

Lincoln University Appoints First Woman President

Dr. Niara Sudarkasa, an associate vice president for academic affairs and professor of anthropology at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, has been named president of Lincoln University.

The announcement was made Sept. 29, 1986, by the Board of Trustees. She was selected from a field of 103 nominees.

"We are indeed fortunate to have persuaded such an outstanding scholar and administrator as Dr. Sudarkasa to lead Lincoln University," said Dr. LeRoy Patrick, chair of the Lincoln Board of Trustees.

"Her deep interest in the education of young people is perfectly matched to Lincoln's longstanding commitment to superior undergraduate education," he said.

Dr. Sudarkasa, 48, who was unanimously elected to serve as Lincoln's 11th president by the trustees, will assume her new position February 1, 1987. She succeeds Dr. Herman R. Branson, who retired June 30, 1985, after 15 years as the University's chief executive officer. Dr. Donald L. Mullett, vice president for fiscal affairs and treasurer, has been serving as interim president.

Dedication Ceremony Highlights Homecoming

Homecoming '86 at Lincoln University featured a slate of varied activities, highlighted by the renaming of three university facilities in honor of three exemplary men who have devoted long and faithful service to Lincoln.

A dedication ceremony on Homecoming Day, October 25, involved the unveiling of plaques to rename the University's gymnasium for Professor Emeritus Manuel Rivero, the track for Dr. Wayman R. Coston, and the fitness trail for Professor Robert N. Gardner.

Serving as master of ceremony was Lincoln trustee Walter D. Chambers, '53. The Reverend LeRoy Patrick, '39, chair of Lincoln's Board of Trustees, gave the invocation and led the unveiling. Remarks were by Dr. Donald L. Mullett, Lincoln's interim president.

ALUMNI NOTES From the Executive Secretary

Dr. H. Alfred Farrell

At the meeting of THE COUNCIL of the General Alumni Association on October 25 (Homecoming), the body:

- Approved various changes in the constitution that will be presented at the annual meeting in May.

- Received the report of the treasurer which gave the net worth of the Association as $38,748.96, as of June 30, 1986.

- Approved a budget of $20,900 as submitted by the executive secretary and treasurer.

- Received the report of an alumni trustee covering activities of the Board of Trustees.

- Approved the recommendation of the Association's president, Donald Pierce, that the Board of Trustees be asked to name the President's House the Horace Mann Bond House.

- Recognized the presence of Dr. Niara Sudarkasa, Lincoln's president-elect, who spoke briefly about her plans for the University.

The next meeting of The Council will be held February 28, 1987, at which time three alumni will be selected to receive Alumni Awards at the annual banquet. The recipients will be chosen from reunion classes (those ending in '2s or '7s) and will be considered not only for their achievement in their chosen fields but also for their contributions to Lincoln and the General Alumni Association. Nominations should reach the executive secretary not later than February 20.

DR. NIARA SUDARKASA
Lincoln's President-Elect

"I am very honored that the Board of Trustees has selected me to be the next president of Lincoln University," said Dr. Sudarkasa.

"A proud tradition of higher education for Blacks began on this campus more than 130 years ago. It is a tradition in which I believe deeply.

"Lincoln has an enviable record of providing a quality education for students from many ethnic backgrounds in this country, as well as from many foreign countries. It accomplishes this in a supportive environment that enables these young people to realize their full potential as scholars and as individuals," she said.

"The supportive environment for Black students is a critical ingredient in undergraduate education that has eluded most of the predominantly white colleges and universities. That is why the historically Black institutions are graduating the majority of the Black students who go on to graduate and professional schools and become leaders in our society.

"I look forward to helping this great University strengthen and continue its historic educational mission," said Dr. Sudarkasa.

A member of the Michigan faculty since 1967, Dr. Sudarkasa has served as director of the University's Center for Afroamerican and African Studies and as a research scientist at the Center for Research in Economic Development.

As an anthropologist, she is best known for her work on the role of women in West Africa, where she has conducted extensive field work. In 1982, she received a Senior Fulbright Research Fellowship for study in West Africa. She has written extensively for scholarly publications, including articles on Afro-American family organization and West African trade and migration.

As associate vice president for academic affairs at Michigan, Dr. Sudarkasa has special responsibility for academic policy, special academic projects, and minority student affairs.

Since 1984, she has had primary responsibility for initiating, evaluating, and monitoring the University's effort to recruit and retain minority students.

Dr. Sudarkasa, who is from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., holds a master of arts degree and a Ph.D. in anthropology from Columbia University in New York. She began her undergraduate education at Fisk University in Nashville, Tenn., which she entered after her junior year in high school on a Ford Foundation Scholarship. After transferring to Oberlin College in Ohio, she graduated with a bachelor of arts degree at the age of 18, in the top ten percent of her class.

She has also studied at the University of London and the University of Chicago, where she was a Carnegie Foundation Fellow with the Committee for the Comparative Study of New Nations. Dr. Sudarkasa taught at New York University before joining the Michigan faculty.

An active member of various professional associations, Dr. Sudarkasa has served on the executive board of the American Anthropological Association and on the Social Science Research Council's Committee on Afro-American Societies and Culture.

Dr. Sudarkasa is married and has a son, who is currently studying law at Harvard University.

Lincoln University, the oldest of the historically Black colleges, was founded as an all male institution in 1854. Nearly 100 years later, in 1953, the University amended its charter to grant degrees to women students. Earlier, women were limited to attending classes. Women were first permitted to reside on campus in 1965.

A multi-purpose, state-related, coeducational and liberal arts institution, Lincoln offers degrees in the arts and sciences, business and music. The enrollment is 1,200.

Lincoln counts among its many distinguished alumni Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall, class of 1930; poet Langston Hughes, class of 1929; Kwame Nkrumah, the first prime minister of Ghana, class of 1939; Nnamdi Azikiwe, the first president of Nigeria, class of 1930; and actor Roscoe Lee Browne, class of 1946. □

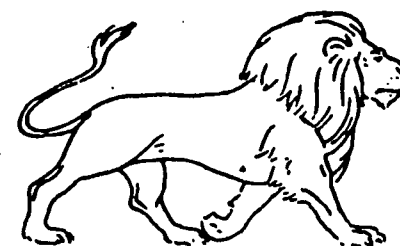

CONGRATULATIONS! MANUEL RIVERO (left) shakes hands with Robert N. Gardner, shortly after the two were honored at dedication ceremonies which officially named the Manuel Rivero Hall and Robert N. Gardner Fitness Trail. Also named was the Wayman R. Coston Track in honor of the late Dr. Coston, a 1924 Lincoln graduate who became a nationally known athlete and prominent East Coast cardiologist.

Prof. Rivero served Lincoln from 1934 to his retirement in 1977 as a physical education instructor; football, basketball, boxing, wrestling, baseball, track, and tennis coach; director of athletics; chair of the Department of Physical Education; University Marshal; Peace Corps program director; and coordinator of the building of the new gymnasium. He now resides near the Lincoln campus in southeastern Chester County.

At the Homecoming luncheon following the dedication, a tribute to Prof. Rivero was made by Dr. Theodore F. Hawkins, '31.

High Point of Career

Since accepting the honor, Prof. Rivero has called the reality of the gymnasium building "with what it stands for in terms of excellence and academic recognition" the high point of his career, and having it carry his name "an overwhelming honor" and "the most magnificent memory of all." He cited many people "who helped with the dream" and spoke of moving into a new era at Lincoln with the "hope for a renewed recognition of the part athletics and physical education should play in the life of a healthy college."

Paying tribute to Dr. Colston, '24, was Franz A. "Jazz" Byrd, '25.

A nationally known athlete, noted cardiologist, and one of the most prominent black practitioners in the Middle Atlantic area, Dr. Coston established a $10,000 scholarship fund at Lincoln in memory of famed athlete Paul Robeson, was inducted into the American College of Cardiology by Hahnemann College in Philadelphia, served as the first black member of the Delaware State Board of Health, and held an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Lincoln. He died in 1982.

Tributes to Prof. Gardner were made by Joseph B. Kenney, '55, and Dr. Henry G. Cornwell, '33, a Lincoln emeritus professor of psychology.

Prof. Gardner came to Lincoln in 1947 and retired in 1986. During his distinguished tenure, he served as an instructor of health and physical education, director of intramural sports, director of physical education, director of the Act 101/T.I.M.E. Program, acting dean of students, and chair of the Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics Department. Widely recognized for his contributions to the Peace Corps, for which he served as program director for nine years, he coached football, boxing, soccer, wrestling, and cricket. He now resides near the University.

Presiding at the luncheon was Dr. Frank T. Coleman, '35, director of Alumni Relations. The invocation was given by the Reverend Leonard L. Bethel, '61.

Other Homecoming activities included a campus carnival, a performance by the Lincoln University Dance Troupe, parade, fireworks, concert, Senior Class Dance, and various sports events. The celebration ended on October 26 with worship service and an afternoon gospel concert.

Parade Float Winners

Parade float winners were the Physics and Engineering Club, Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, and Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity/Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, first, second, and third places, respectively. Car winners were the Russian Club, Language Clubs, and Class of 1989. Also participating were Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Class of 1988, Class of 1990, the LU Track Team, Cheerleaders, and the PEP Team. □

LINCOLN

UNIVERSITY

A commitment to quality education since 1854.

of the Commonwealth System of Higher Education

SMILING FACES at Homecoming '86 included those of these five young ladies who obligingly stopped to strike a pose for the cameraman: (Left to Right) seniors Cyd Hall and Paula Gregory, sophomore Kathy Thomas (stooping), senior Thomasina Devereaux, and Gregory's sister, Ayanna, a junior at Plymouth Carver High School, Plymouth, Mass. The Gregorys are the daughters of comedian and social activist Dick Gregory.
