Dr. Herman R. Branson attended the first meeting of the New Jersey Marine Science Consortium at House of UMOJA in Philadelphia on Dec. 20, and the first meeting of the Science Education Advisory Council of the Philadelphia Board of Education on Dec. 28 in the office of Dr. Constance Clayton, superintendent of schools. On Jan. 4 he attended two receptions in Harrisburg: The Pennsylvania Black Caucus's reception in the Supreme Court Chambers and the reception honoring K. Leroy Irvis, speaker of the House of Representatives and inaugurating the 1983-84 session of the Pennsylvania General Assembly. Dr. Branson spoke on "Blacks and Intellectual Leadership" at the University of North Carolina in Charlotte on Feb. 3. On Feb. 17 he attended a meeting of the Educational Advisory Board of the New Jersey Marine Science Consortium in Philadelphia. Dr. Branson is chairman of the Advisory Board.

Also, Dr. Branson was the Education Day speaker on Feb. 20 at Trinity Baptist Church in Philadelphia. He spoke on "Preparing for College in the 1980's." On Feb. 25 he participated in the Presidents' Forum at the 13th annual Black Conference on Higher Education, speaking on "Opportunities for Equity in Higher Education in the 21st Century," and on Feb. 28 he participated in a Black History Month Program—"Black Americans in Science"—at the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of American History in Washington, D. C. On March 11 Dr. Branson spoke at the dedication banquet of the Allen Christian School in Jamaica, NY. He was the keynote speaker at the Mr. Pleasant Baptist Church in Washington, DC., on March 20, and on March 21 he spoke at California State College in Pittsburgh during their Black History Week celebration. His topic was "Blacks in Intellectual Leadership." On April 16 Dr. Branson attended the annual dinner of the National Association for Equal Opportunity at the Washington Hilton in Washington, DC.

Dr. Judith A.W. Thomas, chairperson of the Department of Education, and Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers, chairperson of the Department of Languages and Linguistics, participated in Oxford High School's annual Career Day on Jan. 19. Dr. Thomas spoke to students about careers in education and Dr. Rodgers about language-oriented jobs as well as those requiring language proficiency. On Jan. 28 Dr. Thomas and Dr. Rodgers attended a meeting of the Black Conference on Higher Education at Bloomsburg State College. Dr. Thomas is the immediate past president of the organization,

THE THORNS amid the roses are Frank T. Coleman (center), director of alumni relations, and Wilbert A. Tatum (right), senior vice president for marketing of the Health Insurance Plan of the Greater New York Area, who was the speaker at the Honors-Alumni-Founders Day convocation on April 7. The roses (l. to r.) are Mrs. Herman R. Branson, Mrs. Frank T. Wilson, Mrs. Alfred B. Cuff, Mrs. Clarence A. Faulcon, president of the Ladies Auxiliary, and Mrs. Leroy D. Johnson, all members of the Ladies Auxiliary, which celebrated its 50th anniversary during the month of April. For a list of the recipients of honors and awards, see page 7.

Ladies Work For Lincoln

Established on November 4, 1933, in response to a letter sent to wives of the alumni by the president of the General Alumni Association, Dr. Walter G. Alexander, the Ladies Auxiliary of Lincoln University has since then invited the "women affiliated with Lincoln University by virtue of their relationship to, or interest in, the alumni and students of the University" to join the Auxiliary "for the purpose of improving the social and cultural life of the University" to join the Auxiliary "for the purpose of improving the social and cultural life of the University." (From the Constitution of the Ladies Auxiliary)

Led by Mrs. Walter G. Alexander, elected president of the Auxiliary at that time, the ladies began immediately to write a constitution and to raise funds to decorate and equip a Hostess House (later known as the Guest House). This House was turned over to the University at Commencement in 1934. Before serving as the Hostess House, the building had been the site of the University hospital; it now houses the Education Department.

In addition to this activity, the Auxiliary raised $1800 during the administration of the third president, Mrs. J. Leroy Williams, to equip a recreation room in a dormitory. Almost from its beginning the Auxiliary has expressed its interest in students at Lincoln by awarding national scholarships. This practice began during Mrs. Williams' administration (1943-45). In addition, local chapters have added to the scholarship aid given to students by providing chapter scholarships over the years. Currently, the Auxiliary gives a $1000 scholarship to a junior and two $50 prizes to seniors.

It was Mrs. William I. Gosnell, president of the Auxiliary from 1945 to 1948, who proposed raising $10,000 to build a new Guest House. This proposal saw fruition with the breaking of ground by Auxiliary president, Mrs. Richard T. Lockett, during the Homecoming meeting in 1953. The Guest House was built with $15,000 raised by the Auxiliary and a loan from the University for an additional $15,000. The ladies also raised around $4,300 to furnish the Guest House. Keys to the Guest House were presented to Dr. Horace M. Bond, president of the University, during Commencement on June 8, 1954. The mortgage repaying the University was burned in 1966 during the administration of Mrs. Frank T. Wilson Sr. The Guest House project was the most ambitious one attempted by the ladies up to that time.

At the present time the Ladies Auxiliary of Lincoln University is engaged in establishing a $50,000 Endowment Fund.

Globally Speaking

By Joseph J. Rodgers

The establishment of President Carter's Commission on Foreign Language and International Studies in 1978 marked a significant landmark in the development of national consciousness of our global interdependence. The Commission's report of October 15, 1979, explains why competence in foreign languages and international understanding is so important to all Americans. In identifying points of greatest weakness, which pose threats to America's security and economic viability, the document continues:

Effective leadership in international affairs, both in government and in the private sector, requires well-trained and experienced experts. And in a democratic society like ours, leadership is paralyzed without a well-informed public that embraces all our citizens. But the hard and brutal fact is that our programs and institutions for education and training for foreign language and international understanding are both currently inadequate and actually falling farther behind. This growing deficiency must be corrected if we are to secure our national objectives as we enter the twenty-first century.

It is indeed high time that the United States recognized its global obligations and the necessary preparation of our people to fulfill our responsibilities. The President, the Congress in various pieces of legislation, and many groups throughout this country have fully recognized that even from the point of view of our own self-interest it is absolutely essential that we understand other nations and other cultures. Otherwise, effective national policy and actions cannot be developed. The consequence can only be a series of tragedies of global dimensions. The Commission certainly recognizes the extent to which we are involved in all mankind, with foreign investments in the United States, American investments abroad, and the global impact of such problems as energy, pollution, population control, food, arms control, and health. These all have practical, immediate, and profound effects upon employment, prices, and our physical well-being. Moreover, we must not fail to recognize the great intellectual and spiritual opportunities which come from efforts to understand other nations and other cultures. In his Odyssey, Homer makes the point that ignorant, barbaric, self-centered people, like one-eyed Cyclops who welcome strangers only to devour them, end with a rude civilization despite their and Dr. Rodgers is completing his third year as secretary of the Conference.

Dr. Thomas was the keynote speaker at the third annual Black History Month Program on Feb. 15 in the Capitol Rotunda in Harrisburg. She was also the keynote speaker at a career luncheon at Lehigh University on March 5. The following day she was the keynote speaker at the Forum for African Contribution to Western Civilization in Wilmington, DE. Her topic was "Black English/Standard English/Bad English." At the invitation of Dr. Ogle Duff, the director of the Desegregation Center at the University of Pittsburgh, Dr. Thomas offered two workshops for supervisors, administrators, counselors and parents on March 24 and 25 on "An Oral Language Approach for Cultural Diversity." Dr. Thomas has been appointed by Governor Thornburgh to serve as a commissioner on the Professional Standards and Practices Commission.

Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers attended the Pennsylvania Black Caucus's third annual Black History Month Program on Feb. 15 in the Capitol Rotunda in Harrisburg. As a part of a three-member panel, he participated in a symposium on "Black Life and Culture in the United States" at Indiana University of Pennsylvania on April 14. His topic was "Is Black English Really Black?" Dr. Rodgers attended the Northeast Conference on the Teaching of Foreign Languages in the newly constructed Baltimore Convention Center April 28-30. NCTFL is the nation's oldest and largest pedagogical meeting of foreign language teachers. Dr. Rodgers, who is listed in the first edition of Two Thousand Notable Americans, will be included in Five Thousand Personalities of the World.

Dr. Joanne V. Gabbin, editor of the BCOHE Journal, attended the meeting of the Black Conference on Higher Education at Bloomsburg State College on Jan. 28. She was a member of the Pennsylvania Department of Education team that visited Elizabethtown College Feb. 2-4 to review the English program. Dr. Gabbin spoke at Westtown School on March 10. Her topic was "The New Negro Renaissance: A Cultural History." She is one of two recipients of the 1983 Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching.

-0-

Dr. Anthony Applegate, Dr. Mary Applegate, and Miss JoAnn DeKonty of the Department of Education have written a WAVE proposal—a school partnership program—that has been funded by the Pennsylvania Department of Education. They are performing services in the areas of language arts and reading comprehension for the Coatesville School District, the Kennett School District, and the Oxford School District. Dr. Mary Applegate, president of the Chester County Reading Association, spoke at the University of Scranton on Feb. 24 on the topic "Parents and Reading Comprehension." Miss DeKonty was invited by the Pennsylvania Department of Education to serve on the review team of Marywood College March 21-23 to evaluate the elementary education and early childhood education programs. Dr. Mary Applegate is one of two recipients of the 1983 Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching.

Mr. Darrell C. Davis, director of admissions at Lincoln, will be included in the 1983-84 edition of Who's Who in the East. Prior to joining Lincoln in 1979, he was assistant director of admissions at Knox College in Galesburg, IL. A graduate of California State Polytechnic University, he has an M.S. degree in college student personnel from Western Illinois University. He is serving as chairperson of the Human Relations Committee of the Pennsylvania Association of College Admission Counselors.

Dr. Thomas F. DeCaro, associate professor of biology, has been elected a fellow in the Eli-Lilly Pennsylvania Program, which is made up of academic persons from the Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey areas. The group discusses the topic "The Biological Basis of Behavior" in seminar sessions once a month at the University of Pennsylvania. Informal discussions are continued over dinner at the University of Pennsylvania Faculty Club.

The Lectures and Recitals Committee presented David Bradley, author of the Chaneyville Incident on March 29. Mr. Bradley, who teaches creative writing at Temple University, discussed his book, which is based on an event brought to light by his mother. A local historian in Bedford, PA, Mrs. Bradley learned of 13 runaway slaves who chose death rather than be returned to slavery. When Mrs. Bradley informed her son that she had discovered the slaves' burial site, he decided to write their story.

Student Serves As Legislative Intern

During the 1982 fall term Thomas Johnson, a junior public affairs major, served as legislative intern for the Bipartisan Management Committee in the House of Representatives in Harrisburg, PA. The Legislative Internship Program gave Johnson and students from other colleges and universities an opportunity to earn academic credit and receive stipends during the 14-week period in which they worked as part of the staff of BMC, which consists of the Speaker of the House, the Majority Leader, the Minority Leader, the Majority Whip, and the Minority Whip. It oversees and directs House Operations.

Johnson became interested in politics at an early age, influenced by the political activity of his family. His plans include law school and running for an elected office. He has his sights set on a seat in the U.S. Senate. As an alternative to politics, Johnson would like to head a community action agency. He is critical of current social and economic structures and has definite opinions about changing them. At Lincoln he is vice president of Nu Chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity and a member of the International, Political Science, Public Affairs, and Co-op Clubs.

rich natural resources. On the other hand, the Phoenicians, who welcomed strangers to their rocky island, developed a civilized, rich nation.

It is essential that in dealing with world cultures we do not confine ourselves merely to Western Europe, from which many Americans have come, although such study is absolutely essential and should be continued. We must, however, recognize that a large majority of the world's people live in Asia, with whose languages and cultures most of us have very little acquaintance. We should realize that a hundred million or more people in this world speak each of almost a dozen languages which are virtually untaught in the United States. In fact, 7/8 of the world's population is non-English speaking, and a quadrant of the inhabitants of the earth speaks some dialect of Chinese.

Ecology Club Has Interest In Trees

The Lincoln Ecology Club has as one of its goals the improvement of the campus environment and hence its interest in the trees on campus. While there are many fine mature trees on campus, many others are dead or dying and the members of the Ecology Club feel that now is the time to begin replacing them. The Ecology Club is, therefore, initiating a "Sponsor a Tree" program to accomplish this goal. For a minimum donation of about $15, a person or group can have a tree planted in his/her/their name. The location may be chosen by the donor as long as it meets the requirements of the campus tree plan. Permanent records of the donation will be maintained by the club and the Alumni Office. The species of tree will, of course, depend on the size of the donation, but the club plans to purchase trees in the eight to ten-foot range, as these have the greatest chance of survival. (Evergreens will be smaller.) This project provides the opportunity to make a lasting gift to Lincoln for a relatively small donation. Interested contributors can contact Dr. David F. Royer in the Department of Biology.

Successful Forum Held At Lincoln

On April 13 the Career Services Center sponsored the first Black Entrepreneurs Forum at Lincoln University. Successful Black entrepreneurs inspired and gave role modeling exposure to students. The forum came about because a number of students had expressed interest in starting their own businesses and needed first-hand information about the accompanying sacrifices, dedication, and trials as well as the fulfillment.

From noon until 2:00 p.m. the minority business leaders assembled on the lower level of the Student Union in order to talk with interested students. Later a question-and-answer session was held in Ware Center with Professor Alexander Gabbin serving as moderator.

Language Dept. Holds Contest

On April 15 the second French Poetry Contest for first-year students was held with the following results:

First prize—Robin Hayes

Second prize—Denise Johnson

Third prize—Yvonne Brown

Fourth prize—Wendy Armstrong

All prizes for the contest were underwritten by Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers, chairman of the Department of Languages and Linguistics, who was also one of the judges. The other judges, Karen Austin, Flora Florentiny, and Phyllis Wolley, were students.

DR. HILDRUS A. POINDEXTER is the subject of a feature article in the April 21 issue of The National Leader. The article refers to Dr. Poindexter as one of the foremost authorities on tropical diseases in the world. He was one of the first to deal with the deadly, dreaded infectious disease known as snail fever. World health authorities estimate that more than 200 million people, most of them in tropical countries, suffer from the disease which is carried by freshwater snails. Dr. Poindexter has studied the disease in many areas of Africa, the Far East, and South and Central America.

DR. OSCAR J. CHAPMAN

DR. OSCAR J. CHAPMAN, former president of Delaware State College and professor emeritus at Salisbury State College was recently appointed by Governor Harry Hughes to the Maryland State Board of Medical Examiners, which is composed of eight physicians and two consumer members, appointed for a term of four years. Among the functions and duties of the Board are the licensing of physicians by examination or endorsement; the examining, certifying and recertifying cardiac rescue technicians; establishing mandatory requirements for continuing medical education; and investigating violations of requirements by physicians, physicians' assistants and acupuncturists and referring the results of such investigations to the Commission on Medical Discipline, if appropriate. Dr. Chapman is now writing his fourth book, Reflections of a Professor Emeritus, to be released during the summer of 1983.

OSCEOLA D. MOORE died in Cape May, NJ, on Feb. 27. In 1938 he began his life's work at Nash County Training School, which was later named Nash County Central High. He left Nash County for two years to serve in the U. S. Army during World War II. Afterwards he returned to stay for 37 years. He was an outstanding educator, coach, stand-in-father and big brother to thousands of Nash County residents. He retired from active teaching and coaching at the end of the 1974-75 school year. He is survived by two sisters, five brothers, two nieces, three nephews, and 14 great nieces and nephews.

OBITUARY

Harrison H. Cain

A native of Charleston, SC, Harrison H. Cain attended the Simonton Public School through the sixth grades when his studies were briefly interrupted by the removal of the family to Brunswick, GA, where he completed the remainder of his education. He was graduated from Selden High School in 1911 as valedictorian of his class. When he was graduated from Lincoln University in 1915, he received the coveted Annie Louise Finney prize as the student who best exemplified the ideals and characteristics of the University.

After graduation, Cain started his career as executive director of the Witherspoon Street YMCA in Princeton, NJ. After spending eight years there, he came to Philadelphia as executive director of the Rittenhouse YMCA, where he climaxed a 40-year career of youth development and improvement in race relations. He was the recipient of a four-year scholarship at the University of Pennsylvania, from which he was graduated in 1934 with a Master of Arts degree in sociology. He did further study in group work and case work at the Pennsylvania School of Social Work and Temple University.

In 1974 Lincoln University conferred upon Cain the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. He was a long-time supporter of the University, an active member of the Philadelphia Chapter of the General Alumni Association, and secretary of the Class of 1915. He died on April 14 and is survived by his wife and a host of nieces and nephews.

The holder of two Master's degrees, one from Rutgers and another from Seton Hall University, William combines writing with teaching. For eight years he taught at Asbury Park High School and then became principal at Junior High School Three in Trenton. Cohesion is a mixture of pathos, romance, and adventure with the action taking place in Vietnam and Atlantic City. The three principal characters — an arrogant Black Marine private, a lovely female Vietcong guerilla, and the grandson of a Mafia chieftain — create an interesting situation.

PATRICIA R. JOHNSON, a former teacher in New York's High School of Music and Art, has resigned her position to become director of community and cultural affairs of the Macy Medical Professions Program at City College of New York. The program came about for the most part because inner-city high school students are poorly prepared in mathematics and science. Because of a generous grant from Josiah Macy, a wealthy philanthropist, there will be 100 students coming into the program for the next four years. The program seeks students from primarily low-income communities. Mrs. Johnson's job entails working with students and teaching them to become more humane in their dealing with the human condition. Through the arts, particularly through trips to museums and concerts, she helps to wed humanity with medicine. She must educate that the arts are ongoing, not extra-curricular.

Born in New York City on Oct. 26, 1934, Ira J.K. Wells Jr., who departed this life on March 16, 1983, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira J.K. Wells Sr. A 1957 graduate of Lincoln University, Wells went on to get a law degree from the Temple University School of Law and pursued graduate studies in law and in finance at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania. Since 1966 he was engaged in the general practice of law as a partner in the law firm of Norris, Hutton and Wells.

Wells's other law-related activities included the position of examiner for the Pennsylvania Board of Law Examiners; attorney in the Office of Regional Council, Department of Housing and Urban Development; law clerk to the Honorable John Fullam, U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania; court crier for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third District; and assistant law clerk to Chief Judge John Biggs Jr. From June 1973 to 1979 he was chairman of Hearing Panel 1.09 of the Disciplinary Board for the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

Wells's professional affiliations included the American Bar Association, the National Bar Association, the Pennsylvania Bar Association, the Philadelphia Bar Association, the Lawyers Club of Philadelphia, the Barristers Club of Philadelphia, Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity, and the American Judicature Society.

Wells was a board member of the United Way of Philadelphia, treasurer of the Mental Health Association of Southeastern Pennsylvania, and a member of the Board of Directors of O.I.C., East Mt. Airy Neighbors, Inc., East Mt. Airy Group Homes, Inc., Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, and the Board of Deacons of Zion Baptist Church. His Masonic affiliation was with the Most Worshipful Pennsylvania Prince Hall Grand Lodge which included James W. Grant Lodge No. 131, Demolay Consistory No. 1 and Pyramid Temple of the Shrine.

Wells is survived by his wife and three children: Joseph, 16; Anita, 14; and JoAnne, 8.
