LINCOLN UNIVERSITY
Lincoln University, Pa. 19382

Second Class Postage Paid at Lincoln University, Pa.

Lincoln closed abruptly, May 15, following the tragic deaths of two students killed at Jackson State College, Jackson, Mississippi.

Acting President, Dr. Bernard W. Harleston ended the University year in action following meetings with students, members of the Student Government, Administrative Council and Division Chairmen. In a notice to the students (see insert) and faculty, Dr. Harleston said, "Out of respect for the students who were killed at Jackson State College, Lincoln University will officially close indefinitely at 1 p.m. today, Friday, May 15, 1970."

The Friday closing brought to an end two weeks of growing tension on Lincoln's campus which had begun with the Nixon decision to move troops into Cambodia; built with the killing of four students at Kent State, Ohio and grew to near-kindling temperature with the killings of six blacks in Augusta, Ga., Monday night, May 11.

"The school was closed as a precautionary move and our major and single concern was the safety of each student," Dr. Harleston said.

Dr. Harleston - Acting President

— ANNOUNCED TO STUDENTS —

The decision to close Lincoln was announced to the students via letters to each individual which also contained notice that dormitories would close as of 8 p.m. Friday, final examinations were cancelled and travel arrangements were being made by the University.

The University set up an emergency fund to aid students reach their homes and charter busses were brought on campus to transport them to points of departure in Philadelphia and Wilmington.

Prior to the closing, the University had already entered a Moratorium which had halted all classes for the rest of the academic semester in the aftermath of the Augusta killings. Beginning May 13, the Moratorium was in effect when the Jackson deaths shut the Lincoln gate for the academic year 1969-1970.

LINCOLN CLOSES

Turbulent Spring Across U.S. Forces Decision To Close Early

The University, at that time, had also moved to make final examinations optional. Contingent upon discussion between students and their professors, the student could have opted to accept a grade he then held as grade for the course or take the final to better that grade.

— OPTIONS CHANGE —

The decision to close the school and the cancelling of final examinations changed final-grade options to: grades assigned based on work to date—where possible. Where that was impossible, graduating seniors received a grade of Pass, all others a grade of Incomplete.

The University had also closed in moratorium Wednesday, May 6, to protest the entrance of U.S. troops into Cambodia and the deaths of the four Kent State students. The one-day moratorium was spent in seminars during which students and faculty discussed the conditions on U.S. college campuses.

During the May 13-15 moratorium, students also held discussion groups and seminars (see insert) dealing with a broad spectrum of subjects relevant to the situation in the country.

The University actions of May 13 came in the wake of a Tuesday May 12 afternoon emergency meeting in the Mary Dod Brown Chapel, by the students at which time speaker after speaker rose to denounce what some called the "wanton murder of Black people in Georgia and the racist atmosphere of the country" which they believed contributed to the outbreak. The Tuesday meetings generated enthusiasm for a march on Oxford, Pa. which was called off by the students after reports began circulating of a possible confrontation between students of the University and Oxford area residents.

— EMERGENCY MEETINGS —

A series of emergency evening student meetings were then called on the campus. These meetings ended primarily on discordant notes with few of the participants in agreement on a course of action. The major concern seemed to be an attempt to find a political course of action that would not be completely futile.

The Tuesday May 12 afternoon faculty meeting reflected the general mood of the campus and was continued over until Wednesday morning when the decision to declare the final moratorium was made in the presence of several hundred students.

During the Wednesday morning faculty meeting a march on Washington was called for but no decision was made at that meeting and it was decided that—if the march were made it would be a decision of the faculty, student and administrative bodies represented by a committee appointed by Dr. Harleston and the students. (see insert)

— STUDENTS SET SCHEDULE —

Wednesday afternoon meetings were held in the Mary Dod Brown Chapel during which the students set up a schedule of studies and discussions to investigate the turn toward violence in this country and how to react to that turn in a politically effective manner.

One student protesting a march said, "They shot four white kids on a campus in Ohio and 100,000 kids marched to Washington to protest—this week, they shoot six black people in Georgia."

The student went on to say, "we've got to find out why it happens and what we have to do about it to deal with it effectively."

— OTHER MOVES —

Several other moves were also taken at the University by Faculty and Student groups

- They were:
- A call for all males of the University to register their disapproval with President Nixon through telegrams stating that they "would not fight in Cambodia, Vietnam or anywhere else as long as Black people are being murdered right here in this country."
  - Arrange a meeting between Black College presidents all over the U.S. with President Nixon to discuss the present situation. (see insert)
  - That a student-Faculty Committee be established at Lincoln University to contact other Black Colleges and all other colleges and universities interested, and that a march on Washington be organized by this committee, in conjunction with the other colleges, for this coming Saturday to protest the killings in Augusta, Georgia.
  - That a statement be sent to all Parents of students at the University. The letter would state the student and University Community feeling on the Georgia incident. The letter would also question the use of the National Guard in incidents such as those in Georgia and at Kent University.
  - That a letter be sent to Gov. Lester Maddox, of Georgia to protest the murder of Blacks in Georgia and to make known to him, "that continued acts of violence against the Black people in Georgia will not go unanswered."

MEMORANDUM
TO: Students, Faculty and Administrative Personnel
FROM: Bernard W. Harleston, Acting President
SUBJECT: May 6, 1970, Moratorium on Classes

At the request of the officers of the Student Government Association, and with the support of the Administrative Council, Division Chairmen and Department Chairmen, all regularly scheduled classes will be suspended on Wednesday, May 6, 1970 so that students, faculty and members of the administration can participate and share in activities designed to speak to and underscore the concerns of the campus community over the crises we now face both within the country and in relation to the war in Vietnam and Cambodia.

The Program of Activities for the day is being planned by the Student Government Association. It is hoped that students, faculty and administrative personnel will join and share in the events of this important day.

MINUTES OF THE COLLEGE FACULTY
May 12th, 1970

Because of the crisis created by the killings in Augusta, Georgia, Dr. Harleston cancelled the regularly scheduled Faculty meeting and called an emergency meeting instead to cope with the urgent situation facing the students.

Professor Hines outlined the Faculty to proceed with care lest it erroneously give the impression of attempting to delay its decision on the students. However, both Professor Donald Piers and Professor Harold Bantz thought that their action by both students and faculty members would be both desirable and desirable. Dr. Davis stressed the need for action of political cost and consequences.

Dr. Philip Foner made the following tripartite motion: A) that a moratorium on classes be declared for today, but that some be scheduled to meet; B) that the Faculty recommend that a Student-Faculty Council be established at Lincoln University to contact other Black Colleges and all other colleges and universities interested, and that a march on Washington be organized by this committee, in consultation with the other colleges, for this coming Saturday to protest the killings in Augusta, Georgia; and C) that the Acting President of Lincoln University contact the Presidents of other Black Colleges in order to arrange an immediate meeting with President Nixon to protest the killings in Augusta, Georgia. The motion received a second and Faculty approval.

Once the moratorium was approved, the question of final exams arose. Professor Donald Piers moved that some be held as scheduled, but that students be given the option either of taking the grade needed for work done up to the present time, or of taking exams whenever possible on the day and in the place already designated the motion received a second.

Dr. Philip Foner offered the following substitute motion: that some be held as scheduled, but that students be responsible only for work completed up to the present time available to students and filed with Dean Johnson. The motion received a second but was defeated.

Professor James Byrd offered the following amendment to the Piers motion: that wherever possible, all faculty members have grades for work done up to the present time available to students and filed with Dean Johnson. The motion received a second.

Before the Piers motion and Byrd's amendment could be voted on, Mr. Gillingham's motion was approved before the Faculty to amend on student identification and on the need for student-faculty action. The Secretary asked Dr. Harleston to report on the Faculty deliberations would be made available to the students for their 7:00 P.M. meeting. The Chairman then declared that the Piers motion and Byrd's amendment would be taken up at the May 13th Faculty meeting, slated for 10:00 A.M.

In addition, the following salient ideas emerged during the meeting:

- Should not protest in unison with Governor Hines, and should not in effort to contact our academic colleagues in Georgia?
- Lincoln should become a contact point, the center of an organizational network, meet Black Colleges, to cope with emergency situations similar to the one faced today.
- Attention should be given to the matter of paying for the phone calls made in connection with the proposed march on Washington.
- Would write-in finish or take-home examinations be possible? Attention should be given to the problem of students desiring to stop classes during the moratorium.
- Faculty members should study ways of raising money to help in this emergency situation.

Dr. Harleston declared the meeting adjourned at 6:10 P.M.

Respectfully submitted,
Lula L. Gies
Faculty Secretary

MEMORANDUM
TO: The Faculty and Students
FROM: Bernard W. Harleston, Acting President
SUBJECT: Closing of Lincoln University

Out of respect for the students who were killed at Jackson State College, Lincoln University will officially close indefinitely at 1:00 P. M. today, Friday, May 15, 1970.

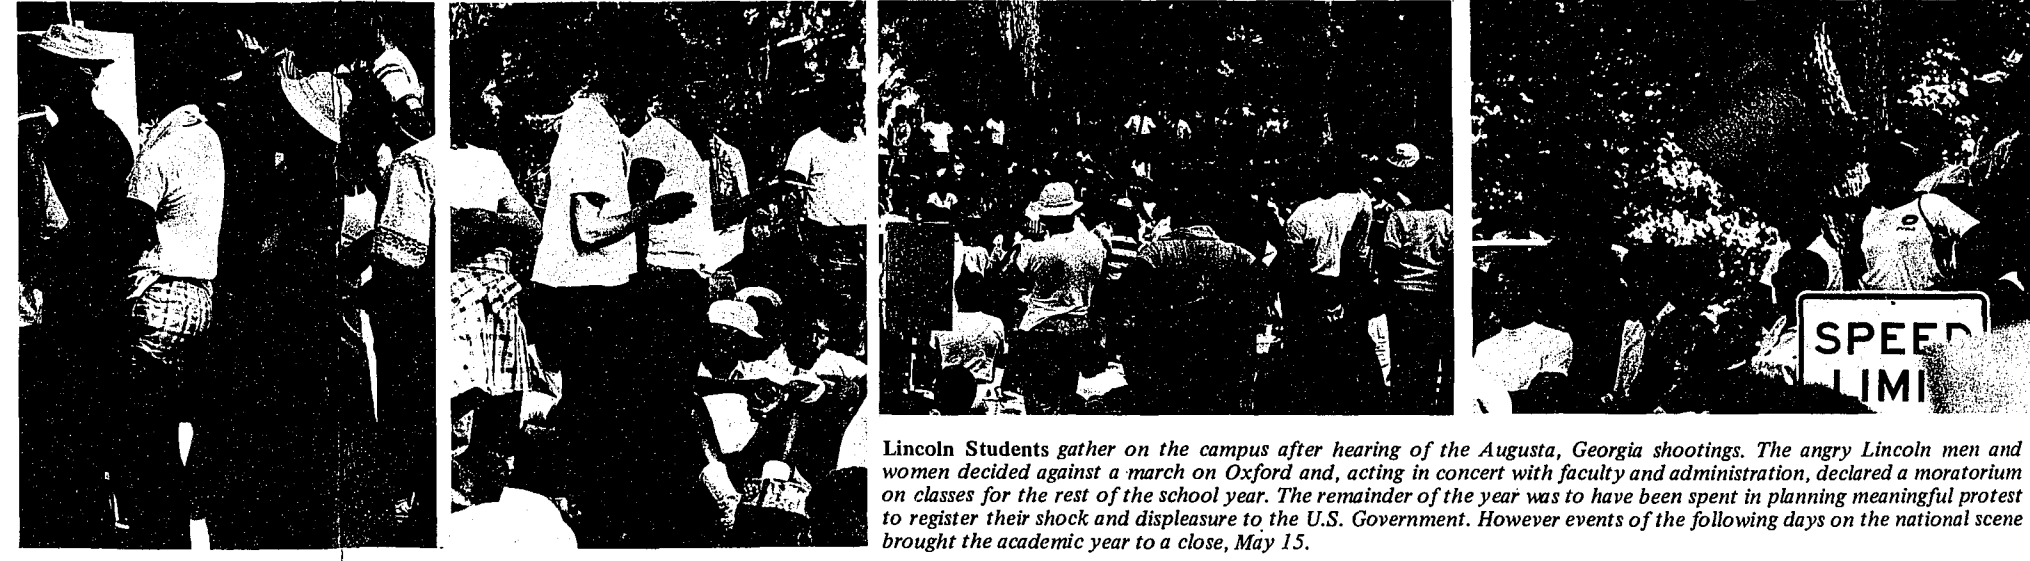

Those needing public transportation for connecting points out of Wilmington terminals should sign up in the basement of the Student Union Building. Announcements will be made concerning schedules of departure time of buses leaving from the Student Union.

Dormitories will be closed at 8:00 P. M.

These students not able to take all of their belongings may plan to return on Saturday, May 23rd to pick them up.

Final examinations are cancelled. Where possible, faculty members will assign grades based on work to date. Where that is impossible graduating seniors will receive a grade of Pass. All others will receive a grade of Incomplete.

Lincoln Students gather on the campus after hearing of the Augusta, Georgia shootings. The angry Lincoln men and women decided against a march on Oxford and, acting in concert with faculty and administration, declared a moratorium on classes for the rest of the school year. The remainder of the year was to have been spent in planning meaningful protest to register their shock and displeasure to the U.S. Government. However events of the following days on the national scene brought the academic year to a close, May 15.

"Colleges Have Greater Validity," Acting President Harleston Says

"Colleges and Universities have greater validity, are more vital and must be more accessible than ever before," Dr. Bernard W. Harleston, Acting President and Provost, of Lincoln University told students.

"Once the drums of rhetoric silence themselves; once the challenge to and victory over bureaucracy has been realized, and once decisional power has been appropriately redistributed and put in balance, we will all still face the need for and, it seems to me, must be as one in the extended search for the truth of knowledge and experience that will truly make us free," he said.

Dr. Harleston, who received his Ph.D. in Psychology from the University of Rochester, came to Lincoln as its first Provost in 1968 and since Jan. 1, 1970 has been Acting President of the University.

— EDUCATION IS THE PATH —

"I believe that education is everybody's path to freedom—freedom of self and freedom to be—to be what is one's potential," he continued.

"Every human being is driven by the need to realize his full potential—to be actualized. 'What a man can be, he must be (according to a theoretical statement of Dr. Abraham Maslow of Brandeis University). But there are important precursors to the realization of this need," Dr. Harleston said.

"The precursors include a real sense of freedom of intellect and freedom as reflected by self-acceptance and

Lincoln University Enrollment at 979 2nd Semester

Figures recently released by the computer center of Lincoln University show that the total enrollment of students for the spring semester of the 1969-70 academic year was 979 students.

Broken down this figure included 789 resident students and 190 commuting students. The University, near Oxford, also noted an enrollment of 23 foreign students.

Founded as an all-male institution in 1854, the balance of power at the school however has shifted somewhat since 1965 when the first resident coeds were admitted. The Liberal arts University this term enrolled 328 women.

Dr. Harleston Hopeful After Meeting With President Nixon

Dr. Harleston said the May 20 meeting with President Nixon was "useful" and "we are hopeful for a new sensitivity."

Dr. Harleston was one of 15 black college presidents invited to Washington to discuss the college situation in the wake of the police slayings of two students on the campus of Jackson State College in Mississippi.

Actually, Dr. Harleston had called for such a meeting after the Augusta, Georgia killings.

Dr. Harleston said the President, "expressed a view that he had spoken out on racism in the past, and what we should do now is to judge him by his deeds."

"We shall be looking to the days and months ahead for the actions of the President," Dr. Harleston said.

The Acting President said, "We are concerned with the whole problem of equal justice and—the need for national guidelines on how the National Guard should function on campus."

Below is the text of the statement which the educators presented to President Nixon.

STATEMENT PREPARED BY DELEGATION OF PRESIDENTS OF BLACK COLLEGS AND UNIVERSITIES AND READ TO THE PRESIDENT AT THE MEETING ON MAY 20.

May 20, 1970

Mr. President:

We represent the National Association for Equal Opportunity in Higher Education, an organization representing all of the predominantly black colleges and universities of the nation.

We come to express the anger, outrage, and frustration of the black people of this nation. We wish to convey to you the disheartening of black youth, with our society and with the federal government.

This feeling is engendered by a number of longstanding conditions: manifestations of racism in all areas of American life; inadequate educational opportunities for blacks and other disadvantaged minorities; widespread poverty and hunger in this affluent nation; high unemployment rates among the blacks and racial discrimination in employment; racial differentials in law enforcement procedures and deplorable housing conditions. While there has been improvement in many of these areas over the years, progress has been too slow.

This feeling is also engendered by the policies and practices of your administration: the "southern strategy" which leads to the conclusion that blacks are dispensable; the neglect of urban problems; insufficient support of education, especially of schools and colleges attended largely by blacks; your nomination of Justice to the Supreme Court; your hesitancy to support strong measures to ensure the voting rights of black citizens; your own failure to use your great moral influence to bring the people of this great nation together. Added to this is the tone of your administration, as exemplified by the statements of the Vice President and the Attorney General with multiracial faces of reputation by statements by members of your administration of "lawless neglect" and of "law and order" without justice.

We add that blacks, and especially black students, have the same concerns as other Americans. They are concerned about Vietnam and Cambodia and the large proportion of our national energies devoted to military; they are concerned about racialization of society; they are deeply concerned by the recent tragedies of Kent State, Augusta, Georgia, and Jackson State.

Mr. President, these are strong words which convey to you the feelings of the black people and especially the black students of this nation.

These are the bases of unrest and violence. These are the causes of the increasing alienation of black youth. We are convinced that these are the basic problems which demand your immediate attention. We are convinced, too, that this nation has the strength, the resources, and the moral fiber to solve these problems.

So, Mr. President, with the background of Augusta, Jackson State, and last night in Sowatoh, we present to you the following list of questions posed to lead to an agenda for action to meet the dire need in American life:

1. What actions need to be taken to convince young black Americans that racism is institutionalized and causal—in being eliminated from American society?
2. What actions are being or should be taken to protect the rights of young black people?
3. What positive aid can be given to those American institutions concerned with enlightening the opportunities for young blacks?
4. What more can be done to convince young black people that the divisions in American life are being healed?
5. What are the specific acts which the government can undertake immediately to mobilize public opinion, public sentiment, and public action in support of the legitimate aspirations and hopes of young black people?

We trust our comments have defined the special context within which the black student views the other issues of innocence, Vietnam and Cambodia, and the large proportion of our national energies devoted to military. Our firm hope is that a new window has been furnished you through which you can view the reality of whether the nation is being brought together.

In that context, we make the following proposals:

1. A Presidential message on national inter-ethnic reaffirming the federal government's resolve to protect the lives of black citizens. It may be clear that there is no compromise with any regional group on the rights of black Americans.
2. An interim mechanism be set up to involve more black Americans in the formulation of domestic policies. All major executive level advice to the President should include black Americans. This meeting with black college presidents should be the first of a series of meetings with various segments of the black community.
3. Black college students are their own best spokesmen. A Presidential conference with such a group should be held as soon as possible. A sense of their mood is crucial to understanding the urgency of greater responsiveness to the black community.
4. Executive orders should be issued enjoining federal recommendations to all state and local law enforcement agencies on the use of guns for crowd control. A specific recommendation is no loaded guns on campus.
5. Appointment of a black Deputy Attorney General of unimpeachable commitment to civil liberties to be responsible for investigations and recommendations for prosecution of those responsible for the killing of unarmed citizens and to monitor the use of law enforcement assistance.
6. An immediate and comprehensive review of the budget proposals for fiscal 1972 to undertake to increase the funding of all those programs most responsive to improving the educational institutions of black Americans and that strengthen the overall internal life of the black community across the nation.

Professor J. B. MacRae Elected to Post

Lincoln University's Professor J. B. MacRae, chairman of the University Department of Education, has been elected President of the Pennsylvania Association for Higher Education.

In his post he will serve on the Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania State Education Association which holds monthly meetings in Harrisburg.

Professor MacRae attended the Conference of the American Association for Higher Education in Chicago March 1-4 where he also attended a meeting of the 4-1-4 Conference of which he is a member of the steering committee.

Albright Named Consultant to HEW

Robert L. Albright, director of Lincoln University Admissions, has been named consultant to the U.S. Health Education and Welfare Department.

He has been assigned to the Upward Bound branch of the government agency operations and will serve in two capacities: field reader and trouble shooter.

Attached to Region Two (the great Lakes area) Albright will make occasional surveys of projects being conducted there while remaining in his Lincoln post. He was named Director of Admissions for Lincoln, in the fall of 1969.

His experience in Upward Bound projects include being appointed the youngest director of an Upward Bound project when he was named by Virginia Union University, Richmond, Virginia at the age of 23.

A '66 graduate of Lincoln, he is married to the former Linda D. Pittman. They are the parents of a daughter Keia Lorraine Albright. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bannister, 5408 Lansdowne Ave., Philadelphia, Pa.

Lincoln Professor Awarded Fellowship

Lincoln University's D. Carlton Trotman acting head of Black Studies and Assistant Professor of Psychology, has been awarded a fellowship from the John Frederick Steinman Fund, Lancaster, Pa.

The two-year fellowship is for graduate study leading to a Ph.D. in clinical-child psychology which he will pursue at Ohio State University.

While pursuing his Ph.D., Trotman will be at Dennison University, as director of Black Studies and Assistant Professor of Psychology.

He has been granted a two-year leave of absence by the University near Oxford, Pa.

awareness of identity. I have found no better or more productive mechanism for achieving this than education itself."

"Therefore," he said, "what we face as a real challenge here at Lincoln is the challenge to create and shape the learning experience so that the real power of education can be realized."

Commenting upon his present post at the University, Dr. Harleston said, "An interim period in institutional leadership is at best a bundle of ambiguities—But an interim period is still a period of serious responsibility. And so I do stand here ready to pledge on behalf of the entire administration that we will do our best to carry out the responsibilities that we face."

— ACCOUNTABILITY —

"I am reminded at this point," Dr. Harleston said, "of the very useful concept that Dr. Kingsman Brewster, President of Yale University, recently introduced. It is the concept of accountability. All of us must face the test of accountability. As students, you must face the test of accountability as you meet the challenges of the classroom, the challenges inherent in working out the ground rules for a social community on the campus and the challenges associated with the search for new experiences affecting mind and body."

"As faculty members, you must face the test of accountability for the standard of excellence you set in the classroom, for the quality of participatory education you sponsor and for the vigor you bring to the teaching role."

"As members of the administration, each of us faces the test of accountability in developing and implementing the procedures and policies that assure a free and open community for learning and living."

Dr. Harleston noted that his term as Acting President will continue until July 1, "at the very latest."

— SEARCH FOR PRESIDENT —

"Hopefully, the University will by then have appointed the individual best qualified to lead this institution to new and appropriate levels of academic excellence and functional relevance for reshaping our society and our cul-

Lincoln Begins Construction of $2-Million-Plus Gym

Construction has begun on the new $2-million-plus physical education building at Lincoln University, near Oxford, Pa.

Located west of McRary Hall and the Student Union Building, the new structure will have dark red colonial brick exterior, reinforced concrete block backing with steel truss framing for walls and roof. Featuring aluminum doors and windows, elevators, walks and drives, the facility will house gymnasiums, swimming pool, office space for teaching staff and other service areas.

It is scheduled for completion July 15, 1971.

The main entrance will open to a lobby at the ground level. From the lobby, access can be had to the administrative offices, the auxiliary gymnasium, audio-visual rooms, classrooms, the natatorium and the locker areas for men, women and teams, all on the same level. Two main stairways on either side of this lobby lead up one level to the upper lobby of the main gymnasium and the gallery seating for the natatorium.

The main gymnasium room will be 108' by 156' and will be equipped with folding seating for 2,000 people, a dividing curtain, sound system, television system and acoustical ceiling and walls. The floor will be wood and there will be a press box above the stands at the center of the main basketball court.

The lighting system will be notable for the small number of visible fixtures. Since most of the lighting will come from perimeter shielded continuous fluorescent fixtures hung on the walls and providing both up and down light, the number of high powered down lights over the central area is greatly reduced without sacrificing quality or quantity of light.

The natatorium will contain a 45' by 75' six-lane tile pool with underwater lights and an underwater viewing port for instruction purposes. The walls up to the spectator level, seating 200 people, will be tiled and from there to the roof will be a sound absorbing masonry material for sound conditioning. The pool will be equipped with a one meter and a three meter diving board and will have the same perimeter lighting as the main room to reduce the possibility of reflected glare from the water to a minimum.

The auxiliary gymnasium will be 60' by 98' and will be equipped for the practice of all sports without spectator seating.

Four stair towers at the corners of the main gymnasium, two each connecting to the natatorium and the auxiliary gymnasium, will connect all levels and lead to exits at grade.

The lower level, below the locker areas, will provide spaces for mechanical and electrical equipment, as well as an adaptive room for corrective exercises, a combative room for the practice of wrestling, classrooms, laboratories, a medical office and a eurythmics room for the practice and teaching of ballet and dancing — this room will be equipped with mirrors and a sound system for music and instruction.

Space on this level will also be provided for a future eight-lane bowling alley and a snack bar and social area.

Contract awards in the amount of $2,658,580 for phase one, the construction of the building, were made to: Wallace Engineering & Construction Co., of Bryn Mawr; American Sanitary Sales & Service Co., of Willow Grove; Austin Associates, Inc. of Broomall; and Riteway Electric, of Media.

The total of $2,658,580 award breaks down to: General Construction, Wallace Engineering & Construction, $1,774,000; Heating, ventilating and air-conditioning, American Sanitary Sales & Service Co., $425,500; Plumbing, Austin Associates, Inc., $199,400; Electrical, Riteway Electric, $259,680.

The design for the new facility was executed by Giles J. Hughes, architect, of Ardmore.

Lincoln's Museum Curator to Spend June in Africa

H. D. Gunn, professor of Anthropology and African History and curator of the African Collections of Lincoln University, will spend the month of June in Africa purchasing tools to be used in a unique art class on the University campus this summer.

Gunn will go to Africa under the sponsorship of The Black Studies Institute whose Acting-Director, Professor Carlton D. Trotman announced Gunn's trip.

Gunn noted that the art class will be part of a special summer program in Afro-American studies being planned for high school teachers. The class, "actually a workshop," says Gunn, will concentrate on African art and will include working with African-developed tools and techniques under the guidance of Professor Gunn.

"The aim of the course," Gunn said, "will be to familiarize art teachers with the tools, techniques and materials of African art, thereby giving them first-hand insights into America's African cultural heritage."

Lincoln Graduates Largest Class in 116-Yr. History

Lincoln University graduated the largest class in its 116-year history during exercises which took place Sunday May 30-31.

A total of 198 seniors were honored with degrees during Baccalaureate and Commencement services held in the New Campus Grove near the gymnasium.

The 116th Commencement actually began at Lincoln, Friday, May 29, with the 8:15 p.m. performance of the University Chorale in the Mary Dod Brown Chapel.

Saturday the General Alumni Association executive committee met at Wright Hall at 10:30 a.m. followed by a Noon luncheon in The Student Union.

The General Alumni Association's Annual Meeting met in Wright Hall at 2 p.m. while the National Ladies Auxiliary met in The New Guest House at the same time.

The class of 1920 held its 50th Reunion in Acting President Dr. Bernard W. Harleston's house at 4:30 p.m., Saturday.

The annual banquet for the alumni was held Saturday evening at 6:30 p.m. in The Student Union. It was followed by class reunions and the Senior Prom.

Sunday activities began with the Baccalaureate Service at 10:30 a.m. in the New Campus Grove with The Rev. Claude C. Kilgore the speaker. Following dinner at 12:30 p.m. Commencement Exercises were held for the 185 graduating seniors.

Speaker for Commencement was Her Excellency, Angie Brooks, delegate to the United Nations from Liberia and president of the General Assembly.

Honorary degrees were presented to: H. Julian Bond, Georgia Legislator; Miss Brooks; Rev. Robert Lionne DeWitt, Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of Pennsylvania; Dr. Martin David Jenkins, president of Morgan State College, Baltimore, Md.; Robert S. Firestone, (posthumously) member of the Lincoln Board of Trustees from 1951 until his death this year; and Dr. Marvin Wachman, president of Lincoln from 1961-1969 and now vice president for academic affairs at Temple University.

NEXT ADDITION to the campus will be the $2-million-plus physical education building. Located west of McRary Hall and the Student Union Building, the new structure will have dark red colonial brick exterior and will house gymnasiums, swimming pool, office space for teaching staff and other service areas. It is scheduled for completion July 15, 1971.

Education Not For Everybody

Dean Johnson Discovers on Trip to Europe, Asia

"An education is not available to all in many of the countries we visited" Dr. L. D. Johnson, Dean and Registrar of Lincoln University, said today.

Dr. Johnson, who is also Professor of Chemistry at the University near Oxford, Pa., has just returned from a month's seminar for 109 U.S., Puerto Rican, and Canadian educators in seven countries of Europe, Near East, and Asia. The group left the United States March 3 and traveled to universities in Geneva, Switzerland; Moscow, Russia; Ankara, Turkey; Beirut, Lebanon; Bangkok, Thailand; Hong Kong, China; and Tokyo, Japan.

"Socialistic countries just do not have the resources to educate everybody — nor do they have the philosophy. There is no such thing as compulsory education in Turkey, Thailand, and Hong Kong. We saw little evidence of guidance programs and remedial studies, but in Russia the selectivity of students and the stiff competition for places in the university were evident."

"Many of the ministers and leaders did not see how the United States had got itself into the position where the students have taken over. In general, in those countries, the control is in the hands of the university personnel. There are ways, of course, for the students to be heard — but there is no throwing open of the Boards of Trustees — no invitations to attend faculty meetings. Most student protests are nationalistic."

Students' concern with national and international issues was brought forcibly home to the touring educators when their bus was stoned on the campus of Hacettepe University in Ankara, Turkey, by students demonstrating against the Peace Corps and Americanization.

"We noticed the protest when we drove on campus and suggested after a brief meeting that we call off that meeting with faculty and students," Dr. Johnson said, "but before we could get off campus, the rocks started flying."

The educators met with students, faculty, and Ministers of Education on the campuses of the University of Geneva, University of Moscow, Hacettepe University, Arab University of Beirut, American University of Beirut, Songklanakarin University in Bangkok, Chulalongkorn University in Bangkok, ("named after the young prince immortalized in Anna and the King of Siam and later in the musical, The King and I," Dr. Johnson noted), Chinese University of Hong Kong, Waseka University and Tamagawa University in Japan.

The Tour Seminar was sponsored by Phi Delta Kappa, the honorary education fraternity, Kent State University, Ohio, and the Comparative Education Society under the direction of Dr. Gerald Read.

"Since this is International Education Year, the similar toured socialistic countries to observe trends there," Dr. Johnson said. "Especially interesting," he continued, "was the fact that none of the countries seemed to be patterning their system after our system of education. They were most anxious to show us how they, especially in Japan, were solving their problems. In Geneva and Beirut the systems took on the French influence but are not following French reforms. The Lycee — a school system which incorporates two years of junior college, is the basic pattern. It's a combination of high school and junior college and has been used with success in France," Dr. Johnson said.

"Russia? Russia was most interesting. There is no such thing as a classless society in Russia," Dr. Johnson said. "That's one thing that strikes you — outside in the cold you see women shoveling snow, pruning trees, knocking ice off the streets, and mopping subway stations while passing by them are the big, black limousines of the government officials. You see peasants in old, patched clothing and ladies wearing some of the jewelry of the Czars."

"In fact," Dr. Johnson said, "in Russia one may attend a University through correspondence and graduate without meeting any residence requirements. There is such a shortage of teachers and facilities."

"Throughout our journey we had to rely on interpreters, and one frequently sensed the need for at least the knowledge or mastery of another language," Dr. Johnson said.

"We witnessed examples of excellent teaching and new patterns of education emerging, especially in Japan. Of all the countries visited, Japan seemed nearest to us but the leaders of Japan are questioning the American model at every point."

"Institutes for specialization and research in science and in pedagogy seem on the rise in Russia and Japan. Trade Unions and Teachers Unions also play a significant role in these countries."

"It was gratifying to learn how many knew about Lincoln University and its contribution to international education."

"In the midst of the old we saw the new emerging and the pace of change was evident in those places where a technological society had emerged."

"One will never be the same after such an experience, and constantly international news will be more meaningful as my wife and I relive this round-the-world education and correspond with some of the people whom we met," Dean Johnson noted.

"A basic and so far wholly ignored aspect of African art is the intimate relationship between African utilitarian forms, such as cooking pots and stools and gardening hoes, and the whole repertoire of African sculpture—from terracotta figurines to carved wooden masks; between textile patterns and the decoration of architectural monuments," Professor Gunn observed.

Professor Gunn said: "It is highly appropriate that this dynamic approach to an appreciation of African life and art from the inside should be a function of Lincoln's African museum—the oldest museum of African art in the U.S., formally initiated in 1937."

Lincoln University's pioneer position in U.S. black studies is well known. Among Lincoln's distinguished graduates are counted: Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall, Nnamdi Azikiwe, the architect of Nigerian independence, and the late poet-laureate of the Afro-American community Langston Hughes.

Professor Gunn's fourth trip to the "Continent of Light," lends credence to an old Arab proverb: "Who drinks of the waters of Africa will return." Extending from May 28 to July 2, his search will take him to Senegal, Mali, the Volta Republic, the Ivory Coast and the Gambia.

WILLIAM HENRY WADDELL was Lincoln University's official representative at the inauguration of Roy Joe Stuckey as eighth president of Jamestown College, Jamestown, N.D. on October 3, 1969.

Jamestown was founded in 1884, opening its doors six years before North Dakota became a state.

DR. WILLIAM H. WADDELL, of Fargo, N.D., a 1935 graduate of the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine and the first Negro member of the American Veterinary Medical Association, was awarded the Alumni Citation at the University Feb. 2 at a dinner meeting, during the 70th Annual Conference of Veterinarians.

The award was presented by Michel T. Huber, director of Alumni Relations at the University. Dr. Victor A. Menghetti, president of the Veterinary Alumni Society presided at the dinner meeting attended by more than 300 practitioners.

A native of Richmond, Virginia, Dr. Waddell earned his bachelor's degree from Lincoln. Currently, he is Supervisor Veterinarian with the United States Department of Agriculture in Fargo, North Dakota. He was the first Negro to be commissioned an officer in the Reserve Officers' Training Corp at the University of Penna. During World War II he served as a regimental veterinarian and as a port battalion veterinarian in four major campaigns.

The citation, presented by the University's General Alumni Society, was established to recognize

"those Pennsylvania graduates whose service and achievements have been of such distinction that they reflect favorably upon the University of Pennsylvania and enhance its reputation in higher education."

Not limiting his activities to his profession alone, Dr. Waddell has been consistently active in civic and community programs. He served as an officer and director of mental health associations in West Virginia and North Dakota, and as a member of the West Virginia Governor's committees on mental health and human rights.

In addition he served as an athletic recruiter for West Virginia University and as a recruiter and scout for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Alumni Citation reads:

"The General Alumni Society of the University of Pennsylvania gratefully recognizes William H. Waddell, Veterinary Medicine 1935, whose service and dedication to the purposes of the General Alumni Society have helped Pennsylvania and its alumni meet their responsibilities with confidence and pride."

A native of Macon, Ga., he began preaching at the age of 12 and was known as the "boy preacher."

He and his wife, the former Mae Moore, came to Philadelphia in the early 1920's and he served as the assistant minister to the late Rev. W. F. Graham, then pastor of the Holy Trinity Baptist Church, Burlington, N.J., and later to the Pine Memorial Baptist Church. He accepted the call to the Tasker Street church in November, 1930. Rev. McCrary had served as president of the Philadelphia Chapter of the Lincoln Alumni Association; president of the Baptist Minister's Conference, and headed the annual fund raising drives for the Foreign Mission Board of the National Baptist Convention, United States of America, and the Foreign Mission Bureau of the Progressive National Baptist Convention.

He was a Mason and a member of all of the Houses; and had traveled extensively in the United States, Europe, Africa, and Latin America.

Survivors include his wife, who is a noted journalist, one son, Henry T. McCrary, Jr., a Philadelphia attorney and also a Lincoln graduate; and three daughters: Mrs. Louise Sanders and Mrs. Clara Powell, both teachers in the Philadelphia school system; and Miss Dorothy McCrary, of New York City; seven grandchildren, three great-grandchildren; and one sister, Mrs. Louisa Williams of Macon, Ga.

CLARENCE L. HOLTE, ex '34, probably owner of the largest collection of books by and about Africans and Afro-Americans in existence outside the walls of major public and private libraries, estimates his collection at about 6,000 books. The books have been gathered in Mr. Holte's many years of travel across America and in Europe and Africa.

In an introduction to the catalog announcing the availability of the Basic Afro-American Reprint Library, Mr. Holte offers the following explanation of how and why he decided to collect books by and about black people:

"In selecting the titles for the Basic Afro-American Reprint Library, I reflected on an embarrassing occasion which occurred during a "bull session" with a Nigerian classmate at Lincoln University in Pennsylvania.

"He talked at length about his ancestors, the history, culture and social environment of his people, passed on from generation to generation by word of mouth. On finishing his discourse, he asked me to tell him in detail about us Afro-Americans, a subject which he thought was included in the curricula of American schools. Not only was it embarrassing to tell him that his assumption was a miscalculation, but also what little I could tell him of an historical nature about Afro-Americans fell very far short of what he expected. This experience led me to seek as much information on the history of black Americans as possible. Fortunately, a number of the books were available in the library at Lincoln."

Names of all of the 23 volumes, plus individual prices, can be obtained by writing directly to the Johnson Reprinting Corporation, 111 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y.

MARVIN HOLLOWAY and Miss Anne Marie Forrester are engaged to be married this spring. The announcement was made recently by the prospective bride's mother, Mrs. John W. Forrester, of Philadelphia. Mr. Holloway is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Walter Holloway of Albany, Ga.

Miss Forrester graduated from Bennington College in Vermont and teaches at Howard University.

Mr. Holloway is a fellow at the Institute for Policy Studies in Washington, D.C.

Both Miss Forrester and Mr. Holloway received master's degrees from Howard University and have established the African Communities Institute to advance research relating to Africa.

JAMES N. KARIOKI, who presently teaches courses in international relations at Howard University, is also teaching a course entitled "Africa: Continent in Transition," at the University of Virginia's Northern Virginia Center for Continuing Education. The course is being taught at Mt. Olivet Methodist Church in Arlington.

Karioki will direct the group in examining the changing continent of Africa. Participants will discuss the drive for independence that has transformed Africa from colonial possessions to independent states.

CARL F. BROWN, Lincoln University director of financial aid, has been appointed to also direct the placement services of the University.

Brown has assumed his new duties upon the resignation of Mr. Samuel Grant who left Lincoln for industrial career work in Minnesota.

As financial aid officer, Brown supervises and coordinates all aspects of Lincoln's student financial aid program including scholarships, loans and campus jobs.

The University Placement Office arranges interviews, on campus, between industrial recruiters and Lincoln seniors.

GEORGE ALEXANDER MARTIN, JR., ex '66, and Marlene Jewell Thenstead were joined in wedlock at the Grace Baptist Church in Mt. Vernon with the Rev. Dr. Samuel Austin officiating. Mrs. Martin is a graduate of the Stockbridge School in Interlaken, Mass. and the Albert Schweitzer College in Switzerland.

Her husband is a graduate of Rhodes Preparatory School. He received his bachelor's degree from Parsons College in Iowa. He is a parole officer with the Community Services Bureau in New York.

The couple will reside in Westchester Plaza, Mt. Vernon.

ROBERT C. SHOEMAKER, member of the Daily Local News editorial staff since last July, has been named to the newly-created position of county editor.

In his new position, Shoemaker will be in charge of the newspaper's expanding staff of correspondents in all sections of the county. He will be responsible for recruitment and training of new correspondents as well as handling assignments for the entire correspondent staff. Before joining the Local News staff he worked at the Coatesville Record for two years.

ROBERT L. ALBRIGHT, admissions director at Lincoln University, has been named a consultant to the U.S. Health Education and Welfare Department.

He has been assigned to the Upward Bound branch of the government agency operations and will serve in two capacities; field reader and trouble shooter.

Attached to Region Two, Albright will make occasional surveys of projects being conducted there while remaining in his Lincoln post.

1967 Herman Lawson
1208 N. 15th Street
Harrisburg, Pa. 17103

RODNEY WILLIAMS, social worker from South Philadelphia, has been named associate executive director of the Greater Philadelphia Federation of Settlements.

Williams, in addition to attending Lincoln University, graduated from the University of Pennsylvania School of Social Work, and has worked for the Crime Prevention Association, and for Diversified Community Services. He is a member of the Black Social Workers as well as the NAACP.

In his new post, Mr. Williams will help develop citywide services for the Federation which was organized in April of 1969 to represent ten settlement houses and neighborhood centers in all parts of Philadelphia. He will also serve as director of the School Settlement Program, a group work program run by the Settlements in conjunction with the Board of Education.

Williams is married to the former Jean Silver and is the father of four sons. He resides with his family in West Oak Lane, Philadelphia.

PETER E. SMITH has been named associate physical director of the Central Branch YMCA, 1421 Arch St., Philadelphia. Mr. Smith had formerly served as physical director of the Christian Street Branch YMCA.

KENNETH E. OVERBY, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Overby of Orange, N.J., and Miss Alice S. Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sheppard of Montclair, N.J., will be married on June 20, 1970.

Miss Harris received her bachelor's degree in psychology cum laude from Brandeis University and is a senior systems analyst with Prudential Insurance Company. Mr. Overby is assistant facilities supervisor with New Jersey Bell Telephone, Hudson Division.

1968 Cynthia Amis
4285 Leidy Ave.
Philadelphia, Pa. 19104

HAROLD M. CLAY has graduated with honors at Lowry AFB, Colo., from the U.S. Air Force supply inventory specialist course.

The airman, trained to inventory supplies by use of electronic data processing machines, is being assigned to Red Bluff Air Force Station, Calif. for duty with the Aerospace Defense Command which protects the U.S. against hostile aircraft and missiles.

Harold M. Clay

Airman Clay is the son of Mrs. Bertha Zeno and is married to Adrienne Myers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Myers of Easton, Pa.

EDDIE JEFFERIES has assumed the duties of admissions director at Allegheny County Community College.

Mr. Jefferies previously held the position of assistant director of the campus's community service program.

MARIS JAUNAKAIS, son of Mr. and Mrs. Boris Jaunakais of Kennett Square, Pa., and Miss Grace Tropea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Tropea of New Jersey, were married on September 6.

Mr. Jaunakais is attending Temple University for his doctorate in chemistry under a teaching assistantship. The new Mrs. Jaunakais was graduated from Holy Family College of Torresdale, Pa., receiving a bachelor of arts degree in the social sciences.

1969 Sandra McGuider
Orolowitz Residence
Philadelphia, Pa. 19146

ROBERT RICHARD KINDERMAN, ex '69, is engaged to Miss Deborah Lynn Taylor of Newark.

Kinderman, of West Grove, Pa., is a graduate of Avon Grove High School, he attended Lincoln University and the Computer Programmer Institute of Delaware, Served with the Navy, and is employed by Sears Roebuck and Co.

Miss Taylor is a graduate of Newark High School and attended the University of Delaware. She is employed by Almart, Inc.

A June 20 wedding is planned.

DAVID A. SANDERS has been awarded a fellowship by the Consortium for Graduate Study in Business for Negroes to attend Washington University, St. Louis, Mo.

HERBERT L. DORM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Dorm of York, Pa., and Miss Natalie E. Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar C. Law of Donora, Pa., plan to be married in August, 1970. Miss Jones is a junior at Lincoln University. Mr. Dorm is a management trainee with the American Machine and Foundry division in York.

Attention Jamaicans

Sir,

I have been informed that your Alumni Association maintains close contact with its members through regular newsletters and circulars.

A number of Jamaican nationals are graduates of your University and consequently members of its Alumni Association.

I am attaching a short note on the Personnel Development Unit, which has been established by the Government of Jamaica, primarily to contact qualified Jamaicans living outside Jamaica and to inform them of the job opportunities here in Jamaica.

I would be grateful if you would include this information in your next newsletter or circular to alumni of your University. In this way, interested Jamaicans might be contacted and led to make further inquiries.

Sybil Campbell
Personnel Development Unit

NOTE

The Government of Jamaica has set up a Personnel Development Unit in the Ministry of Finance and Planning with offices at the Training Division of the Ministry, 3 Lockett Avenue, Kingston 4.

The Unit's principal aim will be to establish and maintain contact with qualified Jamaicans overseas, not only students, but also graduates at work abroad and to advise them of job opportunities here in Jamaica and seek to persuade them to return home to take up employment either in the public or private sector.

The Unit hopes to keep comprehensive records of students at Universities and Institutions of higher education overseas, their programmes of study and expected date of graduation. Close liaison will be maintained with industry and commerce to ascertain vacancies and determine adequate job descriptions and employment opportunities in the private sector, in order that the Unit will be a focal point of all relevant information.

The Unit is interested in making contact with all persons with training in middle and top-level skills particularly in areas, where trained personnel is in short supply in Jamaica.

Information on job opportunities will be circulated through monthly newsletters which will be supplied to persons on the regular mailing list and will be also available through a Jamaican representative on each major University campus and at Jamaican Missions and Consulates overseas.

The Unit is geared to provide prompt replies to all correspondence. It is envisaged that its work will help to alleviate the critical shortages of skilled personnel, being experienced in the economy. Persons interested in immediate information on job opportunities in Jamaica are invited to contact the Unit.

General Alumni Association

The Washington, D.C., Chapter of the General Alumni Association held its annual Lincoln Day Dinner at the Gramercy Inn on Wednesday, February 11 at 7 p.m. Dr. George D. Cannon, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Lincoln University, was the principal speaker. The chapter presented a plaque to Atty. Don Lockett Young for outstanding service. Representing Lincoln was Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, director of alumni relations and executive secretary of the Association, who was called on for remarks. Alfred Neal, president of the chapter, presided.

The annual Lincoln Day Dinner Dance of the Philadelphia Chapter of the General Alumni Association was held on Friday, February 13, at 8 p.m. in the new Holiday Inn, City Avenue and Schuylkill Expressway. Mr. Robert L. Poindexter, executive deputy superintendent of Philadelphia Public Schools, was the principal speaker. At the conclusion of his speech the chapter presented him a plaque for his distinguished contribution to education in Philadelphia. The local alumni award was presented to Dr. Warren Smith, former president of the Philadelphia Chapter, by Marshall Allen, currently president of the chapter. Among the platform guests was Dr. Farrell, representing Lincoln University.

At the spring meeting of the Executive Committee in Philadelphia James W. Mills, '24, Judge Joseph C. Waddy, '35, and Dr. George W. Ward, '35, were nominated for alumni awards, which will be presented at the annual alumni banquet on Saturday, May 30. Alumni will have the opportunity to vote for Dr. James A. Parker, '42, or Mrs. Rebaann Anderson Harkowitz, '64, for alumni trustee to succeed Dr. Wayman R. Coston, '24, who declined to be nominated again for the position. Dr. Coston expressed his gratitude for the honor and his thanks to those who had seen fit to vote for him when he was nominated on two previous occasions. He made it clear that his declination did not indicate a lack of interest in Lincoln University but felt that the time had come for younger alumni to take a more active part in the work of the Association.

Lincoln Increases Tuition and Fees

The Lincoln University Board of Trustees has voted to increase tuition and fees for the academic year 1971-72.

"At a time in which most private colleges and universities are reducing existing services and curtailing expansion plans, the Board of Trustees feels it is imperative that Lincoln University move forward with increased campus expansion and improvement in the quality of Lincoln's overall educational program," president Herman R. Branson said.

The Trustees indicated that much of the new money will be used to insure that the University's 3 million dollar Physical Education Facility and the 4 million dollar Library (both currently under construction) will be among the finest such facilities in the country. The remaining money generated by the increased fees will be used to maintain and improve the University's existing services and programs.

The new University fees for the academic year 1971-72 will be as follows:

|                              | ResidentStudents | DayStudents   |
|------------------------------|----------------------|-------------------|
| Tuition                      | $1,100.00           | $1,100.00        |
| General & Miscellaneous Fees | 300.00               | 300.00            |
| Room                         | 550.00               |                   |
| Board                        | 550.00               |                   |
| TOTAL                 | $2,500.00    | $1,400.00 |

Tuition and Fees Increase

The new charges amount to an increase of approximately $250.00 over the cost of tuition and fees charged last year. In spite of the increase in fees, Lincoln's total expenses per year are still among the lowest in the country for private colleges and universities; an indication that Lincoln's Fees are indeed competitive with the following comparable colleges and universities:

| College or University                      | Total Fees |
|--|------------|
| Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa.           | $3,500.00 |
| Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn.          | $2,917.00 |
| Franklin & Marshal College, Lancaster, Pa. | $3,460.00 |
| Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va.            | $2,395.00 |
| Haverford College, Haverford, Pa.          | $3,425.00 |
| LINCOLN UNIVERSITY (PA.)                   | $2,500.00 |
| Morehouse University, Atlanta, Ga.         | $2,505.00 |
| Swarthmore College, Swarthmore, Pa.        | $3,900.00 |
| Ursinus College, Collegeville, Pa.         | $3,060.00 |
| Wilberforce University, Wilberforce, Ohio  | $3,255.00 |

"In spite of this increase in tuition and fees, Lincoln is seeking — and has been promised — additional monies, so that the University will be able to provide financial assistance to needy and able students to begin and/or continue their educational careers," president Branson said.

Oxford Community to Honor President Branson

For the first time in 117 years the community leaders of Oxford, Pa. are honoring Lincoln and its new president.

Dr. Herman R. Branson will be introduced to the community in a reception to be given by the Oxford Chamber of Commerce, May 5, from 8-10 p.m. at the Oxford Research Club.

The decision to hold the reception was unanimously approved in a meeting of the Chamber March 10. Chamber president Vernon Ringler said he would "probably call a special meeting to make plans for the event."

Head of the committee for the reception is Harold Hambleton, manager of the Oxford branch of the National Bank and Trust of Kennett Square. Members of the committee include: Jason Dreibelbis, superintendent of the Oxford School, William Snader, representative of the Industrial Valley Bank of Oxford, Ringler, Carl Fretz, head of Oxford's Peoples Bank, and Charles Ross from the Kennett Bank.

"We are sending out 300 printed invitations," Hambleton said. He noted those invited include among others: members of the faculty and administration of the University and the Oxford High School; service clubs, Lions, Kiwanis, Business and Professional Women, and Rotary; boards of directors of the three Oxford banks; boards of directors of the Community Memorial Hospital; the Oxford ministerium.

Hambleton said that his committee hopes "Lincoln's fine Music Department under Orrin Clayton Suthern will find time to furnish chamber music for the affair."

$2,250,000 TV Gift

Lincoln to be Seen on TV Shows Across U.S.

Lincoln will be featured in 25 half-hour-long programs on KYWTV-3 this fall.

The program, to be entitled The Afro-American Experience, will present Lincoln faculty in lectures and in classroom situations. To be taped entirely in the KYWTV-3 studios at 16th and Walnut in Philadelphia, the program will examine five aspects of the Afro-American Experience and will be shown in San Francisco, Baltimore, Boston, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

Lincoln's Director of Public Information, Dan Meckes, who is leaving the University, said, "I guess this will be a sort of parting gift to Lincoln. I've been 'loafing' around that station, talking Lincoln and sending them our news releases for the past five-and-a-half years it looks like we convinced somebody."

"Twenty-five half hour programs amount to "about $2,250,000 in free air time considering TV rates are about $3,000 per minute," he noted.

Hosting the program will be Carl A. Thomas, dean of students, who will appear in all 25 segments. President Herman R. Branson will introduce each of the five points of view.

In charge of the five Units will be: Dr. Frank G. Davis, professor and chairman of the Department of Economics; James W. Frankowsky, professor and chairman of the Department of Mathematics; Dr. Julian L. Grier, professor of Sociology and director of the Institute for Community Affairs; Orrin C. Suthern, professor of Music and chairman of the Department of Music; Walter N. Watts (along with Thomas) assistant professor of Education and director of the 1971 Teacher Training Institute in Afro-American Studies.

The five units will each contain five half-hour segments during which the Lincoln faculty members will lecture and illustrate the subject.

Dr. Greifer will review the sociological tides within the black community. Mr. Suthern will work within the area of fine arts and music. He reports that he plans extensive use of the college choir and art departments.

Mr. Frankowsky will investigate the contributions of Black Americans to the Science community and Dr. Davis will dwell upon the economics of Afro-American culture. Mr. Thomas and Mr. Watts will review the work of last summer's Institute in the Afro-American Experience and present, on-camera, this summer's Institute. The 1970 Institute in the Afro-American Experience was presented to 100 teachers in the Chester County area and Philadelphia to sensitize them to the needs of the black community and to make them (the teachers) aware of the contributions of the blacks to the American scene. Thomas was Director of the 1970 Institute.

The program will be produced by Frank C. Hall, director of community relations for KYWTV-3 and Mike Styer, executive producer for the station. It will be taped, in color, at the Philadelphia studio facility this spring and summer.

Lions Clinch Fourth DVC Crown; Lose Coveted District Title Bid

The Lincoln University Lions Basketball team clinched the Delaware Valley Conference championship undefeated by upsetting Philadelphia College of Pharmacy & Science, 97-84.

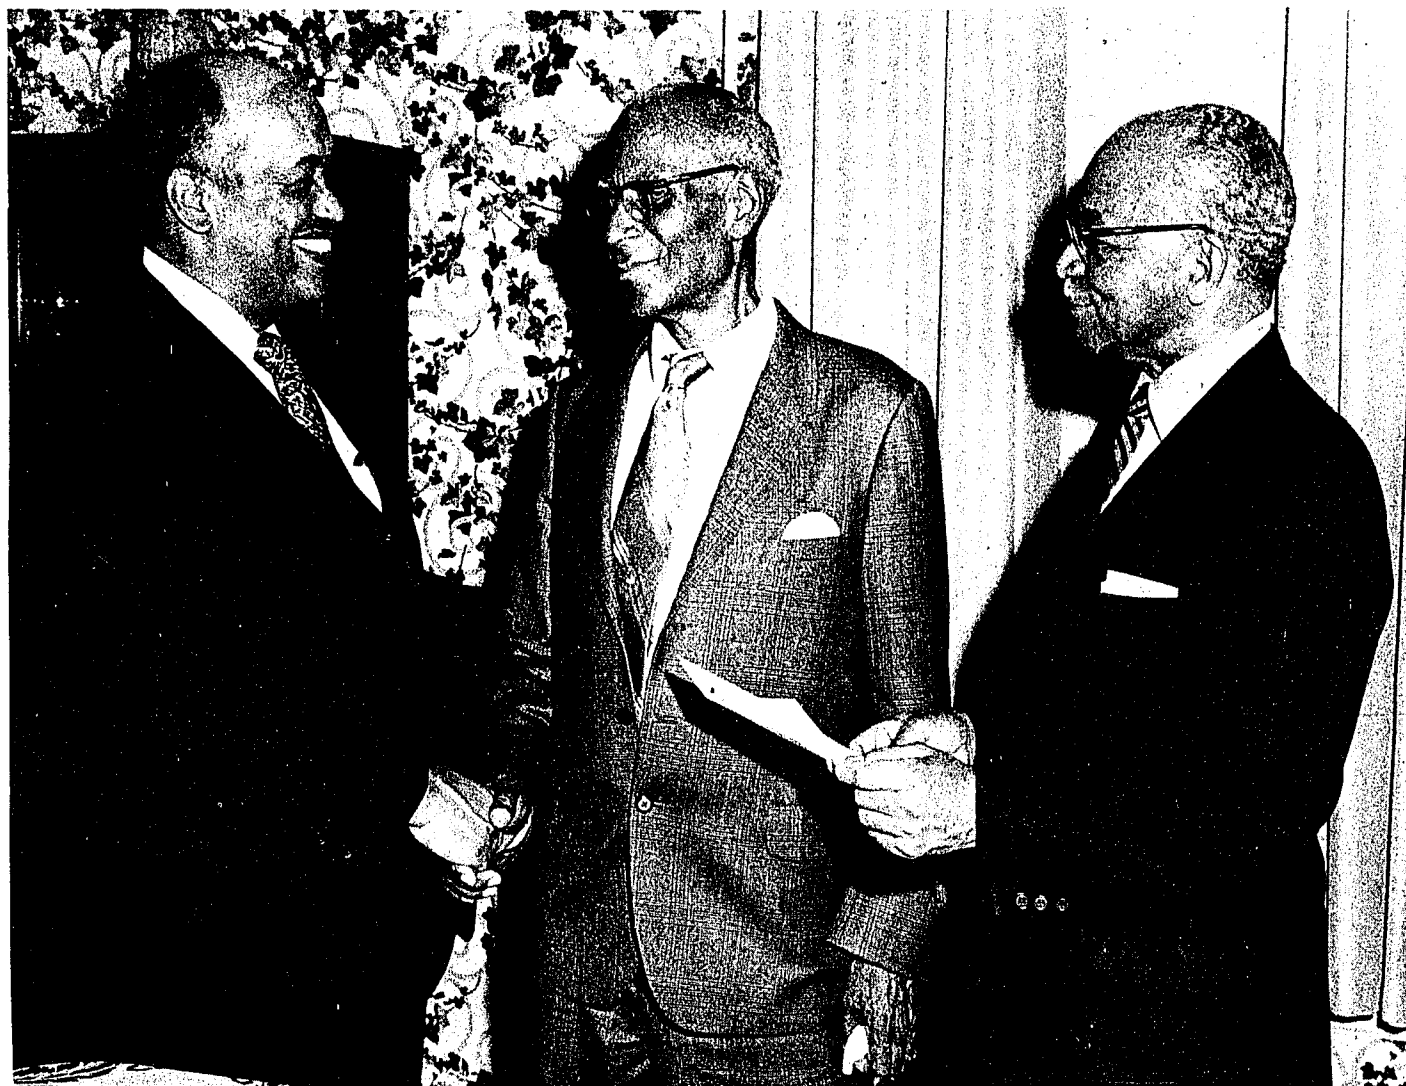

This has been the fourth consecutive season that the Lions have taken the DVC crown undefeated while on route to compiling a most impressive 38-conference-game winning streak. Upon capturing the DVC crown Friday, Feb. 26, the Lions automatically received a bid for the coveted District 19 championship title and a shot at the National NAIA Tournament held in Kansas City, Missouri, Mar. 8-13.

However, fate stopped the Lions drive in what seemed to be the best chance in the past four years for capturing the District 19 title Tuesday, Mar. 2, when they faced St. Mary's College of Maryland in the Coatesville High School Gymnasium during the first game of district playoffs. The Lions lost by one point, 68-67, a heartbreaking decision.

For the most part the Lions had faced stiffer competition during the regular season and came off the court victorious, — but anything can happen in a championship playoff.

Head Coach W. Floyd Laisure commented on the game by saying, "we should have won it, we had the ability and the balance to win it, but when you are in the court you have to combine the two to play the game." Overall the Lions had a very impressive season with 20 wins and 7 losses with the final defeat coming at the hands of St. Mary's.

President Branson Honors Dr. Johnson

President Herman R. Branson and J. B. MacRae, chairman of the Department of Education, made a special trip to Lynchburg, Va. recently to honor Robert Walter Johnson, class of '24, for his many contributions to youth.

Highlight of the occasion was the reading by MacRae of the citation for the Doctor of Humane Letters which the University will present Dr. Johnson this spring at Commencement.

Classmate MacRae read the following citation to Dr. Johnson as it will be read at Commencement:

"Robert Walter Johnson, native of Norfolk, Virginia, and son of Lincoln University at 71 can look upon a life devoted to one of the most fruitful of all interests — investment in youth. His rewards, leaving aside for the moment his own successful career, have been prodigious.

At Lincoln, Dr. Johnson, nicknamed "Whirlwind" because of his whirling dervish style of running — was one of the football 'greats,' named All-American in Negro Football in 1924; and it was as football coach at Virginia Seminary, Sam Houston and Morris Brown from 1924-1927 with extra officiating, baseball barnstorming and even red-capping, that he earned money to enter Meharry Medical School. Tennis captured his interest while he was resident physician at Prairie View in 1933 and thus began a love affair that has persisted to this day. A proficient player, Whirlwind has had an impulse to involve everyone he possibly could in tennis, maintaining a tennis court next to his house in Lynchburg, but finally abandoning the older "social" players for the youngsters who wanted to go places.

Always an active participant and officer in The American Tennis Association, he organized and helped conduct the ATA youth development program, a special tennis tutoring, training and tournament program now national, which actually proved to be the key opening the USLTA to interracial participation. It should be noted that in 1969 the USLTA unanimously passed a resolution that will henceforth deny sanction to any tournament in the country where race, creed or color is a consideration for entry. This resolution might be considered a direct result of Dr. Johnson's efforts. His top proteges, Althea Gibson and Arthur Ashe, are known to all, but probably

Dr. Johnson does not know himself how many hours, how much food, how much money, how much energy he has poured into the progress of still more young players, all on their way up. No racial barrier, no lack of equipment ever has cut out an aspiring tennis player and almost one hundred of his pupils have received prep school or college scholarships.

A long list of honors attests the good influence of Dr. Johnson on the younger generation. They include the Lincoln University Alumni Award, the "World Tennis" Magazine Marlboro award, and R. Walter Johnson Appreciation Day in Lynchburg.

It has not been in the world of athletics alone that Dr. Johnson has been impressive. He has pursued his career as a physician with a large practice for 38 years and is a member of the Old Dominion Medical Society and The National Medical Association. He is a member of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, The Masons and Elks. He has been active in community and interracial affairs, having served on The Lynchburg Interracial Commission, as chairman of the NAACP membership drive, and as a leader in pushing for a Federal housing project in Lynchburg. He himself was the first black to play in the Golden Age Tennis Tournament in Miami, Florida.

Dr. Johnson has done what few do: he has practiced what he preached. He drove himself as hard as he drove his tennis pupils, always intent on getting the most from his efforts and keeping up with his astonishing variety of interests. The indefatigable Whirlwind lists hunting, raising dogs, taking dancing lessons, maintaining a photographic dark room, and planting roses among his recent activities. At 71, he can look back on a dynamic, creative life that will continue to enrich the lives of young people as long as tennis is played.

Mr. President, I have the honor to present, with profound admiration for his accomplishments; for his unselfish and energetic work to put a healthful, demanding and inspiring activity within reach of any willing youngster; and for being all through his life so young at heart that he is his own best advertisement, ROBERT WALTER JOHNSON for the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters."

Speller Named to Shapp's Cabinet

Dr. J. Finton Speller, class of '32, has been named as Pennsylvania Secretary of Health by Gov. Milton J. Shapp. Dr. Speller, a native and resident of Philadelphia, was named to the $25,000 a year post February 16.

Dr. Speller, a Negro, has since 1960 been a clinician, consultant and supervisor of the Social Health Section of the Philadelphia Health Department at District 5, serving the entire north west community of the city.

The 60-year-old Speller holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Lincoln University, studied medicine at Howard University, interned at Freedman's Hospital and continued studies at the University of Pennsylvania. He was chief of urology at Philadelphia General Hospital between 1956 and 1959.

His wife, the former Dorothy Lynn, is also a physician who has served the state Health Department as a clinician and consultant for more than 15 years.

In announcing the appointment, Shapp said:

"Dr. Speller's credentials give him top ranking as a physician and administrator of public health programs. He is just the man we have needed to give new progress to our vital programs of health throughout the state."

Dr. Speller is the second black to be named to Shapp's cabinet. The first was Mrs. C. DeLores Tucker, also of Philadelphia, who was appointed secretary of the Commonwealth. He succeeds Dr. Ellsworth Brownerler as secretary of health."

Lincoln Professor to Work With AEC Laboratory

Dr. Enoch D. Houser, associate professor of biology at Lincoln University, will work with the Biology and Medicine Institute of the University of California's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory during the summer.

Dr. Houser is one of 10 university biologists throughout the country who have been invited to participate in the institute at Livermore, California which is an agent of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Dr. Houser will be doing research on renal (kidney) diseases with Dr. Robert Chertok of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, an expert in renal physiology. Dr. Houser is a bacteriologist with a specialty in infectious diseases. His particular area of interest center on the mechanisms of staphylococcus infections.

A typical day at Livermore will begin, according to LRL, with a one hour morning lecture presented by the staff members. The remainder of mornings and the entire afternoons will be devoted to research participation in continuing laboratory projects. A noon seminar will be held two or three times a week with each visiting participant in the institute expected to give the seminar once during the eight week course.

The Institute will focus its attention on recent advances in biology and medicine.

Dr. Houser received his B.S. (magna cum laude) from Alabama State University, his M.S. from Villanova University, his M.A. from Bryn Mawr College and his Ph.D. from the University of Delaware. He is a member of: "The American Society for Microbiology, Society of Sigma Xi, American Zoological Society, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

His publications include studies on the extraction of indoles from schizophrenic patients; the use of diffusion chambers in establishing the role of toxins in staphylococcal infections, the pathogenesis of staphylococcal infections, separation of staphylococcal toxins, and the molecular size determination of staphylococcal toxins.

Dr. Houser came to Lincoln in 1964 from the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine at New Bolton Center where he was the diagnostic bacteriologist.

He is married to the former Janice Black of West Chester, Pa. They are the parents of two children, a girl, 9 and a boy, 2.

Lincoln Telescope Unveiled at Open House

Alumni star-gazers should make sure to drop over to Wright Hall when they visit the campus for Commencement. Installed there, is the spectacular new telescope which the University has made available to the public at special times, to area schools and to alumni.

Chairman of the Physics Department, Dr. S. H. Christensen said, "We held the open house for residents of the surrounding community — children especially are welcome — in order to introduce the public to the telescope which will be open to them the last Friday of each month, September through May. The scope will also be available to alumni commencement weekend."

The new telescope has an objective diameter of 12 inches and is 1500 times as powerful as the human eye. Run by a motor, the instrument moves in tune with the rotation of the earth making it possible to track a star without continually having to adjust for the movement of the heavens.

Finds Stars

The motor is also able to find particular stars for the person using the telescope. The viewer feeds information to the control panel, giving it the coordinate points of the star (found by looking in a book of star charts), pushes a button and the telescope finds the requested star.

Dr. Christensen noted that the telescope can, "see stars down to the 14th magnitude — the human eye can detect stars to the sixth magnitude — and with it the viewer can search out the rings of Saturn, the pole caps of Mars and the moons of Jupiter."

He noted, however, that at this time of year in order to see Mars and Jupiter one must either get up or stay up until 4 a.m.

"I don't suppose we'll see many people at those hours," he said.

The Moon is a different matter. "Adults and children who turn out will be able to see the fantastic landscape of the Moon as described by the astronauts — Frau Mauro and the Sea of Tranquility will be readily discernible."

To place the power of the telescope in an easily perceived concept, its power is such that it would be able to separate two objects, one inch apart, ten miles away!

The telescope was designed and installed by Celestron Pacific of Torrance, California and was first put into use during the January Term. It is especially adapted for celestial photography. Teamed with a camera the telescope can take long-time exposures to make very faint objects visible on photo-sensitive paper.

Variable Star Research

On-campus, the physics department will make use of the telescope in courses in astronomy. It will also be used in variable star research — keeping track of stars whose brightness fluctuates. These stars are usually a double-star configuration and one star rotates around another, eclipsing it from time to time thus making a fluctuating pattern of brightness.

Dr. Christensen noted, "there aren't enough astronomers to go around so great reliance is placed on competent amateurs who report the fluctuation patterns in variable stars. Scientists and astronomers need to know the period of rotation of the components of variable stars to add to the information being gathered on the structure of the universe."

During the open house for the public Dr. Christensen and Dr. T. W. Burkhardt, assistant professor of physics, operated the telescope for those attending.

Available to Schools

"We want to contact elementary and high schools in the area and set up either regular dates for them or make appointments so that the students in below-college-level may work with the scope, also," Dr. Christensen said.

Are some of your friends among the alumni complaining because they are not receiving news of Lincoln?

Ask them when's the last time they notified the Alumni Secretary or the office of Public Information of their current address.

We have received over 200 returned COLLAGES from the winter mailing because they were sent to the last address held for those alumni and that address is no longer accurate. When we get those returned pieces of mail THEN we find out you've moved. Let us know BEFORE you move and we can be sure news of Lincoln will be there waiting for you at your new address. Incidentally, Lincoln must pay for those returned pieces, too. You save Lincoln money when you notify us of address changes; money which can be put into much more worthwhile projects than the reading over of names of people who no longer live where we thought they lived.

THE COLLAGE is once more changing. To be published six times a year, THE COLLAGE will take the form of a newsletter whose main emphasis will be news of alumni. To keep it an up-to-date and vital publication, please keep in touch with the Public Information Office. When writing news to the office remember the 5 W's and an H which form the skeleton of every news item from presidential inaugurations to church notes: WHO (you are) WHAT (you're doing) WHERE (you're doing it) WHEN (you're doing it) WHY (you're doing it — can be deleted from wedding notes — and obituaries) and HOW (you're doing it — to be described at your own discretion and within the bounds of good taste).

Gregzie White is First Lincoln Athlete to Capture National Title

Veteran grappler Gregzie White of Lincoln University and the most outstanding wrestler in the Delaware Valley Conference, has become the first Lincoln athlete to capture a national title.

White, a devastating 158-pounder, defeated James Fallis of Lake Superior State College by an unprecedented decision of 8-0 during the finals of the 14th annual National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Tournament for the national title. The tournament was held March 11-13 at Appalachian State University, Boone, North Carolina.

A former New Jersey State wrestling champion, White went the regular dual meet season undefeated, compiling an impressive 10-0 record. His overall record now stands at 16-0 after winning all six of his bouts in the NAIA Tournament.

While enroute to his championship victory, White displayed amazing talent and sportsmanship by defeating his initial opponents Clay Lemons of Appalachian State University, 3-2; Jeff L. Williams of Oregon College, 4-1; Roger DeMarais of Bemidji State College, 16-1; Bob Young of Fort Lewis College, by a fall in 4'20"; and Glen Tablehoff of Trenton State College, 9-1.

White, in his first tour of the national competition in 1970, placed third and as a result of this and his undefeated seasonal record he was seeded first in this year's competition. Aside from winning the national title at the 158-pound weight class, he received many votes for the "Most Outstanding Wrestling Award," an official source said. Lincoln University wrestlers now rank 13th in the nation among small colleges and universities.

Allen B. Cook, head coach of the Lions, commended White on his outstanding performance and achievement by saying "He (White) is a true champion. He gave all that a good wrestler could give and it paid off. He is a real champion in every sense of the word and many of the coaches and athletes at the tournament spoke very highly of his wrestling ability and his character as a real sportsman."

"I expected that Gregzie would do well, but this is beautiful. No one could be more proud than I and the rest of the team members and the University community."

In the regular season the Lincoln University Lions captured the Delaware Valley Conference Championship undefeated for the fourth consecutive year. Team members were Mel Robinson (118-pounder), John Humphrey (127-pounder), Earl Dennis (134-pounder), Kerry Moore (142-pounder), Greg Day (150-pounder), Gregzie White (158-pounder), Bill Palmer and Hugh Dorsey (167-pounders), Jeff Lewis (177-pounder), John Clark (190-pounder) and Victor Wright and Roland Lamb (Unlimiteds).

Lincoln Track Team

Takes Seven Firsts

Lincoln University's Indoor Track Team totally dominated the Saturday, February 20, indoor track meet at Swarthmore College. Competing against Dickenson College, Drexel, Penn Military College, and defending Penn State College Champions Millersville State, the Lions amassed seven firsts in fourteen events.

Lincoln's strength was felt in the very first event when freshman Marvin Jones ran away with his section of the 50 yard dash in 5.8. Jones came back in the finals to win the event in a very close contested 5.7. Roy Chaney, hampered by a bad start was able to run 5.8 but failed to make the finals.

School record holder Howard Robertson clocked the fastest time of the year in the 50 yard hurdles running 6.6 and easily winning the event. Promising performances were had by Jerome Singleton and Bennie Turner, fourth and fifth respectively.

Immediately after the hurdles, Lincoln's sprint relay team blazed through the one lap relay. The team of Roy Chaney, Howard Robertson, substitute Mark McLendon, and John Toponwey led from start to finish.

Following Dennis Norwood and Willard John in the mile, Lincoln's sole entry in the 600, Lester Fields, ran more than 5 seconds faster than he did in the Philadelphia Track Classic earlier this season. Fields, with a new school record of 1:15.7, a superior time for a freshman, placed second behind the winning time of 1:15.5.

John Toponwey, although unable to get to his barber to shave his head as he usually does before each race, burned the 300 yard from start to finish with another best-ever time for a Lincoln runner in 33.3. Romaine Phillips won his section of the 300 but finished third in the final tally based on time. Improved Mark West was fourth in 34.6.

Lincoln's freshman shot putting star Roy Bundy finished third amongst stiff competition. On his way to doing so, he established himself as the number four man on Lincoln's all time list. Bundy's teammate Tom Carney finished fifth also with a fine put.

After taking second in the long jump, Arnold Dorsett successfully defended, and improved his indoor record by winning the triple jump. Dorsett, undefeated in two seasons last year, had one of the best jumps for an East Coast freshman last year. Freshman class president Bennie Turner finished third in the triple jump, other fine long jumps came from Kenny Sanler and Edwin Edobor.

In his first indoor meet and his first time for running the 1000 yard, a nervous Lee Johnson put on a burst of speed for the final 200 yards running away with the race in the formidable time of 2:20.

Showing a hint of things to come, the Lion's mile relay team, with a sizzling open leg by Mark West, recorded the fastest clocking ever at the Swarthmore Field House. Toponwey and Howard Robertson added to the lead. Despite being momentarily caught from behind by a Dickenson runner, Lester Fields burned home first capping of a fine afternoon of competition. Last season, the Lions lost only one mile relay race and it was to Millersville State. Millersville had two teams entered in the race, an A team and a B team, both of which were defeated by this years Lions relay team.

University J.V.'s Go Undefeated

Lincoln's young Lion Cubs closed out their season by defeating Salisbury State 70-66 to win its 14th and final game of the season. Not since the middle 1950's has a Lincoln J.V. team gone undefeated. Coach Anthony Rinaldi termed it, "A most satisfying season, because after 10 games we lost 3 starters." Lincoln beat some very good teams such as Maryland State, Delaware State, Cheyney State, Goldey Beacom Junior College, and Howard University.

Leading scorers this year were Garry White 23.2, Barry White 15.4, Chuck Henderson 13.9, Vernon "Snuffy" Smith 14.8, and Chris Bowens 14.6. The leading rebounders included Henderson who gathered 174 rebounds in 10 games for a 17.4 average and Smith with 209 and an average of 15.0 per game.

Others playing a large role were Chris Bowens with a team leading 48 assists, Mallory Sanford with 40 assists and playmaker, Chris Hawkins, a leading substitute who scored 94 points, Darnell Palmer with a strong board game, and Dale White who played both forward and guard.

The team averaged 92.7 points per game and allowed 63.4 points per game. Coach Rinaldi called this "The best squad he has had while at Lincoln for two years." In two years the Young Lions have won 26-4.

Mrs. Mae Foster Dies, Services Held at Lincoln

Mrs. Mae Foster, 67, wife of Lincoln's Dr. Laurence Foster who died last year, and founder of the Tom Thumb School, died Thursday, March 25 in New York City, after an extended illness.

Services were held in the Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel on the Lincoln campus, Monday, March 29. Conducting the services were Rev. Glenn C. Knecht of the Oxford Presbyterian Church, Dr. Jesse B. Barber alumnus and former dean of the Lincoln University Seminary and Lincoln University chaplain, Rev. Samuel S. Stevens.

Interment was in the Oxford Cemetery. Pall bearers were: Emery Wimbish, Jr., Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, Dr. Henry G. Cornwell, David H. Cullen, Leon Slauch and Robert N. Gardner.

Mrs. Foster and the closing of the Tom Thumb School were featured in the winter Collage. She opened the school in her house on the campus in 1942 and the last class graduated in 1970. Over 500 students, ex-students and friends of Mrs. Foster surprised her with a reception May 30, 1970.

Honorary pall bearers were: Dr. William Edward Farrison, Dr. Jesse B. Barber and Father Tollie LeRoy Caution. Prof. Orrin G. Suthern, head of the University Music Department, played for the service.

Dr. Herman R. Branson

Activities for alumni began Friday evening, May 21, when Dr. Herman R. Branson, the president of Lincoln University, opened the first annual General Alumni Convention with a welcoming address in the Mary Dod Brown Chapel. The address was followed by a concert by the University Chorale under the direction of Prof. Robert Emery, substituting for Prof. Orrin C. Suthern, who was ill. Alumni attended panel discussions in the Student Union Saturday morning.

At the annual meeting of the General Alumni Association on Saturday afternoon, May 22, in the auditorium of Wright Hall, the body approved the executive secretary's recommendation that annual dues be raised from $5 to $0 in order to keep the program at its present level. A subscription to The Lincolnian, the student newspaper, will be sent to each alumnus who pays his 1971-72 dues.

Dr. Branson was the principal speaker at the annual alumni banquet held in the Student Union at 6:30 p.m., May 22. He discoursed about Lincoln's proud history and expressed assurance that the graduating seniors would add to the glorious Lincoln tradition. Dr. George D. Cannon, '24, chairman of the Board of Trustees, also spoke briefly at the end of the program.

Dr. Oren W. Riley, '33, president of the Association, recognized reunion classes at the banquet beginning with the classes of 1911 and 1916 and continuing through the classes of 1961 and 1966. The Class of '31 had 15 members present and topped all contributors with $3,350.

Alumni Awards were presented at the banquet to the Rev. Charles S. Freeman, '02, '06s; Dr. William H. Waddell, '31; and Dr. Carl M. Mansfield, '51. The Association will present to the University a $400 scholarship in the name of each recipient. Lula Beatty was named the outstanding senior in the graduating class and will receive $150 from the Association. She ranked first in the Senior Class. Vivica Fitzpatrick, the second ranking student in the class, received the Jesse Plummer Memorial Medal from the Greater Boston Chapter for having attained the highest average in chemistry. John W. Lewis, president of the Senior Class, presented a plaque to Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, '34, for his services to the class and to Lincoln.

The Washington Chapter recaptured the chapter award to tie the Philadelphia Chapter, which has won the award twice. The award becomes the permanent possession of the chapter which wins it three times. At the banquet the Washington Chapter presented $1,900 to the Leadership Fund.

Announced at the banquet were the new officers of the Association: Atty. Levan Gordon, '58, president; Atty. Benjamin F. Amos, '34, first vice president; Raymond D. Butler, '49, second vice president; Theodore A. Perrine, '59, assistant secretary; Dr. William A. Miles, '51, treasurer; and Benjamin F. (Tick) Coleman, '35, historian. Atty. Wilfred N. Mais, Jr., '32, was announced as the new alumni trustee. Dr. Farrell, director of alumni relations, is automatically the executive secretary of the General Alumni Association.

The Association launched a raffle during the General Alumni Convention to raise some much needed funds for the treasury. Each alumnus was asked to buy or sell at least two books of chances (six chances in a book for $5) on a car or $3,500 for the first prize and a $500 U.S. savings bond for the second prize. The drawing will take place at the 1972 Convention May 26-28. Do your part by contacting Dr. Oren W. Riley, 45 E. 135th St., New York, N.Y. 10037 or call (212)-WA-6-8389.

Largest Graduating Class

The largest graduating class in the 117-year-old history of Lincoln University heard Federal Judge Leon Higginbotham of Philadelphia speak on the relevance of a quote from Frederick Douglass over one hundred years ago.

Douglass was asked how he felt about the role the freedmen should play in their attitude towards the slaves. "As if bound to them," was his reply. Judge Higginbotham told the 200 graduates this should be their attitude toward their fellows.

Citing the ratios of employment, housing and education he implored the graduates to recognize their role in guiding the future of the nation.

Richard Claxton Gregory gave the charge to the class exhorting them to "Make America Civilized."

Noting that what it takes is "ethics and integrity," "Dick" Gregory warned them that violence was not the answer to America's ills. "What you must do," he said, "is return to your homes, not with the thought of being leaders but rather as servants — to serve your community — they will make you the leader."

Today's students are probably the most morally honest and dedicated group which ever lived in the history of our country."

Gregory and Judge Higginbotham were among five who were awarded honorary degrees by Lincoln's President, Dr. Herman R. Branson. Joining them in receiving the Doctor of Laws honors were Dr. Elizabeth Duncan Koontz who heads up the Women's Division of the Department of Labor, and Dr. Aura Edward Severinghaus of New York, a member of the Macy Foundation and an eminent zoologist.

A Lincoln graduate, Dr. Robert Walter Johnson of Lynchburg, Va., was awarded the Doctor of Humane Letters degree for his work in serving the needs of young athletes throughout the country.

Graduating Summa Cum Laude were Lula Andrea Beatty of Hobgood, N.C. and Viveca Jean Fitzpatrick of Ashland, Ky.

Effective this year, the Alumni Bulletin will be issued five times a year, beginning with the October 1971 issue.

Subsequent issues will be released in December, February, April and June.

Copy for each issue should be in the Publications Office no later than the fifteenth of the month prior to issue.

W. K. Kellogg Foundation Announces Grant to Lincoln

Lincoln University has been notified it will receive its initial grant of $5,000 from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation this year. The Grant is for College Resources for Environmental Studies Programs.

A committee has been set up to administer the Grant, which will be used to expand facilities in various departments.

Named by Dr. Herman R. Branson, Lincoln's president, were: Dr. Frank G. Davis, Chairman, Department of Economics; Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, Chairman, English Department; Professor Harold D. Gunn, Chairman, Sociology and Anthropology Department; Dr. Joseph L. Harrison, Chairman, Pre-Medical Committee and Biology Department.

Also, Professor J. B. MacRae, Chairman, Department of Education; Dr. Richard P. Stevens, Chairman Department of Political Science; Professor Emery Wimbish, University Librarian and Earle D. Winderman, Assistant to the President. In addition there will be student representatives composed of majors in the preceding disciplines.

Dr. Robert E. Kinsinger, Kellogg Foundation Vice President, explained that the Grant to Lincoln University, is one of approximately 300 similar grants being made to small private liberal arts colleges throughout the United States as part of the Foundation's continuing program of support for activities aimed at finding solutions to environmental problems throughout the nation.

Dr. Kinsinger said, "The realization that man is faced with unprecedented crises precipitated by rapid and profound population growth, environmental deterioration, and depletion of the planet's natural resources has evoked a growing concern. The Foundation believes that the nation's small, private liberal arts colleges can make a substantial contribution toward solving these problems by strengthening their programs of environmental studies."

Inauguration Ceremonies

Dr. Herman R. Branson receives the charter from Marvin Wachman at inauguration ceremonies on November 14. Watching is Dr. George D. Cannon (center), chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Dr. Herman R. Branson, who was inducted as Lincoln University's tenth President, Sunday, November 14, 1971, assured the more than 1,000 in the audience that students would receive forthright and honest attention, and the intellectual and educational skills which are still being denied black youth at many of the nation's colleges.

Noting that some colleges are offering bachelors degrees in general studies which are not preparatory to the 21st Century, he remarked "such curricula far mislead our young people."

He cited statistics which show that almost one half million black youths are among the nine million Americans in higher education. But because Negroes number near 12 percent of the total population in America, that figure should be 1.1 million blacks attending colleges and universities.

Dr. Branson pointed to finances as the key problem which bars many from enrollment in the higher learning institutions, noting that almost 75 percent of last year's black college freshmen came from homes whose median income was less than $8,000 annually.

"The major question facing Lincoln today is to find effective ways to meet the needs of young people who come to us from this society." He added, "These methods call for different structural models avoiding outmoded patterns."

Dr. George D. Cannon, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, presided over the ceremonies which were held in the Grim Gymnasium and presented Dr. Branson with the medallion of office while former President Dr. Marvin Wachman presented the University Charter.

The keynote speaker was Dr. Jerrold R. Zacharias, Director of the Education Research Center and Professor of Physics, Emeritus, at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Also taking part in the program were: Dr. Samuel Stevens, the University Chaplain who delivered the Invocation, Dr. Andrew Murray, Professor of Religion, who gave the Benediction, and the University Chorale under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern, III.

At the luncheon which followed in the Student Union, the Honorable John H. Ware, who presided, read congratulatory messages from President Richard M. Nixon, Pennsylvania Senators Hugh Scott and Richard Schweiker and Senator Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

Andrew M. Bradley, former Commonwealth Secretary of Property and Supplies, brought a message from Pennsylvania's Governor Milton Shapp.

Greetings were also brought from the Alumni by Benjamin F. Amos, Vice President of the General Alumni Association; Mrs. Cornelius Gaither, President of the Ladies Auxiliary; Francis Maule, Mayor of Oxford; Roderick C. Willis, Student Government Association President and Dean Leroy D. Johnson, representing the faculty.

Don't Worry About Your Will! The state (wherever you live) has taken care of that unpleasant little matter for you — if you haven't.

But, of course, the state in all its wisdom may not handle your estate as you would prefer. How is the state to know if you don't tell it?

Various surveys show that over half of all adult Americans who die have not written their wills. Many others who have legal wills have not updated them for years; circumstances change and wills should be reviewed periodically to determine if a new will or a codicil (an addition) is in order.

You can let the state decide who your estate's executor will be and how your estate will be disposed of — all you have to do is nothing. But one thing will be certain, no charitable institution — church, college, hospital, etc. — will receive any part of your estate. All of it will go to your relatives (close or distant) and to the state. If you have no relatives, the state takes all.

Only you can prevent the state from writing your will — consult your attorney and make these important decisions yourself!

In a recent interview by the Amsterdam News with JUDGE BRUCE McMARION WRIGHT, the Judge pointed out his dislike of crime and the causes thereof. He paroled a lot of narcotics related cases because he doesn't think locking them up will help. He thinks that there should be a program within the prisons to help the drug users. The Judge also doesn't think policemen should go around looking for members of minority groups to arrest. The Judge believes in tempering justice with mercy. Judge Wright flies to Africa annually to visit his friend Leopold Senghor, President of Senegal. He is a poet and a book of his poetry has been published.

PHILADELPHIA CHAPTER HOSTS DINNER

FRANK T. (TICK) COLEMAN advises that the Philadelphia Chapter of the Lincoln Alumni will host a Lincoln Day Dinner on March 11, 1972 at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in Philadelphia.

"The gala event," says "Tick," "will bring together some 100 graduates (male and female) of our great University.

Each of us will witness and be greatly inspired by the tremendous achievements of our fellow graduates in the fields of Law, Religion, Medicine, Business, Education, Government and Public Administration.

"We'll have an opportunity to renew acquaintance with many whom we have not seen for some time, so I urge you to make every effort to attend."

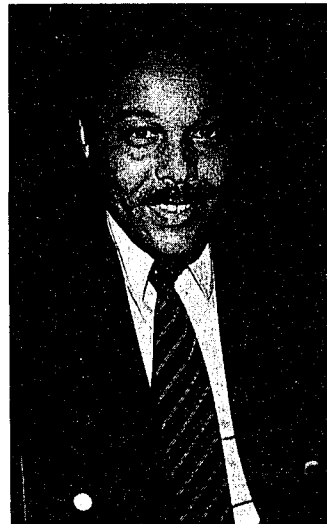

The last day for reservations is February 29, 1972 — the tab? — $10.00 per person.

Dr. Branson Tours Africa

Dr. Branson, accompanied by Mrs. Branson, made a six-week tour of Africa under sponsorship of the United States State Department.

Beginning with Accra, Ghana, where he met with the Association of African Universities which lasted for a week, he also visited the University of Accra.

While there he met a delegation of Lincoln alumni led by Dr. Robert E. Lee, '42 and Dr. E. Ako Adjei, ex-'42.

From Accra the trip led to Nigeria where the group visited the universities in Lagos and Idaban.

After Nigeria they were in Kampala, Uganda, where the oldest university in East Africa, Makerere University, is located. The next stop was Dar es Salaam, capitol of Tanzania, where they were entertained by the new ambassador, W. Beverly Carter, '44.

The next stops were at Mombasa, Nairobi and Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, where two Lincoln alumni, Robert Freeman, '41, and J. Arthur Johnson, '64 played host.

A talk which Dr. Branson made for the US Information Service was reported on the front page of the Ethiopian Herald of Sunday, August 13.

Lincoln University received nationwide publicity during the GOP Convention in Miami Beach last month. Sandra Taylor a 19-year-old freshman from Erie, Pa., was named as alternate and personal stand-in for Senator Hugh Scott.

In her many television appearances Miss Taylor, daughter of Erie mortician John Taylor, gave her Alma Mater high praise.

Here's something we could use a lot more of — from those of you who have savored the fare here at Lincoln University.

Out in San Francisco a man, Claud Gourley, who died in his 80's, left $500,000 to be divided equally among seven beneficiaries, one of which was Lincoln University.

No one has been able to ascertain the reason Lincoln was included — he was apparently not a graduate. He lived alone and had no immediate relatives.

However, Lincoln is grateful.

While he is not truly one of ours, Lincoln can be proud of H. Viscount Nelson who was recently confirmed as an assistant professor at Dartmouth University following several years on the academic staff of the University of California at Los Angeles.

Nelson is the son of Mrs. Leanna Nelson, secretary to Dean of the Students, Carl A. Thomas.

President Branson has been honored by several different groups during the past few months.

The National Urban Coalition presented him with their Community Health Service Award in Washington recently for his outstanding contribution to the Health Manpower Development Program.

He was the principal speaker at the National Science Teachers' Association area convention which was held in New Orleans in early November and his topic reflected the theme of the convention — "Science Taught or Caught - To What Ends."

Chester County Commissioner Theodore Rubino named Dr. Branson to a five-member committee to investigate recent allegations of mismanagement of the Pocopson Home, a residence for the indigent sick in Chester County.

Dr. Branson has also been selected as a member of the Advisory Board of the National Science Foundation. His term will end January 1, 1976.

The Science Information Council funds the development of advanced information systems that can lead to more effective dissemination of scientific information.

On Sunday, November 12, Dr. Branson joined Dr. George Cannon at the 54th annual Jersey City Branch NAACP banquet where he was the guest speaker.

Girls win first championship

The women's volleyball team, coached by Mrs. Jean A. White, was the winner in the annual Philadelphia Volleyball Tournament held at Eastern College, November 11.

Going into the tourney with a 7-2 record, the girls successfully met four teams, Cheyney, Eastern, Gallaudet and Bryn Mawr, sailing through without a loss to win the title.

Scott Paper award to junior

Miss Boyce C. Williams, a junior at Lincoln University, has been named the recipient of the Scott Paper Foundation Award for Leadership for 1972.

Miss Williams, the daughter of Frank J. Williams, Sr. of 1907 North 27th Street in Richmond, Va., is majoring in English but is interested in personnel work.

The Foundation carries with it a cash prize of $1,000 this year and a like grant in Miss Williams's senior year. It is given to the student at Lincoln who has displayed the outstanding characteristics and abilities which are regarded as prerequisites for leadership in business and industry and has achieved a high level of scholarship and noteworthy success in extracurricular activities.

Miss Williams was the final choice of the committee from a field of 40 candidates. She is a member of the Dean's Cabinet, treasurer of the Women Students' Association, has served as a student personnel intern and is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority.

Last year the award went to Miss Serethea A. Matthews of Philadelphia.

Soccer team shares crown

The soccer team, which had a disastrous season winning only 3 games while losing 7 and tying one, still managed to grab a share of the Delaware Valley Conference title.

Salisbury State and Lincoln, with identical league marks of 2 wins and a tie, share the crown.

Ceremonies honoring the late REV. H. T. JASON, who was a Lincoln grad back in 1892, completing the Seminary in '95, were held in Corozal, P.R. during the summer.

Rev. Jason was awarded an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree at Lincoln in 1952. He was elected to the Sports Hall of Fame in Puerto Rico in 1970 for founding and sponsoring a playground, promoting excellence in sports and for helping to mold the character of four generations of children.

Several years ago the town of Corozal celebrated an "H. T. Jason Day" at which time they unveiled a monument erected in his honor. The Lions International gave him an "Achievement Award" plaque and the "H. T. Jason Club" was organized by sixty-five of the leading business and professional men who, during their boyhood had been influenced by Mr. Jason.

Dr. Jason died in July 1955.

Deaths

Dr. Merrill H. Curtis, ex. '17, died on September 30, in Washington, D. C. He was in the Washington Medical Center after a lingering illness. Dr. Curtis was a giant in the Medical field serving so many people of all ages.

He was married to Pearl Brown Curtis for fifty years and they enjoyed a rich, colorful life together. They were smart hosts, and traveled extensively all over the world.

Dr. Curtis came to the Capitol City seventy years ago from Chicago to become Surgeon-in-Chief of Freedman's Hospital. Until the middle thirties he taught surgery at Howard University.

His death was a tragedy for Washington, D. C. and all over the country.

Dr. William A. Marshall, '26, the brother of Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall, died suddenly on the ground of the Emily P. Bissell Hospital where he was taken ill. He was 67 years old.

Dr. Marshall, a leading authority on Chest diseases, was director of the Bissell Hospital.

He received his medical degree from Howard University, Washington, D. C. in 1930.

He left his private practice during one period after he himself contracted tuberculosis. Recovered in 1947 he came to Delaware with the intention of devoting his life to working with tuberculosis patients.

Dr. Arthur Philip Motley, '28, of Edinburgh, Scotland died recently.

Dr. Francis T. Jamison Jr., '40, former surgeon at Mercy-Douglass and Doctor's Hospital and a practicing Veterans Administration Hospital Surgeon in Philadelphia, died October 17. He was 53.

He received his medical degree from Howard University in 1944. Dr. Jamison also attended the Graduate School of Medicine of the University of Pennsylvania.

During the Korean War he served in the Medical Corps of the U. S. Army with the rank of Major.

He then joined the surgical staff at Mercy-Douglass, serving there until 1966. Also he served on the attending staff at Doctor's Hospital.

Dr. Jamison was a member of numerous professional organizations and of Omega Psi Phi fraternity.

Kenneth Gilmore, '40. Services were held at the First Baptist Church, Linden. He had been a corrections officer at Rahway State Prison for 15 years and was a member of the New Jersey State PBA.

He was a football and basketball standout while he attended Lincoln University.

Rev. James H. Robinson, ex '43, founder and executive director of Operation Crossroads Africa, died November 6, 1972 in New York.

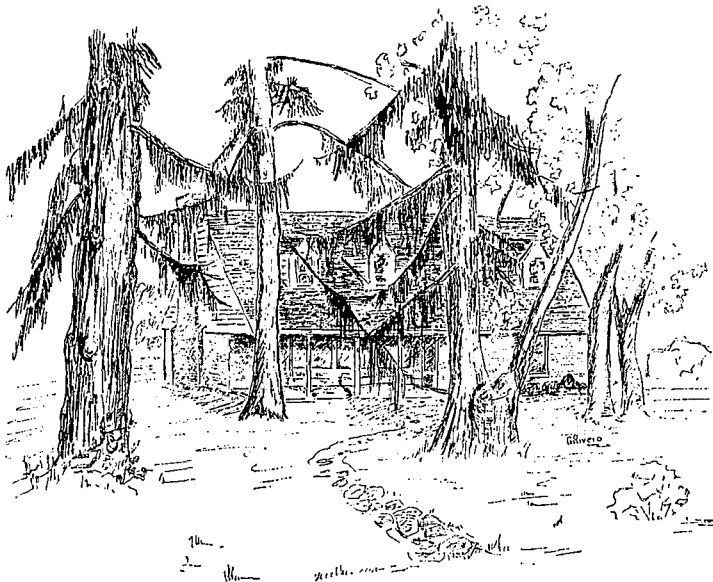

Dr. Robinson also founded the Church of the Master and the Morningside Community Center in Harlem. He directed the two institutions for over 23 years, originating the Operations Crossroads Africa program in 1958.

Donald Randall, '50, died November 11, in Philadelphia.

In the last issue of the Bulletin — Dr. Thomas E. Guyden was incorrectly listed in the Class of 1955 — it should have been 1965.

Charles Dickerson of the '65 Class was incorrectly identified as taking a position of assistant president at Dartmouth. His title will be assistant vice president.

Dr. Horace M. Bond, President Emeritus, Dies in Atlanta, Georgia

Dr. Horace Mann Bond, President Emeritus of Lincoln University, died in Atlanta, Ga., Thursday, December 21.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday, December 27 at the First Congregational Church in Atlanta.

Dr. Bond was born in Nashville, Tenn., November 8, 1904 and was graduated from Lincoln in 1923. He later earned the MA and PhD from the University of Chicago. After a year as an instructor at Lincoln he took a position as head of the Department of Education at Langston (Okla.) University; became Director of the State Extension Service at Alabama State College; served as Assistant Professor and Research Assistant in the Social Science Department at Fisk University in his hometown of Nashville.

In 1935 the Trustees of Dillard University in New Orleans selected Dr. Bond as Dean and Professor of Psychology and Education and in 1939 he was named president of Fort Valley State College in Georgia, where he remained until his Alma Mater, Lincoln, recalled him as the first black president in its history, the eighth to hold that position.

Dr. Bond, during his 12 year tenure at Lincoln, was responsible for the adoption of a "new program" for the University, with the slogan, "Free Persons in a Free World Through Education and Brotherhood." Credit for the bill that permitted Lincoln University to participate in the State Building Authority was largely due to Dr. Bond's eloquence in behalf of Lincoln.

During his administration Lincoln realized an increased appropriation from the State and he was also credited with the establishment of the Institute on African Affairs and the introduction of Negro History to Lincoln's curriculum.

The author of several books, the latest of which, a History of Lincoln University had just been completed, Dr. Bond contributed many articles to various magazines. In 1936 he was awarded the Susan Colver Rosenberger Prize of the University of Chicago for the best thesis in the Social Sciences. He also received an award from the American Educational Research Association for one of the six best educational research studies published.

Upon his resignation from Lincoln Dr. Bond devoted his time to writing and speech-making, served on a number of governmental committees dealing with education at various levels.

Dr. Bond's son, Julian, was the first black man to be seated in the Georgia State legislature. Although he won the election three times, he was barred from taking his seat until the U. S. Supreme Court ruled unanimously in 1966 that he should be seated. The younger Bond attended primary school in Lincoln University.

Dr. Bond is survived by, in addition to his son Julian, his widow, the former Julia Washington, another son James G., who was the Southern Director of the Youth Citizenship Fund and a daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Moore, two brothers, J. Max Bond of New York City and Gilbert, of Chicago, a sister, Mrs. Dallas Tinsley and eight grandchildren.

Dr. LeRoy Patrick Named to Lincoln Board of Trustees

Dr. LeRoy Patrick of Pittsburgh has been named by Governor Milton J. Shapp as a member of the Lincoln University Board of Trustees. Dr. Patrick graduated from Lincoln in 1939 and later from Union Theological Seminary in New York. Lincoln awarded him the Doctor of Divinity degree in 1964.

He served as president of the Homewood-Brushton Citizens Renewal Council, 1968-1972, the National Presbyterian Health, Education and Welfare Association, 1965-67. He has been chairman of the Pittsburgh Area Religion and Race Council; the NAACP Education Committee and the Program to Aid Citizen Enterprise (PACE) and Moderator of the Pittsburgh Presbytery.

In addition to serving on a number of boards in the Pittsburgh area, Dr. Patrick, pastor of Bethesda Church, was selected by Time magazine and the Greater Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce as one of Pittsburgh's Hundred Leaders of Tomorrow; received the Courier Award for Outstanding Achievement in 1962; The NAPE Award for Outstanding Achievement in 1963 and the Prince Hall Masons Award for Americanism Day in 1964. In 1969 he was the recipient of the Isabel P. Kennedy Award for Distinguished Service in Health and Welfare and that same year he was given the Martin Luther King Minister Award, by the Music and Arts Guild.

Last year Dr. Patrick was honored by the St. Cyprion Consistory No. 4 when he was given their William T. Poole Award.

Married to the former Norma A. Brandon, Dr. Patrick is the father of two sons, Stephen and Gregory. Stephen, who graduated from Lincoln in 1971, is a second year student at the Duquesne University School of Law. Gregory, a graduate of Haverford College, is a first year student at the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine. Mrs. Patrick is a psychiatric social worker with the Pennsylvania Department of Health.

Basketball Team Wins Hawk Invitational Tournament

Lincoln's basketball team took part in the first annual Hawk Invitational Tournament, hosted by Roger Williams College in Bristol, R.I., and walked away with top honors.

In addition to Lincoln's winning the tournament, Sterling "Tree" Wright was named the Most Valuable Player and Garry White was picked on the All-Tournament team.

Amilcar Lopes Cabrel Assassinated

Amilcar Lopes Cabral, one of the most prominent leaders of the African struggle against white supremacy, was assassinated January 20, in front of his home in Conakry, the capital of Guinea.

Mr. Cabral was awarded an honorary degree, Doctor of Humane Letters, by Lincoln in a special convocation just a few months ago.

The African Independence Party which he headed, claims control of two-thirds of Portuguese Guinea, a small territory sandwiched between Senegal and Guinea on Africa's western bulge.

Edward Burke Re-elected to Massachusetts Senate

Former instructor, Edward Burke, was re-elected as a State Senator in the recent Massachusetts elections, winning handily over his opponent for the seat he won two years ago. Senator Burke, Woodrow Wilson School at Princeton, graduate, served as an instructor in history and government at Lincoln from 1967-1969.

He is presently employed by Anchor Motor Freight Company and was a campaign coordinator for former Massachusetts Governor, John A. Volpe.

This is the history of the Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, written by an alumnus and former President, Horace Mann Bond. Dr. Bond explores the roots of the institution and seeks an understanding of its origin, its functioning, its growth and its meaning in the world. He tells the story of Lincoln University from its beginnings to 1945, the date of his appointment as President of the University. This volume makes a real contribution to the history of American education and race relations, and is one that educators and social and political scientists will find invaluable.

Handsomely designed and printed by Princeton University Press.

Dr. Branson Granted Honorary Degree

Dr. Herman Russell Branson, president of Lincoln University, will be granted an honorary degree by Western Michigan University at its April 21, 1973 commencement exercises for his distinguished leadership in the field of higher education and his scientific contributions in the field of physics.

In addition to Dr. Branson, who will receive the Doctor of Laws degree, the Western Michigan Board of Trustees have approved the granting of honorary degrees to Gerald Ford of Grand Rapids, Michigan, minority leader in the U. S. House of Representatives; Cleo Hartwig, New York, alumna of Western, sculptress; Richard U. Light, Kalamazoo, neurosurgeon, geographer and chairman of the Board of Trustees of Kalamazoo College; Robert B. MacVean, a Western alumnus, director of the American School of Guatemala; and Joan Wolfe, Grand Rapids, environmentalist.

Attention All Alumni

Nominations for Alumni Awards (preferably from Reunion Classes 3's and 8's) should be sent to reach the Executive Secretary, General Alumni Association, Lincoln University, on or before March 15. Consideration will be given to those alumni who have shown their interest in Lincoln by making financial contributions as well as to their professional achievements. Please give your reasons for nominating the alumnus.

ALSO, support the general Alumni Association by sending your dues to the executive secretary today. Without your support the program of the association cannot be expanded.

Ladies Auxiliary Marks Anniversary

Help celebrate the 40th anniversary of the Ladies Auxiliary of Lincoln University — become a national member. Send your check, or money order for $5.00 to the National Membership chairman, c/o Mrs. Elizabeth Greene, 14406 Edgewood Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio 44128.

Also, plan to attend the Alumni Banquet, June 2. Write Mrs. Amaza Lockett, 109 N. New York Avenue, Atlantic City, New Jersey. As Journalist she is planning an anniversary issue of the Lincolnette. She wants to know about the activities of Lincoln Ladies.

Two Cagers Make All-State List

Two Lincoln University cagers, George Gooden and Sterling "Tree" Wright, have been named to the NAIA basketball All-America honorable mention list.

Both are seniors and hail from Ohio, Gooden from Cleveland, and Wright from Yellow Springs.

During their careers at Lincoln, George set an all time scoring record of 1268 points while Wright surpassed the 1000 mark in both scoring and rebounds.

In addition, both were named to the All District 19 NAIA team.

The Philadelphia Basketball Writers, at their banquet in Philadelphia on March 29, selected Sterling as a member of their All-District Small College squad. He also received an award as the highest scorer in the small college ranks.

Binds Tightened

Although forewarned, the state's colleges and universities are disheartened over Gov. Shapp's proposed zero-spending-increase for the next year and warns of higher tuitions to meet inflationary costs.

"It's a very grim outlook," said Dr. William Hassler, president of Indiana University.

About $339.6 million of Shapp's proposed $3.8 billion budget would go for higher education, the same as current spending except for a bare $600,000 increase for Lincoln University.

Golden Anniversary of Beta Kappa Chi

Lincoln played host to the Golden Anniversary of Beta Kappa Chi, the national honor society which was founded at Lincoln by 24 students in 1923. It is the oldest predominantly black scientific honor society in the United States.

The purpose of Beta Kappa Chi is to encourage and advance scientific education through original investigation, the dissemination of scientific knowledge and the stimulation of high scholarship in pure and applied science.

Among the founders still active are Dr. Hildrus A. Poindexter of Clinton, Md., and I. J. K. Wells of Philadelphia.

Dr. Poindexter, '24, is a pioneer in tropical medicine and winner of numerous military awards, public service citations and foreign decorations for his contributions to medicine.

Mr. Wells, '23, is a prominent educator, publisher, film maker and producer.

The three day meeting, in conjunction with the National Institute of Science, was highlighted by the special awards ceremony and dinner held on campus, April 12. Dr. Herman R. Branson, a noted scientist in his own right, was the speaker.

There was also a banquet and dance at the Philadelphia Sheraton Hotel.

Fields places in cross country Conference meet

Les Fields, co-captain of the cross-country team, placed seventh in a field of 29 in the Delaware Valley Conference championships held at Salisbury State College, winning the handsome trophy he's holding for his effort.

During the season he captured two firsts in leading the Lions to a win over Rutgers of Camden and a tie with Messiah College. He is seventh on the list of all time fastest Lincoln University runners on the home course.

A junior, Les was named as one of the Outstanding College Athletes of America for 1972.

Leonard Williams gets Washington Assignment by Bethlehem Steel

The appointment, effective April 1, of Leonard B. Williams as news media representative in the Washington, D.C. division of Bethlehem Steel Corporation's public affairs department was announced by Marshall D. Post, manager of news media division. Since 1968 Mr. Williams has been a writer in the division at the home office.

A native of Bridgeton, N.J., Mr. Williams was graduated from Lincoln University in 1968 with a bachelor of arts degree in English. He joined Bethlehem Steel that year as a member of its management training program for college graduates and was assigned to the news media division at the home office.

Mr. Williams is a member of the board of directors for the Girls' Club of Bethlehem and a member of the Pennsylvania Public Television Network Commission. He is also a past member of the Bethlehem Jaycees board of directors and has been a volunteer streetworker in the City of Bethlehem.

He is a commissioned officer in the Pennsylvania Army National Guard and editor of The Guardsman, which is published by the National Guard Association of Pennsylvania. During the Hurricane Agnes emergency last summer, he was called to active duty and his contributions earned him the Pennsylvania Commendation Ribbon for meritorious service.

Mr. Williams and his family plan to move to the Washington area shortly.

ALUMNI PUBLICATION OF LINCOLN UNIVERSITY, LINCOLN UNIVERSITY, PA. 19352

Lincoln University graduates largest class in history

The role of Lincoln University today was likened to the role it played in the early days of its founding — the freeing of, the reclaiming of, and the saving of the soul of the black man who was all-too leisurely being freed from slavery. The comparison was made by the Hon. Edward W. Blyden, III, as Lincoln graduated the largest class in its 118-year history, 216, at the commencement exercises in the Alumni Memorial Gymnasium on Sunday afternoon.

"There is an almost indissoluble link between the original credo of Lincoln and its goal for setting up an agency for aiding the cause of what was called in the early years 'emancipation', but what is now more militantly labelled 'liberation' or 'total liberation' of the African continent.

"I sound no alarm, but unless you go out from this campus with a resolve to be counted among men of faith and action, the acquisition of the letters B.A., B.Sc., or B.D. after your names will be no more than mere appendages of embellishment and decoration, not tools of service to yourselves or to the community you have been trained to serve," he admonished.

Dr. Blyden, ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to the U.S.S.R. and the "Iron Curtain" countries representing Sierra Leone, was awarded an honorary LL.D. from his alma mater. He was a 1948 graduate from Lincoln.

In delivering the charge to the graduates, Dr. Jerome H. Holland, former ambassador to Sweden and another recipient of an LL.D., exhorted the class of '73 to realize "that we must concern ourselves with the rebuilding of this society. Unlike your classmates of even a few years ago, your future horizons have many more exciting potentials. This change should be a real challenge for the concerned young citizens of tomorrow."

Other honored included Paul Robeson, noted American tenor who was represented by his son, Paul Jr., Judge of the New York City Criminal Court Bruce McMarion Wright, who finished Lincoln in 1942; and the Rev. Maurice Jefferson Moyer of New Castle, Del., a 1952 graduate from the Lincoln Seminary.

The honorary degrees were conferred by Lincoln University President, Dr. Herman R. Branson.

Taking part in the ceremonies were Professor Manuel Rivero, Dr. Henry Cornwell, Dr. Samuel Stevens, Professor Orrin C. Suthern III and Dr. Alexine L. Atherton.

The benediction was by the Rev. Thomas B. Hargrave, who finished the seminary in 1923 and is presently serving at the Church of the Evangel in Portsmouth, Va.

Timothy Hetzer of Nottingham was valedictorian. Diana A. Volpe of Caracas, Venezuela, was salutatorian.

In the baccalaureate services in the Mary Dod Brown Chapel in the morning, the Rev. Calvin S. Morris, '63, assistant professor of history and the coordinator of Black studies at Simmons College in Boston, was the guest speaker whose topic was

"Telling It Like It Is."

Timothy B. Hetzer along with Miss Volpe, were graduated summa cum laude while magna cum laude honors were shared by eight students.

Philadelphians making that list included Carolyn Irene Kimbrough and Seretha A. Matthews while Patrick McKinley of Yeadon, Pa., and Janice Lucille Rice of Morton were the other Pennsylvanians.

Others were Walter Wang Tei Li of Hong Kong, Ronald L. Slaughter of Baton Rouge, La., Burton W. Cook of Newark, N.J. and Michael J. Rogers of Washington, D.C. 34 were graduated cum laude.

Two Senators named trustees

Two State Senators, Herbert Arlene and Freeman Hankins, have been named to serve four-year terms on the Board of Trustees of Lincoln University by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate, Martin L. Murray.

Both of the appointees have been known for their interest in education and Senator Hankins is a member of the Education Committee.

Senator Arlene was first elected to the House in 1958 where he served until his elevation to the Senate in 1967. Senator Hankins, served in the House from 1961 until his election to the Senate, the second black to so serve, in 1967, also.

Both men are native Georgians. Senator Arlene was born in Harrison while Senator Hankins' birthplace was Brunswick. Both are Democrats.

Senator Arlene is the leader of the 47th Ward in Philadelphia and is an officer of Union A.M.E. Church, secretary of the Philadelphia Democratic County Committee. He holds membership in the Odd Fellows, NAACP, Local No. 10 of the Laundry and Dry Cleaners International Union, AFL; the Urban League, North Philadelphia Business Men's Association and is a 32nd Degree Mason.

He also is a member of the Board of Directors of the Greater Philadelphia Development Corporation and Wharton Center.

Senator Hankins, a registered Funeral Director, is the leader of the 6th Ward, a member of the Democratic City Committee and was elected committeeman in his own Division. He has been a delegate to the Democratic National Convention.

His early career included work as a newsboy in Pittsburgh and as a bellman in Atlantic City. He served in the U.S. Army Medical Corps during WW 2.

The Senator is also a member of the National Funeral Association, the Quaker City Funeral Directors' Association, he is a Mason and an Elk, and has served on numerous Civic Boards and Committees.

The two new trustees made their first official visit to the Lincoln University campus where they were escorted on a tour of the facilities by Senator Arlene's niece, Olivia McCoy, who is a student.

Report of General Alumni Association Meeting

At the annual meeting of the General Alumni Association on Saturday, June 2, the body —pledged its support to Dr. Branson to maintain the flow of young people into Lincoln University and to give financial assistance to help struggling students.

—endorsed a recommended change in the Alma Mater of the line which reads "Thy Sons will e'er be true!" to "To thee we'll e'er be true!" (The change was made in recognition of the presence of women on the campus and in the General Alumni Association.)

—backed the appeal of the Executive Secretary calling for support of the newly established Alumni Office.

—appointed a committee, to be chaired by Dr. Frank Wilson, to look into the quality of campus life; to assure the preservation of campus landmarks like the Mary Dod Brown Chapel, and to see that due emphasis is placed on functional communicative skills.

—nominated Dr. J. A. Parker for another term on the Board of Trustees.

At the annual alumni banquet held the same evening Alumni Awards were presented to IRA J.K.

WELLS, '23; OREN W. RILEY, '33; and LOUIS J. JOYCE, '38.

IRA JAMES KOHATH WELLS

For daring to dream dreams which many might consider impossible and then working to make them come true, IRA J.K. WELLS merits the recognition accorded him by the General Alumni Association of Lincoln University.

ORREN WALSTINE RILEY

Because he has demonstrated in his life and works those qualities which have long been associated with Lincoln men — perseverance, service to mankind, and leadership — our distinguished alumnus merits the honor which the General Alumni Association has seen fit to confer upon him.

LOUIS JEFFERSON JOYCE

A Labor Department economist, Joyce writes a national weekly analysis on employment and unemployment throughout the United States and Puerto Rico. In 1943 he received the Selective Service Presidential Award; in 1944, the Special Service Award USA; in 1945, the Legion of Merit USA; and in 1963 the Meritorious Award of the Department of Labor. It is fitting this year that the General Alumni Association of Lincoln University reward him for his years of devoted service to Lincoln.

Alumnus of the Month

Dr. Judson spends summer at Kodak Labs

Dr. Horace Judson, a 31-year-old physical organic chemist, spent the summer at the Kodak Research Laboratories in Rochester practicing what he teaches.

As a professor of advanced organic chemistry at Morgan State College, Dr. Judson devotes most of his time to theoretical explanations of chemical phenomena. For three months this past summer, however, he put his knowledge to work in Eastman Kodak Company's color organic chemistry laboratory.

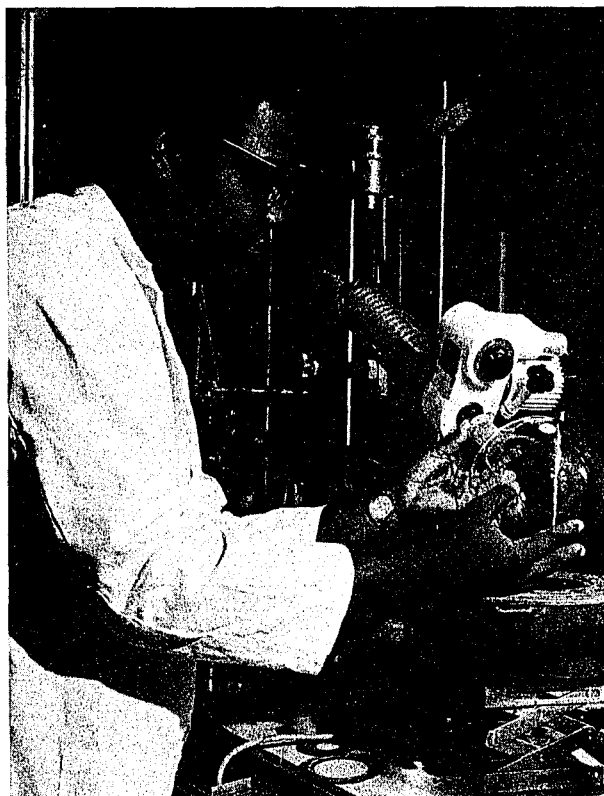

"I enjoy the challenge of theoretical research," he said, "so my work at Kodak is an excellent balance to my teaching. In addition, working in a modern industrial research lab helps keep me abreast of new equipment and methods that may have been developed over the past several years."

Formerly of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., Dr. Judson, who worked for Kodak during the summer of 1971 as a National Urban League professor, this year stepped into the midst of a long-term research program to develop new compounds that might be used in color imaging. He was engaged in a feasibility study, formulating and testing model compounds — simpler versions of more complex chemical formations, which retain the basic qualities and properties of the full compounds.

As befits a man who enjoys the stimulation of an intellectual challenge, Dr. Judson proudly added that he has constructed every compound he has attempted.

During his years at Lincoln University (1959-1963) and at Cornell University, Dr. Judson considered a career in industrial research. During his final year at Cornell, where he received his Ph.D. in 1969, he actually accepted a research position with an industrial firm. Following that, however, several incidents led him to consider seriously the needs of black colleges and their students. "I felt a sense of commitment to the small black college," he said, "so I turned my job down and went to Morgan State."

Dr. Judson realizes that teaching, especially in a rapidly changing field such as chemistry, requires non-academic experience if a course is to be relevant. "You can't rely on textbooks to keep you current," he said. "They're usually two to three years behind laboratory developments." To keep himself "in touch with what's happening," Dr. Judson said he will continue to spend part of his summers in industrial research or some similar study program.

"There's a big difference between teaching theory and using theory in research," he pointed out. "My students won't benefit directly from what I'm doing here, but indirectly, I guess they'll have a better teacher."

And to Dr. Horace Judson, that's what matters most.

This is the history of the Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, written by an alumnus and former President, Horace Mann Bond. Dr. Bond explores the roots of the institution and seeks an understanding of its origin, its functioning, its growth and its meaning in the world. He tells the story of Lincoln University from its beginnings to 1945, the date of his appointment as President of the University. This volume makes a real contribution to the history of American education and race relations, and is one that educators and social and political scientists will find invaluable.

Handsomely designed and printed by Princeton University Press.

Alumnus of the Month

Dr. Poindexter Receives Achievement Award

An expert in tropical medicine whose work has carried him to 80 countries on six continents has been named the recipient of the 1973 Edward W. Browning Achievement Award. Hildrus A. Poindexter, M.D., M.P.H., currently professor of community health practice at Howard University in Washington, D.C., was presented the $5,000 award "for outstanding contribution in the prevention of disease" at the 101st Annual Meeting of the American Public Health Association in San Francisco Nov. 5.

Born on a farm near Memphis in 1901, Poindexter was raised in Tennessee and attended Lincoln University, where he received his A.B. degree cum laude. To finance his undergraduate and graduate studies, he worked as a coal miner, sand molder, farm laborer, Pullman car porter, kitchen worker, high school teacher in Latin and science, and as a high school football coach.

While he was at Dartmouth and Harvard Medical Schools, in the late twenties, Dr. Poindexter's early interest in tropical medicine was sparked by his feeling that an ethnic bias existed among professionals against the disease-control needs of the two billion non-white people living in tropical areas.

His career began in the rural communities of Alabama and Mississippi, where he worked from 1934 to 1937 organizing treatment centers for the control of venereal disease, malaria, and intestinal parasites. In 1939, he was granted a leave of absence from the faculty of the Howard University School of Medicine to undertake work with the School of Tropical Medicine in San Juan, Puerto Rico. This work carried him into seven South American countries and five major Caribbean islands in the quest for a means of controlling tropical diseases endemic to these areas.

Between 1943 and 1947, Dr. Poindexter served in the Army Medical Corps, and won commendation awards for his malaria-prevention efforts among U.S. Army personnel and the allied troops in the Southwest Pacific. In 1947, he transferred from the Army Medical Corps to begin an 18-year career with the U.S. Public Health Service. In the Commissioned Corps of that agency, he was named Chief of Medical Research in West Africa, and held various high offices with the United States Operation Mission in French Indochina (Vietnam), Cambodia, Laos, Surinam, Iraq, Libya and Sierra Leone.

Since 1965, Dr. Poindexter has been a special consultant to the State Department's Agency for International Development and has served on the Relief and Rehabilitation Unit in Nigeria, the White House Conference Committee on Health, and the National Institutes of Health Committee for the Recruitment of Black Scientists. He has been affiliated intermittently with Howard University since 1931 as professor and administrator and has taught preventive medicine at the Royal Baghdad Medical College. In addition to his earned degrees from Harvard and Columbia, he holds honorary doctorates from Howard, Dartmouth and Lincoln Universities.

Dr. Poindexter is the recipient of a Public Health Service Award of the Agency for International Development, U.S. Public Health Service Meritorious Award Columbia University Graduate Faculties Award for Excellence, and the honorary chieftainship of two African tribes. Licensed to practice surgery and medicine in Libya, Liberia, Sierra Leone, New York, Washington, D.C., and Maryland, he has been physician to the King of Laos (1954) and a Sultan of the Jolo Archipelagoes of the Philippines.

Over 100 publications by Dr. Poindexter include articles on technical scientific subjects, manpower opportunities, travel, and social problems. His recently published autobiography, My World of Reality (Balamp Publishing, Detroit, 1973), restates his concern for the physical and social problems of man's environment.

Established in 1971, the Edward W. Browning Award is presented annually by the American Public Health Association for the New York Community Trust, and recognizes "excellence in the practice of public health in the rendering and delivery of services related to prevention of disease, the prolongation of life, and attainment of health."

MEMORANDUM

TO: The Alumni

FROM: Herman R. Branson, President

Herman R. Branson

SUBJECT: What We Can Do.

Mrs. Branson and I enjoyed immensely the warm hospitality of the New York area alumni at a reception last Sunday, November 11, in the impressive new quarters of the Phelps-Stokes Fund on East 87th Street, New York. Ambassador Franklin Williams, '41, President of the Phelps-Stokes Fund, invited the group to use their beautifully appointed offices.

Wilfred Mais '37, Oren Riley '33, and George Cannon '24, were hosts for some two hundred Lincoln alumni and their wives. It was a warm, memorable meeting for which we are grateful.

In my talk I emphasized that Lincoln needs its alumni desperately in seeking out fine young people - Lincoln material - and encouraging them to come here. Moreover, Lincoln sorely needs additional financial aid for the good young people who want an opportunity at Lincoln but who cannot make ends meet even with our finest efforts. Lincoln alumni everywhere are urged to help with both of these.

Finally, since that New York meeting was so well attended and appreciated by everyone, should we attempt such a meeting in every major city in the country where there is a nucleus of 25 or 50 Lincoln grads? Think about it and let Al Farrell have your reaction.

HERMAN B. SUGG, principal-emeritus of the Farmville (N.C.) high school which bears his name, was honored recently at a testimonial dinner. The event was sponsored by officers and members of the H. B. Sugg Charitable Association. He was principal of the Farmville School from 1918 to 1957. Mr. Sugg retired in 1957 after four decades as an educator.

'21 W. Leon Brown
1611 W. Butler St.
Philadelphia, Pa. 19140

Sr., has been named as a delegate to the fall session of the United Nations by President Nixon. Before Congressman Nix was elected to that high office, he had established himself as a lawyer of no mean ability.

'22 Joshua G. W. Cox
2068 Harrison St.
Gary, Ind. 46407

DR. ALPHONSO D. D. BELTON was honored at an appreciation banquet for ten area residents of Beckley, W. Va. in October. Dr. Belton opened an office in Mount Hope when he began his practice. After eight months, he went to Beckley and in 1927 opened an office. On January 20, 1964, he became the first Negro member of the Raleigh County Medical Society and on May 29, 1968, was named "Doctor of the Month" by the Beckley Appalachian Regional Hospital. He retired in September, 1972.

The REV. MINYARD W. NEWSOME, for the past 26 years pastor of Corinthian Baptist Church in Philadelphia, retired from the ministry Oct. 14, exactly 51 years after assuming his first pastorate on the same day. He held three pastorates during his 51 years in the ministry, beginning his career with the founding of the Community Baptist Church in North Philadelphia.

'24 George D. Cannon
216 W. 139th St.
New York, N.Y. 10030

'24 DR. WAYMON R. COSTON, Lincoln University physician in attendance, attended post-graduate classes at the Temple University Health Sciences Center for a six-week period beginning October 17.

'28 Roland J. Jones
6791 Champana Lane
Florissant, Mo. 63033

DR. LOUIS E. HARMON died Oct. 15 at Providence Hospital in Baltimore where he had been hospitalized for over three weeks.

'31 L. D. Johnson
Lincoln University
Lincoln University, Pa. 19352

AUGUSTUS M. TABB has retired after almost 29 years in the San Francisco Juvenile Probation Department as a probation officer. Returning to full-time service as a priest in the Episcopal Church, he became curate-in-charge of St. Matthias Episcopal Church, Seaside Calif., as of October 1, 1973. During the past 25 years Tabb has been a worker-priest in the Diocese of California. As a probation officer he witnessed at close hand the Haight-Ashbury scene, and at the time of his retirement he was supervising the Unter's Point Bayview unit of the Probation Department.

'40 Henry A. Martin
21 Elder Ave.
Yeadon, Pa. 19050

DR. R. IRVING BOONE, entering his fourth year as pastor of First Baptist Church in Kinston, N.C., recently established residence in Kinston. His new home is at 605 Eagle Road, in the Rolling Pines subdivision. In addition to his local pastorate, Dr. Boone is university minister and professor of sociology at Elizabeth City State University. He is grand editor of the Masonic Journal and grand chaplain of the Improved Benevolent Protective Order of Elks of the World.

'43 Cromwell C. Douglas
705 Reservoir Ave.
Norfolk, Va. 23504

THEODORE W. HATCHER of Waterbury, a 28-year employee of the Connecticut Labor Department, has been named director of the Employment Security Division. As employment security director Hatcher will direct the payment of jobless benefits to thousands of unemployed workers in the state. He will also be responsible for the state's computerized employment service and job bank.

Word has been received of the death of the REV. DUDLEY D. COBHAM in Barbados in September of this year. Father Cobham was rector of St. Clement's, Mt. Vernon, N.Y., for a number of years until he suffered a severe accident in 1968. For the last four years he had been living in Barbados. He was secretary of the Class of 1945.

'50 George Russell
3401 Seven Mile Lane
Baltimore, Md. 21208

L. H. RICHARDSON, Jr. has been selected as one of the Baltimore city school system's new regional superintendents. He will be chief administrator for Region 6. Region 6 is comprised of 22 schools in the northwestern sector of Baltimore. Richardson was among the 43 who applied for the nine openings for regional superintendents. He was one of the first seven to be named. He holds a master's degree in educational administration from Loyola College.

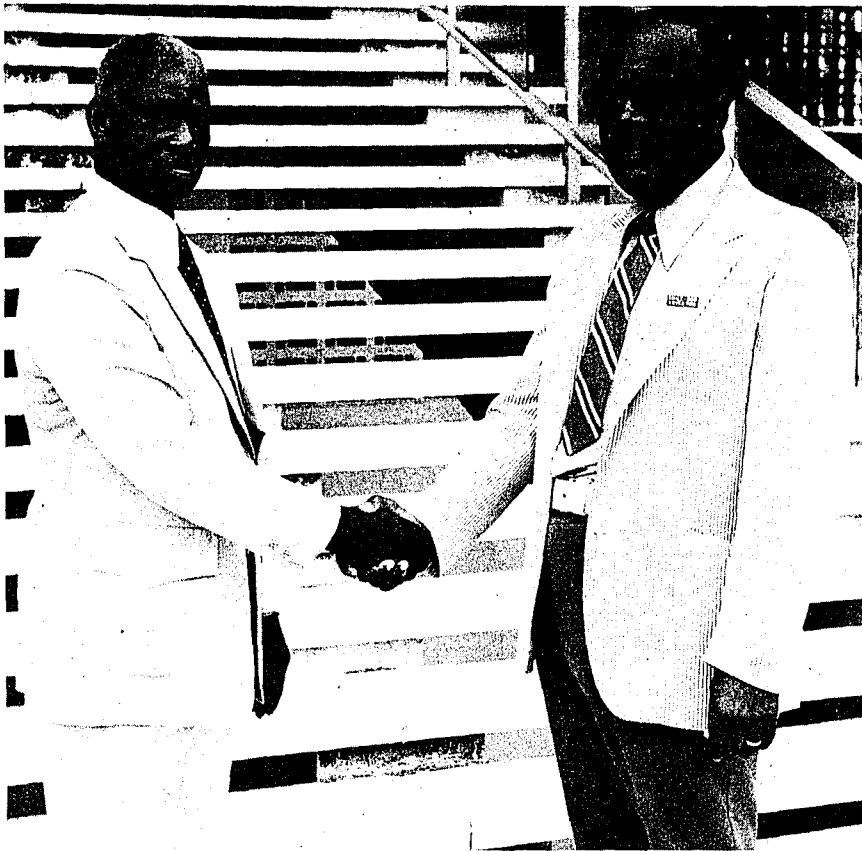

CHARLES A. VINCENT is the founder, president and chief executive officer as well as the owner and holder of the majority equitable interest in C.A.V. Enterprises, Inc., a New York-based firm that is developing the CAB Building, the largest black-owned and operated office building in the United States. Now nearing completion, the CAV Building, located on 125th St. between Lenox and Fifth Aves. in Harlem, is a $15 million office building rising 15 stories to provide a total area of 230,000 square feet of convenient, efficient office space.

'64 Sondra Draper
99 Parkwood Village, R.D. 2
Mechanicville, N.Y. 12118

JOSEPH W. DANIELS has been selected by the Administrator of General Services to represent the Agency as a student at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, located at Fort Lesley J. McNair, Washington, D.C. The mission of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces is to conduct graduate level courses of study in national security with emphasis on management of national resources under current and predicted environments. Daniels resides at 11214 Bybee St., Silver Spring, Md. 20902.

'65 Michael Frank

Black Students and the Elusive Doctorate

A speech delivered at the August meeting of the National Board on Graduate Education in Seattle, Wash.

By Herman R. Branson

Adopting the dictum of the Board that "men require more often to be reminded than to be informed," I have the unpleasant task of reminding us of the abysmal failure of the present procedures techniques commitments, programs, concerns — or what have you — in providing for the entry of Black Americans into the society of those earning doctor's degrees from American universities. Some twenty years ago I wrote as follows:

The enormous prestige of the natural sciences in the modern world makes it imperative for any social group to contribute productive scientists if the group wishes to be considered as socially and culturally effective. It is, therefore, appropriate in assaying the Negro's contribution to American life to give attention to some of his past contributions, to discuss his present scientific and inventive output, and, most important perhaps, to give some hints as to his future in science.

Clearly for "science" we may substitute "the learned professions" and my high optimism of the 1950's would extend to all these areas, where today I am forced to admit there is a more indifferent, if not dangerous, record of non-achievement.

Background Considerations

What concerns us is not only the very low figures on the production of Black Ph.D.'s, not only their unfavorable distribution in the various fields, but now the recent federal court decisions that will lead to embarrassing experiences in view of the many more opportunities available for Black Ph.D.'s. Another game of academic musical chairs may be upon us.

The court decision referred to emanated from the United States Court of Appeals on June 12, 1973. It affirmed the earlier ruling of Judge Pratt of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia in the case of Adams vs. Richardson that the Department of Health Education and Welfare (HEW) must enforce Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which would end segregation in public educational institutions receiving federal funds. Specifically, Judge Pratt's ruling forces HEW to institute compliance procedures against ten state-operated systems of higher education.

One essential component of compliance must be, so it seems, the hiring of more Black faculty members in the state systems. This is exemplified by the State of Florida whose plan, described in the New York Times on June 27, 1973, projects that the eight predominantly White schools in the state higher education system will increase their Black faculty from the present 161 Blacks in a total of 5712 faculty members to 482 in a total of 8336 by 1977. This increase of 321 might seem modest enough until you conjecture that if these college teachers expect to find satisfying, rewarding careers in higher education, all should have doctorates. Extending this modest figure of approximately 300 more Black faculty members per state system, we confront a numerical requirement of some 3000 more Black college faculty members over the next four years. Most, if not all, should have doctorates.

Nevertheless, we should not abandon the moral principle that even if the court decisions did not exist, a society which does not provide for its largest minority group to gain the intellectual training essential for significant careers in so many areas has a genuine responsibility to correct such social unwholesomeness. We must, then, call attention to some specific program plans in this memorandum. Viewing with alarm cannot suffice in 1973.

The Facts

The first study of especial relevance is that conducted by Dr. James W. Bryant for the Ford Foundation in 1968. His data supported the assumption that less than 1% of America's earned doctorate holders were Black. The study discovered 2280 Blacks with earned doctorates. The responses on fields of specialization from 1096 of them were as follows:

| Field               | Number      | Percent      |
|---------------------|-------------|--------------|
| Education           | 313         | 28.6         |
| Social Sciences     | 288         | 26.3         |
| Biological Sciences | 142         | 12.9         |
| Humanities          | 136         | 12.4         |
| Physical Sciences   | 129         | 11.8         |
| Other               | 88          | 8.0          |
| Total        | 1096 | 100.0 |

These data should be compared with the U.S. Office of Education's figures which revealed that 839,730 bachelor's degrees 230,509 master's degrees and 32,107 doctor's degrees were conferred in 1970-1971. The percentages thus are as follows: Master's degrees, 27.45% of the bachelor's degrees; doctor's degrees, 13.93% of the master's degrees and 3.82% of the bachelor's degrees. The doctorates according to fields from the same U.S.O.E. study showed:

| Field               | Percent      |
|---------------------|--------------|
| Education           | 19.9         |
| Social Sciences     | 11.4         |
| Biological Sciences | 11.4         |
| Physical Sciences   | 13.7         |
| Engineering         | 11.3         |
| All other fields    | 32.3         |
| Total        | 100.0 |

The next set of data we need is also from a Ford Foundation survey of Ph.D. degrees awarded for 1964 through 1968. Some 63 American graduate schools reported that of the 37,456 degrees awarded, 294 (0.8 of one percent) were received by Black Americans. Moreover, 64 graduate schools reported for 1967-1968 that of the 174,615 students enrolled, only 3012 (1.72%) were Black.

Another set of data may be taken from the report of the Southern Fellowship Fund of Atlanta, Georgia (now the National Fellowship Fund), which has been conducting a program of encouraging and supporting Blacks and others who plan careers in predominantly Black colleges to work for graduate degrees primarily with support from the Danforth Foundation. The Fund's report to the Council of Southern Universities for March 1973 reveals that 127 of their grantees received doctorates in the years 1969-1972 (Note: Some, a very few though, were not Black). The fields in which the degrees were received were these,

| Field                             | Number     | Percentx 100 |
|-----------------------------------|------------|------------------|
| Education                         | 63         | .496             |
| Social Sciences                   |            | .134             |
| Biological Sciences               | 11         | .087             |
| Physical Sciences(chemistry only) | 6          | .047             |
| Engineering                       | 2          | .016             |
| Other                             | 28         | .220             |
| Total                      | 127 | 1.000     |

The final set of data has been distributed by a school which has put forth commendable effort in recruiting Blacks, Ohio State. They showed that the 37 Blacks there who were expected to receive doctorates either in the spring or summer of 1973 were in the following fields:

|                          |           |
|--------------------------|-----------|
| Botany                   | 1         |
| Education                | 23        |
| English                  | 2         |
| Music                    | 1         |
| Physical Education       | 3         |
| Speech Communication     | 3         |
| Agricultural Education   | 1         |
| Engineering Mechanics    | 1         |
| Home Economics Education | 1         |
| Physics                  | 1         |

Observe that 28 are in Education, 76% of the total.

A few conclusions, more or less alarming, immediately hit you on reflecting on these data, especially the first, second, third and fourth. First, of course, is the unbelievable low rate of production of Blacks with earned doctorates. Blacks are about 12% of the population; thus, a production rate of 0.8 for Black doctorates cannot be countenanced. A second reference is that doctorates in Education constituted 28.6% of the Blacks with doctorates in 1968, (first table), while only 19.9% of all doctor's degrees were awarded in education in 1970-1971 (second table), which reveals a strong channeling of Blacks away from other fields especially from engineering. Additionally, 26.3% of the Blacks (first table) were in the social sciences, while only 11.4 of all degrees in 1970-1972 (second table) were in those fields. Most alarming, however, are the conclusions from tables three and four which reveal a headlong rush into Education of the recent graduates of the Southern Fellowship Fund group of 50% (third table) and the Ohio State group of 67%.

What needs to be corrected, then, are these two clearly highlighted areas:

1. There is severe need for national programs that will increase by many fold the number of Blacks who succeed in strong, respected doctoral degree programs across the nation.
2. These Blacks must enter the disciplines which are most appropriate for the needs of society. The piling up in education must not be continued.

The Bachelor's Population From Which We Can Draw

No matter how fervent our commitment there remains the question of whether we can find Blacks for Ph.D. programs. Opinion will be rampant here where many factors have to be considered. My feeling is that at Lincoln from among the 220 students who graduated in June 1973, there were perhaps 40 to 60 who had the intellectual competences to earn doctorates in their undergraduate fields.

Fortunately we have a set of data on total bachelor's degrees in academic areas from 95 of the 110 predominantly Black colleges and universities from 1966-1970, as reported by James A. Welch of the Institute for Services to Education, Washington, D.C.

| Total Degrees | 18437 | 18414 | 22141 | 24006 | 25240 |

I have no such data on Blacks graduating from predominantly White schools. Assuming for the present that they are at least equal in number to these graduates from the predominantly Black schools, we have approximately 50,000 young Black people with Bachelor's degrees each year. Returning to the U.S. Office of Education factor (table one) wherein doctor's degrees were 3.82% of the bachelor's degrees, we can project that 1900 young Blacks should — or must — receive doctor's degrees each year, rather than the approximately 300 or so who now qualify for such degrees.

New Programs

From these results, whatever programs are in existence, there is a pristinely clear need for additional programs that will not only afford access to graduate education by the underprivileged minority groups, but also heighten the success of these young people in such programs in all disciplines. This problem may well be the test problem for the vitality and creativity of graduate education in America.

Purposefully I have avoided discussion of the idiosyncratic qualities of the doctor's degree in most graduate schools. Neither have I essayed any detailed discussion of these young Black candidates—their motivation, sustained attention, habits of work and thought, values, adjustment, and social maturity. Opting for only 3.82% of the bachelor's degree holders emerges as a modest enough factor.

We have some heartening information from what has been accomplished in medicine. Here the medical schools with some assist from the National Medical Fellowships, Inc., a group which raised and will distribute about $2 million this year to aid minority students almost exclusively in the first two years of medical school, have dramatically increased the number of Blacks entering medicine in a very short time. The figures reported are these:

The First-Year Class in Medical Schools in the U.S.A.

| School Year | Total  | Total Minority | Black |
|-------------|--------|----------------|-------|
| 1969-70     | 10,422 | 501            | 440   |
| 1970-71     | 11,348 | 808            | 697   |
| 1971-72     | 12,361 | 1060           | 881   |

Thus the Black freshman enrollment doubled in the two-year interval. Inasmuch as the failure rate in medical school is negligible, most of these young people will graduate after four years.

A Specific Plan

Always in situations perfused with social and political import you must consider what is possible. Is it realistic to plan for a modest effort modelled after the National Medical Fellowships, Inc. or should you take cognizance of the great social need, of the Florida compliance plan, and the other state plans to follow, and aim for say another 1000 more Black earned doctorates each year?

We could have an office located at some school which would canvass the historically Black colleges and other colleges for students each year for graduate study. There would be visits, interviews, talks, not just literature. In addition, the graduate schools would be visited with a view to finding departments, sound but sensitive, which would accept these students with the aim of their going through a four-year program of rigorous, demanding, intellectual work culminating in the degree. Right now I would favor overwhelmingly the Ph.D. or a few Ed. D.'s, not a D.A. The important point is that it must be a sound degree, not immediately suspect.

Such a program would have to be completely subsidized. Considering the national implications and the magnitude of the effort, we must look for federal support. My estimate is that each young person would have to be completely subsidized at a cost of say $6000 each per year. Add about $200 each for administrative costs and your 1000 young Blacks per year would cost about $6.2 million annually. When the program would come to equilibrium in four years, your annual costs would be of the order of $25 million — a small investment for so much social good.

An Appeal to Alumni

Save and Change Black Schools

by Kevin Patterson, President, Student Government Association

The National Save and Change Black Schools Project is a coalition of students and non-students who have banded together throughout the country to resist the effort to destroy Black schools and to struggle to change Black schools from their current bourgeoisie orientation to an authentic interest for Black people.

The project was officially organized in January, 1973, when the Youth Organization for Black Unity (YOBU), an independent Black youth organization, convened leaders from 18 schools strategically located in 13 states. This meeting, which took place in Greensboro, N.C., outlined the basic reason why there should be developed a national program which saw fit not only to preserve but to revolutionize Black schools. An intense campaign was launched in the spring of 1973, culminating in a national conference attended by representatives from more than 55 colleges.

There are many confusing things being said about the current state of Black colleges. Even more confusing information is being circulated about the future of those institutions. The essential question, however, is the right of Black people to an education. Caught in an accelerating domestic and international economic crisis, the U.S. Government is rapidly cutting back on funds for education and other necessary social program. From kindergarten to the university level Black people are being pushed out of the educational system. On the college level, grants and loans to attend predominantly White colleges are increasingly difficult to obtain while at Black colleges the integration argument seeks to reduce the number of Black college students as much as 70 percent. The only authentic way to combat the current trend toward destroying Black colleges as a place for Black students is to develop a high degree of consciousness among the masses of students. This consciousness must translate itself into a program of organizing mass support from the Black community with the Black working class at the helm. If the working sector of the Black community (which is the masses) is to support the struggle to preserve Black schools, then Black schools, in the process of being saved from White occupancy, must be attuned to speak to the interest of the working sector, including the unemployed and those on welfare.

The appeal of the Student Government Association to the General Alumni Association of Lincoln University was favorably received, and we are now asking individual alumni to support the project by sending a contribution of $2 or more to Dr. H. A. Farrell, Executive Secretary of the Association. Each contributor will receive a membership card and an acknowledgment of his or her contribution. As a member of the Steering Committee, I can only hope that students and alumni of Lincoln University will be in the forefront of the movement to SAVE AND CHANGE BLACK SCHOOLS. Please make all checks or money orders payable to the STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION.

This is the history of the Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, written by an alumnus and former President, Horace Mann Bond. Dr. Bond explores the roots of the institution and seeks an understanding of its origin, its functioning, its growth and its meaning in the world. He tells the story of Lincoln University from its beginnings to 1945, the date of his appointment as President of the University. This volume makes a real contribution to the history of American education and race relations, and is one that educators and social and political scientists will find invaluable.

Handsomely designed and printed by Princeton University Press.

Mr. Moyana will offer among others an evening course in African history that will concentrate on East Africa. Dr. Flowers, who has a doctorate in linguistics from Temple University, replaces Mrs. Carol Winkel, who went on leave the second semester.

Danforth Grant Benefits Freshmen

The members of the Freshman Class of Lincoln University have been profiting from a grant received by Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, Mr. Emery Wimbish and Mrs. Jean Trumbore, who are Associates of the Danforth Foundation. The three had requested the stipend from the Associates Projects Fund of the Danforth Foundation for the purpose of obtaining materials and setting up a program to assist students now coming to Lincoln (1) in planning and following a study schedule, (2) in making full use of library facilities, (3) in learning to read for comprehension, and (4) in communicating ideas through the written word.

Through the Humanities classes materials have been distributed to the new students. The librarians, using a team-teaching method, have met with 19 sections of freshmen in the library for one class period, giving a slide/tape presentation of the layout and general resources of Lincoln's library, and introducing some of the library materials which give help in how to study, organize one's time, read with comprehension, etc. The presentation was followed by an opportunity to talk informally with librarians and teachers over refreshments.

Later in the year, when the Humanities classes receive assignments involving the writing of papers, further instruction will be given in the use of reference and research materials.

It is hoped that these programs will help to integrate the efforts of the Humanities teachers, librarians and counselors to aid freshmen in getting off to a good start at Lincoln, and that students will feel free to turn to any of them for help during the year.

The Danforth Foundation is a philanthropic organization concerned primarily with people and values. It is greatly interested in the contribution that students, teachers and others may make to the rebuilding of a sense of common purpose in the educational field.

The Frank Hilton Building

In 1920 a room on the Lincoln University campus cost only $25 a year with steam heat included. That was the year that young Frank Hilton, then 23, took a job in the University's heating plant. Things have changed a lot since then. A room on campus now costs over $500, and in 1972, for the first time in 52 years, Frank Hilton was not checking on the heat in the campus buildings.

Hilton, now 76, retired from the job which he had held for over a half-century and was honored for his dedication at the Annual Alumni Banquet last year. Recently the University honored Frank Hilton by naming the building where he spent those years as the Frank Hilton Building. In a ceremony attended by a number of campus personnel, Dr. Herman R. Branson extolled the service and dedication of Frank Hilton as the name plate was affixed to the maintenance building.

The Lincoln University cagers, winners of the Roger Williams Tourney last January, competed in the Shaw College Classic in Detroit Dec. 20-21. The Lions drew Mercy College of Detroit as their first-round opponent. They lost to Mercy, 92-91, but defeated Wiley, 118-115, in the second game.

On Dec. 28 the Lions trekked to New York to take part in the First Annual Holiday Basketball Classic, sponsored by the Interreligious Foundation for Community Organization. The Lions topped Elizabeth City, 69-68, in the opener before losing to Fayetteville, 96-86.

The Lincoln University Dance Troupe, under the direction of Mrs. Jean A. White, assistant professor of physical education, competed in the regional contest to select a troupe for national competition, the winner of which will appear at the Second World Black Festival of Art and Culture. The regional competition was held Jan. 11 in Irvine Auditorium at the University of Pennsylvania. The Lincoln group competed against professional and non-professional dance troupes. The Festival will be held in Nigeria in 1975.

Seventeen new members were inducted in November into Beta Kappa Chi, the national scientific honor society founded at Lincoln over 50 years ago. Dr. Joseph Scandura, associate professor of education at the University of Pennsylvania, was the guest speaker. His topic was "Learning to Learn." The inductees included eight majors from the Psychology Department, seven from Biology, and one each from Chemistry and Mathematics.

REPRESENTATIVE OF THE STUDENTS AT LINCOLN ARE THE RECENT SELECTIONS for Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. Selected on the bases of (1) leadership and participation in extracurricular and academic activities; (2) citizenship and service to the school; and (3) promise of future usefulness to business and society were (l. to r., standing) Ben Siyakwazi, Carlton Walker, O. Martin Pharr, Joseph Waddy, and Tommy Johnson and (l. to r., seated) Sheila Oliver, Dierdre Hamlin, Jacqueline Allen, Antoinette Harris, Andristine Moore, and Anita Payne. Not shown: Gerald Foeman, Felicita Saldana, William G. Smith, and Boyce Williams.

Lincoln's Role in Preparing Black Youth

The role which Lincoln University plays in the field of preparing black youth for the challenges of the economy was discussed with the 25-member delegation from the ranks of Congress who represent the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and Senator Richard Schweiker at a luncheon in the House Wing of the U. S. Capitol March 14.

Dr. Herman R. Branson was joined by members of the Lincoln Board of Trustees and several officers of the University. New York Senator Jacob Javits, who received an honorary degree from Lincoln in 1953, also joined the group.

Representing Lincoln trustees were Dr. George D. Cannon, chairman of the Board, Andrew M. Bradley, Thomas L. Farmer, Maceo W. Hubbard, Judge Joseph C. Waddy, Franklin Williams, Earle Winderman, and Donald L. Mullett.

Also attending from the University were Dr. Charles Wade, vice president for academic affairs;

Robert L. Albright, vice president for student affairs; and George Lyle, director of public information. Dr. Eddison Hairston, president of the Washington Chapter of the General Alumni Association, was an invited guest.

Dr. Branson told the Pennsylvania delegation: "Lincoln subscribes wholly to the statement in The Master Plan for Higher Education in Pennsylvania that 'Pennsylvania must exercise increased leadership in equalizing opportunity for higher education for all persons and especially for blacks.' Today only approximately half as many blacks are students in higher education in Pennsylvania as would be if true equality of opportunity existed. To right this, to contribute to the lessening of the tremendous and disturbing distances among men, to heighten the sense of purpose and commitment — all these are within Lincoln's purposes."

DR. EARL U. ROBINSON, SR., has retired from private practice in Indianapolis and is currently devoting fulltime to the Veterans Administration as well as instructing students, interns, and residents at the University of Indiana Medical School.

DR. EDWARD W. STRATTON, JR., of Los Angeles is one of the founders of the J. W. Ross Medical Center and is serving the group as first vice president. Mainly through his efforts, the Center has expanded from a $200,000 project to a $3,500,000 set-up.

REV. SHELBY A. ROOKS continues to serve as pastor of St. James Presbyterian Church in New York City, a position he has had since his graduation from Divinity School, more than 40 years ago.

DONALD W. WYATT is now in his third year at Dillard University as Distinguished Visiting Professor. He is also in charge of African Studies and the Scholar-Statesmen Lecture Series. Wyatt, who retired as vice president of the African-American Institute three years ago, had a major part in the selection of approximately 2500 African students who came to the U. S. for undergraduate and professional studies in the 1960's.

REV. MALCOLM G. DADE has retired after almost 37 years as priest-in-charge and first rector of St. Cyprian's Episcopal Church in Detroit. Last year all Detroit newspapers extolled his outstanding achievements in the areas of religion, civil service, labor, education and interracial relations. State representatives and senators offered resolutions of tribute to

Dade, and the city proclaimed a "Canon Dade Day."

DR. HARVEY M. DIGGS of Suffolk, Va., continues to be active in the affairs of the Black community. One of a group of physicians who organized the integrated medical staff at the Louise Obici Memorial Hospital, Dr. Diggs built the first Black professional office building as well as organized the Suffolk Professional Pharmacy. He has served as director and vice president of the Nansamond Credit Union, which he helped to found.

From 1949 until a few days prior to his death in October 1973, DR. LOUIS HARMON singlehandedly raised more than $75,000 for camperships for over 2500 boys and girls at Camp Kings Landings, under the auspices of the Greater Baltimore YMCA. Now the YMCA has established a scholarship in Dr. Harmon's memory in recognition of his services.

ROLAND J. JONES, who retired from the Department of the Army Federal Civil Service during 1973, had served as senior management analyst, Chief of Divisions and Branches, as well as comptroller in areas of Management Engineering throughout the U. S. and Korea. During the 1960's while on assignment with the 7th Logistical Command in Korea, Jones programmed, directed, and lectured at the first Management Engineering Training Seminar for Koreans, the first of this type of training ever staged in Korea.

Re: Second World Black and African Festival of Arts and Culture

Dear Ms. White:

This note comes to apprise you that your Lincoln University Dance Troupe has qualified for the participation in the North American Zone, consisting of the United States and Canada, Second World Black and African Festival of Arts and Culture to be held in Washington, D.C. The tentative schedule is July 13-27, 1974.

May I add, less formally, that over and beyond the magnificent performance of your group, we were greatly impressed in the manner in which you handled the overall business affairs: printing tickets, brochures, distribution of sales of tickets and your accountability of funds collected, is a credit to the great institution you represent, Lincoln University.

As you know from all reports, our regional festival was an overall success. Where we go from here will depend upon the activities on the national level.

Please pass on to the members of your group and officials of Lincoln, our thanks and appreciation and keep for yourself our highest regards and best wishes.

Sincerely,
Samuel L. Evans

JOB OPPORTUNITIES FOR ALUMNI

THE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA Position Vacancy — Chairman, Division of Educational Administration

Faculty Rank:

This appointment will be made at the rank of professor.

Appointment Effective:

First Semester 1974-75 (August 26, 1974).

Qualifications:

Applicant must be the holder of an earned doctorate. The Division is interested in a person with proven administrative ability and experience and with scholarship of a high order to give leadership to the Division and its programs and to practicing administrators. This person must possess a national reputation in at least one of the following areas: governance and politics of education, finance and school business management, educational facilities, communications, and administrative research. Previous teaching of graduate course work is required, and previous administrative experience at the department head level is desired. The applicant needs to present professional accomplishment in the areas of research and writing, along with a commitment to continued scholarly activity.

Salary:

Commensurate with responsibilities and experience.

Fringe Benefits:

The University of Iowa provides two-thirds of the cost of T.I.A.A. retirement plan. The University contributes 6 2/3 percent of the first $4,800 of salary and 10 percent of all salary received above $4,800. Toward this retirement annuity, the individual contributes 3 1/3 percent of the first $4,800 of salary and 5 percent of all salary received above $4,800. The University also contributes to F.I.C.A. (social security). A designated portion of the retirement contribution may be earmarked for C.R.E.F. at the faculty member's option. A group Blue Cross-Blue Shield plan is available, and the University pays the entire cost of a major medical plan. In addition, there is participation in a group-life insurance policy toward which the University pays one-half of the cost.

University and Community:

Enrollment in the University is approximately 20,000 students. The population of Iowa City, including the student body, is slightly less than 50,000. Cultural resources and personal and professional services are excellent.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY

John W. Lewis, '71, majored in history while at Lincoln and went on to the State University of New York (Fredonia), from which he received an M.A. in history in 1973. He was president of his class in both his junior and senior years. He joined the Lincoln staff in January, 1973, as counselor in a special program and now serves the institution as an instructor-counselor.

Karla F. Wright, '71, is married to a Lincoln man, Victor Wright, '73. She is currently attending Temple University's Graduate School of Social Administration, from which she expects her Master's in May, 1974. Prior to the summer of 1970, she was selected to participate in the State of Delaware's Governor Summer Fellow Program, a special program for promising junior-year college students, and was assigned to the Mayor of Wilmington. In 1971 she received the Community Affairs Award for outstanding field service.

TREASURER

Oren W. Riley, '33, has been an indefatigable worker for the General Alumni Association throughout the years. The immediate past president of the Association, he is an active member of the New York Chapter, which he has also served as president. He has been a practicing dentist in New York City since receiving his D.D.S. degree from Meharry in 1937. Dr. Riley received an Alumni Award in 1973. Dubbed the Association's "official fund-raiser" since the financially successful raffle, he is desirous of placing the Association on a firm financial footing in order to expand its services to alumni and students of Lincoln.

A native of Washington, D.C., he has now settled in Philadelphia, where he is active in the Philadelphia Chapter of the General Alumni Association.

HISTORIAN

Marshall A. Allen, '45, is a teacher in the public school system of Philadelphia and a tireless worker for Lincoln. A former president of the Philadelphia Chapter of the General Alumni Association, he served the Association as chairman of the Nominating Committee from 1970 to 1973. Since the chairman of the Nominating Committee is automatically the master of ceremonies at the annual alumni banquet, Allen was a familiar figure to alumni attending the banquets during those years.

Perry L. Cook, '40, a former president of the Washington, D.C., Chapter of the General Alumni Association and a former regional director, is still an active member of the Chapter. Principal of Phelps Vocational High School in Washington, he has been instrumental in sending a number of students to Lincoln throughout the years. He received his M.A. from Columbia in 1947.

ALUMNI TRUSTEE

Benjamin F. Amos, '34, is a 1947 graduate of Terrell Law School and practices law as a part of the law firm of Amos, Beaubian and Greenfield in Washington, D.C. A former president of the Washington, D.C., Chapter as well as a regional director, he is the current 1st vice president of the General Alumni Association.

Commencement Highlights

"The Civil Rights Movement made enormous strides in the 60's, but has slowed considerably in the 70's," Father Theodore Hesburgh, the president of Notre Dame, told an overflow audience at the 1974 Commencement exercises May 26 in the Alumni Memorial Gymnasium.

"We need more enthusiasm, more leadership, in the whole movement to make any progress in the 70's. We have effectively fought the battle for citizenship and voting rights; now we face the trilogy of housing, employment and education, and it is you who must take up the cudgels and bring these into focus."

The charge to the graduates was delivered by Cicely Tyson, noted film and television actress. "We must love one another or die," she charged, "and you, with your youth, your inherent knowledge of what is right and just, and your zest for life, must go forth to walk proudly. The world is there for you to take your rightful place."

Bonnie L. Jones, representing the Class of 1974, made the response to Miss Tyson's charge.

Ronald A. Brown, who was graduated summa cum laude, and Tyrone Franklin, who was graduated magna cum laude, led the class scholastically and served as honorary marshals in the procession.

Presenting the candidates for honorary degrees were faculty members Dr. Andrew Murray, Dr. Henry G. Cornwell, Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, Dr. C. James Trotman, and Dr. Marshall W. Fishwick.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Quintin E. Pri- mo, Jr., suffragan bishop of Chicago. Dr. Samuel G. Stevens, University chaplain, pronounced the benedic- tion.

Dr. Leroy D. Johnson, dean of the University, pre- sented the 1974 graduates to Dr. Herman R. Branson, president of the University, who conferred their degrees upon them. In addition to Tyrone Franklin, 11 other sen- iors were graduated magna cum laude and 42 were graduated cum laude.

Baccalaureate Service

At the morning Baccalaureate Service, Dr. Bran- son conferred upon 30 graduates of the Seminary the Master of Divinity degree to replace the Bachelor of Divinity. Dr. Andrew Murray presented the candidates.

The sermon was preached by the Rev. Gayraud S. Wilmore, who has just been named Martin Luther King, Jr., Memorial Professor of Black Church Studies at the Colgate-Rochester Divinity School in Rochester, N.Y. He was the former Martin Luther King, Jr., Professor of Ethics at the Boston University School of Theology.

Seniors Wanda E. Dean and Emery L. Rann took part in the service along with Dr. Murray and Dr. Samuel Stevens.

The University Chorale, under the direction of Pro- fessor Orrin C. Suthern II, sang at the morn' ing and af- ternoon services.

General Alumni Association

At the annual meeting of the General Alumni Association on Saturday, May 25, the body — pledged its continuing support to Dr. Branson, who stressed annual giving..

— continued the Committee on Campus Concerns to look into the quality of campus life, to assure the preservation of campus landmarks like the Mary Dod Brown Chapel, and to see that due emphasis is placed on functional communicative skills.

— elected the following officers: George Goodman, '26, president; Dr. Eddison Hairston, '54, first vice president; Dr. Emerson Emory, '48, second vice president; Mrs. Karla F. Wright, '71, assistant secretary; Dr. Oren W. Riley, '33, treasurer; and Marshall Allen, '45, historian.

— nominated Atty. Benjamin Amos, '34, to succeed Atty Wilfred N. Mais, '32, on the Board of Trustees.

— authorized the Executive Secretary to select a Task Force of 15 alumni to look critically at the Association and Lincoln and attempt to chart the Association's future in its relationship to Lincoln University as it embarks upon the trimester calendar and later cooperative education.

At the annual alumni banquet held the same evening Alumni Awards were presented to DON LOCKETT YOUNG, '24; RAYMOND O. HATCHER, '34; and WARREN E. SMITH, '44. James B. MacRae, '24, retiring after more than 25 years at Lincoln, was the banquet speaker.

DON LOCKETT YOUNG

From his graduation in 1924 until this time fifty years later, Don Lockett Young has been a staunch Lincoln supporter, and few can match his devotion, service, and financial assistance to his alma mater. It is in recognition of these qualities that the General Alumni Association honors him tonight.

RAYMOND O. HATCHER

Because he has demonstrated in his life and works those qualities which have long been associated with Lincoln graduates — perseverance, service to mankind, and leadership — our distinguished alumnus merits the honor which the General Alumni Association elected to confer upon him tonight.

WARREN E. SMITH

In recognition of his untiring efforts to make everything with which he is associated a little better, the General Alumni Association has seen fit tonight to honor Dr. Smith, who has never lost sight of Lincoln University, the wellspring of his eminence. To many alumni he typifies the selflessness that characterizes the true Lincoln graduate, and the General Alumni Association honors itself in honoring him.

Lincoln Receives Three-Year Federal Grant

On the basis of a proposal prepared by members of the faculty and administrative staff, Lincoln University has received a grant totaling $2,000,000 over a three-year period to be used for the following purposes: program coordination, faculty development, curriculum development, student services, administrative improvement, cooperative education, and a planning, management, and evaluation system.

The Advanced Institutional Development Program, sponsored by Title III, Office of Education, is a newly formed program designed to aid developing institutions "adjudged to have the potential for accelerated institutional development to expedite the institution's progress towards achieving both operational and fiscal stability and participation in the mainstream of American higher education."

The objectives of the program as stated by the Office of Education are:

1. To assist the institution in refining or restructuring its mission in order to enrich the education of its students and prepare them for graduate school, and to overcome the deficit of low-income individuals currently existing in professional areas. This represents, in short, the institution's own definition of its responsibility.

2. To provide through a small number of large grants for a more rapid development of a new curriculum and implementation of effective scholarly competence in teaching strategies.

3. To improve the administrative and management capability of the institution in order to assure a self-sustaining operational base.

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY
BULLETIN

From the Desk of The Executive Secretary

Counting life memberships, more than 260 alumni have paid dues to date, and the number will more than likely exceed 300 before the fall meeting of the Executive Committee. That figure is just about 10 percent of the mailing list, and there is high hope that the figure will exceed 1,000 before the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1975. With approximately 68 life members to date, there is a possibility that that figure will exceed 100 before the end of the fiscal year.

Contributions to the annual giving campaign, launched in May, are coming in at a surprisingly slow clip. While we would like very generous contributions to the campaign, we are more concerned that every able-bodied alumnus and alumna give something to the campaign. Elsewhere in The Bulletin there is a listing of contributors by classes. Since the campaign coincides with the calendar year, there is just a little time left to make your annual contribution. Invest in youth — and take advantage of that income tax break!

George W. Goodman, the president of the General Alumni Association, made history when he was selected to be the principal speaker at the banquet for freshmen and new students August 30. The banquet is a traditional part of Orientation Week. Introduced by the executive secretary, the president challenged Lincoln's Class of 1978 to make full use of the opportunities afforded to them at Lincoln so that they might become worthy additions to the great Lincoln heritage.

State-relatedness does not diminish the need for funds for a number of things that the state does not support or supports only in part. Become a member of the Century Club ($100-$500) or the President's Club ($500-$1,000) or the Honorary Trustee Club ($1,000 or more); but if you do not qualify for any club, give to Lincoln whatever you can. We can use your contribution NOW, so please don't put off sending it until the spirit of Christmas reminds you to get that gift off to alma mater.

So give in '75...and in '76...and in '77...to the continuing glory of Lincoln.

Sincerely yours,

Herman R. Branson

From the Desk of The Executive Secretary

The Cooperative College Registry would like to join you in being of service to the alumni of your school. We are a non-profit educational organization headquartered in the National Center for Higher Education here in Washington. You already may know about CCR, but briefly CCR has represented colleges and universities in their search for faculty and administrative staff for more than a decade.

We know that you are interested in discovering ways to serve your alumni. Telling them about CCR is surely one important way because probably there are many among your alumni who would like to secure academic appointments. The enclosed description of opportunities serves as an invitation to register with CCR and we hope you will include it in the next available issue of your publication. An indication that you will use it will be greatly appreciated.

COOPERATIVE COLLEGE REGISTRY

1. What is the Cooperative College Registry?

CCR is a non-profit educational organization which introduces experienced faculty and staff personnel and new teachers to colleges and universities for positions in all areas. Special emphasis is given to women and minority group candidates as a service to colleges and universities in their Affirmative Action/Contract Compliance requirements.

2. Who may be a member?

Membership is open to all institutions of higher education. Membership is $150 for single campus institutions ($250 basic fee for multi-campus institutions with increments for additional campuses beyond two) and includes: 24-hour matching and referral service on faculty and staff needs for the following academic year with repeated searches until the position is filled; confidential referrals for senior administrative positions; use of files at all times in the Washington office and during at least two national educational meetings.

3. Does a college or university have to be a member to receive CCR service?

Although membership is recommended as more economical in most cases, positions may be listed by non-member institutions for a service fee of $25 per vacancy.

4. Who are CCR candidates?

CCR candidates are experienced professors and administrators seeking relocation and those seeking first positions in higher education. Candidates are recruited through the professional societies, listings in professional journals, continuous contact with approximately 125 graduate schools, and the endorsement of satisfied candidates of previous years.

5. Is the service confidential?

Confidentiality of candidates is protected. They are referred only to positions which conform to their qualifications. No lists of candidates nor positions are published.

6. Who may register?

Doctorates with college teaching experience are in greatest demand. The minimum requirement for teaching positions is the Master's degree completed before the following academic year. Experience in lieu of advanced degrees is generally acceptable for non-academic administrative positions. Candidates pay a service fee of $15 to help defray the cost of referrals to appropriate position openings.

7. Is CCR a resource when senior personnel is needed?

Well-qualified candidates register each year for department and division chairmanships, full professorships, deanships, presidencies, and all non-academic administrative positions.

In addition, CCR maintains a highly confidential roster of senior-level careerists in higher education who are not overt job-seekers. The purpose of this Permanent Resource File is to provide confidential leads for senior positions and for specialists who are needed for short-term or long-term projects of a research or consultative nature.

8. What is the procedure?

Institutions list vacancies on forms provided by CCR, or by letter or telephone to the CCR office. Candidates register on special CCR forms. Candidates and vacancies are matched. Copies of the registration form of appropriate candidates are mailed to the institution. All contacts are directly between the institution and the candidate. CCR does not notify candidates of positions to which they have been referred.

9. Will CCR recommend a candidate?

CCR does not recommend nor endorse candidates. Its function is to locate candidates who, according to their own statement, have academic and experiential qualifications to be considered for teaching or administrative positions in higher education. The location of a candidate's confidential dossier is indicated in the registration form.

EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES

The Amos Tuck School of Business Administration at Dartmouth College, founded in 1900, is the oldest graduate school of business in America. It is located in Hanover, New Hampshire, a picturesque New England town and a major educational, cultural, and medical center. Tuck School's M.B.A. program is a full-time, two-year course of study designed to provide high quality professional preparation for men and women seeking careers in management. Each September a class of 130 students enters the school.

The curriculum exposes students to key issues in the various functional fields of business. It also offers a core of courses with a general management perspective to demonstrate the inter-relationships of specialized fields and the contributions of mathematics and behavioral sciences to the analysis of decision problems. The School's primary objective is to develop the capacity of its students to make sound managerial decisions. Courses particularly stress the learning of concepts and habits of analytical thought which are appropriate in a rapidly changing business environment.

Professors use many teaching methods at Tuck, in various combinations, to suit the purposes of their courses. The case study method is popular because it is so well suited to the teaching of analytical decision making. With all teaching forms there is extensive student participation in the classroom.

The Tuck School has and is actively seeking minority candidates to participate in this program. In 1969 the School became one of the founders of the Council for Opportunity in Graduate Management Education (COGME). COGME was formed to increase the awareness of management opportunities for minority group members and to provide financial assistance. In addition to COGME Fellowships, Tuck continues to provide substantial support from its own funds.

Commencement Highlights

The 205 members of Lincoln's 1975 graduating class heard the U.S. Secretary of Transportation, William T. Coleman, Jr., advise them to "protest with intelligence and dignity" at the Commencement exercises held on May 11. He also told them that racial segregation was on its way out and "should be ended in five years."

Judge Damon J. Keith of the U.S. District Court of Eastern Michigan delivered the charge to the graduates. He exhorted them to show those special qualities of humanity, of compassion, of understanding "that will enable you to eliminate for all times the social injustices which beset us today."

Along with Bishop Roy C. Nichols, '41, and Dr. Benjamin Quarles, noted black historian, Secretary Coleman and Judge Keith were recipients of the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. Mrs. Helen H. Corson, 90-year-old peace activist, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters.

Presenting the candidates for honorary degrees were faculty members Dr. William T. M. Johnson, Dr. Pearl J. Mullett, Dr. Henry G. Cornwell, Dr. Philip S. Foner, and Dr. Eugene C. Royster.

Boyd B. Etter, who was graduated summa cum laude, and Patricia L. Hunt, who was graduated magna cum laude, led the class scholastically and served as honorary marshals in the procession. Fourteen other members of the class were graduated magna cum laude, and 31 were graduated cum laude.

Dr. Leroy D. Johnson, dean of the University, presented the 1975 graduates to Dr. Herman R. Branson, president of the University, who conferred their degrees upon them.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Dr. Samuel G. Stevens, University chaplain, and the benediction by Bishop Nichols. The University Chorale, under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern II, furnished music during the services.

Baccalaureate Service

The Rev. Norman M. Rates, '50s, college minister at Spelman College, gave the baccalaureate address in the morning. Speaking on "The Identity Crisis," the Rev. Mr. Rates pointed out that man's continuing problem appears to be that of finding his identification in a troubled world. More often than not he identifies with the wrong things. Citing Moses and Christ as examples, the speaker indicated that one can find his true identity in service to those who need it.

Seniors Bruce M. Benson and Maurice J. Woodson also participated in the service. Benson read the scripture lesson and Woodson gave the prayer. The benediction was pronounced by Dr. Frank T. Wilson, '21, '24s.

The University Chorale also sang at the morning service.

WILLIAM L. COLDEN

Because of his deep commitment to improving the lot of all humanity and because of his devotion to his Alma Mater, the General Alumni Association of Lincoln University tonight salutes William L. Colden whose life and works demonstrate those qualities which have long been associated with Lincoln graduates — leadership, service to mankind, and dedication to a cause.

DENNIS R. FLETCHER

In 1974 the Reverend Mr. Fletcher was retired from the Board of Global Ministries after 27 years of dedicated service to religion and to education. Now pastor of St. Mark's United Methodist Church in Montclair, New Jersey, our honoree has merited the recognition which the General Alumni Association seeks to bestow upon him this evening: its highest honor, The Alumni Achievement Award, for outstanding achievement and loyal service to Alma Mater.

WILLIAM W. HARRIS

THE UNIVERSITY

Bicentennial Celebration. "Enlightenment '76 has been chosen as the theme of Lincoln's Bicentennial Program. Under this broad banner the program will highlight the following concepts and ideas through lectures, seminars, performances and community activities: (1) freedom, (2) self-reliance, (3) democracy, (4) rights and responsibilities, (5) reform and revolution, (6) individualism and (7) pluralism. Dr. Charles Hamilton, a former member of the Lincoln faculty and now professor of government at Columbia University, will begin the Bicentennial celebration on October 22. Also slated to appear are the Rev. Calvin Morris, Lincoln alumnus and executive director of the Martin Luther King, Jr., Center for Social Change, and Frances Walker, concert pianist. The University has received a grant of $15,000 from the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration to help underwrite the program.

Johnson, resident director and counsellor; Shannon W. M. Jones, assistant to the President and special programs officer; Ms. Andriline Moore, residential life and development officer; Mrs. Sheila Murdock, director of counselling and testing; Michael Noyes, instructional developer; Thomas Varella, assistant AIDP coordinator.

Opening Convocation. Speaking on "Education for a Congenial Future" at the opening convocation of the 1975-76 school year, Dr. Herman Branson urged his audience, composed chiefly of students, to reexamine their objectives and put more emphasis on service and less on material things. Pointing out that the world is limited in its resources, he indicated that there was a great need for a careful and critical use of resources as well as a need for people to understand and control the resources of the world. To this end it is important that students assume some responsibility for knowing what is going on in the world. "We have problems, but intelligent action and a humane spirit can lead to a society where men can walk in dignity and enjoy the comforts of life."

The Student Scene

The Student Government Association has as its officers for the 1975-76 school year: John Kimber, president, a political science major from Chester, Pa.; Henry Lancaster, vice president for internal affairs, an English major from Fieldsboro, N.J.; Dale Clifford, vice president for external affairs, an economics major from Pottstown, Pa.; and Donna Williams, treasurer, an economics major from Washington, D.C. The Association sponsored an induction ceremony for freshmen as a part of Orientation Week. Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, executive secretary of the General Alumni Association, talked of the heritage of which the new students had become a part.

The largest Freshman Class in Lincoln's history was admitted for the 1975-76 school year. Nearly 450 students, chiefly from the Middle Atlantic area, are taxing the facilities of the institution to their utmost. It was necessary to seek accommodations off campus for some new as well as old students. The Admissions Office is especially grateful to those alumni who assisted in recruiting students. Mr. Jeffrey Tucker, director of admissions, expects to recruit more alumni this school year to assist his limited staff in its endeavors.

Kelvin Boston, a junior from Wilmington, Del., won the national oratorical contest sponsored by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in Santa Fe, N. M., the first weekend in September. All contestants spoke on "The Evils of Alcohol." Boston, who is majoring in English, received a check for $150 and a medal for first place. A campus leader, he has served as president of his class for two years.

Can you believe it — baseball in the fall! Hampered by the trimester calendar, the Athletic Department moved baseball from the spring to the fall to compete with soccer and cross country and women's volleyball. Speaking of women, some of them are getting in condition now to compete for places on the track team come spring. All the coaches are optimistic that 1975-76 will be a very good year!

ALUMNI PUBLICATION OF LINCOLN UNIVERSITY, LINCOLN UNIVERSITY, PA. 19352 FEBRUARY 1976

Office of the President

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY

January 13, 1976

Dear Fellow Alumni:

1976 should be a great year for Lincoln. We are hard at work on buildings, libraries, and classrooms. When you come on campus, be certain to look at the Chapel and University Hall. Thanks to special federal and state grants, Lincoln will add to its teaching materials, facilities, and supplies as never before. We shall try to maintain this high level with your help.

Still the most significant event for Lincoln would be a reawakening of Alumni to the fact that Lincoln has as important a role in society in 1976 as it had in 1876. Dr. Lawrence E. Gary, director of the Institute for Urban Affairs and Research at Howard University, writing in the latest issue of the Howard University Magazine, stated: "It is now increasingly clear that the dominant power structure and its allies are using a variety of sophisticated methods to destroy Black institutions." That means we must be doubly vigilant and supportive.

If there is an area where you can be most helpful, it is in aid to our students. The number of good students with pressing financial problems is alarming. They are Lincoln's future -- help them.

Sincerely yours,

Herman R. Branson
President

Dr. Edward W. Blyden, III

DR. EDWARD W. BLYDEN, III, representative of Sierra Leone to the United Nations, spoke at Amherst College in December. His talk was the first lecture in the Edward Blyden Memorial Lecture Series on Black Social thought, named in honor of Dr. Blyden's grandfather, who was the subject of his talk. The grandfather was a prominent Liberian educator, journalist, statesman, and Black African spokesman. Dr. Blyden's work at Harvard helped pave the way for serious consideration of the Harvard Ph.D. program in African studies.

General Alumni Association

Dear Alumni:

As I write this letter my heart is rather heavy over the plight of black education in the schools I have known best in the 50 years since I graduated from Lincoln. I am particularly concerned with the subtle efforts all over America to do away with the growing force of black educational institutions. This is a good time to project such ideas under the guise of economy because now education and welfare are the most vulnerable.

Lincoln has not been entirely free of such questionable intent as indicated in "Governor Shapp's Review 1975," pages 28 and 29. If I have learned anything over these 50 years, it is that the best defense is always a good and well-defined offense. That offense for Lincoln today means a closing of ranks between the Administration and the Alumni Association.

For me, the first step in the closing of these ranks is to have every alumnus in the country make a gift to Lincoln this June of $5.00 for every year he/she has been out. AND IF THE YEARS HAVE BLESSED YOU, THEN MAKE IT FAR MORE!

Yours in love for Lincoln,

George W. Goodman
President

CLASS NOTES

AN ALUMNUS REMINISCES

By Leroy D. Johnson '31

If Cresson Hall Could Speak

In these days of concern and repair of this over one-hundred year old structure one may reminisce about this dormitory as it was four decades ago.

Her name, Cresson, proudly bespeaks a concerned Quaker ancestry, but she could also say that she housed male "dogs" (freshmen) on the third floor. This top floor was known as the "Gut Bucket," and freshmen housed there had two exits—one down the fire escape, which was replaced by the stairwell on the side of the dormitory facing the Fine Arts Building. The fire escape saved the lives of some freshmen but served also as an access route for sophomores to cut the hair of freshmen just before Thanksgiving. Incidentally, there was no resident assistants in those days unless you called the sophomores R.A.'s.

The second floor was inhabited by sophomores while the foreign princes and the dignified seniors were housed on the first floor. There were shower baths only on the first floor.

In one of the suites on the first floor the Honorable Thurgood Marshall lived. This suite was located where the Health Center is. On the other end of the hallway was the modest room of the late Langston Hughes.

The bell in the belfry was rung every morning when the residents gathered for the mail call on the first floor.

To protect this building in the event of fires were buckets filled with water on each floor. The Fire Chief had to constantly refill these in the spring because they were frequently emptied on a junior or freshman who walked too close to the dorm or decided to stand on those hallowed stones on which there are chiseled Greek letters of the classes.

If Cresson could re-echo the oratory that came from those stones by upperclassmen, one would hear plans for the liberation of Africa, or recital of Virgil's Aeneid in Latin or a plea for democracy.

If one examines these stones or class symbols in front of Cresson closely, one will notice that some begin with the Greek letter Pi and others with Phi, symbolic of the even and odd year classes. Both lines—Pi and Phi—claim they descended from the Royal Line of King David. Among these orators was the Honorable Nnamdi Azikiwe, the first Governor General of Nigeria.

The former resident and writer of this article recalls others on the list of illustrious alumni—physicians, dentists, lawyers, college professors and scholars who lived in Cresson.

May today's generation of students and scholars hear Cresson speak to their needs!

If Lincoln Hall Could Speak

This building, first known in 1866 as Lincoln-Ashmum dormitory, became Lincoln Hall after the original building, Ashmum, was condemned and torn down.

Discriminating observers can see the water-cement marks showing where the two buildings were joined at the rear of Lincoln Hall. Today Lincoln houses most of the Student Affairs Office, Admissions and the Registrar's Office.

Four decades ago Lincoln Hall spoke a different language but spoke to certain traditions that since have disappeared.

The residents, four decades ago, were primarily freshmen in Ashmum and some on the second and third floor of Lincoln Hall. Sophomores were housed in Lincoln Hall and thus no freshmen could go in and out of the front door of Lincoln Hall until after the mid-term exams of the second semester were completed. Freshmen who went out of the front door were "taken to the woods" by the sophomores.

The days that the soon-to-be sophomores were to storm the front door were apprehensive ones, but the freshmen usually won this battle because the sophomores in the building were out-numbered by spring.

As one enters Lincoln Hall, the first door on the left, now the Financial Aid Office, opened into the bookstore exchange operated by upperclass students. These students were responsible for selling second-hand books in the spring after they knew the selection of textbooks for the next year had been made. Although there was no pre-registration, students who knew what their courses were going to be profited both in time and money by purchasing these second-hand textbooks and keeping them for the following semester. This was also a source of income for the enterprising seniors and an experience in business operations.

The university linen room for issuance of new bedding or return weekly was entered through the second door on the left. The writer recalls the stentorian tones of a senior bellowing out to the incoming freshmen as they arrived. "What is your room, dog?" If the reply was 367 Cresson, the laundry would be thrown as "catch-as-catch-can" proposition with the reply, "Dog, there's no 367, Cresson; you mean 'The Gut Bucket!'"

If Lincoln Hall could speak, it would say it was sorry that some of its inhabitants were not permitted to see "the grass grow green" — that is, remain until spring. It was glad to be relieved of competition for dormitory space by the erection of Randall Hall with its "Gold or Ivory Coast" and well appointed rooms. It would, however, rejoice in the part it had to play over the years in the making of Lincoln Men.

ALUMNI PUBLICATION OF LINCOLN UNIVERSITY, LINCOLN UNIVERSITY, PA. 19352 SUMMER, 1976

GEORGE D. CANNON, M. D.
216 WEST 139TH STREET

May 5, 1976

To the Alumni:

When the Brown vs. Board of Education Supreme Court decision was made and colleges everywhere started admitting blacks, it was difficult for me to see at first the need for a predominantly black school above the Mason-Dixon line. The law has helped, but the truth is it has not changed the souls of man.

As things have turned out, the change in scholastic rules has revealed a greater need for Lincoln than ever before. The population increase and geographical shift, the advances in technology, the marked decrease in need for unskilled labor and many other factors reveal that millions of blacks need education and especially college education more than ever before.

What I still hope for is that Lincoln will turn out in the future, just as in the past, not only graduates but leaders. If each of you will persuade one good motivated student from your community to come to Lincoln, we can produce those future leaders. Send their names and addresses to the Admissions Office, and Lincoln will help you persuade them.

At the Commencement just past between 75 and 80 high school students with high scholastic scores were the guests of Lincoln. One seeks good students these days just as colleges seek 7-foot basketball players.

Make this a continual effort on your part. Introduce the smart girl or boy in your church, in your town, or in your family to Lincoln. It will do as much for Lincoln as the money which I hope you will also send.

Yours sincerely,

George D. Cannon, M. D.

Five Receive Honorary Degrees

Marian Anderson      Irving Graef      Charles S. Ireland      Fred S. A. Johnson      Mrs. Edwin D. Wolf

Commencement Highlights

"You will now, more than ever, on this day, whether you like it or not, be examples to many, many people," famed contralto Marian Anderson told the 191 members of Lincoln's 1976 graduating class at the Commencement exercises held on May 2. "What you do now will not only reflect upon yourselves—it will also reflect upon this university." She closed her brief address with this advice: "When you need a friend more than anyone else in the world, try God. I know because I've been there."

In his charge to the graduates, Dr. Charles S. Ireland, '36, director of the Howard University Hospital, urged them to always be true to themselves. "The hardest thing of all is to leave bitterness and hate behind. Bring in strength, resilience and openness, and then you'll embrace the whole world and it will embrace you in return."

In addition to Miss Anderson and Dr. Ireland, the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Dr. Irving Graef, noted pathologist and associate professor of clinical medicine at New York University; Fred S. A. Johnson, '27, long associated with YMCA work until his retirement in 1964; and Edwin D. Wolf (posthumously), a Philadelphia lawyer who battled long and hard in the cause of civil rights, but lost his fight to cancer. He was represented by his widow, Flora E. Wolf.

Presenting the candidates for honorary degrees were faculty members Professor Orrin C. Suthern, Dr. Joseph L. Harrison, Dr. DeForest P. Rudd, Dr. Brenda F. Savage, and Dr. Henry G. Cornwell.

Summa cum laude graduates Hillary S. Lee and Phyllis R. Hayes, who led the class scholastically, served as honorary marshals in the procession. Five other members of the class were also graduated summa cum laude; ten were graduated magna cum laude; and 36 received their degrees cum laude.

Dr. Leroy D. Johnson, dean of the University, presented the 1976 graduates to Dr. Herman R. Branson, president of the University, who conferred their degrees upon them.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Dr. Leroy Patrick, '39, pastor of Bethesda United Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh, who also pronounced the benediction. The University Chorale, under the direction of Professor Suthern, furnished music during the services.

Baccalaureate Service

The Rev. Dr. William P. Stevenson, '26, '28s, pastor of Trinity A.M.E. Church in Philadelphia, gave the baccalaureate address in the morning. Speaking on "True Freedom," Dr. Stevenson used as the basis of his address Lincoln's motto: "If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed," which enabled him to go back by means of the traditional Christian doctrine to the roots of the concept of the Lincoln tradition. "True freedom is the spiritual freedom that Christ gave to those who believe."

Senior Marilyn G. Lindler also participated in the service with the reading of the scripture lesson. The benediction was pronounced by Dr. Andrew E. Murray, professor of religion at Lincoln. Music was furnished by the University Chorale.

George Goodman (I.) presents award to William S. Taylor.

Born and educated in Baltimore, Maryland, William S. Taylor attended the Baltimore public schools and Storer College before finding his way to Lincoln University, from which he was graduated in 1926. He was a four-letter athlete for three years in football, basketball, baseball, and track and field, but football was his great love. He still likes to reminisce about the good old days when he played football with Wayman Coston, "Jazz" Byrd, "Whirlwind" Johnson, George Goodman, Bal Taylor, "Big Boy" Morgan, "Tad" Lancaster, Dan Wilson, "Butts" Brown, Tom Lee, Hildrus Poindexter, Bob Jason, and "Beano" Crudup. One of his fondest memories is the 24-0 Lincoln-Shaw football game in 1924, in which he scored all four touchdowns in a severe snowstorm.

In his senior year Taylor was the recipient of the award for the member of the graduating class who best combined scholarship and athletics, an indication that he was as much brain as brawn. Later he earned the Master of Arts degree at the University of Michigan. In 1929 he returned as athletic director and varsity coach to his Alma Mater, where he compiled an enviable record as a coach during the years he spent at Lincoln. He held other coaching positions at Morgan State College, Bowie State College, Samuel Houston College, and Arkansas State College, and his concern was always not whether his teams won or lost, but rather how they played the game—with aggressiveness, with enthusiasm, and with good sportsmanship.

In the summer of 1944 "Bill" was one of 126 applicants who took an examination for community organizer for Baltimore City, which was given by the Baltimore Youth Commission. Appointed to the position, he immediately organized two committees—the Eastside Community Committee and the Women's City-Wide Committee for Delinquency Prevention. The tie-in between athletics and juvenile delinquency was a natural one for "Bill," who over the years has received many awards for his community involvement: the Man of the Year Award of the Baltimore Afro-American Newspapers for superior service; the Eastside Community Award for organizing and maintaining Adult Leadership Block Clubs throughout Baltimore; the Women's City-Wide Committee for Delinquency Prevention Award for raising funds to send over 5,000 poor children to summer camp; the Baltimore Urban Renewal and Housing Agency's Service Award; and the Morgan State University Varsity Club's Hall of Fame Award.

Extremely modest, William S. Taylor is typical of the many Lincoln graduates who perform quietly but nevertheless effectively, content to leave the limelight to the doctors and the lawyers, who are looked upon as the elite of college graduates. Tonight we place him in the limelight because he is representative of the rank and file of alumni who form the backbone of any institution.

LINCOLN SALUTES BICENTENNIAL

In a salute to the Bicentennial, 12 colleges and universities in the Philadelphia area are participating in a unique cooperative venture: an exhibit tracing the evaluation of higher education in the region. Entitled "Learning, Revolution and Democracy," the exhibit is at the new Penn Mutual Tower on Independence Square. With displays highlighting the histories of the 12 colleges, the exhibit chronicles the development of educational opportunities for workers, women, blacks, and other minorities in four sections: "Learning in Colonial Philadelphia," "Revolution in Education," "Democracy in Education," and "Contributions to Humanity." The institutions participating in the exhibit are Bryn Mawr, Drexel, Haverford, LaSalle, Lincoln, Medical College of Pennsylvania, St. Joseph's, Swarthmore, Temple, Thomas Jefferson, University of Pennsylvania and Villanova.

WELCOME ABOARD

Travel Agency of Washington, D.C., is offering an outstanding trip to Egypt for slightly over $500. Trip includes air fare by TWA to Cairo, 7 nights in a first-class hotel, breakfast, and 2 ½ days of tours in Cairo. For further information, contact the Director of Alumni Relations.

Lewis Luchie, '57 (l.) presents Leroy D. Johnson, '31, with a certificate of appreciation from the Dept. of Environmental Resources.

. . . . The Student Scene . . . .

The annual observance of Honors-Alumni-Founder's Day was held on March 25 in the Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel. Top recipient of prizes and awards was Hillary S. Lee of New York City who received the Rosa Bradley Read Memorial Prize in Chemistry, for the senior showing highest proficiency in chemistry; the Jesse B. Plummer Memorial Medal, to that member of the Senior Class who has earned the highest average in chemistry; the Philadelphia Section ACS Scholastic Achievement Award, to the top-ranking senior majoring in chemistry as judged by members of the Chemistry Department; the Bradley Gold Medal, to that member of the Senior Class who has maintained the highest average in selected branches of physical science; and the LaVerte T. Warren Medal Fund, which provides a medal and scholarship to the senior with the highest average in natural science.

Miss Lee was followed closely by Henry M. Lancaster, II, a senior from Fieldsboro, N.J., who received four prizes and awards: the Richard T. Lockett Memorial Prize, to the senior who has made a significant contribution to the campus and the local community; the Elizabeth H. Train Memorial Prize in Oratory, for the best speaker in an oratorical contest; the Class of 1900 Prize, to that student who has acquitted himself most creditably in inter-collegiate debates; and the Kwame Nkrumah Memorial Award, to the student who best exemplifies leadership, school spirit, and participation in class and university activities. (Lancaster was also adjudged the outstanding senior by Lincoln alumni on the faculty and staff, and the announcement was made at the alumni banquet. The distinction carries with it a $150 cash award.)

Recipients of three prizes and awards were seniors Sydonie D. Bostick, Jeannette, Pa.; Stanley Smallwood, Richmond, Va.; Catherine Gayle, Philadelphia, Pa.; and Rashida Abdul-Ahad, Philadelphia, Pa. Miss Bostick received the Amy L. Johnson Award, to that student who has shown the most improvement in personality and scholarship during the last three full years of residence; the Kappa Alpha Psi Earl Harris Memorial Award, to the senior majoring in psychology with the highest cumulative average in psychology; and a Phi Beta Kappa Dean's List Award for high scholarship.

Smallwood was the recipient of the William H. Madella Prize, to the graduating student who has made the most general progress and has demonstrated high character, conduct, and scholarship; the Political Science Achievement Award; and third prize in the Bicentennial Essay Contest.

Miss Gayle received the Norman E. Gaskins Memorial Prize, to that student attaining the highest average in organic chemistry; the Joseph Leroy Williams Memorial Prize, to that senior who has been accepted to a Medical School and who has the highest average in chemistry and biology courses; and a Phi Beta Kappa Dean's List Award for high scholarship.

Miss Abdul-Ahad was the recipient of one of the Savitch Memorial Prizes, for students who do the most for community service on an intercultural, interreligious and intercommunity basis; the Samuel Robinson Scholarship Award, a competitive grant to a student or students who can correctly recite from memory the answers to the 107 questions in the Westminster Shorter Catechism; and a Phi Beta Kappa Dean's List Award for high scholarship.

Recipients of two prizes and awards were senior Brenda Greene of Laurel, Del., and freshmen Alfred Dorsey and Ray A. Jeter, both of Philadelphia. Miss Greene received the Class of 1916 Prize, to that student in the graduating class who has best combined athletic distinction and scholarship standing, and a French Award. Dorsey received a Biology Club Freshman Award, to members of the Biology Club who have the highest cumulative averages in zoology and botany and possess profound initiative and interest in biology, and the General Chemistry Award, for the highest achievement in the general chemistry class. Jeter was the recipient of the J. Thomas Stanford Prize in Mathematics, to the freshman who shows the most promise in mathematics, and the Freshman Mathematics Achievement Award, to the freshman who after his first semester of mathematics shows the most promise in the field.

ALUMNI PUBLICATION OF LINCOLN UNIVERSITY, LINCOLN UNIVERSITY, PA. 19352 OCTOBER, 1976

General Alumni Association

Office of the Executive Secretary

October 1, 1976

Dear Lincolnites:

By the time you receive this issue of the Bulletin, there will be little time remaining in 1976; but those who have not yet made their contributions to the annual giving campaign will still have time to get their checks in under the wire for a 1976 tax deduction. Elsewhere in this issue is a list of contributors to date--a list more conspicuous by the numbers missing than by the few present and accounted for.

For several years now Lincoln has been waging a campaign to get alumni to make annual contributions--large or small--to the institution, but many alumni still persist in making a showing only at reunions, which are spaced at five-year intervals. Since the inception of the campaign three years ago, annual giving has hovered around $30,000, which averages out to less than $10 for each alumnus and former student on the mailing list. If half of the mailing list gave just $100 a year, Lincoln could do many more things with $150,000 than it can with $30,000. A contribution of $2,000 or $3,000 from a class at a reunion every five years is less commendable than $2,000 or $3,000 annually from members of the class.

At the present rate of alumni giving the Alumni Office is a luxury that Lincoln can ill afford, yet few alumni would want to see its activities curtailed. Indeed, at this point in its existence it should be increasing rather than decreasing its activities. If you want to insure the continuation of an active, growing alumni association, dedicated to the advancement of Lincoln, give generously to Lincoln and request that a portion of your contribution be earmarked for the Alumni Office.

Sincerely yours,

H. Alfred Farrell

George Goodman (l.) presents Alumni Award to Leroy D. Johnson.

Leroy Dennis Johnson was born in Langhorne, Pennsylvania, where he attended the public school system before entering Lincoln University in 1927. He was graduated cum laude in 1931 and immediately embarked on a teaching career. In the course of time he returned to school to secure an M.S. and a Ph. D. degree in chemistry from the University of Pennsylvania, where he was initiated into Sigma Xi National Scientific Honor Society.

Before returning to his Alma Mater to join the staff, Dr. Johnson served as chairman of the Science Department at Storer College, Dean of the College, and acting president. During his tenure at Lincoln he has served as professor of chemistry, Dean of the College, and Dean-Registrar, the position he currently holds. He has also been the director of a National Science Institute. Because he would "gladly lerne, and gladly teche" like Chaucer's Clerk of Oxford, he has usually taught a course in chemistry, physical science, or environmental science. In this way he has come to have a feel for Lincoln students, which has stood him in good stead as Dean of the College and later Dean-Registrar. In his dealings with students he projects the image of a true Lincolnite.

Dr. Johnson's achievements in the field of education have earned him a place in Who's Who in America, Who's Who in the East, and American Men of Science. He is a member of the New York Academy of Science, the West Virginia Academy of Science, and the American Chemical Society. But his interests are not restricted to his profession. He is also a member of the Chester County Historical Society, the Southeastern Council of Boy Scouts of America, and the Southeastern Chapter of the National Red Cross. He also serves as historian and archivist of Beta Kappa Chi National Honorary Scientific Society, which was founded at Lincoln.

Our honoree is extremely active in his immediate community. He has served as past president of the Oxford Rotary Club, the Oxford Red Cross, and the Oxford Civic Association. Past Master of the University Masonic Lodge, he presently holds membership in the Mt. Hebron-University Lodge No. 34. A former trustee of the Oxford Presbyterian Church, he is currently an elder and the teacher of the Goodwill Bible Class. In 1974 he was elected to a six-year term as auditor for Lower Oxford Township.

Because he has demonstrated in his life and works those qualities which have long been associated with Lincoln graduates — leadership, character, service, and dedication — our distinguished alumnus merits the honor which the General Alumni Association has seen fit to confer upon him tonight.

Grant Aids Social Studies

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY is among the five institutions of higher learning who have received grants of $150,000 from Lilly Endowment, Inc., of Indianapolis. The institutions will use the grants to strengthen instruction in the social sciences. Landrum R. Bolling, president of Lilly Endowment, said it was the view of the panel of social scientists selecting the institutions for the grants that "the five colleges and universities had great potential for constructive change in social science instruction." Lincoln will inaugurate a cooperative education program which will permit a student to spend six months as a full-time employee with federal, state or local governmental agencies. Lincoln also proposes to seek stronger ties with its local community. The work at Lincoln will bring students into contact with two research institutions that exist on campus, the Institute for Policy Analysis and the Public Policy Institute.

William Alexander Miles

A product of the public schools of New York City, William Alexander Miles entered Lincoln University in 1947 after a short stint in the U.S. Army and received his Bachelor of Arts degree cum laude in 1951. Among his fond memories of Lincoln is his election to Beta Kappa Chi Honorary Scientific Society in 1949. Long interested in a medical career, he entered Howard University in the fall of 1951 and received that coveted M.D. degree in 1955. He interned at the Los Angeles County Harbor General Hospital after leaving Howard and held residencies at the Bronx Municipal Hospital Center, where his interest was pulmonary diseases, and at the Bronx Veterans Administration Hospital, where his interest was radiology.

In 1961 Dr. Miles became a diplomat of the American Board of Radiology. Since 1959 he has served as radiologist at the Bronx Veterans Administration Hospital, and since 1963 he has been the attending radiologist and professor of radiol-

Medicine is Dr. Miles's life—he is married to a doctor—and his interest in and service to his profession is attested to by his memberships in the National Medical Association, the American Medical Association, the Radiological Society of North America, the American Roentgen Ray Society, the American College of Radiology, the New York Roentgen Society, the New York County Medical Society, the New York State Medical Society, and the New York State Radiological Society. He is even an honorary member of the West African Radiological Society. From 1970 to 1972 he served as secretary of the Radiology Section of the National Medical Association. From 1971 he has been a member of the Board of Directors of the New York State Chapter of the American College of Radiology, Inc., and from 1973 he has served as chairman of the Section on Radiology of the National Medical Association.

Although he leads a busy professional life, Dr. Miles, long active in alumni affairs in the New York area, served as treasurer of the General Alumni Association from 1971 to 1974, and has also found time to be on the Board of Directors of the Carver Center in Port Chester, N.Y., and serve as consultant to the Radiology-Medical Department of PEP-SICO, Inc., in Purchase, N.Y. His publication of many articles on radiology has stamped him as an expert in that field.

The General Alumni Association of Lincoln University honors W. Alexander Miles tonight as much for his devotion to Lincoln as for his distinguished achievement in his chosen field. Wherever he has gone, he has reflected credit on himself and on Lincoln University. His enthusiasm for Lincoln has been contagious, and he has led many Lincoln graduates into service for their Lincoln Mater.

Biochemistry at the University of Kansas Medical Center.

THOMAS J. MOYER exhibited 64 of his paintings at the Christiana Cultural Arts Center in Wilmington, Del., from Oct. 29 to Nov. 19. Political candidates in the state and hundreds of people from all walks of life accepted invitations to attend the opening. The show, entitled "Talking Art of Africa," presented a unique approach to the history of mankind and the evolution of human civilization as portrayed by a black artist interested in the cultural antecedents of his people.

YASMINE E. JAUNAKAIS and Thomas D. Stout were married on Aug. 28 in St. Patrick's Church, Kennett Square, Pa. After a honeymoon in the mountains of North Carolina, the couple are making their home near West Chester, Pa. The bride is employed as a sanitarian by the Chester County Health Department. The groom, who attended the University of Delaware, is now attending classes at Delaware Technical and Community College.

SECOND CLASS
LINCOLN UNIVERSITY
PENNSYLVANIA

From the Desk of The Executive Secretary

At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the General Alumni Association on Oct. 30, the Committee approved the 1976-77 budget of almost $8,000. In other actions the Committee approved grants of $1,000 to the Admissions Office to continue alumni workshops on admissions and $2,000 to the Alumni Emergency Fund.

Nominations for Alumni Awards should reach the Office of the Executive Secretary on or before February 15 to be considered at the spring meeting of the Executive Committee on Feb. 26. Preference is given to members of reunion classes who have made significant achievements in their chosen fields and who have made contributions to Lincoln University. Supporting evidence should accompany each nomination to indicate significant achievement.

Class lists for reunion classes ('2's and '7's) were forwarded to class secretaries in October. If you have not heard from your class secretary about reunion plans, let your class secretary hear from you!

The Student Scene

Young ladies almost made a clean sweep of the offices of the Freshman and Sophomore Classes for the 1976-77 school year. The president of the Freshman Class is Cathleen Williams, Jamaica, N.Y.; other officers are Sharon McCray, Brooklyn, N.Y., vice president; Yvonne Cobb, Harrisburg, Pa., secretary; and Solomon Fulton, Philadelphia, Pa., treasurer. The officers of the Sophomore Class are Crystal Cotten, New York City, president; Charisse Hibbler, Astoria, N.Y., and Gilbert Young, Philadelphia, Pa., vice presidents; and Sharon Saunders, Philadelphia, Pa., secretary.

Patrice Morris, a senior sociology major from Philadelphia, will serve as Miss Lincoln University during the 1976-77 school year. Her official duties began on Oct. 30 when she presided over Homecoming activities. New criteria, which permits either a young man or young woman to serve as Mr. Lincoln or Miss Lincoln, were put into effect this year. Applicants must be seniors with at least a 2.5 cumulative average and must be involved in at least one extracurricular activity. They must possess some form of talent, which has to be performed before the Lincoln University Community, and should be well poised and congenial. In addition, applicants must give evidence of good oral expression through brief essays written by themselves.

LU BULLETIN

Lincoln University

ALUMNI PUBLICATION OF LINCOLN UNIVERSITY
LINCOLN UNIVERSITY, PA 19352 • FEBRUARY, 1977

ALUMNI MERIT SCHOLARSHIPS. A special Alumni Merit Scholarship Committee has devised criteria to determine recipients of Alumni Merit Scholarships for high school students. A recipient must rank in the upper quartile of his or her graduating class with a 3.0 or better grade-point average. The student must have approximately 900 or better SAT scores and give evidence, through high school records and test results, of ability to achieve success in college and intellectual promise. The student must also show evidence of motivation toward higher academic degrees. Evidence of leadership must be shown through participation in school activities and/or community activities with consideration being given for holding an office in organizations. All recipients must have outstanding character as demonstrated by their ability to assume responsibilities or by standards of high personal worth. They must have three strong recommendations, two from within the school system and one from the community.

EARLY ADMISSIONS. The faculty has approved an Early Admissions Policy to enlarge the pool of quality students from which to recruit freshmen. This policy, adopted by many colleges, will attract highly motivated students who wish to complete both the senior high school year and the freshman year of college at the same time by enrolling in college level courses at Lincoln University. Students admitted to the Early Admissions Program must have the following: (1) a strong college preparatory background in high school subjects; (2) a 3.0 or B grade-point average; (3) a combined SAT score of 900 or above; (4) letters of recommendation from a high school counselor, a teacher, and parents; (5) an interview with a representative of the Admissions Office, and (6) written confirmation from the high school stating that a high school diploma will be awarded after the student has completed one successful year at Lincoln and any other requirements the student must fulfill in his or her freshman year.

PERSPECTIVES. Two members of the Department of English, Mrs. Marianne H. Russo and Dr. Edward B. Groff, have edited an anthology with Lincoln's particular students in mind: their backgrounds, their reading levels, and their writing abilities. Published by Kendall/Hunt Publishing Co., the volume is the crystallization of nearly ten years of work. The concepts and materials it embodies have been selected, developed, and tested through use with several succeeding classes of Lincoln University freshmen. The aims of the book as set forth in the preface are "to enhance... (the student's) awareness of his own creativity and to help him to become more responsible to the creativity of others" and "to engage the reader's interest in writing." Perspectives seeks to stimulate in the student an increased realization of himself and the world, and leads him to express in writing this developing self. The book forms the basis for the two-semester Humanities program. The collection includes readings and illustrations which permit a sequential writing program.

Mt. Sinai and Houston Hall Speak

By L. D. Johnson '31

Houston Hall, initially erected as a dormitory in 1881 as a gift from the H. H. Houston family of Philadelphia, also housed classrooms and offices of the Theological Seminary until 1959 when the Seminary closed. It still serves as a dormitory.

Situated as it was then in the center of the campus, it is not strange that the promising theologs called the top floor of Houston—Mt. Sinai. You will recall that Moses handed down the Ten Commandments from Mt. Sinai.

During the writer's day, a few freshmen and sophomores were assigned rooms on the top floor to absorb this rare atmosphere—an accelerated transition from "canine to divine."

Although most residents came to study religion in the broad sense, they did not have to prescribe to the Presbyterian doctrine or to any particular faith. Thus, the names of distinguished ministers and preachers of every denomination are found among the Seminary alumni. As in the case of all institutions of learning, some "came to winter."

Houston Hall structurally has been changed several times over the years. A fire escape, facing Amos Hall, then the only campus bathhouse, was erected on the outside of the building. This escape route was the via Appia for some freshmen to avoid the wrath of Zeus of the sophomore class.

The first floor of Houston was arranged so that what one enters now as the first room on the left was the special dining hall for the theologs. The time-keeper of all student workers, a student himself, made sure the theologs had a trustworthy student to serve the theologs the nectar of the gods.

The first room on the right, as one enters the building, was furnished as a model church with cushioned benches. The pulpit was located at the front of the room and in place was a small organ. Hymn books were orderly arranged in the pews.

The second and third floor rooms were arranged as suites for meditation, prayers or hymns when the theologs were not practicing trial sermons in the first floor chapel.

The hall structure with its open rectangular court made it easy for the freshmen on the top floor to drench these dignified men with bags or buckets of water before they could get their doors unlocked when coming from classes or services.

Sometimes the playful underclassmen arranged special devices over the transoms so that the theologs would get use to "showers of blessings."

These gentlemen of the cloth were generous to those who worked for them as waiters or janitors since most of them had churches nearby or were serving as guest ministers over the week-ends.

Name calling of the great preachers who studied in Houston would be dangerous for a layman, so the writer has left to his Chaplain classmate the task of naming the outstanding theologs who graduated from the college and seminary and who have served uniquely and with distinction in the various denominations, agencies and church councils.

Indeed, it must also be mentioned that the list of college students who lived in Mt. Sinai but who did not attend the seminary consists of college presidents, deans, and teachers who have served Alma Mater as well as other institutions of learning.

All of these were better men for having imbibed this rare atmosphere.

Ecumenicity, warm friendships, interracial and international good-will abounded in this unusual setting made possible only at Lincoln University.

Program for the Handicapped

Under the auspices of the Department of Physical Education of Lincoln University, a six-week program involving Lincoln students and handicapped teenagers and young adults from the surrounding areas was held during the fall term. Participants and volunteers in the program ranged from 135 at the beginning to 230 at the end of the program, which served a two-fold purpose: (1) helping the physically and mentally handicapped to live independently, productively, and with dignity by enabling them to return to their communities and participate to the greatest possible degree; and (2) giving student volunteers an in-depth experience through an understanding of psychological adjustment of handicapped individuals, improvement of attitudes of the general public, and providing recreational and cultural development. Mrs. Jean White directed the program.

The Student Scene

The Tolson Society, an organization of students majoring in English and students interested in literature, observed Tolson Society Week during the week of January 24. The theme of the week was "Expressions of Black Poetry." Gwendolyn Brooks, Pulitzer prize-winning poet, and Dudley Randall initiated the activities of the week with their program, "The Poet and the Publisher." Student poets read their creations on Wednesday, January 26, and Sonia Sanchez was presented on Thursday, January 27. The week was made possible through funds provided by the Student Government Association. The Society is named for Melvin B. Tolson, '23, who achieved poetic eminence just before his death a few years ago.

Paul Robeson Scholarship Fund

Contributions for the Paul Robeson Scholarship Fund, the interest from which will be awarded to a graduating senior enrolled in the Humanities in a graduate school, should be sent to the Alumni Office. Checks should be made out to Lincoln University and designated for the Paul Robeson Scholarship Fund. The recipient will also receive a medallion. The goal of the fund is $10,000 by Commencement (May 1), of which approximately $7,500 is already on hand.

CAREER SERVICES CENTER. Cooperative Education and Placement and Career Counseling have merged to form a new office called the Career Services Center under the direction of Dr. P. Jean Mullett. She is assisted by Mr. Joel Jeter, coordinator of cooperative education, Mr. William Hammond, coordinator of placement, and Ms. Bonnie Jones, '74, occupational analyst. The Center is located on the fourth floor of Lincoln Hall, now known as the Student Affairs Building.

LANGUAGE HOUSE. Seventeen students, majoring in Spanish or French, are living in Alumni House this school year. Ms. Paulette Jones, instructor in Spanish, is the coordinator for Language Department has also formalized an exchange program with the University of Puerto Rico, Mayaguez campus, under the direction of Dr. Shirley Orsag, assistant professor of Spanish.

HUMAN SERVICES. Lincoln University has instituted a program which will grant participants the Master of Human Services degree. In keeping with Lincoln's objective of stressing the relevance of all knowledge to the problems of the present, the program seeks to address needs that are being neglected by existing programs. It is innovative both in terms of the students it admits and the type of curriculum it offers. Since there are many experienced and competent practitioners without recognized credentials in human services agencies, the Lincoln program has been developed to provide an opportunity for these people to complete a professional degree. The curriculum is designed to provide the students with an intensive background of theory and academic knowledge and to guide them in applying these in their own professional development. Each student will be required to complete 56 credit hours spread over two calendar years. In addition, the student must satisfactorily complete eight major field projects to demonstrate to the satisfaction of the agency supervisor and the academic instructor his or her ability to incorporate theory and practice. The material to be mastered has been divided into eight units representing eight skill areas necessary for the successful functioning of a human services professional.

PRE-ENGINEERING PROGRAM. The Physics Department has launched a novel and exciting program which prepares students for careers in engineering. The Pre-Engineering Program leads to dual degrees, a B.A. in science from Lincoln and a B.S. in engineering from one of the participating engineering schools. The program offers basic and advanced courses in physics, chemistry, and mathematics together with introductory courses in engineering. Student research projects, cooperative education experience, and financial aid are available for qualified individuals. For additional information contact Dr. Willie Williams, Chairman, Physics Department, 127 Wright Hall, Lincoln University, Lincoln University, Pa. 19352.

COMMENCEMENT '77

Lincoln's smallest class in recent years—155 graduates—was addressed by UN Ambassador Andrew Young at the Commencement exercises held on May 1. "Graduation is a time for you to make a decision about what you will do with your life," he told the members of the graduating class. "You have a notion from the various people honored here today of what is possible in life. You must continue the contribution that you have honored us for making. Today we who have been running pass the baton on to you and expect you to develop your full potential. Begin immediately to repay some of the investment made in you."

In her charge to the graduates retired lawyer Sadie Tanner Mossell Alexander, the daughter and niece of three early Lincoln alumni, urged the graduates to be ambassadors in their own communities by letting people know who they are and what they are. "Don't let a diploma fool you. It only says you are capable of doing something; you are not an expert. It signifies that you have the ability to do more. To do more and be successful you must work hard."

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Ambassador Young, Mrs. Alexander, Senator Edward W. Brooke, NAACP Counsel Jack Greenberg, Judge Joseph C. Waddy, '35, and Dr. Jerrold R. Zacharias, noted MIT physicist.

Presenting the candidates for honorary degrees were faculty members Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers, Dr. Judith A. W. Thomas, Dr. Bethuel P. Setai, Dr. Henry G. Cornwell, Professor James W. Frankowsky, and Dr. Willie Williams, Jr.

Magna cum laude graduates Deborah A. Taylor and Jo-Ann W. Brady, who led the class scholastically, served as honorary marshals in the procession. Ten other members of the class were also graduated magna cum laude; 17 received their degrees cum laude.

Dr. Leroy D. Johnson, dean of the University, presented the graduates to Dr. Herman R. Branson,

RECIPIENTS OF ALUMNI AWARDS

F. C. Johnson for J. I. E. Scott

The General Alumni Association of Lincoln University honors J. Irving E. Scott tonight for distinguished achievement in education. Wherever he has gone he has reflected credit on himself and on Lincoln University. In the steadfast pursuit of his dreams and aspirations, Dr. Scott has demonstrated those qualities long associated with Lincoln graduates—dedication, perseverance, leadership and service to mankind.

Howard E. Wright

From his graduation in 1932 until this day almost 45 years later, Howard Emery Wright has been a staunch Lincoln man, and few can match his devotion, service and financial assistance to his alma mater. It is in recognition of these qualities that the General Alumni Association of Lincoln University honors him tonight.

William M. Jordan, Jr.

In recognition of his untiring efforts to make everything with which he is associated a little better, the General Alumni Association of Lincoln University has seen fit tonight to honor William Mansfield Jordan, Jr., who has never lost sight of the wellspring of his eminence. He typifies the selflessness that characterizes the true Lincoln graduate, and the General Alumni Association honors itself in honoring him.

president of the University, who conferred their degrees upon them.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Dr. Leroy Patrick, '39, pastor of Bethesda United Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh, who also pronounced the benediction. The University Chorale, under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern, furnished music during the services.

Baccalaureate Service

The Rev. Alfred L. Pugh, '48, '51s, pastor of Macedonia Baptist Church in Pittsburgh, gave the baccalaureate address, based on Genesis 25:21-34, in the morning. He urged the graduates not to be like Esau and sell their birthright for a mess of pottage. He told them to value their roots as a part of their heritage.

Senior Byron S. Bullock also participated in the service with the reading of the scripture lesson. The invocation and the benediction were given by the Rev. Warner H. Sanford, University chaplain. Music was provided by the University Chorale.

A Review of Horace Mann Bond's EDUCATION FOR FREEDOM: A HISTORY OF LINCOLN UNIVERSITY

A very personal book, this is Horace Mann Bond's testament of devotion to his alma mater which he also served as its first black president. One-third of the book traces roots to the ancient Hebrews, to St. Augustine, Calvin, George Fox, the settlers of Pennsylvania, to enslavers and enslaved. . . . In the remaining two-thirds, Bond tells a fascinating history of the struggle for survival of the first university founded to bring education to "youth of African descent." . . . This is a rich, albeit jumbled, book to be read, nay savored, at one's leisure. Much recommended for collections on higher education and on Afro-American history. It is the only history of Lincoln University in print; many illustrations, good footnotes and index.

EXPANDING HORIZONS. The horizons of Lincoln University students continue to expand as they participate in programs that take them to all parts of the world. During the summer three students spent several weeks in Africa in programs designed to introduce college students to all aspects of African life. Three students spent their junior year in France, taking courses structured to fit the needs of foreign students. Their view of their experience and the impact it had on their lives are best summarized in the following statement made by one of the participants: "Studying in France has really opened our eyes to the world around us. Not only were we able to make the acquaintance of the French students, but we were able to meet and converse with people from all over the world, not to mention the tremendous amount of French we have learned....For the three of us, this trip abroad was only the start. We now plan to continue our travels, and to promote traveling among blacks. We feel that we have been truly enriched, and would like others to experience what we have....At first, we had some problems coping with the language, adapting to the food, people and France itself; but within three months we were all conversing with little difficulty, enjoying the food, and appreciating and understanding France and its people." Currently six Lincoln students are studying Spanish in the Dominican Republic. It is expected that the students will achieve a degree of fluency in Spanish that will qualify them for professional work in their chosen fields, bilingual education, public service and law.

RIVERO RETIRES. With the retirement of Manuel Rivero last May after 43 years of service to Lincoln, the mantle of longevity has descended to Dr. Henry G. Cornwell, '33, who has been a member of the Lincoln faculty for 34 years. Others who have served Lincoln for 25 years or more are Robert N. Gardner, Dr. Thomas M. Jones, Dr. Andrew E. Murray, Orrin C. Suthern II, James W. Frankowsky, Emery Wimbish, Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, '34, and Dr. DeForest P. Rudd.

NIGERIAN PROGRAM. The Nigerian Company for Engineering Limited (NICOGEN) has awarded four six-month job slots for business and pre-engineering students at Lincoln University. The four students are scheduled to travel to the West African country in early December and will return to the United States in May of 1978. NICOGEN, a petro-chemical company, will pay all travel and living expenses in addition to salaries. Dr. Brenda Savage, assistant professor of English, is coordinator of the Nigerian Exchange Program.

Dr. Eddison Hairston, '54, president of the General Alumni Association, was the principal speaker at the Freshman Induction Ceremony Aug. 28. The ceremony was a part of Orientation Week, its purpose being to make students aware of the General Alumni Association. Dr. Hairston told his audience that hard work and a strong determination can carry a person as far as he wants to go. "The debt that you owe to your parents can be repaid in part by being successful here." He urged students to "join us as alumni and help to repay Lincoln University and society for what they have done for you."

Eighteen students from areas in which there are alumni chapters have been selected by the executive secretary to form a pre-alumni council to help make Lincoln students conscious of the existence of the Genral Alumni Association. The council will explore ways and means of bringing Lincoln students and alumni closer together. The executive secretary attended a special conference on student alumni programs, sponsored by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE), in Roanoke, Va., Sept. 25-27.

CRISIS AT LINCOLN UNIVERSITY

(In an effort to apprise alumni of the situation at Lincoln, the Executive Committee of the General Alumni Association requested the editor to secure statements from the administration and the faculty for publication. In response to the request from the editor for a statement giving the administration's view of the situation, the President presented two statements, one released September 1, 1977, to faculty, students, and public and the other September 19, 1977, to faculty and staff.)

Administrative Viewpoint

Some people are objecting to the fact that Lincoln University has recently asked to join its faculty two of the finest and ablest young women that I have ever interviewed. Lincoln has recognized severe needs in English instruction, so such excellent candidates seemed a blessing indeed. In order to make response easier, I am outlining the history of their selection in serial fashion:

1. The University followed scrupulously the Faculty By-Laws and the collective bargaining agreement with out A.A.U.P. Union in employing and assigning these two teachers.
2. Assistant Professor C. James Trotman was notified in writing, June 30, 1977, that he would not be asked to serve as chairman of the English Department for 1977-1978
3. Dr. Gladys J. Willis was discovered by the Academic Vice President last year and he was most enthusiastic about her qualifications, experience, and personality. She was not available then.
4. When I learned that Dr. Willis had a Ph.D. in English from Princeton University and when I read her curriculum vitae, I too was convinced that Lincoln had a rare find.
5. Dr. Willis came to the campus and met with the members of the English Department who were available.
6. The chairman of the Humanities Division, Professor Orrin C. Suthern, II, met with her for two hours and praised her unreservedly to Vice President Wade.
7. After these meetings and consultations, Vice President Wade recommended that a contract letter be sent to Dr. Willis as a teacher and head of the English Department for 1977-1978. The agreement, further, was that Dr. Willis would report on August 15, 1977, in order to work out the schedule readjustments with the teachers of English.
8. Dr. H. A. Farrell met with Dr. Gladys Willis and he cordially agreed that his one course the first semester of 1977-1978 would be English 100, while Dr. Willis

Faculty Viewpoint

To understand the split that has developed between administration and faculty at Lincoln University, it is fully as important to know what are not the issues as it is to know what are the issues.

First, the split is not a labor-management dispute. While it is true that there now exists a faculty union, which negotiates contracts with officials of the university, it is not true that the crisis would be any different if there were no union. The only difference is that without a union the faculty would be more helpless in the presence of autocratic power.

Second, the split has not developed because the faculty is worried about salaries and jobs. These are important issues, and in one form or another they do surface occasionally at Lincoln. But they are secondary to the main issues. Those who are most active in the faculty all served during periods when pay was low and when higher pay was available to them in other jobs. Many alumni will remember the period of the 1950's and 1960's when loyalty to Lincoln kept many of those same people from accepting more lucrative offers.

Furthermore, salaries have never been a stumbling block in contract negotiations with the union. Except for attempts to adjust inequities in salary, that is, to assure that salaries are not used as patronage rewards for a chosen few political favorites, the faculty union has usually accepted administration offers with little conflict.

The real issue, from the faculty viewpoint, predates the formation of the union. The real issue was and is the failure of President Herman Branson to abide by the fundamental procedures that constitute standard practice in liberal arts colleges and universities. The first, and still the most important, issue at Lincoln University is basic and simple. It is the principle that the by-laws, long established and periodically updated, should be carried out to the letter and in broad spirit. The by-laws basically grow out of a statement of general academic practice called "The Statement of Principles," accepted nationally both by the would teach the Survey of English Literature and a section of English 100. These changes were noted and the schedule changed accordingly.

9. Vice President Wade brought up two additional severe needs in English for which he had a solution. There was the need to have someone of unquestioned competence to offer the course in black literature. The second need was for some faculty member of high competence and experience to give the course in journalism and work with the student newspaper. Mrs. Joanne Gabbin seemed ideally suited for those two assignments. She was an experienced teacher of English on the college level. She had had experience also in journalism. She was known to our English teachers. Most impressive, however, was the fact that she had completed all the course work and passed her preliminary examinations for the Ph.D. in English at the University of Chicago and is at work on her dissertation: a study of Sterling Brown, the distinguished contemporary black writer.
10. Inasmuch as there seemed no question that our enrollment in 1977-1978 would give us sufficient classes in English, the University was pleased to offer contracts to both Dr. Willis and Mrs. Gabbin. Dr. Willis, of course, agreed to hiring Mrs. Gabbin.
11. There are two other considerations associated with Dr. Willis and Mrs. Gabbin. Several years ago the Faculty voted unanimously to urge the University to seek actively and to employ more black professionals. Then, too, inasmuch as half our students are women and inasmuch as there are active federal and state concerns for affirmative action, Lincoln is most fortunate in finding two such unusually well-prepared young women who also help the university in all these areas.

The Honorable John H. Ware, III, Acting Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Lincoln University, announced that the Trustees in Special Executive Session held Sunday afternoon, September 18, 1977, in Philadelphia adopted the five resolutions listed below.

Resolution #1

After a full consideration of the events and circumstances surrounding the arrests of Dr. C. James Trotman on September 1, 1977, and of Dr. H. Alfred Farrell on September 2, 1977, the Board of Trustees of Lincoln University resolves as follows:

1. The Board concludes, after a review of the classroom disruptions which led to these arrests, that the Lincoln University police officers who were present and made

American Council of Education, an association of college administrators, and by the various scholarly bodies representing professors. For example, standard practice requires that new faculty members should be hired in consultation with, and through steps initiated by, members of the affected departments. Thus, English Department faculty need to be hired, severed, and evaluated by teachers of English. Chemistry professors need to be hired, evaluated, and severed by teachers of chemistry.

Not only is this standard practice; it is basic common sense. For a person whose profession is English literature to hire a computer specialist in a math course is ridiculous.

To assure that standard practice will be followed, the faculty elects three members to a Committee on Promotions, Tenure, and Severance, one from each Division of Study. In pre-Branson times, the president and dean met with the committee and together the group made decisions, after carefully considering the recommendations of those in the departments. Rarely were those group recommendations not followed.

Now, both hiring and firing is done without the approval of that committee, and without proper peer evaluation. The danger here is that faculty can be hired or fired for political rather than for academic reasons. When careful peer evaluation is disregarded, the traditional safeguards to academic freedom and the pursuit of knowledge breaks down.

Some examples will explain the point. One member of the English Department, Dr. James Trotman, joined the faculty some ten years ago. He is an outstanding young black scholar, popular with his students and highly respected by his colleagues. After a leave of absence, Dr. Trotman was offered a new contract by Dr. Branson, who promoted him from his earlier rank to assistant professor. In 1973, Dr. Branson named Dr. Trotman chairman of the English Department. He reappointed Trotman as chairman each year through 1976-77. The department functioned well under his leadership. There were occasional differences of opinion, as always there are in academic circles, but Trotman was acknowledged by his colleagues as a person who could preserve cordiality among his peers.

During the academic year 1976-77, Dr. Trotman became openly critical of the Branson administration, arguing that cuts in the English Department were unsound in view of the low levels of reading and writing among entering students, who needed smaller rather than larger classes.

On June 30, 1977, Dr. Branson notified Dr. Trotman that he would no longer serve as department chairman, as of July 1. This action was taken unilaterally without consultation with the Promotions, Tenure and Severance Committee, and without consultation with English

2. The Board believes, after a review of the entire situation with counsel, that the prosecution of Drs. Trotman and Farrell would be successful.
3. The Board believes, however, that the prosecution of Drs. Trotman and Farrell would not be in the best interests of the University.
4. The Board, therefore, authorizes the university's counsel to withdraw prosecution of Drs. Trotman and Farrell with respect to the charges arising out of their arrests.
5. The Board does not condone the conduct of Drs. Trotman and Farrell and any repetition of such conduct will not be tolerated in the future.

Resolution #2

The Board of Trustees of Lincoln University hereby resolves as follows:

1. A special sub-committee of the Board will be established with its members to be appointed by the Chairman of the Board.
2. The sub-committee shall conduct a thorough and objective study and evaluation of the performance of the Board of Trustees, administration, and faculty.
3. The sub-committee shall report to the Board in writing within 90 days the results of its study and evaluation.
4. The report of the sub-committee shall include recommendations for the Board's consideration.

Resolution #3

The Board of Trustees hereby expresses its support of President Herman R. Branson.

Resolution #4

The Board of Trustees hereby urges University President Branson to renew and expedite his search for an Executive Vice President.

Resolution #5

The Board of Trustees of Lincoln University hereby resolves as follows:

The requirements of the University's Collective Bargaining Agreement and the Faculty By-Laws compelled President Branson to send a letter of notice of April 29, 1977 to every faculty member. The Board will review any and all recommendations for termination made by the President in accordance with that letter.

Faculty Viewpoint

Department peers. Whether or not this was a wise decision is one question. The faculty almost unanimously feels that it was not wise. But equally important is the way it was done—without peer evaluation or consultation.

Then, when classes started in August 1977, Dr. Trotman was arrested by campus security police when he was peacefully standing in a University Hall class room. He was charged with "disturbing the peace," an allegation so absurd that it was eventually withdrawn, but it was withdrawn only after Dr. Trotman had been held for an hour in a locked room in the Oxford Police headquarters and only after news coverage, highly damaging to his reputation, had appeared on television and in many metropolitan newspapers.

Later still, Branson sent letters to Trotman threatening him with possible firing. Then, during the 1977-78 Christmas recess, while his colleagues were dispersed, Trotman did in fact receive from Branson a letter of termination.

The sordid story of Dr. Trotman's severance is echoed in the cases of two other widely known and respected members of the same department. Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, for many years chairman of the English Department and long one of the top administrators at Lincoln, in a variety of roles, was also arrested in University Hall. His crime? He reported to teach a class to which the faculty had confirmed his assignment in their official meeting on August 24. Dr. Branson maintained that someone else should be in that class room, so, instead of discussing the matter quietly and rationally, Branson permitted Dr. Farrell to be arrested by the campus security force, whose chief officer shouted: "I am taking over this class room."

The third case from that department involves Dr. Edward Groff, who has been on medical leave since September 1977. Early in January 1978, Dr. Branson notified Dr. Groff, two weeks after Groff underwent delicate brain surgery, that he had been retired from the faculty as of December 1977.

These examples can be multiplied throughout other departments, and they illustrate why the faculty wants to seek new leadership in which Lincoln University and all its constituent groups can have confidence.

The episode that has received more attention than any other in the continuing attacks upon the Lincoln faculty was the decision of President Branson, allegedly with the advice of counsel and the consent of the Board of Trustees, to mail letters dated April 29, 1977, to every member of the faculty warning of possible severance. Anyone with experience in higher education, or anyone who thinks carefully about the matter, will appreciate the chilling effect that such a warning would have upon academic freedom. In other words, these letters would cause persons who might fear termination to remain silent and to avoid any statement that might antagonize the President. It is to the credit of the faculty that most of them did not remain silent, risking severance rather than capitulation. In December the President rescinded all but a handful of the letters. Presumably, those who advised him to write the letters in the first place later advised him to rescind them, though when and how this happened remains hazy.

But Dr. Trotman's letter was not rescinded. For some reason, not yet clear to the faculty, he alone was to be cut in the interest of "program curtailment." The whole issue of that barbaric method of dealing with a body of dedicated professionals has done more than any single act to crystallize the academic community across the country in support of the Lincoln faculty.

One final matter may indicate the total breakdown of authority and leadership. During the entire first semester of 1977-78, the President failed to complete a single faculty meeting, as is his responsibility, in an orderly manner. Routine motions were ruled out of order; appeals were denied; the minutes were altered without the secretary's knowledge or consent; motions were passed without a quorum; and important business such as approval of new courses simply failed to get a hearing.

To outline the entire case against this administration is not possible without a much more lengthy account than this space provides. The faculty feels heartened by the expressions of support that have come from alumni, from scholars all over the country, and from organizations concerned with academic freedom. With such support, Lincoln can again be restored to the position of greatness it once held.

COMMENCEMENT '78

In his charge to the members of the Class of 1978, Dr. George D. Cannon, '24, retiring chairman of the Board of Trustees, told the graduates: "Your real life is about to commence. Tomorrow you begin the fight for survival. Inflation, taxes, unemployment will confront you, but you have been prepared to cope with these things. It is important that you help those who are less fortunate than you."

The members of the class also heard remarks from Nigerian businessman Joseph Wayas on the significance of the occasion, symbolizing closer ties between Lincoln and Africa.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Dr. Cannon, Wayas, composer William L. Dawson, Judge John B. Hannum, the Honorable Augustus F. Hawkins, member of the U.S. House of Representatives, and Dr. Merze Tate, noted historian.

Presenting the candidates for honorary degrees were faculty members Dr. Henry G. Cornwell, Professor Orrin C. Suthern II, Professor Alexander L. Gabbin, Dr. Gayle K. Lawrence, Professor Jean A. White, and Dr. Brenda F. Savage.

Summa cum laude graduates Maria S. Granito and Carol A. Jackson, who led the class scholastically, served as honorary marshals in the procession. Eight other members of the class, which numbered 184, were also graduated summa cum laude; ten were graduated magna cum laude; and 20 received their degrees cum laude.

Dr. Leroy D. Johnson, dean of the University, presented the graduates to Dr. Herman R. Branson, president of the University, who conferred their degrees upon them.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Dr. Leroy Patrick, '39, pastor of Bethesda United Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh, who also pronounced the benediction. The University Chorale, under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern II, furnished music during the services.

ALUMNI AWARDS

Henry G. Cornwell

The General Alumni Association of Lincoln University honors Henry Gilbert Cornwell tonight as much for his devotion to Lincoln as for his distinguished achievement in his chosen field . . . His enthusiasm has been contagious, and he has led many graduates into service for alma mater.

Walter D. Chambers

It is only fitting that tonight the General Alumni Association of Lincoln University should honor Walt Chambers who entered to learn and went forth to serve. He is exemplary of the high standards Lincoln alumni set for themselves.

Levan Gordon

Because he has demonstrated in his life and works those qualities which have long been associated with Lincoln graduates — leadership, character, service, and dedication — our distinguished alumnus merits the honor which the General Alumni Association has seen fit to confer upon him tonight.

Rev. James A. Scott

BACCALAUREATE SERVICE

The Rev. James A. Scott, '52, pastor of Bethany Baptist Church in Newark, N.J., gave the baccalaureate address in the morning. Speaking on the subject of "The Magnificent Minority," he told the graduates to be themselves. "People who join the pack, who are nondiscriminating, eventually destroy themselves. Don't be governed by opinion polls." He also pointed out that in this day and time it is not easy to make up one's mind, but it is important not to accept what is glib and trite. "There's more to life than simply surviving. Don't be weak and spineless; be among that magnificent minority—people who have stamina, courage, nerve, and fortitude."

Senior Sabrina F. Lamb also participated in the service with the reading of the scripture lesson. The invocation and the benediction were given by the Rev. Dr. Frank T. Wilson, '21, 24s, consultant/coordinator, University Religious Program. Music was provided by the University Chorale.

Eleven seniors and seven juniors were inducted into Alpha Chi National College Honor Society on April 23. The senior inductees were Debra A. FitzSimmons, Chester, Pa.; Leroy E. Giles, Washington, D. C.; Sharon A. Gilmore, Chester, Pa.; Roslyn E. Head, Chester, Pa.; Carol A. Jackson, Moorestown, N. J.; David A. Kosoko, Sokoto, Nigeria; Charles P. Ogbodu, Sapele, Nigeria; Ogbuagu E. Onyike, Lagos, Nigeria; Dorothy A. Pierce, Amityville, N. Y.; Retha A. Riley, Chester, Pa.; and Mae B. Stephens, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The junior inductees were James D. Bishop, Washington, D. C.; Paula D. Davis, Philadelphia, Pa.; Pamela V. Evans, Joppatowne, Md.; Byron M. Glinton, Nassau, Bahamas; Jacqueline Griffin, Philadelphia, Pa.; Karen D. Johnson, Washington, D. C.; and Beverly Pittman, Philadelphia, Pa.

LU BULLETIN BOARD

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT. Dr. Bernard W. Woodson, Jr., has been selected to fill the position of Executive Vice President after a search of almost two years. A 1945 graduate of Virginia State College, Dr. Woodson received the M. S. degree from Howard University in 1948 and the Ph. D. degree from Michigan State University in 1958. He is listed in American Men of Science, Who's Who in the South and Southwest, and the Dictionary of International Biography. He holds memberships in Sigma Xi Scientific Research Society, Beta Kappa Chi Scientific Society, American Association for Advancement of Science, and the American Psychological Society. Formerly Dean of the School of Science and Technology, Virginia State College, Dr. Woodson comes to Lincoln from the Environmental Protection Agency, which he served on the Science Advisory Board. A contributor of numerous articles to scientific journals, he is married and the father of four sons.

NEW FACES. Faculty: Ms. Sarala Abreu, instructor in English; Lucky Baber, assistant professor of sociology; Mrs. Joyce T. Dinke, assistant professor of political science; Philip R. Morgan, visiting associate professor of sociology; Kenneth Van Dover, assistant professor of English; and James Weagley, instructor in physical science. Staff: Dwight Davis, institutional research officer (AIDP); Getahoun Dinke, budget officer (AIDP); Ms. Ruth Bennis, counselor (TIME); Mrs. Suzanne Huff, counselor (SPEED); Ms. Sheila Jones, resident director; Mrs. Ura Jones, counselor (AIDP); Melvin Jones, director of athletics; and Mrs. Carolyn Simpson, assistant director, TIME Program. Masters Program: Mrs. Rose Pinckney, director of Human Services Masters Program; Ms. Nancy Bancroft, assistant professor; Szabi Ishtae-Zee, assistant professor.

FALL ENROLLMENT. Contrary to expectations, the fall enrollment dropped only slightly, going over the 1,000-mark but falling short of last year's figures by approximately 75 students. According to the President, the shortage represents a decline in revenue of about $75,000. The Freshman Class numbers about 300 students. Alumni are being asked to assist the Admissions Office in recruiting students for the second trimester term which begins January 3. The Admissions Office will make contact with any student whose name is sent in by alumni. The earlier a name is sent in, the greater the chance of being admitted for the second term.

LU BULLETIN BOARD

NIGERIAN STUDENTS. Lincoln University is one of 70 community colleges, vocational and technical schools and colleges and universities throughout the United States enrolling approximately 950 Nigerian students this school year for two to four years of technical training under a program financed by the Government of Nigeria. The new arrivals bring the total number of Nigerian students studying in the United States under the one-year-old program coordinated by the Agency for International Development to nearly 2,000. The students are part of the largest program for technical training the United States has ever undertaken with an African nation. The project will provide Nigeria with experts to meet its critical technical work force shortage, and enable the United States to transfer American know-how to a key country in the Third World. Over the next five years, Nigeria plans to send up to 60,000 students to foreign countries for vocational and technical training to carry out its economic development plans. Under previous assistance programs, the United States paid for most of the training of 2,400 Nigerians. Nigeria's large oil earnings in recent years have enabled that country to pay for its current development programs.

LINCOLN-EAGLEVILLE PROGRAM. The Lincoln-Eagleville Masters Program has received a federal grant under the category of institutions creating and applying more meaningful criteria for the award of post-secondary credentials. The $139,388 grant will enable the two institutions to strengthen a Master's program in the human services open to agency workers. Thirty-two candidates will receive the M. H. S. degree at the May Commencement. Approximately 115 students are currently enrolled in the Masters Program.

KING HONORED. A special convocation was held on January 15 in the Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel to honor the birthday of civil rights leader Martin Luther King, Jr. Dr. Lawrence Reddick, former curator of the Schomburg Collection of the New York Public Library in Harlem and currently visiting professor of history at Harvard and Dillard Universities, was the speaker for the occasion. His subject was "Martin Luther King: Needed Now More Than Ever." Dr. Reddick is the author of Crusader Without Violence, the first biography of Dr. King, who was the recipient of an honorary degree from Lincoln in 1961. Dr. Reddick's appearance was sponsored by the Lectures and Recitals Committee.

. . . The Student Scene . . .

Members of the Pennsylvania Beta Chapter of Alpha Chi, the national college honor society, have elected the following officers: president, James D. Bishop, Washington D.C.; vice-president, Pamela V. Evans, Joppatowne, Md.; secretary, Jacqueline Griffin, Philadelphia, Pa.; and treasurer, Byron M. Ginton, Nassau, Bahamas. Karen D. Johnson, Washington, D.C., and Marlon S. Charles, Brooklyn, N.Y., were elected official student delegates.

On the basis of their scholarship, leadership, service, and promise of future usefulness to society, 12 seniors have been elected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. They are: James D. Bishop, Washington, D.C.; Marlon S. Charles, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Judith A. Dill, Chester, Pa.; Pamela V. Evans, Joppatowne, Md.; Pamela L. Finney, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Byron M. Ginton, Nassau, Bahamas; Maceo N. Hood, Philadelphia, Pa.; Traci A. Howard, Buffalo, N.Y.; Karen D. Johnson, Washington, D.C.; Barbara J. Kelly, New Haven, Conn.; Beverly D. Pittman, Philadelphia, Pa.; and Joan Wright, Philadelphia, Pa.

Patricia D. Minus, a junior English major from Philadelphia, placed first in the American Heritage Essay Contest, which invited students to write an essay on the life and accomplishments of either W. E. B. DuBois or Booker T. Washington. Her essay was entitled "W. E. B. DuBois: The Unsung Hero."

Second place went to Tamara R. Brownlee, a sophomore political science major from Philadelphia, whose topic was "W. E. B. DuBois: Peace Will Be My Applause." In the Washington category no student scored enough points for a first-place award. A second-place award went to Yvonne G. Farrell, a senior English major from Philadelphia, whose essay was entitled "The Life and Contributions of Booker T. Washington." Faculty judges scored the essays on the basis of thesis selection, development of the thesis, organization, style, appropriateness and accuracy of research data. To encourage the winners, Lincoln awarded $25 to the first-place winner and $15 to the second-place winners. The winning paper on DuBois has been submitted to the national competition. If Miss Minus wins, she will receive $1000.

The following students have been selected to participate in the 1979 six-month job experience with NICOGEN in Lagos, Nigeria: Michael H. ## To Lincoln once again

i visited you walked among the trees behind the dorms and encountered many memories on the familiar walkways
i rediscovered the serenity of your breathless purple orange sunrises across the distant fields and the days you wrapped your love around me within your stone arched portals
the nights, yes, the nights of dancing until my whole being ached from the joy of the music
but also quiet nights of contemplation and lonely soul searching midnight walks to find the me that was to become the friends now changed and many forgotten
i wonder if they love you as i do and one more time
the red sun sets behind the dorms setting the barren winter trees afire
it is almost as it was so few long years ago and although we both have changed
Lincoln, i love you.

If there is enough interest indicated by Lincoln alumni, the Franklin Mint will strike off a sterling silver commemorative plate similar to the one done for Howard University. The plate, which will feature the Arch, would be a fitting reminder of Lincoln's 125th anniversary in 1979. The cost of the plate is $195 (plus your state's sales tax), and at least 250 orders must be placed before the Mint will undertake the project. If you are interested in reserving a plate, please notify the executive secretary on or before March 15 (absolute deadline date).

The Twenty-First Century Foundation has announced the creation of the CLARENCE L. HOLTE Prize to be awarded internationally every two years in recognition of significant and lasting contribution to the cultural heritage of Africans and of the African diaspora made through published writings of excellence in literature and the humanities. The first award of $5,000 was made on Feb. 16 at Columbia University to Dr. Chancellor Williams, retired professor of history at Howard University, for his volume The Destruction of Black Civilization. The prize is named for Holte, the foremost contemporary collector of books about the African heritage and the African diaspora. The prize, which will perpetuate his interest in and study of his heritage and his great achievement as a bibliophile, will be the biennial income from a fund of $50,000 in perpetuity. The Twenty-First Century Foundation was organized in 1971 as an independent grant-making foundation, directing its activities towards the social and economic well-being of the Black Community in America.

CAMPUS BRIEFS

Dr. Herman R. Branson has been elected to serve a five-year term as a member of the Corporation of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the institution's governing body of trustees. Dr. Branson was featured in the education supplement to the Aug. 28 edition of The Philadelphia Tribune.

*****

Lincoln University has completed 21 half-hour segments of KYW-TV 3's 65-part "Education Series." Included in the series are many of the special programs at Lincoln. The exact date of airing has not been decided, but it is expected to be February 1980.

*****

The National Science Foundation has awarded a three-year grant of $198,798 to Lincoln. Twenty-five other institutions also received awards under the Minority Institutions Science Improvement Program (MISIP). Lincoln's program will be under the direction of Dr. DeForest P. Rudd, professor of chemistry. Funds will be used to improve the quality of science education for students and will include the Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, and Biology Departments.

*****

Lincoln University held its seventh annual Biomedical Research Symposium in July. Sponsored by the Lincoln Biomedical Research Program, the symposium included research papers on vision research and blood vessels by Lincoln students Lori Reddy, Darryl Farmer, Darrell Jackson, and Steven Ferguson, and two Harvard University students. Dr. William G. Bush, professor of biology, gave a special demonstration of the electron microscope. Dr. W.T.M. Johnson, professor of chemistry, is in charge of the Lincoln Biomedical Research Program.

*****

Under the Phelps-Stokes Fund's West African Ethnic Heritage Seminar, Ms. Paulette J. Jones, instructor in Spanish, and John Young, assistant professor of music and pianist-in-residence, spent ten weeks on a study tour of West Africa during the summer. Ms. Jones gathered data on methods used for teaching English as a foreign language and examined the extent of multi-lingualism among citizens in each of the countries visited. Mr. Young studied West African classical music, with emphasis on the piano, and collected data on African composers.

*****

Lincoln University's Upward Bound program has been awarded a $123,000 federal grant. A nationwide education program, Upward Bound helps youth with academic potential but from low-income families pursue their educational goals through tutoring, career counseling, cultural trips, and academic support. Mr. Herschel Bailey is the director of the program.

(Now, 10:00 A.M., Monday, October 1, 1979, Court resumes.)

THE COURT: Good morning. After considerable reflection and study, I have decided to grant defendants' motion under Rule 41(b).

The basic allegation underpinning the several causes of action asserted here is that the defendant University acting through its Board of Trustees and its President have been engaged in a scheme to prevent or suppress faculty criticism of University policy and thus have violated the Constitution and laws

African Leader To Visit Campus

The Honorable Dr. Siaka Stevens, president of Sierra Leone, West Africa, who will be visiting the United States Oct. 27 through Nov. 2, will set foot on Lincoln's campus Oct. 29 for a special University Convocation, at which he will receive an honorary Doctor of Laws degree.

Dr. Stevens will tour Lancaster County and address the Pennsylvania legislature during his stay. On Nov. 1 he will conduct a seminar, "The Role of Black Businessmen in Africa," for a group of black businessmen at Lincoln.

of the United States, the Constitution of Pennsylvania, the individual employment contracts of faculty members and the collective bargaining agreement between the University and the American Association of University Professors.

I have considered all of the testimony and reviewed more than 200 exhibits and I am convinced that plaintiffs have shown no right to relief.

As the evidence unfolded, it became increasingly apparent that the shoe was on the wrong foot and that the real victims in this controversy (apart from the students) were the defendants.

There existed on this campus what can best be described as academic anarchy, created and fostered by a cadre of faculty dissidents who embarked on a campaign of intimidation, obstruction, harassment and personal vilification in order to accomplish their stated objective of ousting the President and some or all members of the Board of Trustees. The tactics employed by the plaintiffs, which were so uncharacteristic of the reasoned objectivity and detachment usually associated with the teaching profession, particularly at the university level, unquestionably had a disrupting effect on the University's primary mission—education and the advancement of the Arts and Sciences.

After weighing the evidence, I find that there was no attempt by the President of the University, the Board of Trustees or anyone associated with the University Administration, to suppress, stifle, chill or in any way inhibit the constitutionally protected activities of the faculty members. The protestations of the plaintiffs to the contrary notwithstanding, during this whole series of events they continued to express their views concerning the administration's decision and policies frequently and emphatically, and no doubt, they will continue to do so.

Even the specific instances complained of here were followed by speeches, meetings, letters to the editor, faculty resolutions, picketing or other modes of expression including physical confrontation and class interruption.

In short, plaintiffs' actions belie their words.

The best that can be said of the plaintiffs' case is that the President or the Board of Trustees took exception to the time, forum or manner in which individual faculty members chose to address the issues of concern to them, and they said so. That is the irony of this case: for here the plaintiffs seek to invoke the power of this Court to deny to the President of the University and its Board of Trustees the very right which the plaintiffs purport to protect.

I find as a fact that none of the action

President Speaks At Convocation

Dr. Herman R. Branson, Lincoln's president, was the speaker at the opening convocation of the 1979-80 school year in the Mary Dod Brown Chapel on Sept. 13. Pointing out that Lincoln was beginning its 125th year, Dr. Branson urged students to become acquainted with the glorious history of Lincoln University. Because of Jehudi Ashmun's interest in Africa, Ashmun Institute, which later became Lincoln University, was named for him, and the institution thought that its first mission should be the training of missionaries to go to Africa.

Ashmun Institute became Lincoln University in 1866, shortly after the death of Abraham Lincoln, and it has sought to be responsive to the needs of Black students ever since. Dr. Branson stated that in 1979 there was a heightened sense of responsibility to all students enrolled in the institution. Calling for a dedication to excellence, Dr. Branson cited the achievements of Francis C. Sumner, a 1915 graduate of Lincoln, who taught psychology at Howard University. By 1975 he had trained one in every five psychologists in the United States. He displayed a plaque that he was going to present to Dr. David Morris, a 1918 graduate of Lincoln, the next day in recognition of his achievements, which have brought distinction to his alma mater.

Dr. Branson urged students to become sensitive about this world of ours in an age of diminishing expectations. "Although we are only six percent of the world's population, we use 30 to 40 percent of the world's energy.

"There are dramatic problems in your day that you can help solve. They are deep problems of social adjustment and social understanding. Be in the group of people who make decisions about

A group of 58 high school students from Pittsburgh participated in a College/Career Orientation at Lincoln for a week in June. Sponsored by the Program to Aid Citizen Enterprise (PACE) and coordinated by the Bethesda Center, Inc., the project was designed to encourage and motivate youth to pursue post-secondary education. The week of activities for the students included career and academic counseling sessions, college preparation and financial aid information, and various cultural and recreational activities.

The Lectures and Recitals Committee sponsored the appearance of Veronica Tyler, operatic soprano, on Sept. 18 at 8 p.m. in the Mary Dod Brown Chapel. Her recital marked the opening of the lectures and recitals series for the 1979-80 school year. A native of Baltimore, Miss Tyler has appeared at the New York City Opera and with the New York Philharmonic as well as other symphony orchestra.

Floyd Green, a junior from Richmond, Va., placed third in a national oratorical contest in Oakland, Calif., in August. He represented the state of Pennsylvania, having won first place in both the local and state contests, which like the national contest was sponsored by the Women's Christian Temperance Society. Green, who is president of the Student Government Association, received $150 in prize money.

America. Acquire the necessary skills to take your rightful place in the group. We have only two percent of all the doctors in America, and we ought to have ten percent. Approximately 2,000 Black males are getting Ph. D.'s; there should be 6,000."

Pointing out the desperate need of qualified people in Africa, Dr. Branson told his audience that there were many opportunities awaiting them and that they must be prepared to accept them. "An institution like Lincoln University must send out young people to do the jobs that society demands. Do something in society to insure the continued existence of Lincoln University. Perhaps in the year 2029 someone will be making plans to present a plaque to you for distinguished achievements."

French Student Is Language Assistant

Ms. Sylvie Camia of Meudon, France, is serving as a French language assistant at Lincoln University during the 1979-80 school year. She coordinates conversational and cultural activities in Language House, tutors students in French, and acts as a general cultural resource for the University. Native assistants are provided through the Institute of International Education in New York.

PROVOST CHALLENGES NEW STUDENTS

Dr. Bernard Woodson, executive vice president and provost, addressed members of the freshman class and new students at the banquet on Aug. 21. Dr. Woodson told his audience that he wished to speak candidly and straightforwardly in the hope of getting them started in the right direction for a successful three to four years at Lincoln.

"I believe that you have made a very good choice of an educational institution. We have some very outstanding people employed on our faculty and staff. They will do everything in their power to make your stay here very successful and happy," he told the students, adding that their success was entirely up to them.

Looking back over his own college days, Dr. Woodson told his audience that they are very fortunate people. "As many of you are from very poor families, so was I; however the difference today is financial aid that was not available during my day. Financial aid during my college years meant WORK." He urged the students to come face to face realistically with responsibility and get some experiences in the real world as they move towards the goals they have established for themselves.

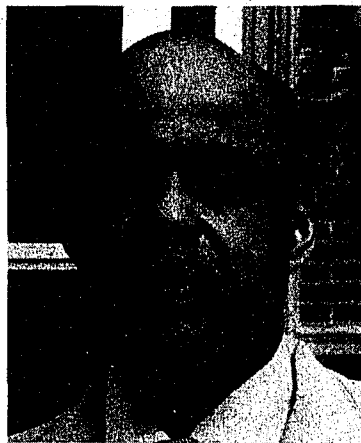

"Good, clean physical work is good for one as he or she is developing. It will also make you realize that good, clean physical work is not what you wish to do the rest of your life. You will work even harder to attain those goals you have set."

He advised his listeners to set goals if they have not done so already. Pointing out that they were embarking on a new life at Lincoln, he stressed the fact that the jump from high school into college was really a big step.

"College is not the same as high school, and if any of you find it no different, please come and tell me, for otherwise you will be getting short changed. Some faculty person will not be doing his or her job, and we should like to know about it for correction."

Dr. Woodson stated succinctly an educational philosophy that he had developed after hearing some profound statements made by Dr. Benjamin Mays, president emeritus of Morehouse College, at a college Commencement some years ago. "Education should be sought for the enrichment of life, for sheer enjoyment of knowing how to distinguish between truth and the erroneous, good and evil, and that which is first-rate and that which is second-rate . . . Well, all education is relevant if it improves the mind, for the trained mind is better prepared to cope with the world's problems. Please remember that leadership comes from strength not weakness, respect comes from knowledge and not ignorance, and nations are advanced on economic power, not poverty. Education can provide the ingredients for all of these."

Dr. Woodson pointed out that education is not designed to lift one above his or her fellowman, but to equip one to help his or her fellowman—to help elevate the masses, the less fortunate. "It is mandatory that we use education for the common good because trained minds are rare. Remember that we are blessed in the U.S.A. to have the opportunity to receive an education, and may I add with financial assistance, when only a very small percentage of the total population of the world is so privileged."

He added that education should create in an individual a wholesome state of dissatisfaction, a divine discontent with the ordinary, mediocre performance. He questioned why anyone would be satisfied by just being better if the best can be achieved, for education is designed to make one restless and dissatisfied with things as they are—with war, with poverty, with disease and with illiteracy.

"Education is an indispensable weapon if the mind is developed if the welfare of people is advanced, and if the nation is to survive. Remember, if and when there is peace among nations, trained minds will establish it. If poverty is to be abolished, trained minds will have to do it. When freedom and independence come to aspiring people, there must be trained minds to accomplish this. What I am trying to say in very

Community Offered Education Program

In the spring the Continuing Education Committee at Lincoln University surveyed the Chester County area to determine community interest in a Continuing Education Program. Over 250 replies were received, and the University set to work immediately to make its educational resources available to the community. Although a few evening courses are offered this fall, the University hopes to expand its Continuing Education Program to include more evening courses and a full range of non-credit courses as well. All of the courses offered at the University this fall carry college credit.

Lincoln is in the process of developing two-year associate degree programs in business management, accounting, computer technology, recreational therapy, practical nursing, library technology, and commercial art.

Students Learn-Earn In Summer Program

Under the direction of Louis A. Huff, assistant professor of economics, Lincoln instituted a new program called LEAP (Learn-Earn Advancement Program) from June 17 to Aug. 3. Over 90 entering freshmen were in the seven-week program, which included two college-level courses, career counseling, academic reinforcement and remediation at Lincoln's Resource Center, and supervised on-the-job experience.

LEAP participants were required to sign a contract agreeing to undertake specific tasks which involved both participation and performance. Deductions were made from earnings if students were late or absent or failed to participate in LEAP activities.

simple language is that you must train your minds to deal with the problems of this world, for these are your problems as well. This is your challenge and remember it is entirely up to you."

OBITUARY

G. Wesley Raney Jr., principal and teacher in Newport News Public Schools for 37 years, died April 20 in Riverside Hospital. He was 71.

A native of Warwick County (now part of Newport News), Mr. Raney spent all but one of his 38 years in education in Newport News public schools. The exception was his first year of teaching, in Accomac County, just after his graduation from Lincoln University in 1933.

In addition to his teaching and administrative experience, Mr. Raney was the first director of the Title I Federal Project for the Newport News schools.

Mr. Raney attended Newport News schools, graduating from Huntington High School, where he was known for both academic and athletic ability.

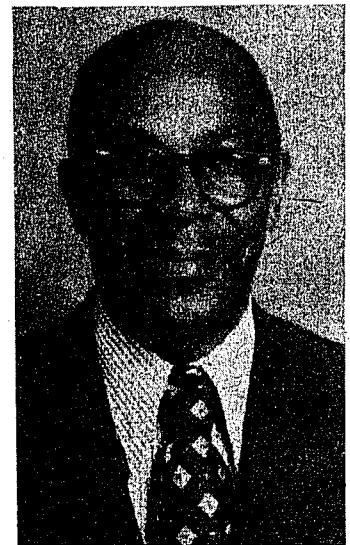

After graduating from Lincoln University and teaching in Accomac, he returned to Huntington High in 1949 and taught social studies. He eventually became an assistant principal there.

In February 1961 he became principal at Walter Reed Elementary School. He left there in 1966 to 18 months to administer the Title I program.

He then served as principal of the newly opened Newsome Park Elementary School until 1971, when he was named principal at Epes Elementary.

Mr. Raney also received a master's degree from Ohio State University.

Mr. Raney served on a number of local boards of directors, including Newport News Employees Retirement Fund, Riverside Hospital Mental Health, Hampton Roads Boys Club, Community Savings and Loan Association, Retired Senior Volunteer Program and the former Crown Savings Bank. He was also a past president of the Newport News Teachers' Association and trustee chairman emeritus of Wesley Grove United Church of Christ, which was named for his father.

He was past exalted ruler and state director of education of I.B.P.O.E. of W. Grand Lodge and a member and past president of Lambda Chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Celestine Spellman Raney; a daughter, Mrs. Ann C. Rivers of Rockville, Md., a son, the Rev. G. Wesley Raney III of Newport News; a sister, Mrs. Roselle Coleman of Newport News, a brother, Theodore Raney of Hampton, and six grandchildren.

Rev. G. Wesley Raney III, who was also graduated from Lincoln University and Andover Theological Seminary, Massachusetts, preached his father's funeral.

SOCCKER

When Athletic Director Melvin L. Jones announced the appointment of Colin Thompson, '73, as coach of the soccer team, no one was happier than a group of young men who wanted to play soccer. To them the situation was a disaster; no coach, no league to play in, inexperienced players, and only scrimmage games to look forward to. Coach Thompson looked at the problems and went to work immediately. First, he secured a place in the Delaware Valley Soccer Conference, and is already at work on gaining membership in an intercollegiate League next fall.

His actions have certainly brightened the team's spirit. Led by seniors Vusumuzi Kunene from South Africa and Kwasi Gyekye of Nigeria, the team, largely sophomores and freshmen, will, in the opinion of Coach Thompson, be competitive.

His starting line-up will probably be as follows:

Goal tender ..... Jobe Nyathi
Right back ..... Vusumuzi Kunene
Right half ..... Princeton Stephenson
Center half ..... Stephen Nyoka
Right wing ..... Ahousi Imoukhuede
Inside right ..... Kuasi Gyekye
Center forward ..... Promise Moyo
Coach Thompson feels that his team will gain invaluable experience from playing in the Delaware Valley Soccer Conference as they prepare to play an intercollegiate schedule next year.

New Soccer Coach

Colin L. Thompson, '73, has been appointed soccer coach for the 1979-80 season. He brings to Lincoln a rich and varied background in America's fastest growing sport. During his undergraduate days Thompson brought honor and distinction to Lincoln by being named All-American Soccer Player three of his four years of collegiate play.

Coach Thompson has already begun to revamp the soccer program and feels confident that his team will make a good showing. Coach Melvin Jones, Lincoln's athletic director, is beaming with pride over his latest acquisition, who he feels will add a special fillip to Lincoln's athletic program.

TRACK

Lincoln University's track team participated in the sixth annual NCAA Division III Track and Field Championships at Baldwin-Wallace College in Berea, Ohio, May 23-26. About 140 colleges and universities participated in the championships, and Lincoln came in 19th.

This year was the first time that Lincoln participated in the NCAA championships under the leadership of Coach Cyrus D. Jones, and with hard work and determination ten members of Lincoln's 1979 track squad not only qualified under the Division III requirements but three surpassed them. Lincoln entered the following events: 400 meter, 200 meter, 110 meter hurdles, triple jump, 440 relay and 1600 meter relay.

Three members of Lincoln's track team became members of the All-American College Track and Field Team: Ronald Hunt, a junior, captured second place in the triple jump; Walter Bailey, a sophomore, took fifth place in the triple jump; and Alphonso Parker, a graduating senior, came in fifth in the open 400 meter. Parker now ranks as the top quarter miler to leave Lincoln in many years.

BASKETBALL

The Lincoln University Lions men's basketball squad is about two months away from another exciting season.

This season is destined to be even more exciting than past years because of the nucleus of hard working, determined, veteran players returning from last year's squad. The nucleus is comprised of Milton Jones, Donnie Starling, and Brian King.

Milton Jones, a 6'2" shooting forward from Chicago, averaging 12.3 points per game and six rebounds, should indeed improve his overall performances from last year because of other players acquired in the off-season.

Donnie Starling, a 6'4" rebounding and shooting forward last year, is expected to be moved to a shooting forward and on-off the ball guards-position. This move hopefully will improve the offensive status for the Lions this year.

Brian (Super Sub) King is a 6'3" power forward and mini center, who did just about everything that was asked of him last season on the basketball court. If some of the new acquisitions make the squad, then King will no longer have a dual role.

Hopefuls for this year's squad include new recruits, Andre Kelton, Moses J. Thompson, Mark Best and Reggie Lewis. Returning players are Earl Gray and Glenn Reese. Junior varsity players seeking varsity positions are Menelik Eaddy, Teddy Jefferson, Albert Benjamin, Boyzie Andrews and James Dorsey.

With enrollment at its maximum at Lincoln expectations are of a full house for each home game. See you there!

EDWARD W. STRATTON, JR.*HE, TOO, HAD A DREAM

As in many instances, a dream or a vision often vanishes, evanescently, as a cloud. The real lasting substance of a dream or vision is the tangible manifestation and implementation of what seemed to the dreamer alone, into a literal reality which will have a utilitarian benefit for mankind—past, present and future.

Dr. Edward Wilton Stratton Jr. of Los Angeles had a dream and a vision of an A-1 medical center established and dedicated to the memory of a man of Lincoln, as well as to those sons of Lincoln who had labored and continue to labor in the medical sciences and disciplines, and who are making their contributions in these areas of human endeavour.

So with wisdom intellect and expertise, underlined with a "never say die" spirit, Dr. Stratton, Lincoln University Class of 1928, conceived the idea and spearheaded a movement, in collaboration with Dr. Leroy Weekes, to establish a medical center in 1956 in Los Angeles, dedicated to the memory of Dr. Julian W. Ross, who graduated from Lincoln, Class of 1912. Dr. Ross was a medical school professor at Howard University Medical School and an internationally known obstetrician and gynecologist. The medical complex is known as the "J. W. Ross Medical Center." It is the only one of its type in the United States.

The Ross Plaza Office Building, located at 1818 South Western Avenue, Los Angeles, is a new project of the J. W. Ross Medical Center, Inc. This building is a new five-story, modern, luxury appointed office building for business and professionals located in the heart of Los Angeles.

Property for the site of the original J. W. Ross Medical Center was purchased for $40,000. The building itself was constructed at a cost of $90,000. The current assessed valuation of the Ross Medical Center is between 4½ and 5 million dollars. The center has complete apparatus and laboratories for the treatment of all medical specialties. They named the new building Ross Plaza. They also built the Ross Manor, a 24-unit apartment building, to improve the living conditions of the Black community.

Now what type of individual is this Dr. Stratton who not only dreams, but endeavours to put his dreams into reality? His curriculum vitae is impressive indeed. He was born in Marion, S.C. His father was a Methodist minister. His early childhood was spent in New York City, where he was graduated from the public school. He later attended Lincoln High School in Jersey City and excelled in track, baseball, and football. He was awarded letters in each of these sports. He was selected as an All-County football player. He established a New Jersey track record for the 100-yard dash.

Dr. Stratton continued his scholastic career by transferring to Cushing Academy, Ashburnham, Mass., graduating in 1924. In the fall of the same year, he entered Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, and was graduated with the B.A. degree in 1928. He entered Howard University School of Medicine during the fall of 1928 and received his M.D. degree in 1932. His internship was spent at Freedman's Hospital, Washington, D.C. In 1942 Dr. Stratton entered the Army as a First Lieutenant and served as Company Commander, 318th Medical Battalion, 93rd Infantry Division. Afterwards he was promoted to the rank of Major, and served as Battalion Executive Officer under the command of Col. Robert Bennett, also a Lincoln graduate. Among his army decorations are the Bronze Star Medal for valor and three major battle stars for service in the South Pacific.

When Dr. Stratton returned from the South Pacific, he settled in Los Angeles. He was the first Black to enter the University of Southern California as a post graduate student in 1946.

As quiet as it has been kept, Dr. Stratton, without any fanfare, was instrumental, through his astute efforts and administrative insistence, in having the Medical School at U.S.C. change its discriminatory admittance policy towards Blacks, thus paving the way for qualified Blacks to pursue undergraduate and graduate courses and attend seminars beyond the M.D. degree programs.

Dr. Stratton has been awarded certificates and diplomas for attendance at the University of Hawaii Medical School and U.C.L.A. Medical School, specializing in internal medicine, and also for His activities involve active membership in the NAACP, the Urban League, Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity Inc., and Little League sports. He is a charter member of IMPOTEC, a support group of the Charles Drew Medical School. Dr. Stratton was one of the founders of the Charles Drew Medical Society, established in honor of the late Dr. Charles Drew, a distinguished Black doctor who discovered the use of blood plasma.

Dr. Stratton holds memberships in the Los Angeles County Medical Association, the Charles Drew Medical Society, the California Medical Association and the American Medical Association. He has served on the staff of the Cedar Sinai and the Temple Hospitals.

Dr. Stratton, who is the father of five children and has one grandchild, is married to the former Yolanda Mena, a registered nurse from Managua, Nicaragua.

taken by the President or the Board of Trustees was designed, intended or had the effect of suppressing the plaintiffs' rights. Whether viewed separately or as a whole, the conduct complained of does not persuade me that the University or its President engaged in a scheme to stifle dissent or criticism. As I view the evidence, and I so find there was a reasonable basis for every action taken and every policy adopted, totally unrelated to a desire to limit the constitutionally protected right of the plaintiffs individually, or as members of the faculty.

Accordingly, judgment will be entered in favor of the defendants and against the plaintiffs.

These are general findings and conclusions only. More specific findings of fact and conclusions of law thereon as required by Federal rule of Civil Procedure 52(a) will be filed in due course.

This is my ruling on the Rule 41 motion, so there is no necessity to proceed with any evidence.

CAMPUS BRIEFS

Professor Alexander L. Gabbin, acting chairman of the Department of Economics and Business Administration, was honored on Oct. 4 at the eighth annual convention of the National Association of Minority Certified Public Accounting Firms in Denver. He received the Accounting Education Award in recognition of his substantial and continuing contributions toward preparing minority students for excellency in the certified public accounting profession. Gabbin was cited for his sensitivity to the needs and problems confronting minority accounting students and for his competence in devising mechanisms to enable students to succeed in the accounting profession.

The Faculty Committee on Writing in the Humanities sponsored a campus Workshop on Writing on Oct. 10. The theme of the Workshop was "College Writing: An Interdisciplinary Project." Resource persons were Evans Alloway of Educational Testing Service, who spoke on "Holistic Grading"; Dr. Elaine Maimon, director of Freshman English at Beaver College, who spoke on "Beaver's Approach to Writing"; and Professor Gerald Belcher, a member of Beaver's History Department, who spoke on "Teaching Writing in the History Department."

Dr. Herman R. Branson was the lecturer for M.I.T.'s eighth annual Sea Grant Lecture and Symposium on Oct. 16. His subject was "Understanding the Oceans: Motivating Today's Youth to Work for Tomorrow." The annual Sea Grant Lecture and Seminar is intended to provide a forum for discussion of perspectives and opportunities for current and future uses of the seas. It also explores and heightens awareness of the roles of engineering, science, and the social sciences in developing marine resources, thus reflecting the Institute's commitment to environmentally balanced development of the oceans and coasts. On Nov. 9 Dr. Branson attended the Phelps-Stokes Retreat at Mt. Kisco, N.Y. to review the history and past accomplishments of the Fund and to examine its current efforts in terms of its charter commitments.

The Career Services Center sponsored its fourth annual Graduate School Day on Oct. 24. Representatives from 45 graduate and professional schools from across the nation gave information on financial assistance, application preparation, and program requirements. Dr. P. J. Mullett is director of the Center.

Dr. Judith A. Thomas, professor of education, was recently elected to the Board of the National Council for Black Child Development. On Nov. 9 she addressed the State Department of Education's conference in Pittsburgh on "The Implications of the Ann Arbor, Michi-

LINCOLN HONORS THREE

Siaka Stevens

K. Leroy Irvis

Luis E. R. Yordan

A special convocation was held on Oct. 29 to confer the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws on Siaka Stevens, president of Sierra Leone; K. Leroy Irvis, minority leader of the House of Representative; and Luis E. Ramos Yordan, '41, speaker of the House of Representative in Puerto Rico.

President Stevens, who joined the police force of Sierra Leone as a constable in 1923, rose to the rank of sergeant first class and instructor by 1930. He then joined the national railways as a mine constructor and soon became station master. Later he worked with the Sierra Leone Development Company. In 1930 he founded the Marampa Mineworkers Union, and in 1943 he was elected general secretary of the United Mine Workers Union.

In 1945 President Stevens became a member of the Protectorate Assembly. From 1951 until 1957 he was a member of the Legislative Council, serving as minister of Lands, Mines and Labour in 1951. From 1958 to 1960 he was deputy leader of the People's National Party, and from 1964 to 1965 he was mayor of Freetown. In 1967 he became prime minister and chancellor of the University of Sierra Leone. He has been president of Sierra Leone since 1971. In 1973 he was inducted as grand commander of the Order of the Republic.

The Honorable K. Leroy Irvis, who was born in Saugerties, N.Y., is a summa cum laude graduate of New York State Teachers College. He received a Master's degree from New York University and his J.D. degree from the University of Pittsburgh Law School. Along the way he was elected to many honorary societies, including Phi Beta Kappa.

His professional activities include many distinctive political and government positions. He was a civilian attache in the Aviation Training Division of the War Department. From 1957 to 1963 he was an assistant district attorney. He has been a Pennsylvania state representative since 1958. During his tenure in the House he has functioned as minority caucus chairperson 1963-1964; majority caucus chairperson, 1965-1966; minority whip, 1967-1968 and 1973-1974; majority leader, 1969-1972 and 1975-1977; speaker of the House, 1977-1978; and minority leader, 1979.

In addition to his professional activities, Mr. Irvis has served on the boards of many philanthropic and service organizations. As a legislator, he has been consistent in his interest in and support of higher education.

A physician and an international expert in industrial medicine, Dr. Yordan has been the director of various hospitals in Puerto Rico. He has also been a professor of public health and pharmacology at the University of Puerto Rico as well as other institutions. He served in the U.S. Army, achieving the rank of major. He was assigned as chief of preventive medicine, Eighth Army, Pacific Area.

Among Dr. Yordan's many professional activities is the presidency of the Preventive Medicine Association of Korea in 1956. He was vice president of the International Congress on Accident Prevention in Brussels, Belgium, in 1958. From 1959 to 1961 he served as a consultant in industrial medicine and safety to the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Health of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. A member of the Permanent Commission on Occupational Medicine of the International Occupational Medical Association, Dr. Yordan was inducted into the Puerto Rican Hall of Fame in 1968.

After the conferring of the degrees Dr. Stevens spoke briefly. Addressing himself to the issue of security and survival, Dr. Stevens stated: "It is of such magnitude and importance, especially in the developing world, that I should like . . . to challenge the conscience of the economically secured segments of the world community to address themselves to this issue with a greater degree of urgency."

Fellowships . . .

The National Research Council plans to award approximately 25 Postdoctoral Fellowships for Minorities in a new program designed to provide opportunities for continued education and experience in research to Black Americans, Mexican Americans/Chicanos, Puerto Ricans, and Native Americans. Fellowship recipients will be selected from among scientists, engineers, and humanities scholars who show greatest promise of future achievement in academic research and scholarship in higher education.

In this national competition supported by the Ford Foundation, citizens of the United States who are members of one of the designated minority groups, who are engaged in college or university teaching, and who hold doctoral degrees may apply for a fellowship award of one year's duration. New doctorate recipients who intend to pursue careers as college or university faculty members will also be considered.

Awards will be made in the areas of behavioral and social sciences, humanities, engineering sciences, mathematics, physical sciences, life sciences, and for interdisciplinary programs of study. Awards will not be made in professions such as medicine, law, or social work, or in such areas as educational administration, curriculum supervision, or personnel and guidance. Tenure of a fellowship provides postdoctoral research experience at an appropriate nonprofit institution of the fellow's choice, such as a research university, government laboratory, privately-sponsored nonprofit institute, or a center for advanced study such as the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences, Palo Alto, California; the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, New Jersey; the Institute for Research on Poverty of the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wisconsin; the Newberry Library, Chicago, Illinois; and the Woodrow Wilson Center for Scholars, Washington, D.C.

The deadline date for the submission of applications is Feb. 1, 1980. Further information and application materials may be obtained from the Fellowship Office, National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Ave., Washington, D.C. 20418.

gan, Case on 'Black Dialect' for Educators in both the Public Schools and Post-Secondary Institutions."

Lincoln University's Act 101 Program was host to the Eastern Region's Workshop for Tutorial Coordinators and Tutors on Nov. 15. The staff of the Learning Resource Center discussed such topics as "The Typical 'Atypical' Reader," "The Changing Role of Tutoring in Mathematics as the Curriculum Has Changed," "Reading in the Content Areas," and "The Learning Resource Center." Professor Robert Gardner is director of the Act 101 Program at Lincoln, where it is known as the TIME Program (Talent Improvement and Motivation Experience).

Dr. Rethinasamy Kittappa, associate professor of mathematics, has resolved a conjecture in algebra which since 1881 had not been proved or disproved. The conjecture is on permanents which find applications in combinatorics at the University of Delaware on Nov. 14.

Dr. Bernard R. Woodson, executive vice president and provost, and Donald L. Mullett, vice president for fiscal affairs, attended the conference of the American Association of University Administrators and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, which was held at the University of Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind., on Nov. 15 and 16. Entitled "Communications and Education: Building Performance and Productivity," the conference examined the expanding field of communications as a general theoretical system as well as a technology in order to understand more clearly applications for higher education, both academic and administrative.

The Career Services Center and the National Alliance of Businessmen combined their efforts to present a Youth Motivation Task Force Program Dec. 2-4 on Lincoln's campus. Lincoln alumni and other minority achievers shared experiences and expertise with Lincoln students in various classes. On Dec. 3 a Job Fair was held in the Student Union, and interested students were required to bring their resumes.

Mrs. Jean A. White, assistant professor of physical education, has completed all of the requirements for her Ed. D degree in health, physical education, recreation, and dance at Temple University. She will receive her degree in January, 1980. Mr. James Broomall, assistant professor of physical science, has completed all of the requirements for his Ph. D. degree in molecular physics at the University of Delaware. He will formally receive his degree in May, 1980.

Lincoln University has received a $6,000 grant for the establishment of a Peace Corps Undergraduate Assistantship on the campus. The Peace Corps assistant will plan and carry out recruitment activities to make Peace Corps information available to students and faculty interested in international experience.

The Lincoln University Chapter of the American Association of University Professors sponsored a panel discussion on "Black English" on Dec. 5 at 7:30 p.m. in Ware Center. The panelists were three members of the Department of English: Dr. H. Alfred Fareell, Dr. Brenda F. Savage, and Mrs. Mary V. Farrell. The discussion was open to the entire campus community. Dr. Andrew Murray, professor of religion, is president of the chapter.

Two members of the faculty, John Young, assistant professor of music, and Paulette Jones, instructor in Spanish, spent ten weeks during the summer on a study tour of western Africa. The two visited the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta and Sierra Leone under the Phelps Stokes Fund's West African Ethnic Heritage Seminar. While in Africa, Mr. Young studied west African classical music, with emphasis on the piano, and collected data on African composers. Miss Jones gathered data on methods used for teaching English as a foreign language and examined the extent of multi-lingualism among citizens in each of the countries.

Prof. Suthern Gives Anniversary Recital

Professor Orrin Clayton Suthern II, a member of the Lincoln faculty for more than a quarter of a century, presented his 50th anniversary recital on Oct. 21 in the Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel. Prior to coming to Lincoln in 1950, Professor Suthern had taught at Tuskegee Institute, Florida A. and M. College, Bennett College, and Dillard University.

He has a number of firsts to his credit. He was the first Black organist to perform with critical acclaim at Orchestra Hall in Chicago and the University of Chicago; the first Black organist to perform on national CBS radio; the first Black instrumentalist to perform with a major Southern symphony; and the first syndicated columnist ("Music As I See It") for the Associated Negro Press.

Professor Suthern received a bronze plaque from New Directions for service to Black music and was the recipient of an Esso Foundation Award of $10,000 for the study of Black music. At Lincoln he received a Lindback Award for distinguished teaching. He holds a Master's degree in organ and conducting from Columbia University and has studied advanced organ at Columbia, Princeton, and the Juillard School of Music.

LOCATOR SERVICE HELPS MINORITIES

How can minority college students planning for graduate school find the right opportunities for advanced study? One way is with the Minority Graduate Student Locator Service, developed by Educational Testing Service (ETS) and offered by the Graduate Record Examinations Board. Through this free service, college juniors, seniors and graduates who are members of racial and ethnic minorities in the United States can make their intentions known to graduate schools seeking such applicants.

Last year, for example, more than 20,000 students made use of the Locator Service, and student information was provided to more than 150 graduate schools around the country. And it's easy for students to participate: Students sign up by completing the registration form contained in the GRE/MGSL Information Bulletin. It is the same form used to register for the Graduate Record Examinations, comprehensive aptitude and advanced tests used in the admissions process by many of the nation's graduate schools. But students do not have to take the GRE to use the Locator Service.

To take part, students describe themselves by answering questions that ask for ethnic background, undergraduate major, intended graduate major and other information about educational experience and objectives. This information is placed in the Locator Service file and made available to participating graduate schools upon request. GRE scores are not included in the Locator Service file.

Each graduate school establishes its own criteria to select students from the Locator Service file based on ethnic background, intended major field of study, degree objective and state of residence. The names of students who use the Locator Service and meet the criteria set by a particular school will automatically be sent to that school. Students who want to make information available to graduate schools three times during the school year must have their registration forms in by September. A student who misses that deadline but has the form in by November will be able to participate twice. Graduate schools will contact the students in whom they are interested to inform them of application procedures.

Because of the interest among graduate schools throughout the nation in attracting qualified minority students, a student's name often will be sent to several institutions. Because a graduate school may not wish to contact all students whose names it receives, students are not informed of the identity of those institutions to which their names have been forwarded. The Locator Service is not an application to graduate school or for financial assistance and does not constitute a guarantee of admission or financial aid. It is designed only to supplement a student's own efforts to locate and seek admission to a suitable graduate program and to find resources for financial assistance.

Information students supply for the Locator Service file is treated confidentially and is released only to participating graduate schools and scholarship programs. The Information Bulletin explains all students must know to participate in the service. Copies of the bulletin may be obtained at most colleges or by writing to MGSL, Box 2615, Princeton, N.J. 08541.

The GRE and the MGSL are administered by ETS under policies determined by the GRE Board, an independent board affiliated with the Association of Graduate Schools and the Council of Graduate Schools in the United States.

Horace Mann Bond, '23

The University of Massachusetts has announced its acquisition of the papers, correspondence, and unpublished manuscripts of Dr. Horace Mann Bond, Lincoln's first Black president. Robert W. McDonnell, an archivist affiliated with the University, said that the items, along with the papers of W.E.B. Du Bois, acquired several years ago, represented 400,000 to 500,000 pieces, perhaps one of the largest collections of papers by two major black scholars who challenged the prevailing social attitudes of their times by professing the beauty and dignity of Black people long before it was fashionable to do so. The University also announced the naming of the Horace Mann Bond Center for Equal Education, a national clearinghouse for information on racial and other social factors in educational quality. Dr. Bond, a 1923 graduate of Lincoln, was active in conducting research for the N.A.A.C.P. in its Brown v. Board of Education case of 1954.

Council post, Patterson was active in the investment field. He later became an economic development consultant, and in 1972 he took over the leadership of the South Bronx Overall Economic Development Corporation. Vice chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Bank Street College of Education, Patterson is also treasurer of the Patterson School, a director of the New York State Housing Finance Agency and the Business Marketing Corporation for New York City, and a member of the Executive Committees of the Association for a Better New York and the Small Business Administration's New York Advisory Council.

DENNIS McNEIL has been appointed to the position of affirmative action officer in the Department of the Auditor General in Harrisburg. After graduating from Lincoln, McNeil earned his Master's degree in social work at the University of Pittsburgh, where he was an active member of the Black Student Association Recruitment and Admissions Committee. He is currently affiliated with the Harrisburg Chapter of the International Personnel Management Association, Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, and the N.A.A.C.P.

DR. LINZY SCOTT JR. has invented a spiral knee brace which is preventive, therapeutic, and rehabilitative. The brace offers allowance of normal function of the knee (flexion, extension and "rotary locking home" mechanism) while simultaneously disallowing abnormal function of the knee (medial, lateral, hyperextension, translation and excessive rotation). The action is accomplished by a unique design utilizing the coil principle and its inherent resistance to deformation. A bivalve form cast should be forwarded for fabrication to the Southern Prosthetic Supply Co., 947 Juniper St. NE, Atlanta, Ga. 30309.

PROFILE

Patricia Bobo

Patricia Bobo, studying for her Master's degree in actuarial science at Temple University's School of Business Administration is the recipient of three scholarships worth $6,000: J. Henry Smith Scholarship, valued at $1,000; Connecticut General Insurance Corporation Scholarship of $2,000, and Insurance Company of North America Scholarship of $3,000. All the awards are for excellence in mathematics and the potential to become an actuary.

When she graduated from Darby Township High School in 1974, Miss Bobo received an award for outstanding scholarship and athletic ability. At Lincoln University she was elected to Alpha Chi Honor Society and Beta Kappa Chi National Scientific Society. On Honors Day, which preceded graduation by several weeks, she received the John M. Tutt Award for the highest average in mathematics. She was also the choice of alumni on the Lincoln faculty and staff to receive the Outstanding Senior Award in 1978. She was graduated summa cum laude.

After graduation Miss Bobo worked one year as an actuarial assistant with Equitable Insurance Company of New York and plans to continue in actuarial work when she receives her degree from Temple.

Your Alumni Ass'n

It is with great honor, as your president, to be the first to submit a statement of alumni concerns in the new format of the Bulletin. I would first like to take this opportunity to thank alumni and friends who have supported my administration, especially our Executive Secretary, Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, Officers and the Executive Board of the Alumni Association who have given of themselves and their time and financial support to see that alumni activities and involvement with the issues of the University Family improve. My hat's off to them!

I would hope that now is the time for all alumni to stand up and be counted. A few have carried the burden for so long; and I feel that now would be a good time for those delinquents to come forward physically, as well as financially. Lincoln University needs you; make no mistake about it! There is much to be done. Put your full support of Lincoln University in your New Year's Resolutions.

We welcome the appointment of Rev. Donald Hamilton to the University Staff as the Director of Alumni Relations and ask the full cooperation of all alumni in making his job successful. He seeks our support of his programs to improve alumni relations around the country. Please communicate with him as soon as possible, any problems you have in your areas, any ideas or suggestions for the good and welfare of the Alumni Association. Where ten or so alumni can get together, he will be happy to assist in your organization of an alumni chapter.

We appreciate the support of Chester County, Harrisburg, Philadelphia, New York and Washington who have carried Associations over the years, but what about the rest of the country: New Jersey, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, California and Texas, to name a few? Now is the time to stand up, be counted, and come forth and organize in the name of Lincoln University. We need every alumnus, young and old, to be a strong and meaningful organization.

You ask what have the alumni done? Simply, we have given our support to the Administration in all situations proposed for the good of Lincoln University. Too, we have strongly expressed dissatisfaction when it was necessary. We have made suggestions to the Administration and the Board of Trustees through our Alumni Trustee Representatives when it was needed. Through our Liaison Committees, chaired by Attorney Wilfred Mais and Dean Frank T. Wilson, we have kept close contact with most situations on Lincoln's campus, including student affairs and concerns. However, there is much more that can be done, and we need both you and your support to accomplish it. Join us!!! PLEASE!!! DEAR LINCOLN, DEAR LINCOLN, TO THEE WE'LL E'ER BE TRUE!

CANDIDATES FOR OFFICE GENERAL ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Orange Slate                      Blue Slate

President

WILLIAM H. RANSOM, '39, has retired after serving a number of years in the Coatesville, Pa., school system. Long active in alumni work, he is a former president of the Chester County Chapter of the General Alumni Association. For years he served as secretary of the Class of 1939, and is currently the regional director of the Chester County Chapter. He has also served on several committees of the General Alumni Association and always stands ready to give more than just lip service to his beloved alma mater.

JAMES A. DONALDSON, '61, the chairman of the Department of Mathematics at Howard University, had his Ph. D. from the University of Illinois before he was 25. He taught at several institutions before coming to Howard as professor of mathematics in 1971. The following year he became chairman. He is a member of a number of professional societies as well as of Sigma Xi and Pi Mu Epsilon honorary societies. He is currently the first vice president of the General Alumni Association.

1st Vice President

RICHARD A. HOLMES, '54, is professor of medicine, professor of radiology, and director of nuclear medicine of the University of Medicine, University of Missouri-Columbia Medical Center and chief of Nuclear Medicine Service, Harry S. Truman Memorial Veterans Hospital. A graduate of the Temple University School of Medicine, Dr. Holmes has had wide experience in the field of medicine. President of the Class of 1954, he has felt the influence of his classmate, Dr. Eddison Hairston, and wishes to become more involved in alumni affairs.

FRAN SIMMONS, '74, has been active in alumni affairs since her graduation from Lincoln in 1974. Her brainchild, OPERATION NETWORK, was instrumental in getting a number of recent graduates involved in activities of interest to the University and the Association. A native of Charleston, S.C., she is currently pursuing work on a Ph. D. degree at Princeton University. She has completed her residence work and has started on her dissertation. She has served as a member of the Board of Trustee.

2nd Vice President

WILLIAM M. BARBER, '74, is a member of a class that is seeking to set an example for other alumni to become involved in activities that will be of interest to Lincoln University and to the General Alumni Association. His extensive contacts with Lincoln alumni have been of invaluable service to the Office of Alumni Relations. A native of New York State, Barber migrated to the West Coast shortly after graduation but has maintained contact with his alma mater. He has been working to revive the Los Angeles Chapter of the General Alumni Association.

CARL O. WORD, '69, received his Ph. D. from Princeton University in 1972 and taught psychology at City University of New York before accepting a position of instructor in psychology at the University of California in San Francisco, where he has a private practice in psychology. A native of California, Dr. Word has spent his first term in office in getting West Coast alumni more involved in the affairs of the Association and the University.

Treasurer

EDWARD L. VAUGHN, '74, holds the M.B.A. degree from Vanderbilt University, which presented him the Faculty Award for Distinguished Achievement at graduation in 1978. Currently grants administrator at Norfolk State University, he is responsible for the administration of all sponsored research programs which the University receives. He is also president of the newly formed consulting firm of E. L. Vaughn & Associates, specialists in proposal/grant management. He is seeking to become more involved in alumni affairs and is working to establish a chapter of the General Alumni Association in the Tidewater Area.

ARCHIE PERRY, '64, was born in Coatesville, Pa., and received his early education in the Coatesville School System prior to attending Lincoln University, where he was a general science major. He taught science in Philadelphia for four years before returning to Coatesville to teach. He applied for and received a sabbatical in 1973 to pursue a Master's degree in guidance and counseling at Penn State. Perry, who has served as president of the Chester County Chapter of the General Alumni Association, is a counselor in the Special Services Program at Lincoln. He ran for the office of treasurer in 1977.

Historian

SHEILA S. HUDSON, '71, was born and reared in Brooklyn, N.Y., where she attended public schools prior to entering Lincoln. She made history in her freshman year when she became the first female president of a class at Lincoln. An English major, she was graduated with honors and went on to Harvard's Graduate School of Education, which granted her the M.A.T. degree in 1972, at which time she joined the faculty of Lincoln University. She is currently teaching in the West Chester, Pa., school system.

MARSHALL A. ALLEN, '45, is a teacher in the public school system of Philadelphia. A tireless worker for Lincoln, he is a former president of the Philadelphia Chapter of the General Alumni Association. From 1970 to 1973 he served the Association as chairman of the Nominating Committee, which position automatically made him master of ceremonies at the annual alumni banquet. He was thus a familiar figure to alumni attending the banquets during those years. He was elected historian in 1974.

The first six months in the Office of Alumni Relations have proved very busy and fruitful. I have spent much time learning about alumni work from my mentor, Dr. H. Alfred Farrell. We are working diligently to upgrade services to Lincolniters everywhere. The first noticeable change is the alumni Bulletin. The different format enables us to give more news about Lincoln University. Future issues, we hope, will include your letters of inquiry, comments, and criticisms and complaints. I encourage you to write me, and I'll try to get any requested information to you as soon as possible.

In each issue of the Bulletin we hope to feature a Lincoln alumnus or alumna. In addition, there will be features on faculty, financial reports, athletic events, chapter news, and important news from the Ladies Auxiliary. I shall try to keep you up to date on alumni matters, programs, services, projects, etc. You can help me do this job by sending your class secretary news about yourself or some Lincolnite in your area. To make it easy for you, your class secretary's address is listed in the Bulletin.

I plan to visit each area where there is an organized chapter. Some chapters are inactive now, but you may be called upon to help revive them. Organized chapters represent strong alumni; strong alumni mean a strong Lincoln University. Jim Baker has asked about establishing a chapter in the Birmingham, Ala., area, and all alumni in the area will be contacted soon to determine interest and organizational strategy.

Lastly, I want to remind each of you to let us know when you change your address. If you don't, you may become a "lost alumnus/na." Only you can keep us abreast of address changes. If you have moved recently and have not sent Lincoln your address, or if new alumni have moved into your geographic region, drop me a line. It only takes a few minutes to send a postcard with this vital information. We'll soon be working on a new Alumni Directory, and prompt notification of a change of address will help make this publication more available to all.

I hope to see many of you soon. May 1980 bring you health and peace
—Donald E. Hamilton

Class of 1955 Plans Reunion

The Class of 1955 is busy planning its 25th reunion in 1980. Members of the class recently met at the residence of Bob Davis in Philadelphia. Fund raising plans included a disco, a 50/50 raffle, and the annual Luau/Goombay Festival.

Joe and Joan Kenney were sent as official class representatives to the New York Chapter's affair honoring Dr. Wayman Coston. Others in attendance at the meeting of the class were John Cary, Al Jones, Vic and Elsie Ross, Thad and Marge Phillips, L. Sexton, Lewis Luchie and spouse, and Nate and Mabel Williams.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Nate and Mabel Williams in Trenton, N.J.

Parent Auxiliary Works for Lincoln

New York alumni have started something that other concentrations of alumni might well consider: a Parents Auxiliary. The group usually meets on a Sunday afternoon at the New York State Office Building, 163 West 125th St., New York, N.Y. At a recent meeting of the group students invited from Lincoln University discussed such topics as "Fraternalities and Sororities at Lincoln University—Their Positive and Negative Values" and "The Student Government Organization."

The Parents Auxiliary sponsors holiday buses to bring students to New York and return them to school for a very nominal sum. For more information about the group, write Mrs. Viola E. Yancey, secretary, 201-39 120th Ave., St. Albans, N.Y. 11412.

Alumni Trustees (two to be elected)

EDDISON R. HAIRSTON SR., '54, is a practicing dentist in Washington, D.C., having received his D.D.S. degree from the Howard University Dental School in 1962. An active member of several dental associations, he has also been the president of the Washington, D.C., Chapter of the General Alumni Association. He served as 1st vice president of the Association before moving up to the presidency. He spends a great deal of his time in volunteer work and serves as a clinical assistant professor at Howard University.

KENNETH SADLER, '71, is also a graduate of the Howard University Dental School. Prior to moving to Charlotte, N.C., where he practices dentistry, he opened an office in Hampton, Va. Now settled in his profession, he is interested in becoming more involved in alumni work and feels that he can make a contribution to Lincoln and to the Association through his representation on the Board of Trustees. He has encouraged many recent graduates to become more involved in alumni affairs.

WILLIAM H. RIVERS JR., '57, is a product of the public schools of Philadelphia. Although he majored in economics at Lincoln, he became interested in social work. In 1962 he received his M.S.W. degree from the University of Pennsylvania School of Social Work. His experience has been in the field of social work, starting with the position of caseworker with the Philadelphia County Board of Assistance. Since 1972 he has been associated with the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, first in Social Rehabilitation Services as a social worker and in Social Security Administration as a staff assistant. An active member of the Philadelphia Chapter of the General Alumni Association, he was elected to the Board of Trustees for a one-year term in May, 1979.

FREIDA A. McNEIL, '72, majored in sociology at Lincoln and went on to the University of Michigan School of Social Work where she received the M.S.W. degree in 1973. As secretary of the Class of 1972, she has been active in alumni affairs since her graduation from Lincoln. She is also involved in the activities of the Central Virginia Chapter of the General Alumni Association, which she serves as regional director. She firmly believes that the time has come for more recent graduates and more women to be elected to the Board of Trustees of Lincoln University.

Commentary

Many know that Franklin H. Williams, a former N.A.A.C.P. legal counsel, is a member of the Board of Trustees of Lincoln University and the president of the Phelps-Stokes Fund, but few know that he is a radio commentator in New York. Herewith are a few of his comments:

Simple Solutions: "Everyone has a simple answer to the energy crisis, including me. . . . But things simple in theory are not so simple in practice, are they? Any major change in the American automobile or packaging, and the United States would plummet into a depression. No air conditioning? The South, Southwest and our cities with skyscrapers without windows might secede. No central heating? The frigid North, from Maine to the Rockies, could rebel. Cut armaments? The Pentagon would have a heart attack. In a democracy, one can't order change. And any voluntary cutback in a system ruled by self-interest is equivalent to cutting off one's nose. What to do? The problem is even deeper than first thought. For our economy is founded on waste, obsolescence, overkill . . . and a catering to personal ease and comfort. How to turn it around? Every American has the answer: It's to be economical, frugal, self-discipline, self-denying and Spartan. But who? Not me, says everyone, not me. The other guy."

Nobody Believes: "We live in a time when many of the threats to our well-being and our safety, even to our lives, are invisible, long-range and irreversible. I'm thinking of a long list of human calamities in our generation which seem to be accelerating rather than diminishing. For instance, the belatedly discovered fatal effect of radium which took the lives of its discoverers as well as those of factory workers a generation ago who, with brushes wetted in their mouths, tipped wrist-watch faces with glow-in-the-dark numerals. I refer to the deformities in children born of mothers on drugs for one reason or another . . . the damaged lungs of asbestos workers and miners . . . they many years it took to pinpoint the correlation between cigaret smoking and lung cancer . . . the alarming rate of leukemia in those who had been exposed to A-bomb experiments in the 1950s . . . the soldiers in simulated war tests in Nevada and civilians in neighboring southwestern towns who were victims of windborne fallout. All these tragedies took many years from initial contamination to the identification of cause. We are only now attending to prevention and seeking cures . . . For now we know that death is not necessarily a skeleton with a scythe on a horse. More likely it is an invisible ray . . . And the cruel irony is that we live in an age of skepticism in which people no longer have unquestioned faith. To make matters worse, experts argue with other experts . . . and fake experts abound . . . and the arguments are as bewildering to us as to the builders of the Tower of Babel. The final irony is that in a time when we rely on the word of experts for our well-being, our safety, our lives—nobody believes."

Equality and Nothing: "With all deliberate speed"—That was the Supreme Court phrase ordering the end of segregation in American schools. Since then the lot American Blacks has improved, but the record is spotty, more token than real. American schools have not been desegregated despite the Supreme Court ruling 25 years ago. A quarter of a century is not my idea of all deliberate speed. But speed is relative. Twenty-five years ago who forecast double-digit inflation? Who though, even ten years ago, that the cost of gasoline would be $1 a gallon? Who—

OBITUARY

Dr. Daniel G. Hill Jr., a retired dean of the Howard University School of Religion died of arteriosclerosis on Oct. 21 at Sibley Memorial Hospital. He was 83.

A Native of Annapolis, Dr. Hill grew up in Baltimore. He was graduated from Lincoln University in 1917 and was commissioned a lieutenant in the Army Infantry. He served in France during World War I.

Ordained a minister in the African Methodist Episcopal Church in 1921, he was first assigned to a church in Independence, Mo., and later to a church in Denver, where he earned a Bachelor of Divinity degree from the School of Theology at the University of Denver.

In 1929 Dr. Hill moved to Portland, Ore., where he was pastor of a church and where he earned a Master's degree in sociology and a certificate in social work at the University of Oregon in 1932. During this period he was a probation officer in the Court of Domestic Relations in Portland. From 1933 to 1943 he headed a church in Oakland, Calif., and for three of those years he was a supervisor in the California State Relief Administration.

He earned a Master's degree in sacred theology at the Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley, Calif., and a doctorate in theology from the Iliff School of Religion. From 1943 until joining the Howard faculty in 1945, he was back in Denver, where he was chairman of the Denver Race Relations Commission.

One year after joining the faculty of Howard University, Dr. Hill was named dean of the Andrew Rankin Chapel on the campus. He was named dean of the School of Religion in 1958 and held that post until he retired in 1964. He was a charter member and treasurer of the National Association of College and University Chaplains. One of his first sermons at Howard was included in G. Paul Butler's Best Sermons of 1947. He was the author of numerous articles on religious and sociological questions. He also published articles on Black history.

Dr. Hill was a member of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, the N.A.A.C.P., the Urban League, the Religious Heritage of America, the Academy of Political and Social Sciences, and the Washington Conference of the Methodist Church.

Survivors include his wife, three daughters, one son, four sisters, one brother, 16 grandchildren, and three great grandchildren. The surviving brother, J. Newton Hill, is a 1920 graduate of Lincoln. Two other brothers were also graduates of Lincoln, Richard (1928) and William (1929) as was Dr. Hill's father, who received his degree in 1886.

GIVE TO LINCOLN

The Office of Alumni Relations has noted some confusion resulting from improper designation of moneys intended for the University or the General Alumni Association. Some alumni are under the impression that a check sent to the Alumni Association went to Lincoln University. This is incorrect. Although it works closely with the University, the General Alumni Association is a separate organization with its own financial structure. If you intend to give a gift to Lincoln, you must designate clearly where the gift is to be used. Such action will eliminate any confusion.

An Interview

Luis E. Ramos Yordan

Dr. Luis E. Ramos Yordan was on campus Oct. 29 to receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. Because the University can boast of few Puerto Rican graduates, we thought it might be well to interview our distinguished honoree:

Q. To what do you owe your accomplishments?

A. All men have goals and aspiration in their lives. I also have mine. I wanted to be a winner in the Penn Relays. I was. I wanted to be a doctor in medicine. I became one. I also wanted to be a political leader. I became speaker of the House of Representatives of Puerto Rico. None of these accomplishments would have been possible if I had not come to Lincoln University and graduated.

Q. What stands out in your memory of Lincoln?

A. Lincoln University always evoked in me the principle that all men are created equal and are invested with the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. I have always been grateful to this University because it was here that I molded these aspirations.

Q. What one principle do you consider of supreme value?

A. The one principle that I consider of supreme value is that all men are created equal.

Q. Isn't there a danger that this Jeffersonian concept can lead us into confusion?

A. It can lead us into confusion if we turn it into the goal of achieving absolute equality. The kind of equality pragmatically in harmony with the Jeffersonian tenet is the equality of opportunity. I am a Puerto Rican of Afro-Indo-Hispanic origin, a citizen of Puerto Rico and the United States of North America, just as some of you are citizens of Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland and of the United States of North America. We are all of different origin. We belong to different religions . . . have different political beliefs . . . different concepts of what is moral or immoral and of what is best for us. But we all want equal opportunity.

Q. Where do you think this equal opportunity must begin?

A. Equal opportunity must begin in the field of education. As a Puerto Rican with poor economic resources who received an athletic scholarship from this University, I know what that means. I can say today with satisfaction that I benefitted from an equal opportunity to study and work . . . work hard . . . to achieve my goals and aspirations in life. I have my scars . . . and I have my pride . . . but I made it . . . thank God.

Q. Do you equate education with schooling?

A. Education means much more than schooling. We must educate ourselves for the sublime task of tearing down the barrier of prejudice . . . ethnical . . . economical . . . geographical . . . social . . . of whatever kind. Let us educate ourselves in brotherly love. Live it day to day and we will see the light . . . the truth of the dream of Jefferson and Martin Luther King . . . that all men are created equal.

All Lincolniters are encouraged to support the Alumni Association, but your support of Lincoln is also solicited. Your involvement with Lincoln and the Alumni Association will enable the University to remain strong. Contact the Office of Alumni Relations if you have a problem getting your gift properly recorded. The number is (215) 932-8300 Ext. 433.

ALUMNI TOUR PROGRAM FOR 1980

BAVARIA! Mountains, the pride of Bavaria, interspersed with lakes, and the lower Alpine landscape with its lush pastures. White clouds in a blue sky and white sails on blue lakes. Bavaria is white and blue. But it is also green—green with meadows and woods. There is space for nature and for people who like a quiet life which they can enjoy.

Our tour will provide you with air transportation from Philadelphia, PA, accommodations for eight days and seven nights in a tourist style inn, the free use of a rental car with unlimited mileage, two meals per day, AND tickets to attend the Passion Play located in Oberammergau. This tour will be departing August 10, returning August 18, 1980, and costs only $879 per person.

This play has been performed since the 17th Century when the Plague ravaged Germany. The elders of OBERAMMERGAU made a solemn vow before the altar to stage a play of the life and sufferings of Christ every ten years if they were spared the plague. The town was spared and the play has been performed ever since. Admission to the play is included in the tour price.

Perhaps you would be interested in taking a quick drive to view Innsbruck, the home of the 1976 Winter Olympics. There is much to do and much to see in this entire area. Approximately 2 kilometers from Inzell (the Bavarian village in which you will be staying) exists the so-called "Gletschergarten" (glacier garden). It is the largest of its kind in Germany and offers, because of its particular geological structure a unique look into the history of earth formations during the glacial period.

In coordination with our unique fly/drive program, we have also designed a fully comprehensive bus tour that visits Munich, Lindau, Zirl, St. Wolfgang, and of course, Oberammergau with admission to the PASSION PLAY. This option costs only $989 and includes air transportation, accommodations, private motorcoach transportation, two meals daily and more.

Contact the alumni secretary for further details regarding this vacation. It is being offered to you by the General Alumni Association of Lincoln University.

The Student Scene

Ten Lincoln seniors have been selected for inclusion in the 1979-80 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. They are Margaret L. Alston, Jamesbury, N.J.; Victor Y. Chou, Holmes, Pa.; Debra K. Harper, Long Branch, N.J.; Liane M. Harris, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Edith H. Hull, Philadelphia, Pa.; Nilda Roman, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Lorenz Rowe, New York, N.Y.; Renee E. Sims, Philadelphia, Pa.; Deborah Sumlin, Hempstead, N.Y.; and Pamela D. Taylor, Brooklyn, N.Y. Selection is based on academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities, and future potential.

Mavis E. Kelley, a senior business administration major, was selected by the student body in October to be the new "Miss Lincoln University." She began her reign at Homecoming. A student representative on the Special Services Advisory Board, Miss Kelley is also president of Cresson Hall Dormitory and director of public relations of the Business and Economics Club. A native of Brooklyn, N.Y., she transferred to Lincoln last year from City College of New York.

-SPORTS-

The Lincoln Lions opened the 1979-80 basketball season in a tip-off tournament at Upsala College on Nov. 30. The Lions were engaged in two very exciting games. In the first game they were defeated by the host team, Upsala College, but rallied back in their second game to outman a very fine Stockton State team, 72-68.

The Lions then traveled way down to the heart of Virginia (Hampton Institute), where they were defeated by a super Hampton squad led by All-American Ricky Mahorn. However, the Lions hung in there until mid-way through the second half when superior height and talent began to take its toll and the Hamptonians triumphed, 110-83. The Lions returned home against Southeastern University and began rolling once again. The Lions were led by senior and junior forwards Brian King and Donnie Starling, with 14 and 22 points respectively.

This season is destined to be more exciting than those of previous years. The Lions, stressing consistency and a decrease in mental mistakes, are certainly the team to watch this season. The next home game will be on Jan. 12, so mark your calendar and plan to attend the game.

LADIES AUXILIARY OF LINCOLN UNIVERSITY

The National Ladies Auxiliary of Lincoln University is planning a big celebration at Lincoln University to commemorate 125 years of quality educational programming for its students. The event is scheduled for late summer. Some objectives are:

- (1) To show to all concerned the importance of Lincoln University in its mission;
- (2) To fund the Ladies Auxiliary's $50,000 Scholarship Endowment;
- (3) To bring alumni families and friends back to Lincoln's campus to make them aware of Lincoln's growth and the need for further development;
- (4) To heighten interest among alumni in their alma mater.

The celebration will include a variety of activities and events. There will be booths, disco dancing, a fashion show, a swimming meet, a special banquet, concerts (jazz and other), good food, and special activities for children and youth.

Everyone is encouraged to lend a hand and support this project. There are a number of positions open on the many committees. If you are interested in helping with this celebration, please fill out the form below and send it immediately to the Alumni Office.

From the Desk of The Executive Secretary

At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the General Alumni Association on Nov. 3, the Committee approved the 1979-80 budget for $6500. Reports from the Executive Secretary, the Constitution Committee, the Liaison Committee between the Association and the University, the Nominating Committee, and the Alumni Trustees were received. The treasurer's report, covering the period from May 5, 1979, to Oct. 5, 1979, showed a total balance of $20,038.80 in the Chase Manhattan checking account; the Carver Federal Savings and Loan savings account; the New York Bank savings account; and in fixed assets (C. I. F. Reynolds Securities and N. J. Bell Telephone).

Nominations for Alumni Awards should reach the Office of the Executive Secretary on or before Feb. 15 to be considered at the spring meeting of the Executive Committee on Feb. 23. Preference is given to members of reunion classes who have made significant achievements in their chosen fields and who have made contributions to Lincoln University. Supporting evidence should accompany each nomination to indicate significant achievements.

Class lists for reunion classes ('5's and '0's) have been sent to class secretaries. If you do not hear from your class secretary about reunion plans, let your secretary hear from you.

CAMPUS BRIEFS

Dr. Herman R. Branson spoke at a conference on "Promoting Resource Sharing Between Black American and African Universities and Colleges" in Bellagio, Italy, Aug. 17-21. Sponsored by the Phelps-Stokes Fund, International Education Program, the conference was held at the Rockefeller Foundation Bellagio Study and Conference Center. Dr. Branson's topic was "Historical Overview of Black Land Grant Colleges and Universities."

Dr. William E. Gardner has been selected to succeed Dr. Henry G. Cornwell as chairperson of the Department of Psychology. Formerly chairperson of the Department of Education, Dr. Gardner plans to broaden the experiential base of the Department. A member of the faculty since 1973, Dr. Gardner is a licensed psychologist in the state of Pennsylvania. He holds the M.A. degree in counseling psychology from New York University and the Ph. D. degree in counseling/clinical psychology from Michigan State University.

Dr. Judith A.W. Thomas, professor of education and director of student teaching at Lincoln, has been appointed chairperson of the Department of Education. Dr. Thomas, who joined the faculty in 1974, has a number of plans for the Department, among which are the development of an ethnic education component, the development of an early childhood program, and the development of a speech component.

The Career Services Center, in conjunction with the National Alliance of Business, sponsored the Third Annual Youth Motivation Task Force Sept. 28-30. Lincoln alumni and other consultants shared their experiences and expertise in the various disciplines with students in individual classrooms. As a part of the program students had the opportunity to participate in a job fair, where they were interviewed for specific positions with the individual organizations represented. The National Alliance of Business initiated the Youth Motivation Task Force Program in 1968, and it has reached over four million students throughout the nation. The main thrust is to provide motivation to students who have had a limited scope of the aggregate of career opportunities available to them.

A project to develop students' problem-solving skills will be supported this year and through 1983 by the National Institutes of Health. Dr. Willie Williams and James R. Broomall of the Department of Physics wrote the proposal for which funding of $250,000 has been received. Dr. Broomall will serve as director of the project and Dr. Williams co-principal investigator. Participating Lincoln personnel are Mrs. Teresa Green, director of the Computing Center; Dr. Rethinasamy Kittapa, Department of Mathematics; and Dr. S.C. Subbarao, chairperson, Department of Chemistry. A campus new-

PROCLAMATION

BLACK COLLEGE DAY
SEPTEMBER 29, 1980

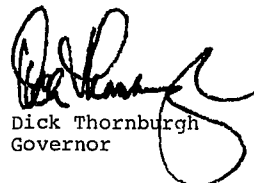

The 107 predominantly or historically Black colleges and universities in the United States have a long tradition of providing educational opportunities to a constituency which many have ignored. These institutions, which comprise less than 5% of the nation's colleges and universities, award 38% of all baccalaureate and 23% of all graduate degrees earned by Black Americans.

Our Black institutions of higher education have long accepted a disproportionate share of the nation's burden of extending educational opportunities to disadvantaged students. It is in the best interest of all Americans to strengthen and expand the capacity of these colleges and universities to improve the quality of education available to minority and disadvantaged students and thereby help to ensure racially representative leadership in all levels of society.

Pennsylvania is proud of the contributions to the field of education made by the Commonwealth's traditionally Black colleges, Cheyney State College and Lincoln University. By providing students with academic skills and techniques for creative problem-solving, these institutions play a valuable role in the future of the Keystone State.

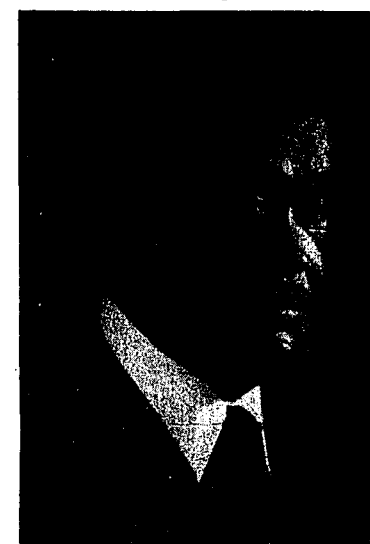

Therefore, I, Dick Thornburgh, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby proclaim September 29, 1980 as BLACK COLLEGE DAY in Pennsylvania in conjunction with the first nationwide observance and in recognition of the contributions these institutions have made to the growth and development of the Commonwealth and the Nation.

GIVEN under my hand and the Seal of the Governor, at the City of Harrisburg, this ninth day of September in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighty, and of the Commonwealth the two hundred and fifth.

Dick Thornburgh
Governor

University Seeks Land-Grant Status

A bill currently before the Pennsylvania House of Representatives would make Lincoln University the state's second land grant college. If passed, the bill would make Lincoln eligible to participate in a wider range of federally funded programs. The bill would also make Lincoln the first school to be added to the list of land-grant colleges since the University of the District of Columbia was so designated in 1974.

Under the provisions of the Second Morrill Act, passed in 1890, the provisions of the first Land Grant Act (1862) were extended to educational institutions where the enrollment is predominantly Black. Land-grant schools were intended to provide training in agriculture, home economics, and the mechanical arts. The bill is being pushed by K. Leroy Irvis, House minority leader, who believes that there is a desperate need to provide increased educational opportunities for non-White students in these areas.

According to Dr. Herman R. Branson, Lincoln's president, the emphasis on agricultural education has changed to "things related to human beings, nutrition, problems of this sort." Passage of the bill would automatically entitle Lincoln to federal funds to expand social science and human science curricula.

The provisions of the Act would mean an additional $700,000 in federal funds a year to be used to initiate research and teaching programs in the areas of rural development, natural resources, and human nutrition. Dr. Branson has stated that programs at Lincoln would be modeled after those at the University of the District of Columbia.

Nearby land-grant colleges are Delaware State College and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore. Penn State, the other land-grant college in Pennsylvania, was accepted under the original 1862 Act. Lincoln became a state-related institution in 1972, joining Penn State, the University of Pittsburgh, and Temple University.

New Students Receive Challenges

Dr. Rose Pinckney, Director of the Lincoln-Eagleville Masters Program, was the principal speaker at the University banquet for members of the freshman class and new students on Aug. 26. She told her audience to concentrate on being winners and in order to become winners they must set goals.

"You are free to choose the direction in which you want to go. You are adults; you tell yourself where you want to go. Don't pursue cults. You must decide for yourself what it is you want to do. Think of today as the best day of the rest of your life. Sometimes what is best is not necessarily what is required, but be prepared to suffer the consequences of your actions," Dr. Pinckney added.

Pointing out that Lincoln had a marvelous support system, she told students to learn to deal with their anxieties. "Lincoln will facilitate your learning by smoothing out obstacles in your path. You must learn to face realities... the realities of values since traditional values no longer hold. You must march to the beat of your own drum."

In her closing remarks Dr. Pinckney told the new Lincolnites that they should develop a sense of community... consideration for others. "We will try to teach you to go about the decision-making process, but you must be bold and not afraid to take large risks."

In his remarks to the students, Dr. Bernard Woodson, Executive Vice president and provost, told them to establish their priorities immediately. "Go to your classes. Expand your horizons by attending cultural events. Too many come culturally poor and leave the same way." He admonished them to set goals and develop PMA—positive mental attitude. He also told them they would need drive, and pointed out the meaning of each letter in the word: Dedication, Responsibility, Integrity, Vision, Enthusiasm.

"Lincoln can be no better than the students we have here... and that's YOU!"

Spotlight on Dr. Judith Thomas

Born and educated in the school system of New Kensington, Pa., near Pittsburgh, Dr. Judith A. Thomas has wanted to be a teacher ever since she was in first grade. She feels that being able to teach is a dream come true. She did her undergraduate work at Edinboro State College, Edinboro, Pa., where she majored in English and minored in Spanish and was granted the B.S. degree in 1962. For the next five years she was a teacher in high schools in or near Pittsburgh, while she worked on an advanced degree at Duquesne University, from which she received her M. Ed. in 1967. Over the next four years she worked on two college campuses—West Virginia University and Pennsylvania State University—Fayette Campus—while pursuing her doctorate at West Virginia University, which granted her the Ed. D. degree in 1971.

Prior to coming to Lincoln University in 1974, Dr. Thomas was a member of the faculty of West Liberty State College, West Liberty, W. Va. In addition to serving as associate professor of speech, education, and sociology, she was also director of the Interethnic Institute. When asked how she accounts for her thirst for knowledge, Dr. Thomas replied, "My father attended Lincoln University in Missouri as a history major. He was a very hard worker and encouraged me to be strong and to fight for what I believed in. My mother, even though she had only a high school education, is probably the person who really stimulated me to want an education so badly. She had graduated at the top of her high school class, and she used to tell us—the children—that there was never any excuse for poor grades. She and my father have always been very unselfish, and when I received an honorary degree for outstanding contribution to education in 1975 from Edinboro State College, my parents, sisters, brother, and their spouses attended to hear me give the Commencement address and receive the award. I've always felt that I had strong family support!"

Because her experiences had always been chiefly at white schools, Dr. Thomas was eager to come to Lincoln. "Teaching at Lincoln University is the first opportunity I've ever had to teach at a predominantly black institution, and I'd like to say it's been one of the most rewarding experiences I've ever had. What I've enjoyed so much are the students. I've loved the students wherever I've been, but the students at Lincoln University are very special because of their warmth, creativity and provocativeness!"

"Another treat for me has been my having the privilege of working with Black professors like Dr. JoAnn Gabbin, Professor Alexander Gabbin, Dr. Henry G. Cornwell, Dr. H.A. Farrell, Dr. Rose B. Pinckney, Dr. Joseph Rodgers, Professor Robert N. Gardner, Dr. Gladys J. Willis, Eric King, to name a few. President Herman R. Branson's brilliance is particularly exciting to me because before coming to Lincoln, I actually knew no Blacks with his kind of credentials. Our White faculty are also very giving of themselves and caring. Those who immediately come to mind are Drs. Anthony and Mary Applegate, members of the Education Department."

A teacher for 19 years, Dr. Thomas appears to radiate the same enthusiasm today as she did when she began to teach. When queried about her enthusiasm for teaching, Dr. Thomas answered without hesitation. "When I began to teach 19 years ago, several teachers told me I'd lose my enthusiasm for teaching after a few years. So far I'm happy to say that I feel even more enthusiastic now than I did 19 years ago. If I should die today, I would have to cite Lincoln University as the most exciting and challenging teaching experience I've ever had. I have learned so much. I hope I can pass on what I've learned to others."

Dr. Thomas, who is listed in Notable Americans, Who's Who in Intellectuals, The World of Who's Who in American Women, and the Dictionary of International Biography, is the recipient of numerous honors and awards. She is particularly proud of the Christian R. and Mary F. Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching, which she received at the end of her first year at Lincoln. She is in constant demand as a speaker and a consultant, but she is always careful not to let anything interfere with her teaching duties. Now as the recently appointed chairperson of the Department of Education, she expects to find herself busier than ever since she is also president of the Pennsylvania Black Conference on Higher Education. But it is a safe bet that she will take it in stride!

"My husband, James A. Thomas, a former science educator and now an M.D., has been my LIFE support," said Dr. Thomas. "He is by nature one who observes first and then gets involved. He has encouraged me, stood with me and by me during our 11 years of marriage. He appreciates assertive women who care about people and the feelings of others."

On a concluding note, Dr. Thomas expressed her views about education. "I believe that our educational system should be for the benefit of the student, and we teachers have a responsibility to do everything in our power to help them realize their strengths and their power to achieve, which will allow them to make a contribution to the Black community and to the community at large. I am convinced that unless we all work toward that end, we will no longer exist in America. Professors are role models whether they like it or not and should conduct themselves accordingly. Any student who comes to Lincoln can get a great education. I've never been around so many dedicated teachers—those who are willing to go the extra mile!"

comer, who joins the team as a research associate, is Dr. Elliott Simon, formerly of Penn State University. The objective of the project is "to develop and implement interactive computer graphics modules in a comprehensive approach to the teaching of methods of problem-solving skills." The bottom line, according to Dr. Broomall, is to teach students to solve problems in science and mathematics on their own.

Dr. Judith A.W. Thomas, Department of Education, and Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers, Department of Modern Languages, will serve as president and secretary of the Black Conference on Higher Education from 1980 to 1982. Joann V. Gabbin, editor of the BCOHE Journal, successfully defended her dissertation on Sterling Brown, and was awarded the Ph. D. degree in English at the University of Chicago on June 7.

DR. EDWIN L. ELLIS has relinquished the pulpit of Tindly Temple United Methodist Church in Philadelphia to accept appointment to the post of urban missionary in the Eastern Pennsylvania Conference of the United Methodist Church. As the person in charge of the urban strategy, he will have his former pastorate as one of the churches under his supervision. The urban strategy is a plan or a design to more effectively mobilize available resources, expertise and experience in such a way as to more adequately minister to the needs and respond to the opportunities in the area with which it is concerned. A part of the plan includes the development of new models for ministry, beginning of new churches, and strengthening the ministries in churches already established. It also seeks to work in a cooperative way to quickly and effectively respond to the critical social issues of our times.

Meet Robert A. Ray

Robert A. Ray, '79, is serving his Alma Mater as an admissions officer/alumni coordinator. As an admissions officer he will be the main source of communication between alumni and the Admissions Office. Although there are a number of tasks which alumni must perform to help maintain Lincoln's high standards, the number one priority right now is the recruitment of qualified, top-notch students from high schools throughout the country. Working closely with the Admissions Office, alumni can help keep Lincoln's name ranked among the top colleges and universities.

In the very near future alumni will receive information pertaining to admissions requirements, recruitment procedures, and campus life and activities. The purpose of the information will be to bring alumni up to date on the changes which have taken place over the years. Alumni questions and inquiries should be directed to Ray at (215) 932-8300, Ext. 278/279 Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

OBITUARY

Dr. Carleton C. Richards, a South Philadelphia family-practice physician for 40 years, died July 15 at his home in Yeadon, Pa. His 68 years on earth began Aug. 30, 1911, in Jersey City, N.J. When his family moved to the Flatbush section of Brooklyn, he attended Erasmus High School, from which he entered Lincoln University.

Dr. Richards received his undergraduate degree at Lincoln University in 1935. He then went on to the Howard University Medical School, receiving his medical degree in 1939. After graduation from Howard, Dr. Richards served his internship at Mercy Hospital and his residency at Frederick Douglass Hospital in Philadelphia, where he began the practice of medicine. For more than 40 years he continued to serve the medical needs of the community with unmatched dedication, becoming director of family practices at Mercy-Douglass Hospital and a clinical associate in medicine at both the Pennsylvania and the University of Pennsylvania Hospitals.

Throughout his career Dr. Richards maintained an active role in numerous professional, civic and fraternal organizations, including the American Academy of Family Physicians, the Philadelphia Academy of Family Physicians, the Pennsylvania State Medical Society, the American Medical Society, the Philadelphia County Medical Society, the American Cancer Society, Philadelphia Urban League, Sigma Pi Phi, Alpha Phi Alpha, and the National Medical Society, of which he was secretary and treasurer.

Dr. Richards's distinguished contribution to public service is evidenced by his membership on the Boards of the following organizations: NAACP, Philadelphia Housing Association, Big Brothers Association, Philadelphia Redevelopment Authority, American Foundation for Negro Affairs, and the American Cancer Society. He also served as president of the Medical Society of Eastern Pennsylvania, and chairman of the Delaware County Housing Authority. He was a founding member of the Y's Men Club of the Christian Street Branch of the YMCA.

Of the honors bestowed upon Dr. Richards, the American Medical Association's Recognition Award for the years 1969 and 1972 testify to his achievements in the field of medicine. The bestowal of the distinguished Charles Drew Award in October, 1979, for "outstanding contribution to the retention of minority medical students and the advancement of minority medical education" was the culmination of his career.

Dr. Richards is survived by his wife, two sons, three grandchildren, and a brother.

You Can Double Your Gift If . . .

Would you like to double the value of your gift to education? You can if you work for one of the firms listed below. Here's how it works: first, plan to make a gift to Lincoln University. Then, tell the appropriate person at your firm (usually in the personnel or community relations office) that you would like to have your gift matched. Arrangements will then be made to send your gift to Lincoln along with, or followed by, a second gift, courtesy of your firm's matching gift program.

Sound easy? It is . . . so take advantage! Last year more than 790 companies contributed $22,445,386 to 1,432 colleges, universities, and independent schools through matching gift programs. It's one of the many ways you can become a partner in supporting education.

Key to the Listings

While nearly every program will match your gift to an institution, its alumni fund, or its receiving foundation, most companies will not match such things as club memberships, association dues, or periodical subscriptions. Generally, the program of a parent company will apply to its divisions, subsidiaries, and affiliated companies. Contact the matching gift coordinator at your company for further information about its program. Every company listed will match to four-year colleges and universities. To assist you in identifying further characteristics of your company program, these codes are used: 1 graduate and professional schools eligible; 2 junior colleges eligible; 3 community colleges eligible; 4 seminaries and theological schools eligible; ALL all four of the above institutions eligible; PR program restricted to private institutions; LIM limited to specified institutions or employees; SP companies will match your spouse's gift also; A alumni status or attendance is required. In addition, some companies match gifts on a basis greater than one-to-one. These companies are indicated with an asterisk (*) in the left margin. The following is only a partial listing of companies participating in the matching fund program. Additional companies will be listed in our January issue.

Reginald E. Gilliam Jr. was 16 when he came to Lincoln in 1961. Born in New York City Dec. 29, 1944, he grew up in New York and was educated in its public school system. He was a fairly good student in high school, but, according to his own estimate, not a spectacular one by any means. He proved to be good enough to graduate cum laude from Lincoln and went on to Harvard Law School, from which he received his Doctor of Jurisprudence in 1968.

Gilliam speaks kindly of his years at Lincoln, recalling the kind of student he was. "I think Lincoln specialized in that kind of student in those days. Dean MacRae called them 'diamonds in the rough,' and I remember how much pride he and the other faculty took in molding and developing us intellectually in those critical years while the institution itself through its unique geography, its smallness, its customs, traditions and disciplines really built into our characters a special type of individuality and strength."

His training at Lincoln stood him in good stead at Harvard, and he gives credit for that training largely to his Black teachers. "Black teachers like Charles V. Hamilton and J.B. MacRae demanded excellence and settled for no less. To me, one of the most insidious forms of racism is the way many White professors patronize Blacks by coddling, tolerating and encouraging mediocrity and poor performance. There really wasn't too much of that at Lincoln in the 60's. The Hamiltons, MacRaes and others challenged us. The confronted us face-to-face with choices of ignorance or learned-ness, information or mis-information, articulation or vulgarism—and that's really what the 'old school' was all about. We were in the library a lot, reading journals, newspapers, doing special assignments and so on—and no matter what kind of student you were in terms of grades, this rigor, this challenge, forced you to think, to articulate, to amass facts, to be able to argue intelligently. It was an atmosphere that the faculty created that went beyond the classroom and into the weekend."

Gilliam admits that when he went to Harvard Law School at 20, he was scared to death and somewhat intimidated, but he soon discovered that the institutional rigor of Lincoln had prepared him well. "I could talk, I could debate, I could do research, but, most of all, I found that I could think under pressure and alone—and do it with confidence. And that is what Harvard Law School is all about—the Socratic Method. So, I survived, all the while sharpening those skills and building on the base of the Lincoln experience."

In the ensuing years after his departure from Harvard, Gilliam devoted his talents to teaching and lecturing on law and political science at Syracuse University and the State University of New York (SUNY) at Albany. In 1972 he was appointed lecturer in law and political science and assistant dean at Williams College in Massachusetts, where he used some of the teaching techniques he learned at Lincoln. "I used the Socratic Method and the old MacRae-Hamilton 'challenge and confront' style and within the institutional limits of a small, rich, white liberal arts college, the results were very encouraging. Still, one person in one place is a drop in the bucket."

Gilliam left Williams in 1975 to join the staff of Senator John Glenn of Ohio as legislative counsel. For the next five years he served as one of Senator Glenn's senior advisors, specializing in transportation regulatory policy and providing advice and counsel on rail and truck legislation and regulatory matters. He also served as Glenn's advisor on questions involving small and minority business development and other major domestic issues. As Senator Glenn's personal representative, he has visited coal loading facilities, switching yards, locomotive shops, truck satellite and break-bulk loading facilities, and manufacturing and shipping concerns. The job afforded him a political baptism.

"Everything in life is 'political,'" Gilliam believes, "but the U.S. Senate is pretty much the apex of national politics. You deal with people, you deal with issues, and you put your skills on the line. Every bit of advice you give your boss on a vote, at a hearing, on the Senate floor can be tomorrow's headline, good or bad. That's real pressure. When I joined Senator Glenn, there were only seven Blacks employed professionally in the entire Senate, only one Black senator, and, as a staff person, you felt a tremendous responsibility to present the arguments of 25 million Blacks on the issues of the day, to try to work them into policy by the political and practical rightness of them as you present them to your senator. I felt that I was successful in that respect, in part due to my skills and of course in part due to working for a very great U.S. senator. My point here is the skills—the functioning, surviving and achieving under pressure. That's what Lincoln was all about!"

On Dec. 12, 1979, President Carter sent Gilliam's name to the Senate to become the 89th commissioner of the Interstate Commerce Commission to serve the remainder of a term expiring Dec. 31, 1982. His appointment was confirmed by the Senate on April 2, and he was sworn into office on April 21.

He sees a connection between his position at ICC and his student days at Lincoln, where he was forced to achieve under pressure. "It's certainly the same here at the ICC. I'll tell you, many times during the long Senate nomination confirmation process, preparing for hearings, testifying and answering questions at my hearings, waiting for a vote, I really did think back to those days when I was being peppered by MacRae, Hamilton, and others—being made to think, to talk, to argue. And it's no different as a commissioner, the youngest, the second Black in 93 years. So I've got to function and function well, whether it be by my votes, at Commission meetings or what have you—the intellectual and personal rigors are very much the same as in the classrooms in the 60's, only on a larger scale."

The thing that made Lincoln University so important to Reginald Gilliam goes beyond the school itself and to the question of racial survival. He recalls how his father, a Pullman porter, and his mother, a school aide, sacrificed and struggled to send him to Lincoln. "They entrusted me to Lincoln and Lincoln didn't disappoint. It gave me skills that I could build upon with a lot of good fortune along the way. Somehow, we've got to bring our basic institutions back to that. Maybe a cadre of Lincoln alumni should go about whatever is needed financially and operationally to reshape the school in the old image. I don't know if that is realistically possible at this stage, yet I'm frightened that Black people may have lost the point in history when our institutions produced en masse the fundamental survival skills that we must have as a people."

Gilliam is the author of Black Political Development: An Advocacy Analysis, published in 1975. In addition, he has written several periodical and academic journal articles. He has received several awards and citations for distinguished legislative service. In 1979 he was elected to the Williams College Board of Trustees for a five-year term. He credits Lincoln for creating an atmosphere conducive to development and growth. "You know that mystique of the 'Lincoln man'? It wasn't based on looks. It surely wasn't based on money—none of us had much. We didn't have cars. What we had was that very special attraction of an alive, articulate, intelligent young Black man. That quality just exuded from my classmates and those upperclassmen. The institutional atmosphere rewarded and reinforced individuality, achievement, accomplishment, articulateness. Look around today, and you'll see an exceptionally high percentage of settled, successful Lincoln men with their life priorities very together and in order."

Placement Service Offered to Alumni

If you are changing jobs, maybe we can help. The Placement Office receives daily requests by mail and phone from businesses, manufacturers, research laboratories, government agencies, etc., who are looking for qualified minority applicants to fill current openings. Many of our recent alumni receive notifications of these openings through our "Jobs Watch Memorandum" shortly after we receive them. However, well over half of the openings employers ask us to help fill required advanced degrees or at least five years of experience. Since our Jobs Watch mailing list includes only alumni who have graduated in the last few years, we have only been including the entry-level positions in our memoranda.

Now we would like to expand our mailing list to include all interested alumni. Many other universities have successfully expanded their alumni placement services in recent years. Consequently, a growing number of mid-level and senior-level positions are being filled through university Placement Offices. In spite of the glooming economic news you hear daily, minorities are in high demand by many employers. For some positions, especially those requiring scientific, technical or MBA backgrounds, executive search firms are earning up to $10,000 for each qualified minority applicant they place. This is the reason so many employers are asking for our help to fill their positions. If we can get you together with the employer, the employer can save a considerable amount of money in recruiting expenses.

If you are thinking about changing jobs and would like to receive job vacancy listings from employers specifically interested in hiring Lincoln graduates, fill out the form found elsewhere in the Bulletin and return it to: Paul White, Coordinator of Placement, Career Services Center, Lincoln University, Lincoln University, PA 19352. If your present employer would like to have job openings listed in our "Jobs Watch Memorandum," short job descriptions and applicant qualifications may be sent to the same address.

THE DIRECTOR'S CORNER

The new academic season has gotten off to a very good start. Over 300 new students have joined the Lincoln family. The faculty and staff look forward to a very rewarding year.

I, too, am excited about this time. There has never been a more opportune time than now when Lincoln University alumni may assist Lincoln University to meet its goals. Lincoln faces the possibility of losing $800,000 from its state appropriation. Needless to say, this would severely curtail or even cancel some important programs at Lincoln.

Support from alumni is crucial at this point in Lincoln's history. Your involvement at Lincoln is seen as a major requirement by corporations, foundations and other philanthropic organizations when we are seeking funding from these sources. An exciting program has been planned for Homecoming with a special luncheon, soccer game, bands, LU Chorale performance, dorm competition, big concert, and more. It will be an event you won't want to miss.

I will be making chapter visits this fall. It is still this office's goal to meet with each of you via chapters. Key alums in your area will be inviting you to assist in a chapter's organization or revitalization. Remember, LINCOLN NEEDS YOU.

CAMPUS BRIEFS

The staff of Lucy Laney Hall sponsored a discussion with Dr. Judith A.W. Thomas, professor of education, on "The Development of the New Black Women," on Oct. 1. Featured guests were Dean Anthony Taylor, Dr. Joanne Gabbin, Dean Andristine Robinson, Dr. Leonard Lockley, Mr. Eric King, and Mr. Mayo Bell.

The Faculty Committee on Writing and the Humanities sponsored a Conference on Writing on Oct. 9. The theme of the conference was "Creating the Writing Environment." Dr. Joanne Gabbin and Professor Richard Hawes of the Department of English were the coordinators. Consultants were Dr. Marjorie Farmer, executive director of the Reading and English Curriculum for the Philadelphia Public Schools; Dr. Robert Weiss, of the West Chester State College Department of English; and Dr. Helen Eichelberger, assistant professor of chemistry at West Chester State College.

Dr. Donald Deskins, associate dean of the University of Michigan's Graduate School, addressed faculty and students on Oct. 16 on the subject, "The Morphology of the Ghetto: Implications for Teachers Who Teach Students from the Ghetto." He also informed students and faculty of graduate fellowships, scholarships, assistantships and post doctoral fellowships at the University of Michigan.

Dr. Herman R. Branson was one of twelve distinguished Americans receiving an award from the American Foundation for Negro Affairs at a dinner in Philadelphia on Oct. 22. Among the recipients were Dr. Marvin Wachman, former president of Lincoln and now president of Temple University; Dr. James E. Cheek, president of Howard University; Dr. Hugh M. Gloster, president of Morehouse College, and Dr. Wade Wilson, president of Cheyney State College.

Two Lincoln professors have been accepted as fellows in the Lilly-Pennsylvania Program on Mathematical Modeling in the Biological Sciences. Dr. Doris O. Farny, associate professor of biology, and Dr. Goro Nagase, associate professor of mathematics, will attend bimonthly seminars at the University of Pennsylvania. Funded by a grant from the Lilly Endowment, Inc., the program promotes intellectual and institutional collaboration among faculty members at colleges and universities in the Delaware Valley.

The Lincoln University Chapter of the American Association of University Professors presented another of its Pure Gold Conferences on Nov. 6 in the Guest House. The subject was "Governance at Lincoln University." Dr. Andrew Murray was moderator of the panel, which consisted of Dr. Bernard Gross, Dr. Bernard Woodson, and two

Office of the President

December 1980

TO ALL LINCOLN ALUMNI:

Don Hamilton has given me this space to present to you some of the themes which concern Lincoln. You have heard that for the last decade we have been most concerned about the emphases in our educational programs. That is why we brought in millions of dollars in Title III funds to improve our courses. What we would like to achieve is an education solidly founded on genuine educational skills: problem-solving, skill and interest in meaningful reading, analytical thinking grounded in a reasonable competence in mathematics, and expressing ideas clearly, concisely, and accurately in speech and in writing. But skills are never developed in a vacuum; a student must be doing something significant and interesting. Thus we are developing new programs and possibilities. One that has been most productive is our cooperative education venture.

Needless to say, we know that intellectual skills are not enough. We have explored ways of building up a humanistic orientation involving questions of values and ethics. By affording more opportunities for our students to study abroad and to participate in real business and societal situations, we hope that they soon learn that the greatest need is for people with both intellect and devotion to the common cause.

We have recently had another instance of what Goethe described: Thus our students must learn how to assemble the facts, process the facts, and react to their results. All around us we encounter magnificent stories uncontaminated by facts. They must be avoided.

I think I could summarize the qualities sought in a college education for our people as: motivation, sustained attention, self-control, knowledge, habits of thought, attitudes, and values. These seven will be our shield for the future.

Have a great 1981!

Very sincerely yours,

Herman R. Branson

Founder's Day Observed

Dr. Dennis C. Dickerson, '71, assistant professor of history at Williams College, was the Founder's Day speaker on Oct. 3. His topic was "Lincoln University: Past, Present and Future."

Realizing the difficulty of resisting the temptation to reminisce nostalgically about bygone days, Dr. Dickerson told his audience, "Lincoln has a past that should be learned and remembered by you, its present students. Its story is an inextricable part of the Afro-American experience. Its original mandate to redeem Africa and its mission to educate former slaves and their posterity are traditions which yet survive and give meaning to efforts of faculty, administrators, and graduates."

He pointed out that the worth and greatness of educational institutions are often judged according to the achievements of their graduates. "Lincoln, no less than other leading colleges and universities, can claim graduates who have changed the human condition and made the world a better place." He cited the names of such early graduates as Thomas Miller, a Black Reconstruction congressman from South Carolina; Presbyterian cleric Francis J. Grimke, a distinguished writer and thinker who inveighed against Christian hypocrisy and racism; and A.M.E. Bishop William F. Dickerson, who engineered the start of three Black colleges which educated a generation of Southern leaders.

"Outstanding Black physicians who demonstrated that educational advantage conferred class responsibility lauded Lincoln for its impact on their lives. George E. Cannon, a priestly physician, led New Jersey Blacks in gallant fights for their dignity. Walter G. Alexander helped him by becoming a Black voice in the legislature. Both strived to give the nation a strong association of race physicians who fought hard for the medical rights of their deprived Black clientele. And Dr. Eugene P. Roberts, our first Black trustee, left the National Urban League as his legacy to Blacks and as his testament to his Lincoln education."

Dr. Dickerson referred to these graduates and such men as Thurgood Marshall and Nkrumah and Azikiwe as

NAACP's Mitchell Speaks at Lincoln

Dr. Clarence M. Mitchell Jr., now a consultant for the National NAACP, an organization with which he was associated for many years, was the principal speaker at the student-alumni luncheon on November 1. The luncheon was a part of the Homecoming activities.

Addressing his remarks primarily to the students present, Dr. Mitchell told them that they will be in the mainstream of world life because this country is still the leader of the free world. He also told them that most students who have made it in life could not have done so without the care and the interest of the faculty. He paid tribute to Dr. Harold F. Grim, who helped to fashion former students like Langston Hughes and Thurgood Marshall, and to Dr. L.D. Johnson, "who gave the kind of attention, interest, and inspiration that students need. Be inspired by this kind of example."

Dr. Mitchell also paid tribute to Thurgood Marshall, for whom the new University of Maryland library is named. At the dedication of the library Justice Brennan called Marshall "the greatest advocate for human rights before getting on the Supreme Court." Marshall argued against the doctrine of separate but equal, the official policy of the government, and it was finally struck down. Dr. Mitchell pointed out the irony of the situation in that Marshall had been turned down by the University of Maryland Law School after his graduation from Lincoln.

Dr. Mitchell told his audience that they must be aware that opposition is turning the clock back. Unfriendly forces want to untie the strings on government money and segregation and seek to introduce an amendment to kill affirmative action. He said it was not necessary to go south looking for bigots; they're right here in Pennsylvania. He urged all eighteen-year-olds to register and vote. "Thurgood Marshall has made it possible to open doors and through the doors have come freedoms. Exercise them by voting. Defend human rights worldwide, for tyrants are ever present. Be mindful of them and prepare yourselves to deal with them. Our government must reach out to underdeveloped countries. It is not fantasstudents, Ruth Shillingford, president of the Student Government Association, and Joseph Nwogu, vice president for external affairs, SGA.

The Lincoln University Dance Troupe was invited to perform at the NAACP State Convention in Philadelphia during Youth Day on Nov. 7. The following day the Dance Troupe performed in a joint concert at Morgan State College with West Virginia State College, Howard University, Coppin State College, and other institutions.

The Department of Foreign Languages and Linguistics sponsored a convocation on Nov. 13. Dr. Joseph Rodgers, chairman of the Department, conducted the program, which featured students reporting on their visits abroad: Gloria Young, Montpellier, France; Edgar Draper, Paris, France; Cheryl Wilson, Madrid, Spain; Annette Jacobs, Seville, Spain; and Myron Cornish, Santiago, Dominican Republic. The convocation was one of the special features of Foreign Language Week.

Dr. Joanne V. Gabbin, assistant professor of English, has been selected by the National Endowment for the Humanities to review summer stipends for proposals in American literature. She and college professors from the University of California-Berkeley, Colorado State University, Stanford University, and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill read proposals in Washington, D.C., on Dec. 8.

Lincoln University was among the 15 Black colleges receiving planning grants to prepare proposals for rural intern programs from the Community Services Administration of Washington, D.C. Nine colleges will be selected to receive program grants, in addition to the planning grants, in February 1981. The latter will be used to select student interns who will be placed in rural community action agencies.

tic or unthinkable to believe that a student from an institution like this will one day sit in the White House. Join our illustrious line. Go forward and do your best to make this world a better place."

Several alumni had prominent roles at the luncheon. Rev. John H. West III, '76, gave the invocation. Welcome remarks were made by Dr. James A. Donaldson, '61, president of the General Alumni Association, and Donald E. Hamilton, '73, director of alumni relations. The speaker was introduced by Frank T. Coleman, '35, chairman of the Homecoming Committee. Dr. Frank T. Wilson, '21, was master of ceremonies.

Ruth Shillingford, president of the Student Government Association, also welcomed alumni, and Dr. Herman Branson presented a plaque to Dr. Mitchell and gave closing remarks. Musical selections were presented by the University Chorale, under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern.

Founder's Day

comprising a responsible elite of Blacks who remembered their roots and shouldered their obligations to those who needed their help and looked to them for leadership. "If we are to effectively lead our people and this nation, we must match and even surpass these giants in both achievement and service."

Dr. Dickinson stated that at the core of any successful educational enterprise is a talented and dedicated faculty. "Buildings may fall into disrepair and grass may go uncut, but a college cannot endure without its faculty. They lead, they teach, they inspire. I can cite Professors Jones and Winchester in history, and Dr. Schwartz in classics, and Dr. Stevens, our late chaplain, as people who have touched my life and shaped my thoughts. There are others as well. Educational excellence and intellectual stimulation were major parts of the Lincoln I knew. May it also be the same for you."

Pointing out that Lincoln has been strong precisely because of its liberal arts tradition, Dr. Dickerson attributed his statement to the fact that the faculty and administration believe that the ability to learn new information, to organize and interpret data, and to express oneself with clarity and finesse is the best preparation for a job and further professional training. He stresses the fact that such liberal arts colleges as Lincoln train the leaders and thinkers and the specialists who will plan, interpret, and direct the future course of our society.

Dr. Dickerson told his audience that there is still a need for institutions like Lincoln whose main function is that of educating Black youth. "It is currently fashionable to ridicule Black institutions and call them separatist. Institutions such as Smith or Brandeis or Brigham Young or Notre Dame are not questioned about their special gender or religious character, yet Black colleges and universities always have to prove or justify themselves. One would think that their record of past achievement would be enough. In any case, Blacks will continue to seek degrees from such institutions as Yale and Brown and Stanford and Amherst, but Lincoln and other Black colleges will continue to educate the vast majority of Black leaders and professionals. If Lincoln does not do it, there is no reason to believe that White institutions will do the required doubling or tripling of their Black enrollments to accomplish this important task. Institutions such as Lincoln are still important to Black people, and indeed have a place in the educational order during the 1980s and beyond."

In his concluding remarks Dr. Dickerson emphasized the importance of Black colleges competing with White institutions for the best Black minds. He expressed the feeling that Blacks should go to ivy league colleges and universities, but they should not automatically dismiss Black institutions and fail to learn more about them. He added that Lincoln should not allow the misconception to persist that it may be a good black school, but must take a back seat to Swarthmore or Reed or Wesleyan. Black applicants should consider Lincoln because the education it offers is second to none. Alumni must encourage their children to seek their education at Lincoln, for a Lincoln degree is nothing to be ashamed of. Alumni efforts can be helpful to Lincoln as it tries to confront the demographic depression of the 1980s. Undertaking the education of more Third World and Hispanic-American and Black American and Caucasian students are future challenges that Lincoln must confront.

Two Grants Made to Lincoln Univ.

Lincoln University received a $30,000 grant for the 1980-81 academic year from the W.W. Smith Charitable Trust. The Trust is a grant-making private foundation dedicated to educational, medical and other charitable programs which promote the welfare of the community. During the 1979-80 academic year, the University received from the Trust $25,000, which was used to provide scholarship aid to needy and deserving students.

Lincoln University has been awarded a $45,000 grant by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's Office of Education, under the provisions of Group Projects Abroad. The grant was used for an Ethnic Heritage Seminar in Morocco and Tunisia during July and August. Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers, chairman of Lincoln's Department of Languages and Linguistics, directed the seminar. Fourteen educators and students from 12 minority institutions, including Maryville College in Maryville, Tenn., studied French, Arabic, and the Moslem culture during the tour.

Dr. Jean A. White, associate professor of physical education, was assistant director of the seminar. She observed health care programs in Morocco and Tunisia, particularly for the aged and the handicapped, and studied French and Arabic.

Court of Appeals Reverses Decision

The U.S. District Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit has reversed the judgment of the district court and remanded that the case have a new trial.

The Administration has been advised by J. Freedley Hunsicker Jr., of Drinker Biddle and Reath, counsel for the University, that they "are reviewing the court's decision, and consideration is being given to the possibility of requesting further review."

It should be clearly understood, however, that the Third Circuit's decision in no way endorses the plaintiff's conduct. Nor does it in any way conclude that the conduct of the defendants violated any of the plaintiff's constitutional rights. If the Third Circuit's decision is not reversed or reconsidered, those determinations will be made by the trial court in due course after it hears the testimony of the defendants' witnesses, who have not yet testified.

Ladies Auxiliary Expresses Thanks

Mrs. Carrie Rounds, president of the National Ladies Auxiliary, wishes to thank the Lincoln family for their generous support throughout the year.

Several projects will be launched in the new year requiring the support of friends and alumni. Among the projects will be the Fantasy Fair which will be held at Lincoln during the summer. The projects will be in support of the Auxiliary's $50,000 scholarship fund for Lincoln students.

The National Ladies Auxiliary wishes a happy and prosperous New Year to all!

Spotlight on Ben Johnson

A. Benjamin Johnson, '54, was the subject of a recent article in Today, the Sunday Inquirer magazine, from which information was taken for the Bulletin article. A Philadelphia lawyer, Johnson was born in Athens, Ga., on Dec. 14, 1932, the first of seven children. When he was 5, the family moved to Philadelphia, where his father worked as a longshoreman.

Prior to entering Lincoln University, Johnson attended Central High School, where he was a member of the Student Council, the track team, and the debating team. The article quotes him as saying, "I think I was the only colored person in Central at the time, which presented some problems. For instance, I was sure that 'bar mitzvah' meant 'black nigger' and I used to get mad as hell."

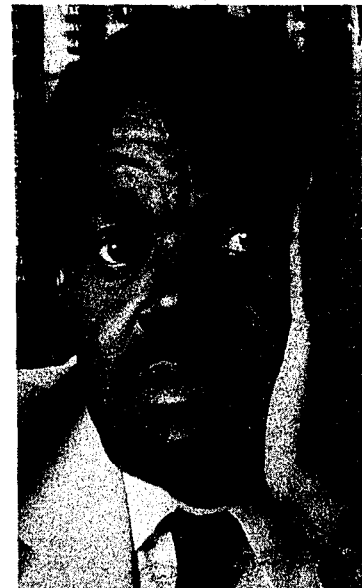

Two events helped him decide to become a lawyer. The first occurred when he was riding a city bus home from Fairmount Park after a Central track meet. When a gang of boys started harassing passengers and tearing up seats, police boarded the bus and herded up the youngsters, including Johnson, who protested that he was innocent. He was amazed that the police did not listen to him. Although the charges lodged against him were later dropped, Johnson vowed that he was never going to be put in that position again.

The second event occurred in a Central High shop class. According to Johnson, "All around me, kids were getting ready to be auto mechanics, shop stewards and things like that. There was one guy working on a car engine, another kid fixing fenders, and there I was working on my 35th ashtray of the year. That is really when I knew that I should go to law school."

After graduating from Lincoln in 1954, Johnson went on to Villanova and received his law degree in 1958. His first job was handling filing and probating for a tax lawyer, which he found very boring. A chance meeting with Cecil Moore changed the course of his life. Moore became a major influence on Johnson's career. The two worked together for almost three years, and Moore was a strong backer of Johnson's later political activity, in which he ran unsuccessfully for the State Senate twice. It was under Moore's tutelage that Johnson developed an expertise in rape and murder trials. But whereas Moore was "as rough as corn whiskey," Johnson is "as smooth as a daiquiri."

"Cecil was a fantastic trial lawyer," Johnson explains. "He would charge into a case and overwhelm it. He had a great instinct for the jugular. 'I'm more relaxed. I let the witnesses bury themselves. I just give them the shovel to throw the dirt on with.'"

Johnson acknowledges that religion has always had a strong influence on him. His grandfather was a Baptist minister who spent long hours reading to the Johnson children from the Bible and who took them to church. Johnson recalls that church was more than just a spiritual outlet. "Our family took part in recreational and social church activities almost every night of the week. The church was a part of our lives." His religious background might help to account for his attitude toward the death penalty, which is, in his word, "simply legal murder of the poor and ignorant of the society."

Johnson feels that the overriding issue facing the legal system today is the people's lack of education as to the functioning of the courts. Milton and John Street are making people aware that Blacks are being taken off the voter lists. But what people don't realize is that this also affects the jury population, which is taken from the voter lists. It is a reason there are not more Black on juries in this city. People must be made aware."

Since the death of Cecil Moore in 1979, Johnson has become the most prominent defense lawyer in the Black community. Some City Hall observers call him the best lawyer in the city—prosecution or defense, Black or White. His courtroom style is unique: part preacher, part performer, part legal craftsman. His manner is tranquil and deliberate, but often his tactics are colorful and imaginative. He has persuaded a judge to allow a dog to appear as a "surprise witness." He quotes freely and liberally from the Bible. He has used astrology in the selection of jurors, and he has used the Pythagorean theorem to win an acquittal in a murder trial.

Although Johnson's abilities in the courtroom are seldom questioned, his motives are. To his supporters, he is something of a Robin Hood, a crusader for justice who specializes in helping minority people caught in the white web of judicial system. To others, Johnson is a Philadelphia lawyer in the pejorative sense, one who uses his shrewd, tactical skills to put criminals—especially Black criminals—back on the street.

Johnson prefers not to see his work in terms of black and white. There are no good guys or bad guys in his business. There are only clients.

OBITUARY

Rhea Swann Lomax, son of George and Elizabeth (Dobbins) Lomax, was born on June 28, 1903, in Mountain City, Tenn. and departed this world on Tuesday, Sept. 30, 1980.

He attended the public schools in Mountain City, Tenn., Princess Anne Academy, Princess Anne, Md., and later graduated from Lincoln University, Oxford, Pa., with a B.A. degree in sociology. He futhered his education by attending Lincoln University Theological Seminary and received a B.D. degree in theology. Additional work was pursued at Temple University in Philadelphia. On March 13, 1958, he was awarded his first honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from Miller University of the Bible Education Association. He received his Master of Divinity degree in 1974 from Lincoln University and his second honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from Lincoln University. His early years were spent in the New Jersey National Guard, Company A, 372 Infantry, Newark, N.J. He then married and to that union was born a son, Rhea Swann, Jr.

During his school years at Lincoln University, he met and later, in 1943, married Mary Louise Smith of Georgetown, Ill. The couple became the proud parents of Curtis Blaine, Millicent Anne, Beverly Jill, and Deborah Jean.

Dr. Lomax entered the active ministry in 1946, and pastored Mt. Tabor AME Zion Church, Avondale, Pa.; John Wesley AME Zion Church, Chambersburg, Pa.; West Street AME Zion Church, Carlisle, Pa.; Alleyne Memorial AME Zion Church, Phila., Pa. and St. James AME Zion Church, Allentown, Pa.

Dr. Lomax's interests were broad and led him to pursue an active career in meeting the needs of his community. He first served as a case worker for the Department of Public Assistance in Carlisle and then became director of the Carlisle Community Center. Moving to Philadelphia, he pursued a career as a teacher in the public schools. For the past 23 years, Dr. Lomax served in the Family Court System for the City of Philadelphia, and was retired Jan. 18, 1980. Dr. Lomax's efforts were cited on April 1, 1958, for proficiency in the area of Basic Correctional Training. On Jan. 18, 1980, he was presented with a Service Award from the City of Philadelphia for his 23 years of outstanding service.

Rev. Rhea S. Lomax

He was also cited for his faithfulness in the proclamation of the Gospel of Jesus Christ by the International Society of Preachers on Jan. 2, 1980.

Realizing the talents within the Lomax family, Dr. Lomax exposed his children to the musical arts and formed the Lomax Ensemble during their teenage years.

Dr. Lomax held numerous positions in organizations devoted to the furthering of brotherhood. His associations included the Philadelphia Ministerial Alliance of the AME Zion Church, the Lincoln University Alumni Association, the Examining Board of the AME Zion Church and the Pennsylvania Council of Churches Division of Evangelism. He was also an associate member of the Fraternal Order of Police, City of Philadelphia.

He was a member of long standing in the Masonic Order Tyree Lodge No. 147, F&AM, PHA, and a 32nd Degree Mason, DeMolay Consistory No. 1. Dr. Lomax always maintained a positive rapport with the clergy in all the cities in which he pastored.

He leaves to mourn their loss Mary Louise, his wife of 37 years; his children, Rhea Swann, Jr., Curtis Blaine, Mrs. Millicent Brandstetter, Mrs. Beverly Greene and Mrs. Deborah Hall; five grandchildren, three great-grandchildren, nieces and nephews, and a host of relatives and friends.

You Can Double Your Gift If . . .

Would you like to double the value of your gift to education? You can if you work for one of the firms listed below. Here's how it works: first, plan to make a gift to Lincoln University. Then, tell the appropriate person at your firm (usually in the personnel or community relations office) that you would like to have your gift matched. Arrangements will then be made to send your gift to Lincoln along with, or followed by, a second gift, courtesy of your firm's matching gift program.

Sound easy? It is . . . so take advantage! Last year more than 790 companies contributed $22,445,386 to 1,432 colleges, universities, and independent schools through matching gift programs. It's one of the many ways you can become a partner in supporting education.

Key to the Listings

While nearly every program will match your gift to an institution, its alumni fund, or its receiving foundation, most companies will not match such things as club memberships, association dues, or periodical subscriptions. Generally, the program of a parent company will apply to its divisions, subsidiaries, and affiliated companies. Contact the matching gift coordinator at your company for further information about its program. Every company listed will match to four-year-colleges and universities. To assist you in identifying further characteristics of your company program, these codes are used: 1 graduate and professional schools eligible; 2 junior colleges eligible; 3 community colleges eligible; 4 seminaries and theological schools eligible; ALL all four of the above institutions eligible; PR program restricted to private institutions; LIM limited to specified institutions or employees; SP companies will match your spouse's gift also; A alumni status or attendance is required. In addition, some companies match gifts on a basis greater than one-to-one. These companies are indicated with an asterisk (*) in the left margin. The following is only a partial listing of companies participating in the matching fund program.

Homecoming Highlights

No rain on this parade.

The fast-stepping Golden Cougars.

A drill team drills to perfection.

The crowd dwindled—the spirit lingered.

THE STUDENT SCENE

Enger Norfleet, Miss Lincoln University 1980-81, reigned over Homecoming activities which drew a record number of alumni.

22 Seniors Make Who's Who

Twenty-two Lincoln seniors have been nominated for inclusion in the 1981 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. They are Brenda A. Allen, Newark, N.J.; Ricky Carter, Philadelphia, Pa.; John A. Eddings, Philadelphia, Pa.; David C. Evans, Bloomfield, Conn.; Juliana J. Faniran, Ibadan, Nigeria; Steven W. Ferguson, Cleveland, Ohio; William E. Gaines, Vaux Hall, N.J.; Kwasi A. Gyekye, Accra, North Ghana; Perry L. Hill, Hopewell, Va.; Amos S. Hyman, Chester, Pa.; Mavis E. Kelley, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Joan B. Kryak, Oxford, Pa.; Nelvin A. Largoza, Lansdowne, Pa.; Renosi D. Mokate, Krugersdorp, South Africa; Rose M. Musonye, Nairobi, Kenya; Sibusiso A. Nkomo, Garborone, Botswana; Walter E. Oates, Hartford, Conn.; Handel F. Pascoe, New York, N.Y.; Darlene G. Robinson, McKeesport, Pa.; Duane S. Roundtree, Philadelphia, Pa.; and Ruth E. Shillingford, Bronx, N.Y.

Selections are based on the students' academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities, and future potential.

Students Assist with Meet

Lincoln University was the site and students and staff were the hosts of the Annual Elementary Track and Field Meet on Oct. 4. The meet consisted of ten events for fourth and fifth grade boys and girls from invited area schools. Only three schools sent children for the competition: St. Mary's in West Grove, Sts. Phillip and James of Malvern, and Sanford of Hockessin, Del.

The emphasis was on participation rather than on winning only. All participants received a ribbon regardless of their finish in the event. No team scores were kept and competition was intra-individual/inter-individual and was not construed as a school vs. school rivalry.

The following Lincoln students served as judges, timers, scorers, announcer and lane facilitators: Sandra Richardson, Jeff Shelton, Gary Foreman, Walter Bailey, Enger Norfleet, George Fanning, Menelik Eaddy, Steve Board, Donna Combs, Michael Randolph, Sandra Marigna, Mary Barksdale, and Darryl Spaulding.

Mr. James L. DeBoy, instructor in recreation, was coordinator of the meet.

THE DIRECTOR'S CORNER

This has been a fine year, thanks to your support. In addition to an increase in alumni giving, more alumni have become involved with Lincoln.

I'm happy to report our alumni lists are in the computer, and we are readying for the new Alumni Directory. Soon you will be mailed a survey card to update your alumni records for inclusion in the new directory. When you receive the card, please answer the questions and return it immediately to the Alumni Relations Office.

The response to Homecoming 1980 was terrific. Many thanks to all who supported the day. Clarence Mitchell Jr., our speaker, was excellent. Tick Coleman and the Homecoming Committee did a fine job. Your suggestions for the improvement of Homecoming are urged.

The Annual Fund Campaign 1981 is expected to begin early in 1981. Look for additional information in the mails.

The Lincoln family looks forward to the New Year with great optimism and hope.

Homecoming Highlights

Meeting of the Association's Council.

Meeting of the Ladies Auxillary.

Students and Alumni get acquainted.

A. H. Redd, '34, and daughters Patricia, '62 (l.) and Deborah, '58.

SPORTS

Lincoln's Handel Pascoe (l.) tries to intercept the ball from a Cheyney player, but Cheyney went on to defeat the Lincoln Lions at their Homecoming outing.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

The Lincoln University Lions began the basketball season in Farmville, Va., against two very tough opponents in Longwood College and Liberty Baptist College. Lincoln came up on the short end in both games. However, the Lions rebounded against Southeastern University by the tune of 79-73, which made the record 1 and 2.

The team is looking forward to bigger and better things in the New Year. The first post-holiday game will be an away game against Jersey City College, destined to be another tough outing. The first home game after the holidays will be against Salisbury State College on Jan. 12, which comes right after the Lebanon Valley Tournament Jan. 9 and 10.

Lincoln is overdue for an exciting basketball season, and this could be the year.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

The Lady Lions of Lincoln University, with seven returning players, opened the season on Dec. 1 with a win over Bryn Mawr College. The score was 73-43. High scorers were Sonia Cooper with 20 points and Regina Brown with 18. The Lady Lions continued their winning ways on Dec. 2 by defeating Southeastern University of Washington, D.C., by a score of 79-49. The high scorers were Karolyn Burnett with 20 points and Sonia Cooper with 15. Both games were away games.

Wheelchair Field Day

Lincoln's Recreation Program of the Physical Education Department sponsored its Third Annual Wheelchair Field Day on Dec. 6. Under the guidance of Mr. James L. DeBoy, coordinator of recreation, Lincoln's recreation majors, recorded individual scores at 20 different stations for wheelchair-bound contestants, from ages 14 and up.

Events included basketball free throw, weight lifting, 100-ft. dash, and many other contests. Each participant was awarded ribbons of certificates at the end of the program. This special event was held in the Alumni Memorial Gymnasium, a facility accessible to the handicapped.

From the Desk of

The Executive Secretary

At the meeting of the Council of the General Alumni Association on Nov. 1, the Council approved the 1980-81 budget for $9775. Reports from the Executive Secretary, the Alumni Trustees, and the Nominating Committee were received. The treasurer's report, covering the period from April 30, 1980, to Nov. 1, 1980, showed a total balance of $19,439.52 in the Carver Federal Savings and Loan savings account; in the New York Bank savings account; and in fixed assets (C.I.F. Reynolds Securities, Dean Witter Securities, and N.J. Bell Telephone).

Nominations for Alumni Awards should reach the Office of the Executive Secretary on or before Feb. 16 to be considered at the spring meeting of the Council on Feb. 28. Preference is given to members of reunion classes who have made significant achievements in their chosen fields and who have contributions to Lincoln University. Supporting evidence should accompany each nomination to indicate significant achievements.

The Philadelphia Chapter of the general Alumni Association will hold its annual dinner dance at Presidential Caterers, DeKalb and Germantown Pikes, Norristown, Pa. on Feb. 27. The Chapter will honor Dr. Henry G. Cornwell, who retired at the end of the last school year. Buffet will be served from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., with open bar and dancing from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Subscription is $22 a person.

Distinguished Alumni Recounts Career

By Janis Watson

The interview with Clarence LeRoy Holte '34 during a recent periodic visit to the campus was indeed a pleasure for it enabled us to confer at length with him about his distinguished career. Viewing students from a window in Lincoln Hall, he said, "before talking about myself, let me comment on my observations about many of them who have recently come into the world of corporate businesses.

"It pains me," he said, "to see any of our youths come into these businesses without recognizing the fact that they are the immediate beneficiaries of the Black Revolution of the 1960s, and that the favorable climate they found was created by the cadre of Black pioneers who had been able to break through the racial barriers. The impression these youths give is that they are the innovators; that everything begins with them.

"This sense of confidence is admirable but, lacking the stabilizing influence of their history, it is like a tree without roots or an automobile without shock absorbers. We have a beautiful history to draw upon for sustenance and inspiring strength that have enabled us to overcome many difficulties which seemed unsurmountable.

"It is my fervent hope that students give serious thought to these candid comments which are intended as guidelines to facilitate their success in the world of corporate businesses."

Watson: "Would you say Mr. Holte that the same observations might apply in other employment situations where the Black presence has been minimal?"

Holte: "It would not be surprising."

Watson: "What are some of your major recollections as a student at Lincoln?"

Holte: "Beyond the camaraderie of students, the formation of life-long friendships, and the wholesome relationship with the faculty, two preeminent and interrelated things occurred during my two years at Lincoln which became major developments in my career.

"Most of my family migrated from Norfolk to Philadelphia in 1928. After receiving a partial scholarship from the Presbytery in Philadelphia, the University admitted me as a freshman in 1930, without money.

"Meeting native Africans for the first time was a revelation and incited me to ask them a slew of questions about Africa and their family life. Being newly-arrived freshmen, they knew very little about Afro-Americans and began to ask me questions about our history. My extremely limited knowledge was a surprise to them and an embarrassment to me. The incidents, however, proved to be a blessing in disguise for it led me to get Carter G. Woodson's book, 'The Negro In Our History,' from the library. It opened my eyes and mind to a world of knowledge unknown to me; then W. E. B. DuBois' book, 'The Souls Of Black Folk,' gave me a sense for introspection. From these seeds sown at Lincoln and instigated by Africans, collecting books about Black people all over the world, became a consuming, life-long avocation, and the most rewarding endeavor in my career.

"The collection in 1970 comprised some 7,000 books and according to articles in The New York Times and in Ebony Magazine, it was the largest and most valuable privately-owned collection of its kind. From it, fifty-four titles have been reprinted to form The Afro-American Reprint Library, published by Johnson Publishing Corporation in New York City. The rich material from the collection also enabled me to create and develop a new concept and themes for national advertising, as well as to write essays on little known subjects about the Black Heritage for 'National Scene,' a magazine supplement carried by some forty newspapers, and serve as its editorial consultant to select subjects for chosen scholars to develop.

"Dr. Hanes Walton, Jr., political scientist and author, Savannah State College, made a study of my first twenty-two essays and articles. He rated them as 'something new in Black journalism.' His study was published as a ten-page essay entitled 'The Literary Works Of A Black Bibliophile: Clarence L. Holte.' It appeared in the July-October 1978 issue of 'The Negro Educational Review, published in Jacksonville, Florida, and in the December 1977 issue of 'The Western Journal Of Black Studies,' Washington State University.

"Of all attention accorded the collection, the high point was set by a delegation from Nigeria, representing the fifty-two African countries sponsoring the Second World Black And African Festival of Arts and Culture (Festac) to be held in Lagos, Nigeria, January-February 1977. The delegation was empowered to work out with me arrangements for use of the collection as a major exhibit, with me as the curator. Everything was consummated. The officials paid all expenses, amounting to over $50,000.00, and the Federal Government of Nigeria extended royal treatment to my wife, daughter, nephew and me. The event remains indelible in our memories.

"Before the festival closed, the collection was acquired by Ahmadu Bello University in Zaria, Nigeria, for its new $4,000,000 air conditioned library serving 13,000 students. The collection is housed in the spacious Clarence L. Holte Africana Room, with a large, blown-up photograph of me on a wall. The University is the largest educational institution in Africa, south of the Sahara and north of the Kalahari. Interlink, the Nigerian-American Magazine, published by the U.S. Information Service, devoted a five-page story on the acquisition in its November 1977 issue. A shorter story appeared in the September 1977 issue of Africa Magazine."

Watson: "Having accomplished just about everything an individual could envision from an avocation, do you still collect books?"

Holte: "Bibliophiles never stop seeking rare or scarce books for it is an abiding passion."

Watson: "After you left Lincoln in 1932, how did you begin upon a vocational career?"

Holte: "While a student at Lincoln, my family moved to New York. My vocational career began there with a summer job as a transit clerk at the Dunbar National Bank, a pet project of John D. Rockefeller, Jr. The officials liked the quality of my work and, as September approached, offered to pay part of the tuition for evening classes at the American Institute of Banking and promote me to teller. Everything went rather smoothly for three years but gradually the officials became annoyed by my repeated request for a more comfortable salary. Without consulting me, they arranged to have me transferred to Mr. Rockefeller's office as an assistant to

Office of the President

March 9, 1981

Dear Friend:

All of Lincoln must take deep pride that an alumnus of the Class of 1911--seventy years ago--has written a fine, unique book, TALES WITHOUT HATE, for which he was honored by a tea in the Newark Public Library on February 27, 1981. William M. Ashby, '11, the elder statesman of New Jersey's civil rights movement and founder of the Urban League in Newark in 1917, has shown that all Lincoln chapters should be concerned about getting into firm print the contributions which your local elders have made to your community and to the nation. Ashby, '11, deserves our sincerest congratulations and heartfelt thanks for reminding us.

In my talk before the Washington Lincoln alumni group last month, I emphasized the dire plight of the predominantly black college in America and how you must encourage your friends to support our institutions far beyond anything that we have done in the past. What stimulated my emphasis was Lincoln's own good fortune in starting work on over $3 million of capital improvements on campus, which include a new track ($300,000), a renovated sewage disposal plant ($889,000), a renovated electrical distribution system ($344,000), a rehabilitated water distribution system ($1,309,000), and modification in our existing buildings for the greater convenience of the handicapped ($404,000). It is clear that many, if not all, of our private colleges need work such as this done on their campuses. We must take our responsibilities seriously.

Another development that may give you satisfaction is the recent publication by the Joint State Government Commission of Pennsylvania of their study for 1979-1980, FACULTY OUTPUT AND SALARY COSTS OF STATE-RELATED AND STATE-OWNED COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES. This study reveals that thanks to the reorganization of our school year into trimesters and other introductions, Lincoln is now the most cost-effective and efficient of all the state-owned and state-related institutions of Pennsylvania. Just a few years back, Lincoln was stigmatized regularly as being among the least. If you feel like an argument, you may contend, then, that this means that Lincoln is undoubtedly the best managed school.

What is happening to the federal support of higher education disturbs us greatly. Black families have a median income of only $12,000 per year. Hence, they can pay little towards the education of their children. Please work hard to see that nothing happens to your institutions, your Lincolns, in the zeal for reform.

Very sincerely yours,

Herman R. Branson

The three batiks donated to Langston Hughes Memorial Library by Dr. Joseph Wayas, President of the Senate of Nigeria and sponsor of NICOGEN, have been framed and are now hanging in the library. The batiks, created by leading Nigerian artists, depict various scenes from West African culture.

The Institute has received $1,430 in payment of pledges made by black businessmen. The pledges are in response to a Group Grant Proposal for Black Businessmen written by the Institute Director. Several thousand dollars have been pledged.

Lincoln has two guest lecturers on its campus this semester. Dr. Balam Nyeko from The University of Zambia in Lusaka, Zambia, will be guest lecturer in the History Department, and Dr. Gisele Tchoungui of The University of Yaounde in Yaounde, Cameroon, will be guest lecturer in the Department of Languages and Linguistics. Dr. Tchoungui will also work with Dr. Savage on a special TESOL project.

Their visit, as was that last semester of Dr. Mac Dixon Fyle, historian from Fourah-Bay College in Sierra Leone, is being made possible by the Phelps-Stokes Fund's African-American Professors Exchange Program. Dr. Brenda Flowers Savage is campus coordinator.

Lincoln University will chair the April 2-4, 1981, ICDP Conference to be held in Washington, D.C. The international conference aims to involve 100 international guests, including those from Africa, South America, and the Caribbean, and 50 Americans. The theme "Communication: A Key to Global Understanding" will be developed by key media persons from around the world.

The work of professor Bernard J. Felch, chairman of the Fine Arts Department, has been noted in a new book called "Low Fire, Other Ways to Work in Clay."

Dr. Willie Williams was selected to be included in the 18th edition of Who's Who in the East. Dr. Williams is listed in the third edition of Who's Who Among Black Americans, 1980-81.

Lincoln University held a conference entitled: The African/African-American/Third World Connection: A Look at the Cultural Interrelationships in the Diaspora on Feb. 17 & 18. Dr. Herman R. Branson was the opening speaker. Other events included an international buffet, film, performance by the Lincoln University Dance company, poetry reading and panel discussions.

The Institute for International Affairs sponsored a convocation on Feb. 11, featuring Dr. Gisele Tchoungui of Cameroon, speaking on "The Role of Women in French Black Africa" and Dr. Balam Nyeko of Uganda, who discussed "Uganda Now and Then."

Dr. Gladys J. Willis

Willis Lands Grant

Lincoln University received a grant of $44,221 from the National Endowment for the Humanities, President Branson announced recently.

"This is the first major grant we have received that is specifically designated to improve the teaching of the humanities and will be of tremendous benefit to our students," the President said.

The proposal for this grant was prepared by Dr. Gladys J. Willis, Chairperson, Department of English, with assistance from the Development Office.

According to Dr. Willis, funds will be used to evaluate, test and modify a new core curriculum in the Humanities Division consisting of five courses that guarantees that each Lincoln student will receive balanced instruction in the humanities.

"Lincoln is most fortunate in receiving this award," Dr. Willis concluded. "It will enable the University to maintain its traditional reputation as one of the finest black liberal arts colleges in the nation."

Mott Foundation Honors Program

Lincoln will award up to forty merit scholarships to highly qualified students entering the University in Aug., 1981. The winners, chosen solely on the basis of merit, will receive scholarships in amounts to be announced and renewed each year, provided the recipient maintains a high scholastic average.

President Herman R. Branson said that Lincoln is "interested in students who want to attend Lincoln University because it is an outstanding liberal arts institution with a long history of producing leaders," and that "these scholarships establish a way to get more good students involved in the more demanding science-oriented fields."

For more information, contact Mr. Darrell Davis, director of admissions, on exts. 206, 207.

Actuarial Science Grant

Lincoln University recently received a planning and development grant of $2,500 from the Society of Actuaries according to a Development Office announcement. The purpose of the grant is to enable the University to seek additional funding to support a proposed actuarial science program.

Under the leadership of Professor James Frankowsky, Chairman, Department of Mathematics, the University operated a series of pilot summer programs to fund and select students from predominantly Black colleges and prepare them to write the Part 1 examination of the Society of Actuaries.

Based on the outstanding success of the summer programs, Professor Frankowsky proposed to the Society that a four-year course of study be developed to increase dramatically minority representation in the actuarial field. As envisioned, the program would recruit a cadre of mathematically talented high school students throughout the nation as participants. He states that currently there are fewer than 15 black actuaries nationally and that their average salary is $45,000.

"The opportunities are there for our young people and I feel confident that Lincoln can contribute significantly in this area," Frankowsky said.

"The present grant will be used to prepare a detailed five-year budget and plan to launch the program as well as to seek essential financial assistance from the insurance industry. Funds will be used to help recruit students, provide scholarship assistance and develop and offer required courses," Frankowsky concluded.

Development Report

Lincoln University is currently processing in excess of $2,500,000 in grants and contracts, Vice President for Development, Dr. Earle D. Winderman, reported to members of the Board of Trustees Alumni Relations Committee recently.

Based on Federal Inter-Agency Commission on Education (FICE) Reports, Lincoln ranks among the very top minority schools in terms of funding and variety of projects obtained by the submission of competitive proposals prepared by the Development Office in conjunction with faculty and administrators.

Present grants range from about $50,000 to $1,700,000. Among the agencies making these awards are: The National Science Foundation (NSF), The National Institutes of Health (NIH), the U.S. and Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Offices of Education, The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Since the first of the year, the Development Office generated proposals, that if funded, would bring in more than $800,000. These involve projects in the humanities as well as the sciences. Lincoln's success in obtaining external funding contributes directly to the improvement of the quality of education available to students, as well as to the financial health of the institution.

Current grants help the University purchase library books and equipment, provide meaningful jobs for students, help pay faculty and staff salaries, provide research opportunities and enable faculty to improve their teaching skills and develop and improve their course offerings.

IN MEMORIAM

William S. Taylor

WILLIAM SPURGEON TAYLOR, beloved husband of Amber Greene Taylor, son and fourth child of the late Mr. Leroy and Phyllis (nee Gwathney) Taylor, was born March 18, 1903 in Baltimore, Maryland, and died, in the city of his birth, February 2, 1981.

He was educated, through the elementary grades, in the public schools of Baltimore, and completed his high school education and one year of college at Storer College, Harpers Ferry, West Virginia, before entering Lincoln University, Pennsylvania where he earned the Bachelor of Arts degree. Later, he received the Master of Arts degree in education from the University of Michigan.

William "Bill" Taylor, throughout his career, was an excellent student and star athlete. At Lincoln he had a phenomenal athletic career and became a four-letter athlete for three years in football, basketball, baseball, and track. Thus, it was no surprise when, in his senior year, he was chosen to receive the award for the member of the graduating class who best combined scholarship and athletics.

In 1929 he returned as athletic director and varsity coach to his Alma Mater, where he compiled an enviable record as a coach. He held other coaching positions at Morgan, Bowie, Samuel Huston College, and Arkansas State College, where he continued to display his great ability as a teacher and leader. At each place Bill's teams were successful, but his concern was always not whether they won or lost, but rather, how they played the game—aggressively, enthusiastically, but always with a spirit of fair play and good sportsmanship.

In 1944, Bill returned to his hometown to take a position as community worker in East Baltimore. There he distinguished himself and achieved remarkable success in a new career by combining his knowledge of athletics with social work which enabled him to solve many juvenile delinquency problems in the community. For this work, he was publicly recognized and honored on many occasions: the Man of the Year Award of the Baltimore Afro-American Newspapers for Superior Service; the Eastside Community Award for Organizing and Maintaining Adult Leadership Block Clubs throughout Baltimore; the Women's City-Wide Committee for Delinquency Prevention Award for raising funds to send over 5,000 poor children to summer camp; the Baltimore Urban Renewal and Housing Agency's Service Award; and the Morgan State Varsity "M" Club's Hall of Fame Award.

LU Remembers Lawrence Neal

Funeral services were held Jan. 12 at the Convent Ave. Baptist Church in Manhattan for Lawrence P. Neal, the poet, critic and playwright.

A member of the class of 1961, Mr. Neal wrote and lectured and was active in contemporary social-political movements. He was a major influence in the 60's black arts movement. The black arts movement sought to examine more closely, the role of black writers and the social function of art.

Associated with the Black Arts Theater, he collaborated with Amiri Baraka. In 1969, they edited "Black Fire," the highly acclaimed anthology of Afro-American writing.

From 1963-1965, Mr. Neal was arts editor of the Liberator, a black nationalist magazine. He later wrote for the Partisan Review, Ebony, Black World, First World, the New York Times, The Tulane Drama Review and Freedom Ways.

In 1971, he was awarded the prestigious Guggenheim Fellowship. He lectured at Yale and Drexel universities, and Lincoln, Wellesley and Williams colleges. He had a chair in humanities at Howard University. For two years, 1976 to 1978, Mr. Neal was executive director of the District of Columbia Commission on the Arts and Humanities.

At his death, he had just written the introduction to a three-volume series on the writings of Zora Neale Hurston. His book, based upon the rise of black consciousness of the 60's, was nearly finished and he was assisting Max Roach, the percussionist, to write his autobiography. Mr. Neal had also completed a jazz series for WGBH-TV of Boston and a film script on musical improvisation for Clark College in Atlanta.

Mr. Neal was born in Atlanta, Sept. 4, 1937. His family moved to Philadelphia when he was very young.

He is survived by his wife, Evelyn; a son, Avatar of New York; his mother, Maggie Neal, and four brothers, Charles, Melvin, Joseph and Robert, all of Philadelphia.

MOST COMPANIES WILL MATCH YOUR GIFT TO LINCOLN

In 1976 when Taylor returned to Lincoln University to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his graduating class, he found another honor was to be bestowed upon him. On that occasion he received an award that greatly pleased him: The General Alumni's Achievement Award in recognition of achievement and service to his Alma Mater.

During his very active and productive life, he was a loyal member of the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity and a lifetime member of Trinity Baptist Church, the same church where his father and mother were charter members under the founder, the Reverend G. R. Waller, who also was a Lincoln graduate. He was an active member and former President of The Progressive Men of Trinity, one of the organizations of his church that was dear to his heart.

Surviving are his devoted and faithful wife—Mrs. Amber Greene Taylor, former librarian at Morgan State University; one brother—Mr. Leroy Taylor, retired city school teacher; two sisters—Mrs. Ruth Johnson and Mrs. Alma Thomas, also retirees of the Baltimore public school system; three nieces, three nephews, and a host of relatives and friends.

Real quality has a way of creating its own image. Images can be fleeting—a shadow, a rippling picture in a pond, or they can be as lasting as a lifetime—a lifetime of hard work. The person who is the subject of this article embodies what may be described as possessing savoir faire—knowing what to do, underlining a social adroitness, poise implying the proper thing to say and to do under almost all circumstances.

Sons of Lincoln (as well as Daughters during the past few decades), have left her sacred halls and her campus green to seek their place on the world's stage. Some have attained lofty heights in their fields of professional endeavors and artistic achievements.

By all measures and yardsticks applied, Judge Joseph E. Dyer of New York City easily fits into the mold of a Lincolnite who has attained lofty heights in the judicial firmament. A very self-effacing and modest gentleman, one has to, through probing interviews, elicit his many achievements which reflects a track record worthy of renown. Judge Dyer is not one to flaunt his achievements and honors.

Judge Dyer retired from the bench as the Presiding Judge of the Family Courts of the State of New York, after having served in that capacity from September 1, 1962 to January 1, 1978. His successive elevations through the judicial ranks and his appointments to, and service on, prestigious legal committees are worthy of serious reflection. Let us start at the beginning of Judge Dyer's illustrious career and highlight some of his milestones along the way.

Judge Dyer was born December 19, 1907 in Dallas, Texas. He attended Lincoln University, Pennsylvania, where he was awarded the A.B. Degree in June 1928. While at Lincoln, he was a member of the Varsity Football Team during the era when Howard and Lincoln Universities' Football Teams were without peers in Collegiate Black Football. Judge Dyer also ran on Varsity

The Hon. Joseph E. Dyer

Track Team, being a perennial winner at the Penn Relays. After being graduated from Lincoln he attended the New York University Law School and received the Doctor Juris (J.D.) degree in 1933.

Judge Dyer married Otie Lee Bacoats in 1936. They have lived at 594 West 152nd Street, New York City, N.Y. since 1942.

Judge Dyer was admitted to the Bar, Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, First Department, December Term 1933. His admission to practice in other legal entities were as follows: 1937—United States District Court, Southern District of New York; 1944—United States Circuit Court of Appeals, 3rd Circuit; 1946—United States Circuit Court of Appeals, 2nd Circuit and 1947—Supreme Court of the United States.

Judge Dyer engaged in general practice of law from 1933 to May 1, 1961 at 209 West 125th Street, New York City, under the firm name of Dyer, Stevens and Murray. He was retained by the Pennsylvania Railroad from 1943 to 1948 inclusive as legal advisor to the General Manager on problems of interracial labor relations. This retainer was terminated when the Long Island Railroad was placed under receivership. From May 1, 1961 to September 1, 1962 he served as Justice, Domestic Relations Court, City of New York.

On account of his keen, penetrating and expertise in legal administration, Judge Dyer was sought by the Association of the Bar of the City of New York to serve on the following Committees:

Member for four (4) years as a member of the Committee on the Municipal Court of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York; Committee on Grievances for three (3) years; Committee on the Administration of Justice in the City of New York; Chairman of the Committee on the Municipal Court; Committee on Medical Jurisprudence and Committee on Post Admission Legal Education.

Member of the Board of Governors of the Trial Lawyers Association of the City of New York for twelve (12) years (1949-1961).

New York County Lawyers Association and former Chairman of its Subcommittee on Alcoholic and Narcotic Addicts, now a member of the Committee on Unlawful Practice of the Law.

Judge Dyer is a member of the following Associations: Association of the Bar of the City of New York, New York State Bar, Harlem Lawyers, American Bar, American Judicature Society and New York County Lawyers' Association.

In addition to Judge Dyer's outstanding service within the legal profession, he has been constantly aware that the broad spectrum of daily life encompasses facets of the religious, fraternal, civic and social organizations as well, and that their activities are not mutually exclusive. To this extent he has been active as:

Chairman Emeritus of the Board of Trustees, Friendship Baptist Church, 144 West 131st Street, New York City; St. George Association, Business and Professional Chapter; Protestant Council of the City of New York, formerly a member of its Committee on Christian Social Relations; Judge Advocate Emeritus of Prince Hall Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of New York; Past Master of Mt. Olive Lodge #2, F. & A.M. and Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity. Since his admission to the Bar in 1933 Judge Dyer has, from time to time, been guest lecturer at the New York Law School.

Being a very modest and self-effacing person Judge Dyer reluctantly disclosed some of the distinct honors conferred upon him, as well as achievements attained. It was only through prodding that the following was elicited from him, but as Howard Cosell would say, "I must tell it like it is". Well Judge Dyer has achieved a number of "firsts" to wit:

He was the "First Black" in 1955 to be appointed to the Committee on Grievances of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York. This Committee hears complaints against practicing attorneys. He was the "First Black" to be appointed Chairman of a Committee in the Association of the Bar, and Referee in Small Claims Part, Municipal Court.

Judge Dyer stated that the greatest honor that came to him, other than his judgeship, was his appointment in October 1978 to the prestigious Committee on Character and Fitness. This appointment is made by the Justice of the Supreme Court, Appellate Division, and is charged with the duty of examining personally all applicants for admission to the Bar of the State, whether they apply after passing the bar exam, transfer from another State or foreign country, or for re-admission after suspension or disbarment.

Judge Dyer was assigned by the Supreme and Surrogate Courts to serve in the following capacities as: Commissioner (with jury) in two (2) Incompetent Proceedings, Supreme Circuit; Referee to hear and report commercial cases; Referee in foreclosure actions; Receiver in foreclosure actions; Committee for Incompetent Persons; Special Guardian and Guardian ad litem for infant parties in Supreme and Surrogate Courts and Receiver of Harlem Labour Union for two (2) years.

The achievements attained by, and the honors accorded to Judge Dyer during his career are indeed worthy of praise and emulation. They redound not only favorably upon Judge Dyer as an individual, but upon his Alma Mater—Lincoln University—as well.

JULIAN BOND was on campus January 12 to highlight a Martin Luther King, Jr. celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Renwick

IN MEMORIAM
Clarence E. Renwick

Clarence E. Renwick, university barber, husband of Gladys W. Renwick of Lincoln University, died on January 25 at the Oxford Manor Presbyterian Home following a lengthy illness.

Born in Union, Newberry County, SC, he was the son of Mattie Renwick of West Chester and the late Richard Renwick.

A barber by trade, Mr. Renwick held licenses in barbering and cosmetology. He had operated shops in Missouri and New York. In 1944, the Renwicks came to Chester County and Lincoln University. This was the beginning of a great love affair—the Renwicks and the student body of Lincoln University.

He had been a member of Sacred Heart Church in Oxford since 1944.

In addition to his wife and mother, he is survived by an aunt, Addie Thompson, of Washington, DC.

Mass of Christian Burial was held on January 28, 1981 at the Sacred Heart Church in Oxford.

Clarence E. Renwick will be surely missed by the Lincoln community.

Distinguished Alum Recounts Career

his Black major domo. The salary was much higher but the job was a dead-end one and not for me. Under the circumstances, my employment was soon terminated."

Watson: "How did you react to the disappointment of making banking a career?"

Holte: "There was some bitterness at first but in retrospect, and in keeping with my philosophy that everything happens for the best, it was better to suffer the disappointment now than later. Further advancement in training and experience could have led to a dead-end since Blacks were not employed, even as tellers, in other banks in New York nor anywhere else in the country, to my knowledge, except in the few Black-owned institutions."

Watson: "I understand that this was a period of severe economic depression, unemployment was sky-high and recovery was not in sight. How did you fare?"

Holte: "Quite well. My friends had me appointed to the administrative staff of the Works Progress Administration as assistant to the Director of Race Relations, with shifts to other sensitive positions where perceptive Black input was needed. The five years in these positions provided me with the opportunities to work with people of all races, classes, attitudes and educational levels. No course of study could substitute for this experience or better prepare me for my future work."

Watson: "If my history is correct, you have arrived at the period when the country was mobilizing for World War II."

Holte: "That is correct and the urgent need in industry for skilled workers and technicians, in particular, lowered racial barriers considerably after the President's Executive Order prohibiting discrimination in employment of workers in defense industries or government because of race, creed, color, or national origin. These were the factors at play which facilitated me obtaining the position as Traffic Manager at Conlan Electric Corporation in Brooklyn, New York. The position was in the category of essential services for the war effort and the Draft Board exempted me a number of times from being called into service. There was nothing challenging about the position nor was it one which could be a satisfying career. Toward close of the war, a position as sales representative was offered and accepted with Lever Brothers Company. It meant a reduction in salary which the company could do nothing about since salaries were frozen."

Watson: "It is evident from your sacrifice that this was an opportunity you were seeking."

Holte: "It was indeed. At that time, the appointment was a major breakthrough. Only a few national corporations had begun to hire Blacks as 'goodwill ambassadors' in their communities. Doing this even made them targets of smear campaigns by competitors at the trade level. My selling the trade was a greater violation of tradition and aggravation was sure to be asserted with more intensity. My future of course was at stake and staps were taken to protect it before smears against the company and me gained a foothold. Key people in various groups in my sales territory were alerted and they informed the trade of their knowledge. As a consequence, my sales records soared above all others in Metropolitan New York — the number one consumer market in the country. Other national corporations took note and began to hire Black sales representatives here and in some other parts of the nation."

"In viewing the representation of Blacks in commerce and industry today, it is a pleasant memory to have been a pioneer in the on-going efforts that have resulted in some of them becoming officers, and even members of the boards of directors in a few national corporations."

Watson: "What you are saying Mr. Holte is historically significant, please continue."

Holte: "You will recall that Africans were the instigators of the first pre-eminent thing that occurred to me at Lincoln and which became a major development in my career. Well, the same holds true in the second development."

"Zik (the Rt. Hon. Dr. Nnamdi Azikwe), the most popular student at Lincoln during his day, returned to the States in 1947, after an absence of fifteen years. This was a time when a number of Black intellectuals whom Zik knew had been stigmatized with the leftist label. They were the only group which had planned a welcome for him in New York and Zik had agreed. The news reached me through the grapevine, together with information about plans to denounce Lever as associate of the United Africa Company which controlled the economy of most of West Africa. This did not bother me as it was not my problem, but protecting Zik's political career against whatever the British might conclude could be used against him, if his commitment were kept. As a Lincoln man, this was my concern."

"After reaching Zik, we conferred. He listened and asked to see me the next day. By then, he perhaps had discussed the matter with others and concluded that my advice was sound. He expressed appreciation for my interest and asked me to be his companion and confidante for the rest of his stay in the States. At first, it did not seem proper to me because of my Lever connection but, after discussion, it was agreed to have Lever know of his presence and that the aims of the leftists could be thwarted by my handling his affairs. The strategy worked. My time was made available, together with the automobile assigned to me and the use of my expense account. Each party was pleased with the results: Zik returned several times and other West African VIPs were received and assisted in their missions. In the cases of Kwame Nkrumah and the two visits by Sylvanus Olympio, director of United Africa Company operations in Togoland, Lever House in England directed headquarters here to have me handle them."

"For fear that my work with Africa VIPs would not be interpreted as a design by my employer, Dr. Horace Mann Bond, then President of the University, appointed me Chairman, Lincoln University Reception Committee for African VIPs."

"After these interludes of highly sensitive international relations, together with equally successful results in lobbying in the capital of New York among legislators for passage of the bill which would permit the sale of yellow margarine in the State, a twenty-year pet project of Lever and other manufacturers that had failed every time a bill was introduced, and participation in a number of national conventions of women and of newspapers, my call to duty was always back to selling. It was a situation which bore heavily on my forbearance and, on being told in early 1952 that the company was not ready to make a change in my position, it seemed that again my efforts had come to a dead-end, but this was not to be. In June, an offer came from Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborn Advertising Agency, (the agency is a leader in the field with about 150 clients, including Lever Brothers) to join its Marketing Department. The position entailed anlyses interpretation and development of advertising and promotional programs for the agency's clients, and servicing them on related problems."

Watson: "This position would seem like entering Valhalla."

Holte: "Yes, that is the way the news media played up the appointment. The story was newsworthy because the appointment was a break-through into the cloisters or ivy tower of Madison Avenue. My gratification, however, was the opportunity for maximum use of my ability and to work with highly professional people. Some of their expertise had to rub off even though it did not relate to my work. What made my work extraordinarily challenging was the lack of any available resource for counsel since this was a pioneer situation. In a way, this was good for it sharpened my creativity and depth of thinking. My knowledge of Black history in relation to general American history provided a foundation for all phases of my work and led a number of clients to rethink factors which went into making policy decisions. Many conferences did not pertain to advertising or marketing but with racial matters which some clients were reluctant to discuss with what they called 'outsiders' because it would make them obligated."

"The work produced by my department, which had grown to require two assistants, was so well respected that it led the agency to add the Spanish-speaking Consumer Markets for which a bi-lingual marketing specialist was engaged."

Watson: "Before you become too tired, describe a few of your major projects."

Holte: "In creating and developing an idea, my action was based on the extent to which the idea appeared to enhance the well-being of the consumers, for attraction or affinity to a product or service is usually in direct relation to the meaningfulness of the idea. The first two examples are intended to stimulate the sense of pride in the contributions of Blacks to the welfare of the general population:

"The award-winning 'Ingenious American Series' was produced for National Distillers Corporation in 1966. It featured little-known Black inventors and scientists whose work introduced or revolutionized a usage or practice in their respective field — electric lights, making shoes, refining sugar, lubricating heavy locomotives, exploring the North Pole, creating the gas mask, the blood bank, etc."

"In 1970, a series was produced for Scott Paper Company in which the pivotal participation of Blacks was shown in major events in American history. They included The Spanish-American War; The War of 1812; Establishment of the Oldest Landmark in New York City; Saving Philadelphia from becoming a Ghost City; The Founding of Los Angeles; Opening of the West by the Buffalo Soldiers; The Founding of Chicago; and Blacks Among Founders of the Oldest City in the United States."

"In a very long-running testimonial series produced for the American Tobacco Company in the late 1950s, the concept was to inspire young Blacks to obtain an education and to develop their skills. The series featured those, as role models, who were carving out careers in occupations where there had been little or no representation."

"Let me mention also the use of documentary films to further the aforementioned objectives. The idea was generated upon receiving an invitation from Nkrumah to attend the Independence celebration of his country, as guest of the government. Since most films and news stories about the country focused on the bush part and on English paternalism, a short documentary from the Afro-American perspective was needed. Schaeffer Brewing Company agreed to underwrite the project and make prints from the film available on loan to organizations. The team for the filming consisted of a cameraman, a Black producer and myself, as technical consultant."

"The same set of circumstances prevailed for filming the ceremonies on the elevation of Zik as Governor-General of Nigeria. This film, 'Now Nigeria,' was screened on television, replacing a regular program of Schaeffer which was rescheduled."

"In between these projects, the same concept was employed and the same team filmed the activities for creation of the Federation of the West Indies, held in Trinidad in 1958. General Baking Company sponsored the project and used the film for its public relations activities."

"The projects which have been the most exciting do not relate at all to my work at BBDO but to activities while on loan to clients. These activities took me to West Africa eight times. They came about initially from my becoming a friend to Zik at Lincoln and subsequently befriending him and other West African VIPs, without any ulterior motive. However, it is the relationship with them, now leaders in government, which made my services important to clients for outside projects."

"General Mills, one of the largest processors of flour in the world, and a major supplier to Nigeria, was concerned in 1959 about European mills making proposals to construct and operate a mill in Nigeria. If consummated, this export business would cease. Thought, accordingly, was given to the possibility of making a counter proposal, if knowledge were available about what they would be up against. The officials learned about my connections and delegated me, with approval of my employer, to visit Nigeria to obtain the desired information, if possible. The job was done in short order, but much to my disappointment, General Mills did not feel it expedient to make a counter proposal."

"General Electric, one of the largest companies of its kind in the world was not doing well in meeting competition in Tropical Africa. A steel mill Nigeria was considering to have built posed the crucial test. The GE officials also learned of my connections and delegated me to determine how far competitors had gotten with their proposals and do the same for the Niger River Hydro Development Project, and for the Diesel Electric Program of Nigerian State Railways. The estimated value of these projects was nearly one-half billion dollars, and GE had not been able to get into the running."

"The competition for these projects was international in scope, complexities and in-fighting. The contract for the steel mill had almost been entered into before my arrival in Nigeria, but it was my good fortune to learn the contents of the proposal which GE found serious flaws. This assist made it possible for them to submit a proposal which went ahead of the others. Some enemies, of course, were created. These projects consumed all of my time for nearly two years but had to be abandoned because the political situation grew increasingly worse, inclining toward civil war which did occur."

"Lastly, let me tell you about my 'Nubian Baby Book.' It was conceived to fulfill a need and no expense was spared to produce the best and most relevant Black baby book on the market. It differs from any other baby book. Although it follows the diary type format, it contains African Proverbs or excerpts from poems by Black poets which relate to the caption on each page. There is also a page of advice on child care, as

Rights Battler Honored

Reprinted with permission of The Sunday Star-Ledger.

By Frederick W. Byrd

The Newark Public Library held a reception last week to honor William Ashby, the 92-year-old "elder statesman" of New Jersey's civil rights movement, upon publication of his new book, "Tales Without Hate."

The 160-page book contains Ashby's recollections of the history of blacks in Newark which Thomas Alrutz, director of the library, calls an "invaluable addition to black history collections."

"We wanted to honor Mr. Ashby because he has been associated with the library for so long and given so much," Alrutz said. "We also want to recognize the accomplishments of all those people who live in Newark."

Ashby was born in Carter Creek, Va. in 1889 but moved to New Jersey when he was 15 years old. Among other accomplishments, he became the state's first black social worker, organized the Negro Welfare League of New Jersey, was a case worker for the Newark Welfare Division and established the Urban League of Eastern Union County in Elizabeth.

Although he officially retired in 1954, Ashby is still active in the Newark Human Rights Commission, the Urban League of Essex County, the Afro-American Committee of the New Jersey Historical Society, the Newark Preservation and Landmarks Committee and the Frontiers' Club.

Charles Cummings, director of the New Jersey Reference Division at the library, said of him: "He is one of those people who have information that just cannot be obtained anywhere else, and his contributions to the library and the city are invaluable. For instance, he has made several tapes of reminiscences for our oral history catalogues."

Donald Dust, chairman of the Newark Preservation and Landmarks Committee, added: "We published his book and it is the first time we've ever published one. But this is a special case."

The committee published 3,000 copies of the limited-edition.

"Because of his vast background, he helped the committee at crucial moments," Dust continued. "There were times when we felt like packing it in, but he was always there to give his help and insights to keep us going."

Langdom Dames, current director of the Urban League of Essex County, added: "He is living history, a remarkable person. He is proof that through hope and optimism, strength and faith you can survive. Despite all he's been through, and that is a lot, he still has an affirmative attitude about life and the future."

Mrs. Dora Mazur of the Newark Senior Citizens' Commission added: "For years I've worked with him. He has helped us know how to lobby in Washington, how to help the senior citizens get what they need. I think he is really a great man."

Ashby himself took all the praise in stride. Talking of his book, he said: "I didn't set out to write it; it happened this way:

"During my last years with the Urban League I found if I told a story about the past when I went to speak, people would appreciate it; it reminded them of things they had been through.

"They then asked me if I had ever written down any of these things. Finally, the urgings became so persistent I decided just to write the darn thing. And everything just rolled out of my mind; I hardly had to do any research."

Ashby has met governors and presidents, kings and emperors but he says the person he remembers most vividly was a prostitute in Virginia at the turn of the century.

"I was her paper boy and I remember once when I was walking to her apartment, I heard her shouting at somebody not to use foul language because her paper boy was coming.

"This was a prostitute talking to her John, but she retained that dignity. Later she told me she didn't want to be a prostitute but did it to survive, and now couldn't change.

"I respect people who maintain their dignity no matter what life has done to them. I know a lot of people like that," he said.

in addition to the 1964 incident in Selma, Alabama where blacks were beaten for asking about their basic right to vote, gave the students the stimulus to stage their protest for equal rights. Mr. Young felt this was the impetus for civil rights legislation.

Young pointed out the role of historically black colleges, dating from 1930 to the present: "colleges in the 30's and 40's created a broad-based middle class who helped implement their ideas into government. With the 50's came an influx of black and white lawyers who developed meaningful black legislation. The 60's saw the creation of the mass movement under the aegis of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. The 70's brought increased activity of black, political action." Young pointed out that the number of black elected officials grew from 1,600 in 1960 to over 5,000 presently. He feels that students can continue to have an impact on the geopolitical markings of the 1980's.

Young stressed the importance of registering to vote as units or blocks. He feels this will start a domino effect with other campuses and create a situation in which political leaders would seek to represent college community opinion.

Mr. Young shared his feelings about inflation, the third world and the mysterious deaths of black children in Atlanta, as well as shedding some light on his intention to run for Mayor of Atlanta.

Despite the many, complex problems facing our nation, Mr. Young espoused an optimistic outlook. "Hope is in the people," were his final words.

The Right to be Mediocre

By Ms. Audrey Dean
Director of Public Relations

Blacks and other minorities do not have the "right" to be mediocre, according to Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers, chairman of Lincoln University's Department of Languages and Linguistics. "WASPs have the right to," said Rodgers, "but it's a luxury that blacks can ill afford."

"The minority person has to prove him or herself more so than someone who is a member of the WASP culture," said Rodgers. "The so-called American culture is built on the WASP standard," he continued. "According to his standard, minorities do not have the right to be mediocre, to be average. To be average is considered failure. In order to be recognized, the minority must be above average, even if he is competing with a WASP who is average."

Rodgers certainly could not be labeled mediocre, by anyone's definition. A summa cum laude, Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Morehouse, he received a Ph.D. in French from the University of Southern California. He has won numerous awards and honors, including a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship at Harvard University, a Merrill Travel-Study Fellowship in Grenoble, France, and the Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching in 1974, a year after he joined Lincoln's faculty. Some of the publications that Rogers has been included in are Outstanding Americans, 1976-77, American Biographic Institute; International Who's Who of Intellectuals, Vol. II, 1978, and Directory of American Scholars, Vol. VII, 1978.

Rodgers said he based his theory of mediocrity on his own observations of American society and statistical data.

Blacks who do not exercise the right to be mediocre are "quickly labeled an exception," Rodgers said. "In the use of language itself, a minority or black person who is articulate is quickly labeled

'an exception.' You are not expected to use standard English." However, cautioned the language professor, blacks and members of other minority groups must work hard to be able to achieve the right to be mediocre by becoming better educated, politically organized, pooling their resources and patronizing their own businesses.

Educators, in particular, should constantly emphasize the need to excel and the need for academic excellence to their minority students, Rodgers said. "Students cannot afford to goof off in a society that expects them to be superior. If any recognition is given, and at least the student will have a chance to bring superior qualities to his employer," he added.

In order to ameliorate conditions, Rodgers emphasized that blacks should form a coalition with other distressed and poor minorities, particularly Hispanics. Hispanics will become the largest minority group before the year 2000, predicted Rodgers, who quoted data from the Oct. 1980 issue of the magazine Spanish Today, showing an increase of 65.1 percent in the Hispanic population since 1970, and a 9.6 percent increase for the total U.S. population during this same period. According to the publication, Hispanics now number almost 15 million in the United States and 80 percent live in 10 American cities.

Rodgers said, however, that WASPs will try to prevent a minority coalition by assimilating Hispanics into the white culture. He said that whites "will be more accepting of Hispanics than blacks. We're in for a very interesting 21st Century," he added.

Although WASPs are also a minority, because of their economic power and other means, Rodgers said they set the standards for American society. "We're going to have to live with it," he admitted, "unless blacks become the dominant economic group. Every society makes distinctions, either along religious, social or economic lines," he concluded.

Recreational-Development Clinic

The Recreation Program of Lincoln is sponsoring its ninth Children's Recreation Developmental Clinic. Held on Saturdays, the clinic's aim is to improve the physical, motor, social and emotional skills of children 4-12 through physical activity. Many recreational, gymnastic and perceptual-motor activities are provided. Stress free, non-competitive situations enable each child to experience an enjoyable, successful motor-physical activity, to become better able to deal with others and to develop a more positive concept. Professor James L. Deboy is the program coordinator.

TRACK TEAM

The Lincoln University track team has started its bid for their first National Championship for Division III schools. The team is working hard in all areas trying to improve its weaknesses and to overcome other obstacles that seem to poison good teams (discipline).

Coach Jones feels that the team is better and will improve as the time progresses. The team had its first meet for the 1981 season. With great pride we participated in the Philadelphia Track Classic where Charles Bethea, Mike Randolph, Charles Brown and Greg Fluker managed to cross the finish line with a better time than Delaware State and other teams (Princeton, University of Pittsburgh and other larger teams than Lincoln).

On Sat., Jan. 24, Lincoln traveled to Bucknell University to compete with Penn State, Georgetown, Delaware State, Hagertown and about ten other colleges.

Van Youngblood broke the 60 yard high hurdle record at Lincoln and is now ranked third on the East Coast, (7.38). Again, Charles Bethea, Mike Randolph, Charles Brown and Greg Fluker had the best time in the mile relay ahead of Penn State (a time of 3:22.5). Mike Randolph and Greg Fluker finished one and two in the 440 yd. dash. The two mile relay team, with just one upperclassman, Wayne Jackson, and the rest freshmen—Alonzo Cephus, Mike Gilliam and Steve Randolph, crossed the finish line before their other opponents. This team could turn out to be one of Lincoln's strongest teams.

Other members who ran well were: Dwayne Allen, Steve Allen, Fred Bennett, Horace Coleman, Tracy Dunbar, Keith Forbes, William Hart, Kerrick Johnson, Sammie Jones, Brian Ramsey, Sid Shannon, Leon Sutton, Wayne Thomas and Randy Yarde.

VARSITY BASKETBALL TEAM

During the Lebanon Valley Tournament, Jan. 9-10, the Lions lost to Susquehanna University but won against Shenandoah College. Chuck Harris was selected for the All-Tournament team.

The Lions outdistanced the Salisbury State Seagulls, 84-52, in their first home game on Mon., Jan. 12. Two other home games were played that week: On Tues., the Lions continued their winning streak and beat Rutgers Camden 51-49. However, on Thurs., the Lions were robbed by the Pirates of Hampton Institute, 55-47. After losing to Stockton State College on the 20th.

LINCOLN VS. CHEYNEY

Emotions and expectations were high on Mon., Feb. 16, when the Lincoln Lions hosted the Cheyney State Wolves in their den. Hoping to break their record of not beating Cheyney since 1971, the Lions took it to the Wolves from beginning to end, but had a 63-62 loss. After the dust had settled in the first half, the Wolves had a 27-22 lead.

The second half began, as did the first, with poor outside shooting by the Wolves and pure determination by the Lions. George Melton (24 pts.) of Cheyney continued his consistency and was aided by the second half scoring of Kevin Taylor (19 pts.). With 39 seconds remaining, and the score 63-60, Keith Johnson went to the line with a one and one and missed. Gibson went to the line, hitting both attempts and cutting the margin to one. At 28 seconds, Kevin Taylor then went to the line for Cheyney with a one and one. He missed and the rebound was grabbed by Marc Best; the Lions called time out for one last shot.

Everyone was expecting Pete Arnold (22 pts.), a senior who had kept the Lions in the game the whole night, to take the last shot, but it was Ron Gibson who attempted an 18 foot shot that missed history. Cheyney left the game with a statistical victory, but it was the Lions who made everyone a believer.

In a preliminary game the J.V. squads of the respective teams squared off with Cheyney, the victor, 79-61. The Lions' last home and final game will be against the University of the District of Columbia on Mon., Feb. 23, at 8:00 p.m.

Prior to the game against Cheyney State, the Lions had three straight wins against Coppin State College, Salisbury State College and Southeastern University. The Lions' record is now 8-10.

"LADY LIONS LEAD PAIAW III SOUTH CONFERENCE

Following a month-long vacation, the Lady Lions suffered their first two losses of the season. They fell to Millersville State College on Jan. 20 by a score of 55-50. The game was a thriller that was finally decided in the last minute of play. Lincoln lost to York College on Jan. 24 by a score of 69-62. Lack of mental concentration was a significant factor in the loss.

The Lady Lions broke their two game losing streak on Jan. 29 by defeating a hapless Haverford College squad by a resounding score of 100-22. By defeating Eastern College on Feb. 4, the Lady Lions raised their overall average to 8-2. They sport a 7-0 record in the Philadelphia Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (PAIAW) III South Conference.

With the able assistance of Diane Hightower and Barbara Cirtenden, the Lady Lions are roaring toward a championship! Their last home game, and final game of the season, was Fri., Feb. 20 against Our Lady of Angels at 6:00 p.m.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS

"As a result of their performance on the Shorter Catechism memory examination on Dec. 21, 1980, the following are the winners of this year's 1980-81 Samuel Robinson Scholarship competition: Deborah Clark, George Anderson and Fletcher Huggins.

The Office of Student Financial Aid congratulates the winners of the scholarship and thanks Mr. Herschel Bailey, professor Andrew Murray, and Rev. John West for their assistance in judging the competition."

Distinguished Alum

well as a page listing relevant books that may be read to the child.

"Apart from information about my activities, the 21st Century Foundation in New York City paid me the heartwarming honor in 1977 of naming an anonymous endowment of $50,000 the Clarence L. Holte Prize. It seeks biennially to award a contemporary author of a work of excellence in literature and the humanities, relating to the cultural heritage of Africa and the African diaspora."

Watson: "Mr. Holte, thank you so much. You have been most kind and generous in providing us with so much information about yourself. I've been so carried away with what you have been saying that I hesitated to break your train of thought. Surely, the students will be inspired by your accomplishments that are so worthy of emulation. Thank you again.

I LOVE LINCOLN

The Student Government Association began its "I Love Lincoln" campaign at the first home basketball game on Jan. 12. Shortly before the game began, hundreds of the blue and orange buttons were distributed to the Lion fans.

The buttons are inscribed with the words "I Love Lincoln—It's a Great Sensation!" A drawing of the mascot is in the center. The buttons have been an immediate success among faculty, staff, and administration, as well as students.

The SGA plans the campaign to be a successful, semester-long effort. Games, quizzes, and contests will also be used as part of the campaign's purpose—to raise school spirit. Other Lincoln paraphernalia are expected in the near future.

PSYCHOLOGY GRAD SCHOOL PROGRAM

As part of the Psychology Department's efforts to increase the number of students achieving admission to graduate programs in psychology, the following juniors and seniors participated in a special two-day recruitment workshop, sponsored by the University of Delaware in December: Cindy Buckson, Donna Butler, Deborah Kim Hammond, Stevyn Hodge, Elphanie Moody, Mora Nickens, Mark Rhymes, Herman Turnage, Francine Urguhart and Cathy Young.

At the workshop, students were exposed to a number of activities designed to facilitate their graduate admissions. They met with faculty and graduate students in the Psychology Department, who described their operations. Our students were also able to begin negotiations for acceptance into the Summer Pre-Graduate Program at Delaware. Students were accompanied by Drs. Charles Duncan and William E. Gardner, and all expenses were covered by the University of Delaware Office of Minority Affairs.

During the fall term, recruiters from the University of Louisville, Howard University, University of Baltimore, and Eastern Michigan University interviewed our students.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARD

Timothy McGilberry, a 20-year-old business major, was awarded the 1980-81 IVB Scholarship Award by IVB Bank in Oxford, Pa.

David B. Thomas, assistant vice president of IVB, said the bank began the $1,000 scholarship award last year because of "the excellent relationship that IVB has had with Lincoln University over the years."

A Dean's List student, Mr. McGilberry was awarded the scholarship because of his academic record and extracurricular activities. He is a member of the Business and Economics Club, treasurer for the Class of 1982, treasurer for Inter-Dormitory Council, a peer counselor, and is WLIU radio's announcer "Disco Plus."

Chapter News

CENTRAL NEW JERSEY will be a newly formed chapter by the fall of the year. Leonard Bethel '61 is currently setting up a committee in Plainfield, NJ. When this group is solidified they will move out to the rest of central Jersey to form a strong chapter.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA: Sid Estes '53, Carol Luther '71, Bill Mercer '44, Howard Wright, and Corey Mitchell ex '30, have shown strong interest in organizing a Lincoln Chapter in Atlanta. Sid Estes is coordinating the group's efforts and working with the Alumni Office.

CINCINNATI, OHIO—Maria Casey Gooden '74, Warren Gooden '75 and Sylvester Murray '63, are working to establish a chapter in the Cincinnati area. Presently, they are scrutinizing our alumni list for their locale. When this work is completed, a reception will be held for interested alumni to organize the proposed chapter.

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND is continuing its membership drive. A spring event for the chapter is being planned by Julius Taylor '38, and Horace Judson '63. Baltimore Area alums are urged to get in touch with Horace Judson, Chapter Coordinator. Your support is encouraged and needed.

The WASHINGTON, D.C. Chapter had a very successful Lincoln Day Dinner on February 12, 1981. More than 125 persons were in attendance. Dr. Herman R. Branson was the keynote speaker. Mr. Osmond H. Brown '43, Chapter President, announced plans for a scholarship fund that will aid Washington area students who attend Lincoln University. When the final details are made, the Alumni Bulletin will make them known.

The NORTH NEW JERSEY CHAPTER is currently undergoing a membership drive. Walt Chambers '53, and Hilton Davis '50, are coordinating this effort. On April 5th, the chapter held a Dinner-Dance to interest area Lincolnes in reactivating the chapter.

The PHILADELPHIA CHAPTER held its Dinner Dance on February 27, 1981. During the evening, Dr. Henry G. Cornwell '33, was honored by the chapter for his brilliant teaching career at the university.

NEW YORK CHAPTER is trying to enlist younger alumni in the work of the chapter. Under the leadership of Hayward Jones '38, area alumni are being contracted to assist the chapter with its plans and goals.

Professor Orrin Clayton Suthern, chairman of Lincoln University's Music Department and university organist, has been elected to a four-year term on the Public Committee for the Humanities in Pennsylvania.

THE DIRECTOR'S CORNER

The work of this office is continuing to develop and grow. A completed, computerized alumni list has put us in touch with more alumni. More persons are utilizing the Alumni Office. Alumni giving has increased. We still have a way to go. More gifts are needed to assist university planning goals.

We are working out the problems which have stalled our Annual Fund Drive and Alumni Directory. Both goals will be achieved this year. Chapter organization is slowly rounding into form. However, it is a university goal to have active chapters around the country. This goal may only be realized with your help.

Presently, this office is readying to receive each of you during Commencement Weekend, May 1st thru 3rd. Reunion classes for 1981 are years ending with "1" and "6." The Class of 1931 will be celebrating their 50th reunion anniversary. The Honorable Carl H. Moultrie will be the Commencement speaker. Alumni Awards will be presented to William Ashby, '11; Lucious May '31; and Jessie Gloster, '41. The "RABBLE" is packing up, hurrying to meet you here.

See you in May!

CAMPUS BRIEFS

Professor Obi Ugoji attended the American Management Association Seminar on Nigeria Update, held on March 19-20 at the AMA Headquarters in New York.

Professor Ugoji presented a paper on "Nigeria-Economic Development." Other speakers covered other areas of the Nigerian economy, such as Current Investment Opportunities and Prospects, Nigeria's Indigenization Policy, Money and Banking, etc. The seminar was educative and well attended.

March 30 to April 5 was the Fifth Annual Engineering Week at Lincoln. John Noble, a freshman, was named the Most Outstanding Engineering Student of 1980-81. Some of the many activities were: a Model Rocket Show, guest speakers, seminars, and a Banquet and Award ceremony.

★★★★★★

Dr. Jean A. White has an article published in the Winter 1981 edition of the Pennsylvania Recreation and Parks Journal entitled, "Geriatric Therapeutic Recreation Program at Lincoln University."

On Mon., April 6, Dr. White spoke on "Senior Programming" at the Pennsylvania Recreation and Parks convention, held in Tamiment, Pa.

★★★★★★

Dr. Joanne V. Gabbin chaired the panel "Black Scholars During the 1940's and 1950's," at an historic conference entitled "Rescuing the Past... Securing the Future: Black Scholars and Scholarship" held at University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill on April 3 and 4. Dr. Gabbin introduced and commented on the papers of Charles Nichols, author of Arna Bontemps and Langston Hughes Letters; Samuel Allen, poet; Frances Grimes, critic; and Darwin T. Turner, author of fourteen books of criticism on drama and fiction.

★★★★★★

Dr. Margaret Batschelet, assistant professor of English, gave a speech titled "Benjamin Franklin After 60" for a National Endowment on aging at the Humanities symposium on aging at the Chester County Library, April 9, 1981.

★★★★★★

Lincoln University's Fifth Annual Careers Day was sponsored by Allied Chemical Corporation, Proctor and Gamble Distributing Company, and Agway Incorporated. Allied Chemical and Proctor and Gamble each contributed $100. Agway Incorporated's contribution was $300. These gifts are greatly appreciated by the Career Services Center (CSC) because the cost of holding Careers Day has more than doubled in the past five years. In fact, the contributions the CSC has received to date will only cover about one-fourth of the total cost of this year's Careers Day program. Careers Day 1981 was held Wed., March 18, 1981.

Busy Prof on the Move

Dr. William E. Gardner has been asked to join the Research Review Committee of the Division of Policy Research and Analysis of the National Science Foundation. This division is concerned with industrial innovation processes, Innovation process decisions in private firms, state and local government innovation processes, and federal-civilian technology transfer.

On Feb. 28, Dr. Gardner gave a presentation at the Maryland Association for Non-White Concerns in Personnel and Guidance, American Personnel and Guidance Association conference. Dr. Gardner's presentation was regarding the diagnosis and assessment of Rural and Suburban Minority Children. The conference was held at the University of Maryland-Eastern Shore.

Dr. Gardner met with Dr. Blevin Williams of Education Testing Service, Princeton, N.J., on Feb. 27. As the editor of the Journal for Non-White Concern in Personnel and Guidance, Dr. Gardner negotiated with Dr. Williams re: special articles and an edition on testing.

On March 1, Dr. Gardner joined Drs. Thomas Gunnings, Michigan State University; Wendell Rivers, St. Louis University; Samuel Johnson, National Service and Scholarship Fund for Negro Students; and James Goodman, Morehouse College, in a planning session to develop a program to treat the situational stress caused by the murders of children in Atlanta, Ga. The initial meeting sponsored by the city administration, and scheduled for Atlanta, will be followed by implementation of the treatment program.

1981 Commencement

"No one said the road would be easy," the Honorable Parren J. Mitchell of Maryland told the members of the graduating classes. "Malcolm X didn't say it. Martin Luther King didn't say it. Frederick Douglass didn't say it. You are the army I see to challenge the system. We are in an awesome struggle to which you must commit yourself. Like Martin Luther King, you haven't lived until you've found something to die for."

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Representative Mitchell, J. Newton Hill, '20; Dr. Theodore E. Bolden, '41; Dr. Wade Wilson, president of Cheyney; Charles A. Robinson, and William S. Thompson.

In his charge to the graduates, J. Newton Hill advised them to dream dreams and see visions. "You must learn to overcome human frailty and press on. The world is seething with unrest. Although the task is difficult, let's get to it." Kenneth C. Holder, president of the Class of 1981, responded to the charge.

One member of the undergraduate class, which numbered approximately 152, was graduated summa cum laude. Renosi Mokate, Transvaal, South Africa, led the class, followed by Rose M. Musonye, Kenya, East Africa, who was graduated magna cum laude. As valedictorian and salutatorian, they served as honorary marshals. Ten other members of the class received their degrees magna cum laude, and 19 received their degrees cum laude.

The degree of Master of Human Services was conferred upon 101 graduate students. Graduating with distinction were Cleopatra J. Anderson, Philadelphia, Pa.; Barbara Cassell, Yeadon, Pa.; and Terri A. Illenberger, Bensalem, Pa.

Dr. Bernard R. Woodson, executive vice president and provost, and Dr. Rose Pinckney, director of the Master's Program, presented the graduates to Dr. Branson, who conferred their degrees upon them.

The invocation was given by the Rev. LeRoy Patrick, '39, pastor of the Bethesda United Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh, and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Cecil D. Gallup, pastor of the Holy Baptist Church in Philadelphia. The University Chorale, under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Sutherland II, furnished music during the services.

Dr. Jean A. White was selected to the Pennsylvania Department of Education team to review the health, physical education and recreation program at Edinboro State College for accreditation, Feb. 3-5.

Hill Challenges New Grads

Commencement exercises have traditionally marked a pause in a brief academic period and, obviously, the beginning of a new era. The occasion has given youth the opportunity to dream and to see visions. By way of contrast Commencement gives me the opportunity of behaving like a senior citizen. I therefore claim my privilege of reminiscing and of giving advice. I know, however, that you have the democratic right of rejecting anything that I may say. I rush to assure you that I shall not over-indulge my privilege of reviewing the past.

I consider it quite fitting to recall a special performance given in The Mary Dodd Brown Chapel, by that distinguished citizen, Paul Robeson who had come to this campus to receive his Award of Merit. Paul gave us a scholarly talk and then charmed his audience with a few songs. When I knew he was nearing the end of his program, I sent him a note and asked him to give us an encore. I remember his slightly whimsical expression when he read the note and quickly began singing a well known labor ballad:

I dreamed I saw Joe Hill last night
As live as you and me
I said—Say Joe—I thought you're dead

I never died, said he
I never died, said he.

I trust you will accept the implied analogy. I never died and I surely am not Lazarus, although I graduated sixty years ago.

I recall, with profound respect and admiration some of my associates on this campus, and I must admit that my students taught me that they could learn in spite of their teachers. They did not flinch when I introduced them to Chaucer's Clerk of Oxenford who still stands out as a model teacher. You remember:

"Gladly would he lerne
And gladly teche."

Nor would they cut class when they knew I expected them to quote certain passages from Sidney, or Shakespeare, or Milton, or perhaps Cullen.

Some disagreed when I insisted that Francis Thompson's "Hound of Heaven" was at once full of imaginative impressionism and striking felicities. But, when I told them that Thompson was a victim of tuberculosis and that he failed his medical examinations three times, they took renewed interest, if only to admit that even a mystic could be human. But they grasped the important lesson:

Man must learn to overcome human frailty and defeat. That was the double lesson which came from their study of Francis Thompson.

The prowess of Lincoln athletes we have conceded. But equally impressive was the fact that Lincoln Players produced The Cardinal before a combined audience of 400 Bryn Mawr and Haverford students and received eight curtain calls from the overwhelmed students. I could cite several instances quite similar to this but time forbids. I must make the point, however, that Lincoln students must not neglect the Humanities. They must be balanced with the Sciences, if we are to contribute to this on-going march toward civilization. I consider it inexcusably bad judgment, if a student fails to study the art masterpieces at the Barnes Gallery in Merion, Pennsylvania. The world

NEWCOMERS

- Dr. Virginia B. Modla started as an instructor in Education last month. Prior to joining Lincoln, Dr. Modla was a reading specialist at Hamilton High School East in Hamilton Township, N.J. Dr. Modla holds a Ph.D. in psychology of reading from Temple University.

- Mr. Edward M. Haas is a part-time laboratory assistant in biochemistry, MISIP. Mr. Haas has a M.S. in cell biology from Duquesne University.

- Carol L. Auger is an administrative systems programmer in the Computer Center. Mrs. Auger has a B.A. in Art History from the State University of New York at Binghamton.

Dr. J. Newton Hill

needs culture, if mankind is not to see further holocausts. During my teaching days at Lincoln, I worked for this realization and I still do so.

And now, members of the graduating class of 1981, I admonish you, to think not so much of Thompson's adversities, but of his creative expressiveness despite those adversities. The world needs people who can look beyond the difficulties of life by grasping the opportunity for dealing with those problems.

I cannot tell you that all is beautiful beyond this campus; you know better! Crime is rampant in our States. Gun control is still denied us; The Middle East is still seething with unrest. The Third World is here to stay and gives a new dimension to international scenes. Diplomacy seems to falter on brinkmanship—always. Unemployment is rife! But there are more persons throughout the world today who are aware of the meaning of freedom than ever before. But those people want leadership! There is hope in this realization only if you are willing to work for people by remaining above the taint of personal and racial greed, by avoiding separatism which could surely bring devastation to all our hopes for the unification of mankind. This is not a plea for Utopia, but for common sense leadership wherever it is needed. You have the key in your hands. Take it and open the door of opportunity—not for yourselves, but for all mankind. Now, as the British are won't to end their talks: Let's get on with the job!

J. Newton Hill

Mack Baccalaureate Speaker

The Rev. Charles H. Mack, '50, '53s, pastor of St. James A.M.E. Zion Church of Sallsbury, Md., gave the baccalaureate address in the morning. His topic was "The Challenge of the Hills." He told the graduates to seek higher ground away from the trash, debris, dirt, and filth of the lowlands. It is necessary to move out into the midstream of life and get into the action.

"No hill is too high if you can recognize the fact that God has said that the hill is yours. You can make it if you can take it. You can meet the challenge if you recognize the fact that you are somebody and develop the capacity to sleep on a stormy night. If you have done your work before you go to bed, then you can sleep on a stormy night."

On a concluding note the Rev. Mr. Mack admonished the graduates that they must do their work as there are no shortcuts to the top of the hill. "You must keep yourself ready to ascend the hill."

Francine Urquhart, a member of the Class of 1981, participated in the service with the reading of the scripture lesson. The invocation and the benediction were given by the Rev. John H. West III, the University chaplain. Music was provided by the University Chorale.

The Reverend Charles H. Mack, '50, '53s

COMPUTER CONFERENCE

Dr. Elliott W. Simon, a research associate on Lincoln University's CAUSE grant, attended the 1981 conference of the Association for the Development of Computer-Based Instructional Systems in Atlanta, Ga., March 2-5. Dr. Simon presented a paper at the conference on work that has been completed and is proposed at Lincoln with regard to the inclusion of computer assisted instruction in the introductory science and mathematics courses.

Dr. Branson is delegate to AASCU

Dr. Herman R. Branson was selected as a delegate on the American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU) Mission to the People's Republic of China, June 29-July 11, 1981.

The purpose of the mission is to acquaint the members of the delegation with higher education trends and issues in the PRC; to visit selected colleges, universities, and institutes to renew contacts initiated on the 1975 AASCU Mission to the PRC; and to develop linkages between AASCU colleges and universities and colleges and universities in the People's Republic of China with particular emphasis on the graduate level in the areas of science and technology, engineering and the social sciences.

The AASCU Delegation will also have discussions with officials in the Ministry of Education and members of provincial higher education bureaus as well as visiting a number of selected colleges, universities and institutes and possibly have a joint seminar at the end of the mission in Shanghai to review topics and trends of mutual interest.

Dr. Herman R. Branson was a guest speaker for Scholarship Day at Holy Trinity Baptist Church in Philadelphia on Feb. 22. The Reverend Cecil D. Gallup is minister of the church.

On Feb. 27, Dr. Branson was a guest speaker for Black Heritage Month, sponsored by National Marine Fishery Service and Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution for the Scientific Community. The program was held in Whitman Auditorium of the Marine Biological Laboratory in Woods Hole, Conn.

On March 4, at Bowie State College, Dr. Branson was the guest speaker at a Mathematics-Science-Engineering seminar.

Dr. Herman R. Branson attended a meeting of the Phelps-Stokes Steering Committee on Bellagio Conference in Washington, D.C. on March 16.

March 20-22, the president attended NAFO's 6th National Conference on Blacks in Higher Education.

ACCREDITATION COMMITTEE

Dr. Herman R. Branson has been selected by Secretary of Education Shirley M. Hufstедler to serve on the National Advisory Committee on Accreditation and Institutional Eligibility. The committee reviews various accrediting agencies and associations and advises Ms. Hufstедler on other matters pertaining to institutional eligibility.

HOMER U. ASHBY died of cancer on March 17 in the University of Pennsylvania Hospital. Before his retirement in 1976 he served as district superintendent in charge of attendance in the Philadelphia School System. He is survived by two sons, Homer Jr. and John, currently a student at Lincoln University.

With a name as forward-looking as its aims, the 21st Century Foundation of New York continued the momentum by awarding its 1981 CLARENCE L. HOLTE Prize to Rutgers Professor Ivan Van Sertima for his book, "They Came Before Columbus: The African Presence in Ancient America," published by Random House in 1977.

Identity and self-worth are the constant concerns of Black youth in America and this unique prize directly addresses the problem. Created as a kind of international literary sentinel in 1977 with a substantial, but anonymous, endowment of $50,000, the Clarence L. Holte Prize seeks biennially a contemporary author of "a work of excellence in literature and the humanities, relating to the cultural heritage of Africa and the African diaspora."

The University of North Carolina at Charlotte has named Dr. ROBERT L. ALBRIGHT as its new vice chancellor for student affairs.

Dr. Albright has been special assistant to the assistant secretary for post-secondary education in the U.S. Department of Education.

A native of Philadelphia, Dr. Albright received his A.B. degree in history from Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, his M.A. from Tufts University, and his Ph.D. from Kent State University.

Before joining what is now the Department of Education, he was director of the Moton Consortium on Admissions and Financial Aid, a technical assistance organization for 60 developing institutions. Earlier he was vice president for student affairs at Lincoln University and had also been director of admissions there and director of Upward Bound at Virginia Union University.

At Lincoln University he supervised residential life, housing, admissions, financial aid, counseling, student activities, career counseling and placement and health services. He will have similar responsibilities at UNCC except that admissions currently reports to the vice chancellor for academic affairs.

Dr. Albright's other activities include core faculty member of the Harvard Summer Institute on College Admissions and site visitor for the Division of Student Services and Veterans Programs of the Office of Education.

He is the author of a number of articles in professional journals on admission and minority students and on the historically black colleges. He and his wife, Linda, have two children.

LEON DASH, author and Washington Post correspondent for west and central Africa, addressed a public forum on developments in Africa that was sponsored by Minorities in ACTION (MIA), an organization of minority former Peace Corps, United Nations and VISTA volunteers. The session was held at the Post's Washington, D.C. headquarters.

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY

OFFICE OF ALUMNI RELATIONS

June 24, 1981

Dear Lincolmites:

During the past two years, it has been my pleasure to serve Alma Mater and the Lincoln family in the capacity as Director of Alumni Relations. Being the first full-time Director of Alumni Relations has been both challenging and rewarding.

Most of you are aware of my status as an ordained clergyman of the United Methodist Church. The United Methodist Church had appointed me to serve Lincoln in this very important position for the last two years. Recently, Bishop D. Frederick Wertz requested of Lincoln and myself that I return to the pastoral ministry. Both the University and I appealed the Bishop's decision, but he failed to relent.

I will leave the directorship by the beginning of the fall semester to serve Mount Joy United Methodist Church in Wilmington, Delaware, on a full-time basis. I look forward to this new assignment with the same hope and enthusiasm I brought to Lincoln University.

Thanks to your patience, cooperation and understanding this office has become a real, integral part of the University's development, mission and future considerations. Having Lincoln alumni coming alive, active and concerned has allowed the University to improve its public image and thrust toward carrying out its mission.

I want to thank all who supported my leadership. My success came because of your confidence in my ability and love for the "Dear Old Orange and Blue." Men such as Osmond Brown, LeRoy Patrick, Bobby Freeman, Clarence Holte, Wayman Coston, Horace Judson, Walt Chambers, Hilton Davis, Len Bethel, Henry Mitchell and David Petatt were just super.

It has been a privilege to work with the alumni of this great institution. Lincoln is on the road to new heights, her alumni must be very much a part of these new growing pains and struggles. Continue to be involved with our school. Increase your financial support! Voice your concerns about Lincoln's operation and programs. Most of all, do not listen to the gossip from people who are negative for one reason or the other. Call, write or come to the campus and find out for yourself. This office serves as a rumor clearing house, use it.

Again, thank you for your support. I look forward to hearing about how Lincoln alumni are serving their Alma Mater. God's peace and blessing be with you all. Hail, Hail, Lincoln!

Sincerely,

Donald E. Hamilton, '73
Director of Alumni Relations

OBITUARY

GEORGE W. GOODMAN, '26

George W. Goodman, an educator, social worker, and journalist who was an official of the National Urban League and a dean at Fisk University, died April 1, 1981. He was 80 years old and lived in Hartford, Conn.

Mr. Goodman was a strong proponent of integration and a man considered the "guru" of many Hartford black leaders. An energetic and vital man even into his advanced years, Goodman had a wide ranging career, serving as executive secretary of the Urban League's Washington, D.C., and Boston offices, starting New York radio station WLIB's news and public affairs department, and a member of the Hartford Times editorial board.

"George" was genial and had a warm personality but was a guy who understood the importance of building community," said Don Noel, a television commentator and former Hartford Times editor who hired Goodman as an editorial writer.

Goodman assembled coalitions of young city residents to fight for important city issues and became head of the Citizens' Committee for the North End, an interracial group that worked 10 years to get a community building constructed.

"He was very much a realist, but for those around him he set high standards," said his son, New York City attorney, Jon L. Goodman. "He just always told me to just fight."

One of the few blacks in his graduating class at Hartford Public High School in the year 1922, Goodman—with his academic abilities—became a model for young blacks who followed him at school. He was a director of the American Red Cross in England during World War II, and in 1949 he ran unsuccessfully for election to the Hartford City Council.

Labeled a "creator" and a man who made things happen, Goodman was sometimes frustrated functioning in a predominantly white community, close associates confided. Nevertheless, he moved well through all social situations. He had a self confidence that made him wise and willing to dispense his wisdom. Goodman was recently elected Chairman of the Connecticut Caucus of the Black Aged.

He is survived by his wife, Amelia Myers Goodman, and two sons; George W. Goodman, Jr., a reporter with the New York Times and Jon L. Goodman, both of New York City.

Ashby's a Banquet Hit

President Branson, Mr. Chairman, Fellow Alumni, Friends of Lincoln University:

I cannot tell you how grateful I am to the General Alumni Association for making me the recipient of one of its awards.

I am sure that this is a new experience for everyone present. Not one of you has ever attended an academic commencement at which an award is to be given one for the seventieth anniversary of his graduation.

My experience spans almost the whole life of this institution. When I arrived here on an afternoon in September 1905, and was assigned to Room 16, Lincoln Hall, Dr. Isaac W. Rendall, whom we adoringly and with almost sanctity called "Pap," was the president. The school had been founded in 1854 by Dr. John Miller Dickey, and its name was Ashmun Institute.

We were told that Doc Rendall came to the institution on the same day that President Lincoln was assassinated. We learned further that in honor of the deceased president, this school changed its name to Lincoln University, and became the first academic institution to bear the name of the great emancipator.

To us, "Pap" Rendall was a holy man. Had he lived in early biblical times, he would certainly have been among the Patriarchs.

resident of Wynnewood, Pa., will complete a general surgery residency at Temple University. While a student at Hahnemann, Dr. Pierce published an article in Dermatology and Allergy Magazine. He was also involved in the International Shoto Kan Karate Federation, a volunteer for the American Cancer Society and a counselor for the flexible curriculum office. A 1977 graduate of Lincoln University, he was a member of the Alpha Chi National Honor Society. Dr. Pierce is a 1972 graduate of Friends Select High School, Phila., Pa. His parents, Dr. and Mrs. Harold E. Pierce, reside in Wynnewood.

REGINALD H. PITTS and Millicent J. Carvalho were married on June 6 at the Transfiguration of Our Lord Roman Catholic Church in Philadelphia.

REGINALD S. FRANCE is working in Benghazi, Libya, as warehouse manager for Intairdriil Libya Ltd., an American firm. His job consists of ordering, receiving, storing and transferring oil field equipment to and from the various rigs in operation in Libya. He recently sent a check for $100 to the Philadelphia Chapter of the General Alumni Association to be presented to the senior with the highest GPA in the Department of Business and Economics or to some other cause that the chapter sees fit.

DONNELDA RICE graduated valedictorian from Howard Law School out of a class of 175 students. She has received six Amjur awards for courses in remedies, legal process, tax, evidence and two others. She will be relocating in Chicago, where she will join the firm Meyer, Brown & Platt, one of the top five in the country. She will be the first Black associate of this firm, which is served by well over 100 attorneys.

An example of the student love for him is the following:

One winter was very severe. Snow and ice covered the campus. "Pap" had a class in University Hall. On his way to it, he slipped on the ice and fell. Every student in the school had teared eyes. We would not be consoled until we learned that the accident had not been very serious.

About 1910-19—Dr. Rendall was quite aged. He felt that the responsibility of the school ought to be in the hands of a younger man. He had a nephew, Dr. John B. Rendall, whom we called "Professor John." Dr. Rendall submitted the name of his nephew to the Board of Trustees to become the President. He was accepted.

About 1925-1926, as I remember, Professor John became ill. It was now necessary to find a new leader. His was a new and baffling situation for the Board of Trustees, the Faculty and the alumni and the students.

For 60 years the leadership of this institution was by two persons, the Rendalls. It was a good leadership. Each had done well. The faculty, the alumni and the students wanted the new president to come from the faculty.

Three persons, either one of whom would be satisfactory to us, were proposed. They were Dr. William Hallock Johnson, teacher of Greek; Dr. George Johnson, teacher of philosophy and economics; Professor Walter L. Wright, teacher of mathematics. Rev. John B. Laird, a minister of a large and powerful Presbyterian Church in Germantown, Pa., was President of the Board of Trustees. About this time, there was a young minister of a Presbyterian Church in downtown Philadelphia who was attracting overflow attendance to his church on Sunday night's services. Rev. Laird selected this young man to become the president of Lincoln.

I am not sure now of his name. It was Greenwood, Greenspan or something akin to that. Of this, I am sure. The word "Green" was in the name. The Philadelphia newspapers became aware of the tremendous congregations and wrote articles about them. The papers writing about the minister said that among the enormous congregations, he had permitted a meeting of the Ku Klux Klan. Of course, the faculty and students read this.

Apparently, Rev. Laird did not feel that this mattered, and he therefore went ahead with all the steps necessary to make the Rev. Green—something the president.

He instructed the young minister to make a trip to Lincoln to get himself familiar with the physical set up. He was instructed not to talk to any member of the faculty. He went to Lincoln on a Saturday. Dr. George Johnson saw him. He was driving a red Buick. Professor Johnson became alarmed. It was clear to him that a man alleged to tolerate the Ku Klux Klan, meant almost the death of Lincoln. What must he do?

I was then secretary of the General Alumni Association. I was also director of the Urban League in Newark, New Jersey. It was easy to reach me. Professor Johnson wrote me a letter telling me of the visit of the man to the campus. He also told me of his deep concern and his fears for the school. He added that unless some steps were taken immediately to thwart the plans of Rev. Laird and the Trustees, this man would certainly be selected to head Lincoln, with disastrous results.

He suggested that the alumni might help, but that action must be immediate. I was literally sick and frightened when I read the letter. Dr. E. P. Roberts of New York was President of the Alumni Association. I went to New York right away with the letter. I remember it well. It was the week in which Fourth of July was to occur.

We agreed that we would notify the alumni throughout the country and call a special meeting to consider what our action would be. My secretary had planned to go away for the Fourth of July. I asked her if she would forego her trip for a day in order to get out a communication. She agreed.

I sent out a newsletter, telling all Lincoln lovers of the gravity of the situation. The letter went to the Boston Guardian, New York Eye, Philadelphia Tribune, Pittsburgh Courier, Chicago Defender, Baltimore Afro-American, Norfolk Journal and Guide and I think a paper in Atlanta. It called for a general meeting to be held in Philadelphia at the Young Men's Christian Association, Christian Street; on a Sunday in August. The meeting was held. The attendance was surprisingly large.

We were frightened. No one knew just what to do. There were a few very radical expressions—some saying that they would go to the university and block the moving in of this man.

Our decision was that we would demand a meeting with the Board of Trustees so that we could present our candidates.

A letter went to the Board. A meeting between the Board of Trustees and the Alumni was set for September. It was held in what I seem to remember as Witherspoon Hall on Walnut Street, Philadelphia. I remember clearly that the building was in walking distance of the Old Penn Station at Broad and Market Streets.

The meeting did not open on too cordial a note. We were proud of the numbers who attended. I remember clearly the following: Charles Stephens, a prominent lawyer in Boston came down; Dr. E. P. Roberts, New York; Dr. George Cannon, Jersey City; Dr. Walter Alexander, Orange, New Jersey; myself, Newark; Rev. John White, Trenton; several from Philadelphia; Rev. Callaway, Baltimore; Dr. Cardenza, Baltimore; John B. McRary, donor of McRary Hall came up from North Carolina.

Rev. Laird stated in great praise the qualities of Rev. Green—something. We countered with our candidate.

By now Professor Wright was no longer considered since the Trustees had informed us that the president must be an ordained minister. Also, Professor George Johnson dropped out of consideration. We could then concentrate on Dr. William Hallock Johnson. We talked back and forth, neither side giving in.

One of our fellows, I'm not sure who, arose and asked Rev. Laird for information on the background of Rev. Green—. Rev. Laird responded. In his plaudets on the training and accomplishments he stated that he was born in Tennessee. Not realizing what I was doing—I jumped up and shouted, "Tennessee: This man was born in the wrong place to be the President of Lincoln." There was a burst of laughter. But the sobering was quiet. They realized how serious was my exclamation. By mid-afternoon we arrived at a decision. It was then that Dr. Johnson's name would be presented to the Synod of Pennsylvania. The Synod would meet in Williamsport in October. Dr. Roberts considered sending me to Williamsport to present the case of Dr. Johnson, since he had been my teacher in Greek.

But the plan was abandoned, since we learned that only accredited delegates would be allowed to ad-

While a student at Hahnemann, Dr. Huggins was a member of the Student National Medical Association and the yearbook staff.

ALFRED T. DORSEY received his MD from Hahnemann Hospital and his BS from Lincoln. Mr. Dorsey was a student in the Lincoln Hahnemann Program and will begin his residency at Children's Hospital in Los Angeles.

Rev. and Mrs. Minyard W. Newsome

Newsome Honored on 90th Birthday

Rev. and Mrs. Minyard W. Newsome were honored at a "Tribute of Love" banquet in the Rose Room of McCallister's, 1811 Spring Garden St., May 23.

May 30 marked Rev. Newsome's 90th birthday, which includes 59 consecutive years of ministry. Rev. Newsome was born in South Mills, N.C. The occasion also cited Mrs. Newsome for service to youth and other achievements.

In July, Rev. Newsome plans to enroll in the summer sessions for continuing education at Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N.J. This will be his 50th year, as he initially enrolled in July, 1931.

Rev. Newsome founded Community Baptist Church, North Philadelphia, 1922-1929, without a single member. Upon his resignation in seven years, he left a membership of 350 and property valued at $15,000 nearly debt-free.

Rev. Newsome was a pastor of Mt. Hebron Baptist Church, South Philadelphia, for 17 years, 1929 to 1946. Membership grew from 45 to 800. Property was paid off and the mortgage was burned before his resignation.

Rev. Newsome was pastor of Corinthian Baptist Church, East Germantown, 1946 to 1973, and interim pastor, 1973 to 1975.

1915—Graduated from the State Teachers' College at Elizabeth City, N.C. There he was honored as class president and valedictorian.

1916-17—Attended college at Lincoln before entering U.S. military service.

1918-19—Served overseas in World War I in the 532nd Engineers; distinguished himself as cornet player in the band of that outfit. Honorably discharged.

1922—Graduated from the seminary at Lincoln University (Pa.). There he was honored as class president, valedictorian and winner of the John Wanamaker Bible Prize. Graduated from the teacher training department of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association.

1940—Committee chairman for unemployment and industry with the Ministers' Civic and Political Alliance of Philadelphia and Vicinity.

1946-1973—Pastored Corinthian Baptist Church of East Germantown.

1948—Led boycott to end employment discrimination at local business establishments.

1955—Bible study pilgrimage to Europe and the Holy Land.

1963—Elected by the Pennsylvania State Convention as one of the three pastors for keeping up with the "challenge of change."

1964—Honored with the Alumni Award by Lincoln University; Advisor to the Youth Study Center of Philadelphia and conducted Sunday morning service.

1967—Received citation from the Chapel of the Four Chaplains.

1970—Founded the Eva Newsome-George W. Lee Scholarship (at Corinthian), aiding college-bound youths.

1971—Morris College of Sumter, S.C., conferred upon him the Doctor of Divinity degree.

1973—Honored by Corinthian Baptist Church for 27 years as pastor.

1973-75—Served Corinthian membership as interim pastor.

1975—Present: ministry continues as evangelist;

1980—Morris College named him "Man of the Year" for unselfishly aiding education of youth.

1981—(Feb. 1st) Received the National Freedom Day Association's Award for distinguished service to humanity. During his entire career he has actively advanced the progress of Black citizens; politically, economically, socially and educationally. Received the "Congregational Service" Award from Pleasantville, N.J., of which his son, Rev. Ronald McCaskill, is pastor.

1982—(March 1st) Honored by the Baptist Ministers' Conference of Philadelphia and Vicinity as "Order of the Day"; Rev. Charles R. McCreary, president.

STUDENT SCENE

SCHOLARSHIP AWARD

Mr. David White, a Spanish Assistant, has been offered a full scholarship to Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs. This September, he will begin a two-year program of studies leading to the MPA (Masters in Public Affairs) degree and pursue a career in international affairs.

STUDENT TRUSTEE

Tonya Tolson, a sophomore business major and editor of The Lincolnian, has been appointed to a three-year term on Lincoln's Board of Trustees. Ms. Tolson is the first student representative to serve on the Board.

BLACKS IN GLOBAL POLITICS

On Wed., March 11, 1981, the Department of Languages and Linguistics sponsored a Careers Day discussion on whether blacks should become involved in global politics.

Dr. Mabel Smythe, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs, was the keynote speaker. Dr. Smythe previously served as U.S. Ambassador to the United Republic of Cameroon and to the Republic of Equatorial Guinea.

ALPHA CHI HONORS

On Sun., March 29, at 3:00 p.m., 12 students were inducted into the Alpha Chi National Honor Scholarship Society. In order to be eligible for Alpha Chi, a student must be a junior or senior who has completed at least one year at the University and must have a cumulative average of 3.30 or above. The students who were inducted are: Roosevelt Allen, Joseph Anderson, Tonga Brennan, Shirley DeSilva, Angel Fikes, Timothy McGilberry, Carla Maxwell, Camerica Nchami, Mora Nickens, Joe Nwogu, Darlene Robinson and Ronald Wood.

The ceremony was held in the Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel and was conducted by Dean Andristine M. Robinson, advisor for the group, Dr. H. Alfred Farrell and Mrs. Ura Jones. Dr. Herman R. Branson was the speaker for the event. A reception was held after the program.

"SAVE THE CHILDREN"

The Lincoln University Dance Company, under the direction of Dr. Jean White, gave a benefit performance on Wed., March 27, at 8:00 p.m., in Ware Center Little Theatre.

Ms. Tonya Tolson, Class of '84, was selected to receive a scholarship to study in Taiwan during the academic year 1981-82. This scholarship was made possible by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

The International Club made a cash contribution to CARE to help feed refugees spread throughout Africa. It is estimated there are 5 million refugees, 1,000 of whom are dying per day from hunger. The club with an active membership of 70 students of divergent races and nationalities was organized by Dr. Brenda Savage, Director of the Institute for International Affairs.

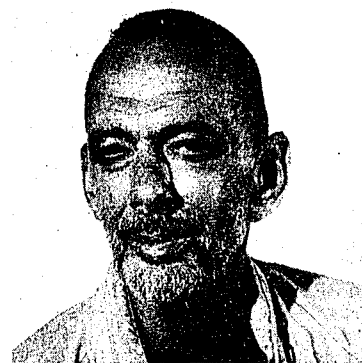

Mary V. Farrell

English Practicum

Mary V. Farrell is engaged in a practicum with students in the section of English 100 which she teaches. These students have taken the Canfield Learning Styles Inventory by which they indicate their preferred condition content, and mode of learning, as well as their expectancy for the level of their performance. All four areas provide instructor and student with information useful to both. Of especial value in a lab situation, the information makes it possible to assign students to materials which conform to their preferred mode for the reviewing and learning of grammatical and mechanical skills. Working in their preferred mode should make learning more comfortable and effective.

The practicum culminates the experience Professor Farrell enjoyed when she attended the first Kellogg Institute for the Training and Certification of Developmental Educators, sponsored by the Center for Developmental Education at Appalachian State University, Boone, N.C., from July 6 to Aug. 1, 1980. National leaders in developmental education led sessions at the Institute; they included such pioneers in the field as Dr. John Roueche, Dr. Milton "Bunk" Spann and Frank Christ, generally regarded as the Founding Father of the learning assistance movement. The Institute is funded by The Kellogg Foundation.

Professor H. D. Gunn

Gunn Gets Grant

H. D. Gunn, Curator of Lincoln's African Collections, was awarded a small "enabling grant" by the prestigious American Philosophical Society in Philadelphia on March 16 to further his efforts to secure the permanent preservation and general accessibility of his important personal collection of notes and manuscript documents dealing with the massive, historically/culturally, politically and economically crucial bloc of minority people of central Nigeria.

The collection, assembled in the course of field-research in Nigeria, 1949-51, has attracted international scholarly interest for many years, so that the plan to preserve and make this resource more generally accessible to researchers both here and abroad is arousing the sympathetic attention of the Cooperative Africana Microform Project of the Center for Research Libraries/Association of Research Libraries, and several grant-awarding agencies.

THE DIRECTOR'S CORNER

Wow! You have done it! Lincoln Alumni have reached and exceeded their financial goal for 1980-81. Our goal of $75,000 has been smashed—nearly $100,000 has been raised. A very special thank you for your support. Congratulations!

Under the leadership of Dr. LeRoy Patrick, Chairman of the Alumni Committee-Lincoln University Trustees, along with help from key chapter representatives, you helped realize our success.

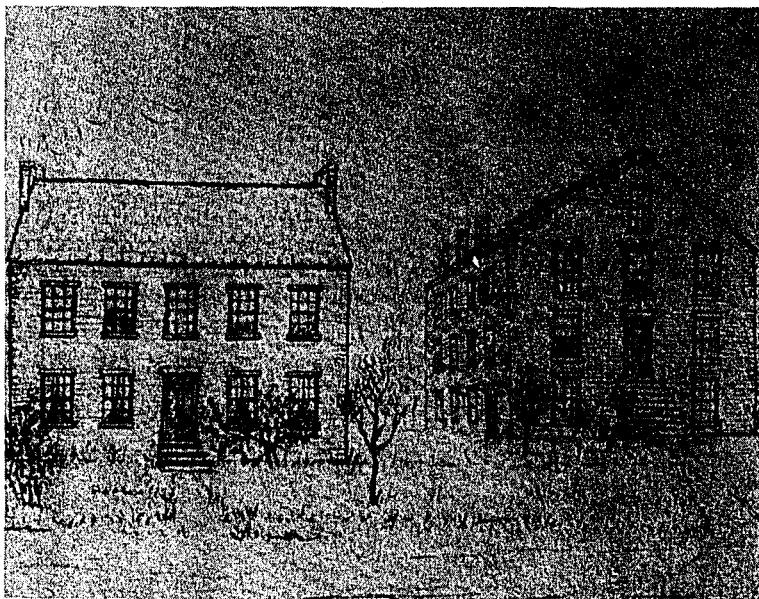

The alumni program has really solidified; still, we need more support from our 7,000 living alums. Less than one-third of Lincoln gave to this year's Annual Fund. What would happen if 30% responded? 40%? 50%? Lincoln is no greater than its alumni! You make the difference!

Commencement Weekend was tremendous, several hundred alumni returned. The reunion classes contributed and pledged nearly $30,000. The "Class of '31" was in rare form celebrating their 50th reunion and contributing over $14,000.

Bill Ashby, '11, gave a dynamic speech regarding how Lincoln alumni helped keep the University from making a decision which may have saved Alma Mater from its ultimate demise (see story Page 1). Bill also autographed his latest book, Tales Without Hate, at a reception given in his honor by Walt Chambers, '53.

Our office is continuing to update mailing lists. Please call or write if you know someone not receiving the LU Bulletin. Too, you are encouraged to give your reactions as to materials published in the Bulletin. Are we providing the kind of information that's desired? Informative? Interesting? Your replies will be seriously considered.

Have a good summer. This office will be in touch with you in the fall.

Ashmun Institute, 1857

Lincoln U. 100 Years Ago

All students in the University are required to attend daily prayers, religious services on the Lord's day, and such exercises of instruction and recitation as may be assigned to them.

The expenses of a student in Lincoln University need not exceed $150 a year.

There are three dormitory buildings, Cresson Hall, Lincoln Hall (which also houses the Library and the Janitor's Apartments), and Ashmun Hall. University Hall contains the Chapel and six recitation rooms, there are also five residences for professors. **- *Statements from the 1880-81 Lincoln University Catalogue**

In 1981, all but two of the buildings mentioned above are in use. Ashmun Hall, one of the first buildings of Ashmun Institute, was torn down in 1953, the University Hall referred to was replaced by the present University Hall during the 1891-92 academic year.

The graduating class of 1881 consisted of six students, one from Jamaica, four from North Carolina and one from Maryland. Frank Thomas Logan, one of the students from North Carolina, remained at Lincoln to enroll in the Theological Course which he completed in 1884. While attending the Seminary, he pastored the (Second) Presbyterian Church in Oxford. After his return to North Carolina, he accepted a pastorate at Concord, and later served as the principal of the Concord Graded School for twenty-seven years. As a minister and educator he believed "that the permanent progress of the race must rest on religion, education, and work."

Dr. H. A. Farrell presents an award to Dr. and Mrs. Henry Cornwell at Philadelphia Chapter's Annual Dinner-Dance.

Alumni Honor Cornwell

The Philadelphia Alumni Association of Lincoln University Inc. recently held its Annual Spring Dance. Dr. Henry Gilbert Cornwell, Class of 1933 and Professor of Psychology at Lincoln for many years was honored. "Your positive attitude toward education and life may well account for the impact that you have had on Lincoln students through the years. You have been an excellent example of everything that a teacher should be: good friend, wise counselor, concerned individual, leader and inspirer," said Frank (Tic) Coleman, University trustee and former President of the Association. "You have viewed the world with such optimism that you have given your students a philosophy of life to stand them in good stead, a philosophy not unlike that of Stephen Grellet, who espoused the doctrines of the Society of Friends: I shall pass through this world but once. If, therefore, there be any kindness I can show, or any good thing I can do, let me do it now; let me not defer it or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again. The world is a better place for your having passed this way."

Athletic Director's Report

The last three years Lincoln University athletics has continued to escalate to the top of the heap. One of the simplest ways of measuring this rise in athletic performance is past productivity within our department during the past three years.

Our programs have increased from six sports (men's basketball, women's basketball, women's volleyball, track, cross country, tennis) three years ago to nine sports (men's basketball, women's basketball, women's volleyball, track, cross country, tennis, soccer, bowling, baseball) at the present time. These are all pleasant additions to our rapidly growing sports program. Still another program that has been surveyed and pending is softball on a college level for women. With the return of these sports Lincoln is no doubt among the best athletically on the eastern seaboard. Usually, when we speak of the best we don't normally speak in terms of numbers (how many sports offered) but how successful we have become within these sports. Lincoln is on the verge, or shall we say "knocking on the door," of success. With continued hard work and determination from administration, coaches, players, alumni boosters and staff, we can almost be assured of success.

However, as you all know, successful programs cannot continue without monetary support. This support will no doubt determine how high we rise on the ladder of success.

INDIVIDUAL PROGRAM RESULTS

Women's Basketball—Record of 9-0 in PAIAW Championships. Advanced to 2nd place in the PAIAW Tournament.

Women's Volleyball—Record of 10-

4. Also entered first round of Championships at Penn State.

Cross Country—Qualified 2 runners for nationals in Kansas City.

Track—Qualified teams all year including Penn Relays; IC4A and the nationals to be held in Cleveland, Ohio.

Tennis—Record of 1-1. Four other matches were postponed because of rain.

Soccer—Under first full-time coach. Our team was 1-6 overall.

Men's Basketball—Record of 9-13.

Women's Bowling—Record of 11-5.

Men's Bowling—Record of 1-15.

Baseball—Just began playing this spring on a club basis. Record of 1-1.

We feel these results are rather impressive ones, considering our competitors are usually twice our size (enrollment). However, this has not stopped Lincoln from entering five post-season championship rounds out of nine different sports this past year. Lincoln is on the move!!

!!BEST FOR LAST!!

We have a new addition to our athletic complex to be completed in June. Lincoln University will have a $275,000-plus track facility that will no doubt increase public relations, improve enrollment, and, above all, improve our track program, if that's possible. With our programs constantly soaring skyward, this new addition has not arrived too soon. Lincoln has not held a home track meet since 1977 against Cheyney State. We are definitely looking forward to hosting many, many more meets in the near future!

The 1981-1982 sports schedules will be completed in the near future.

Auxiliary Cites

A highlight of the General Alumni Banquet held Saturday, May 3, on the campus of Lincoln University was the presentation of an award to Mrs. J. Leroy (Carrie W.) Williams by Mrs. Edna C. Wells, awards committee chairman. The plaque was presented by the Ladies Auxiliary of Lincoln University of which Mrs. Walter (Carrie) Rounds of Atlantic City, N.J., is national president.

The award was given Mrs. Williams for "her years of service and devotion to the Ladies Auxiliary and to Lincoln University." A member of the Advisory Board and a past national president, she has a distinguished record of achievement as an educator and religious leader. Mrs. Williams has devoted much of her time working in these areas to promote and encourage the development of our youth. She was married to Dr. J. Leroy Williams in 1934 and widowed in 1965. Mrs. Williams graduated from Howard University, Washington, D.C., in 1934 with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. A year later, she received her M.A. degree in Library Science from Drexel University.

Mrs. Williams has a double profession, that of teacher and librarian. She has served as teacher-counselor in the Philadelphia Public Schools, as librarian with the U.S. Government in Washington, D.C., and with the Lutheran Theological Seminary in Philadelphia. In 1939 she was assistant librarian at Lincoln and later instructor in political science. In 1967 she joined the staff of Cheyney State College as associate professor and dean of women.

The Ladies Auxiliary of Lincoln University has a very strong chapter in Philadelphia. Mrs. Emma Baskerville serves as its president. There are also chapters in Chester County and in Atlantic City, N.J. The Auxiliary also has members in Harrisburg, Pa., Wilmington, Del., and various points in New Jersey. Others who served on the National Awards Committee are Mrs. Amaza Lockett of Atlantic City; Mrs. Dorothy Cuff of Chester, Pa.; Mrs. Mildred Allen of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Anna Wilson of Lincoln University. Mrs. Williams has served the organization for 43 years and is currently its parliamentarian.

The Ladies Auxiliary founded in 1933, was organized to encourage high scholastic achievement and to enhance the social and cultural life of the students at Lincoln University. The organization offers annual scholarships and awards for students of high academic achievement on an annual basis. Members are currently establishing a $50,000 foundation as an expansion on its scholarship foundation.

Mrs. Williams, who founded Las Simpaticas, a social club in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, is a member of Vine Memorial Baptist Church where she serves on the Board of Trustees and also served as its secretary from 1967 to 1981. She was elected church librarian in 1978 and is a member of several church clubs. From 1978 to the present, Mrs. Williams has served on the finance committee of Churchwomen United of Philadelphia and Vicinity.

Danger of College Degree

By Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers

It is that season again when men's (and women's) thoughts turn to commencement. It is that joyous time of the year when college graduates across the country finally capture the elusive golden sheepskin, an act which officially and automatically endows them with the necessary qualifications "to take on the world."

Of course, no one, save ivory-tower educators, sees the world faced by the graduate during this last score of the 20th century in the rose-tinted terms just employed. Few people, however, seem to be aware of the risks, problems and liabilities inherent in obtaining a college degree. The assets and the advantages "sautent aux yeux," as the French would say, meaning that they are patently obvious. What is not so clear is that pursuit of the "degree for degree's sake" debases, devalues and desecrates the search, the seeker, and the object of the quest, leading to the creation of some rather bizarre "miseducated" types. They may be grouped into three categories.

First, there is the "check-off artist," the degree holder who considers his education finished because he has satisfied the requirements of the degree-granting institution. Such persons probably entered college with a shopping list (the college catalogue) of required courses tucked under their arm or in their brain and negotiated their way through the academic labyrinth, joylessly checking off each requirement as they completed it. After four years of checking into courses, checking them out and off, such misguided souls now find themselves in the marketplace of the world; but, to use a well-worn simile, they are no more like truly educated men and women than the constellation of Cygnus is like a swan.

Typical of the first group is the proverbial lady college graduate who, after five years of French in high school and college, went to France and in response to a friendly, "Bonjour, Madame," emanating from the French shopkeepers, would reply in her inimitably flustered manner, "I used to know all that. I took so much French in college you'd never believe it, but I can't remember all that stuff."

The second type of "educated" misfit is the individual who entered the degree race solely "for the money." Those who fall into this category may be called "fortune hunters." The most likely candidates for despair, disillusionment and disappointment after graduation, fortune hunters regard the degree as the price of automatic admission to a secure, high-paying job, wealth, and happiness.

Fortune-hunter types have unrealistic expectations of education, which only bare, statistical realities may dispel. Given the fact that one out of every four persons entering the labor force does so with a college degree, millions of young graduates will find themselves either without a job or in one once considered unsuitable for them, because of the compensation or conditions of employment. In this respect, the basic principles of supply and demand have engineered a curious reverse phenomenon. Certain unskilled and semi-skilled workers (truck drivers, garbage collectors, to name a few) are literally "cleaning up" because high still is the demand for their services, but few are the takers. Consequently, employers must offer them salaries once associated with skilled workers with college degrees. Clearly, frustration and discontentment on a massive scale await the graduate whose sole purpose for attending college was to leave it with a guarantee of knowledge, all the knowledge, nothing but the knowledge necessary to land a lucrative job.

Thirdly, finally, and perhaps most pathetically among the three types, stands the "brainy robot." Here, the oxymoron is intended, for it accentuates the paradoxical nature of college graduates who have (or who are capable of finding) answers to all the world's problems. While in college, they learned to think critically and logically, to perfect certain problem-solving techniques, to make "educated" inferences, and to seek

A Tribute from Fellow Anthropologists

This day the University of Pennsylvania has paid tribute to an illustrious alumnus, Dr. Nnamdi Azikiwe, awarding him the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters. He came to the United States in 1925 to seek higher education and studied at Storer College, Howard University and Lincoln University, where he graduated in 1930. He then came here to the University of Pennsylvania, where he studied under our late senior colleague, Professor A. Irving Hallowell, and earned the master's degree in anthropology in 1933. In the course of his studies, he also experienced the hardships of survival in this country during the depression years and prevailed.

When he returned to Africa, he quickly established himself as a newspaper publisher and leader in the Nigerian independence movement. At the same time he wrote extensively on African and, especially, Nigerian politics, history, land tenure, and economic development. His book Renascent Africa was enormously influential in shaping political ideas in Nigeria and in Africa more generally. He founded Nigeria's first major political party, the NCNC, and rose through regional assemblies, the premiership of the Eastern Region, and the presidency of the Federation Senate, to become Governor-General and then first president of the newly independent Federal Republic of Nigeria. He survived the military coups of 1966 and has continued to play a leading role in the affairs of his country, currently as leader of the Nigerian People's Party. He has been active, also, in the development of higher education, founding the University of Nigeria, Nsuka, and serving as Chancellor of the University of Lagos; and he has been one of the chief architects of his country's constitution, whose "bill of rights" is among his great achievements.

Dr. Azikiwe's role as a political leader has been consistent with his interest in anthropology. Professor Hallowell taught that we humans individually derive our humanity in large part from our respective languages, cultures, and historical traditions. It is in the course of learning a language, of learning the social and ethical standards of a community, and of becoming skilled in its arts and learned in its lore, that each of us realizes himself or herself as a human being, that each of us fulfills his or her human potential. Anthropology, being dedicated to the study of all human cultures, necessarily takes every people's culture seriously as the vehicle through which that people derives its humanity, its membership in the human brotherhood, and thus its dignity and its own sense of worth.

Dr. Azikiwe very likely learned this on his own, out of his own life experience, but he found confirmation of that understanding in his study of cultural anthropology and in the teaching of Professor Hallowell. He has gone about his political activities in an anthropological way, stressing the importance of the cultural traditions of the various Nigerian and African peoples as the source of those peoples' dignity and humanity and, as such, things to be cherished while at the same time accommodating them to the dictates of changing conditions of life. He has stood out among his fellow leaders as one who takes the long and broad view, who is sensitive and responsive to the complicated human factors in his nation's affairs, and who has consistently worked to find ways of reconciling and accommodating the differences within an ethnically and culturally plural world. Those concerned with what anthropology can contribute to public policy and public affairs can learn much from Dr. Azikiwe.

In the Pacific Islands, the region of my own anthropological study, there are commonly two kinds of chiefs: the higher chiefs, called chiefs of food, and the lesser chiefs, called chiefs of talk. The former, the real chiefs, preside over substance, the stuff of life; and the latter, the masters of rhetoric, preside (if I may take the liberty of saying so) over hot air. Dr. Azikiwe, you, Sir, are famous for the sweetness of your tongue, but you also have presided over the substance of an entire nation. More than that, you have had a major hand in the creation of that substance. In every way, you are a real chief.

So, Mr. President, fellow anthropologist, Owele of Onitsha, we thank you for the example you set us, and we salute you!

Ward H. Goodenough

Unheard Commencement Speech

Just weeks before some 1,400 seniors received diplomas at Brown University yesterday, Jacob Neusner, a professor of religious studies, delivered his own "Commencement Speech You Won't Hear" in which he lambasted the seniors as "boring" and "stupid."

Writing in The Brown Daily Herald, Mr. Neusner said: "We the faculty take no pride in our educational achievements with you."

"For four years," he said, "we created an altogether forgiving world, in which whatever slight effort you gave was all that was demanded. When you did not keep appointments, we made new ones. When you were late to class, we ignored it.

"Worse still, when you were boring, we acted as if you were saying something important. When you were dull, we pretended you were smart."

Perhaps not surprisingly, that kind of talk angered many students, particularly on the eve of commencement, when words of praise are customary.

One of them said in a letter that "the half-insane raving of a professor so out of touch with reality shouldn't even be dignified with a reply." Another student called Mr. Neusner "arrogant."

"The students reacted stupidly," Mr. Neusner said. "Education is supposed to prepare you to argue intelligently. All the students did was attack me personally."

From the Desk of

The Executive Secretary

At the annual meeting of the General Alumni Association on Saturday, May 2, the body —listened to remarks on the State of the University from Dr. Branson and Andrew Bradley, chairman of the Board of Trustees.

—received the reports of the Executive Secretary, the Treasurer, and the President.

—received reports from the Athletic Committee and the Committee for Liaison Between the Association and the University.

—received a special report from alumni trustee J. A. Parker on his on-going battle with the Administration.

—accepted the recommendation of the Executive Secretary that a special meeting of the Council be held during the summer to consider a number of concerns.

At the annual banquet held the same evening Alumni Awards were presented to William M. Ashby, '11; Lucius J. May, '31; and Jesse E. Gloster, '41. Mr. Ashby was the banquet speaker.

Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers

FOREIGN LANGUAGE EDUCATION COMMITTEE

Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers has been appointed to the Pennsylvania Comprehensive Plan for Foreign Language Education Committee of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Thirteen other educators from Pennsylvania schools and colleges have also been appointed by the state Department of Education to serve on the committee, which will develop a comprehensive plan for foreign language education in grades K-12 throughout Pennsylvania.

Danforth Associate

Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers has been appointed a Danforth Associate.

The Danforth Foundation has announced the appointment of 531 persons in colleges and universities throughout the United States to the Danforth Associate Program. More than 8,500 persons representing all academic fields in more than 1,000 institutions of higher education participate in the Program.

Gene L. Schwilck, President of the Danforth Foundation, said, "The Program is unique in that Associates work directly with students on a personal basis in an effort to improve student-faculty relations and to strengthen the teaching-learning process."

Conferences are held for Associates on various themes to carry out Program objectives. In addition to being guests of the Foundation at conferences, Associates are eligible to apply for grant funds for special projects to enhance faculty-student relationships. Projects may involve efforts among faculty to develop new pedagogical styles and skills to renew themselves as more effective teachers and members of the teaching and learning community.

The Danforth Foundation, established by the late Mr. and Mrs. William H. Danforth in 1927, is a national, educational philanthropy, dedicated to enhancing the humane dimensions of life. Activities traditionally have emphasized the theme of improving the quality of teaching and learning.

Intellectual solutions to all problems. Preoccupied as they were with developing the intellect, while students, these robot types have neglected the emotional, moral or aesthetic dimensions of their lives. Taught to place too high a value on intellectual solutions to problems, they know nothing about "the stuff dreams are made of." Their moral sense is so repressed that it remains unmoved by the horrifying cries of Conscience, so impaired that the distinction between right and wrong has dissolved into one colossal blur, and so stunted it prevents commitment to a "cause celebre" or transcendent. The world is full of sophisticated university graduates (and the lessons of Watergate and Abscam bear cogent testimony to this horror), politicians, young and old executives who worship their jobs; for to be loyal to the team, even at the expense of their own conscience, is the only commitment they have ever made. These "brainy robots" have been programmed to declare their first loyalty to their career, or job. To reach out and touch humanity, to experience "righteous indignation" at the sight of injustice, to abhor hypocrisy, to denounce violence and racial hatred, and to fight for every man and woman's right for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are transcendent pleasures which forever elude them.

Yes, it is that time again, the time when men's and women's thoughts should turn to the meaning of the word

"commencement." Derived from the Latin prefix "com," meaning "together," and "initiare," meaning "to begin," COMMENCEMENT implies that education is a lifelong process, the first step, not the culmination of which, is graduation. To view it as an end in itself, a ticket to a good job or as a panacea for all life's ills is to defile the Trinity: Mind, Body, and Soul.

Holte Lectureship

Established

President Herman R. Branson recently announced "The Clarence L. Holte Lectureship" at Lincoln University. Distinguished scholars will be drawn from a wide spectrum of major universities, American or foreign, or from businesses or government to participate in this program.

The primary objective is to provide Lincoln students with role models whose lectures will be a stimulus to them and to the faculty and will contribute to ideals and standards of scholarship that will bring increasing honor to the University.

Mr. Clarence L. Holte, '34, made the "Lectureship" possible with the generous gift of $25,000. Mr. Holte, distinguished writer, historian, world traveller, collector of Black history, lecturer and businessman, has been concerned about the exposure of young Blacks to positive role models which can provide the stimulus and motivation to move them toward careers which are not traditional professions.

A Madison Avenue advertising executive, Mr. Holte feels there are many fields not entered by Blacks simply due to lack of exposure. Through the "Lectureship," accomplished professionals and scholars in various fields will have the opportunity to challenge and motivate our university community.

dress the conference. But we were fortunate. A Rev. John Lee, Minister of the Afro-Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia, agreed to act for us. His efforts were successful. Dr. William Hallock Johnson was elected President.

Now, permit me to tell you something that will both brighten and relieve you.

Not too long after the above stated incidents, there were newspaper reports that Rev. Green—something had charges of immorality with some of the women of the Church. Also, there were reports that he had embezzled large sums from the church treasury. It was also reported that he was eventually driven out of the ministry.

What, now you ask, service can an alumnus be to a school? No academic institution is any greater than its alumni. That is true whether it is the Sorbonne, Oxford or Harvard. The Alumni of Lincoln saved its Alma Mater from a catastrophe.

I tremble to think of what might have happened to our beloved school had Rev. Laird prevailed. We at Lincoln have our school. We have been loyal to it. We have not done all that we should have. We haven't done all that we could have. But our school will never fear that our loyalty will wane. Indeed, it will grow in our favor. I am an old man, I shall not see it.

Almost daily, I go for a walk with a cane. The cane is not to aid my mobility. Rather, I use it as a finger, I use it to touch the street, to tell how far I shall have to step down when I come to the corner of a street and I must go across. Sometimes, I hesitate a moment. Suddenly my hand or my arm will be seized. I look. It may be a boy or a girl, ten, perhaps twelve years of age. The child says "Come on Pop." Once deposited safely on the other side, the child speeds away as unceremoniously and with the same carefree abandon that it had when it grabbed my hand.

Someone once asked me if I didn't resent being called "Pop" by a child. "Great God, no, I love it." I knew that as long as there is a bond between an old man reaching for a hundred and a child of but ten, the human race need not fear being blown into oblivion tomorrow.

CAMPUS BRIEFS

Professor Orrin C. Suthern II, a member of the Pennsylvania Humanities Council, attended a conference in June for state organizations. The conference was held by the National Endowment for the Humanities at Tarrytown, N.Y. During the same month he attended the regional convention of the American Guild of Organists in Wilmington, Del. In August he attended the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Humanities Council in Harrisburg, Pa., and later the conference for new members of the Pennsylvania Humanities Council in Philadelphia, where he presented a paper. Also in August he attended the annual convention of the National Association of Negro Musicians, Inc., in Los Angeles. He serves as chairman of the History and Archives Committee of this organization. While in California he was invited by the organist of Grace Episcopal Church in San Francisco to play the church's magnificent organ.

Presidential Executive Order

By the authority vested in me as President by the Constitution of the United States of America, in order to advance the development of human potential, to strengthen the capacity of historically Black colleges and universities to provide quality education, and to overcome the effects of discriminatory treatment, it is hereby ordered as follows:

Section 1. The Secretary of Education shall supervise annually the development of a Federal program designed to achieve a significant increase in the participation by historically Black colleges and universities in Federally sponsored programs. This program shall seek to identify, reduce, and eliminate barriers which may have unfairly resulted in reduced participation in, and reduced benefits from, Federally sponsored programs. This program will also seek to involve private sector institutions in strengthening historically Black colleges.

Section 2. Annually, each Executive Department and those Executive agencies designated by the Secretary of Education shall establish annual plans to increase the ability of historically Black colleges and universities to participate in Federally sponsored programs. These plans shall consist of measurable objectives of proposed agency actions to fulfill this Order and shall be submitted at such time and in such form as the Secretary of Education shall designate. In consultation with participating Executive agencies, the Secretary of Education shall undertake a review of these plans and develop an integrated Annual Federal Plan for Assistance to Historically Black Colleges for consideration by the President and the Cabinet Council on Human Resources (composed of the Vice President, the Secretaries of Health and Human Services, Agriculture, Labor, Housing and Urban Development, and Education, the Attorney General, the Counsellor to the President, and the White House Chief of Staff).

Section 3. Each participating agency shall submit to the Secretary of Education a mid-year progress report of its achievement of its plan and at the end of the year an Annual Performance Report which shall specify agency performance of its measurable objectives.

Section 4. Prior to the development of the First Annual Federal Plan, the Secretary of Education shall supervise a special review by every Executive agency of its programs to determine the extent to which historically Black colleges and universities are given an equal opportunity to participate in Federally sponsored programs. This review will examine unintended regulatory barriers, determine the adequacy of the announcement of programmatic opportunities of interest to these colleges, and identify ways of eliminating inequities and disadvantages.

Section 5. The Secretary of Education shall ensure that each president of a historically Black college or university is given the opportunity to comment on the proposed Annual Federal Plan prior to its consideration by the President, the Vice President, and the Cabinet Council on Human Resources.

Section 6. The Secretary of Education, to the extent permitted by law, shall stimulate initiatives by private sector business and institutions to strengthen historically Black college and universities, including efforts to further improve their management, financial structure, and research.

Section 7. The Secretary of Education shall submit to the President, the Vice President, and the Cabinet Council on Human Resources an Annual Federal Performance Report on Executive Agency Actions to Assist Historically Black Colleges. The report shall include the performance appraisals of agency actions during the preceding year to assist historically Black colleges and universities. The report will also include any appropriate recommendations for improving the Federal response directed by this Order.

Section 8. The special review provided for in Section 4 shall take place not later than November 1, 1981. Participating Executive agencies shall submit their annual plans to the Secretary of Education not later than January 15, 1982. The first Annual Federal Plan for Assistance to Historically Black Colleges developed by the Secretary of Education shall be ready for consideration by the President, the Vice President, and the Cabinet Council on Human Resources not later than March 31, 1982.

Section 9. Executive Order No. 12232 (Carter's Order) of August 8, 1980, is revoked.

Grant Received For Mathematics Program

Lincoln University has received a planning grant of $50,000 to develop a mathematics program between Lincoln University and the Philadelphia Public School System. The program, which began this fall, has as its aims and objectives the following:

- (1) to increase significantly the number of minority students receiving thorough training in secondary school mathematics to the level of introductory calculus;
- (2) to stimulate an interest in mathematical literacy in more minority students, even those not in the program;
- (3) to encourage more minority students to aspire to mathematics-based career choices in college, such as economics, statistics, physics, chemistry, mathematics, and engineering;
- (4) to devise a program that is realistic, honest, and also capable of being funded and conducted by the public school system after the introductory period; and
- (5) to arouse in the community heightened concern for minority students to take themselves seriously in preparing for intellectually demanding careers.

The pilot project has designed and structured a mathematics training program for a minimum of 500 Black secondary school students in the metropolitan Philadelphia area. A directed-learning approach will be used to emphasize the basics of high school mathematics. The expectation is that students participating in the four-year cycle program will master the prerequisite mathematics competencies required for success in college programs in the health sciences professions, natural and social sciences, and technologies. The training content of the program will include instruction in algebra, geometry, trigonometry, and calculus.

While the program is projected to include enrichment and motivational components, the major emphasis will be placed on instructional activities designed to facilitate student mastery of mathematics skills.

Ten Years of Time- The Tenth Anniversary

This year is the 10th anniversary of the TIME Program. Ten years ago, August 31, 1971, the Pennsylvania Congressional ACT 101 authorized the Department of Education to grant contracts to institutions of higher education for their Equal Educational Opportunity Programs. Funds were appropriated to aid public and private degree-granting institutions in the Commonwealth make behavioral changes essential to meet the needs of disadvantage students. The initial $1,000,000 appropriation in 1971 has steadily increased each year to reach the sum of $4,000,000 in 1980.

Lincoln University, one of thirty-one award-winning charter institutions in 1971, received its first grant in the amount of $57,960. Each year our annual grant award was increased until a stabilizing figure of $131,000 was reached in 1978, 1979, and 1980. Over one million dollars has been awarded to the University.

Complying with the ACT 101 guidelines under the directions of Robert N. Gardner, Program Director, the TIME Program was developed and was designed to aid students gain those skills necessary to compete in an academic environment leading to graduation. Initial emphasis was placed on a tutorial program in mathematics, reading, and writing. The mathematics lab was located in Wright Hall under the supervision of two part-time math specialists: Mrs. Vivian Kline and Mr. Ramond Maruca. They were assisted by twelve student tutors, and all were under the direct supervision of Mr. James Frankowsky, Department Chairman.

Our second program component, reading and writing, was conducted in the Reading/Writing Lab located in Azikiwe Nkrumah Hall under the direction of a writing specialist, Miss Charyn Sutton, and a reading specialist, Mrs. Janet Lightner. The two specialists were assisted by sixteen peer tutors. This staff enabled us to open the facilities seven days per week for a total of sixty-eight hours.

One hundred ten students actually registered in the Reading/Writing Lab the first year; one hundred sixty-four students took advantage of the services offered in the Math Lab.

During the second year of the TIME Program, facilities on the stage area in old Grim Gymnasium were made available for the Reading/Writing Laboratories. Quickly following this move was the construction of adjacent facilities for the Math Lab. This was the beginning of the Learning Resource

Festival Highlights Alumni Achievements

Lincoln University sponsored a Langston Hughes Cultural Arts Festival on Nov. 12 and 13, 1981. The theme of the two-day festival was "The Literary Legacy of Lincoln University," and it highlighted the literary and cultural achievements of Lincoln alumni.

The festival included presentations by leading critics such as J. Saunders Redding, Therman B. O'Daniel, Richard Barksdale, and Robert Farnsworth. They spoke on Lincoln literary lights: Langston Hughes, Melvin Tolson, Waters Turpin, and Larry Neal. Outstanding poets and dramatists, Sonia Sanchez, Ashia Muhammed Toure, and Charles Fuller joined alumni Ron Welburn and Donald Bogle in celebrating the value and richness of the arts of Lincoln.

Other activities included an awards banquet, a film presentation, a drama workshop, recitals by the Lincoln University Dance Troupe, the Gospel Ensemble, and the University Chorale. And as a finale to the events of the festival, alumnus Ja A. Jahannes did a Langston Hughes jazz and blues poetry musical.

Dr. Joanne V. Gabbin, director of the project, said "The idea for this festival was conceived of by the late Larry Neal, who taught a creative writing course in 1979-80. One of his dreams was to come back to Lincoln to teach and to recognize the many achievements of Lincoln's sons. It was our intention to bring this dream to reality."

The festival was funded by a grant from the Pennsylvania Humanities Council, a statewide funding organization supported by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Center. In 1976, the University again made funds available for the expansion of the Learning Resource Center. This enabled us to serve a larger number of students in air-conditioned facilities fully equipped as a learning center.

The Counseling Component, the third portion of our program, was organized in 1974. A professional counselor and ten peer counselors were hired. This component functioned under the umbrella of the University Counseling Center and concentrated upon freshmen and sophomore ACT 101 students.

In ten years, the program has grown with the facilities: the number of professional staff members has increased; the number of students served has increased. We currently contract to serve three hundred fifty students and have officially served three thousand two hundred program students during the ten year period at an average cost of three hundred forty-six dollars per student.

Our services are expanding into other academic disciplines, and special efforts are being made to continue the impact the TIME Program has made on

Coleman Honored At Retirement

Frank "Tick" Coleman '35 listens to President Branson's address.

Philadelphians turned out en masse to pay tribute to Frank T. Coleman, '35, at a testimonial dinner on Aug. 16 at the Christian Street YMCA. Coleman was cited for his dedicated service to Philadelphia. Judge Charles Wright, the principal speaker on the occasion, referred to Coleman as "a molder of men." Many of the men molded by the honoree were present and recounted stories of the ways in which they had been helped by him. Among them was the Rev. William H. Smallwood, pastor of Allen A.M.E. Church, who told of personal encounters with the honoree in Boy Scout Troop 181 at St. Simon the Cyrenian Episcopal Church, Central High School, and the Christian Street YMCA.

Plaques to Coleman included one from the General Alumni Association, presented by Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, '34, executive secretary of the Association, and one from the Philadelphia Chapter of the Association, presented by Ray Barnes, '50, the newly elected president of the Philadelphia Chapter. William Morton, executive director of the Christian Street YMCA, presented Coleman with an enlarged photograph of him presenting the late Tarzan Cooper with a trophy in recognition of his election to the Basketball Hall of Fame at the Christian Street YMCA's annual Founders Day banquet.

A resolution saluting Frank (Tick) Coleman was presented from City Council by Councilman Lucien E.

Blackwell, who introduced the resolution saluting Coleman for "his dedication to the youth, and to the people, of this city, and for his successful endeavors on their behalf." Certificates of Appreciation were presented by a number of organizations in which Coleman has been active through the years, among them the Union Baptist Church Scholarship Committee, the Union Baptist Church Junior Department, the Board of Education, the Bill Berry League, the Club Trojan, which also presented a money tree, and the National Oldtimers as well as a number of its city affiliates.

Following his graduation from Lincoln University, Coleman served as a lifeguard with the Department of Recreation during the summer of 1935. From 1935 to 1938 he was an investigator with the Department of Public Assistance. From 1938 to 1941 he worked as athletic director of the Wissahickon Boys Club. He served in various capacities until 1950, when he became home and school visitor with the School District of Philadelphia, a position he relinquished in 1970 to become coordinator of the New Careers-Library Technical Training Program of the Board of Education. In 1972 he became supervisor for the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act Program (CETA) and served in that capacity until August 31, 1981, when he retired.

PAT JACOBS: "Homecoming and Homegoing — 1981"

Dr. Branson, Ms. Robinson, Mr Coleman, Alumni, Students and Friends:

Thank you for inviting me to be your Homecoming speaker!

I am not only honored to have the opportunity to speak with you, but am elated to have the opportunity to be with you today. Indeed, a few of life's experiences are more exhilarating and pleasurable than coming home.

It is a special pleasure to come home to Lincoln University because this beautiful institution and its beautiful people-- all of you-- have had a profound and significant personal and professional impact on my life, on lives of others and on our community, nation and the world.

I would like to talk with you a little today about Homecoming -- but also about Homegoing.

In Washington today, there are many of us who believe that this entire nation is in need of a "homecoming" - a return to its norm - its senses. A return to values and traditions that make some sense and that benefit all Americans -- not just certain classes, or races or groups.

Our concept of "homecoming" requires that the policymakers and people of this country take note of the current status quo of this country and take corrective steps to change that status. However, "Homecoming" has many different meanings for different people. When we think of "homecoming," we immediately think of a reunion of old friends, or relatives, or neighbors. We may think of joy, peace, happiness, tranquility.

For some, "homecoming" is full of surprises:

e.g. Lincoln's Langston Hughes writes in a poem, entitled "Homecoming":

"I went back in the alley
And I opened up my door
All her clothes was gone
She wasn't home no more.

I pulled back the covers
I made down the bed
A whole lot of room
Was the only thing I had."

For others, "homecoming" denotes beauty and imagery and a visit to one's roots. (e.g. Countee Cullen in the poem "Heritage" rejoices in the beauty of home -

"What is Africa to me
Copper sun or scarlet sea
Jungle star or jungle track
Strong bronzed men, or regal black Women from whose loins I sprang
When the birds of Eden sang
One three centuries removed
From the scenes his father loved,
Spicy grove, cinnamon tree
What is Africa to me."

Still other poets see home as a return to the promised land and a freeing of the spirits and emotions as in the Negro spiritual or works of poets such as e.g. David Wadsworth Cannon, Jr. in "Freedom in Mah Soul."
"Fo'ty acres jes fo me

Patricia Jacobs speaks at Homecoming with Dr. Frank T. Wilson Chairman, Homecoming Luncheon Committee presiding.

And freedom in mah soul
Great pines lickin up de sky
Hickories too and oaks so high,
And freedom in mah soul

Den we gotta dig a well
Deep, so she'll be plenty cool
Next we're goin to raise a church
An den, we'll build a school

Lar'd, if dis ain't jes too grand Led us straight to de promised land
Freedom in mah soul."

Still others speak of going home as more than a physical experience - they speak of it as an affirmative step requiring not only outward travels and journeys, but inward travels and journeys.

A poem entitled, "The Decision" by Owen Dodson, reads:
"Who are these among you
Homesick for home, longing for peace.
The summer going and the war going
And all the sharp promises of peace?"

There are other journeys
You must make after your journey home
Other journeys you must make alone
Into the countries of the heart
To sit with silence and decide alone..."

Whether homecoming to you means the fear and surprises of an empty experience, as in Langston Hughes poem, or the Countee Cullen version of a beautiful and beauteous experience, or an opportunity a la' David Wadsworth Cullen to experience a freedom of mind and soul, we as alumni and future alumni of a historically great institution should keep in mind the Owen Dodson stanza:
"There are other journeys
You must make after you journey home
Other journeys you must make alone
Into the countries of the heart
To sit with silence and decide alone."

I very much fear that Lincolniters are often like the character in one of the greatest homecoming stories of them all. Let your mind travel backward some two thousand years or more and visualize the biblical parable of the prodigal son. As the story goes, the young man - despite the positive influence of his homelife and hometraining - had strayed away and become alien to this substance through riotous living.

After wasting all, he hired himself out as a common laborer in the lowest position imaginable. There he was the keeper of the swine. One day as he watched the swine eating, he dismantled his pride and became as one of the swine. Kneeling on his knees, he ate the husk with the swine. When he discovered what he was doing, he immediately arose from his knees. He was ashamed and the biblical history teaches that he said, I believe, "I'll rise and go home." He did so and was welcomed with open arms. Can you imagine what a glorious Homecoming this must have been -- not only because of the great feast and great celebration, but because of the restoration and reunion of love and affection by both father and son. And because, I like to think, the son's return home indicated a reaffirmation and dedication of his commitment to support and perpetuate his family and his home.

Lincoln University is in need of this type of homecoming today. It has many, many prodigal sons and daughters, who are students on this very campus -- who should return home. It has many alumni who have forgotten, ignored or are blinded to its important enabling role in their lives and are not visionary enough to recognize that Lincoln University, since its 1854 inception, has been and continues to be a major contributor to the educational betterment of both Black and white America.

I need not bore you with the list of Lincoln's great alumni or with a discourse on the importance of historically Black colleges in America. You are all Lincolniters and you already know these things. I will, however, assure you that the absence of Lincoln University and its alumni would significantly and negatively impact Black people, Americans and the world.

As a student at Lincoln several years ago, I looked forward to breaks, vacations and holidays and, especially, those ones which would allow me to return home to Camden, Arkansas.

Returning home, however, meant both a homecoming and a homegoing. A homecoming because my family welcomed me home with open arms and affection and because, in returning I could receive the invaluable spiritual and emotional uplift that comes from homecoming and left me saying, like Langston Hughes, in his poem entitled "Still Here:"

I've been scarred and battered
My homes the wind done scattered
Snow has frez me
Sun has baked me
Looks like between them
They done tried to make me
Stop laughing, stop lovin', stop livin'
But I don't care
I'm still here!"

But returning to Camden was also a homegoing because I took something home with me - I brought something back. Often it was a book or another small gift "from the North." Frequently, it was a willingness to share my new wealth of Lincoln experiences and my newly learned perspectives. Homegoing was also a reaffirmation of my heritage, my roots, and my commitment to support and nurture those people and places that were enablers for me.

It meant:

I went but came with something and I came and went with something.

Today we celebrate Lincoln's homecoming, but from you alumni and students, Lincoln is also in need of a homegoing. Today you must decide whether Lincoln is going to continue and enhance its rule in the Black community -

...whether Lincoln is going to survive as a viable educational institution -
...whether Lincoln is going to be allowed to continue to make its contributions to America.

Your support of Lincoln University is ..needed
..mandated
..merited

But you alone must make the decision to give that support.

Remember: (Dodson's poem)

"There are other journeys
You must make after your journey home
Other journeys you must make alone
Into the countries of the heart
To sit with silence and decide alone..."

Lincoln's operation is dependent upon your cooperation. Just as the lamp is dependent upon the electric current for the production of light, so, too, is the continuous shining of Lincoln's beacon dependent upon your support - financially, physically, spiritually, and emotionally.

Today is a fantastic day for a Lincoln University Homecoming. And while people like Tex Wilson, Jim Lee,

An Open Letter To Lincoln Alumni

Follow Sons and Daughters of Lincoln:

Please permit me to interrupt your busy schedules to share with you a few of my thoughts about Lincoln University and the Alumni Association.

More than anything I want to provide thoughtful, responsible leadership and direction to the Association. I want to see enhanced the support of the University, and the spirit of cooperation and assistance, which have always been traits of Lincoln men and women. I want to help to maintain and uphold its fine traditions.

President Branson has developed a superb physical plant at Lincoln University of which we can all be justly proud. For his herculean efforts in securing financial support for numerous academic and developmental programs at Lincoln University, every member of the Lincoln University academic community should commend him.

Unfortunately, there is a new, but foreboding wind blowing through the country today. The idea of predominantly Black educational institutions is coming under intensified attack. Furthermore, with massive cut-backs in federal aid to education, with declining financial contributions from foundations and philanthropic organizations, with double-digit inflation, and astronomical interest rates, our Alma Mater perhaps has never before needed our financial support as much as she does now and will in the future.

Chorale Will Tour Before Commencement

The dates for the annual tour of the Lincoln University Chorale have been set from April 25 to April 30, 1982. Organizations, schools and churches in the New Jersey, New York City, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Boston areas interested in sponsoring a concert by the Chorale should contact the Music Department of Lincoln University at (215) 932-8300, extension 555.

Alumni Chapters are especially urged to consider the sponsorship of a concert to bring this fine musical group before the public in their particular geographical area. There are no set fees for an appearance of the Chorale, but donations, honoraria and meals for the group of 40 young people are always appreciated. If your organization is interested in a musical treat, consider calling Professor Robert Emery, Associate Director of the Chorale TODAY so you can be included in their Spring itinerary.

First come, first served!

It is for these reasons among others that the Council of the General Alumni Association of Lincoln University approved a national campaign to raise $1,000,000 to establish an Alumni Scholarship Fund for students of Lincoln University. Plans for national fund-raising activities are nearing completion. Several local chapters of the Association have already increased their fund-raising efforts for scholarships for Lincoln University.

As graduates of Lincoln University, five thousand strong, we are the living legacy, the link with the past, the guardians of our Alma Mater's traditions, and the standard-bearers of her good name. The reputation of the University and our reputations are inextricably connected. A paraphrase of a memorable maxim of Le Baron Russell Briggs is appropriate here: the graduate who loves his Alma Mater will always ask, not, "What can she do for me?" but "What can I do for her?"

You will be receiving further information about the fund-raising campaign soon. We earnestly seek your advice, assistance, and support in the months ahead. Let's work together to make the campaign a success so that many more students will benefit, as we have benefited, from the fine educational opportunities at Lincoln University.

Won't you help us?

Sincerely,
James A. Donaldson
President

Program Provides Motivating Force

Upward Bound is a federally funded program designed to help prepare under-achieving secondary school students pursue some type of post-secondary education. Students often lack the necessary motivation to excel while in high school. Upward Bound helps to supply this motivating force through the combined efforts of the administrative staff, teaching staff, and tutorial staff. The program emphasizes academic enrichment, skill building, and cultural exposure throughout its year-round operation.

The program is divided into three (3) components. The first is a six-week summer residential session, which the students attend at Lincoln University. Students have a course load consisting of academic classes and electives. They also participate in cultural and social activities. The summer session is very intense and demanding and students are recognized for their efforts at the closing banquet.

OBITUARY

Rev. George N. Spells

Rev. George Nolan Spells was the third son of the late Peter Timothy Spells and Ora Lee Rice Spells. A life which began in Bamberg, South Carolina, December 18, 1920, ended quietly Monday, July 6, 1981, in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

He attended public schools of York, Pennsylvania, Lincoln University and Seminary, and Penn State. He received his Doctor of Divinity degree from the Free Pentecostal School of Religion.

On May 28, 1942, George Nolan Spells married Quennie Ameline Mae Kirkland, his devoted wife of 39 years. To this union 4 children were born: George Nolan, Jr., Gregory Quentin, Charmaine Antoinette and Tamara Elaine.

Among his affiliations he served as Boy's Work Secretary at Crispus Attucks Community Center, York, Pa., for a number of years. Here he played and coached championship basketball teams. Rev. Spells served as assistant pastor of Small Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church, York, Pa., and was ordained by the late Bishop Cameron Chesterfield Alleyne, May 1946 in Washington, D.C.

The family moved to Carlisle, Pa., where he served as assistant to the late Rev. Henry N. Drew, and also director of the Carlisle Community Center. He pastored Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church, Shippensburg, Pa., and was employed at the Letterkenny Ordnance Depot, Chambersburg, Pa., where he was instrumental in acquiring jobs for minorities and members of his congregation.

In 1952 the family moved to Harrisburg, Pa., where Rev. Spells was appointed pastor of Harris A.M.E. Zion Church, then located at 1410 Marion Street. Here he served faithfully for 12 years. Under his leadership at Harris, a daily kindergarten was operated, "Buds" and "Y" choirs organized. Boy Scouts and class leader system implemented. For twenty years he was employed as protestant chaplain at the State Correctional Institution, Camp Hill, Pa. He served on many community and civic organizations where he gave faithful and unselfish devotion, namely; past president of the Harrisburg Ministerium, Council of Churches of Greater Harrisburg, former director of Camp Curtin YMCA, member of Mayor's Human Relations Committee, director Pennsylvania Council of Churches, member of the American Protestant Correctional Chaplains Association and the American Correctional Chaplains Association.

Rev. Spells was presently serving as president of Tri-County Commission for Community Action, president of S.U.R.E., board of directors and treasurer of the Independent Ministers' Retirement Fund.

He was appointed presiding elder of the Philadelphia district by the late Bishop Raymond Luther Jones in 1964.

The joy of his life was his office as the presiding elder of the Philadelphia District, Philadelphia and Baltimore Conference, A.M.E. Zion Church. He served this office meritoriously with undying love for 17 years. At the 155th session of the Philadelphia and Baltimore Annual Conference held at Wesley Union A.M.E. Zion Church in Harrisburg, Pa., May 20-24, 1981, he received his last appointment from Bishop Charles Herbert Foggie, presiding prelate. He was elected delegate to the 1981 World Methodist Conference.

Rev. Spells, an energetic methodical man, beloved and revered, respected citizen, humanitarian, whose life was lived as God makes Himself manifest in a man will be remembered and missed by his family and friends. "He knew how to walk with kings and never lost the common touch."

He leaves to mourn their loss, his wife, Mrs. Quennie K. Spells, 2 sons, George Nolan Jr., of Trenton, N.J., Gregory Quentin, 2 daughters, Charmaine Antoinette and Tamara Elaine, all of Harrisburg. Six grandchildren, Tania Lynn, Tamara, A., Gregory Q., Jr., Anthony Craig, Eugene O'Doric and Kyle Kirkland Spells. Three brothers, Frank C., James of York, and Timothy Spells of New York City, N.Y., a host of relatives and friends.

SPOTLIGHT ON ALUMNUS DONALD C. McMEANS

The following article, written by Barbara Faggins, entertainment writer for THE PHILADELPHIA TRIBUNE, appeared in the August 14, 1981 edition of Weekend Portfolio. The full article, as it appeared, is reproduced below. Owns new station;

He wants to make TV more Mc-Mean-ingful

After being in the broadcasting business for more than a decade and witnessing the tremendous impact television in particular has on today's youths, Donald C. McMeans a New Jersey entrepreneur and founder of the Renaissance Broadcasting Corp., said he is compelled to turn things around and at least make TV viewing more meaningful.

McMeans, the president of Renaissance Corp., who spent 13 years in broadcast media, said prior to his interest in the business aspect of TV he became frustrated with what was being shown while working at two of New Jersey's public broadcasting stations.

"While working at Channel 23 and 52, there were certain things I felt should have been dealt with concerning problems that affected people," McMeans said.

He then worked as director of community services at both stations at different time periods. "The material they were getting on television was negative."

As director of community services, McMean said he designed programs that were positive and intended to be motivational and inspirational, not just for the youths, but for the adults as well.

The kind of films that he said he offered were documentaries that dealt with issues that he thought would ultimately be an alternative to regular programs. The feature documentaries were: "Self-Impending, "Who Is Cain?" and "A Child Is Waiting". The latter feature documentary was about the subject of Black adoption.

McMeans said he not only wanted to project a positive image through his programs, but to communicate and possibly implant an idea in the minds of youths, especially Black teen-agers, who many times view the success of Blacks through a vacuum.

"I've been trying to communicate an idea to control your own destiny. I have been trying to get that point across," he said. "We visually see only athletes and entertainers, and that is their only option."

Commenting further, he said, "We live in a capitalist society that requires a lot of hard work. We don't have a lot of money to get and do a lot...athletes and entertainers did a lot, and that's what is seen on television," he said. "Those are the children's idols."

McMeans said he has been trying for years through programming and as the director of human resources in the Model City program under the New Jersey Department of Community Affairs, to demonstrate to youths that power does exist by reading and writing and trying to do something meaningful.

"I had been saying this, but I was in the same mode as everyone else. Black operating under a degree of limitations," he said.

McMeans, 41, sitting in a relaxed position and then leaning forward to explain that, prior to his departure from the public broadcasting, he was working on a special series entitled, "Four Against Wind," that involved successful men like Rev. Leon Sullivan, A. G. Gaskin, who either made a contribution or a change in the society in which they lived.

The series was never completed because McMeans subsequently left New Jersey's public service broadcasting for a short hiatus working as an independent producer and writer before developing the Renaissance Broadcasting Corp., because of mounting frustrations with a system that he knew in order to change it would have to come from him through ownership.

"I became frustrated because there were so many things needed to be done and so few people doing it," said McMeans, who resides in New Jersey with his wife, Helen, and their three daughters: Michelle, 13; Monique, 12; and Malika, 8.

"Like helping Black children see that they were not in an internal prison, that they could strive to be anything they wanted to by putting values on learning," said McMeans, who said to himself over and over again, "If you know so much, then why don't you do something about it?"

That was five years ago when McMeans mumbled those words to himself repeatedly. But of course then, he only had an idea and 50¢ in his pocket with a bundle of responsibilities to contend with.

While surviving on savings and support from his wife and children, McMeans took a crash course in new television technology, finances, engineering and marketing. McMeans said he spent 40 hours a week in the Library of Congress reading and conducting research on every bit of information that was available about television.

"I created a new book called a library. I researched in nine different libraries," he said, to name a few - "Willingboro, Biddle Law Library and the Library of Congress. Getting information was like food. I was obsessed and the information was there. I spent 40 hours a week from Monday through Sunday researching all new technology in television."

After packaging a salable product, he went forth but failed, because as he himself had mentioned earlier in the interview, he was a man with limitations.

"I had an idea and as I attempted to sell the program or particular idea, I thought to myself still I had to sell it to someone else, and still had to depend on someone else," he said. "Then I thought if I got my own television station, that would be it."

Today, as a result of wanting to communicate an idea and change the negative images that viewers are sometimes exposed to, McMeans has his own television station. In fact, it is South New Jersey's first major commercial television station, WRBV-TV (Channel 65), that began broadcasting in mid-July.

The station, according to McMeans, will present a mix of syndicated family-style shows and locally produced news and, of course, public affairs programs.

The station has studios in Vineland and has a power signal that blankets the southeastern Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey area, extending north through Trenton, east through Atlantic City, south to Cape May County and west through Philadelphia. Those who reside in Wilmington can also pick up the station.

McMeans says that television is an important vehicle to New Jersey residents because many times they are left out, especially when it comes to issues of importance.

"Television is a critical service and an unmet need in New Jersey that the Philadelphia television stations are unable to service. Both Philadelphia and other areas in Pennsylvania and New Jersey have programs deemed necessary," he said.

"New Jersey has the lowest recognition of its public officials," said McMeans, who discussed the main objective of the station. "Our first project is our news designed to issues and events of political concern to the people of New Jersey."

McMeans, a former student at John Hopkins School, who studied as a Ford Foundation foreign affairs student, said the focus of WTBV-TV will be on the needs of New Jersey.

"The focus will be on critical issues that the people can do something about as opposed to a situation." For instance, said McMeans, the holder of an A.B. degree from Lincoln University and a master's degree from the University of Pennsylvania, "The programs will range from local political events, education, to economics.

The news program, he said, will be more sincere and complete with less emphasis on theatrics, he said. "TV news has a tendency to be theatrical, and the news is done in a tabloid form. The idea is to cover it thoroughly; to do that is to make it interesting.

Donald C. McMeans, the son of a New Hartford, Conn., factory worker who was born in Alabama started out in 1976 with 50¢ in his pocket and is a millionaire today. On the market he is worth 11.7 million.

But all this would not have been possible without his wife, Helen, who at first did not go along with the idea of quitting his job and going all-out for an idea that could have easily backfired.

"It was alright until he was not going to work at a regular job. He wanted to put it on the line. I thought maybe it will go away," she said.

"I reacted negatively. There was going to be no paycheck. We had to talk," she explained. "I said it had to be a joint effort; that was the only way we were going to do it. I needed to feel it was something we were doing together."

Helen and Donald McMeans did come to an agreement with no money, and now they are 10 times richer, not because of the dollars but because they worked on a project together and made it work.

Class Prophecy

Wilmot Kelton Evans, Class of 1916, wrote a class prophecy ten years after his graduation. Recently, it was sent to the President of Lincoln University by Mrs. Betty Franklin, Mr. Evans' daughter, who found it among her father's papers. The prophecy was written in the form of an account of a trip Mr. Evans and his wife had taken, a trip Mrs. Franklin feels might have been fictional. On the "trip," Mr. and Mrs. Evans "met" the following members of the Class of 1916 working in a variety of occupations.

S.G. Smith - principal of the Lincoln High School in Chester.

Rev. S.W. Johnson - pastor of a church in West Chester.

Rev. E.M. Murray - pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Oxford.

Louis Tillery - mail clerk on the Oxford-Washington run of the railroad.

S.E. Robertson - Congressman from South Carolina.

Howard D. Gregg - assistant librarian, Congressional Library, Washington, D.C.

Charles R. Sautler - practicing law in Richmond, Va.

Rev. J. Walter Suber - Lincoln Memorial Baptist Church, Greenville, S.C.

R.G. Robinson - professor at Tuskegee.

Emory A. James - druggist and rising politician in Philadelphia.

A.R. Wilson - preacher on his native reservation, Thebes, Ga.

P.L. Edwoods - high school instructor of English in Detroit.

D.L. Asbury - attorney in Chicago.
Walter P. Stanley - instructor of music at Howard University.

Lincoln Sponsors Special Services

Lincoln has continually provided academic support and counseling services to its students during the decade of the seventies up to the present time. This assistance has been available through the Special Services Program, better known as SPEED. The SPEED Program is directed by Herschel Bailey, '66.

The SPEED Program provides comprehensive counseling services, tutorial assistance in a number of content areas and sponsors a variety of cultural activities for students. The major goals of the program are to facilitate the academic and social adjustment to college life.

Many students enter the SPEED Program with academic deficits but through the program go on to graduate and make significant contributions in our society.

Advisory Board Sponsors Bazaar

The Special Services Advisory Board held its annual Christmas Bazaar on Saturday, Nov. 21, 1981, between 10:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. on the lower level of the Student Union Building. This annual fund-raiser is used to generate money for a variety of worthwhile projects and your support is urgently needed.

Activities during the bazaar included a raffle drawing, an auction of donated new and used items, a dinner and bake sale, bingo, the sale of books, gifts, Christmas cards, and fruit cakes. In addition, both campus and off-campus organizations rented a booth and sold something as a fund-raiser for their individual organizations.

Last year approximately $1,850.00 was raised during the bazaar and distributed to campus organizations to support worthwhile student programs and projects. Allocations of last year's income was as follows:

the University. This impact can be noted by citing some statistics on the graduating class of 1978. During the 1978 academic year, the TIME Program carried fifty-six seniors on its rolls. Of these, thirty-eight graduated May 7. This represents a completion rate of 67.85%. Some other statistics were even more impressive. Forty members of the class were graduated with honors. Twelve of this group were TIME students. Two TIME students were graduated Summa Cum Laude; four, Magna Cum Laude; and six, Cum Laude. In addition, TIME seniors earned nine separate academic prizes. TIME students comprised 20.8% of the total graduating class. While they made up only a fifth of the entire class, they comprised a third of the honors graduates. Clearly, the TIME Program is working.

We are anticipating another successful program as we begin the 1981-82 academic year. We look forward to another decade of challenge.

Students Study Russian, Chinese

Among the members of the Class of 1985 are 35 young women and men taking part in the Mott Foundation Honors Programs in the Social Sciences and the Natural Sciences. Selected on the basis of their achievements in high school and their scores on the S.A.T., these freshmen are the first to participate in the program.

During their four years at Lincoln, the Mott students will take two years of Russian and two years of Chinese. Every two weeks, they take part in an Integrating Seminar. The Integrating Seminars are designed to emphasize an interdisciplinary approach. Their primary objective is to examine interconnections among the natural sciences, social sciences, and humanities, adding to the unity, focus, and strength of the program.

A student completing the four-year curriculum in the Social Science track will be well prepared for advanced professional training in law, business and public affairs, or for graduate study in political science or economics. A student completing the four-year curriculum in the Natural Science track will be well prepared for advanced professional or academic training in such areas as medicine, dentistry, biophysics, oceanography, and engineering medicine.

Dr. Herman R. Branson is the director of the Mott Honors Programs, and Dr. Dana Flint is the coordinator. The programs were made possible through a grant from the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation.

Lincoln Offers Human Services Degree

Lincoln University and Eagleville Hospital and Rehabilitation Center, along with eight other human service agencies, jointly developed and launched a Master of Human Services program in 1977. Lincoln is a state-related university in Pennsylvania's Commonwealth System of Higher Education chartered by the state to offer both baccalaureate and masters degrees. Lincoln is accredited by the Middle States Association and this accreditation covers all of its degree programs.

The idea for a masters program originated at Eagleville Hospital and was developed with grants from the Fund for the Improvement of Postsecondary Education and the National Institute on Drug Abuse. The Program is directed towards full time workers in human services who have both experience and demonstrated skills in the human service field.

In recent years many individuals without advanced academic degrees have become highly skilled practitioners in the human services. With their experience and personal qualities, non-degreed workers have made enormous contributions to the field and have helped to keep their agencies responsive to the needs of the citizens they serve. Many professional schools have been unwilling or unable to credit the proven skills and knowledge of this group and have maintained the baccalaureate as a condition of entry. This policy effectively prevents a competent group of people from continuing their academic learning and acquiring needed credentials for career advancement.

The Lincoln University Master of Human Services Program is an attempt to provide a remedy for this problem. Cooperating agencies send candidates with proven human service skills. Lincoln tests their academic skills and admits qualified candidates, both degreed and non-degreed. The program is competency based applying relevant academic theory to problems encountered in agency practice. This approach has made it an attractive alternative to traditional masters programs for both the degreed and non-degreed professional.

Student Health Service

The Health Service is located on the first floor of Cresson Hall. It is open 24 hours a day when school is in session with nurses on duty at all times. A physician is available four days a week, three hours each of those days. A psychiatrist is available at the Health Service and provides evaluation of emotional difficulties and assistance in working out necessary treatment. All students records are kept in the Health Service for medical reasons and are CONFIDENTIAL.

The Health Service has in-patient facilities where students with minor medical and surgical problems can be kept overnight. There is a local community hospital (Southern Chester County Medical Center), 3 miles from Lincoln's campus with emergency, surgical, x-ray, and other diagnostic facilities. Students requiring hospitalization are cared for there. The University maintains a Health Service van on campus which is available at any time to transport injured students to and from the medical center.

There is a full array of specialists and consultants available in the area and nearby cities, including surgeons, gynecologists, urologists, orthopedists, ophthalmologists, dentists, etc.

Students are encouraged to bring all of their health problems to the Health Service. The Health Service records are kept separately from all the university records. Needless to say, communications made in the Health Service are PRIVILEGED information and are NOT available to anyone including other university officials and parents, WITHOUT THE WRITTEN CONSENT of the student involved.

The second component is the academic follow-up. Students are expected to attend study centers where they receive academic enrichment and tutoring throughout the school year.

The third component is the "bridge" program. The students participate in this session during the summer between their high school graduation and their first semester in college. Upward Bound seeks to make this session as much like the college experience as possible in order to facilitate the student's adjustment when he/she begins their freshman year. Students, in most cases, are enrolled in college level courses during their bridge summer.

Upward Bound cannot pay for a student's college education. It does, however, provide assistance in completing college applications and financial aid applications and financial aid applications. Parent/Student workshops are conducted for this purpose.

Lincoln University's Upward Bound Program recruits 9th through 11th graders from schools in Southern Chester County and South Philadelphia.

For more information contact the program staff: Mr. Herschel Bailey, Director (Class of '66); Ms. Denis Walden, Assistant Director (Class of '75); and Ms. Joan Mayo, Counselor.

The Emphasis Is On Careers At The Career Services Center

Educators throughout this nation are keenly aware of the value and significance of career planning and placement as an integral part of the educational process. Unfortunately, students of predominantly black colleges are confronted with two enormous obstacles in entering the mainstream of the American economic system: (1) the lack of good career decision-making; and (2) the lack of manifested employability skills. Lincoln University students are no exception and in an effort to help solve these problems, in 1974 the Board of Trustees voted to adopt the trimester calendar, and Cooperative Education was introduced to our campus. The program was implemented in the summer of 1975 when 23 students were placed on assignments, which was exceptionally good in view of the bleak economic picture at that time, and especially when schools with older, more established programs could not find slots for that many students during this period.

To date 687 students have been placed on meaningful, major-related assignments. Students have co-oped in nearby Philadelphia, and across the country to California and Washington state; outside the continental United States, Lincoln students have worked in Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, London, England, and as far away as Nigeria. The work projects include almost every major offered on campus.

In our ever-growing list of co-op employers we include J. C. Penney, NOAA, Chevrolet Metal Fabricating, National Park Service, Lawrence Livermore Laboratories, the Northwest Center for Community Mental Health/Retardation, Social Security Administration, Phelps-Stokes Fund, Southeast Neighborhood House, AAMESBIC, National Association of Black Manufacturers, SmithKline, Crime Prevention Association, the I.R.S., Department of the Navy, Dun & Bradstreet, etc., etc., to name only a few.

As with everything "the proof of the pudding is in the eating." How profitable is the Cooperative Education experience for Lincoln University students? Let us first consider the financial aspects. Students who are placed on first-time assignments with non-profit organizations (using what we call "soft money" for student salaries) are paid a minimum of $4.00 per hour as compared to $3.25 when our program started: students going out on second assignments now receive $4.50 per hour, rather than the $3.50 rate of a few years ago. Students who co-op with employers under what we term "hard cash" are paid the same entry level rates as their full-time employees and we have some salaries which began at $900 per month. Statistics recently compiled by the Placement Office show that the average starting salary of a 1981 Lincoln graduate with co-op experience was $15,931 as compared to $12,853 for a non co-oping graduate. This indicates a difference of $3,078 in salary for the co-oping student as compared to that of his non-participating counterpart.

There are other benefits, perhaps less tangible at first glance, but equally important, nonetheless. The co-op student's resume reflects one all important fact - PREVIOUS WORK EXPERIENCE. To date there has not been a student with co-op experience to graduate from Lincoln who has not received at least one job offer or acceptance to Graduate School!! This fact, in itself, should be reason enough for participating in the program.

In addition to the foregoing, the co-op experience allows a student to change career direction, if the first assignment in a given major proves to be less rewarding, fulfilling and challenging as the individual had hoped. We have had some students whose co-op assignments represented their first venture into the world of work; many have discovered innate qualities they did not realize they possessed - the ability to cope with being the only minority in the office, finding a place to live in communities where there are not other blacks, not to mention the actual performance of the duties and responsibilities relating to the job itself, such as dealing with disturbed children or working with ex-drug addicts and/or alcoholics. Cooperative Education at Lincoln University is summarized very succinctly in the recent study conducted by the Middle States Accreditation Team: "This endeavor provides students with on-the-job experience, opportunities to test career choices, and a chance to prepare for the world of work in a supportive environment."

In July 1976, the Cooperative Education and Placement Offices merged and became the Career Services Center, thus adding a new dimension to the educational efforts at Lincoln University. The Middle States Accreditation Team included the following statements in its report: "The activities of the (Career Services) Center have expanded and it has become one of the best run and most effective programs on campus, as well as a model for other institutions." They further state: "The program (Career Services Center) offers many services which most students need, but many of them do not take advantage of them." Finally, they observed: "Every effort is made to assist students by providing a wide variety of career development and orientation activities, such as counseling, workshops, seminars, freshman orientation, etc. The focus of these activities is to prepare students for the job search process, and to increase the involvement of faculty in this process."

Using funds received from a special grant from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, an Occupational Library was established as a part of the Career Services Center, all of which is located on the fourth floor of Lincoln Hall. We have a full-time Librarian to catalogue and supervise this facility which houses a wealth of information on career opportunities and graduate and professional school literature. The Occupational Library contains such references as the Occupational Outlook Handbooks, Dun & Bradstreet, Standard & Pears Reference Books, publications on all co-op and graduate employers, files, tapes, slides and co-op job descriptions. Students are referred to the card catalog to research career material related to their majors. Modular carrels are available for canned presentations and self-paced independent study. The Occupational Library contains a continuous and current flow of publications from business, industry, government, and social agencies, job market information, etc. All Lincoln students have access to the Guidance Information Systems terminals in the Occupational Library of the Career Services Center. Sign-in logs indicate an increase in the use of this equipment. Of a total of 968 registered students in the fall of 1980, 447 or 46% made use of the library, representing a 6% increase over the figure for the prior year. A comparison of requests for the other forms of information shows -

1977-78 - 1,146 requests

1980-81 - 1,424 requests

Information concerning scholarships, grants, fellowships and graduate degree programs is on file in the Occupational Library in the form of printed flyers, up-to-date catalogs, microfiche reader/printer equipment, etc. Additionally Graduate School and Careers Day representatives always bring pertinent information with them for distribution to interested students and current literature on job opportunities. The Library has complete information on various state certification requirements for teaching and the Career Services Center is also able to supply information on many and varied types of summer jobs and part-time employment opportunities for the convenience of the students. The Middle States Accreditation Team made the following comment: "The Occupational Library was rated a very comprehensive and well-organized facility."

In the spring of 1980, the Career Services Center was reviewed by a team of outside evaluators, one of whom said: "The Occupational Library...is unquestionably the most comprehensive and well organized facility ever reviewed (by this evaluator)." Of the over-all operation of the Center, this same evaluator reported: "Enough cannot be said about the variety of programs, services and outreach activities provided, the efficiency in which accountability is documented through evaluations, statistical reports, and the use of a well-defined plan of operation..." The placement statistics validates the evaluator's praise. Incomplete dates on the Class of '81 indicates that 97 students (82%) have either received job offers or have been accepted for graduate school. We are still collecting information on this group of students which will improve our placement ratio for this year. While the state placement norm is 64% for all schools across Pennsylvania, the Career Services Center optimally strives to place every graduating senior at Lincoln.

Our success, as outlined in the foregoing, has only served as a catalyst to our efforts in preparing Lincoln students to enter the work world. In 1979-80 in conjunction with the Education Department, the Career Services Center provided instruction for a Freshman Seminar class which was largely career oriented. In 1980-81 this became a part of the regular curriculum offerings at Lincoln and is now mandatory for all entering Freshmen.

Additionally, the staff of the Career Services Center put together a series of Workshops which were presented throughout the year to assist students in their job readiness preparation. These Workshops included such topics as Job Survival Skills, Assertiveness Training, Dressing for Success (for Men and Women), Self-Awareness, Motivation, Job Hunting Skills, etc. These presentations were in addition to the Resume Writing and Interview Techniques workshops which have been offered by the Placement Office since 1976. Further, a special Workshop "Focus on Cooperative Education" was held for area High School Guidance Counselors, with representatives from six areas participating in the event. The Career Services Center conducted an Employer's Workshop, including Center personnel, former co-op students and some current co-op employers. The event was highly successful.

The Placement Office submits JOBS WATCH ANNOUNCEMENTS to the various academic departments, to keep them abreast of jobs and job trends. This flyer is also sent to all Lincoln graduates who have requested that their names be placed on the mailing list, including all members of the current graduating class.

During the last academic year, 108 companies came to campus to recruit from the graduating class. In addition, the Career Services Center coordinates Graduate School Day - held in October - when representatives from an average of 50 graduate and professional schools come to campus to discuss available educational opportunities, financial aid packages, preparing applications, etc.

Careers Day is held in March, when an average of 60 companies are invited to Lincoln so that our students can learn, first-hand, the employment options available to them.

In essence, the Career Services Center endeavors to offer activities that include all aspects of career

—SPORTS—

We hope to have a super season with the addition of the new track facilities which will bring about more awareness. It is sometimes difficult to see how well our track team runs because we do not really sit back and take notice. However, the Lincoln University track team has gained renowned recognition with their excellent performances. With the addition of this new facility we are quite sure it will instill more motivation and better performances. We are proud to say that we have five All-Americans: Mike Randolph, William Hart, Van Youngblood, Walt Bailey, and Jeff Austin.

Women's Basketball and Volleyball

The women's basketball program and women's volleyball program are both of championship quality. We are expecting them to repeat their performance again this year. Our basketball team has returned with most of their players from their championship games last year and should be just as competitive this year. The volleyball team is few in numbers this year, but with the guidance of Dr. Jean A. White, they should maintain their status.

Bowling

Our bowling team this year will have a more competitive schedule and we are looking forward to our men improving on their below 500 record of last year. However, our women bowling team members will no doubt be just as competitive as the 11-5 season from last year shows.

Men's Basketball

planning, as we try to convince Lincoln's students that it is important to set realistic career goals and that it is necessary to proceed in a carefully planned, methodical fashion to achieve those career aspirations. It is incumbent upon the Center to continue its present activities and to expand them where feasible, in order to give the students all the information and assistance necessary to enable them to steer a steady course toward their ultimate achievements.

As one of the spring 1980 evaluators reported: "...the students interviewed spoke very highly of these activities and they expressed disappointment that more students do not participate in activities that are not required of them." This facility is among the most service-oriented on campus, and an invitation is extended to any and all who might have need of their assistance three years and with the acquisition of a couple of new students, we are still shooting for the sky. Knowing that there are many obstacles, we will have to work hard and very diligently to be as competitive as our schedule shows.

Slimnastic Program

For those who are concerned about becoming healthy physically, we have a fantastic slimnastic program that has been incorporated by Barbara Crittenden. This program is what you have been waiting for for many years. The only thing you will have to pay is to give up some time and the presence of bodies. At this time the class is meeting Monday thru Friday at 12 noon, in the Alumni Gymnasium. For further information you should contact Barbara Crittenden, Extension 381.

Baseball

Our baseball team has again started a super season. It is only time that will determine if we improve. If we had to evaluate our team at this point, we could happily say that it would be the team of the future. The situations that we have as far as players and coach are excellent because they seem to work well together. Mr. James Weagley has been putting in innumerable hours in a short period of time in trying to prepare this team for a season that will be very grueling if we have a full schedule. We are hoping to continue this split season in the Spring.

Soccer

Our soccer program is still hovering just above ground. This is a program that we very much would like to improve if possible. There seems to be many problems that have been deterring this program. However, we will not give up because we feel that it will be an asset to Lincoln University.

What Happens to a Dream Deferred?

Martin Luther King Jr.'s 52nd birthday was remembered with a special convocation at 11 o'clock on Jan. 15. The Honorable A. Leon Higginbotham Jr., circuit judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, was the guest speaker. The subject of his speech was "Racism, Human Rights and Excellence." He was introduced by Dr. Herman R. Branson, who stated that he was "one of the ablest jurists in America exemplifying what Martin Luther King was trying to do for America."

Speaking of Martin Luther King as one who symbolized excellence in everything he did, Judge Higginbotham noted that he was "a legend and a prophet of our time, not just for America but for all the world." He expressed the hope that King's birthday would symbolize more to most Americans than a lazy respite or mere self-indulgence.

"The greatest tragedy that I see is that King will be perceived solely as a dreamer. Although he did dream, he organized protests and marches, but, more importantly, he used his intellect," Judge Higginbotham stated.

Calling King an extraordinary person, the noted jurist characterized him as one who was "able to look at human rights in terms of all people" and one who "thought in terms of worldwide dimensions."

In his closing remarks Judge Higginbotham urged students to make the civil rights leader's birthday a moment for introspection and rational thought. He told them that if they really wanted to honor Dr. King's memory, they should stop the nonsense of closing down the school and work to achieve higher grade-point averages. Quoting from the poem "Dream Freedom" by one of Lincoln's own, Langston Hughes, Judge Higginbotham said, "That was Martin Luther King's message--the eradication of racism to save the dream for all."

Hon. A. Leon Higginbotham

Evening Observance

In the evening the Department of Religion of Lincoln University, with the cooperation of neighboring Friends' Meetings, presented Dr. Dwight Spann-Wilson, a noted Black educator, who shares Dr. King's spirit of non-violence.

"In a time of violence in urban America and in Vietnam, it was Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. who emerged as a prophet of non-violence. Due largely to his inspiring leadership the civil rights protests of the '60's were translated into acts of social justice.

Dr. Wayman R. Coston, a Wilmington; Del. general practitioner since 1939, suffered a stroke and died Feb. 10 at the Delaware Division of the Wilmington Medical Center.

Born in Finlay, Ohio, Nov. 28, 1900, he received his elementary education in that city and his secondary education in Washington, D.C., at Dunbar High School. He entered Lincoln University in 1920, and was the first freshman to make the football team between 1914 and 1920. He was coached at Lincoln by Fritz Pollard and Paul Robeson. He was a Chicago Defender-Pittsburgh Courier CIAA Negro all-American tackle for three years and was elected all-time all-American in 1929 by the same groups. He was graduated from Lincoln in 1924. In 1976 Black Sports magazine named him one of its all-time all-Americans. Coston played professional football for two and a half years with the Providence Steam Rollers. Following his graduation from the Meharry Medical School in 1934, he returned to Lincoln where he was an assistant football and basketball coach from 1936 to 1939.

Dr. Coston did graduate work in family practice at George Washington University Hospital, Temple University, and Howard University Hospital. He also did advanced study of cardiovascular disease at Hahnemann and Pennsylvania Hospitals at Philadelphia. From 1935 to 1939 he was the venereal disease control officer for the state of Delaware. Following this, he opened his private practice in Professor Richard E. Hawes has had a review essay on the big bands of Buddy Rich and Woody Herman accepted for publication in the Fall/Winter issue (Dec.) of the lajrc Journal, a quarterly published by the International Association of Jazz Record Collectors. Also Prof. Hawes has accepted an appointment by Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Franklin Moyer, to serve as a community member on the Oxford Area School Board's Long-range Planning Committee.

The Lectures and Recitals Committee at Lincoln University presented Horatio Miller, pianist, on Nov. 5 in the Mary Dod Brown Memorial Chapel.

The English Department presented a symposium on "Literary Criticism" with Prof. Richard E. Hawes, Mrs. Sarala Abreu Van Dover, and Prof. Julius Bellone on Nov. 30 in the Guest House at Lincoln.

Dr. Jean White coordinated the performance of the National Dance Theatre of Zaire at Lincoln University on Oct. 13. The performance was telecast on Channel 6 on Nov. 8.

Prof. Eric S. King, assistant professor of political science, has been appointed chairman of the Political Science Department. Previously an assistant professor of political science at West Virginia State College, Prof. King joined the Lincoln faculty in August, 1979.

Mrs. Traute Ishida, of Lincoln's Fine Arts Department, showed a new group of paintings at the Henri Gallery in Washington, DC from Dec. 12 through Jan. 6. Mrs. Ishida has exhibited in Washington and other major cities in the Eastern United States and in her native Germany.

Young Performs At National Gallery

John Young, a native of Birmingham, Ala., has performed extensively in the United States and Europe. His technical skills and musical insights have captivated recital audiences at the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C., and the National Association of Negro Musicians Convention, Indianapolis. Recently, Mr. Young performed on the "Meet the Black Composers" series at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Washington, D.C., and in the Eugene List "Monster Concert" at the University of Maryland International Piano Competition where Mr. Young received an award for the most outstanding performance of a contemporary work. On Dec. 6 Young gave a recital in the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C., and on Feb. 1 he performed in The Mary Dod Brown Chapel.

THE IRVIS REPORT

By House Democratic Leader K. LEROY IRVIS

When I was growing up, I was always told education was the key to a successful future. The wisdom of that message hasn't changed. If anything, the value of education is even greater today than it was a half century ago. No young person can expect much from the future without a good education.

But as education becomes more valuable, it becomes more expensive, too. Today, the cost of a college education is reaching astronomical heights. In days long past, an ambitious young person would work his way through college; but in a day when one year of college can cost as much as $11,000, students need help from parents, benefactors or the government.

Unfortunately, this summer brought bad news about financial aid from the federal government through the Guaranteed Student Loan Program. On October 1, the rules for loan eligibility, interest rates and repayment changes and experts estimate that about one-third of those students who received loans last year will no longer be eligible for loans according to the recent changes.

For low-income families one of the most crucial changes in the loan program is that Congress, at President Reagan's urging, cut the program that gives out-right grants to low-income students. The size of the "Pell Grants" have been reduced by $80 with the maximum amount available per year now $1,670. Congress also revised the eligibility scale for the program which will eliminate more than 250,000 students from the program, mostly those whose family income range between $16,000 to $25,000.

Another change that will affect all students getting loans is the assessment of a five per cent "origination fee" on each loan. This means that a student will pay interest on the entire amount of the loan, but will only receive 95 percent of it. The government will use the five percent fee to defray its interest subsidy on the loan while the student is in school and not paying interest.

Still another change affects the Auxiliary Loans to Assist Students program. Beginning October 1, parents will be able to borrow up to $3,000 per student per year, but the interest rate will climb from 9 to 14 per cent.

As stringent as the cutbacks are, it is likely that the picture will get darker before it gets brighter. The present cutbacks fall $1 billion short of what President Reagan had hoped to achieve. Experts are predicting that the Reagan administration will redouble its effort to require students to pay interest on loans while they are still in school and will continue to seek further cuts in the Pell Grants.

For America's minorities and poor, education has always been the door to a better life. The Reagan

FESTIVAL HONORS LARRY NEAL

The Langston Hughes Cultural Arts Festival held in November 1981 will be remembered as a significant event in the history of our institution. The festival was the occasion for a gathering of distinguished critics. J. Saunders Redding, Ernest I. White Professor Emeritus at Cornell University, was the keynote speaker. Dr. Redding, whom we call a "son" of Lincoln, spoke on Lanston Hughes' democratic vision. Richard K. Barksdale, distinguished author and critic of Hughes; Burney J. Hollis, scholar of Waters Turpin; and Robert M. Farnsworth, critic of Melvin B. Tolson, discussed the legacy by these literary giants.

The festival also paid the homage to the late Larry Neal, poet, critic, dramatist and alumnus of Lincoln University. At the awards banquet Mrs. Evelyn Neal, his widow, and his son Avatar received a Memorial Plaque presented by the English Department. Ron Welburn, Sonia Sanchez, Askia M. Toure and Charles Fuller were among the poets and dramatists who paid tribute to Larry Neal.

Also at the awards banquet several other Lincoln alumni were recognized. Therman B. O'Daniel, Ron Welburn, Donald Bogle, Ja A. Jahannes and Sabrina Lamb received awards for their outstanding contribution to the literary legacy of Lincoln University.

Described by many who attended, as a spiritual and intellectual feast, the festival brought together students of Lincoln University, alumni (Sam Anderson, Charyn Sutton, Raymond Patterson and others) and more than 80 participants from colleges and universities on the East Coast. The distinguished poet, Sam Allen, was among the participants. Another poet, Fred Lee Hord, an administrator at Frostburg State College, was inspired to write the following poem on the occasion:

Administration has closed that door and now, I fear Reagan will not be satisfied until the door has been nailed shut. My colleagues in the Pennsylvania Black Legislative Caucus will be closely monitoring the effects of these changes in the federal loan program on Pennsylvania's low and moderate income students. We will be making our concerns known to members of the Reagan administration and to Congress. All voters should do the same.

A Little Closer to Langston Now

A little closer to Langston now, from printed distance
we move to next in line behind those who shook his soul.

A little closer to Langston now,
to Lincoln now,
not Abraham but Moses and Africa, cradle in the bullrushes for black boys.

A little closer to Langston now,
his crystal stairs,
his walls that hold the word for us who hear at high frequencies.

A little closer to Langston now,
his living dream
deferred to our black shapes and spirits, moving pictures for our hands to make.

We are in front of the world to become front in the world to force the lines into a circle.

We shall be the new Pharaohs, full of old call-and-response music, sounding blessing on the horns of our lives.

A little closer to Langston now.

—Fred Lee Hord

SPOTLIGHT ON ALUMNUS DONALD WHEELER WYATT

How does one measure greatness? It is such an intangible concept. What are the yardsticks and criteria to be applied? One has to relate the quality and extent of endeavours, accomplishments and achievements of an individual against what is thought of as being average and to evaluate the qualities of these efforts to see if they extend above and beyond what is considered to be the norm. Webster's Third International Dictionary, 1971 Edition, defines "great" or "greatness" as that which is particularly noted or notable for superiority of accomplishment especially in a particular field of activity. After an objective appraisal of accomplishments and the "track record" concerning the individual who is involved in this article, and if the evidence supports a positive conclusion (and it does), then we can reasonably bestow the label of "great" upon that individual.

This article concerns an illustrious son of Lincoln University, Donald Wheeler Wyatt, Class of 1928. Wyatt obtained his early education through high school in his hometown of Baltimore, Maryland. He graduated from Douglas High School in 1924. He attended Lincoln University, where he was awarded the A.B. Degree in sociology (cum laude) in 1928.

For his graduate training, Wyatt attended the University of Pennsylvania School of Social Work, where he graduated in 1937 with the M.A. Degree in Sociology. In addition to his formal graduate studies he completed required courses for the Ph.D., in 1941, but World War II interrupted his doctoral dissertation. For his outstanding accomplishments and expertise in the field of sociology, Wyatt was honored by his Alma Mater by being awarded an honorary Doctor of Social Science (D.D.Sc.) degree.

Dr. Wyatt holds membership in the Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity and the National Honorary Sociological Fraternity. The following are among some accomplishments for which he can take credit:

Co-author, Thus Be Their Destiny, monograph of the Negro Youth Series, published by the American Council on Education, 1941.

Editor and Contributor, Progress in Africa and America, Scholars-Statesmen Lecture Series, publication Number Three, 1971-72, Dillard University, New Orleans, Louisiana.

During his undergraduate years at Lincoln, Wyatt, in addition to his scholarly classroom attainments, is credited with having tennis recognized as a letter award sport on the University's Athletic Program. He was captain of the team and participated in the Inter-Collegiate Tennis events. He also played on the Junior Varsity basketball team.

Dr. Wyatt's credentials are impeccable. The following is a brief outline of his employment record, which reflects a "track record" anyone would be proud to possess:

Professor-Emeritus, Lecturer in African Studies, Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee, 1974-76
Other duties: Admissions consultant; tennis coach.

Visiting Professor and Director of Scholar-Statesmen Lecture Program Dillard University, 1971-74
Other duties: Tennis coach

Consultant and Director of African Heritage Seminar, Phelps-Stokes Fund, New York, 1973; Seminar conducted in Lome, Togo, West Africa.

Vice-President, Director of Field Operations, Director of East Africa Activities, Director of West Africa Activities, African-American Institute, New York, 1959-71

Administrative Officer, World Affairs Center, New York, 1958-59

Assistant Professor of Sociology, Director of Admissions, Assistant to the President, Fisk University, Nashville, Tennessee, 1947-57

Co-Director, Southern Talent Search, National Scholarship and Service Fund for Negro Students, New York, 1953-55

Fulbright Researcher, Paris and Morocco, 1949-50

Assistant Race Relations Adviser, National Housing Agency, Washington, D.C., 1946-47

Field Director, American Red Cross, North Africa and Europe, 1942-46

Assistant Race Relations Adviser, Public Works Administration, Washington, D.C., 1941-46

Associate Professor of Social Sciences, the Agricultural and Technical College, Greensboro, North Carolina, 1937-41

Industrial and Research Secretary, Armstrong Association (Urban League Affiliate), Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, 1930-37

During Dr. Wyatt's tenure as professor emeritus, and lecturer in African Studies at Maryville College, Maryville, Tennessee, 1974-76, he conducted African Seminars of Non-Western Studies and presented lectures on a variety of topics dealing with African Affairs.

Early in World War II, Dr. Wyatt was posted as a Red Cross field director in North Africa. This assignment provided the start of 30 years contact with the African Continent. As a sociologist, his attention was drawn to the racial mixture which had taken place in North Africa over the centuries, especially in the south of Morocco and the Atlas Mountain range fringing the Sahara. He observed that many prominent Moroccans were of dark color, indicating an absence of discrimination based on skin color.

Interest in this phenomenon led to a follow-up contact with North Africa as a Fulbright grantee in 1949-50, providing an opportunity to review the extensive literature on Morocco in the Biblioteque Nationale and Musee de l'Homme, Paris, and to conduct field studies in several oasis communities in southern Morocco. In carrying out the research project close contact and cooperation were maintained with University of Paris professors and directors of Moroccan research institutes in Paris and Rabat, Morocco.

As Director of Field Operations, African-American Institute (A.A.I.), Dr. Wyatt made annual trips to Africa, where he participated in the screening, selection and placement of over 2600 African students for scholarships in 200 U.S. colleges and universities to pursue undergraduate, graduate and professional studies. This program provided contacts and experiences with African heads of state, ministers and education and economic development, secondary schools and university officials, and many thousand young candidates for admission to American institutions.

As A.A.I. Director for East Africa and resident in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, for four years, 1966-70, serving an area extending from Egypt to Swaziland, opportunity was provided to meet with and assist officers of new African Universities, get to know many of the new leaders of African states, associate with key figures in the Southern Africa liberation movements, plan and direct programs for the education of young refugee students, cooperate to facilitate the exchange of students within a consortium of 40 African universities, make contact with, and assist students returning home after completing U.S. training in finding jobs commensurate with their acquired skills, etc.

Dr. Wyatt's African experience also included being Director for West Africa with residence in Lagos, Nigeria, during the major part of 1970 and prior to his retirement from the African American Institute in August 1971. He served the area extending from Senegal to the Cameroons. Contacts were made similar to those experienced in East Africa. He continued cooperation with African universities in a U.S.-supported program enabling American students to spend a junior year in Africa; he also helped arrange a conference bringing together African and American leaders for discussion of problems of mutual interest. The leaders included Senator Muskie, Congressmen Diggs and Conyers, the late Urban League Director Whitney Young, former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clarke and other prominent American participants. On the African side were such leaders as General Gowan, then president of Nigeria, and Sewetze Khama, president of Botswana as well as a number of top African economists and social planners.

As consultant with the Phelps-Stokes Fund, one of Dr. Wyatt's major responsibilities was the directing of a study tour for 16 university presidents, deans, department chairmen and faculty members. The study involved four weeks of lectures and field visits in Togo and two weeks of travel in Ghana and Nigeria. The objective of the project was to study the Benin area of West Africa from which the predecessors of the majority of American blacks were brought as slaves. Resource people and lecturers to the group included professors from the Universities of Ghana, Togo, Lagos and Ibadan, as well as ministers and directors of government agencies in three countries.

Lincoln University has always maintained strong ties and bonds of friendship with the East and West African countries. A great number of presidents, premiers and statesmen and high government officials in East and West African states received their undergraduate training and degrees at Lincoln. Over the years Dr. Wyatt has strengthened these bonds with these African countries. He has had conferences with these leaders and has programmed, directed and channelled their thinking relative to sociological and educational efforts through his knowledge and expertise in these disciplines.

Lincoln has every right to be proud of Dr. Donald Wheeler Wyatt. His accomplishments and endeavours not only reflect great glory upon Lincoln, but they also redound upon Dr. Wyatt as an able sociologist and educator and as Lincoln's Ambassador without portfolio to the East and West African Nations.

Since 1976, Dr. Wyatt has been living in retirement with his wife of 46 years, Marian Gandy Wyatt, in the new Poinciana Township, near Orlando, Florida. However, he continues to be active, lecturing on Africa to schools and colleges, churches and civic organizations; and exhibiting his extensive collection of African artifacts in statewide museums and art centers.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM DANIEL JACKSON, SR. was born in Malden, Mass., in 1905. He graduated from Malden High School where he excelled as their star quarterback in football, played baseball, ran track and was a member of the State Championship basketball team.

"Sheep" lost his father when he was four years old and very early in his life he became the man of the family to his widowed mother, Susie Jordan, and his sister, Ruth F. Jackson of Malden, Mass. When this close-knit family discovered they had a born athlete in "Sheep," it became a family goal for him to attend college. It wasn't easy in those depression days and "Sheep" worked many varied jobs after school, nights and summers to help supplement the family income. Malden honored its outstanding quarterback with its first testimonial dinner back in 1925, in appreciation of his hard work in the many games and other events which provided so many thrills for the fans. He entered Cushing academy in Ashburnham, Mass. on a scholarship and continued to score points in football, baseball and sports news coverage.

Lincoln University came next, and his prowess on the football field and baseball diamond added many more pages to his scrapbook and more mementoes and trophies to his collection. It was at Lincoln that the writing bug first bit him, and he started writing sports-related copy for the school paper. His by-lines have appeared in the Boston Chronicle, the Boston Guardian, the Ohio State News and the Cleveland Call & Post.

After he graduated from Lincoln in 1931, "Sheep" attended Boston University and took social work courses which prepared him for the job of executive director of Cambridge Community Center in Mass. It was here that he met, courted and married his wife Lydia, a kindergarten teacher assistant for the Cleveland Board of Education and became the father of his only child, William Jr., a T/Sgt. in the Air Force, currently assigned to the Federal Building in Cleveland.

The varied jobs "Sheep" has held always kept him in close contact with young people. As supervisor in the National Youth Administration and recreation supervisor for the Boston Housing Authority, he touched many youths and became advisor, counselor and friend to a great many. In 1948 the Jackson family moved to Hamilton, Ohio, where "Sheep" became the executive director of the Booker T. Washington Recreational Center. He directed and planned the program for the center when they moved into the new facility which was the pride of all Southern Ohio. The Jacksons stayed in Hamilton for four years and because of the contributions made to the community, Sheep was tendered his second testimonial dinner.

The late William O. Walker visited Hamilton in 1952, and that meeting resulted in another move for the family when "Sheep" accepted the job of sports editor of the Cleveland Call & Post, an association which lasted over twenty-five years. During his stay with the Call & Post he established what became a local tradition of honoring outstanding young athletes from the greater Cleveland area with an annual football and basketball banquet each year. Many notable speakers have appeared at these banquets through the years, and many of the selectees have gone on to achieve great things. The support of sponsors, the coaches, the players, the community has been a source of pride to "Sheep" since the initial affair soon after coming to Cleveland.

When his job at the Call & Post became a part-time one, he worked at other jobs locally, the last of which was for the City of Cleveland's Utilities Department, where he did public relations work which again afforded an opportunity to work with young people as he and his team made presentations to local junior and senior high schools. He wore many hats with his radio show and his participation in community affairs, and he was appreciative of everyone who made his job easier along the way.

The picture used here is the one used for the third and last testimonial given to "Sheep" in his lifetime. His many Cleveland friends honored him at the Lakeside Holiday Inn in 1977.

He departed this life on Monday, Nov. 1, 1981. He is survived by his loving wife, Lydia; his son, William Jr.; his sister, Ruth F. Jackson; his grandchildren, Cassandra, Lonny, and Nathan Jackson, and other relatives in Massachusetts and New York.

Chorale Has Busy Schedule

The Lincoln University CHORALE has had a busy singing schedule during the first half of the 1981-82 school term. Beside singing for the regular Chapel service on campus, the CHORALE has sung for a worship service at the Oxford Methodist Church and will present a program at the Oxford Nazarene Church in March. Also scheduled for March is a concert in Pennsauken, N.J. on the 21st and Parents' Day on campus on March 28. In December the CHORALE participated in a Choral Festival at Mother Bethel Church in Philadelphia with choirs from Morgan State and North Carolina Central.

Plans for the annual spring tour of the CHORALE from April 25-30 are fast materializing. Definite engagements have been confirmed for the CHORALE to participate in a worship service at the St. Jean Baptiste Catholic Church in Manhattan at 12:30 on Sunday, April 25, as well as a concert at Featherbed Lane Presbyterian Church in the Bronx at 2:30 on the same day. The CHORALE is interested in hearing from alumni and friends who know of an organization interested in sponsoring a concert between April 26 and April 30 anywhere in the New York City-New Jersey-Rhode Island-Boston area. The CHORALE's season will culminate in the Commencement Concert in the Mary Dod-Brown Chapel on Lincoln's campus on Saturday, May 1, at 4:00 P.M. They will also sing for the Baccalaureate and Commencement programs on Sunday, May 2. For those interested in the spring tour concerts, please contact the Music Department at (215) 932-9300, Ext. 555 or the Associate Director, Professor Emery, at Ext. 557 as soon as possible.

Wilmington, in which he remained until his death.

In 1967 Dr. Coston was inducted into the American College of Cardiology by Hahnemann College of Medicine. He was the first Black member of the Delaware State Board of Health.

Dr. Coston became a charter member of Community Presbyterian Church in 1953 and served in the capacity of trustee and elder. He was a trustee emeritus of Lincoln University, a charter member of the Wilmington Chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, and a charter member of Beta Eta Chapter of Sigma Pi Phi Fraternity. He was also a member of the American Heart Association, National Urban League, National Medical Association, United Negro College Fund, HM Club of America, Monday Club, and the Masons Prince Hall Lodge. Additionally, he was a life member of the NAACP and the consulting physician at Lincoln University, which conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at the 1980 Commencement.

Several years ago Dr. Coston established a $10,000 scholarship fund at Lincoln in memory of Paul Robeson. It benefits students who pursue graduate studies in drama or music.

Dr. Coston was married to the former Merial Grooms, who predeceased him in 1971.

Dr. Thomas Address Educational Groups

On October 2, 1981 Dr. Judith A. Thomas presented a paper "An Oral Language Program for Cultural Diversity" at the University of Pittsburgh's 34th Conference on Reading and Writing. As a result of that presentation, she was invited to address the Wilmington educators and administrators on Oct. 28 by Dr. Ogle Duff, Director of the Race Desegregation Center at the University of Pittsburgh. Dr. Thomas was also invited to address the participants on Oct. 30 for the State Department of Education's Bureau of School Improvement/Division of School Equity. Her topic was "The Effect of Discovery Teaching on Pupil Achievement in the High School

Dr. Rodgers Has Busy Schedule

In the last issue of the bulletin under Campus Briefs, Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers' name was inadvertently omitted from the article on classroom management. Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers and Dr. Judith A. W. Thomas spoke to the teachers in the Upper Dublin School District in Fort Washington, Pa., on Oct. 10. The workshop topic was "Discipline Without Damage."

Dr. Rodgers addressed the combined meeting of the American Association of Teachers of French and the Delaware Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages on Nov. 4 in Clayton Hall on the University of Delaware campus. The topic of his speech was "The Development of French and Spanish in Africa." On Nov. 17-19, Dr. Rodgers was asked by the Pennsylvania State Department of Education to serve on one of its Professional and Teacher Education Certification teams. Dr. Rodgers will evaluate the language program at East Stroudsburg State College. Dr. Rodgers, Secretary of the Black Conference on Higher Education, attended a meeting of that organization at West Chester State College on Nov. 20. Drs. Joanne Gabbin and Judith A. W. Thomas also attended. On Dec. 2, Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers was interviewed by Dr. Franklin H. Williams, president of the Phelps Stokes Fund, and Ms. Laura Hollerin. The Fund is compiling an oral history, and Dr. Rodgers was asked to speak of his extensive participation in Phelps-Stokes activities, some of which have led directly or indirectly to expansion of our own international programs. Dr. Rodgers was featured on part three of the Channel 6 "Visions" program, "Black Aesthetic/Black Style," on Dec. 6. He spoke about Africanisms in the English language and the difference between language and style and explained the uniqueness of the black experience.

Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers, along with Ms. Dolores Herrero, Spanish assistant, and Ms. Marie-Line Cairo, French assistant, was a guest of the Oxford Rotary Club on Dec. 7, 1981. Dr. Branson, a member of the club, invited Dr. Rodgers to tell the group a little about Lincoln's language program and to introduce the native language assistants. Both Ms. Cairo and Ms. Herrero captivated the audience with their witty and insightful comments about American society, which they contrasted with their native France and Spain. They noted that while the employment picture is murky in the United States, it is even bleaker in their countries. Ms. Herrero indicated there were many professionals swelling the unemployment ranks in Spain.

Advice To Liberal Arts Students

by Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers

The occupational outlook for college students who limit their studies to the liberal arts does not appear at all promising. The tottering economy has left in its wake uncertainty, a national malaise, and an unprecedented dearth of career outlets for liberal arts graduates. The trend, which was gyrating out of control in the final days of the 70's, is expected to continue throughout the 1980's, barring drastic changes in our individual and collective life styles and a total inversion of our natural priorities.

Thanks to the Big Four—Science and Technology, Business and Industry—the strictly liberal arts major will find himself severely handicapped as he faces the World of Work in the 1980's. If self-preservation be the first law of nature, the liberal arts graduate will not square off against these giants, scantily clad in his armour of humanistic ideals and armed solely with the wobbly weapons of liberal education. To equalize matters (and to increase his competitiveness and employability at the same time), the wise student will combine his liberal arts studies with training in one or more fields or high job market value. As an adjunct or coequal skill, the following fields of high job demand complement a liberal arts background especially well: computer science, electronics, engineering, accounting, data processing, food services, business administration, hotel/motel management. And we must now add another, itself a liberal art: foreign language, the growing interdependence of the world community having created an unprecedented need for individual communications, communications.

Nothing expressed or implied in the preceding paragraphs should lead to the specious conclusion that the liberal arts as a formal discipline should be abolished. Cursed be the day when technicians have no ear for music, businessmen no appreciation of poetry, when doctors are deaf to the cries of a newborn baby, and scientists prefer avian clones, bred in test tubes

Students tell Of Experiences Abroad

The Department of Languages and Linguistics sponsored a convocation on November 11, 1981, in the Mary Dod Brown Chapel. The theme was "The World Looks In and Lincoln Looks Out." Four Lincoln students who studied abroad spoke on their experiences. Ms. Diane Clare studied in Paris, France. Mr. Myron Cornish and Ms. Annette Jacobs studied in the Dominican Republic and Seville, Spain. Ms. Villann Johnson studied for one year in Montpellier, France. Our visitors from abroad—Ms. Marie-Line Cairo, a French Assistant from Cavaillon, France, and Ms. Dolores Herrero, a Spanish Assistant from Madrid, Spain—commented on their impressions of the United States. Both Ms. Cairo and Ms. Herrero are and stripped of their chirp, to the Creator's natural music makers. No, there will always be a need and a place for the liberal arts, the humanities, in our society. They must be counted upon to temper man's inhumanity to nature, to his fellowmen, and to himself, and to open his eyes to the beauty around him. But humanistic ideals and sensitivity to beauty are not likely, alone or combined, to land one a job in the eighties. Singly or doubly, they may end up purely ornamental, at best. Coupled with expertise in a field of high "job-procurement potential," a term of my own vintage, they make an unbeatable combination, however. They give the applicant a well-roundedness, versatility, and competitive edge that enable him to surface well above other candidates, thereby attracting the attention of prospective employers, bent on hiring the applicant with the widest possible range of interests, skills, and talents. Because of their versatility and catholicity of abilities, such candidates become priceless employees, for they are highly mobile and promotable, a fact which makes them prime choices for lateral as well as horizontal mobility.

While creeping inflation, with the economic recession tagging closely alongside, has not yet sounded the death knell for the liberal arts as a visible career option, it has forced us to bow to fiscal and occupational realism, caused lingering educational shibboleths to crumble, and spurred a re-examination of our values and national priorities. Since to acknowledge the reality is to admit the problem, I would offer one last bit of practical advice to liberal arts students as they approach the challenges of the 80's: Pursue the liberal arts, the humanities, and acquire the broadest liberal education possible while in college, but you would be very unwise not to combine that concentration with a skill (or skills) bearing high job market potential. In this way, you create for yourself the best of all possible worlds, and you design it to last throughout the eighties and beyond.

Former Professor Dies in New York

Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, who taught at Lincoln from 1956 to 1975, died at his home in Willet, N.Y. on December 26, 1981.

Prior to his coming to Lincoln as adjunct professor of New Testament Green in the Seminary and associate professor of classics in the college, Dr. Schwartz was employed as head of the Oriental Division of the Library of Congress. His linguistic and cryptanalytic skills came to the attention of scholars in 1958 when he presented a paper announcing his partial decipherment of the Phaistos Disk, a tablet found on the Island of Crete in 1908. During his years at Lincoln he contributed a number of articles to scholarly journals. A few days after his death his final article on

Laser Program Starts Phase II

Dr. Willie Williams, Director of the Pre-Engineering Program at Lincoln University, announced the successful completion of Phase I of the Laser Program. LASER—Lincoln's AeroSpace Engineering Recruitment Program, a joint effort undertaken by NASA (National Aeronautics and Space Administration) and the University is designed to help recruit and prepare minorities for careers in aerospace engineering. Under the first year grant, twenty (20) high school graduates were invited to participate in Phase I of the program—the summer component.

Following completion of Phase I, Phase II will take the students through two (2) academic years of preparations before transferring to participating engineering schools (Drexel, Penn State, Lafayette College) to complete the remainder of their academic studies.

The summer components consisted of an intense ten (10) week program: College Physics (8 hrs.); Calculus (8 hrs.); and Engineering Seminar (4 hrs.). The program was very structured, with students spending 6-8 hours in class each day and 2-3 hours in mandatory study sessions. In addition to the formal classes, students were given informal classes in Career Awareness and Computers. The students spent several days visiting NASA and talking with engineers. Under Phase I of the program, students had an opportunity to complete twenty (20) hours of college credit at no cost to themselves. In addition students received incentive stipends based on their academic performance.

The courses taken in the summer have enabled most students to begin their Sophomore level technical courses this fall. Their fall schedule, although somewhat less intense, consists of 2 to 3 technical courses with appropriate Humanities and Social Science courses. Under Phase II, the program along with other sources is providing over 80% of the required cost of their education.

The group represents the most impressive freshmen class in several years. With an average combined SAT score of over 900, the group has demonstrated excellent academic skills and potential for becoming engineers.

This class is the first of several classes to be recruited in a NASA-Lincoln University effort to increase the number of minorities seeking careers in engineering. The recruitment effort has already begun for the 1982-83 group.

THE STUDENT SCENE

The LASER Program

The students in Lincoln's LASER Program are:

Who's Who

In order to be considered for Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities, a student must be a senior with at least a 3.0 cumulative average. These students were selected over their peers as they had demonstrated excellent leadership abilities in Resident Advisor positions, peer counselor positions, tutorial positions and as officers of clubs and organizations. The students have demonstrated good citizenship at Lincoln University and are active in a wide variety of organizations. They are responsible individuals who show promise of usefulness to society. The following students were selected for Who's Who for 1981: Roosevelt Allen, Madisonville, VA; Elizabeth L. Alleyne, Jamaica, NY; Cyndie M. Buckson, Silver Spring, MD; Shirley M. DeSilva, Bermuda; Pamela Y. Keye, Bronx, NY; Shelley D. Mainor, Jersey City, NJ; Carla J. Maxwell, Baltimore, MD; Timothy McGilberry, Chester, PA; Roberta L. Medley, Washington, DC; Camerica Z. Nchami, Cameroon; Bryan M. Neely, Philadelphia, PA; Mora J. Nickens, Washington, DC; Joe N. Nwogu, Nigeria; Wayne E. Rock, White Plains, NY; Valerie E. West, Philadelphia, PA; Allen L. Wilkins, Harrisburg, PA.

On Feb. 12, Dr. Thomas addressed the Association of New Castle County Public School for Language and Hearing Clinicians on the topic "Oral Language Approach for Cultural Diversity" at the Brandwine High School in Wilmington, Del.

FAME

What can be said about a small university located in the rolling hills of Southeastern Pennsylvania? Well, the school is proud of its track team. As sure as the handwriting on the wall, that Lincoln University track team is headed for fame down the road. For the past few years the teams have been groomed in more than just running; the success of the team is leading outsiders to believe that winners only come from the rolling hills of Lincoln University.

Lincoln University is a Division III institution in track, but its trackteam fears no Division I or II colleges. The team, comprised of men from Ohio, New Jersey, New York, Washington, DC, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Florida, Massachusetts, Alabama, Delaware and Maryland, is surely headed for Fame. This year's team is no different from the team last year except that its goals are higher for the members of the team are running faster and jumping longer.

Widener College was the place to see track at its early season best on Saturday, Jan. 30. Teams involved in competition were Temple, Drexel, St. Joseph's, LaSalle, Glassboro, Stockton, Ursinus, Haverford, Kutztown and Lincoln University. Lincoln dominated the sprints, taking the first two places and fourth. Again the hurdlers managed to make it back to the finals, but fell short of first place, taking third and fourth. Lincoln is sure to make more noise in the mile and 1500 after such a strong showing in that area. The team also dominated the 600-yard run, while the 400-yard dash was another stepping stone for the Lincoln runners, who won that event. This team is surely headed for fame!

Coaches seem to be appalled by the number of good sprinters Lincoln is putting on the track. Lincoln put two one-lap relay teams on the track and then finished first and second. The same thing happened with the mile-relay team. One team came in first and the other team came in third. The two-mile relay team lapped all the teams on the track. It was truly a sight to witness in track. This may be, well, let's leave it at that. No doubt this team is truly headed for fame!

TRACK

The First Annual Lincoln University Invitational Track Meet will be held April 10, 1982 at 11:00 a.m. This will be the first official track competition on the new chevron all weather track.

Many colleges in the Delaware Valley area will be competing in the invitational track meet.

The Lions Track Team is rated one of the top teams in Division III. Most of Lincoln's competition is against Division I and II Teams.

Lincoln's mile relay team placed third at the IC4A Indoor Track Meet at Princeton in March. Morgan State's winning time was 3:14.

The Lions two mile relay and shuttle hurdle relay teams have been victorious during the 1981-82 indoor season.

BOWLING

The Lincoln women's bowling team has compiled a winning record of 8-5. At present, the team is in fourth place in a conference of 12 teams.

Captain Kim Johnson, Bonita Page, Jackie Weaver and Renee Ashton are the team's leading scorers with averages of 160 points or better.

Lincoln men's bowling team has a record of 6-12. The team is in 9th place out of a division of 12 teams.

BASKETBALL

Lincoln University men's basketball team completed a winning season boasting a record of 15-9.

Lincoln Lions were defeated by Liberty Baptist College in post season Division III District 19 play-offs in Lynchburg, Va.

Jeff Hunter and Ted Jefferson are the top scorers with Chuch Harris as point guard. Mel Jones is the basketball coach.

Lincoln's women basketball team won the (Philadelphia area) AIAW Division III-South Conference with an 8-0 mark. The Lady Lions boast of a winning record of 11-8. This is the second winning season in a row. The Lady Lions' defeats were by Division I and II teams.

the Phaistos Disk was published in a Festschrift in honor of J. Alexander Kerns, with whom he had collaborated for many years. A memorial service for Dr. Schwartz was held at Lincoln on Jan. 14.

FOOTBALL

A group of dedicated Lincoln alumni, students and friends have been looking into the possibilities of football returning to the campus. The group's inquiry disclosed that the maximum cost would be $40,000 per year. Nearby Swarthmore College's yearly budget is $40,000.

The return of football to Lincoln would mean in many ways a better Lincoln. It would be a place where the people playing it, the people coaching it and the people watching it will manage for the most part to keep the game in perspective.

Lincoln would play Division III football. No huge double-decked stadiums. No artificial green turfs. No TV time-out. No $2.00 programs. That's the great thing about Division III football. It is still a game.

Lincoln does not have a major sport that would attract students to stay on campus in the Fall. There is a problem with a lost of students going home every weekend.

Football will mean the revival of Homecoming and the Howard-Lincoln game.

The young men who play the game at Lincoln would be concerned, above all, with getting an education. It would be amateur college football. If football is to return to Lincoln, it must be financed by the alumni, students and friends.

We would like to hear from you. Please write me and let us know of your feelings towards reinstating football at Lincoln. We need your support.

Program Sponsors Wheelchair Events

Lincoln's Recreation Program of the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department sponsored its fourth Annual Wheelchair Field Day on Dec. 5. Under the guidance of Mr. James L. DeBoy, Coordinator of Recreation, Lincoln recreation majors recorded individual scores at 20 different stations for wheelchair-bound contestants, men and women, aged 14 and up. Events included basketball free throw, weight lifting, 100 foot dash, and many other contests. Each participant was awarded ribbons/certificates at the end of the program, which is always a success.

CAMPUS BRIEFS

Dr. Branson attended a reception on Jan. 26 in Washington, D.C., for presidents of traditionally Black colleges. The reception was given by Vice President George Bush. On Feb. 15 Dr. Branson was invited by Dr. F. Sheldon Hackney, president of the University of Pennsylvania, to participate in a press conference in Philadelphia to protest President Reagan's proposed budget cuts in student aid. On Feb. 19, President and Mrs. Branson attended a preview reception of "Treasures of Ancient Nigeria" at the Philadelphia Museum of Art. Dr. Branson served on the Advisory Committee for the exhibition and helped to get the Nigerian exhibit for Philadelphia. On March 16 Dr. Branson was interviewed by Mr. Joe Hunter, host of the Channel 6 program "Changes." They discussed student aid cutbacks plus a view of young Blacks in the twenty-first century. On March 23 Dr. Branson was in Baltimore for a panel discussion on presidential perspectives on minority student retention during Institute for Services to Education's national conference on effective retention programs for minority students. On April 1 and 2 Dr. Branson was in Orlando, Fla., where he was a panelist for the Third National Conference on Equal Employment Opportunity and Affirmative Action.

Education: Our Best Defense

by Joseph J. Rodgers, Ph.D.

The latest Reagan-inspired proposals to dismantle the Department of Education and drastically slash or eliminate education programs and aid to college and graduate school students set education and national defense in intransigent opposition, offering the American public a seeming choice between well-educated civilians and well-armed soldiers. Yet, in a democracy, education is any nation's best and only true defense, for a democracy draws its lifeblood from the individual and collective might of an enlightened citizenry. Education and defense, far from being mutually exclusive, are mutually reinforcing goals of a democracy. Each nourishes and sustains the other.

Although due attention to the nation's defense and the education of its people are not inconsistent with the concept of democracy, elitism in education is--beyond a doubt. The newly-proposed slashes, if adopted, would make ignorance a national policy, ushering in a shortfall of educated talent and a national brain drain--unspeakable abominations unmatched by even the Black Hole of Calcutta. While "cold" cuts of Reagan-age vintage may be resounding hits at a party for adepts of hari-kari, they are an anachronism in twentieth-century America. They bode cataclysmic and dire consequences for a country which, without a strong educational system, can neither vie for hegemony in the world of nations nor insure social justice for its own "huddled masses" through equal educational opportunity.

Reaganomics and the intended cuts in education are, thus, downright un-American. "Subversive" is not even too strong a word to describe the actions of callous and insensitive budget-slashers who strike at the very heart of one of the animating concepts behind the American Revolution. Was not our nation founded on the premise that America's greatness lay not in our material wealth or the might of armies, but in the power of our moral commitment to achieving "liberty and justice for all"? Assaulting education is as un-American as assaulting motherhood and the flag. The attack is particularly unsettling because, for many Americans, especially in the last two decades, the sole road to even a modicum of "liberty and justice" has

Professor Norwood Coleman of the Master of Human Services Program was elected president-elect of the Delaware Rehabilitation Association on Jan. 7.

Dr. James E. Durkin of the Psychology Department attended the annual conference of the American Group Psychotherapy Association in New York. Dr. Durkin gave two papers: "Complementarity, Autopoiesis and Synchronicity," and "Power and Authority Are Complementary in the Management of Therapy Groups."

Mrs. Mary V. Farrell, coordinator of the Reading/Vriting Lab, and Mrs. Carolyn L. Simpson, assistant director of the TIME Program, attended the Sixth National Conference on Remedial/Developmental Studies in Postsecondary Education (NARDSPE) March 4-6 in Charleston, S.C. The theme of the conference was "Perfecting the Practice of Developmental Education." Workshops were held in the areas of computer usage, developmental studies, problem solving, attrition, nonverbal communication, management, academic support, and research.

Two members of the Lincoln faculty and staff, Captain Milton Bryant, superintendent of Security Service, and Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, professor of English, were honored at the Tenth Anniversary Awards Dinner at Drexel University in Philadelphia on April 21. The two were honored for having served on the Special Services Advisory Board all ten years of the existence of the Act 101 Program at Lincoln.

Dr. Joseph J. Rodgers, chairman of the Department of Languages, has been invited by the Pennsylvania Humanities Council to participate in its "Traveling Humanists" series during the second year of the program, which runs from August, 1982, through July, 1983. An article by Dr. Rodgers, "Language as a Sexist Tool" will appear in the May-June issue of the official publication of the Pennsylvania Humanities Council, The Public News. At the end of April Dr. Rodgers, along with Dr. Brenda Savage of the Department of English, conducted a workshop at Southern University in New Orleans on the development of curriculum modules with an international emphasis. On May 30 he spoke at the Bux-Mont Unitarian Fellowship in Warrington, Pa., on "Language as a Sexist Tool." At the Annual Conference of the Black Conference on Higher Education held in Harrisburg March 25-27 Dr. Rodgers was re-elected to another two-year term as secretary.

Dr. Jean White, associate professor of physical education and director of the Lincoln University Dance Company, has been elected to the Board of Trustees of the Dowingtown Industrial and Agricultural School. Also Dr. White has received a citation from the Pennsylvania Legislative Black Caucus, which sponsored the Black History Month Commemoration Program in Harrisburg, at which the Lincoln University Dance Company performed.

International Night

On April 6, 1982, the French, German, Russian and Spanish Clubs of Languages and Linguistics Department held an "International Night" in Ware Center Little Theater.

Each Club presented a program involving its particular language and culture. The German Club presented "Dr. Faustus" by Goethe. The Spanish Club presented a poem, a drama, and a "cucaracha" (cockroach) dance. The French Club had its own Edith Piaf singing "Rien de rien." Arthur Campbell recited a poem by Guillaume Appollinaire entitled "Sous le pont Mirabeau." Members of the French Club also presented an original skit, "In the Airplane," featuring a group of Lincoln students traveling to Paris for the first time. The production culminated with a dazzling version of the French cancan. Finally, the Russian Club presented a Russian fairy tale, "The Turnip," and a Russian dance, "Kozachok."

There were exhibits and international delicacies following the performances. The event was sponsored by the Russian Club. The "International Night" was a great success, and it is hoped that it will become an annual event at Lincoln University.

been through education. With the advent of Reaganomics, we will no longer be able to promise poor or even middle- and upper-middle-income children that if they obtain a decent education, they will have a successful adult life. But we can assure them that lack of a decent education will consign them to certain and irreversible doom and failure. Will we, in America, the birthplace of public education, sit passively on the sidelines and witness the execution of America's greatest brain-child at the hands of its mother--in its very cradle? If we stand snugly in acquiescence, we are all accomplices to the murder.

Imperfect as it is, public education is our greatest gift to the free as well as the enslaved world. We provided the model for public education and schooled the rest of the world in its use and adaptation. Now, at a time when thousands of untaught (or "mis-taught") children, adolescents and young adults already roam our streets, without job skills and without any hope of ever entering the economic mainstream, we threaten to dam the stream itself, abandoning forever our promise to millions of Americans of an equal chance to enjoy life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness through education. Members of the ever-growing "underclass," who already swell the walls of penal institutions and the rolls of welfare, stretching them to their outer limits, will be joined by still others--from middle- and upper-middle-income families-- for whom education and a college degree once represented some hope of appropriating for themselves at least a mite of the crumbling pie referred to as the American Dream.

For two decades, education in America has been fraught with declining SAT scores and a national crisis in the verbal and quantitative skills of the products of our schools, manifested in Johnny's inability to read, write or perform simple arithmetic operations. Judging from the President's attitude vis-a-vis education, we must assume that ignorance as national policy is preferable to unofficial miseducation. Wiser men would reason that the beleaguered institution of education, if it is to survive, needs all the resources--monetary and human--the nation can muster. Creating an educational imbalance in order to achieve a fiscal balance is not unlike wiping out a monetary deficit by producing a mental one. Neither course of action is good politics or good business.

Many analogies come to mind when one ponders carefully the question of national defense versus education and social justice. Robbing poor Peter to pay posh Paul is a tongue-twisting one. Watering the treetops while neglecting the roots is another. Still another is the parable about the carpenter who tried to build a house from the roof down. In like manner, Reagan's entire "supply-side" economic package, consisting of any array of upside-down premises and old wine in new bottles, hinges upon using our public instrumentalities to redistribute income and its use upward toward the affluent who save and invest larger portions of their income and away from those who consume larger portions of theirs. In so doing, the President is ignoring the government's responsibility to help those first who need help most; and, in education, he is demoting education from its lofty position as an inalienable right to the status of the appanage and exclusive privilege of the rich and affluent.

In a democracy, just as education cannot be the exclusive privilege of a powerful few, neither, then, must it be an "either/or" proposition. Reaganomics, however, thrives on the false premise that economic health and social equity are inconsistent objectives. Spending to secure our national defense and spending to overcome economic and social distress in the third world through education are presented to the American public as if they were alternatives, the former assuming precedence over the latter. Pitting the national defense and domestic needs in education against each other is setting a dangerous and disquieting precedent which raises the inevitable question of "How strong and how safe can an ignorant nation protected by an ignorant military be?" In the final analysis, private citizens constitute armies; and if the citizens are weak and ignorant, so, too, will be the armies. Penny-wise but pound-foolish schemes that transfer upward scores of billions of dollars in the short run will lead to trillions directed downward to ensure domestic peace and tranquility in the longer run; for an uneasy peace, indeed, is peace without justice. Ultimately, achieving social justice through education may prove to be our best defense at home and abroad. In a democracy, progress and justice are mutually reinforcing goals. When we set the two in senseless opposition to each other, we increase the risk of not attaining either.

And the lessons of history teach us that economic progress and social justice need not be viewed as antithetical forces. In the heyday of World War II, we spent almost 50% of our GNP on national defense. Yet, through national policies, undergirded by strong, pinpointed guidelines and controls--vigorously and fairly applied--and through policies designed to combine a full economy with social equity, we improved income distribution and raised living standards more rapidly than ever before in our history--or ever since. At their maximum, the Reagan defense proposals would amount to about 7% of Dr. Oren W. S. Riley, a practicing dentist in New York City, died at his home on March 31. A product of the New York City public schools, he was graduated from Stuyvesant High School prior to his admittance into Lincoln University. At Lincoln he was a member of the varsity basketball team and also president of the Class of 1933.

A graduate of the Meharry Medical and Dental School, Dr. Riley interned at Guggeheim Dental Clinic for Children. He practiced dentistry for over 40 years until his death.

Dr. Riley served as a captain in the famed 369th Regiment during World War II. He was a member of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He was a life member of the General Alumni Association, which he served as president and treasurer. He also served as president of the Gallavanders Men's Club of New York City.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Thelma Lomax Riley, and a host of relatives and friends.

SPOTLIGHT ON ALUMNUS

by John D. Hammond
Kaufman County
Historical Commission

William Henry Burnett was born in 1872 on a farm in Ellis County, Texas. His parents, William and Josie Richie Burnett, were Negroes. William and Josie Burnett separated while their son was very young, and the married Mingo Coffee. Coffee owned a farm in the Ellis County settlement of South Prong near the town of Waxahachie. As a youth Burnett assisted his stepfather with the farm work and attended a community school at South Prong. In these early days our system of public education had not been developed, and the school terms were short, equipment lacking, and many of the teachers poorly prepared.

In the 1880's a Presbyterian missionary was sent by his denomination into the Dallas area to organize a work among the underprivileged and the unchurched. This missionary, Alexander R. Wilson, was a graduate of Lincoln University in Pennsylvania. Wilson's work carried him into the South Prong community, and for a time he taught school there. One of his students was the young William Burnett. Burnett's exceptional mind and exemplary conduct caused Wilson to devote special attention to the youth. Mr. Wilson gave the young man instruction outside the class room that would prepare him for college entrance. Through Wilson's influence a scholarship at Lincoln University was provided.

William Burnett entered Lincoln University in the fall term of 1889. He was graduated there in 1893 and was awarded the A.B. degree. Among the personal papers of Mr. Burnett that have been preserved by close friends are his semester reports. Excellent grades were received in Latin, Greek, Rhetoric, Mathematics, Bible, Geology, Mental Science, Astronomy, Logic, Physiology, Literature, Psychology, Political Economy, History, Belles Letters, Natural Philosophy, and Physical Geography.

The final report issued May 24, 1893, shows the average grade for the entire four years as 95.3, and that the student's rank was fifth in a class of twenty-seven. Additional remarks in the final report are: "Classical Oration," "recommended to trustees for degree of A.B."

(Signed) W.L. Wright, Registrar

After graduation Professor Burnett returned to Texas and began a career in public school teaching. In the 1893-1894 term he taught in his home community of South Prong. In 1894-1895 he taught in Waxahachie.

In 1895-1896 he returned to Lincoln University, where he was awarded the M.A. degree in June 1896.

After receiving the M.A. degree Professor Burnett again returned to Texas, and for a time taught in Lufkin.

In 1900 he was elected principal of the Negro school in Terrell. At the time of his death August 25, 1944, he had completed forty-four years with the Terrell public schools, and had been elected for a forty-fifth session.

Professor Burnett's years in Terrell were years of accomplishment. He entered into a school system that provided schooling for the Negro youth only in the lower grades. There was not and never had been any attempt to offer courses on the high school level. One of the educator's first accomplishments was the organization of a standard high school for colored students. The first graduation of this school was in 1903, when a class of six young people received diplomas. From this time on the Terrell Colored High School was operated on an established basis.

In the first year of Professor Burnett's work in Terrell the Negro school was housed in rented quarters. A building owned by a fraternal order provided quarters for both school and lodge organizations. The faculty at that time consisted of the principal and three teachers. In 1901 a school building was built for Negro pupils. This was a frame building of two stories. Additional rooms were added as school enrollment increased. This building and its equipment were never up to standard for the times. Indeed, the structure was quite sub-standard, and most generally the furnishings had been discarded by other schools. Nevertheless, under Professor Burnett's direction a good standard of instruction was maintained.

In 1932 the Oak Lawn school in Terrell had a dwindling enrollment and was abandoned as a primary school for white children. This school had been housed in an adequate but aging structure. To this building the upper grades of the Negro school were moved. This school was officially named The Burnett High School in honor of the veteran principal. Following World War II a new and thoroughly modern structure was built to house Burnett High School. Classes were conducted in this building until court ordered integration caused the removal of the Burnett students to the Terrell High School. The Burnett building at this time became an elementary school, and the name of the honored professor lapsed for a time. On November 13, 1979, the Terrell board of education officially named this integrated school the Burnett Elementary School. It is on the grounds of this school that it is desired to place a historical marker in honor of the longtime service of William Henry Burnett.

Professor Burnett was a natural musician. His talent and love of music caused him to acquire knowledge and ability merely by association rather than by going through formal courses of instruction. He developed and directed a fine school band in Terrell several decades before such organizations were a regular part of school curriculums. The students of Terrell Colored High School paid for their band instruments by doing field work during the cotton harvesting season. The annual choral concerts were a regular part of every commencement season. Early in his years in Terrell Professor Burnett married Miss Alberta Clemmons, a piano teacher, and she was of much assistance in his musical activities.

Among the Burnett papers is correspondence offering him teaching opportunities in the Houston public schools and the Huston-Tillotson College in Austin. These offers were in 1925. It is not certain how seriously these offers were considered, but the fact is Professor Burnett stayed in Terrell.

Professor Burnett's ability as an educator qualified him particularly well for conducting seminars and workshops for the teaching profession. For many years the school laws of Texas required county wide institutes for all teachers preceding the opening of the school term. These institutes lasted for five days, with morning and afternoon sessions. Professor Burnett conducted some of these institutes in various counties of Texas.

In the summers of 1923 and 1924 Professor Burnett was employed by Prairie View State College as a teacher of psychology and education. Also for four or five years he was employed by Texas College at Tyler in the extension school as teacher of psychology and sociology. Professor Burnett served as president of the State Colored Teachers Association at one time.

Professor Burnett was an effective public speaker, and calls were made for him to deliver inspirational addresses on various occasions. On July 22, 1922, he spoke at Wesley Tabernacle Methodist Church in Galveston. The church bulletin stated that "Professor Burnett is one of our greatest laymen." The bulletin also stated that Professor Burnett had previously spoken at Reedy Chapel A.M.E. Church, and that his address was so pleasing that he had been requested to return. He once delivered the commencement address for all of the Negro high schools in Houston.

Professor Burnett was an active member of Saint James A.M.E. Church in Terrell, and participated in the laymen's work of his denomination. He was a Mason and a member of Corinthian Lodge No. 51 A.F. and A.M. In The Free and Accepted Masons of Texas he was honored with the posts of Grand Treasurer and Grand Lecturer.

In 1967 a movement was started at McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago to create a trust fund in memory of William Henry Burnett. Proceeds from the fund would be directed in two ways: first, scholarships at Lincoln University and second, beautification projects in Terrell, Texas. Rev. John L. Coleman, a former student of Professor Burnett, was probably the most zealous proponent of the project. He was joined by Rev. George Davis, Rev. John McGill, and Rev. William A. Foulds of the seminary. From other parts of the country Rev. Charles Freeman, Rev. Arthur Rankin, Rev. Shelton B. Waters and Dr. John Hayward joined in advocating the project. Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, always ready to participate in matters of beautification, sent in her approval of the effort. The Presbyterian Synod of Texas gave a prominent place at their annual meeting to discussion of the plan. Many of the leaders of the movement were graduates of Lincoln University. Some may have been classmates of William Henry Burnett. Anyhow, it was an idea that prospered and built for a time. However, from a financial viewpoint the matter never materialized. Early in the considerations death claimed several of the leaders. Probably the plan had impractical aspects. But it is worthy of note that so many informed people responded favorably.

Alberta Clemmons Burnett died May 22, 1924. Later Professor Burnett married Miss Lillie Franklin, who survived him until 1974. By his first marriage there was one son, Dr. Clemmons Burnett, who for some time was a practicing physician in Athens, Texas, and later in California. Dr. Clemmons Burnett survived his father

The following students qualified for the Dean's List for the fall semester 1981-82 by making 3.33 or better:

Donna Atmore, Queens, NY; Beatrice Azauka, Nigeria; Valerie Baldwin, Philadelphia, Pa.; Joseph Bourke, Capitol Heights, Md.; Daniel Brandenberger, Oxford, Pa.; Karen Broussard, Washington, DC; Cyndie Buckson, Silver Spring, Md.; Cynthia Bumper, Washington, DC; Denise Cook, Washington, DC; Myron Cornish, Wilmington, Del.; Claudia Dabney, Washington, DC; James Dunn, West Grove, Pa.; Herman Durr, Landover, Md.; Hafeez Fatunmbi, Nigeria; Judith Fitzgerald, Baltimore, Md.; Jerome Garrett, Washington, DC; Mary Graham, Darby, Pa.; Julie Harris, Philadelphia, Pa.; Annette Jacobs, Philadelphia, Pa.; Leslie Jones, Severn, Md.; Pamela Keye, Bronx, N.Y.; Jaime Madera, Philadelphia, Pa.; Augustine Madikaegbu, Nigeria; Milton Margai, West Africa; Jesus Martinez, New Brunswick, N.J.; Carla Maxwell, Baltimore, Md.; Jane Musonye, Kaimosi, Rose Mwangi, Bonn, West Germany; Kevin Neustadter, Oxford, Pa.; Mora Nickens, Washington, D.C.; Hyacinth Nwachukwu, Nigeria; Godwin Odoh, Nigeria; Marcel Onuorah, Nigeria; Adewale Orekoya, Nigeria; Donald Palm, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Terry Payne, Washington, D.C.; Linette Postell, Hempstead, N.Y.; Veronica Robinson, Forestville, Md.; Diana Rowland, Suitland, Md.; Clifton Salley, Lincoln University, Pa.; Sean Scallan, Lincoln University, Pa.; Frieda Shimbuli, Zambia; Olumide Sobowale, Africa; Jeffrey Swain, Oxford, Pa.; Lori Thomas, Baltimore, Md.; Gloria Waters, Wilmington, Del.; Renee Winfield, Coatesville, Pa.

The Lincoln University Chapter of Psi Chi, the National Honor Society in Psychology, was chartered on April 22, 1982. In order to qualify for this Society, students must have an overall GPA of at least 3.00 and a GPA of at least 3.00 in psychology. Dr. William E. Gardner, professor of psychology, will function as the faculty advisor for Psi Chi at Lincoln.

The induction ceremony was conducted by Mrs. Sophy Cornwell, assistant professor and a member of Psi Chi. The eight psychology majors who were inducted are Wendy J. Armstrong, Brookly, N.Y.; Cyndie M. Buckson, Silver Spring, Md.; Donna

Eight students were inducted into the Alpha Chi National Honor Scholarship Society on March 21, 1982. The new members are Milton Margai, Sierra Leone; Rose Mwangi, Kenya; Yvonne Owens, Baltimore, Md.; Beatrice Azauka, Nigeria; Cyndie Buckson, Silver Spring, Md.; Sherri Clark, Washington, D.C.; David Kryak, Oxford and Robert Medley, Washington, D.C.

The sixth Annual Engineering Week was held March 28 to April 3. Lori Thomas, Baltimore, Md., was voted as Most Outstanding Laser Student for '82. Teresa Hood, Chester, Pa., was voted Most Outstanding Engineering Student for '82. Students who have maintained a "B" average or better are on the Engineering Honor Roll. The honor roll students are Richard Armstrong, Jr., Thomas Bender, Daniel Brandenberger, Reginald Brown, Andrea Buie, Kevin Clark, Dwayne Cole, Esu Esu, Hafeez Fatunmbi, Don Hankins, Gary Heyward, Teresa Hood, Daineen Jones, Ingrid Keil, Jaime Madera, Kevin Neustadter, Gregory Ogar, Vernall Pate, Robert Prewitt, Jr., Earl Scott, Dennis Smith, Patricia Stith, Lori Thomas, Thomas Ware, Karen White.

On March 21, eight students were inducted into the Alpha Chi National Honor Scholarship Society. They were Beatrice Azauka, Nigeria; Cyndie Buckson, Silver Spring, Md.; Sherri Clark, Washington, D.C.; David Kryak, Oxford, Pa.; Milton Margai, Sierra Leone; Roberta Medley, Washington, D.C.; Rose Mwangi, Kenya and Yvonne Owens, Baltimore, Md. In order to be eligible, a student must be a junior or senior who has been in attendance at Lincoln University for at least one year and must have a cumulative average of 3.30.

On March 18, 1982, the student body of Lincoln University elected officers for the 1982-83 Student Government Association. The election results were as follows: President, Guy Sims, Philadelphia; Vice President Calvin Butcher, Queens, N.Y.; and Treasurer, Jan Scott, Bronx, N.Y.

the GNP. They would come to very much less in a full production and a full employment milieu. We cannot and must not divide the American house against itself by setting defense and other national needs, such as education, in ruthless opposition to one another. We can and must meet our domestic needs--economic and social. If we fail to devote our energies to building a strong, competitive America through education and an enlightened citizenry, we are, indeed, unwittingly or not, jeopardizing our national security. And after giving the world our greatest gift--and convincing others that it, education, is one of those "inalienable rights" to which all men and women are entitled--we are now speeding or brain-child on to sure and almost sudden death. In so doing, we are destroying not only the American dream but the universal one as well. Let us not be befuddled by intoxicating old wine in shiny new bottles or beguiled by glittering catchphrases that dazzle us because they sound "new." A return to "old hat" but successful policies of the past that wed education and defense may be our ultimate savior.

by a few years and died leaving no descendants.

Professor Burnett worked hard to develop educational opportunities for his race. He was instrumental in directing several young people to take advantage of the opportunities offered by his alma mater, Lincoln University. Others, through his encouragement, attended other institutions. Despite the honors and reputation that he gained throughout Texas, he is best remembered for the tremendous impact he made on the lives of so many people. His memory is still a source of strength and influence.

EDUCATION FOR FREEDOM: A History of Lincoln University

The history of the Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, written by an alumnus and former president, Horace Mann Bond, explores the roots of the institution and seeks an understanding of its origin, its functioning, its growth and its meaning in the world. He tells the story of Lincoln University from its beginnings to 1945, the date of his appointment as President of the University. This volume makes a real contribution to the history of American education and race relations, and is one that educators and social and political scientists will find invaluable.

Professor Orrin C. Suthern, chairman of the Department of Music, was selected as one of 60 distinguished Black individuals to be profiled in a new book, Role Model Blacks: Known But Little Known Role Models of Successful Blacks, written by Dr. Carroll L. Miller of Howard University. Eminent Black graduates of selected colleges and universities were asked to name a professor who had and impact on their lives. Manuel Rivero, professor emeritus of physical education, was also elected as one of the 60 distinguished individuals. Two other former faculty members, alumni of Lincoln University, were included in the sixty: Dr. Leroy D. Johnson, '31, and Dr. Henry G. Cornwell, '33. Dr. James A. Donaldson, '61, chairman of the Department of Mathematics at Howard University, is among those selected for inclusion in the volume.

Alumnus Writes Amusing Story

People Are the Funniest Animals by William H. Waddell, '31, is the story of a remarkably rich life, often amusing, and replete with anecdotal adventures of a Black pioneer in veterinary medicine. Always fascinated by the degree to which the appearance, behavior, and mannerisms of humans suggest analogies with animals, Dr. Waddell paints a colorful picture of the many curious and unforgettable characters whose paths he crossed while living and practicing veterinary medicine in the Deep South, in wartime Italy and North Africa, in West Virginia, in North Dakota, and finally in Hawaii. The first Black to become a member of the American Veterinary Medical Association and the cofounder of the world's first Black veterinary school, Dr. Waddell is also the author of two landmark studies, The Black Man in Veterinary Medicine and Universal Veterinarianism. People may be purchased from Dorrance & Co., 35 Cricket Terrace, Ardmore, PA 19003 or the University of Pennsylvania Bookstore, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, PA 19104 for $8.95 a copy.

Grads Told To Get Involved

Speaking on the subject of "Living in a Demanding Culture," W. Wilson Goode told members of the graduating classes that we are living in critical times. "We are the richest country in the world, yet people live in poverty. All around us are people who are hungry, disenfranchised, and placed in institutions. We are committed to public school education, but the system is torn apart by dissension. Faced with a world of challenges, you can isolate yourselves and stand on the sidelines or go into the arena and do something. Whether you believe it or not, you can control the future."

W. Wilson Goode

Goode told the graduates that their first challenge is to use their talents as government managers. "Feed the hungry, house the poor, take care of the sick and those imprisoned. Make urban centers work for you." The second challenge is to control government by exercising their right to vote. "Don't complain about government if you don't vote. Put people in office who respond to the needs. If they don't, remove them. Things don't have to be the way they are. With courage, fortitude, and determination, go out and run the world."

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Goode, who is managing director of the city of Philadelphia, Sterling Brown, F.W. Elliott Farr, and Clarence L. Holte, '34. Citations were read by Professors Eric S. King, Joanne V. Gabbin, Robert N. Gardner, and Stanley Doscher.

In his charge to the graduates, Clarence L. Holte pointed out that they are about to enter a more exacting world of reality. "The key to progress in a highly competitive world is preparation and performance. There are no shortcuts. Those who sow sparingly will reap sparingly. Those who sow abundantly will reap abundantly. Render service for inner satisfaction instead of ulterior motives." Carla T. Maxwell, president of the Senior Class, responded to the charge.

Miss Maxwell, valedictorian of the class, and Ronald D. Wood, salutatorian, were designated honorary marshals. They were graduated magn cum laude as were nine other classmates. Thirteen other members of the class received their degrees cum laude. Degrees were conferred upon 145 seniors, who were presented to Dr. Branson by Dr. Bernard R. Woodson, executive vice president and provost.

The degree of Master of Human Services was conferred upon 74 graduate students, who were presented to Dr. Branson by Dr. Walter Ridley of the Master's Program.

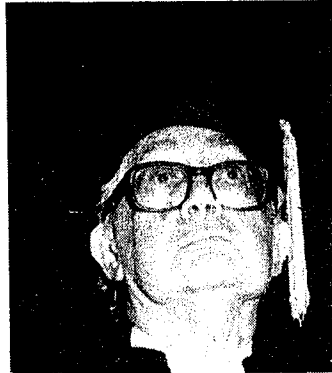

The invocation was given by the Rev. Dr. Frank T. Wilson, '21, '24s, professor emeritus, and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Dr. Cecil D. Gallup, pastor of the Holy Trinity Baptist Church in Philadelphia. The University Chorale, under the direction of Professor Orrin C. Suthern II, furnished music during the services.

Baccalaureate Service

Rev. Dr. Frank R. Brown

The Rev. Dr. Frank R. Brown, '32, '36s, dean emeritus of Hood theological Seminary in Salisbury, N.C. gave the baccalaureate address in the morning. His topic was "A Faith for Today." He told the graduates that faith is the key to success. "Man cannot accomplish anything without faith. Faith is the assurance of things to come. Faith is the complete reliance on God. We live in a world of conflict, confusion, contradiction, and rapid advancement--in a world where the economic, social, and political aspects are out of balance."

On a concluding note the Rev. Dr. Brown told graduates that simply being industrious is not enough. "One must know how to use his time wisely in building a solid foundation. There is no stability in material things. Faith without works is useless. Don't lose courage because things go wrong. Let God be the strength of your life."

Pamela Keye, a member of the Class of 1982, participated in the service with the reading of the scripture lesson. The invocation and the benediction were given by the Rev. John H. West III, the University chaplain. Music was provided by the University Chorale.

Humanities Division Reviews Curriculum

On May 5-7, 1982, the Humanities Division met with visiting consultants to assess its new curriculum, piloted during the 1981-82 academic year. The piloting of the curriculum was sponsored by a National Endowment for the Humanities Pilot Grant and directed by Gladys J. Willis, chairperson of the English Department. Visiting consultants were Robert Young, Ph.D. (University of Pennsylvania), Robert Ginsberg, Ph.D. (Penn State University), Donald E. Herdeck, Ph.D. (Georgetown University), Gus Sermas, Ph.D. (West Chester State College), and Dominique Rene de Lerma, Ph.D. (Morgan State University).

During the mornings, consultants met with individual Humanities departments (art, music, philosophy, English, foreign languages, and religion) to discuss collected data on each new course--including student evaluations, faculty committee evaluations and course syllabi. Afternoon sessions were designed for department presentations to the entire Humanities Division on their successes and failures. Faculty presenters were

Rev. John West on Religion 201; Dr. Gerald Hurwitz on Philosophy 101; Drs. Peter Hoffer, Joanne Gabbin, Kenneth Van Dover on English 207-208; Mrs. Traute Ishida on Art 201; and Professors Robert and John Young on Music 200. Based on student evaluations, faculty evaluations, consultant observations and suggestions, a number of curriculum adjustments will be considered.

The most exciting aspect of this Conference was the faculty interaction process. Members of the Humanities Division agreed and disagreed with each other in philosophical humanities questions. This exchange initiated one of the Conference proposals: That, in the coming year, humanities symposiums be planned so that such faculty exchanges can continue.

Dr. de Lerma stated: "My visit to Lincoln gave me a totally new insight into the qualities of your institution, which I had previously known only as a place to hear concerts and artists we did not have a chance to hear in Baltimore."

OBITUARY

W. Beverly Carter Jr.

W. Beverly Carter Jr., a 1944 graduate of Lincoln University, died May 9 of a heart attack in Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, Md. At the time of this death Carter was Director of Development and International Affairs for the Inter-Maritime Group, based in Geneva, Switzerland. Until January, 1981, he served as U.S. Ambassador-at-Large. In that assignment he headed a new Department of State Office for Liaison with State and Local Governments. He was the first Black American to have served as an Ambassador-at-Large.

Prior to that assignment Carter served as Ambassador to the Republic of Liberia, Ambassador to the United Republic of Tanzania, and Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs. A career officer in the U.S. Foreign Service, he had also served in Nigeria and Kenya. Since 1972 he was a member of the United Nations Sub-Commission on Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities. He was also a Woodrow Wilson Visiting Fellow for the 1981-82 academic year.

Before joining the government, Carter was a journalist. He had been a reporter, city editor, and publisher. That career spanned the period of his post-graduate years until he entered the Foreign Service in 1965. After graduating from Lincoln he considered law as a profession and entered the Temple University School of Law but later attended The New School for Social Research in New York. A keen student of African Affairs, he made his first visit to that Continent in 1952 and subsequently visited some forty African nations.

Carter was recently cited by the Urban League of Philadelphia for his work on human rights. In 1979 he received the Pittsburgh Courier Top Hat Award and was a holder of the Order of African Redemption, Liberia's highest civilian decoration. In January, 1981, he was given the Department of State's highest citation, the Distinguished Honor Award, and in April the Rev. James Robinson Award from Operation Crossroads Africa for his skills in improving relations between the nations of Africa and America.

He is survived by his wife, a son, and two step-children and thousands of loving friends throughout the world. Memorial services were held in Washington, D.C., and in Philadelphia.

Attention: Ladies and Alumni

Without opening your pocketbook you can make a contribution to the Ladies Auxiliary Endowment Fund. If you do needlework or know someone who does, you can hold a needlecraft class or collect orders up to and over $500 and earn generous cash rebates for the Endowment Fund.

Your class will net 10% of the total sales for the Endowment Fund. For classes and outside orders totaling more than $100, the return is 15%. In September for classes and outside orders over $100, the return is 20%. For orders of more than $500, the company gives a $1.00 rebate on every order, in addition to the 20% of the total sales.

Creative Circle offers a wide variety of needlecraft kits at low, factory prices. Their merchandise is of excellent quality; all kits contain complete, easy to understand instructions.

Excerpts from the Banquet Address by Dr. Oscar J. Chapman

Although this is the 50th year since the class of 1932 was graduated from this great institution of higher learning, it has been 54 years since this class (1932) met for the first time as a group. It was in September, 1928, that 112 freshmen of the class of 1932 matriculated at Lincoln University, walked across its hallowed grounds, and entered into its sacred buildings to pursue a course of study leading to the Bachelor of Arts degree.

On an occasion such as this, it has become a tradition for the speaker to say that he thinks (with emphasis on the work thinks) that his class is the greatest class that has ever graduated from L.U. Well, I am going to break with tradition tonight by saying that I do not think that the class of 1932 is the greatest class to be graduated from L.U., because I KNOW that this class is the greatest one that has ever graduated from this university. And I have the facts to prove it.

In the first place, out of a total of 112 freshman, who enrolled in 1928, 78 or 70% of that number were graduated in 1932 - or four years later. And this 70 percent of graduates for the class of 1932 is most significant, when you realize that the national average was only 30 percent in 1981. Or, to state this comparison in another way, out of all the freshman who enrolled in four-year colleges and universities throughout the nation in 1977, only 30% of them were graduated four years later. Yet, the class of 1932 graduated 70% of its original freshmen class 50 years ago.

Let's make another comparison. Out of over 5,000 freshmen who enrolled in 1977 in Harvard College, which is the undergraduate college of arts and sciences at Harvard University, 67% of them were graduated in 1981 or four years later. So, you can see that the class of 1932 had a larger percentage of graduates 50 years ago than Harvard University had in 1981 - just one year ago.

But that is not all; there is much more. Let's look again at the record. Of the 78 students who were graduated on Tuesday, June 4, 1932:

- a. Ten members have received the degree of Doctor of Medicine or the M.D. degree.
- b. Three have received the degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery or the D.D.S. degree.
- c. Three members have received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy or the Ph.D. Degree and two of them became college presidents.
- d. In other words, sixteen or 20% of the 78 graduates of the class of 1932 have earned doctoral degrees. If this is not a record, percentage-wise, then it is close to a record.

e. Three members have received the degree of Bachelor of Law, which is now equivalent to the degree of Juris Doctor or the J.D. degree.

f. Five members have received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

g. Three members entered the U.S. Postal Service, of whom two advanced to the position of Supervisor of Postal Inspection.

h. Four members have pursued careers in health, human resources and social work, of whom three have received the Master's degree in their particular area of specialization.

i. Three members have pursued administrative careers in the field of law enforcement, two of whom were promoted to the rank of Lieutenant and Captain, respectively.

j. Two members have become morticians.

k. Three members have gone into the field of business, and are now operating their own real estate agencies.

l. Four have been college professors; and one has served as the Director of the Department of Health for the State of Pennsylvania. Of those who entered the public school system, nine were promoted to the position of "principal" and five became "Supervisors of instruction."

m. Six members have pursued careers in the field of insurance, where they have held administrative and supervisory positions with such companies as Universal Life in Memphis, North Carolina, Mutual in Durham, and Prudential and Metropolitan Life Insurance Companies in Dallas, Los Angeles, Chicago, and New York.

n. Two have been appointed to the governing boards of higher education, one of whom has become known, unofficially, as the 101st U.S. Senator, because of his outstanding work as the NAACP Liaison Officer in our Nation's Capitol.

o. It is a honor to serve one's country during the time of war. And eight members of the class of 1932 have served in the armed forces of the U.S. and one of them rose to the rank of Colonel in the Air Force Reserve. And the class of 1932 also has the distinction of having at least two millionaires.

p. I am certain that much more could be said about the class of 1932, if information were available on the seventeen classmates, whose present addresses are unknown.

A lot of water has "gone under the bridge" since our graduation. During the last 50 years an entirely new world has been ushered in. We had never heard of the works and achievements of such personalities in the field of sports as:

a. Joe Louis, Jesse Owens, Jackie Robinson, and, of course, Sugar Ray Leonard, the present welter-weight champion of the world.

b. And there were other talented and distinguished persons, such as Ralph Bunche in politics and government.

c. Dr. Charles Drew, founder of the blood bank in medicine, or Dr. Percy Julian in the field of chemistry. We had never heard of:

d. Nat King Cole, Lena Horne, Sammy Davis, Jr., and Richard Pryor in the entertainment field.

e. Or Martin Luther King, Jr. in the field of social, economic, and political action.

f. Or the first and only Four-Star Black General, Daniel G. "Chappie" James of the U.S. Air Force.

g. Or Thurgood Marshall, who was a senior when we were freshmen, but we did not know him then as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

h. Or Langston Hughes, who was also a senior when we were freshmen, but we did not know then that he was destined to become known later as the "Black poet laureate" in the nation.

Yes; time has greatly changed during the last 50 years. However, some things have not changed since our graduation in 1932. For example:

a. We still hold commencement exercises at the close of the regular school year, as we will do tomorrow on this campus for the class of 1982.

b. And our wives, sweethearts and female relatives and friends still dress up in their pretty dresses, and our graduates still wear caps and gowns, and will still listen to commencement addresses, which may or may not be of any benefit to those who have to sit and listen to them.

c. We still award diplomas and degrees to our graduates. They hang them on the walls so that all who visit them may know that they are graduates from some institution of learning.

d. I have this word of encouragement for the men. If the women walk off tomorrow with most of the honors, don't feel embarrassed because they did the same thing 54 years ago when I was graduated from high school. Of course, this observation did not apply to Lincoln in 1932 because there were not female students at this institution at that time.

e. Two other comments about the past seem to be appropriate at this time.

1. People are living longer. The old are getting older. This trend will continue in the future. There were 6,000 people over 100 in the U.S. in 1980. This number will be increased to 10,000 by the year 2,000. This is good news to those who have lived three score and ten years.

2. As the Advisor of the Black Student Union at Salisbury State College, I try to impress upon the Black students enrolled in this institution that they should be proud of their Black heritage. Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, President Emeritus of Morehouse College, makes a similar observation in his book Born to Rebel, and I would like to quote just one sentence from that book: "If we are afraid of being Black, then we are accusing God of having made a mistake."

I understand that there are Lincoln graduates here tonight, beginning with the class of 1922 and ending with the class of 1982, which will graduate tomorrow. So, we have graduates with us tonight who cover a period of 60 years - 1922-1982. That is remarkable. In fact, it is almost incredible. Therefore, what I will say within the next few minutes will apply not only to the graduates of Lincoln, but also to the students, faculty, staff, and administrative officers of this great institution. It is good, of course, to have a fine storehouse of knowledge, which Lincoln has provided for us. However, there are at least three important elements in true education. They are: 1. knowing; 2. doing; and 3. becoming. We will attempt to utilize and explain these three elements.

Some years ago, I ran across a legend, which has impressed me very much, and has largely influenced my life through many years of study and labors among my fellows. In substance, it is the story of a young man, to whom a fairy gave a magic wand, with which he could open up treasures of good things. With this wand in his hand, he went into the palace of a Fairy King and began to open up the treasures of gold and precious stones of almost unlimited value. He filled his pockets and bags with as much of these treasures as he could hold and started back home. Burdened and heavy laden with what he was carrying, he left the fairy palace, but as he was leaving, he heard the voice of his fairy friend urging him in emphatic language, "Don't forget the best!" For in his rush to get home with his rich treasures, he had forgotten the magic wand, with which he had made his rich discoveries.

It is my purpose "to take up the echo of the voice" of this fairy and to make it clearly ring in your ears: "Don't forget the best," as you go forth to live the life made possible for you by Lincoln. "Don't forget the best." What I am really trying to say tonight is that we are not fully educated only when our knowledge enables us to do something worthwhile; and our knowing and doing should make us become capable to making a passing mark in real life. It is not what we know or even what we do, but what knowing and doing cause us to become in character and personality that is the best in education. "Don't forget the best."

To have a good name and to hold the respect and confidence of the people in your community is of far greater importance and value than to be a noted orator or scholar or to have numerous academic degrees. The writer of Proverbs states the truth when he says: "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches and loving favor, rather than silver or gold." It is far better to live in a house by the side of the road and be a friend to everyone than to be a member of the most popular, exclusive, social club, or to belong to the most select fraternity.

It may appeal to your pride and vanity to hold a position of control, domination and rar distinction, but you are far greater than you follow in the footsteps of that Great Teacher of Galilee, Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peache, who went about the world doing good, healing the sick and afflicted, giving sight to the blind, and preaching deliverance to sinners. There is a good deal of glamour in occupying the "seat of the mighty," but the greatest people are those who unselfishly serve their fellow men. "Don't forget the best" in your attitudes toward those people who are less fortunate than you are.

Most of you here tonight have lived long enough to have learned that the world does not owe you a living and that your superior academic training, in and of itself, is no guarantee that you will merit the honor and respect of members of your community. The truth of the matter is that your superior training and culture put you in debt to those less fortunate than you are. In other words, rich people are in debt to poor people and should seek to guarantee to the poor at least some of the luxuries of life. Good people are debtors to bad people and should seek to make all people like themselves. For instance, if good people do not help bad people to live a better life, who will? Educated people must so relate themselves to uneducated people, so that they may lift the cultural standard of all the people. It is the worse kind of paganism for those who are up to look down upon their fellowmen.

We have lived long enough to know now that nobody is going to give us anything in this highly competitive world today. Everything that we have ever gotten has been the result of long, hard work. We have learned that success comes only through blood, sweat, and tears. No matter how hard we may try, we will never have an ideal social order until we first produce better boys and girls and better men and women. It is the character and quality of the people that can produce a better world, for which we have struggled since the beginning of time.

Finally, we must realize that no life is really and truly complete until the spirit of God has come into that life. "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth" is an excellent phrase to remember. In other words, you just cannot leave God out of your life and expect to be successful and happy in anything, except that which is wrong, selfish, mean, ugly, and sinful. Or that which is lacking in mercy, love and compassion.

Jesus never went to a formal school. He never received any diplomas or degrees. Instead, He went about the world doing good. Today, 1,982 years later, the influence of this humble man of Galilee is felt throughout the entire Christian world and his teachings have become the foundation and the basis of our moral and ethical standards. He stands for everything that is good, kind, lovable and worthwhile.

Long ago on Calvary, the violent forces of that age successfully engineered a crucifixion of Jesus Christ. They finished him off, that man of Nazareth who had troubled them. And Pilate and Caiphas and the noisy crowd that had cried, "Crucify him," then went home contented, while Jesus lay dying on the cross. The thought they had put an end to him. Like a blown-out candle, they thought his light had gone out forever. But how mistaken all of them were. Instead, Pilate and Caiphas and the shouting crowds are dead and buried in reproach and shame, while that man of Galilee, whom they crucified, and laid in a tomb, is the greatest elevating force in the world today and has been for almost 2,000 years.

You have been very kind and patient in giving me this opportunity to speak to you from the bottom of my heart, as I have tried to turn back the "pages of time" for almost 5½ decades. And to my classmates of 1932, it has been an honor for me to represent you on this special occasion that comes only once in a lifetime.

The Creator and Ruler of the Universe has been very good to the class of 1932. Since we are living in several different states and since some of us are not in the best of health, this may be the last time that all of us will be able to meet as a formal group. By this time tomorrow, the final event, the 1982 Commencement, will have ended and most of you will have left the campus to return to your homes. And, as the members of the class of 1932 leaves this building tonight, which will be followed later by an old fashioned "bull session," I would like to evoke the blessings of the Holy Spirit, not only upon my classmates, who have lived more than three score and ten years, but also upon all of the living graduates and former students of Lincoln, their final relatives and friends.

A final word to the class of 1932: And now may the Good Lord bless you and keep you; may He make His face to shine upon you and be gracious unto you; may He lift up His countenance upon you and give you peace - now and forever more. Good luck, good health, and may God bless. Thank you.

Class of '32

Reprinted from the Baltimore Sun Paper 5/10/82 with the permission of the author Clarence Mitchell.

As the Lincoln University graduating class remembers it, 1932 wasn't a very good year. In fact, it was awful.

The nation was in the depths of the Great Depression; millions were unemployed. Rumbblings from Europe and the Far East gave warning that there would be war.

One member of the class of 1932 borrowed a battered portable typewriter and began sending out job applications weeks before graduation. He had a perfect score on the returns. All of his applications were turned down. Some were sent back with the words "no vacancy" scrawled on them.

After several dozen rejections, one senior was lucky enough to get a job paying $15 a week.

At that time, the men of Lincoln who managed to get aid from parents or friends went on to graduate school in history, or theology, the law or medicine. Some settled for jobs in the postal system, the public schools or in a state of local bureaucracy.

This is by way of providing a preface to the reunion of the class of 1932 and a brunch last week in the home of Herman Branson, president of Lincoln.

The men of that class are now in their seventies, or they almost are. They display the confidence that comes from facing what seemed to be impossible obstacles and overcoming them.

The student with the 100-percent job rejection record couldn't attend the reunion. He had certainly overcome a lot of obstacles and is now a successful businessman. Some of us joked that he was too busy making money to attend.

One of the doctors there did not attempt to disguise his pride when he announced that he had a son who is a doctor and a grandson who is entering medical school.

A classmate who was noted for his integrity as a student is now a respected civic leader and real estate dealer. Another who has retired from an administrative post in a city government casually dropped a substantial check on the table when there was a collection for scholarship funds.

At least two who have made outstanding records as administrators in higher education and had performed as it was expected they would when they were students. They were top scholars in graduate school and though not retire, still seek to serve in the promotion of learning.

The talk drifted to recollections of other students who were at Lincoln in the 1930's, but not in the class of 1932. These men included Justice Thurgood Marshall of the U.S. Supreme Court, Langston Hughes, the poet, and Benjamin Nnamdi Azikiwe.

Mr. Azikiwe, who got a master's degree in 1932, went back to his native Nigeria, became a political leader there and was a great force in speeding the end of British colonial rule in all of Britain's African possessions.

Perhaps the best way to convey the message that seemed to be coming from the class of 1932 to the graduates of 1982 is to say: "You face conditions of uncertainty and personal risk much like those of our time but, remember, we made it and you, too can succeed."

Spotlight on Harry S. Cummings Sr.

Harry S. Cummings, Sr., '86, was graduated from the University of Maryland Law School May 31, 1889. In that same class was Charles W. Johnson. Harry S. Cummings and Charles W. Johnson were the first two Negroes and Lincoln graduates to be graduated from the Maryland University School of Law.

In the June 1, 1889, issue of The Morning Herald of Baltimore, Harry S. Cummings and Charles W. Johnson were listed among the twenty-three graduates who received Maryland University School of Law diplomas the night before. There was no racial identification.

The New York Times for Monday, June 10, 1889, devoted a long column, "Equality in Baltimore-Colored Men seem to be doing well in the Southern City," to the graduation of Harry S. Cummings and Charles W. Johnson as the first Colored graduates of the Law School of the University of Maryland.

The Baltimore American for Wednesday, June 5, 1889, reported that June 3, 1889, "Lincoln University Commencement Exercises of the Graduating Class-Prizes Awarded" listed H.S. Cummings and D.J. Hill among alumni awarded M.A. degrees. Charles W. Johnson was listed among Maryland alumni present.

Harry S. Cummings, Sr. was also the first Negro city councilman in Baltimore City, having been first elected in 1890, at the age of 24; and successively reelected in 1891 and 1896 and serving continuously from 1907 until his death in 1917.

EDUCATION FOR FREEDOM: A History of Lincoln University

The history of the Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, written by an alumnus and former president, Horace Mann Bond, explores the roots of the institution and seeks an understanding of its origin, its functioning, its growth and its meaning in the world. He tells the story of Lincoln University from its beginning to 1945, the date of his appointment as President of the University. This volume makes a real contribution to the history of American education and race relations, and is one that educators and social and political scientists will find invaluable.

Limited copies of the first edition History still available.

From the Desk of The Executive Secretary

At the annual meeting of the General Alumni Association on Saturday, May 1, the body

--listened to remarks on the State of the University from Dr. Branson and Andrew Bradly, chairman of the Board of Trustees.

--approved the minutes of the 1981 annual minutes.

--was given a summary of the meeting of The Council in the morning and reports made to it by the Athletic Committee and the Life Membership Committee.

--received the annual report of the President of the Association on efforts to establish a foundation.

--listened to a report by alumni trustee William H. Rivers Jr.

--approved a grant of $500 to Ms. Lorraine Warren for Operation Crossroads Africa (grant to be matched by Dr. Jesse Barber).

--approved a change in the constitution whereby regional directors will henceforth be called chapter representatives.

--nominated Osmond Brown to succeed Dr. W. Alexander Miles on the Board of Trustees.

--heard appeals from Rev. John West III, University chaplain, to help refurbish the chapel, and I. J. K. Wells to increase giving to Lincoln.

--approved The Council's recommendation that Frank T. Coleman, director of alumni relations, and Dr. H. Alfred Farrell, executive secretary of the General Alumni Association, plan and hold an alumni summer conference on campus.

At the annual banquet held the same evening Alumni Awards were presented to Dr. Alton L. Wareham, '42, and M. Raleigh McCarroll, '47. Atty. Wilfred N. Mais, '32, declined to accept the award because of philosophical differences with the Administration. Dr. Oscar J. Chapman, '32, was the banquet speaker. The Ladies Auxilliary presented the Distinguished Service Award to Mrs. Edna C. Wells.
