General Information.

ADMISSION.

Applications from young colored men of good moral character, adequate preparation, and competent abilities, are welcome.

Every applicant for admission to the privileges of study must present evidence of good moral character; and if from any Academy, or other College or University, a certificate of honorable dismissal from its President or Principal.

No applicant can be admitted into any department of study except by a vote of the Faculty of that department.

REGULATIONS.

All students in the University are required to attend upon the exercises of instruction and recitation which may be assigned to them, unless prevented by sickness or otherwise regularly excused.

All students are required to attend daily prayers and preaching services on the Lord's day, at the time appointed by the authorities of the University, and to maintain a decorous and reverential behavior in all such exercises.

Students regularly advanced with their classes in the courses of study are required to return promptly to the University at the opening of the sessions of study.

All students are required to maintain a respectful deportment in the presence of the officers of the University, both in the class-room and elsewhere, and to be courteous in their intercourse with their fellow-students, and in all their relations which as students they sustain to others.

EXPENSES.

No person will be admitted into any department of the University unless satisfactory provision is made for his support. All University bills are due at the beginning of each session.

The Academical expenses of a student in Lincoln University do not exceed $150 a year.

An exact estimate of the personal expenses of a student, above what is included in the session bills, cannot be made. Every student is required to provide his portion of furniture for his room, and sheets, blankets, pillow-cases and towels for his own use.

AID TO STUDENTS.

Every student is expected to arrange definitely respecting the payment of his own bills. The entire bill must be paid or an obligation incurred to the amount of the deficiency. Careful discrimination is exercised in directing aid to individuals, to the end that the sense of personal responsibility and self-reliance may not be weakened. Those who are able to pay their bills have only to comply with the regulations of admission, and they will be welcomed to the standing in the classes for which their previous training has fitted them. But no earnest young man, of good abilities and good moral character, should be discouraged from seeking the advantages which are here offered. Many benevolent friends of education are coöperating with the Trustees and Faculty in providing aid for those who are worthy. All who need aid should apply for admission to the President, or to any member of the Faculty, and state in their application their purpose in seeking an education, what progress they have made in study, and what part of the expenses they can meet.

RELIGIOUS EXERCISES.

Devotional exercises, consisting of reading the Scriptures, singing and prayer, are held with the students in the chapel every morning and evening.

There is a service of preaching in the chapel every Sabbath, at 11 o'clock A. M. The clerical Professors conduct this service.

An exercise in Bible exposition on the plan of the International Bible Lessons is held every Sabbath at 3.30 P. M.

A course of instruction, designed to promote their knowledge of the Bible, is given to the students, by one of the Professors, on Sabbath evenings.

A voluntary prayer-meeting is held by the students every evening not otherwise occupied.

LIBRARY.

The library contains about 4000 volumes. The students have access to the library under regulations established by the Faculty of the University.

APPARATUS.

The University possesses a valuable Philosophical Apparatus and a Mineralogical Cabinet.

REGULATIONS.

The course of study in the Collegiate Department occupies four years.

Applicants for admission to the Freshman Class must be at least fifteen years of age. They will be examined in the following subjects:—

ENGLISH.—English Grammar, Orthography, Punctuation, Composition of simple sentences, Geography, History of the United States.

MATHEMATICS.—Arithmetic, Algebra.

LATIN.—Latin Grammar and Reader.

GREEK.—Greek Grammar and Reader.

Candidates for advanced standing will be examined in the studies previously pursued by the class which they propose to enter.

Every student admitted by the Faculty of Arts to the Collegiate Department is matriculated by subscribing his name to a pledge faithfully to obey all the laws of the University.

The Academical year is divided into two sessions. At the end of the first session public examinations of all the classes are held. The name of a student failing at the end of a session to pass any examination assigned to his class will not be entered on the class-roll at the beginning of the next session, until he shall have passed all the required examinations. Students not returning promptly at the commencement of a session will not be admitted to class privileges until they shall have been examined in the studies pursued by their classes in their absence.

At the close of each Academical year the Freshman, Sophomore and Junior Classes are examined, both orally and in writing, in the studies of that year.

The final examination of the Sophomore Class includes the studies of the Freshman year as well as those of the current year. Members of the Sophomore Class found deficient in general scholarship at this examination will not be advanced to the Junior Class in full standing, and will not be entitled to the Degree of A.B., at the close of the course.

The rank of a student in his class depends on his grade in his recitations and examinations; on his punctuality and constancy in attendance upon all exercises of instruction, and on his deportment in all his relations as a student.

At the close of the Senior year the members of the Senior Class are examined in the studies of the whole course.

In determining the final rank of a senior his grade in the final senior examination is combined with the final grades of the previous collegiate years.

COMMENCEMENT.

The Annual Commencement takes place on the first Tuesday in June.

The Baccalaureate Sermon is addressed to the graduating class on the Sabbath preceding Commencement.

On Commencement day the members of the Senior Class, to whom orations are assigned, speak in the order of their rank in scholarship, except that the valedictorian is chosen from among the highest third of the class, arranged according to the rank of the members.

In addition to this honor, indicated by the order of speaking, special honorary orations are assigned, at the discretion of the Faculty, to members of the class who may have excelled in particular branches of study.

Students who complete the whole course of collegiate study satisfactorily to the Faculty and the Board of Trustees, will receive the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

The Master's oration is delivered before the assembly on Commencement day.

The degree of Master of Arts will not be conferred hereafter, except on application of the candidate, and on satisfactory evidence that the candidate has been engaged in literary or professional pursuits for at least three years subsequent to graduation.

All degrees authorized by the Board of Trustees are announced by the Secretary of the Board, and conferred during the progress of the Commencement exercises by the President of the University.

The Collegiate year closes with the exercises on Commencement day, and is followed by the summer vacation.

REGULATIONS.

The Preparatory Department is designed to prepare the students to enter upon the studies of the Freshman year. They are advanced as fast as their success in study will permit. The study of Latin and Greek is commenced in the last year of the Preparatory Course. Proficiency in the studies of this department will fit the student to teach in the common schools of Pennsylvania.

It is urgently recommended that all persons desiring to enter the Preparatory Department should be previously trained in the common branches of an English education, so that they may complete their preparation for the Freshman Class in one year. Students in this department participate in the general advantages of the students in the Collegiate Department, and are under the government and protection of the Faculty of Arts.

Every applicant must be able to read well and to write legibly, and must be familiar with the four elementary processes of arithmetic.

Application for admission to this department may be made in writing to the President of the University, to the Principal of the Department, or to any of the Professors in the Collegiate Department.

REGULATIONS.

The course of study in the Theological Department occupies three years.

Applicants for admission to the privileges of the Theological Department must present evidence of church membership.

Students who complete the full course of theological study, to the satisfaction of the Faculty and of the Board of Trustees, will receive the degree of S. T. B.

No person not a graduate of the Collegiate Department of Lincoln University, or of some other Collegiate Institution, will be admitted to the Theological Department as a candidate for the degree of S. T. B., unless he shall pass an examination satisfactory to the Faculty of Theology, on the whole course of collegiate studies; but applicants who have not pursued a course of classical training may, at the discretion of the Faculty, be admitted to particular classes, or to special courses of instruction. Such students, on leaving the University, will be entitled to a certificate, in evidence of their attendance on instruction, and of the time spent in study.

The Academical year is divided into two sessions. At the close of the second session the students are examined on the studies of the current year. The examinations will be public. The friends of the University, interested in the education of theological students, are invited to be present.

ECCLESIASTICAL RELATIONS.

By the charter of Lincoln University the Theological Department is placed under the care of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, in conformity with the general plan adopted for the supervision of theological seminaries. The General Assembly which met in Chicago, in May, 1871, accepted the oversight of the Theological Department of Lincoln University, as ordained in the charter, and approved the appointments and proceedings of the Board of Trustees, as reported at that time. The laws of Lincoln University require that any action of the Board of Trustees affecting the Theological Department shall be reported to the General Assembly by the Secretary of the Board. The Faculty of Theology is also required to prepare and send to the General Assembly an annual report of their work in instruction, and of all matters of interest respecting the Theological Department.

SOCIETY OF INQUIRY.

A Society of Inquiry has been formed by the Theological Students, for the investigation and discussion of all questions arising out of the operations of the Church.

General Statement.

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY is located in the town of Lower Oxford, Chester County, Pennsylvania, half a mile from Lincoln University Station, on the Philadelphia and Baltimore Central Railroad. The institution is situated in a healthy place, and is free from associations which tend to prevent the formation of a high literary and religious character. The Post Office, where the resident Professor should be addressed, is

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY,
CHESTER COUNTY, PA.

The corporate title of this institution is "THE LINCOLN UNIVERSITY." Bequests, intended to promote the work of this University, will be legally valid under that title. The first charter was granted by the State of Pennsylvania, under the title of "Ashmun Institute," in the year 1854. The title was changed to "The Lincoln University," and the present organization effected in 1866.

There are four University buildings. UNIVERSITY HALL contains the chapel, in the second story, 70 feet by 40 feet inside, and four recitation rooms in the first story for the Collegiate and Theological Classes. It is built of serpentine stone, trimmed with Port Deposit granite, and finished with Carolina pine. This hall is one wing of a building which, when finished, will supply accommodations for the whole work of instruction. About $50,000 are urgently needed to finish the building.

CRESSON HALL contains accommodations for 80 students, for three boarding clubs, and the chemical laboratory. It is built of brick, is 100 feet by 36, and is three stories high.

LINCOLN HALL is 60 feet square, and four stories high. It contains dormitories for 95 students, the Society Halls, the Library, and the janitor's apartment.

ASHMUN HALL was built in 1857. It is of brick, three stories high, and is 50 feet long by 40 wide. It contains dormitories for 32 students, and the recitation rooms for the Preparatory Department. This building is very much out of repair. About $3,000 are needed to put it in good condition.

Besides the public buildings, there are five substantial and convenient residences for the Professors. The whole real estate of the University is worth not less than $125,000. The buildings are erected on a plot of ground of about 80 acres.

Four Professorships are endowed in the University, of $20,000 each:—The Mary Warder Dickey Presidency; The Avery Professorship of Lincoln University; The John C. Baldwin Professorship of Theology; and the William E. Dodge Professorship of Sacred Rhetoric.

There are eight invested Scholarships for the support of students:

The John Dunlap Scholarship,	$2,800
The One Blood "	2,000
The Nelson "	2,500
The Clapp Nos. 1 and 2 "	4,000
The Phelps "	1,250
The Westfield "	300
The Scholarship Fund,	200

The University is growing in popular favor. The applications for admission show that another edifice for students could immediately be filled. An appeal is therefore made to the friends and patrons of this University to take advantage of the present opportunity to diffuse more widely the Christian education and influence of this Institution.

The students board in clubs. The expenses of each club are divided equally among the members. The economy which they practice goes directly to their own benefit. The exact cost of board per week cannot be anticipated, but the experience of the past year justifies the statement of expenses made in the Catalogue.

This University is consecrated to the glory of God and the good of man. It has received the endorsement of all who are acquainted with its work. The friends of universal education are cordially invited to investigate its plans and operations, and to coöperate with its officers in conferring on those who so much need and prize this boon, the benefits of a liberal and Christian culture.
