HOMECOMING, OCTOBER '83!

Fond Memories for Returning Alumni

It was a time for meeting old acquaintances and renewing friendships. A time to crown a campus beauty Queen. A time of colorful floats, marching bands, sports activities, music, awards presentations and moist eyes.

It was homecoming week at Lincoln University!

From Sunday, Oct. 23, when Miss Lincoln University 1983 was crowned, until Sunday, Oct. 30, when the week of activities ended with a gospel concert featuring internationally-acclaimed singer Tramaine Hawkins, Lincoln's campus in southern Chester County, Pa. bubbled with excitement and fond memories for hundreds of returning Lincoln sons and daughters.

Lincoln, a liberal arts, coeducational, state-related, black historical university, was also celebrating its 129th anniversary.

The week of events were under the leadership of Frank (Tick) Coleman, director of Lincoln's Alumni Office, Class of 1935.

Coleman said many alumni as well as current students wanted to see a return to Lincoln of football, which has been missing for several years at the campus.

"There is a certain element missing without football," said Coleman, "but with all of the activities scheduled (for homecoming week), it was still a very nice time."

On Saturday, Oct. 29, James L. Usry, assistant superintendent of Public Schools in Atlantic City, N.J., a Lincoln alumnus, Class of 1946, spoke at an awards luncheon for university alumni and students.

Andrew M. Bradley, Chairman of Lincoln's Board of Trustees, Dies

Andrew M. Bradley, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Lincoln University, and a former Pennsylvania state cabinet member, died December 17, 1983 at Harrisburg Hospital, Harrisburg, Pa.

A native of Neville Island, Pa., Mr. Bradley had been ill for several months. He was 77 and lived in Harrisburg.

A longtime Democratic Party leader, Mr. Bradley, ironically, died on the day that the Democratic State Committee had picked to dedicate its meeting in Harrisburg to him.

Services were held December 20 at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Harrisburg.

A certified public accountant, he was associated with Lincoln for more than 32 years as supporter and trustee. He was elected to the board of trustees in November 1959 and was elected chairman in April 1978. His four-year term as a member of the board was to expire in 1986. "Lincoln has lost a great champion," said University president Dr. Herman R. Branson of Mr. Bradley's death.

In 1957, and while he served as secretary of property and supplies (now the Department of General Services) in the state cabinet, Mr. Bradley was presented an honorary Doctor of Science degree by Lincoln.

During almost 50 years in government, Mr. Bradley served at the state and local levels.

ALUMNI NOTES

From the Desk of the Executive Secretary

At the August 20 meeting of the Council of the General Alumni Association, Archie Perry, president of the Association, introduced a long-range planning proposal that called for the setting up of seven committees: Fundraising, Presidential Search Criteria, Chapter Visibility, Student Recruitment, Faculty Recruitment, Alumni Center, and the Five-Year Plan Committee (which will be headed by the president and composed of the chairpersons of the other six committees).

Alumni members have been invited to serve on the various committees.

At the Council's fall meeting on Oct. 29, a budget of $17,900 for 1983-84 was adopted, an increase of almost $8,000 over the 1982-83 budget. The Treasurer's Report (for the year ending October 29, 1983) showed a total income of $9,222.06, and total expenditures of $6,696.63, for a net income of $2,525.43. The report gave the net worth of the Association as $38,547.63, which includes money invested in a U.S. Treasury Bill, CIF Reynolds and New Jersey Bell Telephone Securities, and Lukens Steel stock.

Class lists for reunion classes ('4s and '9s) have been updated and given to class secretaries.

Nominations for Alumni Awards were to be sent to the Office of the Executive Secretary to be considered at the spring meeting of the Executive Committee on Feb. 25. Preference is given to members of reunion classes who have made significant achievements in their chosen fields and who have made contributions to Lincoln. Supporting evidence should accompany each nomination to indicate significant achievements. ■

Dr. William E. Gardner New Vice President for Development

Dr. William E. Gardner Jr., professor and chairman of Lincoln's Department of Psychology, has been appointed vice president of the University's Office of Development.

He succeeds Dr. Earle D. Winderman who had been in charge of development at Lincoln since 1962. He retired to Arizona due to health-related reasons.

Among Dr. Gardner's initial projects, is his proposal for a Comprehensive Development Plan which would benefit all elements of the Lincoln community. It is through a program of "planned giving and a special gifts campaign," he said, that the University should acquire the resources needed for its next phase of educational progress.

Dr. Gardner, who has been at Lincoln since 1973, is expected to maintain a part of his duties in the psychology department. He has extensive experience in college teaching, research and administration.

From 1972 until 1976, Dr. Gardner worked during the summer months as adjunct professor of educational psychology at Villanova University. Starting in 1970, and continuing until he arrived at Lincoln in 1973, he was an assistant professor of psychology and educational psychology at Temple University.

Earlier, he served as assistant vice president for academic affairs at Temple.

He received his bachelor's degree in 1960 from Morehouse College; a master's degree in 1966 from New York University; and his Ph.D. in 1970 from Michigan State University. ■

Lincoln Names New Director for Public Relations

Sam W. Pressley, a veteran newspaper reporter, educator and news media specialist, has been appointed director of the Office of Public Relations and Publications at Lincoln University.

Pressley, 35, previously a consultant for media relations and student research for the School District of Philadelphia, succeeds Audrey Dean.

"We are very pleased to have a person of Mr. Pressley's high journalism standards and overall excellence and integrity to join our administration," said Dr. Herman R. Branson, Lincoln's president, in making the announcement.

Dr. Branson added, "With Pressley directing our public relations office, we know that the University will be well-represented to the outside world."

Pressley's new duties include editing the Lincoln Lion.

In 1982, Pressley served as education editor at the National Leader, a national tabloid.

As media advisor to State Rep. Hardy Williams (D-Phila), also in 1982, Pressley, acting as Williams' media advisor, helped to engineer his election to the Pennsylvania Senate.

VANESSA WILLIAMS

Miss America Visits Lincoln University

Miss America, Vanessa Williams, visited Lincoln's campus January 23. During her appearance, she spoke, sang, posed for photographs and signed countless autographs for hundreds of awed Lincoln students, faculty, staff and campus visitors.

Miss Williams, 20, of Millwood, N.Y., who represented that state in last September's pageant in Atlantic City, became the first black woman to win the Miss America title in the competition's 63-year history.

Another first is that the pageant's first runner-up, Miss New Jersey, Suzette Charles, is also black.

During the pageant's first three decades, blacks were barred from entering the competition.

The new Miss America is a junior majoring in musical theater at Syracuse University, N.Y. She stands 5'6" and weighs 110 pounds. ■

From January of 1973 until it closed Jan. 29, 1982, Pressley was a staff reporter and writer at the Philadelphia Bulletin. He was the newspaper's higher education writer from 1976 to 1982.

Starting in 1977, he was hired as an adjunct professor of journalism at Temple University. He has also taught at the Charles Morris Price School of Advertising and Journalism in Philadelphia.

A versatile communicator, Pressley, from 1976 until 1979, co-hosted over Philadelphia station WDAS-AM, a Sunday afternoon, one-hour two-way talk radio program titled "Report to the People."

THE VIEW FROM VAIL HALL

An article by President Herman R. Branson is among 16 scholarly dissertations included in a new book entitled, "Current and Emerging Roles of Black Colleges," which will be published in the spring of 1984.

The book is the outgrowth of a recent seminar sponsored by the National Institute of Education, which brought together some of the nation's top black scholars for the seminar.

President Branson, speaking in October to a convention of black high school students and instructors in Portland, Ore., urged students at mostly black colleges to concentrate more on pursuing degrees in mathematics and the technical fields.

He noted that of the 220 degrees granted during the 1981-82 academic year in computer sciences in the nation, only one went to a black person.

In engineering, it was 20 out of 2,644 degrees. In mathematics, six out of 720.

Dr. Branson said the "woeful neglect and inattention" by blacks to seeking such degrees occur at a time when such degrees are in great demand.

"One of the tragedies," Dr. Branson said, "is that we (blacks) find ourselves thinking that such fields are off-limits.

"Something must be done," he said, "to give blacks encouragement" to seek math and technical degrees.

Dr. Branson was a panelist for a workshop entitled "Analytical Chemistry," sponsored by the National Bureau of Standards of the United States Commerce Department which met Oct. 23-28 in Gaithersburg, Md.

Dr. Branson also served as guest speaker at the sixth annual banquet of the Opportunities Industrialization Center (OIC), Delaware County Auxiliary, Oct. 29, in Essington, Pa. ■

Pressley has received numerous awards during his 12-year journalism career. In 1981, he received the runner-up higher education award in a writing contest sponsored by the College and University Public Relations Association of Pennsylvania (CUPRAP).

Also, in 1981, he was the recipient of the Outstanding Public High School Graduate of the Year Award presented by the Citizens Committee on Public Education in Philadelphia. Pressley is a 1966 graduate of Thomas A. Edison High School.

COUNCILMAN-AT-LARGE John C. Anderson, who was completing his first term in Philadelphia City Council, died on Oct. 3. He died from inflammation of the lungs and tissues. He was 42. Councilman Anderson, a graduate of Howard University Law School, had been legal counsel to Council before being elected to the legislative body.

He was instrumental in drafting legislation in Council insuring that minorities received 15 percent of city contracts. Councilman Anderson also led the fight to get the Townwatch program funded. Various Townwatch groups used their funds to purchase shortwave radios and other equipment to help control crime.

His efforts also included an enactment to a bill requiring Philadelphia employers of 50 or more persons to give 60 days notice to their employees before relocation of their businesses. He was also in the forefront seeking cable television in the city. He was running for re-election to Council in 1983 and was expected to lead the ticket.

Surviving are his mother, stepfather, a brother, grandmother, an aunt, seven nephews and a niece.

Lincoln Rated Among Best Small, Public Colleges in United States

Lincoln University, a coeducational, state-related, four-year, liberal arts higher education institution, is among the best, small public colleges in the country, according to a survey published in a national magazine.

The three colleges mentioned in the survey are listed as "finds you (the public and prospective students) may not have heard about" due perhaps to the institutions' scarcity of national publicity and small enrollments.

But the colleges were also cited as excellent recruiting grounds by deans at the nation's outstanding graduate schools, according to Katharine Davis Fishman in a Sept. 13 article for Family Circle magazine.

Besides Lincoln, the other two small and under-publicized schools mentioned in the survey are New College of the University of South Florida, in Sarasota; and New Mexico Institute of Mining and technology, in Socorro.

Mrs. Fishman based her list on the opinions of deans and admissions directors interviewed at 30 of the nation's leading graduate, law and medical schools.

The category listing Lincoln is part of a large informal telephone survey Mrs. Fishman undertook to have educators list the best public colleges and universities across the country.

"As all college applicants and their parents know," Mrs. Fishman wrote, "tuition and costs are up and Federal financial aid is down."

"The result is an increasing interest in public institutions, where the education is often excellent and the savings substantial."

Lincoln, for example, which enrolls approximately 1,000 students, charges Pennsylvania residents $1,730 annually for tuition and fees. Nonresidents pay but $2,530 per year.

"Lincoln has always maintained that it is one of the best buys and one of the best-kept secrets in higher education," said Lincoln's president, Dr. Herman R. Branson. "We have an excellent and dedicated faculty, a great library and a beautiful campus facility."

Lincoln, founded in 1854, is the oldest college in the United States to have as its original purpose the higher education of black youth. ■

14-Day Faculty Strike Ends at Lincoln

Lincoln teachers on Feb. 23 ratified their new eight-month contract, 43-12. The contract, which extends from Jan. 1 until Aug. 31, 1984, includes a 6 percent pay increase retroactive to Jan. 1. The 116-member faculty stopped work from Feb. 2 to Feb. 15 in the contract dispute which disrupted spring semester classes. ■

Lincoln University's Cross-Country team, coached by Professor Cyrus Jones, finished the season with an outstanding record of 13 wins against one defeat (to Coppin State College).

Coach Jones' star runner, Sammie Jones, a senior, wearing the burnt orange and navy blue, represented Lincoln and District 19 of Division III colleges, Nov. 18 and 19 at the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics' (NAIA) Cross-Country championship meet in Kenosha, WI.

Jones placed 182nd out of a field of approximately 500 runners.

The Lincoln men and women's basketball teams and their coaches and fans are looking forward to next season after recently concluding the 1983-84 campaigns.

The men's team, coached by Mel Jones, finished the season with a record of 7 wins against 17 losses.

"We had on the team this year a lot of freshmen players who are now very much experienced," said Coach Jones.

The Lady Lions finished their season with 10 wins and 11 losses.

"I'm very proud of my players," said Coach Barbara Crittenden. "With many returning players, the team should be in good shape next season."

Meanwhile, the soccer team, coached by Nartey Marbell, had a season of 2 wins and 7 losses. ■
