Lincoln Alumnus and Football Legend, Franz Byrd, '25, Urges The Return of Football To The University

Bright and sunny, with hundreds of returning alumni on campus, Saturday, October 26, Homecoming Day '85, appeared to be a lovely and perfect day.

But for many, including Franz Alfred (Jazz) Byrd, a member of the Class of 1925, something was missing.

A Lincoln Football game.

In fact, no home game was scheduled for the day, Byrd noted, sadly.

Byrd, an honor student as well as an outstanding athlete and football legend during his days at Lincoln, told a luncheon audience that the University could recapture some of its missing "spirit" by returning competitive football to Lincoln, which dropped the sport in 1961 for financial reasons.

To further support his request, Byrd donated a $500 check for the startup of football at the University.

Currently, a committee of Lincoln students, faculty and administrators, including interim president Dr. Donald L. Mullett, is investigating the feasibility of returning football to Lincoln.

Byrd was a record holder in track and field, and in 1923 and 1924 he was selected as an All-American halfback and quarterback for the football team. For three years after graduation he was football and baseball coach at Florida A and M University where his football teams won championships and his baseball teams won championships and sent several star players to the now defunct Negro National Baseball League.

Because his parents were sickly he returned home to New York City where he worked in several Federal government agencies, and public high schools.

During World War II he worked in the Office of Price Administration where he served as chief of distribution of all ration stamps for the Eastern Seaboard (13 states and 762 Ration Boards and Military Installations). After the Harlem race riots in 1943 he was made chief clerk of the largest wartime Ration Board and was cited by New York City for outstanding effort in quelling the riot and awarded an honorary New York City police badge.

Byrd took and passed civil service tests for the Internal Revenue Service and became the first of his race to be

University Starts Fund Raising Clubs

Lincoln will soon start five fund raising clubs among the alumni and the general public to raise money for the University's various programs, interim president Dr. Donald L. Mullett announced at the Oct. 26 Homecoming Day luncheon.

The five fund raising clubs and their dollar amount memberships are: President's Club, open to persons donating at least $1,000 during an academic year (July 1 to June 30); Founder's Club, $750 to $999; Arch Club, $250 to $749; Century Club, $100 to $249; and for those donating at least $5,000 over a maximum five-year period, the University will bestow upon them the President's Gold Club membership.

Donations are retroactive to the start of the current academic year, July 1, 1985. The fiscal year ends June 30, 1986. Club members will receive distinctive certificates and cards.

The five clubs are named for Abraham Lincoln (President), for whom the university is named; Founder's, in honor of Lincoln's founder John Miller Dickey; Arch, for the University's arch entrance; Century, to commemorate Vail Memorial Hall, which was constructed in 1898, and which was renovated from a library in 1973 to serve as the main administration building. ■

Trustees Chairman Retires As Pastor Of Pitt Church

The Rev. Dr. LeRoy Patrick, chairman of Lincoln's Board of Trustees and a 1939 alumnus, was recently honored at a farewell dinner on the occasion of his retirement from the pastorate of Bethesda Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh following 35 years of service.

Dr. Donald L. Mullett, Lincoln's interim president, participated in a tribute to Dr. Patrick at the Pittsburgh dinner. Judge Justin M. Johnson of the Pennsylvania Superior Court was master of ceremonies. Speakers included U.S. Congressmen William J. Coyne and Doug Walgren; state Sen. Leonard J. Bodack; Dr. Jack Milliones, president of the Pittsburgh Board of Education; Lawrence Moncrief, president of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity; and numerous members of the clergy.

Dr. Patrick was commended not only for service to his congregation but for his contribution to Pittsburgh and to the civil rights movement throughout the state.

Dr. Patrick took the helm of Bethesda in 1951, arriving in Pittsburgh from Chester, where he had been pastor of the T.M. Thomas Presbyterian Church since his ordination in 1942.

It wasn't long until he was working for the institution of mandated kindergartens in public schools. As chairman of the NAACP Education Committee, he became embroiled in a battle with the Pittsburgh Board of Education. His actions prompted Time magazine in 1953 to select him as one of 100 potential leaders. He was appointed to the Pittsburgh Board of Education in the 1960s and eventually became its president.

Dr. Patrick was an early champion of civil rights and fought for desegregation of bowling alleys, restaurants, skating rinks and swimming pools in the Pittsburgh area. At one point in the attempts to integrate swimming pools, Dr. Patrick and his group had so many stones thrown at them that the pool in question had to be drained.

Jobs, housing and education were his focus in the 1960s. He joined others in planning demonstrations, conducting sit-ins and walking picket lines to fight for equal opportunities for blacks.

In the 1970s he chaired the Allegheny County Black Political Organization and attended the national Democratic conventions of 1972 and 1976. In 1978 he campaigned for Republican gubernatorial candidate Dick Thornburgh.

His congregation grew steadily, and his church moved from East Liberty to Homewood. There the church opened a community center which offers recreational, social, educational and religious activities to all age groups. A free food larder was started 20 years ago and continues today. A program begun by Dr. Patrick in 1969 has resulted in the church's owning 194 units of rehabilitated housing.

Born in Charlestown, S.C. and reared in Philadelphia, Dr. Patrick received master of divinity and master of sacred theology degrees from Union Theological Seminary in New York City. In 1964, he was awarded an honorary doctor of divinity degree from Lincoln.

He is affiliated with numerous civic and religious organizations, including the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission, the Pittsburgh area Council on Religion and Race, the Urban League and the American Civil Liberties Union. He is a board member of the Homewood-Brushton Revitalization and Redevelopment Corp. and a golden life heritage member of the NAACP. He has received numerous awards for his contributions to religion, civil rights, community service, and health and welfare.

He and his wife, Norma, have two sons, Stephen and Gregory. ■

Search Reopened For New President

The search for a new permanent president for Lincoln University has been reopened, according to the Rev. LeRoy Patrick, chairman of Lincoln's Board of Trustees.

Until a successor to Dr. Herman R. Branson, who retired June 30, 1985, is appointed, Dr. Donald L. Mullett, vice president for fiscal affairs and board treasurer, will continue to serve as interim president, said Dr. Patrick. ■
