Governor Casey, Clifton Davis, Etta Moten Barnett Receive Honorary Degrees

Alumni attending Reunion May 6 and 7 were among the almost 3,500 people treated to a very special Commencement at Lincoln this year. Pennsylvania Governor Robert P. Casey, acclaimed actor/minister Clifton Davis, and former actress/entertainer Etta Moten Barnett were the honored guests and speakers at Lincoln's 130th Commencement Exercises. Each delivered a speech designed to inspire graduates, families, and guests alike.

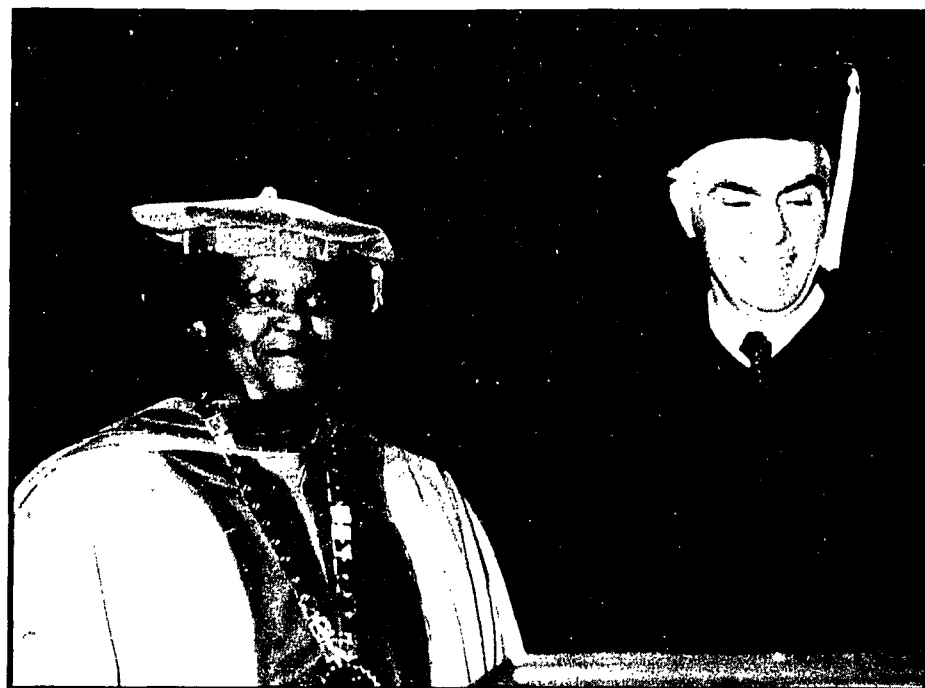

One hundred twenty bachelor of science, 48 bachelor of arts, and 76 Master of Human Services degrees were conferred. Honorary Marshals were class valedictorian Mala Gardner and salutatorian Victoria M. Caldwell.

Gov. Casey urged the Class of 1989 to "never lose your sense of outrage, your determination to change what

Gov. Casey, who also received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree, closed his address with the reading of "I Dream a World," written by Lincoln alumnus Langston Hughes, '29, whom he described as "one of the most extraordinary writers of the century."

Honorary doctoral degrees were also awarded to The Rev. Clifton Davis, who stars in the NBC television series, "Amen," and serves as the real-life weekend assistant pastor for the Loma Linda (Calif.) Seventh-Day Adventist Church; and to 87-year-old Etta Moten Barnett, community activist and former entertainer credited as one of the first actresses to break Hollywood's early stereotype of the Black female.

Rev. Davis served as Baccalaureate Speaker on Sunday morning. In a stirring and inspirational address, he likneeds to be changed in this world" in his Commencement Address. "... Remember the enduring values of faith and family and concern for one another. ... Never forget your roots," he said. "Give back some of what you've received ... fight for justice. Without justice there is not truth, no peace, no freedom."

He lauded Lincoln's "dynamic and visionary" president, Dr. Niara Sudarkasa, who is also a member of his Economic Development Partnership Board. "(She) contributes significantly to the betterment of our state ... is rapidly affirming Lincoln as an international magnet for excellence ... envisions this institution as one of America's outstanding small institutions of higher education," he said. "It's happening. It's real, right now, right here, and this class is a testament to that dream."

ened societal problems to the "Bones of Ezekiel" and graduating from Lincoln, to a mountain top.

"Can these bones live?" he asked, "the bones called poverty ... ignorance ... child abuse and neglect ... homelessness ... hunger ... Beyond the mountain top is another valley to cross ... the valley is America, the valley is the world at large, the valley is life that must be faced with realism and responsibility ..."

He directed the graduates to "prophecy" to the bones. "Prophesying means interaction (and) personal involvement. Your education at Lincoln University has prepared you to ... interact with the problems we'll face in the future, to get involved in the transformation process which dry bones demand ... And when you have done this with vision and commitment ... you'll discover that deep in the valley, 'There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the City of God.'"

Mrs. Barnett, who delivered the Charge to the Graduates, told the Class of 1989 to "keep in mind that empowerment without education will lack direction. Education without empowerment will lead you nowhere. The Lincoln University experience has provided you with the equipment to cope with both."

The Response from the Class was given by Dawn Fant, senior class president. The acclaimed Lincoln University Concert Choir, directed by Gwendolyn Foster and accompanied by Allen Foster, received standing ovations.

Ambassador Franklin H. Williams, '41, with the Reverend Clifton Davis and President Sudarkasa prior to Baccalaureate services on Commencement Day.

Liberty

By

(J. Alvin "Moose" Parker, D.D.S., '42)

This is the Statue of Liberty's decree:
"Give me your tired—your poor—your huddled masses yearning to be free

It seems as though this courtesy was never meant for me!

But from 1892 to 1943, seventeen million aliens made the class,
And duly enjoyed America's freedoms overall.

So I say to the progeny of that vast wave of immigration,

Who would deny liberty to others
while fostering segregation:

My African ancestors preceded yours
by nearly three hundred years!

And by their copious sweat and bitter tears;

Their deprivations; and back-
breaking chores,

They helped to pave the way, and lay the plank for yours!

Old friends . . .

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

As Director of the American Alumni Association of The Hebrew University of Jerusalem, I am trying to locate men and women in the U.S. who attended Hebrew University at any time in the past. There are many Lincoln University alumni who took part in one of the University's Overseas Students Programs, and we would appreciate any help we would get in locating them. Our office is located at 11 East 69th Street, New York, NY 10021.

Many thanks.

Reunion News

Over 400 Alumni Attend Commencement Weekend

Over 400 alumni, including three members of the Class of 1929 attending their 60th reunion, were on the Lincoln University campus for all or part of Commencement Weekend '89, May 5-7. The Rev. Frank B. Mitchell, Mr. Andrew Jenkins, and Mr. James H. Murphy, (who, sadly, passed away the week following Reunion), all Class of '29, were on hand for the weekend's events which were highlighted by class reunions, the Langston Hughes Memorial Library Open House, the Seniors-Alumni "Get-Together," the Lincoln Invitational Track Meet, and the National Ladies Auxiliary Meeting.

At the General Alumni Association Annual Meeting on Saturday, May 6, President Niara Sudarkasa brought alumni up to date on the great strides being made at Lincoln, including the new Institute for International Studies, comprised of the Center for Public Policy and Diplomacy, the Center for the Comparative Study of the Humanities, and the Center for the Study of the Critical Languages; and the John Miller Dickey Hall, a 60,000 square foot, 3-story structure which will house the University's main computer facility, the Departments of Mathematics and Computer Science, and various departments of the Social Sciences Division. The Public Policy and Humanities Centers were launched this spring; ground breaking for the Dickey Building took place April 15.

Dr. Sudarkasa also addressed questions regarding the reinstitution of Lincoln's football program, commenting that such a program, though beneficial, would be very costly and that diversion of funds from academic and other programs cannot be justified. She concluded that the best hope for the reinstitution of football at Lincoln is through contributions and endowments from interested alumni.

At the Alumni Banquet on Saturday evening, Dr. Sudarkasa made a forceful appeal for increased alumni giving and accepted class gifts from the reunion classes. The Class of '79, the largest reunion class, presented to the University (in addition to $3230 for the endowment) a large wall plaque which will keep a permanent record of inaugural and future Lincoln University Hall of Fame members. Organizers of that class's reunion and fund drive were Barbara J. Roberson ('80), Karen Nicholas, Jeffrey Spann, Lawrence M. Hamm, Susan Moody, Derrick R. Henry, Darla R. Pender, Kimberly E. Jones, and Alfred B. For.

The Reverend Clifton Davis was a surprise, and warmly received, guest soloist at the choir concert on May 6.

Alumni Class Commencement Gifts presented at the Banquet included:

Alumni Endowed Scholarship: Class of '29, $300; '34, $5600; '38, $1000, '42, $100; '44, $100; '54, $100; '64, $250; '69, $4838; '72, $1100, '74, $950; and '79, $3230.

Endowed Fund: '39, $40,000 (five year gift).

Restricted to Langston Hughes Memorial Library Festival: '51, $1000.

Restricted to Langston Hughes Memorial Library: '89, $1000.

Reunion of the Golden Class

The Class of 1939—the Golden Class—held its 50th Reunion during Commencement Weekend '89, with 23 members of the class present. Organizing the very successful return of his classmates was Class Secretary Martin V. ("Muddy") Waters.

Class members were individually presented 50-year pins by Dr. Niara Sudarkasa at a Brunch with the President on Saturday morning. Their accumulated five-year gift, announced at the General Alumni Association Annual Banquet, was $40,000.

Standing Room Only at Commencement Concert

There was standing room only at Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel for the Saturday afternoon Reunion Concert by Lincoln's acclaimed Concert Choir, directed by Gwendolyn Foster and accompanied by Allen Foster. The capacity crowd, in sharp contrast to last year's sparse attendance at the same event, was due in part to the tremendous promotional efforts of Dr. Frank "Tick" Coleman, '35.

Lauded with a number of standing ovations from its audience of alumni and friends, the Choir sang a variety of works, from gospel to classical, in the hour and a half performance. Along with Lincoln's President Niara Sudarkasa, the Choir had just completed a highly successful spring tour of Florida and the Bahamas; the Lincoln concert was the last stop on the tour.

Equally warmly received was honorary degree recipient and 1989 Baccalaureate Speaker Clifton Davis, who sang a solo and, with other soloists, accompanied the Choir in a remarkable rendition of "No, Not One."

Class of '89 President Dawn Fant presented Alumni Association Executive Secretary Dr. H. Alfred Farrell with a class gift of $1000 at the Reunion Banquet.

Naomi Woodard-Smoot Scholarship To Be Established

A $5000 endowment has been made by Dr. Samuel L. Woodard, ex '52, for the establishment of a scholarship fund to commemorate his sister, Naomi Woodard-Smoot, who died in November 1987. The first scholarship award will be made in the spring of 1990.

"I owe whatever success I have achieved to my sister Naomi, who began to 'look out' for me as my guardian when she was just 15 years old," said Dr. Woodard, who was orphaned at the age of six. Woodard-Smoot Scholarship Awards will go to top African American students who have lost one or both parents.

Dr. Woodard, who is seeking contributions from family, friends, and his sister's fellow church members in Pittsburgh, PA, hopes that the endowment will reach $10,000. He also said, "I want to challenge other Lincoln alumni to match or exceed my small gift. I call the challenge, 'A Thousand Pieces of Green.'"

Dr. Woodard began his undergraduate education at Lincoln, and holds a bachelor's degree in history and English from Mansfield State University. The holder of a master's in education from Canisius College, and a doctorate in education administration from SUNY at Buffalo, he received post-doctoral training in applied behavioral science, gestalt therapy and transactional analysis.

A professor in the Department of Educational Leadership and Community Service at the School of Education at Howard University, Dr. Woodard conducts training for the District of Columbia Guidance and Counseling Department and team-building sessions with the Mentor Teaching Program of the D.C. Public Schools. He did research on effective leadership and academic achievement in poor Black families under a $300,000 grant from the Lilly Endowment and presented his findings to the Afro-American Studies Department at Harvard in 1978.

His many published articles include "Black Power and Achievement Motivation" and "Belief Congruence and School Integration," both of which appeared in Urban Education; and "School Desegregation: Localism or Metropolitanism" in School and Society. He is the editor of a book, Reducing Stress on Black Administrators, published by Vantage Press in 1978.

Dr. Woodard was co-guest on an Emmy Award-winning Carol Randolph Show television program, "Black on Black Crime."

Portrait Of A College:

Lincoln University

A Review by
Terrence Farrell

Oliver Franklin, '66, returned to his alma mater in 1977 to make a documentary movie about the historic Black college and the controversy surrounding its change in emphasis and focus in the mid 1970s. The result, "Portrait of a College: Lincoln University," is a classic, a jewel of a film. The 77-minute film, shot in full-color 16mm, tells the story of Lincoln's founding in the village of Hinsonville and its growth to preeminence.

"B'More," Franklin's rabble name, combined skillful use of still photographs, clippings, news footage, and live interviews to highlight changes in the college over the years, from the desegregation of the faculty in the '30s to the admission of women in the '60s, among others. Rev. Samuel G. Stevens, '31, Dean Leroy Johnson, '31, Dean James B. MacRae, '24, and students Ruth Fales, '53, Carol Black, '67, and David Closson, '65, are among those featured in reminiscences about their time at Lincoln.

The roles of Lincoln greats, from

Nnamdi Azikiwe to Horace Mann Bond, from Langston Hughes to Thurgood Marshall, are vividly portrayed. And the controversy under President Herman Branson, during which time my father, Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, was arrested and dragged from his classroom, is explored in the film.

For 12 years, "B'More" had the only copy of the film, the 16mm master. The film has only recently been transferred to video. VHS tapes are now available for the first time ($35 for individuals, $75 for institutions/corporations). The tape will be a welcome addition to alumni homes, college and high school libraries, and many academic departments.

President Sudarkasa Hosts Alumni Receptions

Receptions hosted by President Niara Sudarkasa in Washington, DC, and Philadelphia this spring gave area alumni a chance to hear first-hand of recent developments, in curriculum, facilities, and renewed international status, at Lincoln.

In Washington on Sunday, April 23, President Sudarkasa renewed ties with approximately 100 alumni, including Ambassador Horace G. Dawson, Ambassador Charles Nelson, Dr. James Donaldson (former president of the Alumni Association), and former trustee Dr. Eddison Hairston at a reception at the Washington Hilton Hotel. (That evening, Dr. Sudarkasa was keynote speaker at the nearby Montgomery County (MD) NAACP Annual Freedom Fund Dinner.) At the reception, the President addressed Lincoln's recent achievements and future aspirations, and asked for the alumni's unparalleled support, especially financially.

On Sunday, May 21, the President met with approximately 50 Philadelphia area alumni, where she addressed progress with the new Institute for International Studies and the groundbreaking for the new John Miller Dickey Building, reaffirming Lincoln's need for alumni support. She also called on alumni to help Lincoln identify and recruit academically talented students from their area, helping to create a more challenging environment among undergraduates on campus. Following the reception, the Philadelphia Chapter of the Alumni Association made pledges totaling $7,000.

Alumni Chapter Revitalizes

The Eastern Long Island (New York) Chapter of the Lincoln University Alumni Association recently sponsored a concert by an award-winning young African American artist, soprano Elizabeth Lyra Ross. Proceeds benefitted Lincoln University.

The concert was held in the Congregational Church of South Hempstead, U.C.C. At the social hour following the concert, many old ties were renewed and new ones were made.

Organizers of the event were: Dr. Walter W. Haynes, '43; Rev. Geoffrey A. Black, '69; Sandra Long-Belfon, '71; Fannie Davis, '73; and Rodney Bennett, Jr., '85.

FRED S. A. JOHNSON, 86, was featured in a recent Philadelphia area newspaper article which focused on his personal and family recollections relating to Black American history and, in particular, his link to George Washington Carver, the legendary Tuskegee Institute scientist (1860-1943).

Born in South Carolina, Johnson relocated and began high school in Cleveland, OH, then spent three years at Tuskegee in Alabama (1921-23), from which he graduated. After Lincoln, he did graduate work in sociology at Penn State and went on to a distinguished career in YMCA leadership. In 1936, he received an honorary doctorate from Lincoln.

While at Tuskegee, Johnson got to know Carver; he now holds more than a dozen, mostly handwritten, letters—neatly preserved in an album—that Dr. Carver wrote to him over the years. Others were donated by Johnson to the Moreland Springard Research Center at Howard University in Washington, DC.

Dr. H. ALFRED FARRELL, executive secretary of the LU Alumni Association since 1962, was featured in an Oxford local newspaper article on his 75th birthday, February 14, 1989.

Dr. Farrell, whose master's and doctoral degrees in English are from Ohio State University, returned to Lincoln University in 1952, after becoming the first Black assistant professor in Ohio State's English Department and then teaching for a time at Lincoln College in Jefferson City, MO. At LU, he began in a non-teaching capacity as assistant to the president and went on to become chair of the English Department, a post which he filled for 17 years.

Retiring in 1984, he continues to work part-time for the Alumni Association, serves on the University's ACT 101 advisory board, and teaches in an adult literacy program. He is also active in community endeavors, serving on the Executive Board of the Southern Chester County branch of the NAACP, as chair of the Finance Committee and board member of the Oxford Senior Center, and as second vice president and co-chair of the Oxford Civic Association Fundraising Committee.

In 1987, Lincoln University awarded Dr. Farrell an honorary Doctor of Laws degree.

JAMES USRY, mayor of Atlantic City, NJ, and president of National Conference of Black Mayors, recently travelled to London, England, as a member of a delegation of Black leaders led by United States Congressional Black Caucus (CBC) chairman Ronald Dellums. The purpose of the trip was to celebrate with their "kissing kin" across the Atlantic Ocean the inauguration of the Parliamentary Black Caucus (PBC), which is patterned after CBC.

CBC was formed 18 years ago by the nine Black congressmen then serving in Congress; today, it is 24 members strong. PBC was formed recently after three political pioneers in England made history in 1987 by becoming the first Blacks elected to Great Britain's highest legislative authority.

Formed to construct effective lobbying, the two Caucuses share many concerns, including world peace, nuclear disarmament, human rights, poverty, unemployment, education, and South African apartheid.

SEYMOUR T. BARNES, who has several publications related to his experiences in cross-cultural health promotion and is active in the establishment of health education in rural southern Virginia, is featured in the current Annual Report of the Virginia Commissioner of Health.

Barnes, after serving 24 years as a consultant with the United Nations World Health Organization (WHO), retired in 1986 to his home in South Boston, VA. His career accomplishments included the following:

—Effecting a complete reversal in the Suriname Bush Negroes' non-compliance with their government malaria eradication program, resulting in an improvement from over 5000 cases in 1962 to only 10 in 1985.

—Successfully promoting the establishment and strengthening of health education services in 17 Caribbean countries/territories.

—Fulfilling three special assignments to Ghana, where he provided educational advice to the WHO/World Bank research staff on methods of controlling schistosomiasis on the Volta Lake.

—Serving as a member of the WHO/Geneva based Scientific Working Group on Social and Economic Research on the Control of Tropical Diseases.

Barnes, who holds a master's degree in public health from North Carolina State University and another in education from Michigan University, is married to the former Fannie Walker. The couple has two daughters.

EDROYAL SCOTT has written "Profiles of Black Achievers, 1930-1950," recently published by Authors Unlimited, Los Angeles, CA.

The book profiles nine African American achievers of the mid-20th century: Mary McLeod Bethune, director of the National Youth Administration; A. Philip Randolph, progressive labor leader; Paul Robeson, athlete and actor; Langston Hughes (LU '29), poet; Marian Anderson, concert artist; Adam Clayton Powell, congressman and minister; Richard Wright, author; Joe Louis, world heavyweight champion; and Jackie Robinson, first Black major league baseball player. One chapter is devoted to the 99th Fighter Squadron and 332nd Fighter Group and their activities during World War II.

Scott hopes his book, which took six years to put together, will make both adults and young people more aware of the contributions of African Americans to society. He chose to chronicle the lives of achievers during the 1930-50 period because of the significant events such as the Depression, World War II

Dr. HAROLD F. WHITE has been elected president of the Lancaster, PA, nine-member School Board. The group's senior member, he has served on the board since 1971 and as chair of its curriculum committee for 15 years. He advocates increased student involvement in voluntary community service projects, activation of an alumni association, and a stronger Partnership Program with local businesses.

An osteopathic physician, Dr. White supported the district's pioneering sex education curriculum and has advocated major changes for Lancaster's Alternative Education Program for disruptive and truant students.

A graduate of the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine, Dr. White interned at what is now Community Hospital of Lancaster. He served as president of the medical staff of the former Lancaster Osteopathic Hospital, was named 1980 Physician of the Year by the Pennsylvania Society of Osteopaths, and is a recipient of the Frederick Solomon Award from the Pennsylvania Osteopathic Practitioners Society.

Recently widowed, Dr. White has four children.

DAVID WEST, executive director of Penn Health in Philadelphia, is responsible for the institution of a new program, "Docs Against Drugs," which began on February 1 as a means to inform school-age children on the dangers of drug abuse.

Penn Health is the Maxicare Company subsidiary that operates HealthPASS, created by Pennsylvania's Department of Welfare to administer the Medicaid program in Philadelphia. "Docs Against Drugs," according to West, is part of an overall reorganization that will expand traditional forms of medical care for HealthPASS clients who live in the western and southern sections of Philadelphia.

West, who did graduate study at Leonard Davis Institute of the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School, served for eight years as personnel administrator for Mount Sinai Hospital, formerly the Albert Einstein Medical Center, Southern Division. He has also served in the Mental Health Department of the Jefferson University and Hospital and as personnel director of the Philadelphia Child Guidance Clinic.

THEODORE L. GANGES IV, a distinguished award-winning poet and teacher, was recently honored with the Ewing (Mercer County, NJ) Volunteer's Post's Community Achievement Award—which recognizes outstanding persons in the fields of education, law enforcement, community services, youth participation, and political affiliation. The award includes a New Jersey State Resolution, which stated, in part, that Ganges "has made use of his considerable artistic gifts and his charismatic presence in the struggle against many of society's most pressing problems, particularly through his inspirational one-man poemshow entitled A Nickel Bag of Hope."

The Resolution further noted Ganges' "outstanding and exemplary record of service, leadership and commitment . . . enthusiastic devotion to serving others, and extraordinary level of involvement in the life of his community."

Ganges, a Camden High School English teacher, was also the subject of a newspaper feature in the Burlington County (NJ) Times which focuses on his use of poetry as a weapon in the war against drugs. It notes his receipt of a personal letter from former First Lady Nancy Reagan, extending her appreciation and best wishes in his anti-drug campaign.

"I've always been a believer in hope . . . and in the decency of kids," said Ganges, who sees his works as "cultural weapons" against illegal drug use, teenage pregnancy, illiteracy, crime, athletic slavery, and racism. He regularly performs dramatic readings of his poetry (supplying his own background music, often in the form of inspirational hymns) in churches, schools, libraries, and prisons.

MICHAEL K. HASKINS, assistant vice president and manager of community relations at First Pennsylvania Corporation, has been appointed by Governor Robert P. Casey to the board of directors of Pennsylvania Minority Business Development Authority (PMBDA) for a five-year term.

Haskins is also on PMBDA's loan evaluation committee and community development committee. In his capacity at First Pennsylvania, he is responsible for the coordination of the Corporation's community and civic activities in the Philadelphia area, serves as the community reinvestment act officer and monitors activities with minority small businesses and the Philadelphia Mortgage Plan.

Holder of a Master's of Business Administration degree in finance from LaSalle College, Haskins is vice president of the Greater Philadelphia Venture Capital Corporation, and serves on the boards of Philadelphia Health Services Inc. and the Housing Association of Delaware Valley.

DARRYL W. JACKSON has been appointed by United States Attorney Jay B. Stevens to serve as Chief of the Narcotics Section of the District Court Criminal Division.

Holder of a 1977 J.D. degree from Howard University School of Law, Jackson was a case note editor of the Howard Law Journal. Following graduation from law school, he worked as an Assistant Defender with the Defender Association of Philadelphia. He joined the office of the District Court Criminal Division in 1980 and has served in Misdemeanors, Grand Jury, Felony Trial, Appellate, and Trial/Grand Jury. In February 1988, he was appointed Deputy Chief of Special Prosecutions, and in January 1989, acting Chief of Special Prosecutions.

HENRY LANCASTER was recently cited by Black Excellence magazine for having convinced the president of Standard Alaska Production Company (SAPC) that "it was in the interest of Alaska, of the Alaskan oil industry in general, and of SAPC in particular to correct" the underrepresentation (virtually none) from Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) in SAPC's model Summer Professional Experience Program, which is the Company's single most important source of new full-time hires.

In 1988, Lancaster arranged a meeting of oil and college officials which resulted in the placement of four HBCU interns in last summer's program, all of whom agree they have been provided with meaningful professional internship experiences and who, according to the article, "paved the way for other excellent students from historically Black colleges to enjoy next summer a lucrative internship and the wonders of Alaska."

Lancaster, a graduate of Northeastern University, served an internship in law in Alaska. It was then he became convinced that African Americans provide a rationale in the oil industry's quest for Congressional approval to explore for oil in a currently restricted area in Alaska. He argued that revenues from the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge should be used to enhance the education of African Americans and thus develop human resources.

The industry agreed and attached an amendment to its proposed legislation to authorize ANWR oil development, an entitlement of ten percent of revenues to go to HBCUs. Potentially, as much as $100 million per year could be directed toward increasing the pool of educated African Americans. The Board of Directors of the National Association for Equal Opportunity in Higher Education has unanimously approved supporting this proposed legislation.

Master of Human Services graduate LAWRENCE W. PREGLER was recently named director of Breakthrough, the drug and alcohol program at Penn Foundation in Pennsylvania. In this position, he is responsible for overseeing a 23-bed free-standing drug and alcohol rehabilitation program, non-medical detoxification unit, intensive outpatient services, phase I and II recovery outpatient programs, and aftercare monitoring.

Prior to his appointment, Pregler managed several in-hospital psychiatric and chemical dependency units for adolescents and adults and, as a counseling staff member of PADRP of Pottstown, PA, assisted with that agency's adult drug and alcohol rehabilitation program and worked with the community's elderly. He was also affiliated with an Ursinus College program for troubled students.

Class Notes

'82

Master of Human Services graduate JOHN WINSLOW is executive director of Addiction Counseling Services, which recently opened in North Coventry, PA. A certified addictions counselor, he is a member of the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Certified Addiction Counselors and was formerly clinical director of the Personal Growth Center in Bucks County. His wife MONNA WINSLOW, also a LU Master of Human Services graduate, is secretary-treasurer of the new facility.

Winslow is currently developing a lecture/workshop series for community education. Topics will include single parenting, dealing with anger, adult children of alcoholics, and stress management.

GREGORY STANTON ROBERTS has been named administrative assistant at Misericordia Hospital in West Philadelphia.

A resident of Overbrook, he formerly served as clinic manager of Philadelphia Health Services and as chief fiscal officer of Primary Health Care, Inc. At Misericordia, his responsibilities will involve working with the budgeting, business plan development, and safety committee.

Master's graduate CARL SNOWDEN, an Annapolis (MD) city alderman and president of Carl Snowden and Associates, was recently nominated for "Outstanding Young Annapolitan for 1988" by the Annapolis Jaycees.

A member of the Maryland Association of Equal Opportunity Personnel, Snowden is president of the board of directors of the Anne Arundel County Economic Opportunity Committee and a director of the Boys and Girls Clubs of Bywater. As alderman, he introduced city legislation which made racial or religious vandalism a crime and sponsored a successful bill which divested all city investments in companies that do business with South Africa. In November of 1988, Snowden journeyed to Israel on what he called a "fact-finding mission" to discuss human rights and other issues. He noted the commonality of African Americans and Jews in that both have been victims of persecution and bigotry.

Snowden, who hopes to become involved in national or international politics, made a similar journey in 1986, when he toured South Africa as a guest of that country's government.

Master's graduate VINCE CROSSEN, a drug and alcohol treatment specialist for Community Counseling Services in Lewisburg, PA, is in charge of the initial evaluation of an intensive outpatient treatment program recently instituted by Community Counseling of Susquehanna Valley Community Care Inc.

Designed as a middle ground between once-a-week outpatient counseling and expensive inpatient treatment, the program keeps people in the least restrictive environment possible, allows for individual evaluation, and provides the opportunity for personal involvement with local self-help groups. Funded by federal antidrug money, it is based on the book, "I'll Quit Tomorrow," by Vernon Johnson.

According to Crossen, an inpatient program in Minnesota is the only other such program of which he is aware.

Master's graduate JOYCE FOX, R.N., M.S.N., has been appointed to the Human Relations Commission of the City of Harrisburg. In that capacity, she will assist in the administration, implementation and enforcement of the City's ordinances prohibiting discrimination regarding employment, housing, public accommodations, education, and lending practices. She will serve on the Commission until March 1990.

A graduate of Harrisburg Polyclinic

Class of 1984

Hospital School of Nursing, Fox is head nurse of Holy Spirit Hospital's Drug and Alcohol Medical Services and currently serves as adjunct faculty to Lincoln's Masters of Human Services Program.

Fox has been instrumental in the initiation of several Harrisburg area human services including an AIDS task force and Central Pennsylvania Recovering Nurses, a support group for addicted nurses. She serves on the Harrisburg Transient Task Force and the Dauphin County Department of Drug and Alcohol Services Advisory Board.

The biography of Master of Human Services graduate M. KHALIL ABDUL MUHAMMAD has been included in the 1989-90 edition of Who's Who in American Education.

Master of Human Services graduate BARBARA J. MILTON is a member of the Leadership Lancaster Class of 1989. A leader in the areas of children's services and civil rights, she is active in the YWCA, United Way, Neighborhood Services, Lancaster City/County Human Relations Commission, and the Red Cross.

Leadership Lancaster is a one-year course of study sponsored by the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce; participants are selected on the basis of their activism in the community.

And the Classes of 1989! Graduates with bachelors degrees (top) and Master of Human Services degrees (bottom).

J. NEWTON HILL, Lincoln's first African American faculty member, died at St. Vincent's Hospital in New York City on February 11. He was 88 and lived in Manhattan.

Prof. Hill served Lincoln for over 40 years in various capacities, including William E. Dodge Professor of English, Dean of the College, a member of numerous University committees, and director of the Lincoln University Players. Later, he joined the faculties of New York University and Bronx Community College as a professor of African art and English.

Inducted as an inaugural member of Lincoln's Alumni Hall of Fame, Prof. Hill directed the Tramarden Players of Washington, DC, and the Philadelphia Little Playhouse. He was a trustee for the Schomburg Corporation and the Centre for Urban Education; member of the African Studies Association of Brandeis College; Ford Foundation advisor on higher education programs for West Africa; executive director of Karamu House in Cleveland, OH; and co-founder of the American International School in Lagos, Nigeria.

A graduate of Columbia University, Prof. Hill was born in Baltimore. He is survived by his wife, the former Louise Cook; two daughters, Arden Cumberbatch of Mount Vernon, NY, and Sylvia Williams of Washington, DC; and three grandchildren.

Professor J. Newton Hill, '20

Mother Bethel A.M.E. Church, Philadelphia, in 1927, and Elder in Bethel Church, New Haven, CT, in 1929. As pastor of Jones Tabernacle in Philadelphia, he negotiated the purchase of new quarters and relocated the congregation to the church's present site, West Diamond Street. He also directed the purchase of new facilities and relocations in several subsequent pastorates. He is credited with organizing the Congregation L. Ruffin Nichols Memorial in Bryn Mawr and with building The Bishop R. R. Wright Jr. Memorial Health Center in Philadelphia.

Rev. Stevenson was the first Conference and Episcopal District Director of Christian Education appointed in the A.M.E. Church, and served the A.M.E. Church in many other capacities. He was a delegate to the National Council of Churches of Christ, board member of the Pennsylvania State Council of Churches, and co-chair of the Interracial Committee of the former Philadelphia Federation of Churches. He also presided over the Annual Session of The Bermuda Conference and was a member of the Commission that established the A.M.E. Church in Cuba.

President of Lincoln's Alumni Philadelphia Chapter (1952-54) and the General Alumni Association (1954-60), Rev. Stevenson founded several non-profit community organizations in Philadelphia. He also served on a number of hospital and community boards.

Rev. Stevenson was the first minister in the A.M.E. Church to receive a special Episcopal citation and award for meritorious service. He was also the recipient of The Richard Allen Award of the First Episcopal District A.M.E. Church for outstanding service to the Church and humanity.

Rev. Stevenson is survived by his wife, Willie Mae (nee Davis) of Pineville, Charlotte, N.C.; two sons, William P. Jr. and Theodore Jacob; a brother and several nieces and nephews.

Dr. CHARLES SOUTHWARD IRELAND died on December 9, 1988, following a long illness. He was 74.

Dr. Ireland delivered his Lincoln class salutatorian address in Latin. A 1945 honor graduate of Howard University College of Medicine, he interned at New York City's Harlem Hospital and returned to the University's Freedman's Hospital for residency training in internal medicine. His association with Howard, as a student, educator, and administrator (first with Freedman's, then with Howard University Hospital) totaled 46 years and included appointments as clinical professor of the Department of Internal Medicine, Director of Post Graduate Training, Medical Director and Hospital Director of Freedman's, Associate Dean of the College of Medicine, and Director of Howard University Hospital.

From 1954 to 1956, Dr. Ireland, as Lt. Commander in the U.S. Navy, served as Chief of Medicine at Portsmouth Naval Hospital and simultaneously, with Naval permission, as the first medical director of Norfolk Community Hospital.

Dr. Ireland received numerous honors, including diplomate of the American Board of Internal Medicine and of the National Board of Medical Examiners; an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Lincoln; Howard University Emeritus Staff status; and membership in the Kappa Pi Honor Society and the Alpha Omega Alpha Medical Honor Society.

The winner of numerous golf trophies and owner of several boats, Dr. Ireland pursued varied avocations, including sailing and gourmet cooking. He was a collector of fine art and an avid photographer who recorded his travels in Africa, Mexico, Asia, South America, Europe, and the Caribbean. A lover of opera and other classical forms of music as well as a singer, he organized and directed medical school and community choral groups.

Dr. Ireland is survived by his wife, Evelyn; two sons, Charles S. Jr. of Philadelphia and Michael K. of Springfield, MA; four grandchildren, Dr. Charles S. Ireland III, Rebecca and Jill of Philadelphia and Kirby of Springfield; and one brother, George L. of Springfield.

The Rev. WILLIAM M. PERKINS, a long-time associate minister at Vine Memorial Baptist Church in Philadelphia, died at his home in West Philadelphia on May 14.

Rev. Perkins earned master's and doctoral degrees at Temple University and graduated from the Virginia Seminary and College in Lynchburg and the Chaplain School in Fort Slocum, NY.

A commissioned Army Air Corps chaplain during World War II, he was assigned to the 829th Engineer Aviation Battalion in Europe, where he organized a chorus of 200 soldiers for a concert of African American spirituals and folk songs with the London Symphony Orchestra. The concert, intended to foster good relations among the Allies, was presented at the Royal Albert Hall in London. Featuring renowned tenor Roland Hayes and dedicated to all Black troops, the program was broadcast throughout England and the United States. It then toured England and Scotland, and Rev. Perkins received numerous commendations, including a letter from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Rev. Perkins, who also served in Alaska and Wyoming, retired from the Air Force as a lieutenant colonel. He was a 32nd-degree Mason, a Shriner, a charter member of the Liberty Bell MD, and studied at Morgan State College, McCormick Theological Seminary and the University of Mexico. A retired ordained Presbyterian minister, he served for over 40 years as pastor of Hope Presbyterian Church in Chicago.

Rev. Jones is survived by his wife of 42 years, Geneva James Jones; three sisters: Agnes Williams, Ava Chatman, Marie Brown; and three brothers-in-law, nieces, nephews and many devoted friends.

JAMES HOWARD FICKLIN died on November 6, 1988. He was 69.

Born in Matthews County, VA, Mr. Ficklin graduated from Williamsport High School in Pennsylvania and, after Lincoln, attended Temple University. A United States Army veteran, he made his home, with wife Gertrude Woolridge, in Philadelphia, serving with the Veterans Administration from 1945 until his retirement in 1974.

A member of Mount Carmel Baptist Church in Philadelphia, Mr. Ficklin served as a trustee and was a member of The Men of Mount Carmel and the Eastern Region of the Pennsylvania Baptist Laymen. In addition to his wife, his survivors include two sisters, Kathryn Chestnut and Carrie Stewart.

Rev. Dr. CHESTER L. MARCUS, retired regional secretary for Africa of the United Church Board for World Ministries and the first African American to become a national mainline church mission board executive, died in his home in Teaneck, NJ, on April 19. He was 72.

Before his retirement in 1982, Dr. Marcus served the overseas mission agency of the 1.7 million member United Church of Christ in New York for 20 years. He directed the denomination's extensive medical, educational, urban, agricultural, social, and evangelical programs in Angola, Zimbabwe, Botswana, South Africa, Zambia, Tanzania, Malawi, Ghana and Togo.

Dr. Marcus served as an appointed member of the Advisory Committee on Africa; as secretary for racial and cultural relations for the Evangelical and Reformed Church and then for the United Church of Christ, both in Cleveland, OH; on the Executive Committee of the Africa Department of the National Council of Churches; as a member of the National Conference of Black Churchmen; and on the Policy Implementation Committee of the United Church of Christ. On annual visits to Africa, he taught in a seconddary school in Ho, Ghana, gave instruction at a theological seminary in Peki, and managed the Evangelical Hospital in Adidome, Ghana.

Ordained by the Philadelphia Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church, Dr. Marcus attended Albright College in Reading, PA, and held a bachelor's degree from Alcorn Agricultural and Mechanical College in Lorman, MS. After graduating from Lincoln's Theological Seminary, he did graduate work in Western Theological Seminary in Pittsburgh.

As pastor of the Washington Street Presbyterian Church in Reading, Dr. Marcus chaired the Commission on Social Education and Action for the Greater Reading Council of Churches and worked with many community agencies. He was a founder and director of Reading Fellowship House, a leader at the annual Race Relations Institute at Fisk University in Nashville, TN, and dean of the annual Racial and Cultural Institute at McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago.

Dr. Marcus authored a widely used booklet, "The Bible and Race," as well as many articles on a variety of social concerns. At the time of his death, he was a member of the Teaneck Community Relations Advisory Board.

Dr. Marcus' first wife, Warnetta Patton, died in 1958. He is survived by his second wife, Dorothy Hampton Marcus; their daughter, Kathryn Priscilla; his son, Chester Lee Jr., all of Teaneck; a sister, Priscilla Jefferson of Reading; and a sister, Rebecca Cox, and a brother Kenneth, both of Cleveland, MS.
