Message from the President

ADVANCING THE LEGACY: MOVING THE UNIVERSITY FORWARD

Lincoln University is currently experiencing a level of success that we can all be proud of. Together, we have built upon our solid academic and alumni foundation to move the University forward into a highly modern, student-centered institution. The true essence of Lincoln's spirit has been tested during the current economic downturn, and as usual it has prevailed! We are setting precedents with record enrollments, all-time high numbers in alumni giving and involvement, state-of-the-art renovations and construction, and plans for the beautification of the campus.

Faculty, staff and students are taking very seriously their charge to stay committed to excellence. Our newly established Centers of Excellence allow our students to study under five rigorous programs of academic distinction to perfect their chosen career paths: Lincoln-Barnes Visual Arts, Mass Communications, Grand Research Educational Awareness and Training (GREAT) for Minority Health, Business and Information Technology, and Teacher Education and Urban Pedagogy Centers of Excellence.

Commitment to Excellence

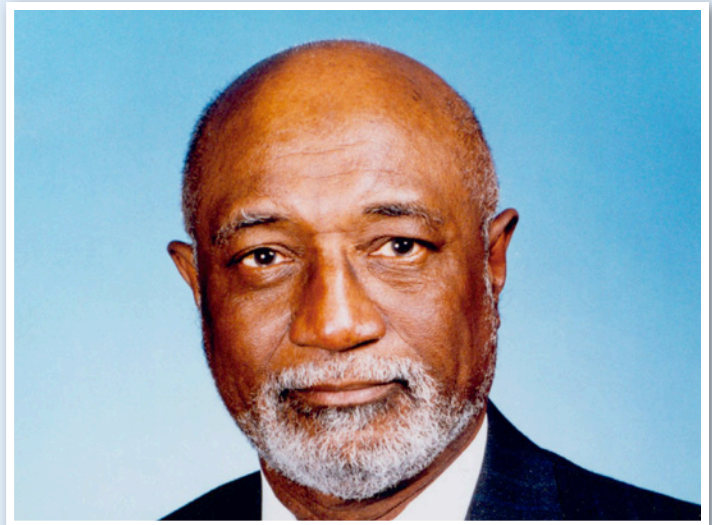

The University's mission to foster in students an appreciation for competition and co-existence in the global marketplace was once again actualized at Lincoln's 150th Commencement ceremony on May 3, 2009, when we awarded 276 undergraduate and 192 graduate degrees to our well-prepared scholars. World-renowned surgeon and chemical engineer Cato T. Laurencin delivered the commencement address and was also the recipient of an honorary doctor of science degree.

The Founder's Day and Commencement weekend recorded the largest attendance in the history of Lincoln University. The onset of the fall semester provided great numbers as well. On August 16, 2009, Lincoln University welcomed over 600 talented freshmen students to join the ranks among budding leaders.

When our alumni return to the campus for Homecoming weekend, October 9-11, 2009, the University will be booming with excitement. Options range from watching our second-year football program battle against Virginia Union; touring the new, state-of-the-art Science and Technology building; and tuning in to the voice of Lincoln University, the remodeled and technologically savvy WWLU 88.7 FM radio station. Additionally, we look forward to receiving our certificate of occupancy to our contemporary and cutting edge International Cultural Center, which will house our African American Art collection, as well as a 1,049-seat theater.

We have remained diligent in our unwavering commitment to position the University as a leader in higher education and produce leaders in an ever changing, global society. With your continued financial and personal support, Lincoln University will advance its undisputable legacy of scholastic achievement and institutional distinction. Excellence is a staple in our history and will remain a constant variable of our future course.

New Trustee Chairman Presents His Vision for the University

Receiving the “Lincoln Mystique” is a major mission for Bishop David G. Evans, the newly elected Chairman of the University’s Board of Trustees. Graduating from Lincoln University 25 years ago in 1974, Bishop Evans still carries that certain “presence, confidence, assuredness, and competitive edge” that only a Lincoln man or woman is known to possess. Now he has taken the charge of introducing those qualities to the new generation of leaders Lincoln is producing.

“We will instill the kind of pride in our students that makes them head and shoulders above the rest,” Bishop Evans said. “The legacy of the institution you come from impacts the way you interact with society. We will continue to produce remarkable, competitive and well-prepared students.”

Magnetizing Lincoln University

Bishop Evans said that he plans to take the experiences he had as a student, the knowledge he gained serving for six years as a trustee, and his external connections to move Lincoln forward academically, socially and environmentally. His three strategic goals for the University are to:

- 1) Rank in the top ten among Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) in the U.S. News and World Report within the next three years.
- 2) Continue to renovate and restore the campus “visually”.
- 3) Become a magnet for high-achieving students in business, mathematics, visual and creative arts, the sciences, and mass communications studies.

Today, as Bishop and presiding officer of the Abundant Harvest Fellowship of Churches, Evans heads an international fellowship of more than 175 churches in the U.S., Africa and India. But beyond his leadership in his church and denomination, Evans is a firm believer in being involved as a civic leader in the community and housing. He was a Housing and Urban Development (HUD) YouthBuild USA partner for South Jersey, a Fannie Mae advisory board member, and is the chairman of the National Home Owner Initiative, as well as the originator of Harvest Transitional Homes for Women.

Pastor, author, television and radio host, music producer, economist, businessman, banker, and now board chairman, Evans defines himself simply as a man on a mission. His mission at Lincoln will be accomplished, he said, through the collective efforts of faculty, staff, administration and board members. In the meantime, all aspects of student life -- including students’ retention, academic curriculum and recruitment -- are being strategically analyzed for enhancements.

“The University has to be a place that attracts people who aspire to become leaders,” Bishop Evans said. “We want to magnetize this University!”

Nationally and internationally prominent orthopaedic surgeon and chemical engineer Cato T. Laurencin charged the graduates at the 150th Commencement ceremony to compliment the long list of distinguished alumni by leaving an everlasting impression on society.

“Take on challenges as opportunities and build your spiritual armor,” said Laurencin, the current vice president for Health Affairs at the University of Connecticut Health Center. “Finally, look to others who have gone before you for inspiration and guidance. You are a part of a proud legacy and tradition here at Lincoln University and I look forward to hearing your names praised among the ranks of the great alumni brothers and sisters.”

This challenge was given to the 468 graduate and undergraduate students who were conferred degrees by President Ivory V. Nelson, Ph.D. The class valedictorian was Antoinette T. Vanterpool, who hails from St. Thomas, majored in Political Science with a 3.98 grade point average (GPA); and the salutatorian was Brooke M. Womack, who hails from New Jersey, majored in Health Science with a 3.92 GPA.

President Nelson also recognized three faculty members with the Board of Trustees faculty awards. The recipients were: Dr. Emery Petchauer, assistant professor in the Teacher Education and Urban Pedagogy Center of Excellence with the Henry G. Cornwell Distinguished Teaching Award; Dr. Oswald Richards, chairman and associate professor of the Business and Information Technology Center of Excellence with the Soraya M. Coley Distinguished Service Award; and Dr. Derrick Swinton, associate professor in the Grand Research Educational Awareness and Training (GREAT) for Minority Health Center of Excellence with the Hildrus A. Poindexter Distinguished Research Award.

In addition to Laurencin, who received an honorary doctor of science degree, the University honored Dr. Julius H. Taylor '38, Dr. Boyce C. Williams '74, and Dr. Walter P. Lomax with an honorary doctor of science, doctor of humane letters, and doctor of science degree, respectively.

Student Spotlight

Curtis Reed '11

Conquering the art of storytelling is the gift that landed junior, Curtis Reed as the 2nd-place National Oratorical Contest winner on August 7, 2009. The PA Woman's Christian Temperance Union (WTCU) ranked Reed as the best speaker for the Lincoln University campus-wide competition in the spring, for his speech "Alcohol – You Can't Resist Me." Later, Reed earned another 1st-place spot at the Intercollegiate Oratorical contest at the WTCU Annual Mid-year Rally. In his speech, Reed dramatized the adverse effects alcohol has on the body.

Holly Snider '10

Holly Snider, a senior and an English major, participated in the Summer Institute for Literary and Cultural Studies (SILCS) last summer. Snider spent June 1-28 housed at Wheaton College in Norton, MA with eleven other highly motivated English majors. The students, selected from a very competitive national pool, studied literary and cultural theory. She visited Harvard, Yale and other New England university graduate English programs. The program supplements the undergraduate curriculum, introduces students to archival research, and works on writing and presentation skills. Snider's sponsor, who pledges to guide the student through the graduate school process, is English and Mass Communications Professor Dr. Jeff Hoogeveen.

Omar Glinton '12

Opting to stay in the United States for his summer vacation proved to be very beneficial for sophomore and Bahamas native Omar Glinton. Starting June 8, 2009, Glinton interned at PricewaterhouseCoopers, one of the world's largest professional services firms. He served as an Internal Firm Services Intern through the company's Talent Development Program. Some of his duties were to assist with the implementation of the program management team, as well as shadow the client service employees in the tax, insurance and advisory departments.

Glinton's short-term goals are to pass the exam for certified public accountants (CPA) by October 2012 and the General Securities Representative exam (Series 7) by December 2012. His commitment to excellence gained him an outstanding review from the company's representatives and an invitation back to next year's internship program. Additionally, PricewaterhouseCoopers selected him as one of the nation's 75 recipients of the 2009 PWC Exceed Scholarship.

Inibong Ukapadio '10

International exchange student and senior Inibong Ukapadio, of Nigeria, has joined the Lincoln University family for a full semester this fall. Inibong, which means "God's Time" in Ibibio, came as an exchange student from the United States International University in Nairobi, Kenya. While at Lincoln, Ukapadio signed up for 16 credit-hours, focusing on international relations to pursue her career path in international law and diplomacy. Impressed with the University's support and academic environment, Ukapadio has decided to remain in the U.S. to attend graduate school.

Alumni Notes

Tehma Smith '00

Journeying ten hours away from home on a flight across the Atlantic Ocean with a group of 16 church members for a two-week mission was one of the most fulfilling trips made by Tehma Smith, a Lincoln trustee and 2000 graduate. The Huber Memorial Church of Baltimore, MD traveled half way across the world to their adopted village of Maykeri in Accra, Ghana, West Africa.

Smith, along with the other members, provided the village people with medical clinics, clothing donations and one-on-one fellowship and counseling. Smith also included on the agenda the introduction of college opportunities in the United States, primarily at the alma mater of President Kwame Nkrumah, Lincoln University.

Smith's travelogue contained: the voyage down the "Last Path" (the path taken by an enslaved African before crossing the Atlantic); a visit to the memorial and museum of her fellow alumni and former Ghanaian president, Kwame Nkrumah; and accommodations throughout several villages in the capital city of Accra.

Howard Erwin '42

Cambridge Who's Who has recognized Howard Erwin '42, retired director of Laboratory Services at the University of the District of Columbia for showing dedication, leadership and excellence in all aspects of laboratory science and management.

As the director of Laboratory Services, Erwin was responsible primarily with testing chemotherapy drugs, taking note of the side effects and attempting to mitigate some of those side effects, thus making the drugs more easily useable for cancer patients. He is lauded widely for his contributions to cancer medicine, particularly for the role that he played in the use of the newly developed drug Methotrexate, manufactured by Amgen and Wyeth.
