Candidates For Alumni Trusteeships Compete In May 4, 1985 Election

Three Lincoln University graduates are candidates for two alumni seats on the University's Board of Trustees. The three candidates and their graduation classes are Eddison R. Hairston, '54, a dentist, who is seeking reelection to the board; Theophilus A. Logan, '39, a realtor; and Dr. Thomas O. Mills, '57, a pathologist.

The deadline for the voting by eligible Lincoln graduates is 2 p.m., May 4, 1985.

The Candidates At A Glance:

Eddison R. Hairston, '54
A graduate of the Howard University College of Dentistry, Dr. Eddison R. Hairston practices dentistry in Washington, D.C. He is an active member of the Washington, D.C., Chapter of the General Alumni Association, having served it in a number of capacities, including president of the Chapter.

Dr. Hairston is also a former president of the General Alumni Association and was elected to the Board of Trustees after his stint as president. He has served on the Board for several terms and has decided to seek another term.

Theophilus A. Logan, '39
A retired United States Army Major, Theophilus A. Logan has his own realty company in San Diego, Calif. He is a member of the San Diego Board of Realtors, which he has served as director and president. He has been a member of the California Association of Realtors and the National Association of Realtors.

He is an elder in the Southeast United Presbyterian Church and a member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity. He believes that he would not only be an able member of the Board but also a representative of Lincoln on the West Coast. He is willing to come East for all meetings and, if necessary, take care of his own expenses.

Thomas O. Mills, '57
A 1961 graduate of Meharry Medical College, Dr. Thomas O. Mills resides in Williamstown, Ma., where he serves on the faculty and staff of Williams College.

He is also chief of the Department of Pathology of the North Adams Regional Hospital in North Adams, Ma., and serves as staff pathologist at Hillcrest Hospital in Pittsfield, Ma.

Dr. Mills, who was honorably discharged from the United States Medical Corps after serving from 1963 to 1969, is certified by the American Board of Pathology in anatomic and clinical pathology. He strongly believes that there should be more alumni activity on the East Coast, especially in the New England area.

ALUMNI NOTES

From the Desk of the Executive Secretary

At the Homecoming meeting of the Council of the General Alumni Association on Oct. 27, the 1984-85 budget, which was tabled at the May meeting until 1983-84 figures for comparison were provided, was adopted. The Council approved the $20,900 proposed by the executive secretary, who drew up the budget in collaboration with the treasurer and with suggestions from the president of the Association. Of the $17,900 proposed for the 1983-84 budget, less than $8,000 was actually spent. The $3,000 increase was approved earlier to raise the executive secretary’s stipend of $2,000 to a salary of $5,000 a year on a part-time basis.

In other business The Council listened to the report of the Presidential Search Criteria Committee of the General Alumni Association, which recommended that the Board’s Search Committee use the following guidelines to aid its search:

(1) The prospective president should be a man or woman not more than 50 years old.
(2) The individual’s credentials must include an earned doctorate in any academic area.
(3) The candidate should be a bona fide fund-raiser, with some corporate experience or contacts.
(4) The candidate should be an individual committed to a standard of academic and moral excellence at the

Process Started to Select New University President

Lincoln University's Board of Trustees' Presidential Search Committee is sifting through the numerous applications sent to the University by candidates seeking to succeed Dr. Herman R. Branson, who retires as University president June 30, 1985.

The deadline for applications was December 31, 1984.

Below is a copy of an advertisement which was published in the Chronicle of Higher Education:

The Board of Trustees of Lincoln University seeks an outstanding individual to assume the presidency of one of the nation's historic, and best private universities. The challenging position requires a person with proven high-level administrative and fund-raising abilities, and educational vision.

The successful candidate should have superior interpersonal skills as well as a distinguished record of scholarly achievements and/or equivalent professional accomplishments in higher education. An earned doctorate at an accredited institution is required.

Lincoln University, which has earned a national reputation for academic excellence during its 130 years, is one of the four state-related universities of the Commonwealth System of Higher Education in Pennsylvania. A coeducational university, Lincoln offers degrees in the arts and sciences, business, music and other fields.

Lincoln, an historically black institution, is located 45 miles southwest of Philadelphia, Pa., and 55 miles north of Baltimore, Md.

The current enrollment is approximately 1,100 students; full-time staff consists of 76 faculty members; 21 administrators and 35 support personnel. Salary and benefits are competitive and commensurate with experience and qualifications.

A letter of application, full resume and three letters of recommendation, which should include the references addresses and telephone numbers, should be submitted by December 31, 1984 to:

Renew Old Ties!
Come Back To Lincoln!
Come to Commencement Weekend
May 3 - 5, 1985

Dr. Herman R. Branson, president of Lincoln University (PA), addresses a campus audience during a February 7, 1985 ceremony at which the school's new Center for Creative Learning was named in his honor. Dr. Branson, a noted physicist, who will be retiring as president of Lincoln June 30, 1985, after 15 years in office, was recognized for his "exceptional contributions as a teacher, scholar and as an educator."

The new center (housed in Wright Hall), which is co-sponsored by the University's departments of chemistry and physics, features over $100,000 worth of the state-of-the-art computers and software. It was created to enhance the academic preparation of science and pre-engineering students.

Ralph Ward, 79, Sports Activist; Formerly Managed in Defunct Negro Baseball League

1926 Lincoln Graduate

Ralph (Stody) Ward, 79, Class of '26, who managed professional baseball in the now defunct Negro National League, died October 9, 1984, at his home in East Wareham, Mass.

Born in Cambridge, Mass., Mr. Ward was on the football and baseball teams while at Lincoln. He played in semi-professional baseball as a pitcher and third baseman.

He campaigned to promote noteworthy black baseball players into the Boston Red Sox. He served on the Massachusetts Youth Service Board and worked as a state parole officer. During the Depression he directed the WPA recreation program for Cambridge Colored Programs.

Mr. Ward was a World War II veteran, having served in the Army as a Red Cross recreational officer for the troops in the Pacific theatre. Later he was a sportswriter for the Boston Chronicle and the Boston Guardian. He was an amateur boxer, and at the Cambridge Community Center was a recreational director.

Mr. Ward was a founder and honorary member of the New England Sports Museum. He is listed as a Negro all-star in the book Fifty Years Down Memory Lane, which is in the National Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y.

He was also involved in recreational programs for prison inmates and senior citizens.

He is survived by his wife, Marie Howard Ward of East Wareham; two sons, Ralph A., and Rodney of Cambridge; and four grandchildren.

Julian H. Mayfield, 56; Popular Actor-Writer

1936 Lincoln Alumnus

Julian Hudson Mayfield, 56, renowned novelist, essayist, actor and playwright, died of heart failure October 20, 1984, at the Seventh Day Adventist Hospital in Tacoma Park, Md.

From 1962 to 1966, he lived in Ghana, where he was a communications aide to former president Kwame Nkrumah (Class of 1939). In the early 1970's, he lived in Guyana, where he was an advisor to the prime minister, Forbes Burnham.

At the time of his death, Mayfield had been the writer-in-residence at Howard University in Washington, D.C. for the past six years.

Born in Greer, S.C., he attended Lincoln University.

Survivors include his wife, Joan Cambridge; two sons, Rafael and Emiliano; his mother, Annie May Mayfield; and a sister, Dorothy Mayfield Barkley.

John R. Lamkin, Retired Atlantic City School Educator

1951 Lincoln Alumnus

A native of Keystone, West Va., Mr. Lamkin became a respected educator and community leader in his adopted Atlantic City.

He began his teaching career at Indiana Avenue School in 1937. In 1950, he was one of the first teachers to integrate Central Junior High School in Atlantic City where he eventually became assistant principal. He held the latter post until his retirement in 1977.

He served as a Boy Scout leader, was a former Basileus of the Upsilon Alpha Chapter of the Omega Psi Phi fraternity, and was an active member of St. Augustine's Episcopal Church.

Surviving are his wife of 47 years, Harriette; three children, a daughter, Martha E. Fenty, and two sons, John R. II, and Martin J., four grandchildren and several other relatives.

Ernest R. Kinbrough, Retired Dentist

1928 Alumnus

Dr. Ernest R. Kinbrough, a dentist from Albany N.Y., died October 8, 1984.

He received his early education in Albany Normal School. Later, he went on to Morehouse College, in Atlanta, to complete his high school work. He received his bachelor's degree from Lincoln University, and the doctor of dental surgery degree from Howard University in Washington, D.C.

Marriages

'83

RICHARD JEROME ANDERSON, JR. (Ramadan), of Philadelphia, joined the United States Air Force on March 15, 1984. He married Lynn Harris, a senior at Lincoln University, on November 17, 1984 in Las Vegas.
New Doctor Seeks To Be Role Model for Youths

1981 Lincoln Graduate

Over 1,000 persons recently attended a $35-a-plate dinner entitled "Tribute to the Man," in honor of Father Paul M. Washington, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Advocate in Philadelphia.

At the February 21, 1985 reception and dinner held at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia, Father Pgml, as he is affectionately known, and his wife, Christine, heard such dal speakers as W. Wilson Goode, the mayor of Philadelphia, and Congressman William H. Gray 3d, praised him as a true Christian, community leader, and world humanitarian.

Proceeds from the dinner will help Father Washington to renovate his church in the north-central section of Philadelphia.

The Rev. Washington is recognized as one of the country's most distinguished black churchmen and community leaders.

He has been active for several years in organizing Philadelphians of all races and classes around issues of war and peace, police oppression, welfare rights, job discrimination, women's rights and efforts to halt the flight of industries from the Northeast corridor to the Sun Belt. A former missionary to Liberia, West Africa, he also served as a chaplain in county and state prisons from 1955 to 1975.

Father Washington has pastored the Advocate since 1962 and has been a member of the bishop's staff for Urban Affairs since 1976. Under his leadership the church has hosted several significant events, including the National Black Power Convention of 1968, the National Black Panther convention of 1970, the irregular ordination of the first eleven women to the priesthood of the Episcopal Church in 1974 and the national convention of the African Peoples Party in 1978.

Deputy to six General Conventions of the Church, Father Washington has served on its Executive (national) and Diocesan Councils, was several times Episcopal Delegate to the National Council of Churches and Anglican Consultant to the Church in the Province of Uganda, East Africa. He has held several other key national church appointments.

A 1942 graduate of Lincoln University, and the former Philadelphia Divinity School, he also holds a supervisor's certificate from the Council for Clinical training. Among more than 20 distinguished awards from church and community groups, Father Washington has received the Doctor of Divinity degree (honoris causa) from both PDS and Berkley Divinity School at Yale.

Chairman of the Philadelphia Council for Community Advancement since 1964, Fr. Washington also chairs the Thomas Skelton Harrison Foundation and serves on the boards of numerous community organizations, including the Greater Philadelphia Federation of Settlements the Greater Philadelphia Partnership and Advocate Community Development Corporation.

A native of Charleston, S.C., he is married to the former Christine Jackson and they are parents of three sons, Marc, Kemah and Michael, and a daughter, Donya.

Patricia A. Hughes, a 1981 Lincoln graduate who recently received her medical degree from Hahnemann Medical School in Philadelphia, says she is not used to being called doctor.

"It still sounds funny to me," she said. "But you also feel proud in a way."

She was accepted by Hahnemann and was enrolled in the accelerated program to enable her to start medical school after two years at Lincoln University.

Dr. Hughes specialized in obstetrics and gynecology because she feels comfortable working with women and finds joy in delivering babies.

After four years as a resident, Dr. Hughes hopes to join a group practice in the Philadelphia area where most of her family now lives. Her mother, Sellie Jackson, continues to live in Lancaster. Her father, Anthony Hughes, lives in New York.

Dr. Hughes also hopes to be involved in academic medicine, either instructing at a medical school or at a teaching hospital.

'45

DR. JESSE B. BARBER, former chief of neurosurgery at Howard University Hospital in Washington, D.C., was recently appointed the first professor of social medicine, at the University's College of Medicine. Dr. Barber also received the Distinguished Service Award of the National Medical Association (NMA) and was appointed chairman of the NMA's Legislative Council at the 1984 NMA meeting which was held in Montreal, Quebec, Canada.
Chief investigator of the Office of the Quartermaster General at the Pentagon. He joined the Smithsonian Institution staff as a museum specialist in the Paleobiology Department in 1961. In 1963, he joined the National Air and Space Museum. Purnell graduated from Lincoln with honors in psychology.

WILLIAM R. SCOTT, associate professor of Black studies and currently chairman of the department was appointed associate dean at Oberlin College of Arts and Sciences, Oberlin, Ohio. In addition to his new position, Scott plans to continue his scholarly research, which currently involves writing two books concerning Ethiopianism among black Americans.

Before joining Oberlin’s faculty in 1977, Scott was a faculty member and chairman of the Black Studies Department at Wellesley College for four years and later was named associate dean of that college. He also served as visiting lecturer in Afro-American history at Harvard. He has received numerous travel and research grants which have taken him to many other countries. In addition to teaching in his field, he has written numerous articles for such publications as Pan-American Journal, the Dictionary of American History, Journal of Negro History, and Umofa.

RICHARD A. WILLIAMS has been named affirmative action officer at Glassboro State College in New Jersey. Previously, he held the same title for three years at Southeastern Massachusetts University.

The private, liberal-arts, independent college, is celebrating its 117th anniversary.

When he assumed the office in July 1983 at the age of 38, Dr. Albright, a Philadelphia native, became the youngest president in the history of the institution (eclipsing his predecessor, Dr. Wilbert Greenfield by one year).

Dr. Albright was educated in Philadelphia’s public schools system, graduating from Overbrook High School. He received the bachelor of arts degree from Lincoln in 1966, the master of arts degree from Tufts University in 1972 and a Ph.D. in educational administration from Kent State University in 1978.

Prior to assuming the presidency of Smith, Dr. Albright served as vice chancellor for student affairs at Lincoln, University of North Carolina at Charlotte (1981-83). He also served as the special assistant to the assistant secretary for the Office of Postsecondary Education (U.S. Department of Education), director of the Moton Consortium on Admissions and Financial Aid, vice president for student affairs at Lincoln, director of admissions and special services, also at Lincoln, and director of Upward Bound at Virginia Union University.

'74

RONALD BELFRON was appointed deputy director of Community Legal Services, the primary provider of legal aid to poor people in Philadelphia, Pa. Previously, he had been an associate professor of law at North Carolina Central University School of Law.

'75

DENISE SPEAKS, an attorney in Pittsburgh, Pa., is the chief counselor for Celebrity Professional Services, a corporation which offers various legal and professional services to Black newspapers, entertainers and athletes.

'76

MARILYN ALLEN is a music teacher at the Pyne Poynnt Middle School in Camden, N.J.

'80

GLENN E. REESE has been named director of the La Matt Community Center, Willow and Sycamore Avenues, Cheltenham, Pa. In the part-time position, he will assist the townships recreation superintendent in implementing recreational activities at the center.

'82

THE REV. DARRELL VAN PELT is the new pastor of Blandonia Presbyterian Church in Sanford, N. C. He preached his first sermon for the Sanford congregation on the fourth Sunday in August 1984.

Alumni, Class to Receive Awards

At its meeting on March 2, in Philadelphia, The Council of the General Alumni Association approved the recommendation of the Nominating Committee to present alumni awards at the annual banquet on May 4 to James R. Tyler, Jr., ’60, and Wyatt Johnson, ’65.

The names of 11 other alumni were considered by the Nominating Committee, but because of little or no support of the University and the Association, the alumni were turned down for alumni awards by The Council. It has been the practice for years to restrict alumni awards to members of reunion classes who support the University and the Association. An alumni award is not given to an alumnus or alumna simply because he or she is distinguished in a particular field.

Because of the activities of one of the reunion classes, The Council voted to give an alumni award to the class as a whole. The announcement will be made at the alumni banquet.

Mr. Van Pelt moved to Sanford in mid-August and said he is settling in “quite well” at his church and in his new home.

Mr. Van Pelt who was born in Newark, N.J., received a bachelor’s degree from Lincoln University before entering Johnson C. Smith University School of Seminary in Atlanta in 1981.

“My great-great-grandfather was a Baptist minister, but I’ve been a Presbyterian all of my life. I received a call to the ministry early in life and knew that to become a minister in my church I had to have at least three years of seminary,” said the Rev. Van Pelt.

Mr. Van Pelt started his training in the fall of 1981 and graduated with a master’s degree in 1984.

He recently married Gail McClusker, a native in Columbus, Ga. They met in 1973 through mutual friends while living in Atlanta.
