The Crisis at Lincoln University

Lincoln University never faced a graver problem or a greater opportunity than it faces at the present moment. Here are the elements in the situation:

1. The migration of the Negro to the North continues with no sign of lessening. In a recent visit to Norfolk the writer was told that recently 5000 colored people had left that city for Philadelphia alone.

2. This migration places an added responsibility upon Lincoln University to provide a first-class training amid congenial surroundings to ambitious colored young men of the North.

3. In this whole 'northeast section, whither the center of population is moving according to the census, Lincoln University is not only the pioneer, but is the only institution for the collegiate and theological education of the Negro.

4. Colored high schools in the South are multiplying and are raising their standards, and their graduates in increasing numbers are seeking the advantages which Lincoln affords. It is usual for students, even from the far South, to seek summer employment in the resorts of the northeast, and many find it true economy to make their college home at Lincoln University.

5. The demand was never so great for the services of Lincoln graduates as teachers, pastors and (after their medical course) as physicians. Dean Kelly Miller has shown that the trained Negro ministry is dying out faster than it is being recruited. Secretary of Interior Work has recently pointed out that there is one white physician to every 533 white persons in the United States, while there is only one colored physician to every 3194 colored persons.

Experience shows that colored physicians who have received their college training at Lincoln not only stand high in their profession, but are useful men in the church and the community.

6. The total enrollment of 254 last year could be doubled at once if there were increased dormitory, class room and laboratory facilities. At this writing there have been already 400 inquiries and applications for entrance next year—more than twice the number of any previous year. Of these 400 applicants only 70 at the outside can be accommodated for lack of room.

7. In an effort to meet the situation the sum of $53,500 has been raised toward a $60,000 Science Building. Of this sum the Alumni have given $10,000, the Presbyterian Board of Education $5000, and the General Education Board has pledged $15,000. Other generous friends have given the balance. Only $6500 now remains to be raised.

8. A new College Dormitory could be immediately filled with promising and well-prepared students, who would be given the benefit of a Christian education. Because of their greater convenience the rooms in a new dormitory would command a higher price, and the building, instead of being an expense, would be a permanent investment, bringing in an annual income to the University.

All friends of Christian education and of the advancement of the Negro are asked to give thoughtful attention to the facts presented.

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY

The following is taken from a report made to the Presbyterian General Board of Education telling of the series of special services conducted by Rev. W. W. Walker, D.D., '97, during the week of February 11-18:

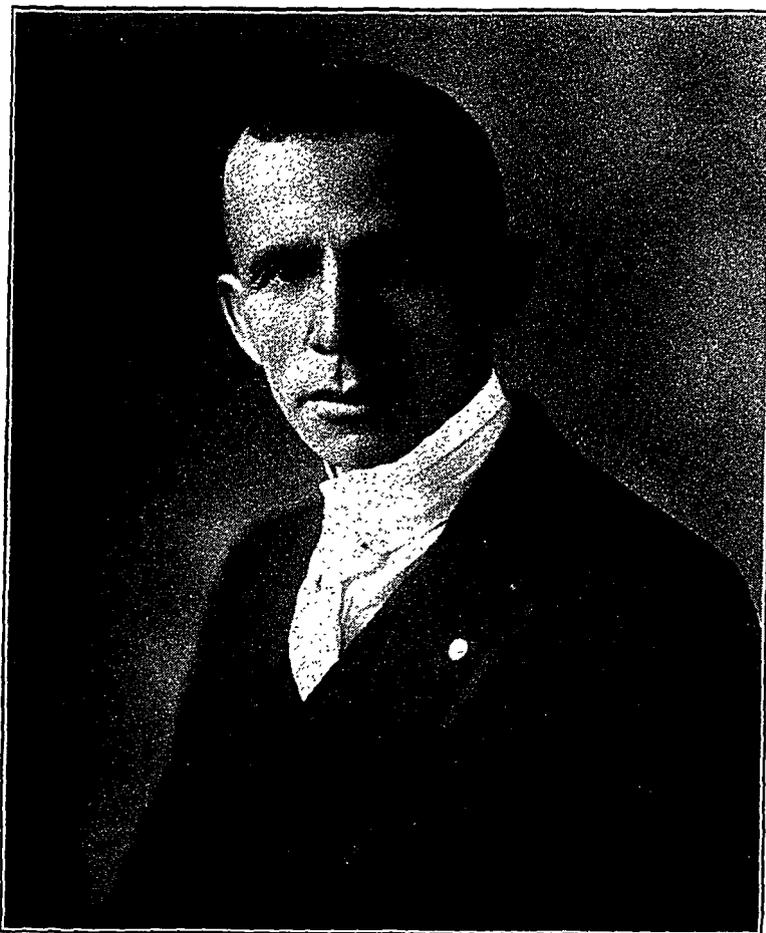

The man who came to bring us the message in our evangelistic meetings during the week of February 11 to 18 proved to be the right man in the right place. He was Rev. William H. Walker, D.D., pastor of Madison Street Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, Maryland, a graduate from the college here in 1897 and from the seminary in 1900. He was engaged in Y. M. C. A. work in France during the war. In college he was the leading scholar of his class and all his sermons here were a happy combination of thoughtful scholarship and of direct and pointed spiritual appeal. The meetings were held during the worst weather of the winter, but in spite of near-zero temperature and the wind blowing one night at the rate of sixty miles an hour, the attendance of the students—especially during the latter part of the week—was almost 100 per cent. Eight young men came forward to profess their faith in Christ and their desire to devote their lives to his service.

A by-product of Dr. Walker's work here was the increased interest among the students in the work of the ministry. It is encouraging to know that nine or ten men of the senior class in the college—among them several of the best scholars and all-round men of the class—are looking forward to entering the theological seminary next year. Dr. Walker, by his power in the pulpit and his talks with the men, magnified the work of the ministry and said he would not exchange his place as a preacher for that of President of the United States.

You will see that in his work here Dr. Walker made a profound impression upon both faculty and students. One sermon he preached from the text, "Canst thou by searching find out God?", giving the reasons why he believed in God. This latter sermon the professor of theology said was the best handling of the subject that he had ever heard. Dr. Walker was thronged by the students, who wished to interview him, and said his only complaint was that there were so many visitors in his rooms after the preaching that he found it difficult to get the required amount of sleep.

REV. WILLIAM W. WALKER, D.D.

SUNDAY SCHOOL OF CHAMBERSBURG CENTRAL CHURCH GIVES $1000 TO SCIENCE BUILDING FUND.

Rev. George A. McAlister, Ph.D., pastor of Central Presbyterian Church, Chambersburg, addressed the students of Lincoln University at their Chapel service on Friday morning, January 12. Doctor McAlister's address and his announcement that he was the bearer of a contribution of one thousand dollars, contributed by the Sabbath School of Central Church at their recent "White Christmas" service, for the work at Lincoln University were received with enthusiasm by the faculty and the students. The following resolutions were adopted:

"The Faculty of Lincoln University, having heard with extreme pleasure and gratification that the Sunday School of the Central Presbyterian Church of Chambersburg, Pennsylvania, has collected at their recent 'White Christmas' service the sum of one thousand dollars for the work of Lincoln University:

"Resolved, That all who are associated in the work of Lincoln University appreciate deeply the interest shown by the generous and large-hearted people of Central Presbyterian Church and Sunday School; and that we hereby express our heartfelt thanks to the pastor, the session, and the officers, teachers and scholars of the Sunday School, and to all the donors whose liberality has helped to make up this splendid gift; and

"Resolved further, That, in receiving this generous gift, which promises substantial progress in our work of Christian education and which inspires us to thank God and take courage, we express the hope that the scholars of the Sunday School, the members of the Brotherhood, and the people of Central Church, to which some of us are already bound by closest ties, may be enriched in their experience and that evidences of the Divine favor and blessing may be continued in abundant measure to the pastor and the members of the Sunday School and the Church."

It is hoped that many other Sunday schools will follow the example of the Central Church of Chambersburg.

COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT

With Rev. Calvin C. Hays, D.D., ex-Moderator of the General Assembly, of Johnstown, Pa., and Dr. George Cleveland Hall, '86, of Chicago, as speakers, the college commencement on Tuesday, June 5th, was one of the most interesting and successful that has been held in years. The graduating class of forty-four young men was the largest in the history of the institution and was notable for its high quality as well as for quantity. Visitors from far and near and a large delegation of Alumni filled the commencement hall and listened with close attention to the addresses by students and visitors. E. R. Ferguson delivered the Latin Salutatory, E. Luther Brookes the Valedictory, and F. H. Davis and M. B. Tolson were the other student speakers.

The Annie Louise Finney Prize of fifty dollars was divided equally between E. R. Ferguson, of Pennsylvania, and D. C. Pope, of Alabama. The Bradley Medal in Science was awarded to E. D. Dukes, of Arkansas. The first Junior Orator Prize was awarded to Robert B. Johnson, of New Jersey, and the second prize to Henry B. Sweet, of Georgia. The prize for intercollegiate debating was given to E. L. Brookes, of the West Indies.

Dr. Hays, in a stirring address, gave interesting incidents of his experiences as Moderator of the General Assembly, and spoke of the characteristics of the educated man. Dr. Hall, who has been called the leading citizen of his race in Chicago and was appointed by Governor Lowden on the Inter-Racial Commission, spoke of the need and the opportunity for service of the educated colored man. The Trustees conferred upon Dr. Hall the honorary degree of LL.D. This was the only honorary degree conferred at this commencement. Dr. Hall's address will be found in another column.

Dr. Francis T. Jamison announced that the members of the Class of 1913 were presenting as their decennial gift to the University three work benches for the chemical laboratory in the proposed Science Building and a water distilling outfit. Dr. Walter G. Alexander, '99, announced that the services of Prof. Ulysses S. Young, '17, have been secured on a three-year contract as physical director and athletic coach.

Among the Alumni, from the Class of 1913, who were noticed at commencement were: Rev. W. G. Anderson, Lexington, N. C.; Harry E. Bouden, Philadelphia; H. E. Caldwell, Baltimore; Dr. Francis T. Jamison, Wilmington, Del.; W. B. Jamison, Wrightsville, Pa.; Dr. W. F. Jerrick, Philadelphia; Dr. Frank P. Raiford, Detroit; Dr. Wesley C. Redd, Youngstown, O., and Rev. Frank C. Shirley, now in Sabbath School missionary work in North Carolina. Baltimore sent a large contingent, including Drs. William T. Carr, Jr., R. B. McRary, Frank N. Cardozo, E. P. Wheatley, J. H. Hilburn, Chas. H. Fowler, Rev. Drs. W. W. Walker, John T. Colbert and Daniel G. Hill and Prof. J. Newton Hill. Dr. George E. Cannon, President of the Alumni Association, and W. G. Alexander and Rev. Dr. Charles S. Freeman were on hand as usual. Dr. Cannon gave evidence of his "Lincoln spirit" by coming to commencement with his family in a handsome new Lincoln car. He brought with him his pastor, Dr. William A. Byrd, who has a son in Lincoln, and was made an honorary member of the Alumni Association. Among the other Alumni were: I. Randall Reed, of Washington; Elmer U. Grant, W. G. Jones, Dr. Hays Buchanan, Dr. Alvin H. Mason, W. H. Fuller, Rev. M. H. Hagler, D. W. Noble and George I. King.

DR. GEORGE C. HALL'S ADDRESS

Lincoln University was fortunate in securing as a commencement speaker one of its most honored graduates, Dr. George Cleveland Hall, '86, of the Provident Hospital, Chicago. Dr. Hall has helped in the founding of many hospitals in other cities, one of which, in Birmingham, Ala., bears his name, and he is as well known throughout the country for his ability as an orator as for his skill as a surgeon. His address in substance follows:

Lincoln University was founded in 1854 by Rev. John Miller Dickey, of Oxford, Pennsylvania. The purpose of the University as set forth in the catalogue, reads as follows:

"The purpose of the Trustees and Faculty is to communicate, according to its means, a liberal Christian education to worthy young men who may become leaders of the colored people."

To tell the story of the life of this institution, so romantic and exciting in its inception, so full of interest during all of its existence, so active at all times, so crowded with telling work, stirring events, and crowned with so many successes and so many enduring achievements—to tell this story, I say—would fill many volumes and then be incomplete. Some day it will be written, not by a more loving heart, but a more clever pen than mine.

Doctor Dickey believed that the lifting of education must come if the Negro was to be saved from exploitation. This was his idea. For two and one-half centuries men had preached of freedom, of human brotherhood, while in their midst was a group of four million people denied in practice what was preached from the house tops. Doctor Dickey believed that Jesus exhausted every known source within the limits of human experience to teach this fundamental truth. That He came to save life, all life, and every phase of human existence and to redeem it to a condition of contentment and peace. He believed in practice as well as preaching. By consecration of himself and the dedication of his life, time and talents, he established this institution. He had his ideal—a man with a high ideal never fails. He supplied that spiritual leadership for which the world is now languishing. He gave justice; brotherhood, Christian service, a new currency among the terms of human speech. He gave to religion a touch of daily life and practice. Such a man, though unseen—too often unthought of—lives on from generation to generation, age to age, in the noble aspirations he has kindled, in the enterprise and intelligence he has fostered and in the high and holy principles with which his leadership has inspired humanity.

DR. GEORGE CLEVELAND HALL

Nor was he to do this work alone. He was soon joined by men of lofty perseverance, admirable ambition for usefulness and sincerity of purpose to give faith and service a new place in human relations; and as these men from time to time rested from their labor, their ranks have been filled with self-sacrificing recruits.

Lincoln never failed in any hour of trial or difficulty to find another man to stand up and be the bearer of her banners. Before the light of Eli was extinguished, fire was kindled in the breast of Samuel. These brave and ardent men not only gave a part; they gave everything—reputation, comfort—they gave themselves. They taught men to believe not only in God, but in themselves.

In order to obtain the best results, it was the avowed purpose not only to establish a system of academical education, but to draw from the highest institutions in the country the best instructors that could be obtained on these subjects which are of first importance and of the highest and greatest interest to mankind. Thus was established an institution not only original in its plan, but efficient in its operation. Lincoln challenged the world as to the utility and wisdom of teaching the Negro science and art. The clear, insistent and compelling utterances of Dr. I. N. Randall, who early joined Dr. Dickey, were convincing and persuasive. Lincoln was not organized to solve the so-called "Negro problem," but to present to the Negro a program, which does not teach the Negro to be a Negro, but teaches him to be a man. Teaching racial consciousness is not giving a course of education. Education means to draw out. A course of racial instruction means to shut in, to circumscribe, to think in terms of race rather than in terms of humanity. No group can now hope to play a commanding human part until its members think in terms, not of group, but of humanity. Mental segregation is worse than physical segregation. Its founders recognized a common inheritance which all men have—the possession of mind, a thing more important than any accidental or artificial condition. Mind makes and creates conditions. They believed that the spiritual plane upon which every human being stands by virtue of his humanity, rests in his soul, not his social condition, race or color.

I wish I could paint the pictures to hang on memory's walls of the Christian teachers who came to Lincoln, not to make a living, but to make a life worth while. They preached the creed of Christian brotherhood, not only in the walls of Lincoln, but in that greater temple whose roof is fretted with the stars.

Under the wise guidance of these men, Lincoln University has made a place in the ranks of literary institutions second to none in its class. Hard work, sound scholarship with salaries that have not hitherto, to the best of our belief, proved any serious impediment to enter the Kingdom of Heaven, have thus been the order of the day in this honored seat of learning. No college in our country has made better students or done more to place the means of a thorough education within the reach of all. A brighter day is dawning upon Lincoln. It is likely soon to be in a position to greatly extend its usefulness. Let us hope for a greater Lincoln.

Fellow students, may we not out of such a past look for a larger and brighter future? When we consider the great principles announced, and now practically confessed by all, when we think of the vast consequences which grew out of this, I think old Lincoln dilates, grows more splendid, makes our hearts beat with greater admiration and makes us resolve to re-dedicate our loyalty. This work must grow, for indeed it is one of the great contributions to our national life, to a full, successful life. After thirty-seven years in active life, Lincoln still answers to my mind and heart as she did in the long ago. Nothing can dim her glory.

The migration of colored people to the North is being widely discussed in the press of the country. Hon. Thomas E. Miller, '72, of Philadelphia, has an excellent statement upon the matter in a recent issue of the Public Ledger. A call for a state-wide conference to consider the subject, to meet in Atlanta, Georgia, July 4th, was signed by Dr. H. R. Butler, '87, President J. W. Holley, '00, and Rev. A. B. McCoy, D.D., '01.

CAMPUS NEWS

Prof. James Carter, D.D., is again at his home and is recuperating from an operation in a Philadelphia hospital.

Rev. Clarence E. Macartney, D.D., preached the baccalaureate sermon at the Theological Commencement, May 6th, and Prof. J. Ritchie Smith, D.D., of Princeton Theological Seminary, made the address to the graduating class on May 9th. The Nassau Prize of $50 was awarded to Amos H. Carnegie.

Prof. W. L. Wright made the commencement address at the Elkhorn High School, W. Va., of which Rev. J. Collin Sawyer, '16, is principal, and Prof. W. H. Johnson spoke at the commencement of the Booker T. Washington High School, Norfolk, Va. Prof. Walter J. Scott, '95, teaches in this school, and Rev. John R. Custis, D.D., '06, is principal of the Lott Carey School with nearly 1500 pupils.

Rev. Charles Schall, D.D., of Wayne, Pa., was the orator at the Lincoln's Birthday celebration. He emphasized Lincoln's religious faith as the foundation of his character and service for humanity.

Books for the library have recently been donated by: Rev. Dr. W. W. Heberton, of Wayne, Pa.; Rev. Euclid Philips, of Baltimore; Mrs. W. J. Pflieger, of Arlington, N. J.; Mrs. Ida Husted Harper, of Washington, D. C., and Dr. George C. Hall, of Chicago.

A lecture on Religious Journalism, in the chapel, by Mr. Philip E. Howard, president of the Sunday School Times Company, was one of a number of interesting and helpful addresses which have been greatly enjoyed by students and faculty.

MEMORIAL MINUTE TO REV. GEORGE B. CARR, D.D.

From a minute adopted by the Presbytery of Chester:

A wide circle of friends on both sides of the Atlantic has been saddened by the death of Dr. George B. Carr, which occurred following an attack of pneumonia on April 2 at the home of his daughter in Omaha.

Rev. George Bogue Carr, D.D., was born at Berwick, England, on July 10, 1844. After his education at Glasgow University he was pastor of churches at Hastings, England, and at Tranent and Edinburgh, Scotland. In 1893 he visited Dr. Samuel A. Martin, then a professor in Lincoln University, and in 1895 was elected Professor of Rhetoric and Homiletics in Lincoln University, where he continued in active service until he resigned his work at Christmas, 1921.

In 1871 Dr. Carr married Miss Jean S. Jameson, who died at Lincoln University in March, 1910. Dr. Carr is survived by three sons, two of them in the medical profession, and two daughters, Mrs. Walter L. Wright, of Lincoln University, Pa., and Mrs. Frank H. Ridgley, of Omaha, Nebraska.

Dr. Carr's ministerial life of fifty-two years was almost equally divided between the pastorate and the professorship. The keynote of Dr. Carr's work as a pastor was given a year ago when the theological students of Lincoln University presented an enlarged portrait of himself to be hung in his classroom. In response to the students' words of affection and appreciation, Dr. Carr said, "Give your hearts to your people and your people will give their hearts to you." At the funeral service at Lincoln University on April 7, several members of his brief pastoral charge at Avondale and Toughkenamon said, "Dr. Carr was the best man we have ever known."

Dr. Carr was peculiarly fitted for the duties of the chair of Homiletics and English. He was at home with the masters of English literature and was familiar with the treasures of English speech. He counted among his friends such men of note in the theological world as Drs. Guthrie, John Cairns, Calderwood and Orr. Dr. Carr was never satisfied until he had mastered a subject in all its details. "Not through, but thorough" was a favorite motto which he constantly exemplified. "I owe more to Dr. Carr," said a recent graduate of Lincoln University, "than to any other man," and this testimony to his helpfulness will be widely echoed from different parts of the country. He spent twenty-six fruitful years in Lincoln University writing on the hearts of living men and helping to send out a trained and consecrated ministry into the colored churches of America.

Dr. Carr took a deep interest also in local history. He prepared, with characteristic accuracy and literary finish, an excellent "Life of John Miller Dickey" (still in manuscript form).

The funeral services were held in Lincoln University Chapel and were conducted by members of the faculty and Rev. Samuel C. Hodge, of West Chester, and Rev. William Boyd, of Lansdowne.

ALUMNI NOTES

Rev. W. W. Walker, D.D., '97, and the officers of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, held a series of meetings in May in celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the church.

The North Carolina Grand Lodge of Masons has sent a check for $300 to Dr. Robert B. McRary, '85, for the purchase of a suitable decoration in recognition of his services as Grand Master of the Order.

Dr. Charles A. Lewis, '05, and E. Washington Rhodes, '21, were speakers at the fifth annual Emancipation Celebration at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia.

Rev. L. N. Mzimba, D.D., '06, of Newton, Alice, S. A., writes of a meeting of his presbytery in the congregation of Rev. Jeremiah Zokufa, '06, at Peddie, with 400 members, and says:

"I thank you more than words can tell for the sum of 25 pounds, 6 shillings, 6 pence, which reached me safely. It has now been deposited in the bank."

The sum referred to ($116 in our money) was given sometime ago for missionary purposes and was sent to the Lincoln Alumni in South Africa to be used at their discretion. They plan to use it to endow a Lincoln or a Rendall room (or both) for theological students in the Native South African College at Fort Hare. "By doing this," says Mzimba, "we hope to keep the name of Lincoln fresh and imperishable to the end of time."

Interesting exercises were held in the Rendall Memorial Presbyterian Church in April in celebration of the one-hundredth anniversary of Colored Presbyterianism in New York City. April 18th was "Lincoln Night," with an address by one of the faculty and an oratorical contest by students, which was won by Melvin B. Tolson, '23. The church in its new home is steadily growing under the leadership of its pastor, Rev. W. R. Lawton, D.D., '83.

Rev. John W. Lee, D.D., '99, recently delivered before the Students' Association of Princeton Theological Seminary an address on "The Newly Developing Race Consciousness." The address is printed in the Afro-American Presbyterian.

Advantages Offered to Students by Lincoln University

1. Recognition of its degree. Lincoln University is fully accredited by the Association of Colleges of the Middle States and Maryland and this recognition is of great value to graduates in seeking admission to professional schools and in securing teachers' certificates.
2. Sound and practical training. The thorough instruction given in the courses at Lincoln University affords the best possible basis for success in professional study and in the activities of after-life.
3. Congenial surroundings. The University is situated upon high ground amid the pure and healthful air and the beautiful hills and farmlands of Chester County. Outdoor sports are encouraged.
4. Strategic location. The University is accessible from the great cities of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, and is on the line of travel of the large number of students who come from the South seeking summer employment at the eastern resorts.
5. Christian atmosphere. Removed from the distractions of city life the whole atmosphere of the University is favorable to the formation of studious habits and the building up of manly Christian character. The "Lincoln spirit" is the spirit of service.
6. Representative student body. No institution of similar size is so broadly representative in the territory from which it draws its student body. Contact with students from all parts of the country discourages provincialism and produces a breadth of outlook and sympathy.
7. Leadership of Lincoln alumni. The example of Lincoln alumni, who are prominent leaders of their race in all parts of the country and in various lines of activity, holds out before the undergraduate high ideals of achievement and of usefulness in service.

MEMORIAL TO PROF. S. H. LONG

A large water color painting has been placed in the Lafayette Presbyterian Church of Jersey City, Rev. William A. Byrd, D. D., pastor, as a memorial to the late Stephen Handy Long, '93. Professor Long, who was born at Pocomoke City, Md., April 1, 1866, after graduating at Lincoln University, where he was a popular and industrious student, became Superintendent of Colored Schools in his native county, Worcester County, Md. He filled this office with great ability until his untimely death September 13, 1921, when, on the streets of Pocomoke City, he became involved in an unprovoked and unexpected altercation with a white man whose brother rushed in in the heat of passion, stabbing and killing Long. The donor of this picture is John S. McMaster, Esq., a lawyer, of Jersey City. Professor Long's good mother formerly belonged to Mr. McMaster's parents, who highly regarded her and her family. Dr. George E. Cannon, '93, is an elder and was one of the founders of the Lafayette Church, in which this memorial painting has been placed.

Frank T. Wilson, '21, a senior in the theological department, has been chosen to represent the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. in the southwestern field, taking the place of Mr. W. C. Craver.

Dr. Robert Kelley, accompanied by Mr. W. A. Daniel, of Richmond, Va., was a visitor at the University over the week-end of October 7th and addressed the students at the Sunday morning service.

Rev. Horace C. Stanton, D. D., of Philadelphia, has made a donation of valuable books to the University Library. A recent lecture by Doctor Stanton on "Telepathy" was much enjoyed by the faculty and the students.

A number of books from the library of Rev. M. H. Fishburn, formerly of Frazer and now of Ambler, Pa., are gratefully acknowledged.

LINCOLN GRADUATE HONORED

Rev. W. Payne Stanley, '16, now rector of St. Clement's Episcopal Church, Houston, Texas, writes to Dr. Rendall:

"Last week I received a British War Medal from the London War Office, in recognition of my war work in Africa and India. The medal is of solid silver and has the picture of King George the Fifth on one side, and on the other a picture of St. George, the patron saint of England.

"It was wholly unexpected. I had done my work to the best of my ability and had forgotten it. I do, therefore, consider the medal a tribute to Lincoln, rather than to me, for it was at Lincoln that I learned to do my duty and forget about rewards. Assuring you and the faculty of my gratitude for the teaching which made a man of me, and pledging myself anew to the task of extending the Kingdom of Christ."

Rev. Francis J. Grimke, D. D., '70, recently preached a sermon in celebration of the forty-two years during which he has been pastor of Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church, Washington, D. C. Dr. Grimke, who is now seventy-two years old, offered his resignation, but the congregation refused to accept it, voting that he be continued as pastor for life, and deciding to call an associate pastor to share with him in the work of the parish.

Paul A. Collins, M. D., '08, is Assistant Surgeon in the Department of Ophthalmology in the New York Ophthalmic Hospital. Dr. Collins is a specialist in the treatment of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

Professor Harry W. Greene, '17, dean of Samuel Huston College, Austin, Texas, writes: "I am having my biggest success here in the Southwest. I have just completed an eight-week summer school which I directed. I am happy and am finding great satisfaction in my work."

LINCOLN DEGREE APPRECIATED

That an honorary degree from Lincoln University is appreciated in far-away Africa is shown by the recent action of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of Africa, communicated to Dr. Rendall by Viceroy Kwatsha, '12, clerk, who writes: "The Synod met at Ciko on April 12th, and this being the first meeting since the degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon its Moderator, Rev. L. N. Mzimba, the Synod congratulated him highly upon the honor given to him by his Alma Mater. As this Synod considers the honor not only a boon to Rev. L. N. Mzimba but also the African Church at large, it therefore resolved that its hearty vote of thanks be conveyed to the Trustee Board of the University."

LINCOLN GRADUATES IN SABBATH-SCHOOL WORK

Rev. Jesse B. Barber, '15, has been appointed Superintendent of Sabbath School Missions in the East Tennessee Synod, under the Presbyterian Board. He writes: "Thus far results have been happy. Our territorial scope is quite large, taking in Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama, with portions of Virginia and North Carolina. Prof. W. D. McLean, a splendid Lincoln man whom you will remember, has been transferred to a larger field in West Virginia. We had a splendid summer season in our work. Our Synodical Sunday School Convention and School of Methods was noteworthy, with 166 delegates registered, some of them coming four or five hundred miles."

Rev. Mr. Barber was married on September 30th to Miss Mae V. Fortune, whose father was an early Lincoln graduate.

Rev. Amos H. Carnegie, '23 Seminary, is a missionary of the American Sunday School Union located at Orangeburg, S. C. He writes: "The Lord is blessing my labors here. I have just been successful in erecting, at Garnett, S. C., a splendid Sunday school building donated by the Dorchester Lumber Company. The white people are my best friends. They show me courtesy and kindness everywhere I go; more than that, they are ready to co-operate with me and lend me material assistance. I have secured a little Ford coupe, in which I am able to get around with great facility."

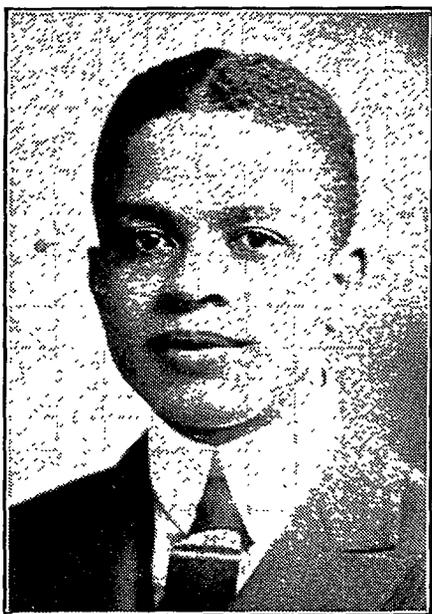

Rev. T. B. Hargrave, '23 Seminary, is a Presbyterian Sunday School missionary with headquarters at Newnan, Ga. In four months he has organized eight new Sunday Schools, and started a work in a thickly settled district in the city of Atlanta. In one county in his district there are 9,000 children out of Sunday School and a flourishing work has now been started. In preparing for a meeting the missionary can be seen picking cotton and talking Sunday School at the same time. Mr. Hargrave writes, "Revs. Shirley and Barber, Supts. of Catawba and East Tennessee Synods, have broken all records in successful conventions. Rev. Hames held a school of methods in his Arkansas district."

An interesting incident has recently come to the knowledge of the Lincoln authorities. A Lincoln graduate, who was helped through his medical course by a wealthy white couple, has now come to be himself a man of large means and prominence among his people. Meanwhile the friends who had helped him have lost their money and are now an aged couple on the verge of destitution. On learning of their condition the Lincoln physician, who would not wish his name to be known, made them a visit and is now helping in a generous way to relieve their necessities.

PROFESSOR MILLER W. BOYD

Miller W. Boyd, '21, a cut of whom is shown above, is teaching mathematics in Morristown Normal and Industrial College, Morristown, Tenn. At a recent session of the Association of Teachers and Colored Schools of East Tennessee, Prof. Boyd was elected president, succeeding Prof. P. E. Butler, '09, of Bristol, Tenn. Prof. Boyd was valedictorian of his class, from which he graduated magna cum laude, and divided the Finney Prize with Frank T. Wilson, '21. In assuming his office Prof. Boyd said, ("according to the East Tennessee News"):

If at the end of another year, as a result of our efforts, we can say that a more just and equitable expenditure of state and county funds has been realized, that better school facilities and a better teaching personnel have been made possible, and that community welfare in general has been elevated, then there will be sufficient honor, glory and happiness for all of us.

Emory A. James, '16, is teaching science in the Junior High School, Indianapolis. We regret to learn of the death of Professor James' wife in August last.

WORK OF REV. W. T. FRAZIER

A generous lady, who sends a substantial contribution to the work of the University, writes: "For the past two winters spent in Charleston, S. C., I have been in touch with the work of Rev. W. T. Frazier ('03) and his wife, and cannot speak too highly of his work as a minister and of his help in connection with the school of 125 children. The progress during that time in the religious, literary, kindergarten and sewing departments showed patient, faithful work on the part of the teachers and marked improvement in the pupils." Rev. Mr. Frazier is pastor of the Wallingford Presbyterian Church of Charleston.

DR. CANNON'S ADVICE SOUGHT

Dr. George E. Cannon, '93, of Jersey City, president of the National Alumni Association, is known for his sound judgment and wide influence, and his advice and counsel are increasingly sought in all matters pertaining to the welfare of the race.

When a proposition was made several months ago to erect a monument in Washington to the "Black Mammy" of the South, the Literary Digest asked Dr. Cannon's opinion upon the subject and his letter was printed in a recent issue. A few weeks ago Dr. Cannon, as chairman of the executive committee of the National Medical Association, had an interview with President Coolidge in reference to the personnel of the Colored Veterans' Hospital at Tuskegee Institute.

Dr. Thomas E. Miller, Jr., '02, of Charleston, S. C., has the distinction of being the only Lincoln graduate who enlisted in the Army as a private and after service in France was promoted to the rank of Major before the close of the war. Dr. Miller is a prominent physician in Charleston and is on the reserve list of the Medical Corps of the United States Army.

LINCOLN, 6; HOWARD, 6

The following account of the Lincoln-Howard football game is from the New York World's special correspondent:

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 29.—Before a record-breaking attendance of 27,000 persons, the largest crowd that ever witnessed a football contest between Negro teams, Howard University, of Washington, D. C., and Lincoln University, of Chester County, Pa., yesterday afternoon played to a 6 to 6 tie at the National League Park.

The most spectacular play of the afternoon was the eighty-seven-yard run made by Jazz Byrd, Lincoln's quarterback, who toward the close of the first period after Howard had just scored a touchdown caught the ball on Howard's kick-off and ran like a frightened hare from Lincoln's ten-yard line to within a few feet from Howard's goal post when the period ended. Byrd eluded outstretched arms of four or five Howard players before stopped. After a few minutes of play in the second period Lincoln made a touchdown, but failed to kick goal.

Howard started in the game the aggressor and made consistent gains. Long, of Howard, caught a twenty-yard pass which brought the ball to Lincoln's five-yard line. After two unsuccessful attempts Capt. Doneghy succeeded in making the first touchdown of the game, while Howard students and partisans sang "Old Fashioned Love," with the University's band lustily playing.

After Byrd's sensational run, which was directly responsible for Lincoln's touchdown in the second period, Lincoln sang "Who's Sorry Now?" to the accompaniment of the Robert Ogden Band of the Wanamaker Store. The first half ended with Lincoln in Howard's territory and making desperate efforts to chalk up another touchdown.

In the second half Capt. Doneghy tried strenuously twice to kick Howard in the lead, but in each instance was blocked by Coston, of Lincoln. The ball was mostly in Howard's territory throughout the second half, and when the game ended was on Howard's ten-yard line. After Byrd's long run Howard lost its punch.

The Howard-Lincoln game drew Negroes from as far West as Chicago and as far South as Richmond and Norfolk. Three thousand Negroes were present from New York City, 500 of whom came on a special train this morning. The 700 Elks from Manhattan had accompanied the Elks' band of sixty-two pieces to Philadelphia on Wednesday. A special train with 1000 football enthusiasts from Pittsburgh helped swell the crowd, while Washington, D. C., contributed a special train of eighteen coaches Thursday morning and five coaches

Wednesday evening. The colors of the teams, blue and white for Howard, orange and blue for Lincoln, were very much in evidence.

Those present from Washington and Baltimore in the main roared loudly and often for Howard, while Philadelphia and New York enthusiasts raised a mighty din for Lincoln. At the end of the first half supporters of both elevens marched behind bands across the field, cheered and waved the pennants of the rival colleges. A male supporter of Lincoln furnished a thrill during the intermission by attempting to scale an improvised ladder, but suddenly lost his balance and fell to terra firma. Luckily he was badly frightened but not hurt.

The line-up was as follows:

Morgan.....	center .....Priestly
Parker.....	right guard .....Kelly
Jason.....	right tackle .....Dokes
Crudup.....	right end .....Long
Byrd.....	quarterback .....Blackman
R.W.Johnson... 1.	halfback, (Capt.) Donehy
Brown.....	right halfback .....Contee
Lee.....	fullback .....Peyton

Lincoln .....	0	6	0	0-6
Howard .....	6	0	0	0-6

Touchdowns—Donehy, Byrd. Referee—Gibson, Springfield. Umpire—Bullock, Dartmouth. Head linesman—Douglas, Harvard. Time—15-minute quarters.

FOOTBALL NOTES

The game between Lincoln and the West Virginia Institute has come to be an annual event of importance at Charleston, W. Va. At the game this year, October 27, the governor of West Virginia, a large number of Lincoln alumni and other notables were present. The game resulted in a Lincoln victory, 7-0.

The only defeat of the season was at the Hampton game in Baltimore, November 3. The score was 3-7.

The team of St. Paul's School, Lawrenceville, Va., was a strong one and the game on Rendall Field, November 10, resulted in a 3-3 tie.

The Lincoln team was in the best of form in the game against Shaw University at Norfolk, Va., November 19, and rolled up a score of 48-0.

CAMPUS NEWS

Hon. J. George Becht, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, will be the speaker at the Lincoln Day exercises on February 12 next.

Professor George Johnson is giving lectures at Princeton Theological Seminary in theism and religious education.

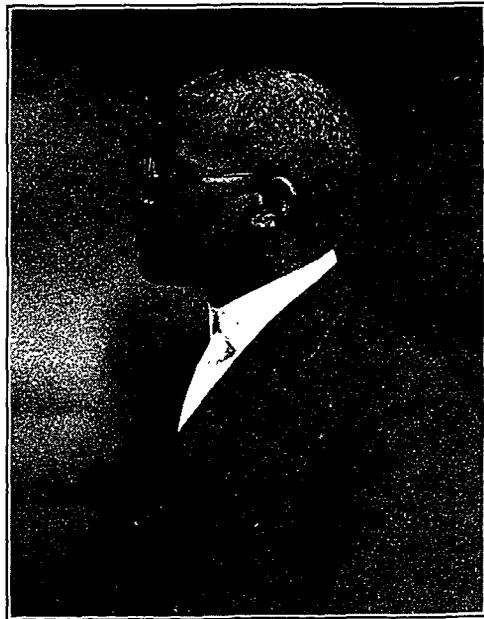

Professor James Carter has fully recovered from a recent operation and has resumed his work in the University.

Rev. Clifford P. Osborne, a graduate of Rutgers College and Princeton Theological Seminary, has begun his work as instructor in French and German. Mr. Osborne was in active service in France during the war and was afterward Y. M. C. A. secretary in Roumania. Mr. William R. Cole, a graduate of Middlebury College, is instructor in Physics.

The total enrolment of students during the present year is 267, the largest in the history of Lincoln University. Of these 18 are in the Theological Seminary and 249 in the College. The numbers in the separate college classes are as follows: Freshman, 77; Sophomore, 66; Junior, 50; Senior, 55; Graduate student, 1.

The nine States having the largest representation among the students are: North Carolina, 35; Virginia, 33; New Jersey, 32; Pennsylvania, 27; Georgia, 19; Maryland, 18; South Carolina, 16; Arkansas, 11; Kentucky, 11. New York has 8, Oklahoma 7, Connecticut 6, Tennessee, Delaware, District of Columbia and West Virginia, 4 each.

The number of applications for entrance in the college was far in excess of any previous year. With the large enrolment there is an overcrowded condition in laboratories, classrooms and dormitories, and the need for the immediate erection of the proposed Science Building and of a New Dormitory is imperative. The Science Building Fund has now reached $54,350. Contributions to this fund are greatly desired.

REV. JOHN T. KERR

Rev. John T. Kerr, College '03, Seminary '06, has been for the past nine years the successful pastor of the First Baptist Church, Jacksonville, N. C., and for several years has also been principal of the County Training School under the auspices of the Baptist Association of this district.

Through Dr. Joseph H. Odell, Director of the Service Citizens of Delaware, an interesting book, entitled "Negro School Attendance in Delaware," has been received and is gratefully acknowledged.

We are indebted to two West Chester friends for two delightful evenings in our lecture course. Mr. J. Carroll Hayes described, with beautiful illustrations, the cathedrals of Europe, and Professor Robert T. Kerlin, after a sympathetic interpretation of "Negro Poets," gave an interesting account of his experiences in his defense of the men arrested in the Elaine, Ark., riots.

Among other speakers in recent weeks have been Mr. Frederick J. Libby, Secretary of the International Federation for World Peace, Washington, D. C., and Mr. Charles S. Johnson, of New York, who spoke on Race Problems.

Coach Ulysses S. Young, Jr., '17, by his successful work with the football team and his genial personality, has made a most favorable impression upon both students and alumni in his first season's experience.

Professor William P. Finney is chairman of one of the most important committees in the new Presbyterian Board of Christian Education. With Dr. Lewis S. Mudge, stated clerk of the General Assembly, he has been co-editor of a new edition of "The Presbyterian Digest."

Prince L. Edwoods, '16, and William H. Berry, '94, are now members of the faculty at Cheyney School for Teachers, Cheyney, Pa., and made addresses at an educational conference held there October 20th. Professor Wright also made an address.

Rev. Blake E. Moore, '19, has been called to Western College, Kansas City, Mo., as director of the College and Theological departments.

The Philadelphia Public Ledger, in a recent issue, devoted a leading editorial to a discussion of an important address prepared at a state-wide conference at Atlanta, Georgia, outlining the causes of migration from the South and suggesting the remedy. Among the signers of this address, who were also active in calling together this conference, are the following Lincoln men: Dr. J. W. Holley, '00, President Georgia Normal and Industrial College, Albany, Ga.; Dr. Henry R. Butler, '87, Grand Master of the Union Grand Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Georgia, Atlanta; Rev. A. B. McCoy, D.D., '01, Secretary, S. S. Department, Presbyterian Church, Atlanta.

Maceo W. Hubbard, '22, is attending Harvard Law School at Cambridge, Mass.

Rev. E. Martin Lewis, '22, pastor of Grace Presbyterian Church of Seattle, is the able editor of a live church paper, the "Grace Herald."

Rev. Gustave H. Caution, '20, has completed his course at the Philadelphia Divinity School and is in charge of St. Philip's Protestant Episcopal Chapel, Annapolis, Md.

Julius C. Bryant, '14, who was formerly teaching in Haines School, Augusta, Ga., has been called to the faculty of Johnson C. Smith University, Charlotte, N. C.

Rev. McLain C. Spann, '00, has been called to the pastorate of Second Presbyterian Church, West Chester, Pa.

Rev. Moses L. Collins, '13, is teaching in the Williston Industrial School, Wilmington, N. C.
