Frank (Tick) Coleman Named Special Assistant to President for Alumni Giving; Nathan South Appointed New Alumni Director

Dr. Frank (Tick) Coleman, '35, who has served voluntarily as director of Alumni Relations for Lincoln since 1981, has been named to a newly created position as special assistant to the president for alumni giving, effective July 1, 1988.

He is succeeded by Nathan E. South, a 1979 alumnus, who has been employed as an accountant in the University's Business Office since graduation. Treasurer of the Chester County Chapter Alumni Association since 1982 and treasurer of the General Alumni Association since 1983, South brings to his new position a strong background in fiscal accountability and computer knowledge as well as an unique perspective of the University, its alumni, and the Alumni Association.

"My goals include the forging of stronger ties between the University and the Association," South said.

Dr. Coleman retired from the Philadelphia School District in 1981 after 27 years of service as a home and school visitor and coordinator of various programs. Formerly, he held positions with the Young Men's Christian Association, Philadelphia Wharton Settlement, Wisahickon Boys' Club, and Department of Public Assistance. Holder of a master's degree from the University of Pennsylvania School of Social Work (1959) and an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Lincoln (1984), he is a three-time president of the Philadelphia Chapter of the Alumni Association and represented the alumni on the Board of Trustees from 1973 to 1983.

Active through the years as a leader and counsellor in church, scouting, youth work, and community athletics, Dr. Coleman has received numerous awards in recognition of his many contributions. □

Over $50,000 in cash and pledges was raised and three distinguished alumni honored at Lincoln's recent General Alumni Banquet.

The money, which will benefit the Alumni Endowment Scholarship Fund, was raised among 12 reunion classes: 1928, '33, '38, '43, '48, '53, '58, '63, '68, '73, '78, and '83.

Joseph E. Dyer, of New York, for example, representing the class of 1928, turned in $3,300 at the April 30 banquet at the Student Union Building.

"Six of us (members of the class of 1928) are here this evening," said Dyer. "We've sort of faded away over the years."

The three recipients of Alumni Achievement Awards are:

- Dr. Herman P. Bailey, '38, a former associate professor of education and mathematics at Hampton University in Virginia and associate professor of education at the College of St. Thomas in St. Paul, Minn.; retired U.S. Army Reserves lieutenant colonel, Korean War veteran and holder of the Bronze Star medal for meritorious service; and community activist who has been recognized with numerous awards and citations for his many contributions. He holds a master of arts degree in educational administration from the University of Minnesota (1940) and a doctor of philosophy degree in education from St. Louis University.

- Dr. Ernest C. Levister, Jr., '58, a specialist in internal, cardiology and occupational medicine in San Bernardino, Calif.; a medical examiner for the state of California; former U.S. Army Medical Corps major; former assistant professor of medicine at Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk and the George Washington School of Medicine in Washington, D.C.; and a fellow of the American College of Physicians, diplomat of both the American Board of Internal Medicine and the National Board of Medical Examiners, and member of several prestigious medical societies. He holds, in addition to his bachelor's degree in chemistry from Lincoln, a bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering from Lafayette College (1958) and the degree of doctor of medicine from Howard University College of Medicine (1964). Dr. Levister interned at the Jersey City Medical Center and did residencies at Hahnemann Medical School and Hospital in Philadelphia and Veterans Administration Hospital in Washington, D.C.

Morris, '63, associate professor of pastoral theology and director of ministries in church and society at the Howard University Divinity School in Washington, D.C.; former associate director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference's Operation Breadbasket in Chicago, director of the Afro-American Studies Program at Simmons College in Boston, Mass., and executive director of Martin Luther King, Jr. Center

Message from the GAA President

Donald Pierce

(With this issue of the Lion we are instituting a new policy. That is to run a column in each issue for the president of the General Alumni Association to speak directly with the alumni. In this column we hope to address issues and concerns of the Association and to inform the alumni of events of interest to the University family.)

During my tenure as president I have discovered that many of the graduating classes have either no class representative or an inactive one. This presents problems when we attempt to communicate with the class as a unit. As we move into the capital campaign it is imperative that each class organize and identify a class representative. We are also in the process of reorganizing our local chapters and encouraging the development of new ones. Last year we revised our by-laws to allow more than one chapter in a particular region or city. This would allow the alumni to organize around interest groups. For further information contact: Nathan South, Director of Alumni Relations, Office of Alumni Affairs, Lincoln University, Lincoln University, PA 19352.

We have a number of plans for the next few months to involve the alumni nationwide. We realize that in the past little has been done in the way of services for our alumni. This we intend to change beginning with a Day of Rededication Saturday, October 22, 1988. We are hoping to attract several hundred alumni back to campus for a ceremony at which we will honor a number of our most distinguished alumni. There will be time for some good old-fashioned rabble sessions.

We are making plans to sponsor an alumni tour to West Africa for some time in the next few months. We were thinking in terms of either November, December, or during the summer of 1989. We are open for suggestions. We may be able to arrange to meet with some of our African alumni at that time.

The Office of Alumni Relations has assured me that they will be making visits to Alumni Chapters throughout the country possibly accompanied by President Niara Sudarkasa. For further information on scheduling such a trip contact the Office of Alumni Relations. We will be discussing the feasibility of holding alumni conferences in cities where there are heavy concentrations of alumni. We would like to hear from you if you support this idea. There is some interest among our alumni in the Bahamas in hosting such a conference. As you can see we are moving this Association into the twenty-first century and we need your support. □

Commencement Speaker

In his commencement remarks before a standing-room-only crowd estimated at over 2,600, honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree recipient J. Richard Munro, chairman and chief executive officer of Time, Inc., which publishes Time magazine, challenged graduates to "love" their fellow humans.

"Can you love?" asked Munro. "Will we learn the love that causes ordinary men and women to stop excusing injustice and start fighting it?"

Munro, an alumnus of Colgate University in Hamilton, N.Y., did graduate work at Columbia University, and is a director of International Business Machines Corporation, the Rand Corporation and Genentech, Inc.

The five other honorary degree recipients also spoke briefly during the commencement program.

Baccalaureate Address

Earlier in the day, in a stirring baccalaureate address at Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel, honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree recipient Lerone Bennett Jr. told graduates their work had just begun.

"The next 20 years are the most critical for black people," he said. "There's work to be done, poems to be written, songs to be sung, boys and girls to be saved. This (graduation) is a changing of the guard."

Class of 1988 President Eric Becoats speaks at commencement.

People and nations advance on the shoulders of succeeding generations, he said. "It is only through you that the dreams of the past can be a reality. If you fail, the slaves of the past fail; if you triumph, the slaves triumph. . . . The challenge before you is not to make money but to make truth and freedom. . . . I beg you: don't let black people down; don't let Lincoln down."

Dr. Bennett is the author of the critically acclaimed and best selling book on black history, Before the Mayflower, and executive editor of Johnson Publishing Company's Ebony magazine. A graduate of Morehouse College in Atlanta, Ga., he has written nine books and numerous poems, short stories and articles, many of which have been translated for publication in other countries. He has received several prestigious literary awards.

Other Honorary Degrees

Dr. Sudarkasa also conferred honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degrees upon three other distinguished members of the publishing field and an honorary Doctor of Laws degree on a longtime civil and women's rights activist, as follows:

- Susan L. Taylor, editor-in-chief of Essence magazine and host and executive producer of "ESSENCE, The Television Program." An active member of several journalism and educational organizations, she has been recognized for having promoted new and positive images for blacks and for her work with women in prison and teenage mothers.

- Earl G. Graves, publisher and editor of Black Enterprise magazine, which he founded in 1970, and the head of five corporations. A graduate of Morgan State University in Baltimore, Md., he is a nationally recognized authority on black business development.

In his acceptance remarks, Graves stressed the importance and role of the black-owned press in accurately recording black history and progress. He told the graduates he looked forward to seeing their success stories on the pages of his magazine.

- Jay T. Harris, executive editor of The Philadelphia Daily News, vice president of Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc., and a 1970 graduate of Lincoln. A former assistant professor and assistant dean of Northwestern University, he has done much for the advancement of minorities in the field of journalism.

"This is where I grew to manhood," Harris said of his years at Lincoln. "I have been sustained by . . . lessons learned (here)." He credited his work on the student newspaper, The Lincolnian, with first making him aware that words could be used as "weapons" and newspapers as a "force for good in the community."

The sixth honorary degree recipient, Dorothy I. Height, has served as president of the National Council for Negro Women since 1957. Holder of bachelor's and master's degrees from New York University, she serves as official

Dr. LEROY D. JOHNSON has been unanimously elected to honorary membership in the Oxford (Pa.) Rotary Club in appreciation of his "meritorious service in the furtherance of Rotary ideals that (his) 25 years of continuous membership provided to the Club."

U.S. District Court Judge BARRINGTON D. PARKER, in a recent interesting case, threw out the confession of an alleged Lebanese hijacker who was arrested at sea by U.S. authorities. The action was the first under federal laws designed to prosecute foreign terrorists.

Judge Parker ruled that the FBI violated the constitutional rights of Fawaz Yunis '28, in persuading him to waive his rights to an attorney and in obtaining his signature on a statement of his role in the 1985 hijacking of a Royal Jordanian airliner from Beirut International Airport. Yunis allegedly did not receive adequate medical treatment for two broken wrists sustained during his arrest or for seasickness.

"These constitutional principles should not be cast aside nor minimized merely by invoking 'national security' or 'the fight against terrorism,'" said Judge Parker in a strongly worded 47-page opinion which repeatedly rebuked FBI officials for their treatment of Yunis.

Judge JOSEPH D. ROULHAC retired in 1987 after serving for more than 20 years as judge of Akron Municipal Court, Ohio. Elected four times to the bench, he established a reputation for fairness, firmness and personal attention to those before his court.

Judge Roulhac plans to continue in community service. A member of numerous professional and civic organizations, he has received many citations, recognitions and awards for his outstanding work and notable contributions.

Dr. LEROY PATRICK has been named president of the Pittsburgh New Futures program, a $12.5 million program to help at-risk youth. Funded by the Annie E. Casey Foundation, New Futures will target eight schools in the city's North and South sides in an attempt to alleviate youth unemployment, dropping out, teenage pregnancy, and underachievement. State agencies, human service providers and labor and corporate interests will be involved in addressing the complex issues affecting children at risk.

Pastor emeritus of Bethesda United Presbyterian Church in Homeland, Pa., Dr. Patrick has established a record of years of work for civil rights and equity.

Dr. HENRY SCOTT, a noted Philadelphia physician, has received a patent for his invention, an Ambulatory Lumbo-sacral Traction Unit.

A method for applying traction to the lower spine without being confined to a bed, the unit can be worn under clothing, or over light clothing while concealed by a suit jacket. With its use, many patients with low back pain would be enabled to return to work or continue to work when recuperating from a back injury.

The invention can also be used prophylactically for patients who are subject to back pain caused by occupational conditions.

Dr. Scott served as a medical laboratory technician in the United States Army and as a medical research assistant at Temple University Medical School before entering the Medical School of Howard University, from which he graduated in 1964. While in medical school, he did basic work with vitamin C and wound healing at the United States Army Research and Development Command under Col. Edwin J. Pulaski.

Currently in private practice, Dr. Scott was previously associated with Mercy Douglas Hospital, where he interned and then trained and oriented new interns and residents in obstetrics and gynecology; the Philadelphia Board of Education; and Norristown State Hospital, where he served as a medical director responsible for a 61-bed medical and surgical unit and on the research, utilization board, and drug utilization committees.
