

Grads Challenged To Help Mankind

In her remarks to the members of the graduating classes, Mrs. Amaza Lockett pointed out that they are now Lincoln torchbearers, and as such they should support their school and help one another. She told how her father had instilled in her and her brothers an eduring love and commitment to Lincoln. She gave a brief history of the founding of the Ladies Auxiliary and their efforts which led to the building of the Guest House and the establishment of scholarships and prizes to help Lincoln students.

Mrs. Amaza Lockett

"Never forget from whence you've come," Mrs. Lockett said, "and perhaps one day you will have the honor of standing where I am now standing and looking out upon the faces of Lincoln graduates, whom you will challenge to devote their lives to helping mankind, furthering educational opportunities and renewing their commitment to Lincoln University. The race will soon begin, but remember that the race is not always to the swift but to those whose endure to the end."

The honorary degree of Doctor of Letters was conferred upon Mrs. Lockett, a former president of the Ladies Auxiliary and for a number of years editor of The Lincolnette, the official publication of the Auxiliary. Mrs. Lockett was felt to be most representative of the women behind Lincoln University, and the University felt it was fitting to give her the recognition during the observance of the 50th anniversary of the Ladies Auxiliary. The honorary degree of Doctor of Letters was also conferred upon Dr. Hans Rosenhaupt, former national director and president of the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Dr. Leonidas H. Berry, a distinguished endoscopist; Constance E. Clayton, superintendent of schools in Philadelphia; and Dr. John A. Davis,

The charge to the graduates was given by Dr. John A. Davis, who pointed out that in spite of the threat of nuclear war and staggering unemployment, especially among Black youth, a liberal arts education prepares one best in time of crisis. "America goes forward haltingly but steadily. I charge you not to forget Africa. I charge you not to forget the problems of cities and the plight of youth. I charge you to join with others in overcoming unemployment and helping to rid the world of the threat of nuclear war. You can face these challenges as others have faced challenges." Renee A. Ashton, president of the Senior Class, responded to the charge.

Rose W. Mwangi and Milton M. Margai Jr., both summa cum laude graduates, were valedictorian and salutatorian, and as such served as honorary marshals. Paula D. West also was graduated summa cum laude. Six students were graduated magna cum laude: Charlene O. Cooper, Roberta I. Medley, Terris L. Moulden, Jayne M. Musonye, Ethel Watson and Phumzile A. Zulu. ## Commonwealth Plan Will Aid Lincoln

Pennsylvania has produced a plan to bring its 32 public colleges and universities in line with U.S. civil rights laws and avoid loss of federal funds for missing desegregation order deadlines. The proposal submitted to the U.S. Civil Rights Office earmarks $27 million over the next five years for Cheyney University and Lincoln University, the two predominately Black institutions in Pennsylvania.

The plan would also link Cheyney and Lincoln with the graduate and professional schools at Penn State, the University of Pittsburgh and Temple University and require the other public schools to recruit minority students at all levels. In addition, each of the state's 14 community colleges, four state-related universities and 14 state-owned universities has developed a plan to increase the number of Black administrators, teachers and non-academic staffs.

The plan calls for $1.7 million in scholarships to be awarded over the next five years to needy minority students to encourage them to attend graduate and professional schools. About $15.5 million is earmarked to be spent over the next five years at Cheyney to expand library holdings, substantially upgrade facilities and improve faculty and staff. At Lincoln, the Commonwealth proposes to spend $11.5 million over the next five years to improve existing pre-professional programs and build computer science and humanities buildings, consolidating social science programs.

A bill that includes the first $1 million the state has agreed to spend to bolster programs at Lincoln was approved by the House by a 196-2 vote. The measure has been sent to the Senate. The $1 million was added to the $4.8 million Lincoln is scheduled to receive from the state in 1983-84 and would give the school a 32 percent increase in state funds. Other state-related universities—Penn State, Pittsburgh and Temple—are to get a 4 percent increase over 1982-83 funding.

Grads Challenged

Services was conferred upon 80 graduate students, who were presented to Dr. Branson by Dr. Robert F. DeHaan, director of Master of Human Services Program.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Dr. LeRoy Patrick, '39, pastor of Bethesda United Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh, and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Dr. Cecil D. Gallup, pastor of the Holy Trinity Baptist Church in Philadelphia. The University Chorale, under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern II, furnished music during the service.

BACCALAUREATE SERVICE

The Rev. Roland V. Jones, '53, pastor of the Miller Memorial Baptist Church in Philadelphia, gave the baccalaureate address in the morning. Speaking on the topic "Can You Use Me, God?" he told the graduates that it was a blessing just to be able to get up in the morning. "It's not your life to do with what you will. Whatever you have, it has come from God. Nothing could have been done without God, but our thinking sometimes cancels God out. If we posture ourselves to God's use he can use us."

Rev. Roland V. Jones

According to the Rev. Mr. Jones, God can use persons of prayer, persons of philanthropy, persons of perception and persons of persistence. "You have ideas about what you want to do. How do you measure your success—money, popularity, awards, status? None of these things matter. What will determine how important your life is to someone else? When you die, will it matter that you have lived?"

George W. Anderson, a member of the Class of 1983, participated in the service with the reading of the scripture lesson. The invocation and the benediction were given by the Rev. John H. West III, the University chaplain. Music was provided by the University Chorale.

Lincoln Receives Engineering Grant

Lincoln has received a $300,000 federal grant to help finance the education of minority students pursuing engineering careers. Students participating in the program will study three years at Lincoln and two years at either Drexel University, Lafayette College or Pennsylvania State University to complete the requirements for an engineering degree. Students also will be offered summer work at research centers operated by the Office of Naval Research, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and private companies. The grant was made by the Office of Naval Research, an agency affiliated with the U.S. Navy. The grant also will help fund Lincoln's aerospace engineering recruitment program.

Young Alumni Pace New York Chapter

More than 60 graduates and former students of Lincoln University, living in the New York area, attended a "reunification meeting" of the Lincoln University Club of New York on June 12 in the Harlem State Office Building. The purpose of the meeting was to create an interest in the Club by women and other recent graduates.

Members of the Planning Committee are:

Also attending the meeting were Archie Perry, newly elected president of the General Alumni Association; H. Alfred Farrell, executive secretary of the Association; and Frank T. Coleman, director of alumni relations.

ALUMNI SUMMER CONFERENCE TO BE RESCHEDULED

The Alumni Summer Conference scheduled on campus July 15 and 16, 1983, was postponed and will be rescheduled. The above decision was made after interested alumni, from many sections of the country, contacted the Alumni Relations Office and requested the conference to be rescheduled. Nearly all of the alumni had commitments prior to receiving the announcement of the Alumni Summer Conference.

Roderick L. Ireland

RODERICK L. IRELAND, associate justice, Boston Juvenile Court, was the recipient of an award for his educational contributions by the Black Educators' Alliance of Massachusetts on June 11. On June 19 he received an appreciation award from the People's Baptist Church in Roxbury, MA, for his work with children. Judge Ireland has had a long and extensive involvement in the fields of education and juvenile law. Among his civic and community contributions, his work for Project Commitment, a program designed to work with selected middle schools in Boston to provide ongoing contact by the court and community volunteers with young people regarding any court involvement has been most exemplary. He has been and continues to be involved in various legal clinics, workshops, bar associations and community-based programs on juvenile law and children rights.

REGINALD NEALY has become the first officer in the Pottstown Police Department to earn a Master's degree. The Master of Human Services degree is his third collegiate degree earned since he dropped out of Pottstown High School in the 11th grade. Nealy joined the U.S. Marine Corps then, serving in a combat unit in Vietnam. He obtained a General Education Diploma (GED) while in the Marines. When he returned to Pottstown, he worked one year for Firestone Tire and Rubber Company and then joined the Pottstown Police Department in 1970. He was promoted to sergeant in 1976. He began attending courses at Penn State University, obtaining an Associate's degree in community services and a Bachelor's degree in administration of justice in 1980. For the past several years, he has served as a substitute teacher in the Pottstown School District in addition to his responsibility as sergeant of Pottstown's second platoon.

School Spirit

By Lisa Bacon '85

I wonder what school spirit was like during Lincoln's early years? Well, today in the 80's, Lincoln University's school spirit has diminished to almost nothing. There have been so many efforts by so few students, but Lincoln University has yet to come back alive. Where has all the roar of the Lions gone? Did it go to the Lions' den where we were eaten up, or did it just die? I can say that school spirit diminished back in the 60's when football ceased to exist here at Lincoln University. After that, students saw no real necessity for school spirit.

There were some good efforts made by Ms. Pamela Keyes (Class of 1982), who was the student body president in 1981. She began to get the students "all keyed up," but when it came time for her to leave Lincoln, the spirit left with her. Because new president, Guy Sims, could not establish any school spirit while in office, he resigned, stating that "there is too much apathy on this campus." This statement is true, but he could have worked much harder.

School spirit means the coming together of the student body as a whole to create interesting activities and to participate in them effectively. By coming together, I simply mean for Lincolmites to begin participating in on-campus as well as off-campus activities sponsored by Lincoln University organizations. Today there are so few people willing to participate in the many activities that occur on this campus that we as a college campus are losing our enthusiasm to fully appreciate the true meaning of school spirit.

Lincoln University used to be and still is a very prestigious Black university where thousands have come and gone knowing the Alma Mater. Alumni would be surprised at how many people these days graduate from Lincoln University without knowing the words or the tune to the Alma Mater. I think that the University administration and staff should put stress on making sure that everyone learns the Alma Mater. It should be a requirement in Freshman Seminar that students learn the Alma Mater as well as the history of Lincoln University. They should also learn why each building was named for different influential Blacks. I know some of the history of Lincoln, but some isn't enough. I also know the Alma Mater. I know these things because I made a special effort to learn them. No one pushed me, but some students need that "push."

LENETTA LEE, a junior, was among those honored for academic achievement at the Annual Eastern Regional Act 101 Awards Banquet held at Villanova University recently. She is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority and was named the Most Promising Early Childhood Education Major for 1982-83. She is working as a tutor/counselor for Lincoln's Upward Bound Program this summer.

There is a fairly new organization on campus, the Lincoln University Pep Team. This group's purpose is to bring back that long missing school spirit. One of its goals is to teach the student body the Alma Mater so that we can bring back that old tradition of singing it at each home basketball game and football game. This group is inactive this semester because of the lack of participation, but the members plan to come back strong when Lincoln University has its very first Pep Rally, and football (hopefully) returns to the campus in October.

CENTURY-PLUS CLUB

The Century-Plus Club is the planned giving program of Lincoln University alumni — alumni committed to giving annually $100.00-Plus (restricted and unrestricted) to Lincoln. Last year in the wake of a declining economy and student enrollment in our 128-year history, the time appeared optimum, not only to renew emphasis on planned giving, but to return to basics by instituting an annual planned giving program.

We focused the giving program on our alumni (a male/female constituency). Our 1983 goal is to have at least 1,000 out of a total alumni body of more than 6,000 to join the Century Club-Plus.

Gratifying is the best word to describe the results to date of the Century-Plus Club. Many alumni/ae are using "matching fund" privileges.

To reach our goal —

300 more alumni/ae must join the Century-Plus Club Deadline — Homecoming Day October 29, 1983.
