FOURTH SECTION: SABBATICAL LEAVE RATING FORM

Professional Standards for Faculty: Promotion, Tenure, and Sabbatical Leave

The University By-laws give the President the authority to recommend to the Trustees persons deemed to be qualified for promotion, tenure, or sabbatical. Evaluation for any of these personnel actions is based on teaching effectiveness, scholarly research and creative activity, and service.

- 1. Teaching Effectiveness is evaluated on the basis of classroom instruction, demonstrated command of subject, student performance (e.g., mastery of subject matter and critical thinking), academic advising, special mentoring of students, and success in shaping curriculum in the major, school, and University. Effective teaching is central to the mission of the University and is given a weight of 50% in the evaluation process.
- 2. Scholarly Research, Creative Activity, and Professional Achievement is evaluated on the basis of successful engagement in grant preparation, research and other knowledge development, scholarly writing, conference presentation, and publication, or other creative endeavor, such as in music and the fine arts activity, and disseminating that knowledge and creative work. Scholarly research/creative activity is critical to the mission of the University and is given a weight of 30% in the evaluation process.
- 3. Service includes contributing to the mission of the University, school and department through participating in the deliberation, decision making and implementation processes that further that mission, and by extending that work to the community. Service is also vital to the success of the University and is given a weight of 20% in the evaluation process.

*The PTS Committee will provide a comprehensive assessment of candidates for promotion, tenure, and sabbatical on the basis of these standards in accordance with the following weights: Teaching (50 percent), Scholarly Research (30 percent), and Service (20 percent).

I. Definition of Tenure

Tenure is a status earned after demonstrating excellence in teaching, scholarly and creative activity, and service to the University, one's school, one's department, and the community at large. Except as required by the Faculty By-laws, tenure is not granted on the basis of length of service to the University. The probationary period determined at the time of hire (referred to as the tenure clock) provides an opportunity to demonstrate one's commitment and capacity to work satisfactorily within the University's administrative structure and community. According to the "Statement of Principles of the American Association of University Professors," published in 1940, tenure is defined as follows:

Tenure is a means to certain ends, specifically: (1) freedom of teaching and research and of extramural activities and (2) a sufficient degree of economic security to make the profession attractive to men and women of ability.

The acquisition of tenure assures the faculty member that his/her contract will be continued from year to year, unless he/she fails to fulfill professional and contractual obligations or for reasons of professional incompetence, moral turpitude, or financial exigencies facing the University. The attainment of tenure does not, in itself, insure later promotion. Employment situations which do not accumulate tenure time are as follows:

- When part-time teachers at the rank of Instructor or higher become full-time members of the faculty, their previous Lincoln service is not applicable toward tenure.
- Unless agreed to in writing by the President (or designee) at the time of tenure-track hire, time spent by Lecturers, Senior Lecturers, Assistants, Consultants, Visiting Faculty, and Adjunct Research Appointees is not credited in the probationary period leading to possible tenure.

Full-time faculty members may be granted release time in order to do research or perform administrative duties delegated by the administration. As long as these duties are performed at Lincoln and as long as the faculty member's primary function is teaching, the time spent will be counted as part of the probationary period. Any question concerning whether or not the faculty member's primary function is teaching, will be resolved in writing at the time of appointment by the dean of the respective school in consultation with the respective department chair.

II. Professional Standards for Rank: Faculty

Advancement in academic rank is not based on years of service, but involves achievement of gradations of higher levels of excellence in teaching effectiveness, scholarly research I creative activity, and service, with the highest level of achievement at the rank of professor. The following specify these standards as they apply to rank:

A. Instructor

An Instructor shall hold a master's degree or its equivalent. Reappointment depends on satisfactory progress towards completion of the terminal degree, and satisfactory teaching and advising, and service to the University, school, and academic department.

B. Assistant Professor

An Assistant Professor is expected to have an earned doctorate or its equivalent, or the accepted terminal degree in one's discipline (MFA, MLS, JD, or others as certified by the department in question). To be promoted from Instructor to Assistant Professor, the person shall have an earned doctorate or the accepted terminal degree in one's discipline. Reappointment depends on satisfactory teaching and advising, service to the academic department, school, University and community, and evidence of scholarly research/ creative activity/ professional achievement.

C. Associate Professor and/or Tenure

The applicant for Associate Professor and/or becoming a tenured faculty member shall have an earned doctorate or the accepted terminal degree in his/her respective discipline and shall give evidence of teaching effectiveness and service which meets the accepted standard for associate professor and, likewise, a high level of competence in his/her respective field as shown by such activities as scholarly research and publications, grant proposals, presentations at scholarly conferences, and exhibitions and juried performances, as attested to or validated by peers, both within and outside the University, through documented peer review or critique. The successful applicant must achieve at least a 3.5 weighted rating (out of a possible 5.0) on the Rating Scale (Step 2). Those applicants not already at the rank of associate professor or higher and who are successful in receiving tenure, shall automatically be awarded promotion to associate professor.

D. Professor

A Professor shall meet all the standards of Associate Professor and, in addition, show evidence of consistent excellence in teaching and service, and in scholarly research /creative activity exceeding the level expected of Associate Professor, *both in extent and quality – as attested to or validated by peers within the University and qualified outside referees. It is the responsibility of the applicant to submit evidence of performance in each of these specific areas.

The PTS Committee will make a final decision and include a brief, written justification in its final recommendation.

Each school dean will forward reference letters on the applicants in their schools to the Vice President for Academic Affairs.
