Before an audience of 5,000, Lincoln University conferred 192 bachelor and 62 Master of Human Services degrees at its 134th Commencement exercises on May 2.

The University also awarded honorary doctorates to four prominent national and international business leaders. These were led by Babacar Ndiaye, President of Africa’s premier banking institution, the $33 billion African Development Bank Group. Other honorees were A. Barry Rand, Executive Vice President for Operations of Xerox Corporation; Emma C. Chappell, Chair and CEO of the United Bank of Philadelphia, the first African American owned full service bank in that city; and David W. Huggins, founder, President and Chief Executive Officer of RMS Technologies, a $100 million high-tech firm.

About 20 prominent African businessmen and women, including members of the African Business Roundtable (ABR) and other entrepreneurs, along with staff from the African Development Bank (ADB), journeyed to Lincoln University and Philadelphia to attend meetings and receptions in honor of Ndiaye and the ABR. The African Development Bank executives and Roundtable members were honored at a luncheon hosted by Lincoln University and the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce and attended by state and city government officials at the Wyndham Franklin Plaza Hotel in Philadelphia on April 30. A dinner was held on Friday evening, sponsored by Stanley Straughter of DAC International, along with other business leaders in Philadelphia.

On Saturday night, representatives of Black Enterprise’s Top 100 corporations, and prominent leaders in the field of African affairs, attended a dinner hosted by Eugene Jackson, CEO of Unity Broadcasting and World African Network, Malcolm Pryor, head of Pryor, McClendon, Counts & Co., Inc.; Gregory Smith, President of the African Development Foundation; and William Brown Jr., Executive Vice President of HCAM Financial Corporation. Among those participating in this unprecedented gathering of African business leaders were Evelyn Mungai, Vice Chair of the ABR; Bamanga Tukur, shipping magnate from Nigeria; and Isyaku Ibrahim, internationally known financier and manufacturer based in Nigeria and England. African businessmen and women who gathered at Lincoln came from Nigeria, Algeria, Mali, Cote d’Ivoire, Ghana, Guinea and Zambia.

In conferring the honorary degrees, President Niara Sudarkasa stressed the recipients’ contributions, care and concern for others. She referred to Mr. Ndiaye as a “quiet leader in the world of international banking and finance, brilliant strategist and architect of a complex structure of financial institutions... and manager without peer” and told him he is an “African leader whose vision and accomplishments will be remembered as long as the history of this time is told...remembered not only as an effective and respected CEO but as a caring and committed leader.”

The achievements of Mr. Rand at Xerox were seen by Dr. Sudarkasa as both a tribute to his ability and the company’s willingness to put talent above tradition in choosing its leaders. “Your initiatives on behalf of other minorities and women...demonstrate that you not only care about your own upward mobility, but that of others as well.”

Dr. Chappell received acclaim from President Sudarkasa as a “pathbreaker in the world of banking and finance, (Continued on page 3)
Phonathon Volunteers Boost Alumni Percentage of Giving

A phonathon conducted by the Office of Development and External Relations on May 17 through 20 raised a total of nearly $20,000 in pledges for Lincoln. More importantly, when all money is collected and final tallies are made, there is a good chance the percentage of alumni giving will have doubled (from 6% to 12%) — thereby opening the doors for funding from many corporations and foundations which place great emphasis on the percentage of alumni who support their Alma Mater.

“We are very grateful to the 23 volunteers who made calls as well as to those who contributed,” said Dr. P. J. Kennedy, Vice President for Development and External Relations. “I am especially pleased with the willingness of the volunteers and elated that we have met our goal.”

The volunteers were staff, faculty and alumni who met for three hours on each of the four evenings to make calls to a pool of 665 alumni — 455 undergraduates and 208 Master of Human Services (MHS) — all Pennsylvania residents who graduated prior to a designated year. The prospective donors had each received a letter advising them that they would be called. Of 412 people actually reached by phone, 248 pledged a financial gift of from $5 to $1000 — a positive response rate of 60%.

Volunteer Lisa Bacon ’85, who is Director of Student Activities at Lincoln, summed up the event in three words: “It was fun!” — an assessment that was echoed by many of the other callers. Along with Bacon, volunteers who are Lincoln graduates as well as employees were Lloyd Asparagus ’88, Director of Planned Giving; Dr. Frank “Tick” Coleman ’35, Special Assistant to the President for Alumni Giving; Carla Ray ’82, Director of Corporate Relations; and Wyatt Johnson ’65, Director of Alumni Relations. Another volunteer alumni closely associated with Lincoln is Dr. Delores Coleman-Kirby ’72, a member of the Board of Trustees.

A spirit of teamwork and friendly competition prevailed among the phonathon volunteers, who were required to attend a training session prior to making calls. Nightly, they enjoyed a buffet supper during which they discussed their progress, shared information, and gave each other tips. Each evening, a prize (usually a box of goodies) was awarded to the caller receiving the highest total of pledges. The big winner was Wyatt Johnson, whose totals on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday were $1290, $1931, and $1175, respectively. Jernice Lea, Lincoln’s Director of Field Recruitment for MHS, won on Wednesday with a total of $990. Other staff volunteers were Dr. Charles Edlington, Vice President for Enrollment and Student Planning; Jimmy Arrington, Director of Admissions; Cheryl Horsen, assessment counselor; Faye Lambert, executive secretary in the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs; and Dr. Elise Post, Director of the Office of Personnel and Business Services. Faculty volunteers were Dr. Linda Stine, MHS associate professor; Dr. Judith Thomas, Chair of the Department of Education; Professor Emery Wimbish, Head Librarian; Dr. Virginia Smith, MHS assistant professor; and Dr. Mapule Ramashala, Director of MHS.

Also serving as phonathon callers were Janine Bagley, Greg Davis ’85, Rochelle Lewis, Rufus Ragan, and Sharlene Roberson ’80. Administrative duties were handled by Jami Walker, grantsmanship officer; Mark Moulton, administrative assistant to Dr. Kennedy; and Gordon Hesse, Director of Public Relations and Publications.

While the average pledge was $75, the largest was $1,000, solicited by Johnson. Four $500 pledges were made — two solicited by Johnson, one by Ray, and one by Coleman. Fourteen other pledges were for $200 or more.

A by-product of the phonathon was the updating of alumni addresses, phone numbers and places of employment. Everyone in the pool has been sent correspondence: those who made pledges, on collection details; those who said no or maybe, an itemized list of reasons for giving.

“All-in-all, the results are encouraging,” said Dr. Kennedy, who planned and orchestrated the event and has already made plans for four phonathons during the 1993-94 academic year. “The pool will be expanded to cover other states and years. We will make improvements based on evaluations completed by our volunteers, and students will be trained as callers.”

Dr. Kennedy emphasized that every gift is appreciated. “Most alumni do not realize the importance of giving to Lincoln,” said Dr. Kennedy. “The percentage who contribute to their Alma Mater is a determining factor for organizations considering funding of Lincoln programs. Therefore, every gift — regardless of size — is worth much more than its dollar value.”

Volunteers work together to make Phonathon a big success.
Executive Secretary Attends Events
by Bruce M. Benson '75

The Alumni Reunion and Commencement '93 was a joyous time for all that attended. This officer of the Alumni Association was very busy in attending the duties of the office and seeing that all went well with our illustrious alums. Highlights of the events are as follows:

"Phi" and "Pi" Dinner: This event, hosted by Dr. Frank "Tick" Coleman, was the first event to take place on Commencement Weekend. Held in the faculty dining room in the Student Union Building, this affair was free to all that attended. Each person was asked to tell something about his or her Lincoln experience and the times spent on campus as students.

Council Meeting: The meeting received reports from the Director of Alumni Relations, Treasurer, Executive Secretary, and the Trustees. The Alumni Relations Director, Mr. Wyatt Johnson, outlined goals and objectives set up by his office. He has accomplished many of his goals, but still a lot of work must be done to make his office effective and a viable part of the University and the Alumni Association administrations.

The Treasurer's Report included the fact that the Association is fiscally sound, but our income is down $5,400 from last year because our investment income was down and the Lowe Scholarship Fund was transferred out of the Association's control. The treasurer reported that the Association will embark on a fund-raising campaign in the near future to sell jewelry, credit cards, and Pennsylvania vanity license plates.

The Executive Secretary's Report was received with a hold on all recommendations until the Association meets this summer to act and respond. The Association will hold a summer conference on campus to discuss the future of the organization and the direction we must take into the next century.

Annual Meeting of the Alumni Association: Ms. Thelma Hill President of the Association, made her presentation on the state of the Association. She urged the continued support of all alumni for the University and the Association. The Association will work toward adding and/or reactivating 10 chapters this year and increasing dues-paying members. A major goal is to raise $10,000 a year as a gift to the University.

Alumni Banquet: It was announced that Dr. James Donaldson and Dr. Martin Kilson were nominated to the Board of Trustees.

Commencement: The day was beautiful and the graduates and their families were beaming with pride. It will be a pleasure to add these fine young people to the rolls of an already distinguished list of alumni.

In Closing: This was a pleasurable experience for me as Executive Secretary. The weekend was filled with compliments, challenges, and hard work. I will continue in this spirit of service to the Alumni Association of Lincoln University.

dynamic community leader, and caring and concerned community servant. She credited Dr. Chappell with the creation of a "financial institution that is already contributing to the uplift and self-reliance of the African American Community in Philadelphia."

President Sudarkasa said that Mr. Huggins exemplified the "true meaning of the word entrepreneur" and was a perfect role model for the graduates. Lauding his ingenuity, intelligence, risk aid, "Today we hail your pioneering spirit and congratulate you for taking the road less travelled and thereby making all the difference."

The Charge to the Graduates was given by Mr. Ndiaye, who told the students they must be aware of the affairs of the entire world, not just America. "The quest for freedom, democracy, and equality has found its universal echo all over the world, and not least in Africa," he said. "It is not only the past — most graphically symbolized by the common bonds of solidarity of Africans and African-Americans in the independence struggle for Africa and in the civil rights movement in America — that binds Lincoln University to Africa. It is also the present, marked by the immense forces for change which are shaping our common global destiny. The increased involvement of this University in current African affairs — such as your efforts to bring peace to Liberia — is but one testimony to this emerging interdependence." He closed by wishing the University success "in its efforts to expand its horizons and become actively engaged in global and African affairs."

The Response to the Charge was given by Class of 1993 President, Marcus A. Griffin, who assured his classmates, "We will succeed."

On Saturday, the Lincoln University Concert Choir paid tribute to the late Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall (see story on page 5).

At Sunday morning's Baccalaureate Service, Dr. Vashni M. McKenzie, pastor of the Payne Memorial A.M.E. Church in Baltimore City, MD, gave a spirited address, "Hold On To Your Dream Until Your Dream Comes True." She asked the graduates, "Whatever happened to the dreams (of those who have gone before you)?" and told them, "Wherever life finds you, up, down, or in between, always keep working on your dream...whether in the pit, prison, or palace....It is now your turn — you can make a difference in your lifetime."

The electrifying Dr. McKenzie received a three-minute standing ovation at the end of her message.

President Sudarkasa presented to Dr. McKenzie, who was Lincoln's first female Baccalaureate speaker, the President's Award for Excellence for "Outstanding Achievement in Religious Ministry." This year, 28 Lincoln students graduated with honors. Summa Cum Laude graduates were Beverly C. Mathis (Valedictorian); Nneka R. Azikiwe (Salutatorian), granddaughter of the first President of Nigeria, Dr. Nnamdi Azikiwe, Class of 1930; Steven B. Hess; Omaira Melendez; and Janille V. Noble. magna Cum Laude graduates were Ijulu Fernandez, Peri Mutewu, Tracy L. Smith, Tisha A. Ulmer, and Tiria C. Yuille. Those graduating Cum Laude were Patrice L. Abercornbrie, Vonya R. Anderson, Leticia S. Carter, Stacey R. Crummedy, Tabbetha A. Dobbs, Veronica T. Gilliam, Dana L. Jones, Marshae D. Lawson, Tracey L. Leeks, Regina M. Martin, Corve L. Proctor, Danielle Roberts, Tanea K. Robinson, Shawn P. C. Smith, Monifa I. Thomas, Lorraine D. Wilkerson, Kelly D. Williams, and Nevada Winrow.

Weekend Commencement activities also included reunion parties, a meeting of the General Alumni Association, a Langston Hughes Memorial Library Open House, the Annual Alumni Banquet, and an invitational track meet.
Commencement Reflections
by Thelma Hill ’71, President of the Alumni Association

On May 1, our Alumni Council met at 9:30 a.m. in Grimm Hall, when Alumni Trustee Dr. Martin L. Kilson ’53 presented his report from the Trustee Board meeting and Miss Lincoln 1992-93 made a request for financial assistance in her bid for the African-American National Collegiate contest.

The annual meeting of the General Alumni Association met at 1:30 p.m. in the auditorium of Dickey Hall. Dr. Niara Sudarkasa and the University vice presidents gave their annual reports.

The hospitality suite was hosted by the General Alumni Association and the Philadelphia Chapter throughout the afternoon. There, alumni were able to mingle with each other and enjoy refreshments.

On Saturday evening, the Annual Alumni Banquet was held. Many alumni were in attendance and were most generous in their contributions to Lincoln. The Alumni Award recipients were Joseph S. Darden ’48, Donald L. Pierce ’53, and J. Paul Stephens ’68. They are each most deserving of the Association’s highest award; by honoring these three illustrious alumni, the Association certainly honors itself.

After the banquet, there were individual as well as combined class reunions, and we had a chance to interact with alumni from various classes.

Commencement Weekend at Lincoln, which focuses on the reunion classes as a highlight of the many activities that are held, is always a wonderful experience. It is a time when classmates have an opportunity to reminisce about their days at Lincoln and reflect upon their experiences. It is a time for alumni to return to campus to see the growth that has taken place at Lincoln, bringing us to the present and helping us to have a sense about the future of our Alma Mater. If you have not been back to Lincoln in some time, consider returning to visit. There is nothing like the Lincoln Experience.

Next year the reunion classes will be the 4’s and 9’s, and we’ll be looking forward to seeing you.
