary dedicated to the liberation of all Africa from colonial rule; and by general consent a world figure who symbolizes the entrance of the colored peoples onto the stage of world affairs. He is also a loyal member of the class of '39 of Lincoln University—a predominantly Negro university near Oxford, Pennsylvania—who has been heard to wonder what his classmates ever saw in him when they voted him "the most interesting man on campus," and who, according to his Minister of Information, Kofi Baako, still speaks very often of dear old Lincoln U. when he's back home in Accra. When he came to New York last week, after spending several days discussing affairs of state in Washington, as the guest of President Eisenhower, the first function he attended here was a Lincoln alumni reunion, and it was in the surprising role of affable old grad that he told us about his early life on the Gold Coast.

The reunion was held in an elegant mirrored suite at the Waldorf. When we arrived, the Prime Minister was not yet there, but about fifty Lincoln alumni—middle-aged, paunchy, and fairly prosperous-looking men, for the most part—were gathered in the room, along with a sprinkling of wives and children. Some of the men were reminiscing about their old schoolmate. In general, they remembered him as quiet and friendly, but dedicated. "He seemed to have something on his mind.

in those days. Now we know what it was," one classmate said.

"I was in the Philosophy Club with him, and I always thought he was tops," put in a jovial tan-colored man in a light-gray suit.

A handsome dark-skinned man recalled that he had been the president of the Phi Beta Sigma fraternity when Nkrumah joined it. "Ours was the smallest fraternity on the campus then," he said, "He told me that that was why he was joining it—so he could cast in his lot with the underdog."

We met a slim, pretty woman named Mrs. John Davis, who said that she had worked in the university library with Nkrumah. "He was always reading books when he should have been shelving them," she said. "Someone reported this to the head librarian—Dr. Robert Labaree, who had been a missionary and who took a great interest in Nkrumah. Instead of being annoyed, Dr. Labaree seemed very pleased. 'He's reading the books?' he said. 'That's good, that's very good. Don't disturb him.'"

We joined another group, where a plump, bouncy man, wearing a flowered tie, was saying to his companions, "Remember the time Nkrumah scolded Haile Selassie in the dorm for using jive talk?"

Puzzled, we asked when the Lion of Judah had attended Lincoln.

The others laughed. "That was just this fellow's nickname," said the man in the flowered tie. "Good old Haile Selassie. I forget his real name. He played football—came from New Jersey. I wonder what ever happened to him."

We had no chance to find out any more about Haile Selassie, for just then Kwame Nkrumah and his entourage came into the room, and everybody turned toward him and applauded. He responded with a broad grin and a wave of the hand, and then began moving around the room, shaking hands with all and greeting them affectionately. A man of medium size, he was not dressed in the colorful flowing kente in which he is often photographed but was wearing a gray business suit. From a thong about his wrist hung a red-and-brown striped can, which we were told is the insigne of a Nzima chieftain. Nkrumah has a serene, remarkably gentle face, the color of the cocoa his country grows, with a high forehead, rimmed by a cowl of black, fuzzy hair, which he says is his distinguishing characteristic. (He has written in his autobiography that whenever he wants to go incognito, he wears a cap that hides his forehead.) He is forty-eight, or perhaps forty-five; he doesn't know for sure, because in the mud-and-wattle village where he was born nobody kept an accurate record of infants' births. The only certainty about the date of his birth is that it took place on a Saturday; otherwise he wouldn't be called Kwame. If he had been born on a Friday, he would have been called Kofi, and if on a Sunday his name would have been Kwesi. He was, he thinks, about twenty-six when he left Africa to attend Lincoln University, which he had heard about while he was at the Prince of Wales College, in Achimota, on the Gold Coast. Before he left, his mother gave him a detailed account of his ancestry, demonstrating that he could lay claim to two Nzima chieftainships. He wrote down carefully everything she told him, and carried these genealogical notes with him all the time he was in America, until he lost them in a New York subway.

He was in the United States for ten years, during which he did postgraduate work at Lincoln, and also at the University of Pennsylvania. Having no resources, he held menial jobs in Harlem during the summers—fish peddler, laborer in a soap factory, dishwasher, waiter. There were times when he was so broke that he slept in the subways and got his meals and his haircuts at Father Divine's heavens. Inevitably, as a Negro, he encountered racial discrimination, but he recalls his years in the United States as an inspiration to him. In 1945, he went to England, where he began to agitate for West African liberation, and two years later he returned to his home country. He suffered a year in prison there, for sedition, before he came to power and won freedom for Ghana.

At the Waldorf reunion, Nkrumah moved about the room informally, bantering with some, clapping others on the back, breaking easily into laughter. He asked one of his old friends how many children he had now. When the friend replied "Four," Nkrumah struck his forehead and said, "I'm going to have to go some to catch up with you. I just got married last year, you know."

"I know," the other said, laughing. "Some of us had been wondering when you were going to get around to it."

"What ever became of old Bob?" somebody asked.

"He's in Ghana now," Nkrumah said. "Came over there a while ago and started an insurance company. He's doing well."

After about three-quarters of an hour of this, Nkrumah went to the front of the room to give an account of how things are going in Ghana. "I don't want to make a speech," he said. "I'm just going to talk the way we used to in our dormitory bull sessions."

When he had finished, someone called out "Let's sing the Alma Mater!" and the group began:

"Dear Lincoln,
Dear Lincoln,
Thy sons will e'er be true . . ."

As they sang, the Prime Minister stood with his eyes downcast, trying his best to remember his old school song. He didn't do especially well, but he came out loud and strong with "Hail hail Lincoln!" at the windup.

ment of our emphasis on African studies and research.

At first it might seem to some that this would tend to make us more racial and might be in conflict with the move toward integration. But for me integration does not mean the denial or even subordination of our Negro heritage and identity. On the contrary, I feel that whatever we have that is unique and different, on account of our experience and background, we should value as something we can contribute to the welfare and progress of the larger group as integration moves ahead. And because we happen to be a little different culturally we thereby become a little more valuable to the group.

I strongly urge, therefore, that we capitalize on our identification with the Negro peoples of Africa rather than discard this asset as we integrate. The same holds for Lincoln University. One of the things which impressed me most at the Centennial in 1954 was the presence of two graduates from South Africa who attended Lincoln before I was born. We should be proud of the fact that three of the first graduates became the first missionaries to Africa. The original name of this institution, Ashmun Institute, was in honor of the founder of the colony of Liberia, an 1873 graduate, Dr. Hood, served as minister to Liberia in an earlier generation, Dr. Lanier in recent years. Making history at the moment in Africa are our fellow alumni, Nkrumah in Ghana and Azikiwe in Nigeria. Other alumni who have been associated with African affairs at various times include Horace Mann Bond, Dr. Poindexter, G. Lake Imes, and many others whom you know only too well.

The development and spread of nationalism in Africa in recent years has been one of the most significant events of this century. It is the third and final social phenomenon which I wish to call to your attention as important in planning the future of Lincoln. For the past decade or two, the continent of Africa has taken on new significance in world affairs, not for the reasons which brought Africa into prominence in the eighteenth century as a source of valuable raw materials and cheap labor, but because Africa now represents a potential balance of power in the cold-war struggle between the East and the West for influence and support. If the West is seriously interested in the rights of the African peoples to independence and self-government, and wants to help them prepare for partnership in a democratic world, what more effective agency or channel could be found for helping to train leadership in western ideals and methods than our own Alma Mater?

The State Department in Washington claims that it is interested in helping the African nations in this way and would no doubt welcome such an instrumentality as an institution with a hundred years experience in the train-
Lincoln and the Years Ahead

...After the very revealing reaction to Nixon's "good-will" tour of South America, I would think that our State Department will soon be getting around to doing more than just talking. It is now only too clear that friends around the world in strategic locations can not be purchased through Lend Lease, Point IV, technical assistance and polished words.

The role that Lincoln can play in helping the African nations grow rapidly to full international stature and participation is a challenge as exciting and timely as John Miller Dickey's vision of such an institution as Lincoln in slavery days. In the same way that Lincoln has worked successfully in behalf of the integration of Negro Americans into American life, so she can now utilize her vast experience and corps of able African alumni to speed up the preparation of the African masses for full integration into the international free and self-governing world.

I will not attempt at this time to present views as to how we move into this exciting, new era. As your alumni historian I do hope that the picture I have given you of new possibilities for Lincoln in the future will incite you to assume a larger role than ever before in helping Lincoln to fulfill her destiny. She needs each and every one of her true and loyal sons. Let us not be prejudiced in accepting new concepts and ideas. We can all play a part in giving proper direction and impetus to the plans that are being developed.

We need not have to answer when it is asked of Lincoln "Where is she going?" — "No where." Or "What is she doing?" — "Nothing."

In June of 1958 Alexander B. Johnson, Jr., earned the L.L.B. degree from the Villanova Law School.

William L. Jones received the M.D. degree from the Meharry Medical College in June, 1958. Dr. Jones resides at 308 Pelham Rd., Philadelphia.

Russell F. Minton was graduated in June with honors from Howard University's School of Medicine in June. Dr. Minton is doing his internship at the Boston General Hospital, where he is specializing in surgery.

Charles E. Saxton has been appointed executive director of the Booker T. Washington Community Center in Altoona, Pa. Prior to his acceptance of his new position, Saxton was employed by the Department of Public Welfare as a social worker and the York Recreation Commission as a physical and social director.

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY FUND

New York, N. Y.

It has been an enigma to me since the establishment of the Lincoln University Fund why so few Lincoln men contribute to it.

With vast numbers of the alumni eminently financially successful in the various fields of medicine, dentistry, law, ministry, business, government, education and other fields too numerous to mention; yet, their names are strangely missing from this honor role.

I cannot visualize a valid reason for this omission from this group of alumni.

At all times and particularly in the present inflationary period, regular financial alumni support for the private endowed college is a prerequisite for its continued existence.

Unless this aid is forthcoming, I perceive no future for Lincoln except as a state-owned and operated institution restricted and segregated in all of its horizons.

Jacques Isler, '32

Durham, N. C.

It is less surprising that only a few Lincolnites have contributed large sums to the Lincoln University Fund than it is that many have given nothing, as the reports published in the Bulletin from time to time have shown. Perhaps there are those who, because they could not give thousands or hundreds, have not given tens. If there are, they should remember that tens and even units not only count but also mount. They may also be stimulated by the long-used campaign pronouncement of one of America's oldest and now wealthiest colleges; no gift is too small to be acknowledged and appreciated.

Presumably, all Lincolnites who vow in song that they "will e'er be true" to Alma Mater and that they love the "sacred soil" mean what they sing. Better than the singing would it be, however, for all to realize that truth and love become effective only when they are activated. If you love me, said one of the world's greatest teachers to one of his disciples, feed my sheep—by which he meant, I believe, having said that you love me, suit your actions to your words.

Some may be inclined to say that they paid their bills in full while they were students at Lincoln and that they, therefore, owe the institution nothing more. Such a point of view is questionable, to say the least. It is doubtful that any student ever pays for all that he gets, or at least should get, from a college—a doubt which is strengthened by the fact that no college worthy of the name can operate on students' fees alone. But with regard to students' paying the fees assessed against them, there is another point to be considered. It is dishonorable for one to shirk paying his debts, and conversely, for one to pay his debts is honorable, but not especially so. Everyone who can pay his debts should do so, and no one can claim any special honor for doing what everyone is duty-bound to do. Accordingly, an even moderately successful alumnus who has done no more for his alma mater than to pay the fees which were assessed against him while he was a student deserves no special notice for his love of the institution.

Anyway, whether one paid all of his fees directly, received scholarship aid, or was graduated on credit (a not unheard of idea in days of yore at Lincoln) is not now a matter of primary importance. That concerns only the Lincoln that was, whereas the concern of living Lincolnites should be the Lincoln of now and of the future. If this is our concern—and if it is not ours, whose else can it be?—if we "love every inch of thy sacred soil," if we are seriously interested in keeping Lincoln "supreme" in any worth-while sense, let us all translate the words of our Alma Mater into action by contributing to the Lincoln University Fund now. Let us all remember that no amount is too small to be acknowledged and appreciated.

cd in the local papers here concerning a donation which had been made to one of the Texas Universities by one of its graduates. Ordinarily a gift to a school does not attract much attention, but this one did. It was carried in all of the papers of this country, and probably in foreign countries as well. The size of the gift was what caused all of the publicity. The donor gave to this fortunate school more than a million dollars. I was very deeply impressed, and began to use my imagination about what any school could do with that amount of money. I also thought of what a grand thing it would be if Lincoln had an alumnus with the means and the willingness to make such a gift, and what Lincoln could do with that kind of money. However, that is beside the point for we do not have any one like that among our 3,200 members. But that does not excuse us from the duty of giving what we can each year. If all of us did that, it would not take long to reach the million. Think what that would mean to the school we love in improved facilities and service to generations who follow us. So, fellow Alumni, let us make giving what we can each year a part of our program. If we do that, we will prove our love for our "Alma Mater" rather than just saying and singing that we love her.

J. L. Mitchell, '24

New York, N. Y.

There is a great possibility that I will be charged with possessing righteous indignation and virtuous innocence in writing this letter. But it's true that I am in that small number who gave to the Fund last year. After looking over the list of contributors, I felt awfully lonesome. I'm talking about the Annual Giving Fund to Lincoln University.

Only about 125 of the more than 3200 alumni of "dear Lincoln" contributed to the Fund last year. That's about two per cent of the Alumni or the equivalent of two cents of a dollar. Why, you can't even mail a post-card for that!

More than ever, now is the time to "Pack up Rabble." We need to start anew and forget last year's record as a bad dream. We can do it by sending in, not two cents, but ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS to the Fund this year. Right now! This can be paid in convenient installments, so, fellow alumni, suppose we start by digging into our pockets, yours, that is, and sending whatever is in it to Lincoln.

Seriously though, there is a tremendous re-birth of the small colleges throughout the land and more and more alumni are giving to their Alma Mater. Lincoln has been counted in that vast number of small colleges which serve such a great purpose in educating the youth of this country and of the world. Let us do our part toward this grand renaissance. That means you and me.

Oren W. Riley, '33

The writer of this brief article wishes to make a statement concerning the poor showing which the alumni and supporters of Lincoln made in their giving toward the University Fund for the year 1957-58 as shown in the Summer Issue of the Bulletin. The total amount received from the group composed of 3,200 alumni and others was $6,360.50.

First of all, the writer thinks that the small contribution of the year might be attributed to at least two things: (a) It was a year of transition, change and unrest. Transition as to the administration; change in policy as to the admission of women as students in residence, and the discontinuance of the Theological Seminary; and, unrest on the part of many as to the why and how of the going out of office of the former president, and the lack of information as to the selection of a new leader of the University. (b) The writer believes that the poor showing of the alumni and supporters during the past year as a natural let down, a recession after the splendid giving of the men during the four years leading up to, and including the Centennial in 1954. We doubt whether any alumni group of any so-called Negro College in this country has ever exceeded the amount given by Lincoln men to their Alma Mater during a period of four years.

From another angle, the giving of such a small amount during last year... as well as in other years might be due to the following reasons: (a) The writer of these statements is a contributor to the Lincoln University Fund because he appreciates that which Lincoln did for him, and for the love and respect which he has for the University. However, he has never been approached by Lincoln men, neither within his area, nor anywhere else other than from the office at the University, to assist, or to contribute, or to take part in anything that pertains to Lincoln. Accordingly, a big job needs to be done by the elected or the appointed representatives of Lincoln in many of the areas and districts in which they live. There is work to be done toward reaching the alumni, the former students, the honorary alumni, the parents and wives of Lincoln men, and all those who would become contributing friends of the University, in one way or another. There is much gold in such mountains.

Lincoln is a good, a great and a strong small college, worthy of the support of her men and women. As she enters into this her new day, may her Sons e'er be true; keeping her in memory, and rising in their might, that she "mightest be supreme."

Professor Michael Scriven of the Department of Philosophy at Swarthmore College spoke to the members of the Philosophy Club on Wednesday, October 29, at 8:00 p.m. Speaking on "Science and the Supernatural," Professor Scriven dealt primarily with the scientific and philosophical implications of such unusual psychological phenomena as mental telepathy, clairvoyance, precognition, and extra-sensory perception.

CLASS NOTES

Nolvert P. Scott, who is now pursuing graduate study at Penn State, has been assigned to work on a project called the Pyramid Plan, which is an experiment to find out whether sociology students would do better work if they had an opportunity for discussion.

The majority of the Sociology I courses are taught over closed circuit TV with little or no student-teacher contact. The project is being backed by the institution and offers ten hours of graduate credit. Scott's mailing address is 513 W. College Ave., State College, Pa.

FACULTY NEWS

Dr. Elizabeth Beardsley, visiting professor of philosophy, has returned to the faculty after a year's leave of absence to collaborate on a book with her husband, Dr. Monroe Beardsley of the Swarthmore faculty.

NEW FACULTY MEMBERS

Mr. Dimberu Merriam, who has joined the faculty as instructor in business, is a native of Ethiopia and the holder of an under-graduate degree from an East Indian college. In 1957 he received his M. B. A. degree from the Wharton School of Finance in Philadelphia, where he is continuing work toward the doctorate.

Mr. Stanley Tsai, a 1958 graduate of Lafayette College, after spending two years at Lincoln, has returned to serve as an assistant in the Department of Physics.

Mr. Louis Putnam, who resides near Cochranville, has been employed to help with the overflow of students in literature courses in the Department of English. Mr. Putnam is a Yale graduate and has done advanced work in English at Yale. He is well known to the campus community for his activities with the Community Players.

Mrs. Grace Rivero, who has frequently taken classes in Freshman English, is again helping in the Department of English this year.
The CLASS OF 1924, Lincoln's greatest class, invites all regular Lincoln men of any class whatsoever to join its members in celebrating their 35th reunion at Commencement in 1959.

God saw fit to have Lincoln's 100th anniversary coincide with the memorable 30th reunion of the Class of '24. God has now seen fit to have the end of an era coincide with the 35th reunion of the Class of '24. This is truly a class of destiny.

June 1959 will be the last all-male Commencement. The women will arrive in September, 1959. A tent will be erected, as in 1954, and free beer will be provided for all good Lincoln men to cry in. We want you to be there, meet the great men of '24, listen to some of Lincoln's greatest raconteurs, and join in the songfests each evening, giving forth with that old Lincoln spirit which has become world renown.

Published quarterly for the friends and alumni of Lincoln everywhere.
Have You Remembered Lincoln University in Your Will?

FORM OF BEQUEST

To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $ to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
References to the new science building have already appeared in the Bulletin, but the press release which follows, and the accompanying architects' sketch, will tell the fuller story to many alumni for the first time. We believe you will share in our delight at the GSA allocation. It is our hope and expectation that the fine new facilities will encourage accomplishments in pre-engineering and pure science matching Lincoln's record in premedical training.

The story follows:

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY, PA.—The General State Authority has allotted Lincoln University $750,000 for a science building which will be erected on an east-west axis north of the present science building. The Authority will construct the building and hold title to it for a period of thirty years, during which time the Department of Public Instruction will lease the edifice to the University.

Forty-five pages of blueprints for the building have been drawn by Davis, Poole and Sloan, Philadelphia architects, and it is expected that final plans will receive the approval of the Commonwealth soon if ground is to be broken not later than the summer of 1959.

The new building will house the Departments of Physics, Chemistry, and Mathematics. The Department of Biology will take over the existing science building. In the new building three classrooms, two seminar rooms and a large auditorium-type lecture room, seating 200, will serve all departments. The main emphasis is on laboratories.

The Chemistry Department will have separate laboratories for general, analytical, physical and organic chemistry served by conveniently located stockrooms and balance rooms. The Physics Department will have two large laboratories for general and advanced physics, separated by an instrument and repair room. Smaller laboratories will be individually equipped for radio, electronics, optics, spectroscopy, X-ray analysis, photography and analog computing.

The Department of Mathematics will have a special computing room. An observatory and astronomical laboratory will be located at the top of the structure. The basement will contain storage rooms, an instrument, woodworking and glassblowing shop, and a "hot" laboratory for the handling of radioactive materials. A highly flexible distribution system will supply electrical services to all parts of the building.

John H. Ware, III, chairman of the Trustee Building Committee, views the award as an important first step in an ambitious and necessary program of expansion and renovation.
CALENDAR OF UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES

November 20—State Senator Harry Seyler addressed the University Assembly on “Civil Liberties in Pennsylvania.”

December 4—Mr. H. B. Jungman of the Civil Service Commission was the guest speaker at the University Assembly. His subject was “Career Opportunities in the Pennsylvania State Government.”

January 8—The International Students Association presented the Indian scholar Dr. N. G. D. Joardar at the University Assembly. Dr. Joardar spoke on international relations.

January 15—Mr. John Hobart, former field representative for Lincoln and now an administrator at the Moorestown (N.J.) Friends School, spoke on “Our Common Tongue” at the University Assembly.

THIRTY-FOUR OF THE NATION’S universities, colleges and schools in all parts of the country were honored last month “for distinguished achievement in the development of alumni support” as cash prizes and certificates were presented to the winners of the first Alumni Giving Incentive Awards Program. Announcements of the awards were made in Kansas City, Mo., at the 45th annual meeting of the Association of American Colleges. Top honors, in the form of the Grand Award and a check for $10,000, went to Texas A. and M. College in recognition of the record compiled by its 1957 alumni fund. Called upon to contribute for a campus chapel, scholarships and faculty achievement awards, 15,284 alumni of the college’s 31,200 graduates and former students responded. The participation figure of 48.9 per cent is the highest ever compiled for the alumni fund effort of a major tax-supported institution. The participating institutions competed for the awards in nine different classifications, a first-place certificate and check for $1,000 going to the leading college or school in each category. Texas A. and M., as the winner of the tax-supported university classification, was one of the nine which were then considered by the judges for the grand award and an additional $9,000 prize.

A GIFT OF $2,000,000 FOR SCHOLARSHIPS to help needy students in Harvard College has brought the Program for Harvard College to a total of more than $55,000,000. The donor, who held a scholarship himself while in college, wishes to remain anonymous. In a letter to Dr. Nathan Pusey, the president of Harvard, he wrote: “The gift is from one who depended upon scholarship aid almost entirely for his years at college and is regarded by him as only a partial payment on the value of these years to him.” The $2,000,000 endowment for scholarships is the largest single gift from an individual to the Program for Harvard thus far. According to Harvard’s president, the program has helped to make possible higher faculty salaries, has supplied increased resources for financial aid to students, and, above all, has provided heartening evidence of alumni concern for the college and of a determination on the part of many that the most pressing needs of both students and faculty will be met.

THE AMERICAN COUNCIL ON EDUCATION has embarked on a major effort to help the colleges and universities in the solution of what is generally recognized as the most critical problem in higher education—the need for qualified college teachers. Supported by a grant from the Ford Foundation, the Council is distributing free 175,000 copies of “College Teaching as a Career,” a booklet which offers the testimony of such noted teachers and writers on education as Mark Van Doren, Reuben G. Gustavson, T. V. Smith, and Fred M. Hechinger. The Council’s program is designed to supplement programs with the same objective sponsored by many other governmental and non-governmental agencies.
Americans are assured that they have the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness in a document they fought for and greatly revere—the Declaration of Independence.

A college president recently “updated” this Jeffersonian pronouncement by contending that Americans should have the right to life, liberty and learning.

All of us concerned with higher education will accept this 20th century revision. But some of us are worried about whether all intellectually able youngsters will have a chance to get the learning they need, at least at the collegiate level, in the next decade.

Indeed, it seems to me that the opportunity many of our able young people will have to obtain higher education will depend largely on how effective you members of the American Alumni Council are in the years immediately ahead.

Americans have been giving lip service to the value of trained intelligence for a long time. They like to chatter about the essentiality of education for all who can profit from it. But do they really mean what they say?

In the special alumni magazine supplement, “American Higher Education. 1958,” which members of your Council prepared, we read these words of Alfred North Whitehead: “In the conditions of modern life, the rule is absolute: the race which does not value trained intelligence is doomed.”

To put it my way: In this turbulent Age of Missiles, if we neglect learning, we may lose both our liberty and our lives.

I don't phrase it this way just to be rhetorical. I truly and sincerely believe it. I became convinced of it long before the Sputniks began beeping their way through the heavens. I have been talking and writing in this vein ever since I returned from a very revealing trip to Russia in August 1958. It was in that year, you will remember, that the Kremlin first cautiously opened the Iron Curtain a trifle and a few Americans got through. But it was not until after October 4 of last year — when Sputnik I made its dramatic appearance — that most Americans became aware that the Kremlin is now pinning its faith on education as the means of achieving industrial superiority and furthering its plan of world domination.

Let's make no mistake about it: Russia has made amazing progress in education. Her emphasis on education does represent a great threat to this country.

I am not advocating that we copy Russia's system of education. This would be a grave error. Russia apparently has developed a good system to train the technicians and scientists needed by a totalitarian society. But in that Kremlin-ruled society the state is omnipotent and supreme, and the individual is but a pawn on the Politburo’s chessboard, to be sacrificed as it suits the whims of the party. By contrast, America has developed a system of education to free the minds of 170,000,000 people and to provide them with the knowledge and understanding they need in a society which glorifies the individual and maintains the state as his servant.

It would be tragic for us to copy Russia's system of education. But it will be far more tragic for us if we don't follow Russia's lead in providing the funds education needs to give our teachers and researchers the status, prestige and standard of living they deserve.

What you have heard about the relative status of the Russian teacher is true. The "egghead" is respected and honored in the Soviet Union.

What you have heard about Russia's determination to finance education is true. The U.S.S.R. devotes about 7% of its Gross National Product to education, as compared to our 4%.

The lavishness with which Russia supports higher education is evidenced in its physical plant. The great Palace of Science of the University of Moscow, for example, cost $300 million — more than is invested in any single American university plant.

Important as are the bricks and mortar of a college campus, we realize that the strength of an institution is dependent primarily on the distinction of its faculty. In comparison with the Russians we are guilty of having made our college professors second-class citizens. The U.S. Office of Education study of college professors' salaries discloses that in 1956-57 the average annual salary paid to teachers in 1,150 colleges and universities was just $6,120. The average paid to full professors was about $7,500.

In Russia the full professor's salary of 6,000 rubles per month, or about $600, is several times that of the engineer or the doctor or the industrial worker. If we paid our professors the same relative amounts, they would earn $25,000 annually.

But we are not aiming that high. President Eisenhower's Committee on Education Beyond the High School, pointing to the growing shortage in teaching talent, advocates that the average level of faculty salaries be doubled within the next five to ten years. Is that high enough? The average tire builder in the rubber plants in Akron earns more than the $6,120 paid as the all-American average for professors. This is not to say that the tire builder does not deserve his high wages, but it does emphasize that our college teachers must have higher salaries if we want trained intelligence as much as we want good tires.

If we hope to keep the doors of higher learning open and the academic standards high, we shall have to spend more. We cannot get by on our accumulated intellectual fat much longer.

For example, to pick one field, how much longer can we rely on the know-how and inventive genius of European scientists? We well remember that we are indebted to German, Italian and Danish scientists for the development of the atom bomb, and more recently of rockets and missiles. Where would we be today if Wernher von Braun, Edward Teller or Ernest Steinhoff had decided to settle in another country? Where would we be if the Army's "Operation Paperclip," designed to bring West European scientists to this country, had failed?

We are tops in developing and exploiting the results of basic research. We lag in the more important pioneering work of discovering new knowledge, in making scientific breakthroughs. We pour money into developmental research; we starve experimentation in pure science.

It costs American taxpayers, I am told, about $100,000,000 every time we launch an Explorer or a Vanguard. We do not begrudge this expenditure.

We are troubled about the turnover in our armed forces. A recently proposed plan to reduce this turnover will cost many millions of dollars, but we don't begrudge the expenditure of these millions.

But, I ask you, when are we going to get a plan to induce able college teachers to remain in their classrooms and laboratories rather than to succumb to the blandishments of industry and federal agencies?

In the same report in which it advocated higher faculty salaries, the President's Committee warned that "world peace and the survival of mankind may well depend upon the way in which we educate the citizens and leaders of tomorrow."

Yes, we mouth such statements now. "What happens to American education will ultimately happen to America." And we talk a good game about the financial plight of our colleges and universities and the necessity of increasing faculty salaries. But presently we are spending each year:

- for tobacco $5,700,000,000
- for liquor 9,400,000,000
- for medical care 12,100,000,000
- for higher education 3,000,000,000

At the helm of the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Los Angeles, Cal., since 1913, the Rev. Hampton B. Hawes announced his retirement in December as pastor, ending what is believed to be the longest continuous service in the annals of the Los Angeles Presbytery.

Eulogized for his many years of service to the community through his association with Mercy-Douglass Hospital, Judge Herbert E. Millen was feted recently at a luncheon given by the hospital board at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia. Judge Millen had served as president of the board for ten years, and previous to that he had been president for two years. In all Judge Millen had been on the board of the institution for 24 years. He has announced his engagement to Mrs. Madeline Green of White Plains, N. Y. No wedding date has been set.

The Board of Public Judges of the Common Pleas Courts of Philadelphia has elected E. Washington Rhodes, publisher of The Philadelphia Tribune, and a member of the Philadelphia Bar, to fill the vacancy on the Board of Public Education for the School District of Philadelphia. Rhodes has been active in local civic affairs since 1922, when he became editor of The Philadelphia Tribune.

"The Urban League is an interracial, social work organization, dedicated to strengthening the weak areas in the minority community so that they may be absorbed in the common culture of the American society, and may have the opportunity to cooperate for the common good of all." Such was the foreword to the annual report given by George B. Winston, executive secretary of the Springfield Urban League, whose guiding hand has steered the League to the position where it now stands as an inspiration to good citizenship, not only in Springfield, Ill., but everywhere; and the work achieved through his efforts and that of his cohorts can very well serve as a pattern for other communities to follow.

Except for two trips to Philadelphia on University business and attendance with Messrs. William Cole, Henry Cornwell, Thomas Jones, Paul Lunt and Austin Scott at a special meeting of the Board of Trustees, at the Hotel Warwick on January 9, Dr. A. O. Grubb, the acting president of Lincoln, remained rooted to the campus during November and December.

Dean Harold F. Grim, dean of the University, and Dean J. B. MacRae, dean of students, attended the National Conference on Pre-professional Education at Buck Hill Falls, Pa., November 9-12. Sponsored by the John and Mary R. Markle Foundation, the conference drew representatives from liberal arts colleges and medical schools from all over the country. Along with Dr. DeForest Rudd, professor of chemistry, and Mr. Donald Yelton, University librarian, Dean MacRae attended the Annual Conference of the Pennsylvania State Education Association at Harrisburg November 14-15. Dean MacRae served as chairman of one of the panels.

On November 28 and 29 Dean Leroy D. Johnson, dean of the College, attended the 72nd Annual Conference of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and the meeting of the Eastern Association of College Deans and Advisors to Students in Atlantic City, N. J.

Professor Manuel Rivero, athletic director, and Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, director of public relations, attended the meeting of the Eastern College Athletic Conference in New York December 11-12. One section of the conference, attended by Dr. Farrell, was for sports information directors. During the last week of January Dr. Farrell, who is also professor of English, attended Temple University's 1959 Annual Reading Institute, designed to help in the development of remedial reading programs.

Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, associate professor of classics, has announced the partial solution of the Phaistos Disk, a famous and unique tablet found on the island of Crete in 1908 and belonging stratigraphically to the Middle Minoan period of about 1650 B.C. Thus far it had resisted all attempts by many scholars to penetrate its secrets. By a combination of cryptanalytic and linguistic methods, Dr. Schwartz succeeded in obtaining one sure entry into the pictographic script, and then identified 23 of the 45 signs on the disk. He is positive that the object is Cretan, in sharp contrast to most scholars, who have held it to be of non-Cretan provenience. His results appear to be incontrovertible and demonstrate that the script is genetically related to the linear scripts of Crete, that the language is pre-Homeric dialect of Greek, that the context is a sacred itinerary, and that the tablet itself was a matrix for printing its texts on other materials.

A paper announcing these results was presented by Dr. Schwartz to the Lincoln University faculty and to a linguistic colloquium specially convened at the University of Pennsylvania. In both places immediate and enthusiastic acceptance of the thesis was obtained. The paper will appear as the leading article in the April 1959 issue of the Journal of Near Eastern Studies, a publication of the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago. In the earlier stages of his study, Dr. Schwartz also presented a portion of his thesis (the initial breakthrough) in the summer of 1958 at Brandeis University, where he was attending a post-doctoral seminar on Mediterranean archaeology.

Dr. Thomas Jones, associate professor of history, completed the last of a series of seven television programs over WFIL-TV in Philadelphia on January 13. The series, which began on November 18, was entitled "Culture of the Middle Ages." Assisting Dr. Jones were Dr. Elizabeth Beardsley, visiting professor of philosophy; Dr. Hubert Ross, assistant professor of sociology; Mr. Orrin C. Suthern, professor of music; and Mr. Walter Waring, assistant professor of French. On the opening program culture was defined, and subsequent programs dealt with music in the Middle Ages, Francois Villon, Thomas Aquinas and his philosophy, feudalism, the Bayeux tapestry, and me-

Integration and coeducation proceed apace at Lincoln as shown by the above scene in the reading room of the library. The white and Negro coeds are Mrs. Helen Soliwoda (l.) and Charlotte Styer. The white male students are Howard D. Rodgers, (seated next to Miss Styer); Bela Nemeth, a Hungarian refugee, (l.) and Chester A. Miller, a commuting student from nearby Oxford. The Negro males are George F. Neal (by window) and Norman H. Trueheart (back to camera). At the present time women students live off campus.

On Monday, November 17, at 8:00 p.m. the Philosophy Club presented Dr. Donald Davies, a member of the Seminary faculty, who spoke on “Differences between Greek and Hebrew Thought.” Dr. Davies described the ways in which the Greek conception of the cosmos differed from the Hebrew conception. On December 10 Dr. Donald W. Rogers of St. John’s College spoke to the club on “Pragmatism: the Philosophy of America.” From his discussion with various members of the organization, it became obvious that most Americans are pragmatists. The members of the club met on January 13 to discuss the subject “Naturalistic Humanism and Christianity.” After the topic had been introduced by a panel of students consisting of David Kent, James Kimani, William Eichelberger, and Matei Markwei, a lively discussion followed. Chapman Bouldin acted as moderator.

Dr. Walter H. Klein, chairman of the Department of Industrial Administration at Villanova University, was the guest speaker at the Tuesday, December 9, meeting of the Political Science (Continued on Page 16)
The Seminary

Appropriately concluding 1958 activities in the Seminary was the Annual Christmas Party sponsored by the Seminary Anns on December 15 in the New Guest House. An informal setting encouraged many impromptu games, skits, and other forms of entertainment. Fellowship was at a high peak as the participants attempted to observe the real meaning of Christmas in combination with the joy of Christian socializing.

Guest speakers for daily devotions in the Seminary Chapel have been Dr. Richard Oman and Dr. C. Hans Evans, who "shepherd" two of the largest congregations in this area, Oxford and Coatesville respectively. The year 1959 promises an even greater opportunity for devotional fellowship, with representatives of the Nazarene, Methodist, Baptist, and Episcopal churches.

On January 30 the various Boards of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. welcomed students in the Eastern seminaries to view their function and organization. Seniors went to the National Missions Board in New York; middlers, to the Christian Education Board in Philadelphia; and juniors, to the Foreign Missions Board in New York. On the same day the Seminary was host to faculty members from the seminaries in the Philadelphia area, the third annual meeting of this kind. The program dealt with the topic "Truth and Love."

Anderson Porter, a middler in the Seminary, has succeeded Samuel Young, '58s, as student pastor of the Second United Presbyterian Church in West Chester, Pa. Porter, who formerly served as student assistant to the Rev. Shelton Waters, '45s, has had much experience in working with people, and this, coupled with his great zeal, promises success in his new position.

• In order to encourage college and university graduates to continue their studies and pursue work toward an advanced degree, the Department of English of The Ohio State University offers two types of graduate aid:

1. The Graduate Assistantship permits the student to devote approximately two-thirds of his time to graduate study in English and related subjects (10 to 12 credit hours per quarter). He teaches two classes during one quarter of the academic year, and one class during each of the other two quarters. The Graduate Assistantship carries a stipend of $1,629, payable in nine monthly installments. The graduate assistant is required to pay the necessary fees, amounting to $90 per quarter, plus the matriculation fee of $15 and the dissertation fees of $14.25 for the M.A. degree and $44.25 for the Ph.D. degree. For graduate assistants who are not residents of Ohio, the non-resident fee of $125 per quarter will be waived.

2. The Assistantship permits the student to carry from one-third to two-thirds of a full load of graduate study. He teaches two classes per quarter during the three quarters of the academic year. The Assistantship carries a stipend of $2,430, payable in nine monthly installments. The assistantship is required to pay the fees indicated above. Preference will be given to applicants who have taken some postgraduate work (an M.A. degree or its equivalent is desirable) or who have had teaching experience.

Since the English Department normally makes the majority of its appointments early in the spring, candidates for Assistantships are advised to submit their formal applications early. Application forms may be obtained by writing to the Chairman, Department of English, The Ohio State University, Columbus. 10, Ohio. The Graduate School of the Ohio State University offers a limited number of Scholarships and Fellowships which have a value of $1,500 to $1,800 and carry no departmental duties. Inquiries about these positions should be addressed directly to the Dean of the Graduate School, The Ohio State University.

• The State Civil Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is seeking social workers to fill the following positions: caseworker, public assistance caseworker, child welfare worker, caseworker for the blind, psychiatric caseworker, medical social worker, rehabilitation counselor, parole agent, and corrections caseworker. In general the positions call for some knowledge of the basic principles of economics, sociology, psychology and other social sciences and of the current social, economic and health problems; some knowledge of individual and group behavior and effective ways of working with people; ability to understand and accept the needs and rights of others and to work with adults and children who are physically, mentally and emotionally handicapped; and ability to adequately express ideas orally and in writing and to interpret laws and regulations; ability to work successfully with people and aid them to grow in the constructive use of their capacities; and ability to establish and maintain effective working relationships with other staff and with outside agencies and institutions. Applicants should have such training as may have been gained through graduation from a four-year college or university, supplemented by two years of graduate study in an approved school of social work or any equivalent combination of experience and training. Lincoln 16—St. Paul 6

On November 8, 1958, the Lions traveled to Lawrenceville, Va., to be the Homecoming Day guests of the St. Paul Tigers. Lincoln trailed 6-0 at the end of the first half, but rallied in the third period to go ahead 8-6; and then with one minute and 40 seconds remaining in the game, they scored again, thus recording their first victory of the season.

In the second quarter, with the ball on St. Paul's 33 yard line, the Tigers' Reginald Smith of Farmville, Va., passed to Willie Rennick of Mount Vernon, N. Y. on the fifty, who in turn, galloped the remaining 50 yards for a 67 yard touchdown play.

Lincoln took the field in the second half, determined to pull the game out of the fire. In 9 plays, they marched from their own 35 to St. Paul's 12, from where Whitney Walker of Darby, Pa., carried it over for the touchdown. Quarterback Jonathan Latimer of Washington, D. C. slanted off-tackle, for the two-point conversion and the Lions led 8-6. The last minute score came after Granville Glasco of Hempstead, N. Y., intercepted a pass on the 50 and raced to the St. Paul 1. On the first play, he carried it over for the score. Latimer again hit the line for a two-point conversion.

Shaw 54—Lincoln 8

On November 15, on a rain-swept Randall Field, the Lions were host to the Shaw "Bears" who scored in every period and defeated Lincoln 54-8.

Shaw's first tally came after the first five minutes of play when Lincoln was forced into a punting situation on their own 22. Drexiel Reid's (Philadelphia Pa.) pass from center was high — over Glasco's head, and Shaw's Manny McNair proceeded to fall on it in the end zone for a safety. Just three plays later, Shaw scored their first touchdown as Nat Lewis sprinted around end for 17 yards.

Shaw rolled up 36 points before Lincoln tallied and that was in the third quarter. Dave Gardner (Pittsburgh, Pa.) received a kickoff on his 21 and marched to the 46. On the second play from scrimmage, Jon Latimer passed 38 yards to William King (Newark, N. J.) where at that point, interference was called and the ball was moved 15 more yards to the 1. On the second play, Latimer went over for the touchdown. Latimer passed to Whit Walker for the extra points and Shaw led 36-8. Shaw then proceeded to score 18 more points, one touchdown being a 57 yard kickoff return by Phillip Jackson.

The Lions were unable to move against the Bears on the ground as their net of 1 yard against Shaw's total of 358 proves. Their only effectiveness was through the air as they completed six out of 18 passes for 95 yards.

Howard 40—Lincoln 0

On November 22, the two old rivals met for the 53rd time at Howard Stadium in Washington, D. C. Paced by their sophomore quarterback, Charlie Smith and freshman halfback, Howard Williams, the Bisons rolled over the Lions, 40-0.

The first quarter was scoreless, but Howard set the stage for the initial touchdown in the second period as Williams wiggled his way 26 yards for a first down on the Lincoln 35 as the quarter ended. This was the first invasion of Lincoln territory by Howard.

Two exchanges of punts, which followed early in the second quarter, gave Lincoln the ball on its own 16; and when fullback Ernest Parker (Bridgeport, Conn.) fumbled, Howard recovered and proceeded to capitalize on it. Three plays later, Smith passed over the line from the 16 to Leon Armours, who hauled it in for the touchdown.

Lincoln’s furthest penetration into Bison territory came in the last quarter with three minutes remaining in the game. An interference ruling gave the Lions possession of the ball on Howard’s 30. Donald Clark (Belmar, N. J.) passed to Leonard Lockley (Springfield, Mass.), for a first down on the 10. From here Lincoln moved to the Bisons’ 3, but was held on downs.

The victory was the most decisive Howard has scored over Lincoln since 1920, when they won 42-0. The series now stands at 23-20-9 and one no contest all in favor of Howard.

CROSS COUNTRY

On November 8, the Lions traveled to Bowie State and defeated them for the second time, 21-36. Robert Betz (Philadelphia, Pa.) took first place honors with Eddy Williams (Wayne, Pa.), taking a close second.

On November 11, Lincoln took part in the C.I.A.A. championship meet which was run at Howard University in Washington, D. C. Lincoln tied with Morgan State for team honors. Individual honors went to James Joyner of Delaware State College, who placed first in the meet, followed by James Kimani (Nairobi, Kenya) of Lincoln. The Lions’ Eddy Williams, Robert Betz and David Walker (Philadelphia, Pa.) placed 5, 7 and 8 respectively. The score was Lincoln 40—Morgan 40 — Cheyney STC 29 — Delaware State 114 — Bowie State 120 and Howard University 125. Lincoln will have the team trophy for the first six months with Morgan taking possession of it for the last six months.

The Lions ended the season as host to the Bisons from Howard University on November 15. With Robert Betz and Eddy Williams taking first and second places, respectively, Lincoln defeated Howard 19-42.

The Lions also were participants in the IC4A invitational meet run in New York City on November 17. Lincoln finished 18 in a field of 35 schools. The Lions ended their successful season with an 8-1 record. Adding to that record, Lincoln tied for first place in the C.I.A.A. championship, emerging from the 1958 season as one of the \( \times \) cross country teams among small colleges in the East.

SOCCER

The Lions played their last two games in losing causes; the first as guests of Philadelphia Textile on November 8 (4-1), and the second as host to Howard University on November 15 (7-1). Lincoln’s only goals were scored by Abu Fadika, Sierra Leone, West Africa, in the former and Leonard Mbogua, Nairobi, Kenya, in the latter. Fadika emerged as the team’s leading scorer with a total of five goal for the season. The squad season record was three wins and 7 losses. As was the case in the 1957 season, lack of depth in the squad was the primary reason for Lincoln’s poor showing.

As of this writing, the Lions have a 4-9 record with ten games remaining in the season. Co-captain Edward Harris (Phila., Pa.) is leading the team in scoring with 184, an average of 14.2 points a game. Freshman Harry Hook, a 6' 4" center from New York City is leading the team in rebounds, averaging 15 a game. James Jenkins, a freshman from Newark, N. J., is second in points scored with 163 and is averaging 10 rebounds a game.

WRESTLING

Coach Robert Gardner's wrestling squad should be strong contenders for the C.I.A.A. championship this year. Its 1-2-1 record thus far is not an indication of the talent that the squad is loaded with. The return of 1958's 115 pound C.I.A.A. champion, Johnny Haines (Pittsburgh, Pa.), 1957's 177 pound C.I.A.A. champion, Dave Gardner (Pittsburgh, Pa.), and veteran Carl "Piggy" Barnes (Reading, Pa.) has strengthened the squad considerably. The squad's only victory thus far this year has been against Virginia State, winner of the 1958 C.I.A.A. championship.

HIGHER LEARNING

Enough of this background. What must we do now to assure life, liberty and higher learning for our people? What must you do? And what must our alumni do?

I have observed the splendid progress the alumni movement has been making in this country since 1933, and I believe organized alumni activity has been a powerful force in improving American higher education.

Just 25 years ago I attended my first American Alumni Council Conference, at Northwestern University in Evanston. There were 65 alumni officials present. I had taken over the alumni secretaryship at my alma mater just a few months earlier — on the very day the newly-elected Franklin Roosevelt declared a bank holiday! Three years later I arranged an AAC Conference in Cincinnati, although by then I had left the alumni office for an academic and administrative assignment.

12, to dependents of military and civilian personnel stationed overseas. Approximately 75% of the position vacancies for the school year 1959-1960 will be in the elementary grades. Teachers are needed in Bermuda, England, France, Germany, Japan, Philippine Islands, and Spain. The tour of duty is twelve months (nine months of school, travel to and from the overseas area, and possible summer employment), and the approximate gross monthly salary for elementary and secondary teachers is $415. In some overseas areas appointees will be eligible to receive foreign post differentials. Transportation is furnished to and from the overseas assignment, and free living quarters or housing allowance provided. The age limits are 23 to 60, and the applicant must take a physical examination. All candidates must have a Bachelor's degree and at least two years of teaching experience. Form 57, "Application for Federal Employment," may be obtained from the Civilian Personnel Office of any Air Force installation or from the U.S. Civil Service Commission or any post office. All applications should be sent to the United States Air Force, Overseas Placement Office, Philadelphia Air Procurement District, 1411 Walnut Street, Philadelphia 2, Pa.

Club. Speaking on the subject "Is Business Democratic?" Dr. Klein cited concrete examples of the progress of democratic business. Two weeks later, on January 14, a panel consisting of a faculty wife, Mrs. Louise Hill; a faculty member, Mr. James Frankowsky; and two students, Philip Mann and Russell Richards, weighed the question "Is the Lincoln (Male) Student Ready for Coeducation?" From the lively debate that followed, during which many students voiced their opinions, a consensus seems to be that the majority of Lincoln students are not in favor of coeducation.

The members of the Lincoln University Players presented their first production of the year in the Little Theatre at 8:15 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday, December 8 and 9. Entitled The Prisoner, the play had three main characters, The Cardinal (Ray Spriggs), The Interrogator (Philip Mann) and The Warder (Howard Williams). Lesser roles were played by Richard Terry, Edward Payne, and Edward McGee. The play is a tense and absorbing account of a duel between two men of diametrically opposed beliefs. The overplot is represented in a struggle between a totalitarian government and a cardinal.

The Glee Club presented its Annual Christmas Concert in the Chapel at 8:15 p.m. on Friday, December 12, in conjunction with the presentation of The Second Shepherd's Play by the Community Players. After the program the members of the Glee Club led a procession of carolers to the lighting of the Christmas tree on the campus.

The Y.M.C.A. Cabinet presented two films on campus on Tuesday, December 16. At 7:00 p.m. Hans Christian Anderson's "The Little Match Girl" was shown for the village and campus children, and at 8:30 p.m. Laurence Olivier's production of Shakespeare's "Richard III" enthralled a large audience of adults and children.

The Chess Club presented the famous chess master Nicholas Rossolimo in a demonstration of chess wizardry in the New Guest House at 8:00 p.m. on Thursday, January 8. Mr. Rossolimo gave a simultaneous exhibition of skill against a number of opponents at the same time.

The Chemistry Club presented Mr. Ernest Bouey, a former student at Lincoln, at its meeting on Thursday, January 15, at 7:30 p.m. Now associated with General Electric and very much interested in space technology, Mr. Bouey talked on the subject "Space Technology."

In answer to alumni demand the Office of Public Relations has secured two types of mugs as pictured above. They may be used as ornaments or for the serving of beverages. The short mug sells for $1.75 ($2.00 by mail) and the tall one for $3.00 ($3.25 by mail). Prices are slightly cheaper in quantities of six or more by mail. Checks or money orders should be made out to The Office of Public Relations and marked "For mugs." Allow about six weeks for delivery.

Dr. Marcus W. Moore, Sr., associate chief of surgery, Provident Hospital, Baltimore, Md., presented a paper on chest surgery at a recent meeting of the Maryland Medical Association. By means of color slides and motion pictures made at operations, he demonstrated a series of interesting chest cases in the various categories of lung and heart surgery. In August Dr. Moore presented a paper on "Complications from Severe Chest Injuries" at the National Medical Association in Milwaukee.

Book Notes

Tambourines to Glory is the story of two attractive Harlem tenement women, Laura Reed and Essie Belle Johnson, who start their own gospel church on a street corner. Essie honestly desires to help people, but Laura is only interested in the money she can get to take care of her boy friend. The church prospers beyond all expectations and moves from the street corner to a reconstructed brownstone house and finally to a condemned theater. The Reed sisters are so successful that they move into a swank apartment to which Essie brings her daughter from the South and Laura her new boy friend, Big-Eyed Buddy, handsome front man for a numbers ring. When Buddy shows his true colors to Laura, she stabs him to death and blames the murder on Essie. It would be criminal to reveal the ending of Hughes' authentic novel of Negro life in Harlem.

The work is in no sense an attack on organized religion, or on cults as such, but it is a fictional expose of certain ways in which religion is misused in many communities by various types of unscrupulous leaders who might be called "gospel racketeers," preying upon the gullibility of simple people. But after you have read the book you can decide the merits of this statement which serves as a kind of foreword: "All the characters and situations depicted in this novel are entirely imaginary. All names used as participants in this story are fictitious, and any relation to persons living or dead is purely coincidental."

Letters

I have just returned from five weeks in Europe where, among other things, I had an opportunity to read my poems to several French intellectual groups and give my entire prejudiced views on Abstract Poetry and the Negro Artist. Since Nkrumah has received a most attentive press in France, Lincoln is well known there as his University and I was allowed to bask in the notoriety of that fact. Since I was looked to as an authority on modern verse and a Negro prophet of the abstract, I was ruthless in my suppression of all reference to the other black poets who write in the idiom of obscurity, unless they, too, were Lincoln men. Chester County is now regarded as a vav of creative tumult and Intellectual Revolution, as well as the shaper of new socio-political visions in Africa.

Last March, I was invited by the Law School of Yale University to preside as Chief Justice over the Spring Session of its annual Moot Court of Appeals, part of the training laboratory for its Law students. Following the arguments of various leading cases, I conducted a seminar in Constitutional due process. This was a very exciting task since many of the students who interested themselves in this challenging area of the law were Southerners caught in the midst of an era which is chopping away at the awkward superstructure of their fathers' way of life. We often discuss brainwashing as a remote stratagem of hypnotic propaganda; but it is a striking impression to see the White Southerner afloat in the emotional depths of ancestor gospel while fighting the rational tides of reason which seek to interpret our Constitution.

I have been invited to return again this March, but am now in the midst of tentative plans which may take me to Japan with clients. Since I have never been West of Lincoln University, I may be persuaded to take the trip. My invitation to Yale came about as the result of my being of counsel in a celebrated civil rights case which arose under New York's Law Against Dis-

Dear Dr. Grubb,

Your recent letter soliciting funds for the School stimulated my thinking, and I have decided to ask for a few minutes of your time to present some of these rough ideas.

In my opinion, there are two principal reasons why only 7% of our alumni contributed to Lincoln University last year:

1. Lack of personal stimulation
2. Lack of "competitive" spirit

Thus, I feel that an alumnus would be much more likely to contribute if

1. he were contacted by one of his personal friends, and if
2. he knew that his gift would help his class (or local alumni club) to become a leader in this respect.

I feel that these two obstacles would be overcome if our School adopted the following program, which, incidentally, is quite similar to that of the Harvard Business School. The B-School generally enjoys a better than 50% annual participation.

The School (or the Alumni Association) would appoint a "Chief Class Agent" for each alumni class. Classes with 5 or fewer living alumni may be combined for this purpose (e.g. one Agent for '90-'95, etc.).

This Chief Agent, in his turn, would appoint Agents, each one of whom would be responsible for the contributions of 7-10 of his own classmates. Ideally, the "offers" and their agents would reside in the same geographical area.

The campaign would be conducted on a once a year basis. Each agent would contact those assigned him either until they do contribute or refuse to do that.

The contributions would be mailed to the School and acknowledged over your signature. A copy of each acknowledgment would be mailed to the concerned agent and Chief Agent.

Each alumni bulletin would show the "standing" of each class by indicating the percentage of contributors. After the close of each campaign, an appendix to the Bulletin would print the names of all those who gave during the preceding year, and the names (and pictures) of the winning (and runner-up) Agents and Chief Agents.

The entire campaign would be conducted with a different attitude. Rather than stressing "charity," it should be pointed out that the alumnus is repaying a debt to the School, repaying it out of a salary which is higher than it would have been if he did not attend Lincoln University. In this connection, at least initially, it may be desirable to furnish sample letter(s) to be used by the agents in their contact work.

The creation of such a campaign like this will, without doubt, require considerable effort on the part of many people. However, the time spent, I feel, would be worthwhile not only because it would help to increase the amount contributed and the proportion of givers, but generally because it would help to revitalize the alumni body.

While, unfortunately, my free time is quite limited at present, I shall be delighted to assist you in any manner in this respect.

Since I have just started working a few months ago, you will have to excuse the size of my contribution. I shall try to do better as the time progresses.

Sincerely,
Victor L. Cole, '54

FORM OF BEQUEST

To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $______ to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
The convocation of the United Negro College Fund April 10-12 afforded an opportunity to meet Lincoln alumni living in Indianapolis. Attorney Marion R. Perry, Jr., '12, met me at a lavish Smorgasbord supper held Saturday evening at the Fair Grounds by the interalumni council, and we were soon joined by Sea H. Ferguson, '25, and Mrs. Ferguson and by Joseph C. Williams, '32. From the Fair Grounds we went to the attractive house of Dr. L. Randle Young, '30, a home rich in Booth Tarkington associations and which has as its tutelary genius a friendly boxer named Stubby (dog, not pugilist). Other guests there included Charles M. Hayes, '13, and Mrs. Hayes, Mrs. Williams, Emory A. James, '16, and Landrum Shields, '49. Our Indianapolis representatives are as alert as they are personable, and after regaling me with tales of an older Lincoln they fired more questions about the new Lincoln than I could answer. Following the enjoyable party at Dr. Young's, Mr. Williams took Mr. Perry and me to an all-night restaurant in the heart of the city, where our urbane host was greeted on all sides; finally, at 4:00 a.m., it occurred to us that it might be time to go home or hotelward. It was heartwarming to find that neither time nor distance has diminished the group's loyalty to the University, although the remoteness of Indiana from Chester County and the abundance of good local education make it hard to induce students to come east. Incidentally, our Hoosier outpost sent me away with some generous contributions to Annual Giving. To Calvin H. Raulerson, '43, of UNCF's New York office, goes a large share of the credit for organizing the convocation, which was outstandingly successful.

Random Notes

It will come as a relief to some alumni and a disappointment to others that the plan for residential coeducation in September, 1959 has been postponed. As we reckoned the cost of remodeling Houston Hall for not more than twenty-five women, and of the new administrative salaries which would be incurred, it became evident that the expenses could in no wise be offset by tuition. Therefore we will not undertake to lodge women on the campus until we can do so in a women's dormitory . . . The Middle States Association team has long since come and gone. We shall not know until May about our revaluation; we are pleased that the Association sent a blue-ribbon group, headed by President Carter Davidson of Union College, to inspect and appraise us. Lincoln has been fully accredited since 1922; periodic revaluations are routine . . . At the April meeting of the American Oriental Society in Ann Arbor, Michigan, our professor of classics, Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, was given more than an hour to read his paper on the Phai stos Disk, as against the fifteen minutes allotted to other scholars . . . Ashmun Hall, erected in 1856 as the first building in the United States dedicated to the higher education of the Negro, is no more. Having been declared structurally unsafe, the walls have been razed, and an irreverent bulldozer is heaving rubble, some of it perhaps from your old room, toward a waiting truck. The site will be turned into much-needed parking space, on one side of which a pillar of Ashmun brick will bear a commemorative plaque. At least that is the present intent . . . Spring has come, and most mornings the campus is bathed in a sunlit haze.
CALENDAR OF UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES

February 5—The Lectures and Recital Committee present the Duo di Roma in a program of cello and piano sonatas by Beethoven, Mendelssohn and Brahms.

February 12—Atty. Robert L. Carter, ’37, counsel for the N.A.A.C.P., addressed the University Assembly on “Civil Rights from 1809-1959.”

February 17—At a special University Assembly Dr. Carter Davidson, president of Union College, spoke on “The Night of the Auk.” Dr. Davidson was serving as chairman of the Middle States Association Evaluation Team.

March 3—Dr. Ira DeA. Reid, chairman of the Department of Sociology at Haverford College, was presented by the Y.M.C.A. Cabinet at the University Assembly. His subject was “Dating and Mating in Our Culture.”

March 5—Mr. Dale Miller, athletic director of Council Rock High School in Newtown, Pa., spoke to students and faculty on “Conformity and Non-Conformity” at the University Assembly.

March 12—Soulima Stravinsky, distinguished concert pianist, was presented in recital by the Lectures and Recital Committee.

April 2—The Lectures and Recitals Committee presented Friedelind Wagner, granddaughter of Richard Wagner, in an illustrated talk on “Bayreuth.”

April 5-9—Observance of Religious Emphasis Week. The Rev. Dr. Joshua O. Williams, pastor of Salem Methodist Church in New York City, was the principal speaker. His general theme was “The Relevance of Jesus for Our Time.”

April 16—Rabbi Samson A. Shain of Temple Shomayim, Lancaster, Pa., was the University Assembly speaker. Representing the Jewish Chautauqua Society, Rabbi Shain spoke on the topic “Visiting the Jerusalem of Jesus and the Bible.”

April 23—Dr. Philip E. Jacob, associate professor of political at the University of Pennsylvania, addressed the University Assembly on the subject of “The Influence of a College Education on Character.”

AN EXPERIMENTAL COLLEGE, with the assistance of a $700,000 grant from the Ford Foundation, is to be established by Wayne State University in Detroit. The major innovation of the new college is that all students will be required to take work in the natural sciences, social sciences, and the humanities throughout their four undergraduate years. Within these areas, customary divisions of subjects into academic courses will be largely discarded. Instead, traditional academic courses will be combined to form courses covering basic fields of knowledge. Training in English composition will be an integral part of all studies in the curriculum. The college will also experiment with new arrangements for the better utilization of faculty time and for improvements in the conditions of learning. Courses will be taught through a combination of large lecture classes, small discussion groups, and independent study, which will be stressed. In the senior year students will participate in a colloquium (discussion-group course) in which they will pursue about half their studies without direct instruction from the faculty. Since the amount of time students spend on independent study will increase as they move through the program, instructional costs will be highest during the freshman year and lowest during the senior year—the reverse of the prevailing instructional-cost pattern.

THE FORD FOUNDATION HAS ANNOUNCED grants totaling more than $600,000 to help expand and improve the teaching of English in foreign countries, mainly in Asia and Africa. Five American institutions and organizations received a total of $580,000 to increase the nation’s ability to assist foreign countries in teaching English as a second language. In addition, the
I have a deep personal interest and first-hand knowledge, therefore, of what the alumni movement has accomplished in winning public understanding and support for all our colleges and universities.

Thus I can make two categorical statements:

First, the contribution of alumni to American higher education in recent years has been truly amazing.

Second, the quality and strength of American higher education in the years ahead will depend largely upon continued and increasing alumni loyalty and support.

The first cursory glances some citizens gave to educational institutions revealed, so they thought, certain glaring weaknesses. Thus the great debate about American versus European education began.

This renewed public interest in and scrutiny of education may, in my opinion, be one of the greatest contributions of the birth of the new Space Age.

American higher education doubtless has some shortcomings. But these weaknesses stem largely from lack of adequate funds. Thus they can be corrected.

Despite such present shortcomings, it is my considered opinion, based upon study and firsthand observation, that the American system of higher education is sound. It certainly is geared to the needs of our democratic society. By contrast, I believe that the European system which denies educational opportunities for all except the intellectually elite is responsible for some of the perplexing problems now confronting our NATO allies.

As we seek constantly to improve our colleges and universities, let us not lose our balance. Remember, we have made good progress in recent years. Even so caustic a critic as Lord Bertrand Russell admits that American education has served America well.

Now here is where you come in. Much of the advancement we have made recently stems from a phenomenon of American higher education — organized alumni activity.

Americans, at least when they are challenged, often become "discontented with the divine discontent," to use Charles Kingsley's words. This is usually all to the good. We should constantly examine our institutions to be certain that they are effectively serving our needs and interests.

It was to be expected, therefore, that when we were so rudely shocked by the sudden evidence of Russia's scientific achievements some Americans immediately began to seek out whipping boys. With customary impetuosity and impulsiveness, some people blamed the White House and the Pentagon. Others lashed out at our schools and colleges, asserting that American education and educational methods had let the nation down.

President Eisenhower promptly and forthrightly urged all Americans to interest themselves in their schools and colleges. This is exactly what most educators have wanted for years. Many of us have contended that American education will be just as good as the public desires and demands.

In this period of world unrest and competitive coexistence in which the battle for men's minds is so crucial, this unique characteristic of American higher education — alumni loyalty and support — will play an even more vital role.

To get specific: In trying to prove how valuable alumni support has been in recent years, it is pertinent to mention the growth in alumni giving. Twenty-five years ago your first fund survey reported a total of $2 million for 38 funds. Contrast that with the record for 1956, when 450 institutions reported $36 million credited to their (Continued on Page 6) alumni funds, and $102 million in total alumni contributions for all purposes.

Most of us consider our alumni funds as "living endowment." Think, then, of this $36 million as a recurring annual gift. It represents the earnings at 5% of a capital sum of $720 million, or about three times the magnificent Ford Foundation grants to 630 private colleges and universities for faculty salaries.

This, in itself, is a tremendous achievement. In addition, these alumni gifts served as the "seed money" to inspire other support: in corporate gifts, in bequests, in legislative appropriations.

These words of Harvard's Charles W. Eliot are just as true now as when he uttered them four decades ago: "An institution that cannot rally to its financial assistance the men who have taken its degrees and whose diploma is their passport into the world is in a poor position to ask assistance from any other."

The interest alumni have displayed in the welfare of their alma maters in recent years has been extremely helpful in enabling the colleges and universities to expand to their present size.

In the years ahead we shall do well to build on this devotion of alumni to their colleges. We remember that Dr. Hu Shih, the great scholar and former Chinese ambassador to this country, once said that America's greatest contribution to education was its revolutionary concept of the alumnus; its concept of the former student as an understanding responsible partner and champion.

In speaking of the value of alumni interest, Robert Gordon Sproul, former president of the University of California, once said: "In the centuries ahead, the record of history may well show that the greatest contribution that the United States has made to the advancement of education is in the creation and cultivation in alumni of a sense of continuing membership in and responsibility toward their colleges and universities."

President Charles W. Cole of Amherst College adds: "Alumni loyalty alone can preserve the freedom of American education."

Alumni loyalty and support is America's great hope in strengthening higher education. In this we have a decided edge over the nation whose rulers seek to dominate the world. If there is any alumni loyalty to the universities in the Soviet Union it was not manifest when I was in Russia. There is great (and to a degree, justifiable) pride in recent educational achievements, to be sure. But in what way can the graduate make his influence felt in his university's philosophy of education? In what way can he be a partner with the rector and the faculty? In that monolithic society, the Kremlin calls the tune on educational policy just as it does on all other aspects of life. Education in Russia is free only in the monetary sense; the individual student is not called upon to pay for it directly. The government subsidizes his education. Accordingly, he is not indebted to his alma mater. He does not owe it any measure of support. His debt for his education, if he considers himself indebted, is to the government, and the government in turn controls his alma mater just as it controls his whole being.

Dr. Alvin C. Eurich, vice president of the Fund for Advancement of Education, after returning from the U.S.S.R., wrote that the Russians hope to go us one better in their development of higher education. They are trying to combine the best features of the European system of education for the elite with the American plan of educating the masses. We firmly believe that our educational system is far superior to the Russian. But can we afford to be complacent? Dare we underrate their achievements? Can we risk giving higher education less than it needs financially to do a quality job? Not if you believe, as I do, that America's well-being, now and in the future, at home and abroad, in peace or in war, depends upon the quality, strength and vitality of its system of higher education.

Your mission, then, of stimulating, organizing and directing alumni activities has become vitally important. You possess the means of helping to perfect an invincible secret weapon: an E-bomb. But, unlike the A-bomb, yours will be completely clean. Your (Continued on Page 15)

Dr. Johnson attended the In-Service Institute Directors Meeting sponsored by the National Science Foundation in New York City April 13 and 14. On April 19 he attended an interracial breakfast at the Langhorne Community Center, at which he introduced the Rev. Matei Markwei, Ghana, a Lincoln student, who was the guest speaker.

Dr. H. Alfred Farrell represented Lincoln at the surprise birthday party given on February 14 by the alumni of the New York Area for Andrew Robinson, '91, who observed his 90th birthday. Dr. Grubb sent greetings to Lincoln's newest nonagenarian and Dr. Farrell presented him with two Lincoln mugs to commemorate the occasion. On March 19 he addressed young members of the Russellville Grange on "Opportunities for Young People in Southern Chester County." On May 3 he accompanied Dr. Grubb to the second annual Friendship Tea sponsored by the Lincoln Dames in Philadelphia.

Dr. Benjamin Schwartz attended the annual meeting of the American Oriental Society April 9-11 at the University of Michigan. Before a distinguished galaxy of scholars of the ancient Near East, Dr. Schwartz revealed his findings on the Phaistos Disk. Although discussion was lively, the general attitude expressed was that the method employed was sound and the results valid. The findings appear in the April issue of the Journal of Near Eastern Studies of the Oriental Institute, University of Chicago; final results and a complete translation of the text of the disk will appear in the July issue of the same periodical.

Dr. DeForest Rudd, professor of chemistry, has been granted a Science Faculty Fellowship valued at $4,350 by the National Science Foundation for the general purpose of improving college teaching. Professor Rudd, who received his Ph.D. in chemistry from the University of California, will spend the school year 1959-60 in the Department of Chemistry at Cornell University. About one-half of his time will be spent developing a research project that can be continued at Lincoln with undergraduate assistance. He expects to do research in the field of complexes. It is his hope to take two or three courses in order to examine Cornell's teaching methods and program in chemistry. He also hopes to find out how to set up and operate a laboratory using radioactive materials.

Dr. Hubert B. Ross, assistant professor of sociology, participated in a panel discussion on the subject "The Preventive Aspects of Juvenile Delinquency," sponsored by the Pyramid Club of Philadelphia on the evening of April 17. The panel, which was moderated by Dr. James W. Skelton, professor of philosophy, Temple University, also included Police Commissioner Thomas J. Gibbons, District Attorney Victor H. Blanc; Municipal Court Judge J. Sydney Hoffman; and Dr. Ruth W. Hayre, principal of William Penn High School. Dr. Ross discussed the subject from a sociological approach, pointing out that juvenile

On Wednesday, February 4, at 8:00 p.m. the Political Science Club presented Dr. H. L. Tindall, a practicing physician of Christiana, Pa., who spoke on the subject "Collecting Stamps as a Hobby." On Wednesday, March 4, the group presented Dr. Lewis Hoskins, former executive secretary of the American Friends Service Committee, who spoke on "What Is Doing in South Africa?" Dr. Hoskins illustrated his talk with slides. On Wednesday, April 1, the organization, in association with the Social Science Club, had Dr. Charles E. Lindblom, associate professor of economics at Yale University, as guest speaker. Dr. Lindblom's topic was "Is Socialism Obsolete?"

Debaters Webster Fitzgerald and Matei Markwei represented Lincoln University at the Eastern Collegiate Debate Tournament held at Harvard University February 5-7.

Dr. Bernard Phillips, chairman of the Department of Philosophy, University of Delaware, was presented by the Philosophy Club on Tuesday, February 10, at 8:00 p.m. A convert to Zen Buddhism, Dr. Phillips spoke on "Zen Buddhism and Creative Religion." On Wednesday, March 11, Dr. Monroe Beardsley, professor of philosophy at Swarthmore, and Mr. Alfred Andersen, visiting lecturer in philosophy and mathematics, discussed the subject "Science, Nature, and God." Dr. William Fontaine, '30, was presented by the organization on Thursday, April 23. A member of the Department of Philosophy of the University of Pennsylvania since 1947, Dr. Fontaine addressed the group on "The Ethics of Segregation and Desegregation: a Philosophical Analysis."

Beta Kappa Chi, honorary scientific fraternity, presented Dr. Howard E. Mitchell at its meeting on Thursday, February 19, at 8:00 p.m. Dr. Mitchell is a member of the Marriage Council of Philadelphia, which is associated with the University of Pennsylvania. At its March meeting the society inducted Humphrey Jones, Robert Rollins, George Sherman, and Howard Wood.

The Lincoln University Players repeated their performance of The Prisoner at Swarthmore on Sunday, February 15, and at Haverford on Wednesday, February 18, and were well received at both institutions. The leading roles were played by Ray Spriggs, Philip Mann, and Howard Williams.

The Y.M.C.A. Cabinet sponsored a smoker on Tuesday evening, March 10, featuring a panel discussion of various aspects of the international situation. The participants were Apostolos Athanassakis, Haroutune Basmajian, Ali Abu-Hijleh, and James Kimani, all overseas students. On Sunday, April 19, the Y-Cabinet sponsored Parents Day for the second year. Visiting parents met administrative officers, had dinner in the dining hall, toured the campus, and were entertained by the Glee Club. A tea for parents, students, and faculty families was held in the Guest House. On Wednesday, April 22, the organization presented the distinguished film "Albert Schweitzer" for the campus community.

It is gratifying to report another satisfactory year of competition for the Chess Club. This year's chess team consisted of the following: Conrad R. Pope, Hans Holland, Richard A. Schwartz, and John P. Simpkins. Invited to participate in the Greater Philadelphia Intercollegiate Chess Tournament, the team emerged with a record of two wins (defaults by Temple and the University of Pennsylvania) and two losses. The losses, to Haverford and the Penn State Ogontz Campus, were by the narrowest of margins, 2%-l%. In both these matches Schwartz won his games, but the hero of both occasions was Pope, who held his opponents to a draw after (Continued on Page 19)
The Seminary

With the Winter-Spring semester fast signalling the time for the closing of its historic doors, the Seminary, by contrast, has settled down to a slow but definite pace.

On the devotional side, two young men have highlighted the winter scene. On February 17 the Rev. Stanley Karakas, a priest from the Eastern Greek Orthodox Church in Lancaster, Pa., lectured and showed slides which enlightened Seminary students and faculty members on the more orthodox tenets and beliefs of this large ecclesiastical body. The Rev. David Reed, lecturer in Pastoral Care and a protestant chaplain at the Philadelphia General Hospital, also participated in the daily fellowship with his treatment of the well known text, "If the Son shall make ye free, then ye shall be free indeed." This semester will conclude Mr. Reed's class in hospital counseling, which sought to give the ministerial candidate firsthand experience by placing him in actual situations within the many wards of a large metropolitan hospital.

The Annual Seminary Banquet was held on May 7 at 6:45 p.m. with Dr. Jesse B. Barber, '15, '18s, as the principal speaker. A former dean of the Seminary, Dr. Barber is currently secretary of the Department of Work in the South of the Board of National Missions of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. and assistant secretary of the Board's Division of Evangelism.

The Seminary Ann's, wives of Seminary students, who have met periodically throughout the year to discuss themes of relevance to their positions as ministers' wives, terminated their activities with an early-evening covered-dish supper on May 12.

Dean Andrew Murray attended the Conference of Church Historians held at Western Theological Seminary, February 20 and 21. This conference, sponsored by the Lilly Endowment, brought together teachers of church history in theological seminaries in this area to consider and share new methods in the teaching of church history. He attended the annual meeting of counselors in the United Presbyterian Theological Seminaries in New York City February 27 and 28. This meeting plans and evaluates the program of testing used in Presbyterian seminaries.

From March 6 to March 8 Dean Murray attended the Consultation on the Negro Ministry, held at Greenwich, Conn., under the auspices of the Department of the Ministry of the National Council of Churches. This Consultation considered the great shortage of qualified Negro candidates for the Christian ministry. It was interesting to note that at this meeting, bringing together the denominational leaders from the entire country, there were, among the Negro members, more Lincoln alumni than from any other institution. These included Dr. Jesse B. Barber, Dean Frank R. Brown, Rev. Tollie Caution, Rev. Caesar D. Coleman, Dean Daniel G. Hill, Dr. J. Oscar Lee, Rev. Chester L. Marcus, and the Rev. Gayraud S. Wilmore.

Lawrence G. Derthick, U. S. Commissioner of Education, has announced approval of the first graduate fellowship programs under the National Defense Education Act. Federal funds were approved under Title IV of the act for new or expanded graduate education programs in 48 colleges and universities in 40 states and the District of Columbia. The programs will provide 160 fellowships during the 1959-60 academic year at a total federal cost of approximately $400,000, the amount thus far appropriated for this purpose. The National Defense Education Act authorizes a total of 1,000 fellowships for 1959-60, and the President's budget proposes a supplemental appropriation of $4.5 million for the additional 840 fellowships. Awards will be given initially only to first-year graduate students working toward a doctor's degree. Students must be nominated by the schools to which they apply for graduate work. The fellowships are for three-year periods.

Fellows will receive stipends of $2,000 for the first year of study; $2,200 for the second year and $2,400 for the third year. In addition, each fellow will receive $400 a year for each dependent. The 48 programs were approved by Commissioner Derthick on the recommendation of the National Advisory Committee on Graduate Fellowships. All would lead to the granting of a graduate doctoral degree and all were submitted by schools interested in initiating or expanding graduate programs leading to such a degree. The National Defense Education Act limits federal assistance to "new" or "expanded" graduate programs.

Lincoln University has been given a grant by the National Science Foundation of Washington, D. C., for the purpose of conducting an In-Service Institute for high school teachers of science and mathematics during the academic year 1959-60. The objectives of the Institute will be three-fold: (1) to improve the subject-matter competence of the participating teachers; (2) to strengthen the capacity of these teachers to motivate students to consider careers in science; and (3) to bring these teachers into personal contact with the competent scientists who make up the staff of the Institute, with the view of stimulating interest and increasing their prestige professionally.

Tuition and fees for those participating in the Institute will be covered by the grant. A travel allowance of seven cents a mile from home to the Institute will be paid to each participant. The primary criterion for the selection of participants will be the professional competence of the applicant and his capacity to develop as a teacher. The National Science Foundation has approved the following courses to be offered at Lincoln in the fall: Modern Physics, Geology and Man, and Mathematical Analysis. Dr. Leroy D. Johnson, dean of the college, will serve as director of the Institute and as coordinator of instruction. All correspondence in reference to the Institute should be addressed to Dr. Johnson.

WRESTLING

Although the powerful Lions ended their season with a 3-3-1 record, they had a highly successful year. Their winning of the C.I.A.A. championship is evidence of that. The squad was loaded with talent, and since there is only one member graduating, this year's performance should be indicative of an equally fine performance for next year.

In their first match against East Stroudsburg State Teachers College on December 11, the Lions were held to a tie. Eddy Williams, a 137-pounder, Wayne, Pa.; Chris Leftenant, 147-pounder, Amityville, Pa.; and unlimited wrestler, Carl "Piggy" Barnes, Reading, Pa., won their match by pinning their opponents. Robert Clough, 177-pounder from Philadelphia, Pa., won his match by decision.

On January 9 Lincoln was host to Millersville State Teachers College, and was soundly defeated (33-3) with Carl Barnes winning the only match.

The match with Lycoming College, which Lincoln lost 34-0, was followed by a 31-10 victory over Howard University on February 13. Johnny Haines and Roland Clough won by decision. Lincoln Turner, a 123-pound senior from Yardley, Pa.; Thomas Moore, 137-pounder from Chicago, Ill.; Dave Gardner, 177-pounder, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Clifford Mitchell, 191-pounder, Washington, D.C.; and Carl Barnes all pinned their opponents.

The next match on February 17 was a losing cause to West Chester State Teachers College (31-13), but Chris Leftenant, Roland Clough and Carl Barnes managed to win for the Lions.

The final match of the season was on February 24 with Lebanon Valley College. In defeating Lebanon 25-3, Johnny Haines, Lincoln Turner, Tom Moore, Chris Leftenant, Roland Clough, Dave Gardner and Carl Barnes were the victors.

The last time that Lincoln won the C.I.A.A. championship was in 1954. After taking a disappointing third place last year, Coach Bob Gardner was determined that this year's outcome would be different.

At first it looked as though the ever-fickle fates would delay this dream of winning the championship until some future year. The uncertainty of the outcome of the matches was further intensified because of mishaps which wreaked havoc on the Lions. Semi-finalist Douglas Simpson, North Braddock, Pa., forfeited because of a dislocated finger and Cliff Mitchell had a recurrence of a shoulder injury, which handicap he was able to overcome and take a third place.

Leading on points, Virginia State went into the final round with six men as did Lincoln. Captain Johnny Haines became the first champion by scoring a victory in the 115-pound class. Lincoln Turner and Richard Beane were eliminated by close decisions, which were typical of the Lions' bad luck that day.

Aided by four points, which Tom Moore picked up for third place in his class, Chris Leftenant then scored a second period pin over Gray of Howard to become the 147-pound champ and Lincoln's second title holder. This put Lincoln within striking distance of Virginia State.

Roland Clough, the "pride and glory" of the wrestling team, took to the mat against Organ of Virginia State in the 167-pound class. The defeat that Clough suffered was one that only a blind person like Clough could have (Continued on Page 14) taken, for his opponent would not wrestle in a conventional manner. Organ maneuvered around the ring so that he was able to remain behind his opponent. In this manner, he was able to compile enough points to win, putting the Lions in a very precarious position.

Dave Gardner picked up seven points for a second place in the 177-pound class, but Virginia State followed with a first in the 191-pound class and a third place in the unlimited class.

The stage was now set. With Lincoln trailing by four points, a victory by Carl "Piggy" Barnes was an absolute must. Faced with Alston, a 320-pound Morgan Bear, Barnes had his job cut out for him. At the end of three periods of wrestling the score was tied, causing the match to go into overtime. In two periods of overtime Barnes found new energy and showed his skill by picking up the winning two points, which gave Barnes and Lincoln a championship.

Six members of the squad received trophies plus the championship team trophy, which the efforts of all ten members made possible. Coach Robert Gardner and his team are to be congratulated for a job well done.

BASKETBALL

Although a 7-16 record isn't too much to brag about, the basketball team must be commended for its noble effort. The record is a slight improvement over last year's record of 4-18. The Lions' 76-68 upset over Hampton Institute proved that they had the potential of championship caliber which they were so often credited with.

The loss of its 6'4" center, Harry Hook, New York, N. Y., at mid-season, hurt the team's chances of ending the season with a respectable record; how-Government of Kenya, in Africa, received $21,000 for research on English-language teaching methods. The English-language grants in the United States reflect the growing importance of English as an international language. English has become the leading language in international communications, diplomacy, science, and scholarship, and as a result, most countries have made it the most widely taught foreign language in their schools and colleges. The new grants are designed to help meet increasing foreign requests for American assistance in strengthening English-language instruction and teacher-training programs. Efforts by the United States Government and private organizations like the Ford and Rockefeller Foundations to give this help have been handicapped by a shortage of Americans trained in teaching English in foreign countries. The grants will expand training in the field and support research by experts in foreign languages, linguistics, and language teaching. In Kenya the diversity of languages requires the use of English as the medium of instruction in primary schools. The Foundation's grant will finance technical assistance and equipment to evaluate English-language teaching and teacher-training methods.

THE UNITED STATES ATTRACTION more foreign students to its schools in 1957-58 than ever before in its history, the Institute of International Education reported in a survey recently released. This country continued to lead the free world in the education of foreign persons, with 43,391 students and scholars coming to study in 1,801 American schools from 145 countries—some as remote as Basutoland and the Fiji Islands. Three significant characteristics of foreign students in the U.S. are revealed: (1) the typical foreign student in the United States is a Far Easterner majoring in engineering; (2) he is most likely here on his own funds, not because of scholarship; and (3) in one out of three cases, he is interested, especially if he is an engineer, in employment after graduation with the overseas branch of a U.S. corporation. The statistical "he," with men students still outnumbering women more than three to one. The only country to send more women than men was the Philippines.

HIGHER LEARNING

device can become powerful enough to produce a system of education so effective that America's world leadership will be unchallenged. Indeed, your E-bomb may become so efficacious that its fallout will not be feared, but will be welcomed by all mankind. Its fallout could be the manna to sustain many unfortunate millions striving to throw off the shackles of slavery and embrace the blessings of democracy.

Farfetched? Not at all. Quality education for free men in a free society is the principal hope of the future. Democratic education for the masses should be our most practical export. For this we know: A nation of free people cannot endure without education; a nation of slaves cannot endure with it.

Continue, then, to preach the gospel of alumni aid to assure the public understanding and financial support which higher learning needs. Only by nurturing education in these crucial days of world tension and kaleidoscopic change can we maintain our liberty and our lives and can we pass on our heritage of freedom and opportunity to our children and to the children of other lands.

Before Nix

Durham, N. C.

With regard to the note on the cover picture (fall issue) Nix is not the first Lincoln man to be elected to Congress. Thomas E. Miller (1849-1938), '72, was a representative from South Carolina in the Fifty-first Congress in 1890. (See the Biographical Directory of the American Congress.) Miller was President of South Carolina State College when Nix and I were boys in Orangeburg. Incidentally, Miller was one of the few, I believe, who studied law at Lincoln during the brief existence of its law school.

I believe that it would be better to list the amounts contributed by the several members of the classes than to list only the totals for the classes with the names of the contributors under the totals, as was done in the last summer number of the Bulletin. Such a listing would, I think, stimulate those who are inclined to give anything at all to give as much as possible.

Class Agents

Boston, Mass.

Thank you for your letter (mine is indeed a tardy reply) and for printing my suggestion in the most recent Bulletin... I was interested in hearing that you have attempted to use class secretaries as agents. Naturally, my suggestions differ slightly in that the agents would have a sole responsibility (to collect the money and nothing else), but there are some similarities between both systems. Anyhow, since you were good enough to give my letter prominent display, it is quite likely that it will provoke comments from the alumni body.

Annual Giving

New York, N. Y.

A letter in the current Bulletin written to Dr. Grubb from Victor L. Cole '54 has prompted me to write to you. I too have had some concern as to the seemingly wide-spread lack of spirit on the part of the Alumni in giving to Lincoln. There are several Associations that are doing magnificent work but beyond that the absence of contributions by the majority is conspicuous. I would like to arrange a meeting with you at Lincoln to discuss a program that has proved successful and which will tie in with Mr. Cole's suggestions.

Henry Goss, '16

Indianapolis, Ind.

My classmate, Dr. Henry Goss, has written me several times about donating to Lincoln. I recently wrote him explaining that financial exactments have been such that even though I desired to contribute I was unable to do so. I have just now become able to budget ten dollars a month to Lincoln. This amount is in no way commensurate with what I feel that Lincoln did for me, yet as Sir Launfal puts it, "It is a gift with the giver," and therefore not bare of sincerity of purpose.

It is utterly impossible for me to pay back to Lincoln what she did for me.
If in any small manner I may have made some contribution to the betterment of the community in which I have labored the credit rightfully belongs to the Christian training given me at Lincoln by the consecrated men whom I learned to revere as heroes worthy of my emulation.

Each June when I go out to the Lincoln Commencement, it brings back memories of the "Good Old Days." I see many faces, but not enough of those of 1912. This is an appeal to the seventeen of us who are left to make a contribution to Dear Old Lincoln and try to visit that sacred spot at Commencement to rekindle that old flame which was blazing when we left. In our times Lincoln received many bequests; most of us were lucky and shared in scholarship aid from that source, rarely ever knowing who our kind benefactors were. Today, nearly all colleges ask their alumni to contribute to their Alma Mater regularly.
There is a great need at Lincoln; will you help? Drop me a line for "Old Lang Syne." It would be a delight.

Baghdad, Iraq

As you probably know, I am Chief,
Division of Health and Sanitation, USOM/Iraq. This is one of the world's trouble spots at present. We fear for its democratic freedom. It is heart-rending to see this holy land and this beautiful and historic city of Baghdad heaving and struggling through one crisis after another. We Americans are in the midst of it and accused all out of proportion to our guilt. We pray that political conditions will soon settle down so that the former glory and beauty of the area may shine again.

A few days ago I received a letter from Cannon urging me to be at Lincoln for this year's 1924 Reunion. I feel that it will be difficult ... Please find enclosed a check for $200.00 to the Alumni fund. Credit it to Lincoln's finest class—1924.

Chicago Alumni Association

The Lincoln University Alumni Association of Chicago held its annual banquet on Wednesday evening, April 22, 1959, at 8:00 p.m. at the Washington
Park Y.M.C.A., 5000 South Indiana
Avenue. Attorney Lemuel E. Bentley was the guest speaker. Mr. Bentley is the president of the Chicago League of Negro Voters. The president of the alumni chapter, Atty. R. Esdras Turner, class of '27, is planning a trip to Lincoln this spring.

Ashmun Hall is no more! Condemned some five years ago, the first building on Lincoln's campus has been razed to provide parking facilities. A Memorial plaque will be placed on the site of the old building.

In answer to alumni demand the Office of Public Relations has secured two types of mugs as pictured above. They may be used as ornaments or for the serving of beverages. The short mug sells for $1.75 ($2.00 by mail) and the tall one for $3.00 ($3.25 by mail). Prices are slightly cheaper in quantities of six or more by mail. Checks or money orders should be made out to The Office of Public Relations and marked "For mugs."
Alumni who know of young men who would make good Lincoln University students are requested to fill out the form below and return it at once, using reply envelope on reverse side.

COVER PICTURE—The Class of 1959 made history when it decided to establish an investment account to be given to the University as a gift at its 15th reunion. It is possible that the total holdings of the account will exceed $20,000 by 1974. Seventy-five percent of the class has pledged to contribute a minimum of $10 each year to the account to be invested in a multi-million dollar investment trust. The account is being handled by Patterson and Company of New York City, of which John Patterson, '50, is president. The investment pledge reads in part: "Our college education has been an investment made possible by many people—our parents, Lincoln and ourselves. It is, we feel, an investment that will pay endless dividends to ourselves, our family, to Lincoln and to the communities in which we serve."

FORM OF BEQUEST

To the Trustees of Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, I give and bequeath the sum of $____________ to be used by said Trustees for the uses and purposes of said corporation.
Progress at Lincoln is indicated by the groundbreaking ceremonies for the new science building on May 20. A. J. Caruso (l.), who presided over the ceremonies, and Andrew M. Bradley, the principal speaker, scoop up the first shovelfuls of dirt as George McFadden, retiring superintendent of buildings and grounds, (l.) and A. O. Grubb, the acting president, look on.

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new science building were held in the Grove on a hot Friday afternoon, May 20, with A. J. Caruso, executive director of the General State Authority, presiding. Andrew M. Bradley, secretary of the department of property and supplies of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, represented Governor Lawrence and gave the main address. The invocation was pronounced by the Reverend Thomas P. Craven, rector of the Church of the Assumption, West Grove, and the benediction by the Reverend William P. Stevenson. On the program for brief remarks were William R. Cole for the Science Department; Albert M. Davis for the architects; E. Luther Cunningham for the Trustees; Frank W. Berry for the Student Senate; Stanley K. Landis, assistant county superintendent of public instruction; Thomas P. Harney, state senator for Chester County; and the acting president. The Oxford Area High School band was happily on hand for the national anthem and several other selections, and although it was due back at school shortly after proceedings were well launched, Mr. Caruso cajoled and awed it into staying through to the end.

The photograph shows Secretary Bradley and Mr. Caruso at the building site, smiling because they had scooped the earth off a test boring pile nearby instead of spading it up the hard way.

CALENDAR OF UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES

May 7—Mr. Walter Phillips, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Lincoln University, was the speaker at the annual observance of Honors Day.

May 22—Groundbreaking ceremonies for new science building.

May 31—Dr. Andrew Murray, dean of the Theological Seminary, delivered the Baccalaurate address.

June 1—Alumni Day.

June 2—Commencement exercises.

OLD NEW THINKING ABOUT how to organize and run a liberal arts college is called for by Beardsley Ruml in a report, Memo to a College Trustee, published by McGraw-Hill Book Company. The provocative treatise, prepared for and transmitted by the Fund for the Advancement of Education, asserts that if American colleges managed their affairs more effectively, they could—without raising tuition fees—improve the quality of education and nearly double faculty salaries. Among the more striking points in the new "Ruml plan," which promises to arouse lively discussion on every college campus from New York to San Francisco and among past, present or future college students, are the following:

1. Total number of courses should be sharply reduced, academic deadwood should be cut away, and a better balance established between large and small classes;
2. The ratio of students to faculty should be increased and colleges, instead of priding themselves on having only eight or nine students per teacher, should accept a ratio of about 20 to 1 as normal;
3. The old-fashioned recitation session has no place in higher education and colleges should encourage more independent study by students under faculty guidance;
4. The student's weekly classroom schedule should be cut from 15 hours to 12, leaving time for more adequate preparation and independent investigation;
5. Working conditions for faculty should be improved: weekly teaching load should be reduced to an average of about nine hours and ample time provided, including sabbatical leaves, for research, writing and professional development;
6. College budgets should be so managed that, to the fullest extent possible, money paid by students in tuition fees should go directly for faculty compensation;
7. For most colleges, the key to better quality education and to higher salaries is to combine the expansion of enrollments with a more efficient use of faculty time and of the college's physical plant.

R. JOHN ALANSON PERKINS, PRESIDENT of the University of Delaware, is the author of a new book on the plight of higher education, Plain Talk from a Campus. In his book he analyzes the perplexities that face American higher education in general and our public colleges and universities in particular. Dr. Perkins argues that the tax structure in respect to support for higher education has, in many communities, become antiquated, and is therefore inadequate to do the job at hand. No believer in "college for all" despite the anticipated tidal wave of enrollment, Dr. Perkins maintains that higher education must be a matter of intellectual rather than social experience. He asserts that "American higher education has permitted its intellectual pilings to become so barnacled with a host of secondary functions—undue emphasis on football, all-male comic operas, and marching bands rivaling a Billy Rose extravaganza—that it has itself created misconceptions about the reasons for going to college." Other subjects covered in Dr. Perkins' book include the relationship of high schools and universities, the financial plight of institutions of higher learning, government support of public universities and colleges, and higher education and training for administrative careers.
It is necessitous that college-trained men give serious thought to the imperative responsibility of providing effective leadership in the American community. The fact is crystal clear that, for us, the day of one-man leadership — one Frederick Douglass, one Booker Washington, one W. E. B. Du Bois, one Walter White — has passed and gone to repose in the melancholy limbo of outdated and outmoded things. No longer is there anyone, anywhere, altogether adequate for so mammoth a responsibility. The quality of heart, the detailed knowledge of relevant facts, the dedication to high ideals, the possession of the multifarious talents that make for effective leadership are not by any stretch of the imagination the esoteric and solitary possession of any one person. They are now widely distributed, and, in varying degrees of reach and power, among many, many people. There is no one Negro voice in America today that can speak uniformly and invariably for all Negroes, as the State Department would have us still believe that Chiang Kai Shek on Formosa speaks for all China, or Nehru for all India, or Khrushchev for all Russia, or Sukarno for all Indonesia, or Nasser for all Arabs. In the interest of real democracy it may well be that this is so. Better far than one dominant personality, or one outstanding mind, or one devoted and dedicated heart, is the collective power of thousands of concerned Negro men and women of unimpeached integrity, of creative imagination, of unwavering allegiance to the high cause of winning for our people, in this day and generation, all the rights and privileges and responsibilities related to first-class citizenship in this American Republic. Yes, we have them. Yes, we know them. You men of the Alumni Association of Lincoln University are representative of them: men and women of intelligence, understanding and consecration, in every part of this nation — teachers, business men, lawyers, doctors, ministers, social workers, techni-

EFFECTIVE LEADERSHIP

it to stand for something. So many of us try to compromise everything, appease everybody and tolerate anything. We tend, too many of us, to resist the taking of firm moral positions, and in our alleged broadmindedness too often we say: "Everyone is entitled to his own opinion, isn't he?" "After all, who am I to judge anyone else?" "Why can't we just live and let live?" What it all amounts to is that, fundamentally, too many of us are just like putty. We permit ourselves to be pressed and pounded into every mold. We seldom let out a squeak of disapproval. We go along with any gag that is popularly played. We are like a new kind of breakfast food about which I heard the other day. This particular breakfast food advertises that it is guaranteed not to snap, not to crackle, and not to pop; it just promises to lie at the bottom of its bowl and absorb its milk. Too many of us just absorb the atmosphere around us unthinkingly, uncritically. Since much of the world's work in these days is being done by committees, too many of us are like the committee member who, paraphrasing Caesar, confessed: "I came, I saw, I concurred." We don't like to stir up trouble. We resemble Jim, who was dying. The minister was called in to see him, and said: "Jim, you have been a sinful, worldly man, and apparently you will soon shuffle off this mortal coil. Can't you accept faith in God and renounce the devil and all his works?" To which Jim weakly replied: "Sure, I accept God all right, but I don't want to antagonize anybody." Too often we hesitate to insist that there are any absolute and universal standards of right and wrong that are applicable to all peoples, at all times, and in all places. We are too eager to believe that right and wrong are simply matters of custom which must vary with time and with place. In the face of the indisputable evidence of the degeneration in morals and morale all about us, if there is one lesson these days teach us, it is this: that leadership that would be effective in bringing decency to the life of our community cannot cower before the base nor surrender to the bestial in human behaviour. Often people who have not had our opportunity speak disparagingly of us and say that our greatest deficiency is the lack of the sense of moral responsibility. Often they say that our greatest ambition is to secure some snug berth for ourselves, insure our own security, and that in the process of securing it we gamble too much, drink more than our quota of intoxicating beverages, set up our own system of status-seeking social caste, and just let the morality of the community go hang. Well, no college-trained Negro who works only to acquire money, who labors only for material gain and counts his success in terms of residence in a swanky neighborhood and driving a long Cadillac, and who practices social snobbery and looks upon the untutored masses, who want to respect him, as an opportunity for selfish exploitation rather than as a present challenge for service, is worthy of the privilege of leadership in an hour like that. You see, leadership, among us, ultimately, is judged in the light of the moral principles it represents. Slopiness in principle is as fatal a disease as narrowness of principle, and clarity and conviction of principle are among the greatest sources of strength in leadership. And leadership grounded on right principles and on true principles will not fizzle out in failure, and can bring us to an adequate and honorable and just solution of today's irksome problems. College men must provide the kind of leadership that in its moral quality implements the prayer of the late Peter Marshall: "O God, give us the courage to stand for something, lest we fall for anything."

II

This new kind of leadership must also possess a sense of definite social responsibility. Personal ambition must be related to the public concerns of the community in which one lives and works. One of the weaknesses of modern education, as I see it, is that it converts basic issues of human communal living into problems to be discussed. We objectify and externalize our knowledge and tend to shy away from any call to commitment that might come through what we learn about life. We are expert diagnosticians but ineptly poor therapists. Of too many of us Matthew Arnold might have written, as he did of Goethe:

Emory A. James, '16, receives the congratulations of Acting President Grubb, who has just conferred upon him the honorary degree of Master of Arts in Pedagogy. James was the only alumnus among the five who received honorary degrees. Looking on is Dean J. B. MacRae, '24, who read James' citation.

The Rev. Dr. Livingstone N. Mzimba, South African minister, died on May 5 after a lengthy illness, it was learned through correspondence from the wife of the deceased. He was the recipient of two honorary degrees from his alma mater. In 1922 he received the Doctor of Divinity degree, and in 1954, while in attendance at Lincoln's Centennial, the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters was bestowed upon him. In 1957, in answer to a letter to alumni for contributions to the United Negro College Fund, Dr. Mzimba contributed his entire month's salary, a draft for ten pounds ($27.77) to the U.N.C.F. Dr. Mzimba will long be remembered as one of Lincoln's most famous football ends.

In recent correspondence, the Office of Public Relations learned of the demise of James O. Garland, who died on September 10, 1958. The nature of his illness was not disclosed in the letter.

James W. Grimes, a teacher of mathematics and physics at Scott High School in Madison, W. Va., died of a heart attack on May 9 in the Charleston Memorial Hospital in Madison. Grimes came to Madison to teach and be principal of Carver High School in 1941. He was employed as a teacher in Scott High School in 1956 when the local schools were integrated. Grimes had just been awarded a fellowship to attend an institute for science teachers this summer at the Ohio University in Athens, Ohio.

Participants in the groundbreaking ceremonies for the new science building included (l. to r.) Stanley K. Landis, assistant county superintendent of public instruction; Albert M. Davis, architect; Senator Thomas P. Harney; A. J. Caruso, executive director, General State Authority of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; Dr. A. O. Grubb, acting president of Lincoln University; Andrew M. Bradley, secretary of the Department of Property and Supplies of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; the Rev. Thomas P. Craven, rector of the Church of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary, West Grove, Pa.; Frank W. Berry, president of the Student Senate; and the Rev. William P. Stevenson, 26, 28s, president of the General Alumni Association. Obscured by trees are Dr. E. Luther Cunningham, '30, '33s, alumni member of the Board of Trustees, and Professor William R. Cole.

“Sleuthing in the Chemistry Laboratory: An Impromptu Project” by Dr. Leroy D. Johnson, professor of chemistry, was selected for inclusion in Selected Readings in General Chemistry, compiled by William F. Kieffer, editor of the Journal of Chemical Education, and Robert K. Fitzgerald, Kansas City Junior College, and published by the Chemical Education Publishing Company of Easton, Pa. The reprinted articles are considered the best examples of the type that the Journal calls a “living textbook of chemistry, which tries constantly to provide discussions written by the specialist for the informed nonspecialist.” The purpose of the publication is to provide a volume which will aid in promoting the most significant developments in chemical education. There is a large-scale emphasis on the subject-matter competence of those trained for secondary school chemistry teaching. Dr. Johnson has been asked by the publishers of Chemical Abstracts to abstract articles on chemistry from recognized journals of chemistry during the summer.

Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, director of public relations, has been named associate director in charge of activities of the Leadership Training School sponsored by the Synods of Baltimore and Pennsylvania of the United Presbyterian Church and held at Wilson College in Chambersburg, Pa. for one month during the summer. Dr. Farrell will serve in his capacity for the first (Continued on Page 22)
The Chemistry Club presented Dr. Wallace M. McNabb, professor of analytical chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania, at its meeting on Thursday, April 30, at 7:30 p.m. Dr. McNabb explained Penn's graduate program and discussed colorimetry, a phase of analytical chemistry. The practical application of theory to the solution of analytical problems was very enlightening to the members present.

Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity held its Alpha Weekend from Friday, May 1, through Sunday, May 3. The guests of the fraternity enjoyed a record hop, picnic, dance, and fashion show.

The Political Science Club and the Social Science Club jointly presented Dr. Arnold Rogow, professor of political science at Haverford, at their meeting on Wednesday, May 6, at 8:00 p.m. Speaking on the subject "Is Capitalism Obsolete?", Dr. Rogow threw some light on the characteristics of capitalism and whether what exists in the United States today is accurately described by that term.

Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity held its annual Sigma Sunday on May 10 at 3:15 p.m. Chapters in Philadelphia and the New York area joined with the campus chapter in presenting a program of young artists: Carolyn Vance, soprano; Armena G. Bagramian, contralto; Victor T. Szostrom, tenor; Zachary Monson, bass; Judith Nissman, pianist; and Booker T. Rowe, Jr., violinist.

On Saturday, May 16, at 8:15 p.m. the Y.M.C.A. Cabinet sponsored members of the Reader's Theater and Dance Workshop of Adelphi College in James Stephens' "Crock of Gold."

The Glee Club concluded a busy year with its annual Commencement Concert on Sunday, May 31, at 7:30 p.m. The group was assisted by the Chamber Singers and Players of General Wingate High School, Brooklyn, N. Y., who were well received in such numbers as Buxtehude's "Cantata-Alles, Was ihr tut," Britten's "Rustics and Fishermen" (No. 5 — Choral Dances from "Gloriana"), Thompson's "The Last Words of David," and Morely's "It Was a Lover and His Lass." The Glee Club was particularly effective in Grieg's "Brothers, Sing On," Palestina's "Tenebrae Factae Sunt," and Peeters' "Te Deum." Soloists were John Jones, Andrew Reynolds, and Roger Crawford.

With The Undergrads

The following recipients of awards in the college were announced by Dean Leroy Johnson at the annual observance of Honors Day on Thursday, May 7:

Comprising the Seminary's last graduating class are (l. to r.) Enoch A. Esian, French Cameroun, W. A.; Arthur J. Honore, Philadelphia, Pa.; and Hee-Bo Kim, Seoul, Korea. Honore, who gave the Seminary address, received the Robert H. Nassau and John T. Colbert Prizes on Honors Day. Degrees were also conferred on Raymond F. Coles, as of the Class of 1923, and Robert E. Stitt, as of the Class of 1940.

The following announcement was made at Commencement by Dr. Andrew Murray, dean of the Theological Seminary:

It is my duty to announce that this June marks the termination of the work of the Theological Seminary of Lincoln University, which has been an organic part of the University from the beginning, and was indeed the prime motive in its founding. It also marks the end of any formal relationship between the University and the United Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, a relationship which has existed from the founding of the University.

Some of our students, who will be unable to complete their studies at Lincoln, will complete their work at other institutions and will receive the B.D. degree from Lincoln. Others will transfer to other seminaries and will receive degrees from those seminaries. All students who have completed at least two years in the Seminary have been awarded special certificates by the Board of Trustees. All alumni and former students of the Seminary continue to be part of the General Alumni Association, and their records together with the traditions of the Seminary now become part of the heritage of the University.

I would like to express my gratitude to all who have helped to make our work possible:

To the Presbyterian Church, which has had the oversight of our Seminary from its beginning.

To the members of the faculty of the Theological Seminary, past and present, who have given so much of their mind and spirit to the Seminary, and especially to my colleagues on the faculty, who have shared the crisis experiences of the past few years — the Rev. James H. Brown, the Rev. Donald M. Davies, and the Rev. Samuel G. Stevens.

• The United States Department of State will hold its next written Foreign Service Officer Examination on December 5, 1959 in approximately 65 centers throughout the United States and at Foreign Service posts abroad. Early announcement is made in response to inquiries received as a result of the cancellation of the December, 1958 examination. In announcing the examination the Department is seeking to interest undergraduate and graduate students who have studied in such fields as economics, public and business administration, language and area studies, history and political science. Candidates who are successful in the one-day written examination, which tests their facility in English expression, general ability and background, will subsequently be given oral examination by panels which will meet in regional centers throughout the United States. Fluency in a language, while not an examination requirement, must be attained before an officer can advance in the Service. Those candidates who pass the oral test will then be given a physical examination and a background investigation. If found qualified in all respects, candidates will be placed on a register and appointments will be made therefrom as needed, in the order of examination scores.

To be eligible to take this examination, candidates must be at least 21 and under 32 years of age as of October 19, 1959. Persons 20 years of age may also apply if a college graduate or a senior in college. They must be American citizens of at least nine years' standing. Although a candidate's spouse need not be a citizen on the date of the examination, citizenship must have been obtained prior to the date of appointment. The starting salary for the newly appointed Foreign Service Officers ranges from $5,225 to $5,885 per year, depending upon the qualifications, experience, marital status, and age at the time of appointment. Also, certain allowances, plus insurance, medical, educational and retirement benefits are granted, as well as annual and sick leave.

Application forms and other information may be obtained immediately by writing to the Board of Examiners for the Foreign Service, Department of State, Washington 25, D. C. The closing date for filing the application is October 19, 1959.

• An examination for Cartographer has been announced by the United States Civil Service Commission for filling positions paying from $4,040 to $12,770 a year in various Federal agencies in the Washington, D. C., area. The majority of the positions to be filled are in the Army Map Service, Aeronautical Chart and Information Center, Geological Survey, Bureau of Land Management, Coast and Geodetic Survey, and Navy Hydrographic Office. To qualify for these positions, applicants must have completed pertinent college study or have had appropriate technical experience in cartography, engineering, mathematics, or physics. Applicants who offer experience alone as a basis for qualification will be given a written test to determine their knowledge of the basic sciences underlying professional work in cartography. In addition to this basic requirement, applicants for positions paying $4,980 and above must also have had professional experience in cartography or have completed graduate study in geodesy, photogrammetry, or cartography.

Applications will be accepted until further notice and must be filed with the Board of U.S. Civil Service Examiners, Army Map Service, Washington 25, D. C. Application forms may be obtained from many post offices throughout the country or from the U.S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C.

FRESHMAN WEEK BEGINS SEPTEMBER 10
Sports In Review

BASEBALL

Connie Mack once said, "Pitching is 75% of baseball." His figure may be a little high but the Lions are inclined to support Mr. Mack's contention all the way. Playing fifteen games this season, the Lions could garner only two wins and this was a team which scored an average of eight runs per game. Pitching, or the lack of it, was the major cause of the Lions' defeats plus, of course, an average of six errors a game by the pressing defense.

The failure of Bennie Dudley, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Glenn Hamm, Oxford, Pa., to return to the squad deprived Coach Manuel Rivero of two experienced hurlers, forcing him to experiment all season in an attempt to come up with one man who could get the ball in the strike zone and silence the enemy bats. Billy Ray Smith of Bryan, Tex., our stellar centerfielder, was finally pressed into service along with firstbaseman Carl Barnes of Reading, Pa. Neither of the two had any previous experience pitching, but they did yeoman work on the mound for the Lions.

A rundown of this season's games would indicate the power the Lions possessed offensively. David Jay of Bethlehem, Pa., stroked the ball at a .381 clip while Wendell McKelvin of New York City, led the team in every other offensive department, hitting .345, scoring 17 runs, driving in 17 runs, 19 hits, 4 doubles, 1 triple, 2 homeruns, and 10 stolen bases. Two other men batted over .300, Orville E. Jones of Oxford, Pa., and Joseph Coates, also of Oxford, Pa.

The results of all fifteen games are as follows:

- Millersville 24, Lincoln 4
- Rider 15, Lincoln 0
- Hampton 19, Lincoln 9
- Philadelphia Pharmacy 17, Lincoln 16
- Lincoln 9, Army Chemical 3
- Drexel Institute 23, Lincoln 7
- Hampton 11, Lincoln 2
- Howard 10, Lincoln 3
- Rutgers 13, Lincoln 12

GOLF

Continuing its policy of providing opportunities for Lincoln students to participate in as many intercollegiate sports as possible, the Athletic Department sponsored a golf team for the second year in a row. Three matches were played, all ending with victories for the opposition, but the team showed signs of better things to come. The Lions met the Morgan Bears at Mt. Pleasant Country Club, Baltimore, Md., where in match play the Bears triumphed 4-2. The lone Lincoln victory was won by Richard "Tonto" Beane of Roanoke, Va., who bested Holland of Morgan.

The results of the second match found the Bisons of Howard University victorious by a score of 8-2 in medal play. The match, played at the East Potomac Golf Course in Washington, D. C., found "Tonto" Beane our only winner again, shooting an 86 for 18 holes.

"Tonto" Beane again bested his opponent when the Lions and Howard met in a return match, this time at the Rock Manor Country Club in Wil... mington, Del. The Bisons again defeated the Lions 8-2 in medal play.

At season's end, Beane was seeded the number six slot in the golfing line-up of the C.I.A.A. Other members of the squad were Bernard Jefferson of New York City; Jonathan Latimer of Washington, D. C.; and Fred Richards of Hempstead, N. Y.

West Chester 88%, Lincoln 42 1/2

On April 4 the Lions traveled to West Chester where the powerful Rams defeated a game but outmanned Lion squad. Picking up where he left off last year, Richie Hall, Princeton, N. J., took the 220-yd. dash and 220 low hurdles and placed second in the 440-yd. dash. Norman Campbell, New York City, returned to the cinder paths after a year's layoff to capture the 880-yd. run in the respected time of 2:02.4. Len Closson of West Chester, Pa., added another first place to the Lions' total by scoring a victory in the high jump. Indications of better performances and results were given by the efforts of the squad members.

Lincoln 90, Cheyney 33

The West Chester meet indicated that the Lions were stronger than last year's team. On April 14 Cheyney found out just how much stronger Lincoln had become. The student body got their wishes to cheer and rabble as the Lion thinclds crushed the "men" from Cheyney. Richard "The Hoss" Hall led the Orange and Blue assault with first place finishes in the 220-yd. dash, 440-yd. dash and the 220-yd. low hurdles. Eddy Williams, Wayne, Pa., took the two-mile run while our field events men in the person of Cliff Mitchell, Baltimore, Md.; Leonard Bethel, Philadelphia, Pa.; Kenneth Collins, Clairton, Pa.; Dave Gardner, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Len Closson, and Fred Johnson, Philadelphia, Pa., were taking the javelin, shot-put, discus, pole vault, high jump and broad jump respectively.

Lincoln 67, Farleigh Dickinson 55

The Lions bided their time until April 18 to gain a measure of revenge over the Hofstra squad which defeated them by five points last season. Ol' reliable Hall once again became a triple winner by snaring the 440 and 220-yd. dashes and the 220-yd. low hurdles. Norman "Stash" Campbell took the 880-yd. run and placed second in the 440-yd. dash. Dave Walker, a freshman from Philadelphia, took the mile run, while two other freshmen, Ken Collins and Herb Norris, Cape May, N. J., were taking the discus and the high jump. Eddy Williams again took the two-mile run.

Lincoln 82 1/2, Howard 48 1/2

On April 22 the Lions hosted Howard but proved unhospitable hosts by feasting on the Bisons. Yep, "Hoss" Hall again ran wild, piling up points by winning the 220 and 440-yd. dashes as well as the 220-yd. low hurdles. Dave Walker and Eddy Williams captured the mile and two-mile runs respectively. The Lions' true strength began to show when the field events started. Percy Cupid, Ambler, Pa., heaved the javelin 152 ft. 7 in. for a first; Len Bethel won the shot-put and Ken Collins led a Lion sweep of the discus throw; Dave Gardener captured the pole vault while Fred Johnson, a freshman from Philadelphia, spearheaded a Lion sweep in the broad jump by leaping 21 feet.

Penn Relays

The time is 3:16 p.m. and the crowd of 40,000 plus has been treated to a record-breaking performance by the cream of America's collegiate and service cindermen. The runners get set and the guns sound to start the spring medley. The Orange and Blue lead man, Richie Hall, strains mightily as he runs his 49.3 quarter mile to bring the baton in a close second and hands it to Walt Sullivan of Philadelphia, Pa., who narrows the three yd. gap of the Fort Lee, Va., 220-yd. man. Bob Williams, New York City, brings the baton in in third position to Norman Campbell, our 880-yd. anchor man. The anchor man for William and Mary College is out in front by five yards, followed by Bobby Seaman, anchorman for Fort Lee. (Seaman was last year's N.C.A.A. mile champion.) Campbell is in third place, about 11 yards back, but the crowd watches the great Seama, waiting for his vaunted finishing kick. Above the roar of the crowd can be heard "Give me the ole Lincoln spirit" as the rabble gives vocal support to "Stash" Campbell. The first 440 yds. are finished and Campbell is falling back a little; Seaman has the lead now and there is about 300 yards to go. "Stash" makes an all-out bid to get back into contention, and with 50 yards to go he passes the William and Mary anchorman and is seven yards behind the kicking Seaman. With less than six yards to go Campbell pulls even with Seaman and they both cross the finish lines exhausted. The standing and wildly cheering crowd acclaims the tremendous finish of the thinclad from Lincoln, who breasted the tape first in 1:56.1 to give the Lions their first victory in the Relays in ten years.

Morgan 103 1/2, Lincoln 63 1/4, Bowie 0

The proud Morgan Bears invaded the Lions’ den on April 29 and proved their claim as the best flat racing squad in the C.I.A.A. by walloping the Lions and Bowie Teachers College. The Lions’ Richie Hall took second in the 220 and 440-yd. dashes and the 220-yd. low hurdles. It was in the field events that the chink in Morgan’s armor was found as Percy Cupid, Len Bethel, Ken Collins and Dave Gardner gained points in the javelin, shot-put, discus and pole vault. The lack of field men caused the Bears to lose the C.I.A.A. track crown for the first time since 1945 to Winston-Salem Teachers College.

LETTER MEN

May 14 was Honors Day for athletes, and letters were presented by the coaches to participants in and managers of the following sports:

FOOTBALL

SOCCER

BASKETBALL

CROSS COUNTRY
Eddy Williams (captain), James Kimani, Robert Betz, Raymond Betz, David Walker, Robert Miller, Philip Betz, all from Philadelphia, Pa.; and Edward Woods, New York City.

The season’s results are as follows:
Millerstown 9, Lincoln 0
Lincoln 5, Cheyney 1
Morgan State 9, Lincoln 0
Rider 9, Lincoln 0
Philadelphia Textile 8, Lincoln 1
Howard University 6, Lincoln 0
Morgan State 5, Lincoln 1
Phila. Pharmacy 7, Lincoln 2

The scores of the matches do not show the tremendous improvement made by the squad during the season. Coach Ross feels that in two or three years the Lion netmen will be a strong contender for C.I.A.A. championship honors since only Jim Burgette is graduating.

Other members of the squad are Clive Wright, Hempstead, N. Y.; Charles Dixon, Thackery Bullock, Raymond

OUTSTANDING ATHLETES
The Class of 1915 Award to the Senior Class athlete best combining scholarship with athletic ability went to Whitney W. Walker of Darby, Pa. Whit was the star halfback of the football team and a slick ball handling guard on the basketball squad. The trophy for the outstanding athlete of the year was presented to Wendell McKelvin of New York City. "Mac" was the spark plug of the basketball squad and the offensive punch of the baseball team. He is a member of the Sophomore Class and captain-elect of the basketball team for 1959-60. Thomas Moore of Chicago was recognized as the outstanding freshman athlete. "Windy" was a member of the football, wrestling and baseball teams.

Random Notes
A heavy downpour drove Commencement indoors, and we are still trying to figure out where the crowd came from that overtaxed the seating capacity of the new gym. It was not our smoothest Commencement in recent years, but it did seem to have vitality, owing no doubt, in part, to a carry over from the very successful alumni banquet the night before and in part to honorary degree recipients who captured the imagination. There was not a finer man on the platform than our alumnus Emory James; Daisy Bates and Jackie Robinson are splendid persons as well as famous names; and if the ivory-tower standing of Arthur Bestor and Roy Nichols is unimpeachable, they are not ivory-tower types. Dr. Nichols' exhortation of the graduates was simple and wise, and it conveyed an authentic lift.

George Jackson McFadden, who since 1927 has rescued us from bafflement with pipes, locks, and other cunningly hostile objects, retired on June 30 and forty-one friends and co-workers honored him at a dinner Friday evening, June 5.

Gifts to the Lincoln Fund took a gratifying upturn in the pre-Commencement period. Our thanks go to a number of loyal supporters, but most of all to Dr. Henry Goss, who unfortunately could not be with us.

EFFECTIVE LEADERSHIP

"He took the suffering human race, He read each wound, each weakness clear, And said: "Thou aildest here and here."
"What do you think?" is said to be more often on the lips of the college-trained man than "What can I do?" And the tragic results are evident everywhere. Some educators, recently, have expressed concern over the prospect of an unemployed intelligentsia. They fear an oversupply of engineers, laboratory technicians and lawyers in a society that cannot make use of so many. But I see a more alarming aspect of the unemployed intelligentsia: college-trained men whose minds have stopped growing once a sheepskin and a degree certifies them to be learned; college-trained men who strive to be the comfortable citizens of Everytown, U. S. A., engrossed in daily rounds of hi-fi assembly, television watching, and gambling in socially select and snobbish groups, although heavily mortgaged, deeply immersed in giving proper care to large, lovely homes in select ghettoized communities, and maintaining, even at the cost of hypertension, the kind of materialistic show that sets them apart as different — dwellers in a world of make-believe. They are all over America, in every community, these college-trained men, whose lives have withered away into conventionality. Absorbed in the desperate pursuit of things, they are too busy to participate in political housecleaning; too busy to take part in any vital P.T.A. work; too busy to share in the work of redeeming the undemocratic aspects of American life; too busy to take part in any of the community relationships of American life beyond their own occupational specialty; too busy to help correct and refine family living in the community; too busy to be concerned about the Church, the public schools, local politics, world affairs; too busy giving first-class loyalty to second-class enterprises. Here are the real unemployed intelligentsia: men and women, prepared by ability, opportunity and training to take specific responsibility in the life of their communities; to redirect their thinking into new channels; to challenge their ordinary conventions and mores; to lift the level of their common life; to apply reason and justice to the hysteria and bigotry which too often blight their life — but too busy, and so swallowed up in an anonymity that is deadening. Every fruit-grower knows that his own orchard, no matter how carefully he sprays it, is never free from the danger of parasites and blight, so long as his neighbor does not spray his trees. So, in order to protect his own, he must spray his neighbor's also. So, he has learned a new commandment: "Thou shalt spray thy neighbor as thyself." We must, at long last, realize that in the life of the community, it is not the critic who counts, (Continued on Page 18) not the man who points out how the strong man stumbled, or where the doer of deeds could have done better. The man who really counts in the life of the community is the man who is actually in the area of social action, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs and comes up short again and again; who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions, and spends himself in a worthy cause; who, at best, knows in the end the triumphs of high achievement; and who, at worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly; so that his place shall be with those cold and timid souls who know neither defeat nor victory.

III

Finally, it must be the kind of leadership that will not undercut and sabotage itself because of jealousy, envy or contempt. You know, as well as I, that the breakdown of much high enterprise begun among us is all too frequently traceable to conflict and tension, savage and bitter, between those who are themselves responsible for its ultimate success. “Watch Mr. Preacher,” says Mr. Lawyer. “He is getting something out of this. He would not be doing all this work without seeing his own advantage.” “Look out for Dr. A,” says School Teacher B. “Dr. A. is a shrewd fellow. He will presently be the lion, with you, the lamb, in his stomach. My advice is to stay away from anything in which he is interested.”

This sort of suspicion, based on pure, unadulterated selfishness and evident in every community, sabotages much potential productive effort, and kills off many opportunities for progress and advancement. And the tragedy is that neither the minister nor the lawyer, neither the school teacher nor the doctor, neither the social worker nor the public-spirited citizen get anywhere, nor are able to do anything constructive for the life of the community — and all look upon each other with bitter contempt. A greater tragedy lies in the fact that again and again those suspicions are baseless, for no one has taken time actually to know what any of the others actually said or did or intended to do. And the net result is that nobody is helped and everybody is injured.

Three great Italians wrote their names across almost the whole of the 18th Century. Their names will shine gloriously down the centuries and will make compensation and restitution for a once great people, who in this century were betrayed and degraded by that sawdust, psychopathic Caesar, Benito Mussolini. We need to recall the moving story of Mazzini, Cavour and Garibaldi in that hour when Italy was torn and wretched because of her hopeless disunity. Here were three great men—all naturally gifted leaders, all with talent and genius, all ambitious. They differed widely in temperament, in point of view, in interest. Cavour, the youngest and the first to die, was primarily the statesman. Mazzini was an inspired seer and prophet. Garibaldi was the hard-bitten man of action, the incomparable soldier. Deliberately these men gave up their differences and rivalries because they found they all had one common concern, the desire to see the many, little, self-destroying kingdoms and principalities of Italy brought together into a strong, unified nation. The world knows what happened in history when these three great men combined their gifts and talents and marched one way together.

In the perspective of history, it does appear that ours is a generation of tragic privilege—the tragic privilege of living in the period of the greatest military tension since the days of Napoleon; the tragic privilege of living in the days of the greatest potential economic crisis since Adam Smith; the tragic privilege of living in the days of the greatest moral crisis since the fall of the Roman Empire. But if our is a generation of tragic privilege, our hearts and our minds tell us that for Negroes in America, this is the generation of magnificent opportunity—the magnificent opportunity to forge a decent future for all Americans; the magnificent opportunity to achieve the full emancipation of the Negro; the magnificent opportunity to save the soul of America; the magnificent opportunity to demonstrate that the American Creed can become the American Deed. Men of Lincoln, these are the goals to whose attainment you are in these days challenged to provide leadership that is moral, social and collaborative.

Men of Lincoln: Let us pledge tonight our intention to crusade, where we are, against all the evils of our society that are designed to poison creative human relationships and to crush the constructive growth of human personality because of the false doctrine that claims some men are by origin, birth and nature, superior to others.

Men of Lincoln: Let us pledge tonight our intention, where we are, to reject that doctrine of gradualism which implies that the established laws of this land should be gradually applied and gradually obeyed in order to respect the unjust traditions of men and to give free reign and honor to destructive prejudices.

Men of Lincoln: Let us pledge tonight our intention to take, where we are, every legal stop, to employ every legal measure, and to cooperate with every group, in the struggle to preserve all of the noble ideals of this nation, and to overcome every economic, political and cultural stumbling block that hinders our march toward first-class citizenship.

With love for this nation, good-will toward all its people, utter devotion to its democratic ideals, and undying faith in the purpose of our God, Men of Lincoln, let us pledge tonight our intention to continue, where we are, our labors for the complete victory of freedom in every aspect of American life, and the preservation of the soul of this nation, whatever the cost.

And, if before our high purpose is achieved, we are slain by the venal forces of oppression, let us pray that we shall sleep under the shadows of the banner we love, and that our flowing blood shall wash from this nation's life every blot of shame, and our bleached bones shall fertilize with liberty this hallowed soil for those who come after us, and our sacred dust shall be an eternal memorial to our never-ceasing quest, in these days, for justice, freedom, peace and good-will—a silent testimony to our faith that abiding brotherhood is the inevitable destiny of humankind.

Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, associate professor of the classics, lectured at Millersville State Teachers College June 10 on the subject "The Phaistos Disk: An Exercise in Methodology." On June 26 he conducted a colloquium at Brandeis University on Aegean epigraphy. Dr. Schwartz will participate in the summer military maneuvers of the 311th Combat Area Signal Group, Systems Control and Signal Information Section, August 15-31. He will serve as commanding officer of the unit.
Dr. Moses Lukaczer, professor of economics, is a member of the summer faculty of the Waterbury Branch of the University of Connecticut.

Before going to Waterbury Dr. Lukaczer attended the Third Conference of Pennsylvania Economists at the University of Pittsburgh June 11-12 and participated in the session dealing with "Fiscal and Monetary Problems as Affecting Economic Growth." His review of B. C. Roberts' National Wages Policy in War and Peace appears in the June, 1959 issue of the Political Science Quarterly.

Dr. Elizabeth Beardsley, visiting professor of philosophy, has been elected president of the Fullerton Club, an association of philosophy teachers in the general Philadelphia area. She will serve during the school year 1959-60.

Hugh Greenidge, an economics major, and Matei Markwei, a philosophy major, were elected to Phi Kappa Epsilon Honor Society, which is open to upperclassmen with a cumulative average of 1.67 or better who have submitted a research paper approved by their major professor and who have been in residence at least two semesters.

Announced at Commencement: The Rohm and Haas Fellowship Grant of $2,000, divided among Frank W. Berry, Chapman Bouldin, Hugh G. Greenidge, Orville E. Kean, and John L. Young; Ladies Auxiliary Scholarships, William F. Lawrence and Robert S. Rollins; and Philadelphia Alumni Chapter Scholarships, Roland Clough, Webster M. Fitzgerald, and Howard D. Wood.

CLASS OF 1959

College

Jack R. Robinson, better known as Jackie Robinson, stands proudly as the honorary degree of Doctor of humane Letters is conferred upon him for his pioneering work in professional baseball.

Mrs. Daisy Bates, heroine of Little Rock, beams her pleasure as the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters is conferred upon her for untiring efforts in the cause of freedom.

THE SEMINARY

odds to continue the work of the Seminary. I would call to mind the work of Dr. Horace Mann Bond, Dr. William Hallock Johnson, Dr. Francis Shunk Downs, and Dr. Armstead O. Grubb. Their loyalty has been of great value in the past years of challenge.

Above all, I want to express my deep appreciation to the alumni of the seminary who have given of time and effort that it might continue. I would mention only one name among many, Dr. John T. Colbert of Baltimore, who did so much for Lincoln. These alumni are the real treasure of our Seminary, and through their lives the influence of Lincoln Seminary will remain to bless and inspire the lives of many through the years ahead.

"Thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, my beloved brethren, be steadfast, immovable, always abound-ing in the work of the Lord, knowing that in the Lord your labor is not in vain."

Dear Seminarians:

With the closing of the Theological Seminary, many of you who have a degree only from the Seminary will wonder about your status. I wish to assure you that we will continue to consider you as loyal sons of Lincoln and hope that you will have a continued interest in the welfare of the institution. There are intangible ties that hold you to Lincoln; the dissolution of the Seminary does not of itself destroy those ties. That well known Lincoln spirit was as much a part of the Seminary as of the College; if a spark of it reposes in you, that will be enough to link you to the great Lincoln tradition. The indelible stamp of Lincoln is upon you. Give to the Lincoln University Fund; urge promising students to attend Lincoln; join the General Alumni Association. In this way you will keep alive the pleasant memories that you have of Lincoln University.

Sincerely,

William P. Stevenson, President
General Alumni Association of Lincoln University

Dr. Roy F. Nichols, vice provost and dean of the Graduate School of the University of Pennsylvania, was the Commencement speaker. The distinguished historian was the recipient of the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

Another distinguished historian, Professor Arthur Bestor of the University of Illinois, was also the recipient of the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.
Philip S. Randolph, '41, (center), president of the Eastern Long Island Chapter of the General Alumni Association, presented to Dr. Grubb at the Alumni Banquet $500 from Cyril Thomas, '49, in behalf of the Lincoln alumni of Eastern Long Island, which amount, when matched under the General Electric Company Corporate Alumnus Program, will make an aggregate sum of $1,000 to provide financial aid to students from the Eastern Long Island area.
