

New Faculty Bio

Name: Camille Warner

Position: Visiting Assistant Professor

Department of: Psychology and Human Development

Bio:

I am originally from Bay Shore, NY but spent the last 12 years in the DC/Maryland area. I was a tutor and/or teaching assistant throughout my undergraduate and graduate schooling. My favorite animal is the great white shark, but I am scared of goats.

Educational Background:

B.S. in psychology May 2017 from the University of the District of Columbia

PhD in developmental psychology May 2025 from Howard University

Classes Taught:

I have been a Teaching Assistant for:
Psychology of the Black Experience
Intro Psychology
Foundations of Psychological Science
Statistics I
Research Design and Analysis

Research Interest:

cultural relevant pedagogy, warm demander pedagogy, academic outcomes, cultural socialization

Email: cwarner@lincoln.edu